As the morning was very fine, Benny ventured to step out upon the balcony, where a magnificent and beautiful scene burst upon his view—the loch, with its clear, deep blue waters glittering in the morning sun, and its girdle of lofty mountains, with their bases robed in deep evergreens and the sharp, bare peaks glistening in the morning light with all the colors of the rainbow. Benny, always sensitive to beauty, fairly caught his breath as he gazed.

A light hand was laid upon his shoulder.

He turned, and saw the earl standing by his side.

"What do you think of the view?" enquired his lordship with a smile.

"What do I think?" echoed Benny in a calm ecstasy. "There is Paradise still on earth. Eden could not have been fairer than this. Only to breathe and see here seems joy enough. It is a heavenly place to live in—or to die in," he added in a lower tone.

"To live in, yes. But, as I observed once before, we will have no dying. I most decidedly object to that sort of thing, except in centenarians. They have a right to die, if they insist upon doing so. But as for a young man like yourself, he has no right to think of such a proceeding; and therefore—"

As the earl said these last words, he stepped back into the parlor, and presently returned with a tartan shawl, which he carefully placed around his brother's shoulders, saying with a smile:

"If you do not take better care of yourself, Douglas, I shall have to be your valet. What would Kinlock say if he saw you out here without a wrap?"

"He would say," exclaimed the surgeon, who at that moment joined them, "that standing shivering on a bleak balcony, while gazing at a magnificent scene, is taking the poetry without the comforts of life, the elegancies without the necessaries; or, to bring it right home to your hearts and stomachs, it's like having the dessert without the dinner! There, the tea and muffins are cooling on the breakfast table, to say nothing of the haddock and eggs."

Lord Wellrose laughed, and they all went in to breakfast.

And, after breakfast, Benny was obliged to lie down on the sofa of his room. Whether it was from the reaction of his excitement on reaching his native shores, or whether it was the fatigue of his long journey, or from the progress of an incurable malady, or from all these causes combined, Benny was again prostrated with weakness, so he was compelled to keep his sofa.

"How is this, Kinlock? Why does he not get stronger?" enquired the earl of the surgeon, as soon as they found themselves alone together.

"I told your lordship the truth from the beginning. I never deceived your lordship," said the surgeon, gravely.

"Do you mean to say that he will never get better?"

"He will be better and then worse, as is the way with people suffering as he does; but, my lord, he will never recover," gravely replied the doctor.

"You medical gentlemen may sometimes be mistaken, may you not?"

"Certainly."

"Then I will cling to the hope that you are mistaken in this instance," said the earl, as he arose and went to his brother's apartment.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

He found Benjamin reclining on a sofa.

"How do you feel now?" he inquired, taking a seat by her side.

"Tired—a little tired, but very comfortable and happy," replied Benjamin, holding out his hand to his brother.

"It is but the effect of your long journey," said Lord Wellrose, taking the thin, white hand and holding it in his own.

"My lord," began Benny, after a short silence, "ever since I reached home I have been longing to ask you more particularly about—"

He hesitated in some embarrassment and his pale face flushed.

"About Suzy?" suggested the earl.

"Yes, my lord; about Suzy."

"And I, also, have been wishing to speak to you of her; but as you did not mention—"

"And here Lord Wellrose paused, in a little less embarrassment than Benny had betrayed.

The fact is, there had been, and still was, a singular reticence in both these brothers on the subject of Suzy. And the reason was obvious: both loved each other with a brotherly love, and both loved or had loved, Suzy, with a love that was certainly not brotherly.

"You hear from her often?" said Benny, half questioningly.

"I hear from her and write to her by every mail. We exchange letters about once a fortnight."

"She is well, I hope?"

"She is well; but our correspondence is by no means what you would suppose it to be."

"Indeed!"

"Indeed no. She writes to me as though I might be her respected pastor instead of her betrothed. You shall see a recent letter she wrote me. It is a sample one. And it will be no breach of confidence, since there is not a word in it that might not be proclaimed from the church steeple," said the earl, as he rose and left the room.

He returned in a few moments with Suzy's letter. He put it open into Benny's hand.

And, oh, he saw and marked that frail hand tremble as it touched the paper!

Benny began to read the letter—a cool, friendly, formal letter, such as any girl might have written to a male relative, with whom duty compelled her to correspond, but such as certainly no girl ever befoer wrote to her betrothed lover.

Benny finished reading the letter, raised his eyes to the face of the earl, and started with surprise and perplexity.

Lord Wellrose smiled.

"Why, what on earth does she mean? What in the world is the matter?" inquired Benny.

"Nothing is the matter. The child has found out her mistake in having fancied that she ever loved me with a real and lasting love," said the earl, calmly.

"How long has she written to you in this style?"

"Always—that is, ever since she began to answer my letters at all."

"Then it must have been and must still be, mere timidity that caused her to write so coldly. Suzy was timid in some respects."

"It was not timidity in this case. I will prove it to you. The letter that you have just read is the last but one I received from her. This one that I am now about to show you is the very last. In it you will see that she deliberately requests me to free her from her engagement to me, assigning as reasons the unsuitableness of the proposed marriage, the opposition of my family, her own personal unfitness for the rank I offered her, and, more than all, the change in her own feelings, which has taught her that she never truly loved me as she once thought she did.

Moreover, she gives me no chance to refuse her request, for she tells me, in conclusion, that she is coming home to England, and shall be on the seas before another letter from me can reach her."

While the earl spoke, Benny's memory was busy with the past.

He remembered that just before they parted, Suzy to go to Australia and himself to go to the Crimea, she had confessed to him a plan she had formed of absenting herself from England until the earl should be cured of his indiscreet attachment. He remembered that he himself had begged Suzy to impart her plan to her lover, and get his consent that this test should be put to the strength of his love. And she had said that she would think of his advice. He wondered now whether she had told her purpose. And now he asked the question:

"Did your lordship suspect that she would change in this way?"

"Never! It has taken nearly two years for the truth to gradually reach me."

Benjamin looked anxiously at his brother.

How calmly the earl took his disappointment! But perhaps he was only exercising self-control. Benny ventured another question:

"And you, Lord Wellrose! You! How is it with you? What shall you do?"

"It is well with me, Benjamin. Just as soon as Suzy shall arrive in England I shall take great pleasure in seeing the child, and freeing her from her foolish engagement."

Benjamin stared at the earl in speechless astonishment.

"Don't look so shocked, my dear fellow. Our harmless passion was a brief hallucination, and nothing more. I was fascinated and dazzled by the beautiful singer, and she—" the earl paused.

"Was fascinated and dazzled by the splendid young nobleman, the lion of Parliament, and the idol of society," said Benjamin, finishing his sentence in his own way with fond enthusiasm.

"There!" said the earl, patting Benny's hand, and laughing quietly. "How much I wish that all the world had as great faith in me as you have. But to come back to Suzy. It is all over between us. I shall always love the child as a dear, good little sister. But for the rest, I only wait to comply with her request, and free her from her engagement, before offering my hand to Lady Hinda Moray, who has long had my heart."

As the earl ceased speaking he looked at Benjamin, and was startled to see the change that had come over his wan face and wasted form. His face was marble white and half concealed under his trembling hands, and his form was shaking as with a chill.

"Douglas! Douglas!" said the earl, bending anxiously over him.

"Oh, if I could only live now! Oh! I wish I could live now!" murmured Benny, in a very low tone.

"Live! my dear boy, you must and shall live! You have so much to live for now; so much more than you know. Never give up! Despair kills more than disease does. Ah, that cruel cough!" murmured the earl, suddenly breaking off from his discourse, as a violent paroxysm seized and shook the invalid, as if it would have shaken his fragile frame to dissolution.

"Yes, I have her to live for now," said Benny, as soon as the paroxysm had passed off. "Yes, Lord Wellrose, I will tell you all now. I loved her, my lord. Oh, heaven, how I loved her! With no 'brief passion,' with no transient hallucination, but with a deep, true, vital love, that grew with my growth, and strengthened with my strength, from infancy to childhood, to youth, to manhood, through good and through evil, in presence and in absence, in hope and in despair!"

"Ah! I suspected this!" murmured the earl in an almost inaudible voice.

"It is little to say that I would have died for her. Any man might have done that for his beloved. But I would have died an ignominious death on the scaffold and left my poor memory to infamy, only to have saved her brother from a felon's grave, and her fair name from the shadow of reproach. That was how I loved Suzy, Lord Wellrose," said Benny with an unusual outburst of emotion.

The earl was deeply moved.

"You loved her so, and yet you would have promoted her marriage with me," he said.

"Yes, my lord, because I thought she loved you, even as I loved her. And her happiness—yes, yours, too—was dearer to me than my own," said Benny earnestly.

"But now you know she never loved me so—never really loved me at all. She only fancied so; drawn first to like me by my strong resemblance to you, her life love. The tremendous sacrifice of your life and good name that you were about to make for her sake naturally awoke her heart to the knowledge of your great love and her own. And she did well and wisely in going away to her parents at the Antipodes, and there to wait for time and Providence to set us all right. Be comforted, my dear Douglas, for she returns your love."

As the earl spoke there was a knock at the door, presently followed by the entrance of a footman, who said respectfully:

"My lord, their graces the Duke and Duchess of Chester have arrived, and wish to see your lordship."

"So soon! I did not expect them quite yet," said the earl to himself. "Tell their graces I will attend them immediately," he added to the servant, who went away with the message.

"Dear Douglas, you hear that my father and mother have come. I must leave you for a little while, but I will soon return," said the earl as he left the room.

"What a comfort it must be to have a father and mother living," murmured Benny to himself as his brother closed the door.

Then the racking cough seized and tore him with violence.

(To be Continued.)

◆◆◆

Girl Dead Beside Lover.

"By the side of a young French cavalry officer, who had been hit in a fight on the Aisne we found the body of a pretty girl," says Sergeant Payne, who is at Bristol, wounded. "Both were dead. Their story was as sad as anything I have heard of in a war full of tragedies. When the young man joined his regiment the girl left a convent school and attached herself to the Red Cross.

"Hearing that her sweetheart had not returned from a charge in which his regiment was engaged, she had gone out with the ambulance men to look for him. Going in advance she had found him, and while attending to his wounds was hit by a stray bullet, which penetrated her right lung and killed her. They were buried side by side."

The Joy of Good Health Is Now Experienced

Nervousness, Dizzy Spells and Sleeplessness Are Now a Thing of the Past.

MRS. PEACOCK.

This is a cheerful letter from Mrs. Peacock, and it should bring joy to the heart of many a reader of this paper. Dizzy spells and sleeplessness are symptoms of exhausted nerves, and are the bugbear of many women, who do not know just what treatment to use.

You can read Mrs. Peacock's letter and take courage, for she has proven that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a complete cure for these troubles. So pleased was she with the results obtained that she wants other women to know about this food cure.

Mrs. Thomas Peacock, 23 Hiawatha street, St. Thomas, Ont., and whose husband is conductor on the Wabash Railway, states:—"I was quite run down in health, was very nervous, did not sleep well, and had frequent dizzy spells. Believing this to be the result of an exhausted nervous system I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that this medicine did me a world of good. It entirely freed me of the symptoms stated above, built up my health generally, so that to-day I feel that I am quite well again."

In a more recent letter Mrs. Peacock writes:—"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a world of good, and I would be pleased to tell everybody so."

In nearly every issue of this paper you will find letters about Dr. Chase's medicines. If this one does not describe your case watch for others or write to us. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

HOSTAGES.

(New York Sun)

There is a world of difference between the hostage, generally of royal birth, surrendered by a people of antiquity pledging peace after defeat and the hostage seized by a modern military force to give effect to a threat and to supply ready means of reprisal or moral suasion. An offending non-combatant may be dealt with individually with sufficient severity. It is simply a barbarous thing to hold him, personally guilty of no belligerent act, in guaranty against the acts of actual belligerents.

The modern hostage is doubly unfortunate in that he is circumstanced in no degree responsible for any hostile act. If he were he would be simply and effacaciously shot into a state of enforced neutrality. Moreover he has no power whatever to prevent repetition of such acts by belligerents or other non-combatants of his own nationality.

Taking hostages is a wicked and still more a foolish part of the anachronism of European war.

◆◆◆

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 8, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

A Chef Suggests.

That you stew a pound of prunes with pot roast and note the fine flavor imparted to the meat.

That a teaspoonful of lemon juice to a quart of water will make rice very white and keep the grains separate when boiled.

That salt will curdle new milk; hence in preparing milk porridge, gravies, etc., the salt should be added last after cooking.

That great improvement will be found in tea and coffee if they are kept in glass preserve jars in place of tin boxes.

◆◆◆

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

◆◆◆

JUSTICE TO THE JAP.

(Chicago Tribune)

A Japanese policy which seeks to prevent further European encroachment upon Asiatic territory so resembles the policy which we call the Monroe doctrine that we must freely concede to Japan the right to adopt and enforce it and also must applaud the wisdom.

MULTIPLE MOURNING.

(Winston Record)

Turkish casualties in this war have an awfully depressing effect on the home folks, as every Turkish soldier who is killed leaves so many widows to mourn his loss.

Out of the Mouths of Babes.

While in Florida with her parents, little Mary saw an alligator for the first time. "Oh, mamma," she exclaimed, "look at the big lizard with a valise skin on!"

Stern Father—Johnny, why did you fight the boy who just moved into the house next door?

Johnny—He boasted that he was a tougher kid than me, and I had to prove to him that he wasn't.—Chicago News.

◆◆◆

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

◆◆◆

Interest Mind as Well as Body.

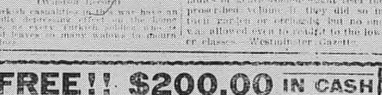
Most of the things we ask children to do, in the way of work, are chores in the dreariest sense of the word; they are little bits of jobs we don't want to bother doing ourselves. Now, this isn't quite fair. It is hard to get deeply, joyously interested in the little part of a job. We all love best to do things that we can do, as the wee ones say, "all by lone." We love to start a thing and toil away at it and finish it, and see it in its final relation to the world's need. That is a most ennobling experience; to feel the need of something—even the smallest thing—and to go ahead, on our own orders, and then fill that need. Life seldom gives us any better joy than that.—Editorial, in Woman's World for February.

No More Corns
Cure Guaranteed
Never known to fail; acts without pain in 24 hours. Is soothing, healing; takes the sting right out. No remedy so quick, safe and sure as PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR. Sold everywhere—25c per bottle.

Not Allowed to Read the Bible.

But few people know that in the sixteenth century an Englishman was not allowed to read the Bible, yet it is perfectly true. Henry VIII. issued a decree prohibiting the common people from reading the Bible. Officers of state were exempt from this law. Probably the king thought these officials would be none the worse for perusing the sacred work, and noble ladies or gentlewomen might read the proscribed volume if they did so in their garden or orchard; but no one was allowed even to read it to the lower classes.—Westminster Gazette.

FREE!! $200.00 IN CASH
AND 100 VALUABLE PREMIUMS GIVEN AWAY!
1st PRIZE, $50.00 in Cash
2nd PRIZE, $40.00 in Cash
3rd PRIZE $35.00 in Cash
4th PRIZE $25.00 in Cash
5th to 9th PRIZES, each $10.00 in Cash.
WAR PUZZLE



The above picture shows a Torpedo Boat Destroyer and an Aeroplane. The Aeroplane belongs to the enemy. It has just dropped a bomb on the deck of the war vessel. Some of the crew have been knocked down by the shock, and some have jumped into the water in an endeavour to save themselves by getting aboard other boats that are near by. Can you find the faces of the fourteen men in this picture? Some will be easily found, others are harder to discern, but by patience you can probably find most of them. You may win a cash prize by doing so. Many have done this. If you find the faces mark each one with an X; cut out the picture and send it to us together with a slip of paper on which you have written the words, "I have found all the faces and marked them." Write these nine words plainly and neatly as in case of ties both writing and neatness will be considered factors in this contest.
This may take up a little of your time but as there is $200.00 in cash and One Hundred Premiums given away, it is worth your while to take a little trouble over this matter.
We do not ask you to spend One Cent of your Money in order to enter this Contest.
Send your answer at once; we will reply by return mail saying whether your are correct or not and will send you a complete prize list together with the names and addresses of the persons who have recently received over $2,000.00 in cash prizes from us, and will also send full particulars of a simple condition that must be fulfilled in order that you may qualify in this contest. (This condition does not involve the spending of any of your money.)
Winners of cash prizes in our late competitions will not be allowed to enter this one.
This Competition will be judged by two well known business men of undoubted integrity who have no connection with this Company. Their decisions must be accepted as final.
Send your reply direct to HOUSEHOLD SPECIALTY CO'Y. DEPT. H MONTREAL.

The Fatal Hours.

From 10,000 deaths which occurred in an asylum during fifteen consecutive years physicians are inclined to doubt the ancient theory that the early morning hours are the most fatal. The observations were made in patients of all ages and under all conditions, and the result shows that the early afternoon hours included most of the deaths. The least fatal hours were from 7 to 12 a.m.—Washington Star.

Boiling a Fish.

In boiling any fish you should put enough water in a large pot to enable a fish to swim in it if it were alive. Add to this water half a cupful of vinegar, a tablespoonful of salt, one whole onion, one dozen whole black peppers, one blade of mace. Take any fish and sew it up in a new piece of cheesecloth fitted to the shape of the fish. Put in the water and heat slowly for thirty minutes; then let it boil hard and fast for about ten minutes. Unwrap and serve with drawn butter made from the liquor in which the fish was cooked and add it to the juice of half a lemon.

Watch Your Colts
for Coughs, Colds and Distemper, and at the first symptoms of any such ailment, give small doses of that wonderful remedy, now the most used in existence.
Spohn Distemper Compound
Of any druggist.
SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

FREE BUILDING LOTS AT LAKESIDE
To advertise this Montreal Summer Resort in the heart of the fish and game section of the Laurentian Mountains, we are giving away absolutely free a limited number of 30 x 93 lots, without taxes. To secure this lot all that is necessary is the small fee for the transfer of the title of deed to you and solve the following puzzle. All lots guaranteed high and dry. Fill in the missing letters:
L-K-S-D. A L-U-E-T-I-N M-U-T-A-N R-S-R. A F-W H-U-S O. C-P.R. F-O. M-N-R-A.
Send reply to Dept "K 2". P. O. Box 345, Montreal.

BELGIAN KONGO SAVAGES.

Cannibals in War Paint Whose Past is Black Mystery.

In his book "Hunted and Hunting in the Belgian Congo" Mr. R. D. Cooper speaks of the remarkable people who live in the forest wilds:

"Threading our way down the stony path, winding in and out among the trees, we began to walk the remaining few miles along the sandy shore to Bntiaba. A slight breeze sprang up from the southwest, and very shortly the sun had kissed the Buleggia mountain peaks that rise thousands of feet sheer from the water's edge in the west.

"Gaunt, forbidding sentinels of the Kongo! What strange people dwell behind, you—the dwarfs and others, with their poisoned implements of war—cannibalism with all its attendant horrors—a people that cannot tell us of their past. The ages gone by are all a blank to them. These people are akin to the beasts of the forest, inasmuch as they care only for the present. They live for the present. The past is gone. No records have been written of them.

"The war paint of vermillion colored pigments which is smeared all over their bodies adds to the hideousness of these savages, darting from rock to rock, hiding behind trees, lying hidden in the foliage overhead, waging war with all. Tragedy follows tragedy behind these Bulegga mountains in the Kongo, to the south of which lie the snow capped crests of rugged Ruwenzori."

◆◆◆

HARD TIME AHEAD.

(Montreal Gazette)

A Toronto youth has been presented with a gold medal and diploma for being the best boy in the city, and his picture has been printed in the newspapers. Being the best boy in Toronto he must be the best boy in the world. It is to be hoped for his own sake that he is physically as strong as he is good; for he has an awful standard to live up to.

◆◆◆

BABY'S OWN TABLETS A GREAT BLESSING

Mrs. Jas. E. Mailman, Gegoggin, N. S. writes: "I gave Baby's Own Tablets to my baby boy for constipation and teething troubles and have found them a great blessing. I think the Tablets should be in every home where there are young children." The Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy for little ones, being backed by the guarantee of a government analyst to be free from opiates and narcotics. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

◆◆◆

ART AND UTILITY.

(Peterboro Examiner)

Nothing is more delightful in the long evenings of spring and early summer than digging, planting and tending a little garden—to watch the seeds bursting through the warm soil, and thrusting their tiny leaves upward to meet the sunlight and showers. There is pleasure in watching growth from day to day, noting the process of ripening for use, and there is joy in eating the fresh crisp toothsome vegetables from one's own soil, not to speak of the saving in money, or the lack of vegetables when perhaps money might not be available.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Have used MINARD'S LINIMENT for Croup; found nothing equal to it; sure cure.
CHAS. E. SHARP.
Hawkshaw, N. B., Sept. 1st, 1905.

The Hen's Destiny.

"There is water aplenty in a fresh laid egg, but no more air than there is in a hammer," said a dealer in eggs. "So long as you can keep air out of the egg it will remain sweet and fresh, but no one has ever succeeded in keeping it out by fair means more than six days. The oxygen is bound to find its way through an eggshell's pores, and the only way to save that egg then is to eat it. It sounds funny, but the moment you give an egg fresh air that moment you ruin its health.

"A good, healthy hen—not speaking of any particular star breed, but just hen—does not fulfil her destiny until she has accomplished 600 eggs—fifty dozen. That's what nature has fitted up the hen to do in the way of just unc[illegible]ched and unstimulated egg production, and she gives the hen eight years to do it in.

"The hen divides the fifty dozen about up among those eight years. Some years she may not turn out more than a couple of dozen, but when the eight years are up she will have managed her annual output so that the total has come out all right. Then the hen has ended her career as an egg producer, and so often, if she is in the hands of a thrifty owner, begins another career, short and delusive this time as the summer boarder's spring chicken."

◆◆◆

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

◆◆◆

How She Escaped.

"Algy fell in love with a girl at the glove counter." He bought gloves every day for a week. To discourage his attentions she became a manicure."

"Then he had his nails manicured every day, I s'pose."

"Just so. However, I don't think he'll follow her any farther."

"Why not?"

"Then she got employment with a dentist."—Houston Post.

◆◆◆

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

LADIES AND THE LAW.

(Montreal Star)

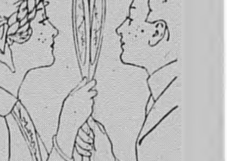
The question whether ladies should be admitted to the practice of the law ought to be considered quite apart from the present position of the law or the legal aspects of the case of Mrs. Langstaff. Generally speaking, the sense of the community will be that, if any ladies desire to fit themselves to practice law, they should be permitted to reap the fruit of their labors. There is surely no argument against the appearance of ladies in a court room as counsel which would not weigh with double effect against their appearance in a hospital as physicians; and yet we have long ago overcome our prejudice against lady physicians. Moreover, all our vicarious modesty on behalf of the ladies will not save them from appearing in court-rooms as witnesses, even in the most delicate cases, or in physicians' offices as patients.

This is an entirely different question from whether any of us, personally, quite like to think of ladies as lawyers or doctors. We are under no compulsion to employ them. And if the general public will not employ them, their entrance into these professions will soon be automatically stopped. But there is no use attempting to establish artificial barriers across these avenues of endeavor. If the law now stands in the way, it should be changed—that is all. If the legal profession should propose to create a class barrier by systematically "black-balling" lady applicants, all that will happen in the end will be that the legal profession will be forcibly deprived of that power. In the long run the community will not endure injustice, even to that sex to whom we are bound to extend more than justice.

◆◆◆

The brave love mercy and delight to save.—Gay.

Get Rid of Those Pimples



Cuticura Soap and Ointment
Will help you when all else fails. Unsightly complexions are often a bar to social advancement and business success. Start life with a clear skin and good hair.
Samples Free by Mail
Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address "Cuticura," Dept. K, Boston, U.S.A.

ISSUE NO. 10, 1915.

HELP WANTED—FEMALE
WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Reply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.
FOR SALE—DENTAL CHAIR, CABINET, table and lathe. David J. Smith, Napanee, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE.
ALBERTA FARM NEAR VERMILION Valley, spl mild soil, district settled, $15 acre; $330 cash, balance easy. Hollinrake Specialty Company, Toronto, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE—WE HAVE SEVERAL quarters, half, and full sections, of good farm land, close up to Railway Stations, in the Vermilion-Mannville District, in Central Alberta; one dollar per acre, cash required; interest only November first next, balance on easy terms 6 per cent; best district in Alberta for mixed grain and stock raising. Wilder Smith & Phelps, 11 St. Sacrament Street, Montreal, Que.

FOR SALE—204 ACRES, 9-ROOM house, other buildings; fruit and some timber; 4 miles of station. Price $6,000; $2,000 cash. Two farms adjoining; 200 acres, with buildings, fine land, nicely located; 4 to 5 miles of station; few minutes walk of Canning Factory and Store. Price for both $10,000; $4,000 cash. Fine climate, mild, short winters. Catalogue free. J. R. McGonigal & Son, Dover, Del.

MISCELLANEOUS.
SAFETY FIRST. SEED CORN—GET the habit. Plant seed from the Potter Farm and be sure of a large crop. Every ear guaranteed. Wis. No. 7. Write for circular. White Cap. The Potter Farm. R. D. Potter, Mgr., Essex, Ont.

NOTICE TO FARMERS—I WANT Butter, Eggs and Poultry; will pay highest market prices. F. J. Ryan, Produce dealer. 135 A. Fern Ave., Toronto, Ont.

SEED CORN FOR SALE
For No. 1 Seed Corn of many varieties, matured and cured for seed purposes on cob or shelled. Apply to EDWARD P. TELLIER, St. Joachim, Ont.

Bridging a Difficulty.

Paying teller (to woman with cheque): I'm sorry, ma'am, but you'll have to be identified by some one I know.

"Oh, very well—I have a friend who is waiting outside in the machine. I'll bring her in and introduce you to her."—Life.

Prove it Yourself!

I will send you absolutely FREE a "1900" GRAVITY WASHER for 30 days FREE TRIAL
You don't pay a cent—I even pay the freight.
Everybody who has used this Washer says it is the "best ever."
Write me today personally for booklet and particulars.
A. B. MORRIS, MANAGER, "1900" WASHER CO. 357 YONGE STREET TORONTO, CANADA
FACTORY: 79-81 PORTLAND STREET
If you have electric light, ask me about the "1900" Electric Washer and Wringer outfit.

LUCKY FOR THE WORLD.

(Niagara Falls, N. Y. Gazette)

A woman in Philadelphia jumped out of a window and broke her leg because her husband asked her for money. It is a very good thing for the population that husbands are not similarly affected under similar circumstances, or the only places doing business would be the hospitals.

CORRUGATED IRON
Galvanized, Rust Proof Made from very finest sheets, absolutely free from defects.
Each sheet is pressed, not rolled, corrugations therefore fit accurately without waste. Any desired size or gauge, straight or curved.
LOW PRICES—PROMPT SHIPMENT
Metallic Roofing Co., LIMITED
Manufacturers
TORONTO & WINNIPEG

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1915.

NEUTRALS AND PEACE.

His Holiness Pope Benedict is credited with the humane desire to have the war brought to a close and peace declared among the warring nations, and it is announced that when the neutral nations think that the time is opportune the Vatican will be glad to exchange views on the situation. This declaration does credit to the heart of the Pope, who, we know, must be solicitous for an early peace. But, unless Germany is prepared to make greater sacrifices than we believe she is there can be no peace at the present time. The allies, especially Britain, have sacrificed too much blood and treasure to be content with a patched-up peace. Nothing short of the fulfilment and realization of what Britain set out to do when she entered upon this war will satisfy her. We do not imagine that the neutral powers will have very much to say anyway as to when and how peace will be established. The allies are not looking for peace until they dictate the terms in the city of Berlin, and it is not likely that any of the neutral nations will be represented at that conference.

We do not know what advances, if any, have been made by Germany or Austria to the Vatican. We can well believe that Austria is thoroughly sick of the war and would welcome any means that would deliver her out of it. Germany can now have few delusions as to its outcome, and it is just possible that both of them would be glad if some way could be found to put a stop to hostilities, if by so doing their faces could be saved. It is a peculiar circumstance that, although the people of Italy, the democracy, or the common people, are all for the allies, and are demanding that the Government should join them, the clericals and the aristocracy are, if not pro-German, at least pro-Austrian, and are just as strongly in favor of neutrality as are the common people for actual intervention.

◆◆◆

WANT THE EMPIRE.

At a meeting in London recently, Earl Grey, our former Governor-General, told of an incident that occurred some time before the war when he was crossing the Atlantic that perhaps explains why the Germans hate Great Britain and the British people. We will allow the Earl to tell it in his own way and in his own words. He said:

I am tempted to confirm Lord Meath's experience by an experience of my own as to the universality of the German feeling of jealousy of England. Only two months before the declaration of war I was crossing the Atlantic in a German ship. I was treated by the distinguished Germans on board with the friendliest courtesy, and received an amount of attention that was almost embarrassing. One day I made the acquaintance of a German fellow passenger who impressed me as a man who preferred to proclaim rather than to conceal his true opinions. I asked him to tell me frankly what he believed to be the true feeling of Germany towards England. He said: "I see you have been consorting and dining with their excellencies—what did they tell you?" "I said they had told me that they hoped I should not allow myself to be misled by the reptile press which imputed to Germany any hostile feelings towards England." "Did you believe them?" he asked. I said, "I should like to believe them, but I wish to know from you, who are a lover of truth, what I ought to believe." He said: "Well, if you want to know the truth, I may tell you that deep at the bottom of their hearts is the same desire that is at the bottom of every German heart—to take from you the empire you are not strong enough to hold. Can you wonder? For two hundred years we have been hungry, and have only comparatively recently enjoyed the sensation of a full stomach. We are now hungry again, and it is you who are preventing our natural appetites from being satisfied. Whenever there is a bit of the earth's surface to be divided, France gets a bit, Italy gets a bit, and you get a bit; while we, with the finest army in the world, and the second finest fleet, get nothing! Can you wonder we have a feeling of envy and antagonism towards you?" He then continued: "As you have asked me to tell you the truth, and you will not take offence, let me tell you that in the opinion of the German people you are occupying a position to which you are not entitled. We believe that you English have been corrupted by the softening influences of too much prosperity; that you are rotten through and through; that you are sunk in sordid sensuality and sloth, and that your only idea of liberty is the liberty not to serve the State. We Germans, on the contrary, have been taught to be loyal to and to make sacrifices for our country"; and then, thumping his breast, he added, with great emphasis: "Nous sommes des guerriers! Nous sommes des guerriers! and we mean to take from you, at the very first opportunity, the empire which is ours by right."

If this were really the feeling of the German people towards the British, then we need not be surprised that they hate the British, and that the Hymn of Hate is as popular over there as Tipperary is here. The sentiment was really that of Germany over all, born of envy and jealousy. In the light of this man's confession to Lord Grey, it can be seen that the old country had been marked out as a victim to German lust and greed, and that nothing short of annihilation of the British Empire was their aim and goal. Since this talk with the Earl the Germans have got a rather rude awakening.

◆◆◆

Mr. Robert Bickerdike wants a national plebiscite on the question of capital punishment. He thinks that is a capital idea.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is now dangerous to talk American in Berlin.

◆◆◆

The "neutral" appears to be the innocent bystander.

◆◆◆

All signs point to an early spring as well as an early election.

◆◆◆

The paper-soled Canadian boots are just another "scrap of paper."

◆◆◆

Pro-Americans are the only hyphenated kind wanted on the other side.

◆◆◆

The Sick Man will be sicker than ever when the Czar gets into Constantinople.

◆◆◆

The increased duties may stimulate trade in Canada, but, if they do, it will be at the expense of the revenue.

◆◆◆

There are now 2,177 German and Austrian prisoners interned in Canada. Most of these are men who tried to leave the country.

◆◆◆

Lord Kitchener's new army is pouring into France at the rate of 15,000 troops a day, we are told. During the last two months between 900,000 and 1,000,000 men have been landed in France. The war will begin in May, if not before.

◆◆◆

General Sam Hughes is another man who wants to draw two salaries. He wants to go to the front as an officer and at the same time hold down his job as Minister of Militia. He is now looked upon as the Jonah of the Cabinet, and may be thrown overboard.

◆◆◆

There may be no shame in borrowing from Britain the money to finance our own war operations, but it would be better if we could say that "we've got the money too." Britain needs all the money she can get just now.

◆◆◆

Petrograd was truthful enough to tell the world that it lost almost a whole army corps when Russians retreated from East Prussia. Now we cannot disbelieve it when it says that it counted for 50,000 Germans in North Poland and 48,000 Austrians in the Carpathians. It pays to tell the truth.

◆◆◆

The Toronto Weekly Sun fears that the increased tariff will not promote the exports of Canadian manufacturers, because the increase in the cost of raw materials and of the maintenance of the high cost of living resulting in high wages, the Canadian manufacturer will be less capable than before to export his products. The reasoning and deduction might be all right, but the majority of the manufacturers appear willing to take their chances as to their exports.

◆◆◆

The Toronto News argues that as the general tariff has been boosted 7½ per cent., and the British preference only 5 per cent., therefore the preference has been increased by 2½ per cent. The fallacy of this argument is apparent, when it is considered that the British exporter has to bear an increased tariff of 5 per cent. before he can sell his goods in Canada in competition with Canadian and foreign goods.

◆◆◆

The Detroit Free Press quotes the following paragraph from "Elements of International Law," written by George B. Davis, at one time professor of law at the United States Military Academy:

"Men or squads of men who commit hostilities, whether by fighting or inroads for destruction or plunder, or by raids of any kind without commission, without being part or portion of the organized hostile army and without sharing continuously in the war but who do so with intermitting returns to their homes and vocations or the occasional assumption of the semblance of peaceful pursuits, divesting themselves of the character or appearance of soldiers—such men or squads of men are not public enemies, and therefore if captured are not entitled to the privileges of prisoners of war, but shall be treated summarily as highway robbers or pirates."

This shows that Mr. Werner Horn, who attempted to blow up the St. Croix bridge is just an ordinary criminal and blackguard, who is ripe for the penitentiary.

◆◆◆

Renewing a Straw Hat.

To renew a black straw hat, sponge with alcohol and then brush it with a thin solution of gum arabic, which gives a varnished finish as well as a slight stiffness. If the straw is very dingy use a good back ink or a liquid shoe dressing before applying the gum arabic.

SUFFERED WITH LAME BACK.

Could Hardly Straighten Up For Pain.

When the back becomes lame and starts to ache it is the sure sign of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure the aching back by curing the aching kidneys beneath—for it is really the kidneys aching and not the back.

This is why "Doan's" cures are lasting—the medicine cures the actual cause of the disease, the kidneys.

Mr. J. W. Aylett, South Oshawa, Ont., writes: "I have much pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Last summer I suffered with a lame back. Sometimes I could hardly straighten up for the pain. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to give them a trial. I can truthfully say that the good they did me [illegible]. I can recommend them to all as a speedy cure to all suffering with backache."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

A Public Idol

Kendal followed her mechanically and presently found himself talking nothings to Mr. Darting, who, gorgeous in his Spanish dress, was receiving the congratulations which poured in upon him with a pleasant mixture of good manners and natural elation. A little further on he stumbled upon Forbes and the Stuarts, Mrs. Stuart as sparkling and fresh as ever, a suggestive contrast in her American crispness and prettiness to the high bred distinction of Madame de Chateauvieux, who was standing near her.

"Well, my dear fellow," said Forbes, catching hold of him, "how is that critical demon of yours? Is he sentenced yet?"

"He is almost at his last gasp," said Kendal, with a ghostly smile, and a reckless impulse to talk which seemed to him his salvation. "He was never as vicious a creature as you thought him, and Miss Brotherton has had no difficulty in slaying him. But that fall was a masterpiece, Forbes. How have your pictures got on with all this?"

"I haven't touched a brush since I came back from Switzerland, except to make sketches for this thing. Oh, it has been a terrible business! Mr. Worrall's hair has turned grey over the expense of it; however, she and I would have our way, and it's all right; the play will run for twelve months, if she chooses, easily."

Near by were the Worralls, looking a little sulky, as Kendal fancied, in the midst of this great inrush of the London world, which was sweeping their niece from them into a position of superiority and independence they were not at all prepared to see her take up. Nothing, indeed, could be prettier than her manner to them whenever she came across them, but it was evident she was no longer an automaton to be moved at their will and pleasure, but a woman and an artist, mistress of herself and of her fate. Kendal fell into conversation on the subject with Mrs. Stuart, who was as communicative and amusing as usual, and who chattered away to him until he suddenly saw Miss Brotherton signaling to him with her arm in that of his sister.

"Do you know, Mr. Kendal?" she said as he went up to her, "you must really take Madame de Chateauvieux away out of this noise and crowd? It is all very well for her to preach to me. Take her to your rooms and get her some food. How I wish I could entertain you here; but with this crowd it's impossible."

"Isabel, my dear Isabel," cried Madame de Chateauvieux, holding her, "can't you slip away, too, and leave Mr. Wallace to do the honors? There will be nothing left of you to-morrow."

"Yes, directly, directly," only I feel as if sleep were a thing that did not exist for me. But you must certainly go. Take her, Mr. Kendal; doesn't she look a wreck? I will tell M. de Chateauvieux and send him after you."

She took Marie's shawl from Kendal's arm and put it tenderly round her; then she smiled down into her eyes, said a low "good night, best and kindest of friends," and the brother and sister hurried away, Kendal dropping the hand which had been cordially stretched out to himself.

"Do you mind, Eustace," said Madame de Chateauvieux, as they walked across the stage, "I ought to go and the party ought to break up. But it is a shame to carry you off from so many friends."

"Mind? Why, I have ordered supper for you in my rooms, and it is just midnight. I hope these people will have the sense to go soon. Now, to a cab."

They alighted at the gate of the Temple, and, as they walked across the quadrangle under a sky still heavy with storm clouds, Madame de Chateauvieux said to her brother, with a sigh: "Well, it has been a great event. I never remember anything more exciting, or more successful. But there is one thing, I think, that would make me happier than a hundred Elviras, and that is to see Isabel Brotherton the wife of a man she loved!" Then a smile broke over her face as she looked at her brother.

"Do you know, Eustace, I quite made up my mind from those first letters of yours in May, in spite of your denials, that you were very deeply taken with her? I remember quite seriously discussing the pros and cons of it with myself."

The words were said so lightly, they betrayed so clearly the speaker's conviction that she had made a foolish mistake, that they stung Kendal to the quick. How could Marie have known? Had not his letters for the last three months been misleading enough to deceive the sharpest eyes? And yet he felt unreasonably that she ought to have known—there was a blind clamor in him against the bluntness of her sisterly perception.

His silence was so prolonged that Madame de Chateauvieux was startled by it. She slipped her hand into his arm. "Eustace?" Still no answer. "Have I said anything to annoy you—Eustace? Won't you let your old sister have her dream?"

But still it seemed impossible for him to speak. He could only lay his hand over hers with a brotherly clasp. By this time they were at the foot of the stairs, and he led the way up, Madame de Chateauvieux following in a tumult of anxious conjecture. When they reached his rooms he put her carefully into a chair by the fire, made her take some sandwiches, and set the kettle on to boil in his handy bachelor way, that he might make her some tea, and all the time he talked about various nothings, till at last Marie, unable to put up with it any longer, caught his hand as he was bending over the fire.

"Eustace," she exclaimed, "be kind to me, and don't perplex me like this. Oh, my poor old boy, are you in love with Isabel Brotherton?"

He drew himself to his full height on the rug and gazed fixedly into the fire, the lines of his mobile face settling into repose.

"Yes," he said, as though to himself; "I love her. I believe I have loved her from the first moment."

Madame de Chateauvieux was trembling silent, her thoughts traveling back over the past with lightning rapidity. Could she remember one word, one look of Isabel Brotherton's of which her memory might serve to throw the slightest ray of light on this darkness in which Eustace seemed to be standing? No, not one. Gratitude, friendship, esteem—all these had been his abundantly; but nothing else, not one of those many signs by which one woman betrays her love to another. She rose and put her arm round her brother's neck. They had been so much to one another for nearly forty years. He had never wanted anything as a child or youth that she had not tried to get for him. How strange, how intolerable that this toy, this boon, was beyond her getting!

Her very sympathy and her keen distress troubled him, while, at the same time, they seemed to quench the last sparks of hope in him. Had he counted upon hearing something from her whenever he should break silence which would lighten the veil over the future? It must have been so, otherwise why this sense of fresh disaster?

"Dear Marie," he said to her, kissing her brow as she stood beside him, "you must not be so grieved to me as you are. I shall probably be a good deal out of London for the present, and my books are a wonderful help. After all, life is not all summed up in one desire, however strong. Other things are real to me. I am thankful to say I shall live it down."

"But why despair so soon?" she cried, rebelling against this heavy acquiescence of his and her own sense of helplessness. "You are a man any woman might love. Why should she not pass from the mere friendly intellectual relation to another? Don't go away from London. Stay, and see as much of her as you can."

Kendal shook his head. "I used to dream," he said, huskily, "of a time when father would have come, when the world [illegible]. Sometimes I thought of her protected in my arms against the world. Bah! enough!"

She felt the strength of his unspoken argument, [illegible] the feeling of her [illegible] in all the intensity of her own life, seemed to her not to [illegible] by an impossible gulf from [illegible] simple human craving, which was crying to her, unheard and hopeless, across the darkness.

CHAPTER VIII.

A month after the first performance of "Elvira" Kendal returned to town on a frosty December afternoon from the Surrey lodgings in which he had now established a permanent base. He mounted to his rooms, found his letters lying ready for him, and on the top of them a telegram which, as his man-servant informed him, had arrived about an hour before. He took it up carelessly, opened it, and bent over it with a start of anxiety. It was from his brother-in-law. "Marie is very ill. Doctors much alarmed. Can you come to-night?" He put it down in stupefaction. Marie ill! the doctors alarmed! Good heavens! could he catch that evening train? He looked at his watch, decided that there was time, and plunged, with his servant's help, into all the necessary preparations. An hour and a half later he was speeding along through the clear cold moonlight to Dover, realizing for the first time, as he leaned back alone in his compartment, the full meaning of the news which had hurried him off. All his tender affection for his sister, and all his stifling sense of something unlucky and untoward in his own life, which had been so strong in him during the past two months, combined to rouse in him the blackest fears, the most hopeless despondency. Marie dead, what would the world hold for him! Books, thought, ideas—were they enough? Could a man live by them if all else were gone? For the first time Kendal felt a doubt which seemed to shake his nature to its depth.

During the journey his thoughts dwelt in a dull sore way upon the past. He saw Marie in her childhood, in her youth, in her rich maturity. He remembered her in the school-room spending all her spare time over contrivances of one kind or another for his amusement. He had a vision of her going out with their mother on the night of her first ball, and pitying him for being left behind. He saw her tender face bending over the death-bed of their father, and through a hundred incidents and memories all beautiful, all intertwined with that lovely self-forgetfulness which was characteristic of her, his mind travelled down to an evening scarcely a month before, when her affection had once more stood, a frail warm barrier, between him and the full bitterness of a great renunciation. Oh Marie! Marie!

It was still dark when he reached Paris, and the gray winter light was only just dawning when he stopped at the door of his brother-in-law's house in one of the new streets near the Champs Elysees. M. de Chateauvieux was standing on the stairs, his smoothly-shaven, clear-cut face drawn and haggard, and a stoop in his broad shoulders which Kendal had never noticed before. Kendal sprang up the steps and wrung his hands. M. de Chateauvieux shook his head almost with a groan, in answer to the brother's enquiry of eye and lip, and led the way upstairs into the forsaken salon, which looked as empty and comfortless as though its mistress had been gone from it years instead of days. Arrived there, the two men standing opposite to each other in the streak of dull light made by the hasty withdrawal of a curtain, Paul said, speaking in a whisper, with dry lips,

"There is no hope; the pain is gone—you would think she was better, but the doctors say she will just lie there as she is lying now, till the end."

Kendal staggered to a chair and tried to realize what he had heard, but it was impossible, although his journey had seemed to him one long preparation for the word. "What is it? How did it happen?" he asked.

"Internal chill. She was only ill [illegible] the day before yesterday, and the pain was frightful till yesterday. [illegible] thought she was better she [illegible] the relief, but when the two doctors came in again, it was to tell me that the disappearance of the pain [illegible] only the worst, meant that nothing more can be done; she may go at any moment."

There was silence. M. de Chateauvieux walked up and down with the listless step which even a few hours of sickness develop in the watcher, but he came and stood before his brother-in-law, saying in the same painful whisper, "You must have some food, then I will tell her you are here."

"No, no, I want no food; any time will do for that. Does she expect me?"

"Yes, you won't wait? Then come." He led the way across a little ante-room, lifted a curtain, and knocked. The nurse came, there was a little parley, and Paul went in, while Eustace waited outside, conscious of the most strangely trivial things, of the passers-by in the street, of a wrangle between two gamins on the pavement opposite, of the misplacement of certain volumes in the book-case beside him, till the door opened again, and M. de Chateauvieux drew him in.

He stepped over the threshold, his whole being wrought up to he knew not what solemn pageant of death and parting, and the reality within startled him. The room was flooded with morning light, a frosty December sun was struggling through the fog; the curtains had just been drawn back, and the wintry radiance rested on the polished brass of the bed, on the bright surfaces of wood and glass with which the room was full, on the little tray of tea-things which the nurse held, and on his sister's face of greeting as she lay back smiling among her pillows. There was such a cheerful home peace and brightness in the whole scene, in the crackling wood fire, in the sparkle of the tea-things and the fragrance of the tea, and in the fresh white surroundings of the invalid; it seemed to him incredible that under all this familiar household detail there should be lying in wait that last awful experience of death.

Marie kissed him with grateful affectionate words spoken almost in her usual voice, and then, as he sat beside her holding her hands, she noticed that he looked pale and haggard.

"Has he had some breakfast, Paul? Oh, poor Eustace, after that long journey! Nurse, let him have my cup, there is some tea left; let me see you drink it, dear; it's so pleasant just to look after you once more."

He drank it mechanically, she watching him with her loving eyes, while she took one hand from him and drew it into that of her husband as he sat beside her on the bed. Her touch seemed to have meaning in it, for Paul rose presently and went to the far end of the large room, the nurse carried away the tea-things, and the brother and sister were practically alone.

"Dear Eustace," she began, after a few pathetic moments of silence, in which look and gesture took the place of speech, "I have so longed to see you. It seemed to me in that awful pain that I must die before I could get free enough from my own wretchedness to say to my dear ones all I wished to say. But now it is all gone, and I am so thankful for this moment of peace. I made Dr. de Chavigny tell me the whole truth. Paul and I have always promised one another that there should never be any concealment between us when either of us came to die, and I think I shall have a few hours more with you."

She was silent a little; the voice had all its usual intonations, but it was low and weak, and it was necessary for her from time to time to gather such strength as might enable her to maintain the calm of her manner. Eustace, in his bewildered misery, had hidden his face upon her hands, which were clasped in his, and every now and then she felt the pressure of his lips upon her fingers.

"There are many things I want to say to you," she went on. "I will try to remember them in order. Will you stay with Paul a few days after—? will you always remember to be good to him? I know you will. My poor Paul, oh, if I had but given you a child!"

The passion of her cry thrilled Eustace's heart. He looked up and saw on her face the expression of the hidden yearning of a lifetime. It struck him as something awful and sacred. He could not answer it except by look and touch, and presently she went on after another pause.

"His sister will come to him very likely, his widowed sister. She has a girl he is fond of. After a while he will take pleasure in her. Then I have thought so much of you and of the future. So often last night I thought I saw you and her, and what you ought to do seemed to grow plain to me. Dear Eustace, don't let anything I say now ever be a burden to you; don't let it fetter you ever—but it is so strong in me you must let me say it all. She is not in love with you. Not yet, at least, I think not. She has never thought of you in that way, but there is everything there which ought to lead to love. You interest her deeply; the thought of you stands to her as the symbol of all she wants to reach; and then she knows what you have been to all those who trusted you. She knows that you are kind and true. I want you to try and carry it further for her sake and yours." He looked up and would have spoken, but she put her soft hand over his mouth. "Wait one moment. Those about her are not people to make her happy at any time if things went wrong—if she broke down she would be at their mercy. Then her position—you know what difficulties it has—it makes my heart ache sometimes to think of it. She won my love so. I felt like a mother to her. I long to have her here now, but I would not let Paul send; and if I could think of her safe with you in those true hands of yours. Oh, you will try, darling?" He answered her huskily and brokenly, laying his face on the pillow.

"I would do anything you asked. But she is so likely to love and marry. Probably there is some one already. How could it not be with her beauty and her fame? Anybody would be proud to marry her, and she has such a quick eager nature."

"There is no one," said Marie, with deep conviction in the whispered words. "Her life has been too exciting—too full of one interest. She stayed with me. I got to know her to the bottom. She would not have hidden it. Only say you will make one trial and I shall be content."

(To be continued.)

◆◆◆

The Stimulating Sea Bath.

Salt water bathing is stimulating; it improves the circulation of the blood and gives tone and beauty to the skin. Many flabby skins will become firm and pliable after a few weeks' treatment with salt water. If the cold sea-water and the plunging about in the sea fatigues instead of refreshes one, it is better to try the hot-water sea baths under cover. Not all persons are able to bear exposure to the sun, wind and cold water, yet they may be greatly benefited by the indoor hot salt-water bathing. It is never advisable to remain in the bath out doors longer than ten or fifteen minutes. Five minutes is quite long enough to be in the water.

◆◆◆

Tell a secret to a friend and you tell it to your friend's friends.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson XI. March 14, 1915.

Saul Gains His Kingdom.—I. Samuel 11: 1-15.

Commentary.—I. Jabesh-Gilead's appeal (vs. 1-5). 1. Nahash the Ammonite came up—We have no means of knowing how soon after Saul was made king, Nahash, king of the Ammonites, made his threat against Jabesh-Gilead. It was probably only a short time. From 1 Sam. 12: 12 we learn that before Saul's appointment as king, Nahash threatened to attack Israel, and this led Israel to ask for a king. The Ammonites were descendants of Lot, and their territory was south and east of the Israelitish settlements on the east side of the Jordan. Encamped against Jabesh-Gilead—Gilead was the mountainous region east of the Jordan, bounded on the north by Bashan and on the south by the country of the Ammonites. Jabesh was the principal city and was seven miles east of the Jordan. The Ammonites were about to lay siege to Jabesh and conquer it. We will serve thee—The inhabitants of Jabesh-Gilead had little hope of conquering their enemies and desired to make the best terms possible with them. 2. Thrust out all your right eyes—This was a most cruel and barbarous condition, but it was not uncommon in the east. The destruction of the sight of the right eye would render the man unfit for war, for the shield was carried in the left hand and the left eye was covered and the right eye was used to watch the enemy in battle. The men of Jabesh would be fit for slaves, even if they had only the sight of the left eye.

3. Give us seven days' respite—The conditions proposed by the Ammonites were too severe for the men of Jabesh to accept, and they pleaded for time to prepare for war. They desired to call upon the rest of Israel for help. The Ammonites were willing to grant the request for a seven days' respite, because they did not believe the other tribes of Israel would respond to a call for aid. 4. Then came the messengers to Gibeah of Saul—They doubtless knew that Saul had been appointed king, and believed an appeal to him and his people would be the best way to secure relief. Tidings—The news of the threat and demands of the Ammonites. In the ears of the people—Saul was not in the city at the time, and the messengers spoke to the people. Wept—Oriental peoples express their grief with weeping and loud lamentations. 5. Saul came after the herd out of the field—Although he was king of Israel, he was, up to this time, employed with his affairs. The time was at hand for him to leave his herds and command men.

II. The response (vs. 6-9.) 6. The Spirit of God came upon Saul—The report from Jabesh-Gilead meant more to him than to the rest of Israel, for on him rested the responsibility of affording relief to his people. The Spirit of God came upon him, moving him to action and directing him in the course he should take. The Spirit of God had come upon the judges in the past to the same end. His anger was kindled greatly—His indignation was greatly aroused because of the barbarous demands made by the Ammonites upon his subjects across the Jordan. 7. Took a yoke of oxen—Perhaps that with which he had been plowing in the field. Hewed them in pieces—The occasion demanded instant and vigorous action. Saul sent pieces of the slaughtered oxen to each of the tribes of Israel without delay, and threatened them with the destruction of their oxen if they should disregard his call. After Saul and after Samuel—Saul used the name of Samuel to strengthen the authority with which the men of war were summoned, for all Israel had high regard for Samuel as a prophet and as a leader. Fear of the Lord fell on the people—As the Spirit of God came upon Saul, moving him to action, so the fear of the Lord fell upon the people, leading them to act in accord with Saul. Came out with one consent—It was a movement of united Israel. Their national existence was at stake. 8. Bezek—Its location is unknown. It was on the west side of Jordan a day's march from Jabesh-Gilead. Children of Israel ... men of Judah—This division, that of Israel and Judah, seems to indicate that even at this early time there was rivalry between Judah and the other tribes of Israel, and a tendency to draw apart which resulted in the division of the monarchy in Rehoboam's time. Three hundred thirty thousand men of war were gathered within the seven days. At the time Israel entered Canaan the number of men was more than six hundred thousand, hence an army of this size was easily possible. 9. To-morrow ... ye shall have help—This announcement was made to the messengers that came from Jabesh. On the following day by noon the army of Israel would be at Jabesh-Gilead.

III. Victory over the Ammonites (vs. 10, 11). 10. To-morrow we will come out—The men of Jabesh did not tell their enemies whether they had received promise to help or not. Do with us all that seemeth good. They announced to the Ammonites that they would fight rather than submit to have their right eyes thrust out. Their enemies doubtless believed they would easily defeat the men of Jabesh-Gilead. 11. In three companies—That the attack might be made on the Ammonites at three points at the same time. In the morning watch—The Israelites divided the night into three watches.

IV. Saul's kingship recognized (vs. 12-15). 12. Shall Saul reign over us—Some had shown disloyalty to Saul at Mizpeh, when he was proclaimed king; and now that he had led Israel to a great victory, the people thought that the disloyal ones ought to be put to death. 13. Not ... put to death—Saul generously passed over the insult that had been offered him, and declared that the Lord had brought a great deliverance to Israel. 14. Let us go to Gilgal—Samuel understood the situation and saw that the opportune time had come for Saul to become thoroughly established in the kingdom. Gilgal was about half way between Jericho and the Jordan. Israel had encamped there after crossing the Jordan upon entering Canaan. 15. Made Saul king before the Lord—It was a religious event. It is quite probable that Saul was again anointed. The people gladly acknowledged Saul as their king.

QUESTIONS.—What threats were made against Jabesh-Gilead? What cruel condition was imposed? What course did the men of Jabesh take? How did Saul respond to the appeal? How large an army was gathered? Describe the meeting at Gilgal. What qualities in Saul are brought out in the events studied to-day?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic—Invasion of Israel.

I. Due to internal disorganization.

II. Overcome under divine inspiration.

I. Due to internal disorganization. In the opening verses of this chapter we see the results of disobedience in Israel and the immediate consequences of a national rejection of God. Here began the retribution upon Israel which Samuel declared should come as a result of such a rejection. The invasion of the Ammonites was the first approach to a coming storm. Israel was to learn the difference between waging warfare with her enemies and in having them held in subjection through answer to prayer. The shadows of the dark future were seen by Samuel, and he labored to help the new king and the people to see that their only hope of success lay in their recognition of God and obedience to his leadership. Some apprehension of this war with the Ammonites had induced the Israelites to desire a king, though Israel had never seen a real peril during any season when they were truly obedient to God. It was a clear indication of the disorganization of the nation that a petty despot should venture to show his contempt for Israel in so offensive a way. In the transition period from the judges to the kingdom, regardless of all Samuel had done toward securing unity of action, the old division of powers in tribal isolation and the consequent weakness against enemies still continued. Ammon was Israel's ancestral foe. It was a part of the calling of Israel to extirpate idolatry and God commanded this concerning the Ammonites. Nahash thought he saw the weakness of the men of Jabesh-Gilead and naturally their ability to defend themselves against his arms. The Ammonites held in memory the humiliation inflicted on them by Jephthah. They held a deep-seated hatred that time had rendered almost chronic. They wanted to avenge themselves and regain their cities, and now Israel's sin had prepared the way for them to attempt this. The terms which Nahash offered combined insult with injury. This was a war of revenge undertaken by the strong against the weak. By putting "a reproach upon all Israel," Nahash indicated his intention of undertaking war against all Israel. There was a providence in the respite granted by Nahash, that his false security might be his ruin. The people of Jabesh-Gilead were painfully conscious of their helplessness. They were about to degrade the noble achievements of their ancestors, forgetting all the sacred memories of the past, thoughtful only of their own safety.

II. Overcome under divine inspiration. Holy zeal in the cause of God and his brethren characterized Saul's first kingly deed. He had kept silence before the contempt of his enemies and had retired to the quiet of his accustomed rural occupations. It was therefore vastly important that he should by some deed of deliverance show himself to be the king who could lead Israel to victory over her enemies. The tidings which caused wailing among the men of Gilead were the occasion of a remarkable display of courage and energy on the part of Saul, and that because "the Spirit of God came upon him." In their wars with the heathen Israel acted under a divine commission. It was as the man chosen of God, by the voice of his prophet, to be king, that Saul acted—as one possessed of legitimate authority. Saul took faithful observation of the appeal for help. He exhibited sympathetic compassion for their distress. He showed magnanimous readiness to help. The message which he sent to the men of Jabesh-Gilead was a testimony of helpful, active, brotherly love, a promise of speedy help, a trustworthy assurance of success, a source of great joy. The powerful impression made by Saul's appearance and message laid hold of the whole nation and brought them into unity. It was fitting that Saul should publicly recognize the hand of God in his first victory and that he should refuse to mar the joy of victory by personal retaliation. He showed due regard to Samuel as prophet. The nation acknowledged his sovereignty.—T. R. A.

Was All Run Down WITH HEART TROUBLE AND NERVOUSNESS.

When the heart does not do its work properly and the nerves become unstrung, the whole system becomes weak and run down, and needs building up before you can feel fit again.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you.

Mrs. Hugh Mosher, Chester Basin, N.S., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have suffered greatly with heart trouble and nervousness, and was all run down. I used lots of medicine, but received no benefit until I was advised to try your pills, and did so, and before I had finished the first box I felt so much better I got 5 boxes, and am now well and strong. I can truly say they are the best medicine I have ever used. I cannot praise them too highly. I recommend them to any one suffering from heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

◆◆◆

Marquess a Chauffeur.

The distinction belongs to the Marquess of Downshire, Easthampstead Park, of being the first marquess to enroll himself in the public service as a chauffeur. At the swearing-in of several gentlemen as special constables for the East Berks Division the marquess offered himself and the services of his car to this section and was duly attached to them for duty as a [illegible] Wokingham Division.

Another Recipe.

Aspiring Novelist—Ah, sir, I am highly flattered. I'm sure to hear that you take my book to bed with you and read it there! Acquaintance—Yes, I have been troubled with insomnia for a long time, and I find one of your pages much better than any medicine.

◆◆◆

CARELESS OF THEIR FRIENDS.

(Boston News.)

The farmers have allowed the robin to be reduced in number so that the [illegible] the acre in the United States. Yet the insect eating bird is the best friend the farmer has that costs him nothing.

New Spring Suits and Smart Spring Coats for Women and Misses

Short, Swagger Tailored Spring Coats

BELTS, POCKETS, AND CONVERTIBLE COLLARS.
EMPIRE WAISTLINE ALSO POPULAR

Back into style comes the old favorite of years ago, the Covert Cloth in dark and sand and light putty shades. Knee length, plain tailored with Raglan and set-in sleeves. Belted, pockets and flaring skirt.

Also in fancy Tweeds and Checks, we show an attractive lot of coats. You can be assured that the styles of these Spring Garments as well as the materials, are absolutely correct. Prices $6.00, 8.00, 8.50, 10.00 to $13.50.

The New Spring Suits for Women

Sharply defined from the styles of late winter are these smart pleated flowing Skirts and snappy Coats. Coats are short with fancy flared up silk collar. Skirts are wide, pleaded or gored. Made from Gaberdines, serges and fancy worsted English suitings. You'll like the styles, prices $16.00 to $22.50.

Splendid Clothing Values

The new Suits for Men, Young Men and Boys are here. Early buyers will find a choice of styles, materials and colors hard to equal. For this Spring season we have again specialized on fine Serges of dependable quality and fast dyes and imported worsteds in browns, greys and navys. Finest quality, firm and smooth finish and neat design. Boys' Suits, $5.00 to $7.50. Men's Suits $10.00 to $18.00.

STEPHAN BROS.

PINKERTON

Mrs. D. Elphick and son Bert, visited friends in Hervie last week.

Mr. Alexander Drummond, of Winnipeg, a former Greenock boy, is renewing old acquaintances here.

Messrs Sam Colwell and Lorne Reid arrived home from Trout Creek last week. Life in the woods seems to have agreed with them.

Mr. Cecil Garland has had the stable belonging to the old cheese factory moved to his lot in the village.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. John Reid, 11th con, Greenock when her second daughter Mary Alberta was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Theophilus McTeer. The Rev. R. M. Gale officiated. After the wedding dinner a reception was given to which about eighty friends were invited. The many presents received by the bride and groom are some indication of the high esteem in which they are held. The young couple left on Monday for Galt and thence to Souris, Man., near which place they will reside. The best wishes of their many friends go with them to their western home.

We regret to have to chronicle the death of Miss Hand at the home of her aunt Mrs. Thomas Birrell. The deceased who passed away on Tuesday last has been confined to bed for some months by a cancerous growth which was eventually the cause of death. Miss Hand was of a very bright and warm-hearted disposition and was much loved by all who knew her. Mr. Thomas Birrell accompanied the body to Toronto where interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

WESTFORD

Mr. and Mrs. P. Lineham and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Murray visited at Mr. J. Purvise's of Holyrood on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wall attended the funeral of their aunt the late Mrs. Curliss of Galt.

Miss Mae Cassidy of Lindsay is visiting her aunt Mrs. S. Fallon.

Mr. Reg. McBride and Miss Martha Brown spent an evening with Mr. M. S. Haldenbye, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McGlynn spent an evening with Mr. and Mrs. D. Murray last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hanna visited at the home of Mr. W. Wall on Tuesday last.

Mr. Ed. James of the 10th. con. spent Sunday with his friend, Miss Ethel Hodgins.

Miss Ethel Wall visited Miss Bessie Murray on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie McFarlane spent Sunday with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. E. Wall

Mrs. F. C. Haldenby spent Sunday the guest of Miss S. Fallon.

Penmans Underwear

is that kind of underwear you want—the kind that cannot sag or lose its shape.

Every suit bearing the famous triangular trademark is actually knit to form—knit with exacting care to fit distinct types of men, women and children.

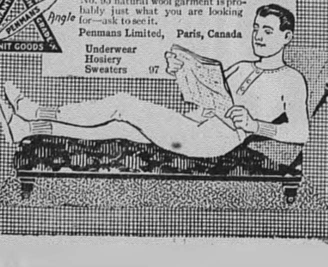
No. 95 natural wool garment is probably just what you are looking for—ask to see it.

Penmans Limited, Paris, Canada

Underwear
Hosiery
Sweaters 97



A number from here attended the farewell party at Mr. R. McConnell's of Kinlough on Tuesday night and all report a good time

Mrs. J. Armstrong of Kinloss visited at the home of J. Hodgin's last week.

CHEPSTOW

Mr. Duncan McKinnon, of Detroit, Mich., is spending a couple of weeks visiting his brother here. The city seems to agree with Duncan as he looks hale and hearty.

Mr. Jos. A. Massel made a business trip to Toronto the latter end of the week.

A large number from here attended Barney Graf's sale on Monday and report good prices.

"Mein Herr" Micheal McNab has been under the influence of la grippe the last week or two. We hope for a speedy recovery.

Miss Annie Mullin, of Hanover, is visiting at her home here.

Walter Hunziger spent Sunday with his many friends at Cargill.

Mr. Alfred Massel spent Sunday with Chesley friends.

Mr. Andy Dietner shipped a carload of choice hogs from Dunkeld station on Tuesday of this week. Andy is developing into a great stock man.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs Lawrence Lacey last Saturday and presented them with a baby girl. Larry wears a broad smile these days.

Mr. John Walter sold a nice span of horses to Mr. Fred Graf last week.

FORMOSA

Ralph Oberle of Walkerton visited relatives here last week.

Alex Brick who came from the north west on a visit to his parents, Jacob Brick's, last fall, left for his home on Monday.

Mr. Jos. Lobsinger of Mildmay was in town on business on Wednesday and Monday.

The Rev. Fathers Holler and Zettler were here visiting with Rev. Father Greil.

Mrs. Jos. J. Fry who has been in poor health all winter left on Monday for Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Jos. Kellar of Preston, Waterloo County was here on business on Thursday.

Miss Lina Arnold who has been at the Walkerton hospital came home last week. She is improving.

Mr. Joseph Nell who has been seriously ill for some time is improving.

Peter Kuhry, Jacob Wilhelm and Jos. Weiler are still confined to the house and not able to go out.

Bailiff Briggs of Walkerton was here on business last Monday.

Mr Jos. Ernewein of Belmore was here on business last Monday.

Mrs. Jacob Brick is able to be out again after three weeks of sickness,

BRANT COUNCIL

The Brant municipal Council met at the Township Hall on Monday, the 1st day of March, 1915. Members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Rowand—Monte—That this council do now form into a committee of the whole with the Reeve in the chair for the purpose of appointing Pathmasters, Pound-keepers, Fence-viewers, Sheep Valuators and Engineers to operate the road graders.—Carried.

Rowand—Willoughby—That the following named persons be appointed Pathmasters, Pound-keepers, Fence-viewers, Sheep Valuators and Engineers to operate the road graders:

List A—Pathmasters—Div. No. 1 Conrad Zuber, 2 Frank Wilhelm, 3 Jas. Clancy, 4 Herb. Moffat, 5 John Clancy, 6 D. W. Gregg jr., 7 Wm. Delgarno, 8 Wm. Abell, 9 Arthur Johnston, 10 Wes. Napper, 11 John Brown, 12 Duncan Stewart, 13 Garuil Hood, 14 Mack Scott, 15 W. A. Tolton, 16 Bruce Burnham, 17 W. H. McNeill, 18 W. J. Richardson, 19 John Bilger, 20 John Rapp, 21 Wm. Kirstine, 22 Wm. Dickinson, 23 Geo. Francis, 24 Wm. Johnston, 25 Jos. Zettler, 26 W. J. McNally, 27 T. H. Wilson, 28 J. C. Leach, 29 , 30 Wm. Blake, 31 Dan McNaughton, 32 W. A. Bell, 33 Anthony Sutter, 34 Wm. Morgan, 35 Walter Rowand, 36 Conrad Voelzing, 37 Rodger Inglis, 38 George Wilson, 39 Jacob Seip, 40 , 41 Wm. Chesney, 42 David Noble, 43 Malcolm Thompson, 44 Louis Misch, 45 John Schlorff, 46 Fred Frook, 47 Geo. Oatman, 48 Henry Widdow, 49 John E. Routledge, 50 George Farr, 51 John Strader, 52 Geo. Craig, 53 Wm. Rody, 54 John Ahrens, 55 Archie Young, 56 Patrick McGarrity, 57 John Lambertus, 58 James A. Rae, 59 W. F. Lamont, 60 Henry Ahrens, 61 John Wilkin, 62 Henry Zettler, 63 Wm. Alexander, 64 John Kerry, 65 Wm. C. Leifso, 66 Chas. Dickman, 67 Alfred Rody, 68 Josiah Dierstien, 69 John Driscoll, 70 John Butchart, 71 Wm. Frook, 72 Geo. Fiddis, 73 Geo. Jacklin, 74 Henry Helberg, 75 Louis Leifso, 76 George Spong, 77 Thos. Pryor, 78 Vincent Hanmore, 79 J. V. Rielly, 80 Wm. T. Dandy, 81 Dave Jacklin, 82 John Sinclair, 83 Wm. Bluhm, 84 John Fraser, 85 Wm. Smart, 86 Jos. Reilly, 87 Wm. Elliott.

List B—Pound-keepers—John C. Richardson, John Rapp, Fred Glintz, Fred Price, Henry Logie, Thos. O'Neill, Angus Murray, H. J. Ernest, Chris Pegelo, Wm. Alexander, Isreal Abell, Wm. Lambertus, Peter Fischer, Louis Lambertus, Wm. Long, Duncan Smith, Martin Monk, Martin Hanmore, Wm T. Hopper, Wm. Craig, John Whitehead, Eli Miehlhausen, Alex. Gallinger, Jas. Rae, John Burrel, John Monk.

List C—Fence-viewers—Jas. Maxwell, jr., John Hanmore, jr., Henry Logie, Abram Rowand, Hugh Traynor, Jas. T. Crawford, John Muschl, Jas. L. Tolton, Norman Brockelbank, Chas. Glauser, Hugh Ferguson, Aaron Jacklin, Isreal Abell, Jas. Metcalf, W. H. McLean, Geo. Fiddis, And. O'Neill, Ben. Stansel, Henry Ahrens, J. D. Little.

List D—Engineers to operate road graders—Chris. Pegelo for North Division, Harry Threndyle for South Division.

List E—Sheep Valuators—George Sires Brant Twp. west of the Saugeen River, Thos. H. Wilson Brant Twp. South of 7th con. and east of river, Jos. Monk, Brant Twp. north of 6th con. and east of river.

Findlay—Monto—That By-law No. 70, A.D., 1915, a by-law confirming the appointment of Pathmasters, Pound-keepers, Fence-viewers, Sheep Valuators, and engineers, be now read the usual number of times and finally passed.—Carried.

Rowand—Willoughby—That lot No. 1, con. B, be changed from road Division No. 8 to Div. No. 32, and that Div. No. 32 be extended 20 rods farther to the North.—Carried.

Willoughby—Rowand—That John Rodgers, Wm. Atkinson, jr., and Jos. Whitehead be refunded $1.00 each dog tax, having been wrongfully assessed for a dog.—Carried.

Findlay—Monto—That this council endorse and support the resolution forwarded from the council of Albemarle Tp., asking the Provincial Legislature to distribute to the different municipalities according to their respective mileage of roads, the full amount now collected by the Province for automobile licenses or any increase thereof. Also that our Member of the Legislature be asked to co-operate and that the clerk notify Mr. Cargill of this resolution.—Carried.

Willoughby—Monte—That the Reeve and Councillor Rowand communicate with different firms and corporations with regard to the prices of road graders and road drags and report at April meeting.—Carried.

Findlay—Willoughby—That the clerk be authorized to prepare a By-law to amend By-law No. [illegible], A.D. 1915, thereby making it legal to transfer the current account from the Bank of Commerce at Walkerton to the Royal Bank at Elmwood.—Carried.

Willoughby—Monto—That By-law No. 69, A.D. 1915, be now read the usual number of times and finally passed.

Willoughby—Findlay—That the Reeve and Clerk issue orders on the Treasurer for all accounts passed at this meeting of council.—Carried.

Accounts passed as follows:

Norman Robertson, Treas. Co. Bruce, refund re expense at Cargill bridge	$23 08
Walkerton Telescope, book of order forms	10 50
Agnes Powers, rent of room for B.O.H. meeting	1 00
Municipal World, 7 copies for council, Treas. and clerk	5 75
M. A. McCallum, postage and telephoning	1 87
John Maxwell, hardware account	1 95
Otto E. Klein, bal. account re McCurdy bridge	65 00
R. S. Nesbitt council meeting	2 70
D. Willoughby, " "	3 30
W. A. Rowand, " "	2 85
Mano Monto, " "	2 85
J. W. Findlay, " "	2 65
Jas. Coulter, postage, telephoning and stationery	1 60
Louis Lambertus, refund taxes	2 10
George Flack " "	1 05
John Rodgers, refund of dog tax	1 00
Wm. Atkinson, " "	1 00
Jos. Whitehead, " "	1 00

Monto—Findlay—That this council do now adjourn to meet on the 5th of April for transaction of general business.—Carried.

M. A. McCallum, Clerk.

Special Optical Sale.

For one day only, on Monday Mar. 22nd at R. L. Gibson, Jewellery Store, Walkerton, we will again sell genuine gold filled rimmed spectacles and eyeglasses for $1.00 same as are sold regularly from $3.50 to $5.00. These special sales have been conducted at our store several times during the past year by Messrs Hughson & Baker graduate opticians, of Toronto, who who have never failed to give entire satisfaction and we are very fortunate in again securing their services to conduct this sale. Eyes tested free and best possible vision guaranteed. Lowest prices for double vision and special ground lenses. This is your opportunity to economize during the present money stringency. NOTICE—Come early and avoid crowding during afternoon and evening.

Addressing of Mail

In order to facilitate the handling of mail at the front and to insure prompt delivery it is requested that all mail be addressed as follows:—

(a) Rank……………………
(b) Name……………………
(c) Regimental Number……………
(d) Company, Squadron, Battery or other unit……………
(e) Battalion……………………
(f) Brigade……………………
(g) First (or Second) Canadian Contingent……………
(h) British Expeditionary Force……

Army Post Office,
LONDON, ENGLAND.

Suitings, Coatings & Dress Fabrics

See our superb showing of the Weaves and Colorings prescribed by Fashion for Suits, Dresses and Coats.

Silk Suitings in Faille, Poplin, Paillette and Duckers Weaves—All the new shades Sea Gull, Grey, Putty, Sand, Sunset Yellow, Pink, Ivory at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 per yard.

Spring Serges, Worsteds, Tipperary Tweeds, Gabardines Poplins, Coverts, Shepherd Checks and Broad Cloths. Colors—Navy, Belgian Blue, Green, Brown, Battleship Grey, Pansy Purple and Black and White—We will be glad to have you view the display. Prices from 50c to $3.00 yd.

Flounces, Edgings, Insertions, All-over Laces and Embroideries in exquisite weaves and patterns from narrow up to flouncing widths.

New Crepes, Mulls, Muslins, Organdies, Lawns Zephyrs and Ginghams—Beautiful fresh goods for Spring and Summer wear at exceptional prices.

Our new Spring Waists and Dresses just in the prettiest and daintiest assortment we have ever shown. Prices 50c to $3.00.

It will be worth your while to see this display in all it's freshness and completeness

McBurney & Co.

THE
Merchants Bank
OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,[illegible]

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

Notice To Creditors

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM JOHN BILDSTEIN OF TOWN OF WALKERTON IN THE COUNTY OF BRUCE, BLACKSMITH INSOLVENT.

Notice is hereby given that the above named Insolvent has this day made an assignment to me under R. SO Cap 134 of all his estate for the benefit of his creditors.

The said Creditors are notified to meet at my office on the corner of Durham and Victoria street in the said town of Walkerton on Wednesday the 10th day of March 1915 at one o'clock in the afternoon to receive a statement of affairs to appoint inspectors and for the ordering of the estate generally.

Creditors are requested to file their claims with the assignee before the date of said meeting.

Notice is hereby given that after the twenty fourth day of March 1915, the assignee will proceed to distribute the assets of the Insolvent among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which notice shall have been given to him.

And the Assignee will not be liable for any part of the assets so distributed to any person or persons of whose claims he shall not have had notice.

S. A. Rife,
Assignee

Dated at Walkerton, Feb. 27th. 1915.

Walkerton Markets

Hay	per	ton	$16.00	to……	$17.00
Oats	"	bsh.	50	"……	55
Wheat	"	"	1.20	to……	1 20
Barley	"	"	60	to……	65
Potatoes	"	bag	50	"……	50
Butter	"	lb.	25	"……	26
Eggs	"	doz.	21	"……	22
Chicken	"	lb.	12	"……	14
Ducks	"	"	10	"……	14
Turkeys	"	"	15	"……	16

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

For Sale By

J. H. Appel

Produce Wanted Phone 53

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

VOL XXXIV- No 11 WALKERTON. ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 18th 1915 - 8 PAGES

IT IS TIME TO TAKE BLOOD PURIFIER

Penslar

Laxative Blood Alterative

Cleanses the system and renews your strength.

ONE DOLLAR.

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

MILLINERY

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton and vicinity to attend our

SPRING MILLINERY OPENINGS

March 19th and 20th

Or at any time most suited to your convenience.

THE ELITE

High Class Millinery Millinery Novelties

Durham St. Walkerton

SPRING MEDICINES

"NYAL'S"

Spring Tonic

Blood Purifier

Sarsaparilla

$1.00 a bottle at

SEVERIGHT'S DRUG STORE

"EDISON" PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson

Jeweller - - Walkerton

Up-To-Date MEN'S FURNISHINGS

If you are particular about your collars, neckwear, shirts and other accessories that complete the success of a man's apparel, you should come in and make selections here.

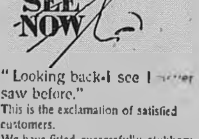
Our Successful Tailoring satisfies the most particular people. We can please you too, why don't you let us take your measure today?

Ladies' Suits tailored to order.

G.T.ROURKE

Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store

Walkerton. - Ont.



"Looking back-I see I never saw before."

This is the exclamation of satisfied customers.

We have fitted successfully stubborn cases that others have failed in.

Satisfaction guaranteed.

Consultation free.

C. A. Fox, Walkerton

Jeweller and Optician

Mr. J. B. Campbell, of Chesley, organizer for the Canadian Order of Foresters, spent the past week in Milverton and vicinity in connection with the advancement of the work of the order. He has been instrumental in securing a number of candidates for initiation.—Milverton Sun.

C. P. R. ticket office at Hunter's.

Easter neckwear at J. H. Appel's

New Eastern caps.—Stephan Bros.

The Helena shirt waists at J. H. Appel's.

T. E. Attwood, issuer of marriage licenses.

Read Mrs. Gardiner's millinery ad on page 8.

Dr. Houston of Paisley was a visitor here on Monday.

New Embroideries, laces, & curtain nets.—Stephan Bros.

New spring styles in "Re[illegible]" at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Special in embroideries and muslin flouncings at J. H. Appel's.

Miss Bertha Schnurr is learning the millinery at Mrs. Gardner's.

New spring styles in women's fine shoes.—Ramsey the Shoeman.

Furnished rooms to let apply to C. Patrick at the Telescope Office.

Suits ordered from Hobberlin traveller will be delivered for Easter.

Messrs Scottie Leslie and Mac Gibson spent Sunday in Clifford.

Cushionette shoes need no breaking in—Sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Mrs. Jas. Whitehead and Miss Helene are visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Pearson of Toronto is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Todd.

Get the boy's Easter suit at Stephan Bros.—New Norfolk styles just in.

Mr. Gilleland of Oakville spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Ralph Terry

Mrs. A. J. Wesley and Miss B. Wesley returned on Tuesday from Toronto.

The young people of town held an enjoyable dance in the town hall last night.

Mrs. Jno. Rowland and Miss Florence were visitors in Toronto last week.

Miss Marjorie Kilmer, of Toronto, is visiting at the home of Mr. N. Crawford.

Women's $3.50 and $4.00 tan shoes clearing at $2.19.—Ramsey the Shoeman.

Miss Lucy Kunneman, of Toronto, is visiting at her sister Mrs. Tillie Lumley.

Miss Florence Campbell has taken a position on the staff of Mrs. Gardner, milliner.

Miss Martha Cousins is the new apprentice at Miss Beattie's millinery parlours.

Miss Emma Latchford has joined the staff of Mrs. Gardiner, our new milliner.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Miller have returned to town after a months visit in Greenock.

Pte. Wm Weidner of the third contingent at Guelph was a visitor here this week.

Misses Violet Krampp and Selena Addley have joined the staff of Mrs. Gardiner.

Mrs. Golder, of Toronto, was the guest of her friend Miss Crawford on Friday last.

Our Men's navy serge suit at $15.00 is the best ever offered at the price.—Stephan Bros.

Miss Mathers, of New York, has taken the position of head milliner at Mrs. Gardiner's

Pte. W. C. Winters of the third contingent at Guelph spent Sunday with Mrs. Winters.

Miss Sadie Fraser entertained a few of her young lady friends last Wednesday evening.

Mr. S. D. Croft formerly G. T. R. depot agent, was a business visitor here on Sunday.

Mrs. Cummer of Toronto is visiting her daughter, Miss M. Cummer of the High School staff.

Mr. David Best has returned to Regina, after a three month's visit to relatives in town.

No tired, aching feet if you wear Dr. Reed's cushion shoes—Sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Hobberlin's traveller will be here with spring suitings next Monday, Mar. 22nd. Stephan Bros.

Privates. Norman Huck and Wilbur Tolton of the second contingent at London spent Sunday here.

The High School boys have been practicing baseball on the green this week. Spring is surely here!

The German cruiser Dresden which has been preying upon British shipping in the southern Pacific, was sunk off the coast of South America on Sunday March 14.

Mr. Jim Best and Miss Agnes G. Smith attended the Best - Gillespie nuptials in Seaforth last week.

Miss McEwen who has spent the past two weeks at Miss Weir's, returned to her home in Mount Forest on Monday.

Mr. Smith who has been caretaker of Judge Barrett's property left on Tuesday for Guelph where he will visit his son.

Mr. N. C. McKay has rented Mr. John Korman's house on Victoria st., recently vacated by Mr. Carswell, and will move there shortly.

Miss Stead of the public school staff was on the sick list on Monday, which necessitated the closing of her room and gave her pupils a holiday

The "Telescope" has just heard from R. J. Latimer of Velva, N. D. and he says the the winter has been lovely, it being very mild and no snow. Mr. Latimer has been away for seventeen years and is doing well in the saddlery business.

Don't forget the special sale of glasses at R. L. Gibson's jewellery store, Walkerton, on Monday March 22. Regular $3 50 to $5.00 gold filled, rimmed spectacles and eye glasses will be sold for $1.00. We firmly advise those requiring glasses to secure them at this exceptionally low price.

A number of letters are being mailed at the post office with three cents worth of stamps attached, no doubt, the parties posting them are of the opinion that the war tax of one cent each on letters and post cards is now in force. Of course, the extra stamps in no way hinders the transmission of the letter, but the senders is just that much out of pocket.

Found!
Key-ring and two keys. Owner can have same on applying at this office and paying for this ad.

Wanted.
One or two girls wanted to set type, or boys to learn the printing trade. Apply at the Telescope office or at the house.

Wanted
All kinds of cast scrap iron at The Walkerton General Casting Foundry" station road. The highest prices will be paid. S. Ellinghausen.

Daughters Of The Empire
The regular meeting of the Walkerton Chapter, I. O. D. E. will be held in the armory on Saturday of this week at 3.30 o'clock.

A Dry Day.
Good Friday as a holiday, is this year on the "dry" list an act having been passed on April 24th, 1914, making the sale of liquor on that day illegal, and calling for the closing of all bars.

Attended Funeral.
Among those whose attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Plewes which took place from the residence of Mr. S. W. Vogan on Wednesday, were:—Miss F. Plewes of Oakville, Mr. McGregor of Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs D. F. Ahrens of Hanover.

Star Theatre Sold.
The Red Star moving picture theatre has changed hands, Mr. Harvey Daum who has run the show for some years, disposed of the business to Mr. Dave Karges, formerly proprietor of the east end bakery. The new proprietor will take possession on Monday.

Meeting on April the 22nd.
The annual meeting of the South Bruce License Commissioners for the granting of licenses for the ensuing year will be held at the Queen's Hotel on April 22nd. The Commissioners are considering the cancelling of at least one license in this division, but whether they will take any action in this regard remains to be seen.

No More Ice Skating
Saturday night closed the ice-skating season in Walkerton, Mr. Clark removing the ice from the floor of the rink Monday. The floor is in good condition and will be put in shape for roller-skating at once. Mr. Clark has purchased a sander with which he purposes keeping the floor in perfect shape for the rollers.

Wiarton Defeated
The Wiarton hockey team lost the final round in the O. H. A. series to Orillia by a margin of two goals. The first game in Orillia was 5-1 against them and in the return game in Wiarton on Wednesday they won by a score of 3-1. Wiarton, however, are still in the Northern league and are confident of winning the silverware.

Defeated Cargill.
The sudden death hockey match between the Walkerton Printers team and Cargill, played in Mildmay on Friday evening resulted in a win for the Printers by a score of 5-3. The half-time score was 2-1 in favor of Cargill, but in the second period the Printers had it all their own way scoring four goals to their opponents one.

Purchased Swamp Land
Mr. Dan Krampp has purchased forty acres of the large Foster swamp, in Brant township and will remove the timber from it during this spring and summer.

Elmira in Finals.
By defeating Seaforth in Stratford on Monday evening, the Elmira hockey team qualified to meet Wiarton in the finals for the Northern League championship. "Bunny" Heimbecker of Mildmay's 1914 team is playing in the nets for Elmira. Although the Elmira team is a fast aggregation, Wiarton is expected to land the silverware.

Died in Brant.
An old and respected resident of Brant township passed away on Monday of this week in the person of Miss Jane Johnston whose death occurred at the home of her brother, Mr. Wm E. Johnston, on concession 1, after but a short illness. The deceased was in her 70th year. The funeral took place to the Walkerton cemetery on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Thos. Wilson, officiating.

Playing Good Hockey
Mr. Roy Oberle of the Walkerton hockey team is playing with the All-Star junior Northern League team in Owen Sound to-night. Roy has made a great name for himself in hockey circles. He was considered the star of five teams at the Teeswater hockey tournament, when he performed for the Teeswater team. The latter team won the tourney and each man was presented with a signet ring.

Shipment Of Implements
Mr. [illegible], the local agent made his annual delivery of implements on Wednesday. The delivery which was made to farmers within a radius of fifteen miles, included binders, mowers, seed drills, harrows, and almost every piece of machinery required in up-to date tilling of the soil. This year's shipment from the Massey-Harris company comprised two and a half car loads and was valued at about $6000.

Boys Took The Sap
Mr. Jas. O'Connor of the east ward has laid informations against four small boys on a charge of stealing sap from pails which were hanging on trees, on his property which he had tapped. The trivial offence was committed on Sunday afternoon when the youngsters, spying the pails were caught in the act of taking a drink by Mr. O'Connor and a neighbor. If not previously settled the case will be heard on Saturday afternoon.

Died In Oakville
Mrs S. W. Vogan received word on Sunday of the death of her sister, Miss Charlotte Plewes which occured in Oakville early that morning after a lengthy illness from Bright's disease. The deceased who was about 65 years of age was at one time a resident of Walkerton and was fairly well known here. The remains were brought here on Tuesday night. The funeral taking place to the Walkerton cemetery from the residence of Mr. S. W. Vogan on Wednesday afternoon

Not Urban Schmidt
In last week's issue we stated that Mr Schmidt' a cattle buyer of Mildmay had been charged with indecent assault. As there is more than one Mr. Schmidt in this business in our neighboring burgh, this was rather vague, and perhaps misleading. Mr. Urban Schmidt has complained to us in this regard and in justice to him we wish to state that he was not the man who was summoned to answer the charge.

Started Thirteenth Year
On Sunday next, Rev. Thos Wilson will commence his thirteenth year as pastor of Knox church. Rev. Wilson came to Walkerton on March 10th, 1903 and was inducted on March 19th, His twelve years pastorate has been a most successful one every department of the church having shown a marked advancement, and his congregation and other friends hope to see his work blessed to even a greater extent, if that is possible in the future.

Killed In California.
Mr Dougald McLeod of Brant received word last week of the accidental death of his brother John, which occured in Pomona, California on Friday. The late Mr. McLeod was driving across a railroad track, when in some manner, he was thrown out of the wagon his head striking the rail, death resulting almost instantly. The deceased had planned a trip to Ontario during the coming summer to renew acquaintances and visit his brother.

MARRIED

YAECK-OBRIGHT — In Hanover, on Friday, February 26th, Mr. Andrew Yaeck to Miss Laura Obright, both of Walkerton.

CURTIS — ROETHER — On Saturday March 13th, 1915, at 108 Whitley Ave., Joliet, Ill., by the Rev. Dr. Laing, Anna N. Roether formerly of Walkerton, Ont., to Dr. Watson H. Curtis of Wilmington, Ill.

Moved to Greenock.
Mr. Jno. Halliday who has been operating Mr. Frank Rennie's farm in Brant during the past year, has rented a farm in Greenock, near the village of Teeswater and moved with his family to his new home this week.

Drowned In Well
The body of Miss Sarah Wrightson, daughter of Mr. John Wrightson of Port Elgin was on Monday found in a well on the farm of Mr. Westman of Saugeen township with whom she was employed. An inquest is being held to ascertain if possible, how she came to her death. The deceased was 35 years of age.

No Flood This Spring
Unless an unprecedented fall of rain occurs during the coming few weeks there will be no flood of the Saugeen this year. The snow has now all but disappeared even from the valleys, and all vehicles have returned to the wheels once more. Very little ice is left on the river which will give a free course for the water to the lake and remove any possibility of the usual spring freshet which has been annually the cause of a great deal of worry to the residents in the low-lying sections of the town.

Muzzling the Press.
The usual procedure of any Walkertonian who finds himself in an unpleasant position, which is liable to secure for him unwelcome publicity, is to beat it to the newspaper office and apply the muzzle to the press. This is decidedly aggravating to the local editor, particularly when news is scarce, and although the Telescope scribe has had compassion on his fellow being in trouble in the past, and is even this week withholding items which would make good reading for public, we will refuse to be muzzled in the future. If you don't want your name in print, stay out of trouble.

The Ford Films.
You are cordially invited to the Red Star Theatre, Walkerton on Monday and Tuesday evenings, March 22nd and 23rd, to see the famous Ford Films. It will be well worth your while to see these pictures, which illustrate the interior operation of the immense Ford Automobile Factory. All the different departments of this great institution are shown on the films. One of the most interesting features is the staff of one hundred men assembling a complete Ford Car from a great mass of parts, in twenty minutes Many other interesting mechanical feats are illustrated, of which only the Ford is capable of performing. Come and bring your neighbor with you. — Liesemer & Kalbfleisch.

Moving To St. Catherines.
Mr. R. J. Hawthorne, general agent for the Manufacturer's Life Insurance Company, has decided to leave Walkerton and will move with his family to St. Catherines. Mr. Hawthorne has been agent for this company for the past seventeen years and has a very successful record behind him, but as this field has recently been overdone in the life insurance business, the officials recommended the St. Catherines district as a better field for his labors and he has decided to accept the company's proposition. Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne have resided in Walkerton for the past twelve years and their many friends and acquaintances will regret to learn of their proposed departure from their midst. They will be greatly missed in the Knox church of which they were valued members. The best wishes of their many friends will go with them to their new home.

"Chosen Seven" Champions.
The remainder of the games in the town league series were played since our last publication, the Chosen Seven winning the final game from the Printers on Thursday evening of last week by a score of 6-2, and thus secured the championship honors. On Wednesday afternoon the Chosen Seven defeated the High School by 4-2 and on Wednesday night, or more properly Thursday morning (the game being played between 11.30 and 12.35) the Printers put the Bankers out of the running by defeating the Financiers by 5-3. This left the Printers and the Chosen Seven to decide the championship and the game was called for Thursday evening and after an hour's struggle for supremacy the Chosen Seven were declared champions, the score standing 6-2 in their favor. The type-slingers were by no means disgraced, for despite the score the game was very even and had it not been for the phenomenal work of McCartney in goal for the champions, there would no doubt have been a different story to tell. H. Runstadtler made a very impartial referee. The teams lined up —

Printers		Chosen Seven
N Hibbert	goal	A McCartney
H Henderson	r d	H Rife
R Wesley	l d	G Henderson
F Eidt	rover	M Welch
A Schnurr	centre	W Russell
V Eidt	r w	S Truax
E Bauman	l w	W McKay

In the Printers line-up Henderson substituted for La France who was suffering from an injured knee.

A Special Treat.
A [illegible] Ladies' Aid Tea Room on Wednesday, March 24th, from 3 p.m. Hot pancakes and maple syrup will be served with tea or coffee for 10c. There will also be a demonstration of pan cake making in aluminum utensils by a representative of the Wear-ever Aluminum Co., of Toronto. All are cordially invited.

Old Walkerton Boy Weds.
The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gillespie was the scene of an interesting event at high noon, Tuesday, March 2nd, when their daughter, Della Maud and Mr. Harold H. Best of Regina, Sask., formerly of Seaforth, and an old Walkerton boy, were united in marriage. The nuptial knot being tied by Rev. F. H. Larkin, in the presence of the immediate family relatives. The bride, who was given away by her father, was exquisitely gowned in silk embroidered voile, over point de sprit, trimmed with bebe Irish lace, also a girdle of Duchess satin. She carried in her hand a bouquet of cream roses and wore at her neck a pearl necklace of rare design, the gift of the groom. The parlour of ceremony was tastefully decorated with pink and white carnations. Costly and most useful were the gifts from friends to the fair bride. The going away suit was of blue military gabardine and a black straw hat with floating veil, trimmed with pink rose buds. The young couple are held in high esteem in this community and many were assembled at the depot to express their good wishes and furnished the confetti in abundance, as they boarded the 3 p. m. train for their honeymoon trip throughout Chicago and Minneapolis, enroute to their home in Regina, where Mr. Best holds a lucrative and responsible position in one of the largest mercantile emporiums in Saskatchewan. We extend to Mr. Best our most hearty congratulations in his choice of one of Seaforth's most popular young ladies and to the bride in her acceptance of one of Walkerton's most popular young men.

HIGH SCHOOL REPORT.

The result of the last nine weekly examinations, with exception of result in spelling and writing, are given below. The names are in order of merit, and the number after each name denotes percentage on group of subjects examined. In form IV. the percentage on each subject is given.

FORM I.

Seven Subjects.

A. Weiler and M. Forsythe 70, B. McCool 69, R. Weinert and N. Wilton 67, E. Glave 65, C. Cargill 62, G. Pfohl 61, E. Mielhausen and V. Tovell 60, T. Queen 57, V. Eidt 54, M. Chisholm 51, W. Ramsey 49, J. Coumans and N. Pinkerton 48, S. Brockelbank 47, W. Lettner 43, M. Bryce 40.

Six Subjects.

E. Coulter 79, G. Young and R. Garner 64, M. Kenny and E. Stevens 61, E. Lindsay 59, E. Bandhaur 58, M. Hyslop 58, F. Garner and F. Moore 54, E. Kramp 54, L. Batte 51, L. Bilger 50, F. Sherrer 50, H. Lewis 49, H. South 41, W. Rae 40.

Five Subjects.

D. Frost 61, W. Patterson 54.

Commercials—6 Subjects

M. Weiler 57, L. Yack 53, M. Ernest 53, M. Leech 61 on 4 subjects.

FORM II.

8 Subjects.

S. Bush 64, A. Garland 50, G. Lewis 40.

7 Subjects.

(W. Wilson 66, E. Bilger 66), A. Schewhr 64, L. McConnel 62, M. Weiler 61, M. Baechler 55, E. Hyslop 54, I. Gowanlock 46, C. Tovell 43, I. Reichenback 31.

6 Subjects.

G. Wanless 63, (G. Rogers 62, A. Pinkney 62), J. Rennie 55, E. Petteplace 48, C. Petteplace 47, W. MacFarlane 46, J. Alexander 40.

5 Subjects.

C. Fortune 60, M. Taggart 50, R. Glave 43.

4 Subjects.

J. Rowland 40.

Commercials.

C. Wallace 50, W. Polfus 48.

FORM III.

8 Subjects.

J. Hickling 67, J. Wells 59, I. Everett 59, F. Cunningham 59, J. Frame 56, V. McKecknie 56, O. Schwindt 48, C. Skelton 43.

7 Subjects.

M. Coumans 68, A. Pinkerton 67, G. Pinkerton 67, H. Chisholm 45, A. Scanlon 40.

6 Subjects.

G. VanHorne 76, C. Weinert 68, G. Sperian 65, H. Long 61, C. Hugill 53, M. Coulter 51, G. Seigner 50.

4 Subjects.

S. Little 70, A. Lambertus 48, M. Wilson 54 on three subjects.

FORM IV.

Subjects — Chemistry, Mineralogy, Latin, History, Zoology, Chemistry (2nd paper), Botany.

Names not in order of merit.

W. Borho, 68, 65, 63, 96, 65, 62, 80
R. Hermeston 64, 92, 29, 79, 68, 75, 80
W. Tanner, 61, 81, 51, 77, 76, 75, 78
H. Tranter, 31, 80, 60, 80, 71, 69, 86
H. Harkley, 77, 89, 80, 85 on 1st, and last 3 of above subjects.

TRUE TO HIS RACE

CHAPTER XXXV.

Meanwhile Lord Wellrose went down to the drawing room to welcome his parents. But he had to wait a few moments for the duke and duchess, who had gone to their dressing rooms to change their travelling suits.

At length they both entered together. And after an affectionate greeting, they sat down, and the duchess said:

"Your letter surprised us very much, Wellrose."

"We set off at once, to know what was the matter," added the duke.

"Heavens, Wellrose! how your face changes! What can have happened?"

"Out with your bad news at once! It will not improve by keeping," said the duke, uneasily.

"There is no bad news, father, although there is something to tell that will startle you very much."

"Tell it, then."

"First, let me offer my mother a glass of wine and a biscuit," said the earl. And he rang and gave the order.

After the refreshments had been brought and tasted, the duchess said:

"For mercy's sake, my son, do not keep us longer in suspense."

"No, do not," added the duke.

"Then read this document, my father, and see if you recognize this little relic, my mother," said the earl, as he drew a small parcel from his bosom, and placed Dr. Seton's confession in the duke's hand, and the little embroidered sock on the duchess' lap.

The duke unfolded the paper and began to read.

The duchess picked up the little sock, looked at it, and, with a half-suppressed cry, turned her eyes on Wellrose.

Her color came and went; she trembled much; she could scarcely articulate the question:

"Where did you find it?"

"Folded in the document that my father is reading," replied the earl, in a low tone.

She rose, pale and trembling, and stood behind the duke's sofa, and leaned over his shoulder to look at the document. His face was as pale as hers. His eyes seemed starting from their sockets, as they followed the lines of that written confession. But, conscious of his wife's approach, without taking his eyes from the paper, he put out his hand and drew her to a seat by his side, wound his arm protectingly around her, and let her read as he did.

Their faces paled and paled as they read. Sometimes her head dropped upon his shoulder, and a great, heaving sob convulsed her bosom. And then his arm closed tight around her; but his eyes never left following the lines of that paper until he had read it to its close. Then he turned toward his wife, and their eyes met in grief and horror.

The duchess found her voice first:

"Oh, my son! my son! my first-born! my best beloved! Oh, my innocent! my heirless! what has become of you? What has been your fate?" she cried, wringing her hands in an anguish too deep for tears.

The Earl of Wellrose, who had been standing pale and silent before them, now dropped on one knee beside her, saying:

"Dear mother, be comforted. Your son, my brother, lives."

"Lives!" echoed the parents, in a breath.

"Yes, lives! Be assured of it, for I know it."

"Lives!" said the duke again. "Ay, but his life may be worse than death."

"Not so," said the earl, hastily. "He has won honor in the service of his country. He was foremost in the glorious charge at Inkerman. His hand placed his regimental colors on the walls of Sebastopol. And though he has returned wounded and ill, he will yet do well."

They listened to him with breathless interest. Suddenly the duchess caught his arm, strained her eyes into his and murmured hoarsely:

"He is—he is—he is——"

"Yes, dear mother; he is the Captain Douglas, of whom you heard me speak so often, and whom I went to Southampton to meet, though at that time I neither knew nor suspected his near relationship to us."

"Thank Heaven, the boy will do us no discredit," exclaimed the duke, in happy ignorance of his poor son's miserable childhood and youth.

"Amen! Ay, thank Heaven!" murmured the duchess. Then, turning to the earl, she hastily inquired:

"But where is he? Tell me! Let us go to him at once! Ah! I have been away from him long enough—his whole lifetime! Let me see him at once! Sick and wounded, too! Let me go to him at once!"

And the duchess arose and drew her shawl around her.

"Dear mother, be patient. He is not far off. You shall see him very soon. He is in the neighborhood," said the earl, diplomatically.

"Why did you not bring him to this house?" inquired the duchess. But before the earl could answer the question the duke put another one:

"How did you make this discovery, Wellrose?"

The earl, addressing both his parents, related the history of Dr. Christopher Kinlock's accidental discovery of the documents hidden away in the secret drawer of Dr. Seton's secretary.

"So Kinlock knows all about it?" said the duke.

"Yes; but he is discretion itself," replied Lord Wellrose.

"Does—your brother also know the secret of his birth?"

"No, my father. Dr. Kinlock and myself thought it due to you and my mother that you should be told of it first. So I wrote, requesting you to meet me here."

"You are right. But I might repeat your mother's question, and inquire why you did not bring your brother here?"

"My father, he is here. I left his sofa's side when I came down here to see you," replied the earl.

The duchess arose with a slight cry.

"Take me to him at once," she said.

"Dear mother, be patient for a few moments, for his sake. He knows nothing of this secret yet. And in his weakened condition it will be necessary to break it to him gradually. My father, if you will trust to me, I think I shall perform it more judiciously than another could," said the earl.

"You counsel wisely, Wellrose. It shall be as you say. But when will you do this?"

"My dear mother, when he wakes, refreshed from [illegible] may be he will be in [illegible] condition to bear [illegible] revelation."

"And how soon will that be?" inquired the duchess anxiously.

"In about two hours, mother, dear," replied the earl.

Then, after a little while, the question of the confused inheritance naturally arose.

"Heaven knows how glad I am of the restoration of our eldest son. But without doubt it will complicate the question of property very much," said the duke, uneasily.

"Oh, do not think of property at such a time," pleaded the duchess.

"I am sorry for you, Wellrose. This may deprive you of your heirship," continued the duke.

"Do you think of me, dear father. My brother must have justice, and he can have it. I see clearly enough how all this may be arranged," said the earl, earnestly.

"You were always unselfish, Wellrose. But let us examine this question in a legal point of view for a moment. You may not be so great a loser as at first sight it would appear," said the duke, reflectively.

Eglantine and her son both looked up inquiringly.

"Our first youthful marriage, secretly solemnized in England, and afterward openly acknowledged in Scotland was certainly legal in the last-mentioned country, though not in the first. The son of that first marriage would certainly be the lawful heir of all his father's and his mother's estates in Scotland."

"Most assuredly," put in Lord Wellrose.

"But not in England," continued the duke. "And, although he is even now master of Seton, and will be, after his mother, Baron of Linlithgow, he cannot possibly become, after me, the Duke of Cheviot. This title, with all its appendences, in England, will be the inheritance of yourself, Wellrose, as the sole son of the second marriage, which was legal everywhere," said the duke.

"And yet, father, in strict justice, if not in law, my elder brother should have been heir to all."

"In strict justice, yes," admitted the duke.

"Then, I repeat, my brother shall have strict justice. It can be managed. A petition to the House of Lords would surely get a decree constituting that first marriage legal in England, as it is in Scotland, and making my elder brother the heir to all your titles and estates in both countries. Such decrees, under such justifiable circumstances, have been granted heretofore, and will be hereafter," urged the earl.

"I am, of course, aware of that, Wellrose. But you, my son—you who have been brought up to consider yourself the heir?" said the duke with tears in his eyes.

"I repeat that I must not be thought of in this matter. I have held my brother's birthright long enough. I must hold it no longer. Besides, I can make my own place in the world, dear father."

"Heaven bless you, my boy; you have a noble heart," said the duke.

"Kinlock is here, father. Would you like to see him?"

"Yes, I should. I should like to hear from his own lips further details of this discovery."

"Then I will send him here to talk with you, while I go up to my brother's room and break the news to him."

And the earl kissed his mother's hand and left the room.

He found Dr. Kinlock pacing up and down the hall.

"Have you seen my brother lately?" Lord Wellrose.

"I have just left him," answered the doctor.

"He is awake, then?"

"Oh, yes, awake and much refreshed."

"Then I will go to him. The hour for the revelation has come. Go you, dear doctor, to my parents. They are in the blue drawing room waiting for you," said the earl, as he bowed and passed up the stairs.

He found Benjamin still reclining on his sofa, but looking brighter and stronger from his sleep.

The earl sat down beside the invalid, took his hand in his own, and, while he held it, said:

"My father and mother are here for a few days. They wish to see you, Benjamin, as soon as you are strong enough to see them."

"It is very kind of their graces. I thank them very much. I hope they are well," replied Benny.

"They are very well. They both take a great interest in you, Douglas. They feel sure that you must be a near relative of the family."

Benny lifted his eyes enquiringly to the face of the earl. He seemed to think that there was something to be told.

"And I, Douglas, have told you often, that I feel convinced you are very nearly related to us."

"Indeed I hope it may be so. I would like to be your cousin, Lord Wellrose."

"You may be even nearer kin to me than that. Very singular, your exact resemblance to myself and your earliest garments marked with the crest of my mother's family."

"It was," admitted Benny, still looking enquiringly into the face of his brother.

"Would it surprise you much to find out for a certainty that you are very nearly related to us indeed?" enquired the earl, looking wistfully into the clear eyes that were upturned to his.

Benny's color came and went; he breathed fast, but faltered forth the words.

"No; I do not think it would."

"Then, my dear Douglas, read this paper," said the earl, placing in his hand the written confession of Dr. Seton, watching him closely.

As Benny read, his wan face paled and flushed alternately. And when he finished he let the paper slip from his hold, and he lifted his hand, and [illegible]

"Douglas! Douglas! my brother!" murmured the earl, [illegible]

"My brother!" [illegible] tone of infinite [illegible] of the earl and pressed it to his heart. [illegible] Benjamin [illegible]

"Yes, yes, and so it should [illegible] my heart told me the truth long ago, long ago! [illegible] Brunswick terrace, Mr. [illegible] I kneeled at her feet to offer her the crown of [illegible] and burst into tears. I [illegible] and that day in the Middlesex Hospital, when her [illegible]-ging face, and I tried to wake in vain, my heart told me the truth. But I did not understand its language," said Benny in strong emotion.

"But now you do. And now you know you have a father, and, above all, a mother, and a brother, and [illegible] fair sisters. Your mother, our mother, longs to see you, Benjamin, just as soon as you are strong enough to receive her."

"Oh! now! now! let me look upon her lovely and gracious face again! It has never left my memory since that bright day at Brunswick terrace," he said, as again his color came and went in quick successions of flush and pallor.

The earl pressed the invalid's hand, and arose to leave the room; but, at a strange gurgling sound from the direction of the sofa, he turned.

Then he uttered an exclamation of horror unspeakable.

Benny had fallen back, white as death, and his bosom and pillow were crimsoned with his life blood.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Lord Wellrose had great presence of mind. He laid the fainting form flat upon the sofa, and then went and rang for the bell.

To the footman who answered it, he said:

"Go and request Dr. Kinlock to come here immediately, and quietly."

The man went about to do his errand, and the surgeon quickly made his appearance.

The earl pointed in silence to the form lying on the sofa.

"I thought so," said the doctor, going up to his patient and feeling his pulse. "But you need not be alarmed, my lord. This is not much of a hemorrhage. A very little blood makes a great show. And so, it has quite ceased to flow," he added, as he went to the washstand and wetted a towel to wipe the face of his patient.

Then he administered restoratives. And finally as Benny breathed again, he settled him more comfortably on the sofa and enjoined the strictest quiet.

He even recommended Lord Wellrose to withdraw from the room and leave him alone to attend to his patient; adding, that if he should need assistance in the duty he would ring for Mrs. Bruce.

As Lord Wellrose went out he beckoned Dr. Kinlock to follow him into the hall, and there inquired:

"What shall I say to my mother? She expects to see him this afternoon."

"Tell her that he has had as much excitement as he can bear for one day. He must rest quietly until to-morrow morning, when, if he should be better, it will be safe for her to see him."

Lord Wellrose went below stairs with this intelligence.

He found his mother alone in the drawing room.

He said nothing of the hemorrhage, but spoke only of the patient's weakness and fatigue and of the doctor's orders.

"And you told him all?" inquired Eglantine.

"I told him all," replied her son.

"And how did he take it? How did he take it?"

"With very great emotion, and yet with less than I expected. He said that his heart had told him the truth long ago and he should have known it, had he understood the language of his heart."

"But what, then, did the poor boy mean? His heart had told him the truth? How could his heart tell him anything, since he never saw his mother's face?"

"Dear mother, he had seen you often. You have touched him and spoken to him more than once."

"Heaven of heavens! When and where?" she asked in profound agitation.

Then Lord Wellrose told much of the story of his hapless brother's life, suppressing only such parts of it as would have overwhelmed his hearer with shame, as well as with pain.

Then the duchess learned, for the first time, that the pale infant in the beggar's arms whom she had pitied and succored at the church door, on the morning of her second bridal; the starving street boy, whom the kind-hearted children had called in from the sidewalk one bitter winter night at Brunswick terrace, and had treated with a portion of their Twelfth-day cake; the poor, dying child she had wept over in the Middlesex Hospital; and the fair, refined-looking young man she had met in the bookseller's shop in the Strand, were one and the same, and her son!

Oh! how she wept to hear even this much! How much more bitterly she must have wept had she heard all!

"And my heart also spoke; but, ah! I, too, misunderstood its language!" she said, weeping vehemently.

At that moment the duke came in. And she hastily dried her tears, and smiled.

"You have missed hearing our boy's story, Willie, but I will tell it to you to-night."

"Yes, dear, you shall do so. I shall feel deeply interested in hearing it. Take comfort, my dear Eglantine. Surely all is well now. We have two sons instead of one."

"And now, dear Wellrose, tell me how he came by the name of Douglas, since no one could have known his right to bear it until the surgeon's discovery?" she inquired.

"I gave it to him," answered the earl.

"Ah! you did not misunderstand the language of your heart when it claimed him as a brother," said Eglantine, with emotion.

(To be Continued.)

Brazil's Name.

Long before the Portuguese colonized the coast of Brazil adventurous Bristol merchants had equipped expeditions in a vain search for the supposed island of Brazyle. Who gave Brazil her present name is unknown to fame. The early Portuguese called it Terra da Vera Cruz, but whoever baptized the country took the name from the East Indies. For many years before the discovery of Brazil merchants had brought from the east for the use of dyers a wood which yielded a beautiful red color, brasill or brazil. The West Indies have trees of the same sort, but Brazil contains them in more abundance than any other country. So that Brazil wood is [illegible] the country. The [illegible] so because of its [illegible].—London Chronicle.

* * *

When a patrol wagon full of policemen [illegible] a North Side corner, Chicago, in answer to a riot call, they found Mrs. [illegible] Clements, a police [illegible] revolver in her hand, [illegible] a man under arrest. [illegible] from a street car saw [illegible] in the street. She [illegible] them to a patrol box.

Was Personally Attended by Dr. A. W. Chase

Before He Became Famous as the Author of Dr. Chase's Receipt Book.

Here is a letter from an aged gentleman who consulted Dr. Chase, long before his Receipt Book attained a world - wide circulation or his family medicines became known to the ends of the earth.

Like most people of advanced years his kidneys were the first organs to break down and when doctors failed to help him he remembered the physician who cured him of pleurisy in his younger days.

MR. O. D. BARNES.

Mr. O. D. Barnes, R.F.D. 1, Byron, Mich., writes:—"About fifty years ago, when living in Ann Arbor, Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author, was called on to treat me for pleurisy. Ever since that I have used and recommended Dr. Chase's Medicines, and have two of his Receipt Books in the house.

"Some time ago a cold settled in the kidneys, causing backache, frequent urination, dizziness, and affected the eyesight. My appetite failed and I could not sleep nights. Two doctors failed to do me any lasting good, so I started using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The results have been highly satisfactory to me. Appetite improved, I gained in weight, sleep and rest well, and feel strong and well. My kidneys resumed their natural functions, and I believe that my cure was due to Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. I am 78 years old, superintend work on my farm, and can turn in and do some work myself."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

WILL STRENTHEN UNIONS.

(Rochester Herald)

There are not lacking indications that there is a growing feeling in the membership of many trades unions that some of the past practices of men in authority might be abandoned with profit to the organization. It is an awakening of the civic spirit, and a realization of the fact that some of the things with which they are [illegible] are indefensible in [illegible] and have no permanent value to the [illegible] as a whole, even when they result in temporary advantage. We incline to the view that this new attitude will greatly strengthen them with the public.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

Meadow Larks.

In many localities the meadow lark is shot for game. From the farmer's point of view this is a mistake since its value as an insect eater is far greater than any sport it can furnish. The boll weevil and the alfalfa weevil are among the beetles it habitually eats, 25 per cent. of its diet being this class of food. It also eats large quantities of caterpillars, cutworms, grasshoppers and army worms.

Prove it Yourself!

I will send you absolutely FREE a

"1900" GRAVITY WASHER for 30 days FREE TRIAL

You don't pay a cent—I even pay the freight.

Everybody who has used this Washer says it is the "best ever."

Write me today personally for booklet and particulars.

A. B. MORRIS, Manager, "1900" Washer Co.
357 Yonge Street
Toronto, Canada
Factory: 79-81 Portland Street

If you have electric light ask me about our "1900" Power Washer and Wringer.

Be Good to Your Feet.

Be as kind [illegible] with your feet.

Your feet are your faithful supporters; how do you treat them?

Many fine-appearing persons are actually deformed.

An exhibit of the feet would tell a sad story of abuse.

Few feet are given a fair chance to do and be their best.

The shoe is the instrument of torture that leads to many ills.

Calluses, corns, bunions, knock-ankles, broken arches, ingrowing nails are caused.

There are instances [illegible] toes lying over others or under them, twisted, squeezed and useless.

All this is because shoes are too short, or too narrow, or too tight, twisted or too stiff or too thin-soled, etc.

TEETHING TIME TROUBLES

Baby's teething time is a period of anxiety for mothers unless baby's stomach is kept sweet and his bowels regular. No other medicine has been found so valuable during teething time as has Baby's Own Tablets. They make teething painless and by their use baby gets his teeth so easily that the mother scarcely knows they are coming. Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. F. Goldsmith, Nelson, B. C., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are a mother's greatest help during the teething period." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROUGE AND ITS USES.

(New York Sun)

The authority on [illegible] who said that a woman might be allowed to use rouge so long as she did not attract attention showed but little knowledge of the apparent purpose of such cosmetics to-day. So far as one can observe the display of rouge is in many cases the beginning and end of its use.

* * *

Lower California is to be explored by Prof. Heinrich, of Lucerne.

Household Helps.

In preparing dates for dessert wash and drain them; they will be much juicier and more palatable.

For cleaning tinware there is nothing better than dry flour applied with newspaper.

For cleaning cream pitchers that have small mouths a clean mucilage brush, used for this purpose only, will be found useful.

Eggs baked in tomato sauce make a savory dish.

An ounce of flour equals four level tablespoonfuls.

Corns Cured Quick

Applied in 5 Seconds

Sore, blistering feet from ill-fitting shoes can be cured by PUTNAM'S EXTRACTOR in 24 hours. PUTNAM'S soothes away that draw, the pain eases instantly, makes the feet feel good at once. Get a 25c bottle of "PUTNAM'S" today.

PEACE SONG.

We are longing for the dawning of the day when war shall cease,
When all over the earth's surface there shall reign the Prince of Peace;
Then tyranny and greed for gain shall suffering souls release.
Let Peace go marching on!

Let those who war would favor heed the mothers' moans and tears,
Let them think of orphaned children, whose young lives are spent in fears,
Of waste and ruin war has wrought through long and bitter years.
Let Peace go marching on!

Send home the absent warriors, their vacant places [illegible],
Return unto the foundries the guns and armor plate,
And use the men and money to build up home and state.
Let Peace go marching on!

May friendly mediation settle all disputes and strife;
May the rulers of each nation seek to save each subject's life,
And receive the adoration of each mother, child and wife.
Let Peace go marching on!

—Luana Clark [illegible] in Our Dumb Animals.

Encouraging.

Young Man—So Miss Ethel is your eldest sister. Who comes after her?

Small Brother—Nobody ain't come yet, but pa says the first fellow that comes can have her.

PILES

You will find relief in Zam-Buk! It eases the burning, stinging pain, stops bleeding and brings ease. Perseverance, with Zam-Buk, means cure. Why not prove this? All Druggists and Stores.—Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk

All Through the Night.

When looking into two blue eyes
Which gaze straight back at you,
When watching red lips curve and pout,
What else could mere man do?
Her golden hair lay on my breast,
My arm embraced her waist,
Her little hand within my grasp,
In confidence was placed,
And I, fresh from the teacher's art
In tango and maxixe,
Tred all the very latest steps
With skill the tyro seeks.
I lame ducked first with whirl and dip,
Then when I saw a tear
Upon my darling's cheek I changed
And waltzed the little dear.
The clock [illegible] the clock struck two,
My strength was almost spent,
Still through the mazes of the dance
Unflinchingly I went,
Until, at last, into her face
I took a [illegible] peep
And found, oh, joy, my little babe
At last had gone to sleep.

—New York Sun.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff

A Person to Be Avoided.

"Palanquin is certainly a man to avoid. People have told me a great many stories about him which are not edifying."

"Really? You do well to tell me, for I need not now give him back the money he loaned me."—Paris Figaro.

Free Lots At Lakeside

To advertise this Montreal Summer Resort in the heart of the fish and game section of the Laurentian Mountains, we are giving away absolutely free a limited number of 25 x 100 lots, without taxes. To secure this lot all that is necessary is the small fee for the transfer of the title of deed to you and solve the following puzzle. All lots are guaranteed high and dry. Fill in the missing letters.

L-K-S-D- A L-U-E-TI-N M-U-TA-N R-S-R
A F-W H-U-S O- C.P.R. F-O- M-N-R-A-
SEND REPLY TO DEPT. C. P. O. BOX 345, MONTREAL.

Apple Charlotte.

The literature of the kitchen sometimes sheds a light on the traits of historical personages. For example, it is not uninteresting to read in a book of recollections of the origin of that rather agreeable dish of bread-crumbs, fruit and spices known as "apple charlotte." It appears that the thrifty wife of George III. invented the pudding in order to use up the weekly palace crusts.

Iceland Brides.

In Iceland, where various interesting and fantastic superstitions abound there is an ancient custom that every bride must invite all her friends to a dinner in her home and every article of food must be prepared by the table herself. If she succeeds in pleasing her critical guests she achieves not only praise for her own skill, but she helps along her own younger sisters, who are then assumed to be equally well instructed in the intricacies of the culinary art and consequently have their chances of marriage more than doubled.

Puts a Stop to All DISTEMPER

CURES THE SICK

And prevents others having disease no matter how exposed. Absolutely safe for all ages of horses. All good druggists and turf goods houses.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists, GOSHEN, IND.

TAKE A LOOK.

(Niagara Falls, N. Y. Gazette)

Have you ever taken the trouble to analyze your troubles—or more properly, catalog the causes of them?

As a rule people don't.

They come to regard trouble and themselves as a good deal like Daniel Webster's ideas of liberty and union—one and inseparable. And they go through life [illegible].

There is much to justify the belief that Nature intends a certain amount of disappointment for every one. The commonplace experiences of life prove that neither wealth nor rank afford immunity.

But the notion that there can be no divorce from trouble is wrong ninety-nine times out of the hundred.

Usually the worth of one's troubles are of one's own making—is at any rate of one's own permitting. The man defies the laws of Nature or common sense—or both—and pays the penalty. Or he sits supinely by adversity ties him up, with the exception of his tongue. This he works overtime to tell of his misfortunes.

The overruling Power is beneficient. Man is meant to be healthy, prosperous and happy. But in the sweat of his brow he must make not merely his living, but his life.

SPECIALIZE.

(St. Thomas Journal.)

The most successful worker is he who singles out from the vast number of possible employments some specialty and sticks to it. Most men can do several things passably well. The man who knows one good thing thoroughly, knows enough; he is a master among men. The specialist does not have to look for a job. Jobs are looking for him.

We have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in our home for a number of years and use no other Liniment but MINARD'S, and we can recommend it highly for sprains, bruises, pains or tightness of the chest, soreness of the throat, headache or anything of that sort. We will not be without it one single day, for we get a new bottle before the other is all used. I can recommend it highly to anyone.

JOHN WALKFIELD.

Lavelle Islands, Lunenburg Co., N.S.

HOURS FOR HOME WORKERS.

(Brantford Expositor)

In California an eight-hour day for domestic servants has been enacted, and it has been held valid by the courts. In most countries the law now seeks to restrict the number of hours in which female labor may be employed in shops and factories. Why should not equal concern be taken for the welfare of the household help? When such concern is manifested, the "servant girl problem" will have been advanced a long step toward solution.

Barn Roofing

Fire, Lightning Rust and Storm Proof

Durable and Ornamental

Let us know the size of any roof you are thinking of covering and we will make you an interesting offer.

Metallic Roofing Co.
Limited
MANUFACTURERS
TORONTO and WINNIPEG

Unanswered.

She came to me, and in her hands she held
A fading rose; within her childish eyes
The grieving spirit, bare of all disguise,
More clearly asked than lips the question spelled:
"Why must it die?" Quick from my heart there welled
The answer old as fancy, satisfies
Of death that comes that other life may rise;
But vain each thought to heart where love has dwelled.

"Why must it die?" It seems as if its cry
Comes down the ages echoing afar,
Unanswered still. The seer above his chart
Speaks but to change his last reply;
And we who love like children are Grown weary of dark night and truth in part!

—Arthur Wallace Peach, in the New York Times.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

His Preference.

Tobacco is a filthy weed;
I touch it not. I don't indeed.
But cigarettes are my delight,
I smoke them morning, noon and night.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

EXPERTS ALREADY.

(Erie Dispatch)

Fifteen women voters recently registered from one house in Chicago which had only six occupants. Trust the ladies to get on to all the advantages of their newly acquired opportunities.

THE BOTANISTS AND FARMING.

To be sure, we can farm without being botanists, but we can not farm so well. Through the ages agricultural man has stumbled on many important facts and principles that the botanist has later on explained, thus making more scientific farming possible. Witness the enrichment of land by growing leguminous crops—a fact mentioned by Pliny, and explained by modern botany, and as a result utilized with vastly increased success by the present-day agriculturist. Witness, too, the history of our knowledge of the wheat rust, or the recently discovered hereditary symbiosis of bacteria and seed plants—phenomena seen by agriculturists as in a glass, but very, very darkly until the theoretical botanist explained them.

In spite of these instances and a hundred more, the practical man is coming increasingly to look with scorn upon the theoretical botanists. What matters it, say we? Alas, it matters much, unless we happen individually to be endowed. For botanical positions, like other things in life, are controlled by the law of supply and demand. In more than one institution that I know the tenure of position of the botanist depends upon his success in attracting students. The student, needing bread and butter, will not be attracted in lines in which he cannot earn it, and, as Mr. Dooley says: "There ye are." In several state universities the clash has already come, and in every case of which I am cognizant, the more practical botany of the agricultural department has won as against the more theoretical botany of the academic department. Even in our private institutions we commonly have practical trustees who sooner or later may see the trend of the time and act accordingly.—Prof. C. Cowles in Science.

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Reply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—SIXTEEN ACRES GARDEN and fruit farm. Box 72, St. George, Ont.

EXECUTOR'S SALE OF STOCK AND Grain Farm in Oxford County; [illegible] acres, clay, brick house; basement barns 36 x 48; cement silo and hog pens; near towns, villages, depots, schools, churches, creameries, condensers (Borden's); hydro power, telephone and rural mail installed. Write for printed description, and price. J. J. McNally, Otterville, Ont. R.R. No. 1.

DOES $1.50 WHEAT MAKE SASKATCHEWAN farm lands look good to you? If so, inquire about our limited number of improved farms acquired from loan companies at prices away below their actual value, money loaned on improved farms, first mortgage security, good rates of interest; references, Quebec Bank. J. W. Cadwell & Co., Box 130, Saskatchewan.

IMPROVED HALF-SECTION IN South Central Alberta. Over half under plow, most of balance tillable, good frame house, other buildings, fenced and cross fenced, splendid well and abundance of spring water. Only part cash necessary. H. Schwartz, 30 Clemmer, Dayton, Ohio.

FARMS FOR SALE—WE HAVE SEVERAL quarters, half, and full sections, of good farm land, close up to Railway Stations, in the Vermilion-Mannville District, in Central Alberta; one dollar per acre, cash required; interest only November first next, balance on easy terms 6 per cent; best district in Alberta for mixed grain and stock raising. Wilder Smith & Phelps, 11 St. Sacrament Street, Montreal, Que.

FOR SALE—204 ACRES, 9-ROOM house, other buildings, fruit and some timber; 4 miles of station. Price $[illegible]; $[illegible] cash. Two farms adjoining; [illegible] acres, with buildings, fine land, nicely located; 4 to 5 miles of station, few minutes walk of Canning Factory and Store. Price for both $[illegible]; $[illegible] cash. Fine climate, mild, short winters. Catalogue free. J. R. McGonigal & Son, Dover, Del.

MISCELLANEOUS.

STRAWBERRIES, 30 varieties; Raspberries, 15 varieties; Seed Potatoes, 10 varieties. Free Catalogue.
THE LAKEVIEW FRUIT FARM
H. L. McConnell & Son, Port Burwell, Ont.

SEED CORN FOR SALE

For No. 1 Seed Corn of many varieties matured and cured for seed purposes on cob or shelled. Apply to EDWARD P. TELLIER, St. Joachim, Ont.

KITCHEN SINKS

They Are Low Yet Because They Had to Be Low Originally.

In a recent issue of the Survey the question why kitchen sinks have been made so low was discussed. No one seemed able to explain. Finally a certain maker discovered that the original sinks were made when the washing of dishes and other sink work was done in wooden tubs with high sides. Such a tub when used in a high sink came up too far, so the sink was made low. Furthermore, as running water and fixed faucets had not long been made, the tub had to be lifted out of the sink and the lower the sink the lighter the lift.

Through improvements in faucets, dishpans and other accessories of kitchen sinks have been made no one has seemed to realize that the sink could be improved by raising. So women [illegible] and are compelled to endure discomfort when doing their ordinary household work.

"There may be a certain percentage of inconvenience to be reached before the human mind grasps the fact that something must be altered," remarks the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"The wise inventor attains a reputation for brilliancy by making his invention before the need becomes obvious to others."

A WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO WOMEN

If you are troubled with weak, tired feelings, headache, backache, bearing down sensations, bladder weakness, constipation, catarrhal conditions, pain in the sides regularly or irregularly, bloating or unnatural enlargements, sense of falling or misplacement of internal organs, nervousness, desire to cry, palpitation, hot flashes, dark rings under the eyes, or a loss of interest in life, I invite you to write and ask for my simple method of home treatment with ten days' trial entirely free and postpaid, also references to Canadian ladies who gladly tell how they have regained health, strength, and happiness by this method. Write to-day. Address: Mrs. M. Summers, Box 8, Windsor, Ont.

On the Trees of Belgium

About 800,000 starving Belgians have taken refuge in Holland, four times as many have come to England, and a number equal to one-quarter the entire population of Holland. If these poor people could have fled to families their sufferings would be less. But this is not the case. A correspondent of The London Globe writes of seeing the refugees standing gazing at trees on the roadside. When he went near he found that on the tree slips of paper were nailed, which read as follows: "Pierre—— your wife passed this way; she will wait for you at Rosendaal"; a mile farther on another tree. So the refugees wander of their loved ones. This writer saw a father carrying an infant and leading two children, all crying, and hurrying from tree to tree in hopes of good news.

DISFIGURING ECZEMA ITCHED AWFULLY

Rash in Patches. Came on Like Blisters. Could Hardly Sleep or Keep from Scratching. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Germania, O.—"My eczema broke out with a rash just in patches about an inch long. It came out like little blisters with water in them and got a little larger and then they broke and the water-like mass ran out. The eczema was red and like a running sore, then formed a thick scab. It caused disfigurement for the time being. The sores itched awfully and even pained down to my throat. I could hardly sleep or keep from scratching them. When the scab came off it left a scar.

"I used some salve but it didn't do much good. Then two more sores broke out in the same way and I at once started to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I applied the Ointment to the sores and washed them with the Cuticura Soap and hot water. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me in two weeks without leaving any disfigurement." (Signed) Miss Tena Grab, Jan. 2, '14.

Samples Free by Mail

Retain your good looks, keep your skin clear, scalp clean and free from dandruff, and hands soft and white. Cuticura Soap, with an occasional use of Cuticura Ointment, will promote and maintain these coveted conditions in most cases when all else fails. Besides in purity, delicacy, medication, convenience and economy, they meet with the approval of the most discriminating. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A."

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, MARCH 18, 1915

ONTARIO LIQUOR LICENSES.

Provincial Secretary Hanna has just issued a report as to the operation of the Liquor License Acts of Ontario for the year 1914. From it we learn that the total number of tavern and shop licenses for the license year ending 30th April, 1914, has been reduced by 99, as compared with the previous year, and for the current license year of 1914-1915, up to date, there have been issued only 1,281 tavern and 212 shop licenses, which represent a further reduction of 95. The total amount paid to the municipalities for the license year 1913-14 was $331,467.55. The revenue the Province received for retail licenses, transfers and fines amounted to $473,963.84, and in local option municipalities the fines collected amounted to $14,874. The expenditure of the Government for the year amounted to $39,956.45. The number of prisoners committed for drunkenness during the year shows an increase of 485 over the previous year. The average yearly commitments for 1876 to 1880 inclusive was 3,812; from 1906 to 1910, 4,974. In 1914 the Province received in all from license branches the sum of $860,210.14.

THE BRITISH MOTHER.

Canadians may not be fully cognizant of all that is going on in the old country in connection with the social uplift of the people. We imagine that we are quite progressive here. But according to Mrs. Mabel Potter Daggett, who writes in the March number of the Pictorial Review, we have much to learn along that line. She tells what the British Government is doing to improve conditions in the birth and raising of babies. A group of medical men went out after the statistics. Thirty per cent. of the deaths of children under one year of age, they reported, were to be traced to that one cause of maternal exhaustion. Then the way to begin with the babies was to begin with the mothers. And the Government took immediate steps, as was announced in the House of Parliament, "for the improvement of the conditions of pregnancy and childbirth and infant rearing throughout the whole country."

The thirty shillings bonus insures that there shall always be money in the house at the critical juncture to pay for some sort of care for mother and child, to be paid on the birth of a baby to every family with an income of less than one hundred and sixty pounds a year. This is but one feature of the great campaign inaugurated for the conservation of the child. It is looked upon by the Englishwomen of the working classes as a great luxury to be able to "lie up in bed" for a week, while another woman comes in to attend to your household and wait on you while you fold your hands and get strong. And if you shouldn't get strong, the Government may not want you so much as even to wash your dishes. There is a pregnancy sickness benefit, by which you may receive, if your doctor certifies to your need for it, a sum of seven shillings and sixpence per week for a period of twenty-six weeks, while you are not supposed to lift a finger to any household labor. That's the way the new maternity is appreciated. And the birth of a baby now in England is important enough that the Government takes note of it. By the Notification of Births Act, the new arrival must be reported within thirty-six hours at the health department of your borough. About a week later a "Lady Health Visitor" is sent by the department to inquire if you're all right and how you're getting on. Out of her hand-bag she passes you a pamphlet of instructions on "How to Bring Up a Baby," the first paragraph of which says: "Keep your own health good. The health of your baby depends on your own." She tells you that any time you want her advice, about the baby, she'll be glad to come, but that really to learn how, you should go to the School for Mothers. And she directs you to the nearest one.

What the Schools for Mothers are primarily aiming at is, of course, the conservation of the child. They brought to the Chancellor of the Exchequer the mortality statistics for the year 1914, and he found that these had declined from a former average of one hundred and fifty-five deaths per thousand babies born, to the much lower average of ninety per thousand. The way to keep babies alive and rising in weight, it is clear, is to get families rising in the standard of living. The housewifery that helps can't come too early. Brides' classes, to which the bridegrooms are also invited, are being organized in some of the schools, and the Swansea school in Wales has summoned school girls of from twelve to fourteen to a class for apprentice mothers." When one wo[illegible] registered at "The Welcome" in [illegible] she was listed on the books in [illegible] A—Family in poverty," by [illegible] is indicated that they were [illegible] the necessaries for physical [illegible]. In 1913 they wrote her on [illegible] books of Class A into "Class B—[illegible]mally above poverty line." Babies belonging to Class A, it is interesting to note, average in weight at twelve months seventeen pounds fifteen and one-half ounces as compared with eighteen pounds thirteen and three-quarters ounces recorded as the average for babies from families of Class B. Bobbie Gordon last summer tipped the scales at twenty-two pounds, which was five pounds more than any previous Gordon one-year-old. That's how skilled motherhood counts. Now what may not the baby weigh when father, too, gets all the training that's coming to him?

The whole field of social betterment is lying almost fallow in this province. Some great upheaval is needed to make our legislators grasp the necessity for advancement in the moral and material well-being of the people. If the old country can legislate for the working people in this way, there is no reason why Canada or Ontario cannot do as well.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Germany is in "splendid isolation."

Spain is also walking up to the bread line.

The Sultan must now be beginning to feel his neck.

The Sultan must be a pretty sick man by this time.

The Young Turk is not now so sure about the Kaiser.

The Declaration of London is not law. It is merely an opinion.

Paper soled boots were hardly the style to wear in the trenches.

Britain might as well call it a blockade if that will stop the criticism.

President Wilson is quite right to see that the Ship of State keeps out of the war zone.

President Wilson should see that the German Embassy was not mixed up in those passport frauds.

Germany has lost seven submarines since the paper blockade was begun. Rather costly for the Kaiser.

With false passports and false bills of lading, the United States are hardly in a position to protest very loudly.

Premier Asquith says Great Britain is "quite prepared to submit to the arbitration of neutral opinion." This leaves the door open for negotiation.

With the Germans bombarding the cathedral at Rheims and Anarchists bombarding St. Patrick's in New York, one could imagine that this was a religious war.

Complaint is being made that while Italians are starving in Montreal, Austrian reservists are being fed and pampered by the Government in comfortable concentration camps.

The acquittal of the men charged with shooting the Buffalo duck hunters won't make it any the less necessary to be careful with the use of firearms even when they may be used in a legal way.

Cecil Chesterton, who came to the States to talk up the British side of the war, has returned home. His mission was a mistake and a failure. The British Embassy at Washington gave him the cold shoulder.

With the completion of the scheme of defences at the [Panama] canal, it is probable that the waterway will be more secure than the Dardanelles, and perhaps as impregnable as Heligoland, with which the British fleet, with all its big guns, dares not engage.—Washington Post.

The British fleet has no reason to engage Heligoland, for the simple reason that it would be useless unless a British fleet was kept perpetually at its base.

"Hand over to, say, 2,000,000 people the sum of $600,000,000 in one year, and that people is bound to be prosperous. Well, that is the amount which the people of the Northwest will have this fall—if weather conditions prove favorable—of course, approximately, you know." This is the conviction of Mr. A. C. Shaw, the C. P. R. general passenger agent in the west, with headquarters in Winnipeg and a jurisdiction which extends from Port Arthur to Field, in British Columbia. This statement was made to the Montreal Gazette. Are we down-hearted? No!

A Deceived Man.

Bix—That lawyer you recommended is not a man of his word. Dix—Why not? Bix—He told me I could talk freely to him and look at the bill he's sent me!—Spokane Spokesman Review.

The Cause of Dyspepsia.

The Symptoms and The Cure.

THE CAUSE.

Too rapid eating, eating too much, and too often, improperly chewing the food, eating too much stimulating food, and indulging in improper diet generally.

THE SYMPTOMS.

Variable appetite, rising and souring of food, heartburn, wind in the stomach, a feeling of weight in the stomach, in fact a feeling that your stomach has gone all wrong and that the food you eat does not seem to agree with you.

THE CURE.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Mrs. E. Williamson, Wheeler, Ont., writes: "I have been a sufferer for years from dyspepsia, and could scarcely eat anything. I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, and I am entirely cured. I have not been troubled since I took it, and that is two years ago. I can now eat anything I wish."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A Public Idol

And then her innate respect for another's individuality, her shrinking from what might prove to be the tyranny of a dying wish interposed, and she checked herself. "No, don't promise; I have no right—no one has any right. I can only tell you my feeling—my deep sense that there is hope—that there is nothing against you. Men—good men—are so often over-timid when courage would be best. Be bold, Eustace; respect your own love; do not be too proud to show it—to offer it!"

Her voice died away into silence, only Eustace still felt the caressing touch of the thin fingers clasped around his. It seemed to him as if the life still left in her were one pure flame of love, undimmed by any thought of self, undisturbed by any breath of pain. Oh, this victory of the spirit over the flesh, of soul over body, which humanity achieves and renews from day to day and from age to age, in all those nobler and finer personalities upon whom the moral life of the world depends! How it burns its testimony into the heart of the spectator! How it makes him thrill with the apprehension which lies at the root of all religion—the apprehension of an ideal order—the divine suspicion

"That we are greater than we know!" How it impresses itself upon us as the only miracle which will bear our leaning upon, and stand the strain of human questioning! It was borne in upon Eustace, as he sat bowed beside his dying sister, that through this fragile body and this failing breath the Eternal Mind was speaking, and that in Marie's love the Eternal Love was taking voice. He said so to her brokenly, and her sweet eyes smiled back upon him a divine answer of peace and faith.

Then she called faintly, "Paul!" The distant figure came back; and she laid her head upon her husband's breast, while Eustace was gently drawn away by the nurse. Presently, he found himself mechanically taking food and mechanically listening to the low-voiced talk of the kindly white-capped woman who was attending to him. Every fact, every impression, was misery—these details so unexpected, so irrevocable, so charged with terrible meaning, which the nurse was pouring out upon him—that presence in the neighboring room of which his every nerve was conscious—and in front of him, like a frowning barrier shutting off the view of the future, the advancing horror of death! Yesterday, at the same time, he had been walking along the sandy Surrey roads, delighting in the last autumn harmonies of color, and conscious of the dawn of a period of rest after a period of conflict, of the growth within him of a temper of quiet and rational resignation of the conditions of life and of his own individual lot, over the development of which the mere fact of his sister's existence had exercised a strong and steadying influence. Life, he had persuaded himself, was for him more than tolerable, even without love and marriage. The world of thought was warm and hospitable to him; he moved at ease within its [illegible] familiar limits; and in the world of personal relations, one heart was safely his, the sympathy and trust and tenderness of one human soul would never fail him at his need. And now this last tender bond was to be broken with a rough, incredible suddenness. The woman he loved with passion would never be his; for not even now, fresh from contact with his sister's dying hope, could he raise himself to any flattering vision of the future; and the woman he loved, with that intimate tenacity of affection which is the poetry of kinship, was to be taken from him by this cruel wastefulness of premature death. Could any man be more alone than he would be? And then suddenly a consciousness fell upon him which made him ashamed. In the neighboring room his ear was caught now and then by an almost imperceptible murmur of voices. What was his loss, his agony, compared to theirs?

When he softly returned into the room he found Marie lying as though asleep upon her husband's arm. It seemed to him that since he had left her there had been a change. The face was more drawn, the look of exhaustion more defined. Paul sat beside her, his eyes riveted upon her. He scarcely seemed to notice his brother-in-law's entrance; it was as though he were rapidly losing consciousness of every fact but one; and never had Kendal seen any countenance so grief-stricken, so pinched with longing. But Marie heard the familiar step. She made a faint movement with her hand toward him, and he resumed his old place, his head bowed upon the bed. And so they sat through the morning, hardly moving, interchanging at long intervals a few words—those sad sacred words which well from us in the supreme moments of existence—words which, in the case of such natures as Marie de Chateauvieux, represent the intimate truths and fundamental ideas of the life that has gone before. There was nothing to hide, nothing to regret. A few kindly messages, a few womanly commissions, and every now and then a few words to her husband, as simple as the rest, but pregnant with the deepest thoughts and touching the vastest problems of humanity—this was all. Marie was dying as she had lived—bravely, tenderly, simply.

Presently they roused her to take some nourishment, which she swallowed with difficulty. It gave her a momentary strength. Kendal heard himself called, and looked up. She had opened the hand lying on the bed, and he saw in it a small miniature case, which she moved toward him.

"Take it," she said—oh, how faintly!—"to her. It is the only memento I can think of. She has been ill, Eustace; did I tell you? I forget. I should have gone but for this. It is too much for her—that life. It will break her down. You can save her and cherish her—you will. It seems as if I saw you together!"

Then her eyes fell and she seemed to sleep gently wandering now and then, and mentioning in her dying dream names and places which made the reality before them more and more terrible to the two hushed listeners, so different were the associations they called up. Was this white nerveless form, from which mind and breath were gently ebbing away, all that fate had grudgingly left to them, for a few more agonized moments, of the brilliant, high-bred woman who had been but yesterday the centre of an almost European network of friendships and interests! Love, loss, death—oh, how unalterable is this essential content of life, embroider it and adorn it as we may!

Kendal had been startled by her words about Isabel Bretherton. He had not heard of any illness; it could hardly be serious, for he suddenly remembered that in the newspapers he had tried to read on the journey his eye had caught the familiar advertisement of the Calliope. It must have happened while he was in Surrey. He vaguely speculated about it now and then as he sat watching through the afternoon. But nothing seemed to matter very much to him—nothing but Marie and the slow on-coming of death.

At last when the wintry light was fading, when the lamps were being lit outside, and the bustle of the street seemed to penetrate in little intermittent waves of sound into the deep quiet of the room, Marie raised herself and, with a fluttering sigh, withdrew her hand softly from her brother, and laid her arm round her husband's neck. He stooped to her kissed the sweet lips and the face on which the lines of middle age had hardly settled caught a wild alarm from her utter silence, called the nurse and Kendal, and all was over.

CHAPTER IX.

The morning of Marie's funeral was sunny but bitterly cold; it was one of those days when autumn finally passes into winter, and the last memory of the summer warmth vanishes from the air. It had been the saddest, dreariest laying to rest. The widowed sister, of whom Marie had spoken in her last hours, had been unable to come, and the two men had gone through it all alone, helped only by the tearful, impulsive sympathy and the practical energy of the maid who had been with Marie ever since her marriage, and was as yet hardly capable of realizing her mistress' death.

It was she who, while they were away, had done her best to throw a little air of comfort over the forsaken salon. She had kindled the fire, watered the plants, and thrown open the windows to the sunshine, finding in her toil and movement some little relief from her own heartache and oppression. When Paul came back, and with numb, trembling fingers had stripped himself of his scarf and his great coat, he stepped over the threshold into the salon and it seemed to him as though the sunlight and the open windows and the crackling blaze of the fire dealt him a sudden blow. He walked up to the windows, and, shuddering, drew them down and closed the blinds, Felicie watching him anxiously from the landing through the half open door. Then he had thrown himself into a chair; and Kendal, coming softly upstairs after him, had gently closed the door from the outside, said a kind word to Felicie, and himself slipped noiselessly down again and out into the Champs Elysees. There he had paced up and down for an hour or more under the trees, from which a few frosty leaves were still hanging in the December air.

He himself had been so stunned and bewildered by the loss which had fallen upon him that, when he found himself alone and out of doors again, he was for a long while scarcely able to think consecutively about it. He walked along conscious for some time of nothing but a sort of dumb physical congeniality in the sunshine, in the clear blue and white of the sky, in the cheerful distinctness and sharpness of every outline. And then, little by little, the crushed grief reasserted itself, and numbed senses woke into painful life, and he fell into broken musings on the past, or into a blurred wonder over the precarious tenure by which men hold those good things whereon so long as they are still their own, they are so quick to rear an edifice of optimistic philosophy. A week before, his sister's affection had been to him the one sufficient screen between his own consciousness and the desolate threatening immensities of thought and of existence. The screen had fallen, and the darkness seemed to be rushing in upon him. And still, life had to be lived, work was to be gone through, duties to be faced. How is it done? he kept vaguely wondering. How is it that men live on to old age and see bond after bond broken, and possession after possession swept away, and still find the years tolerable and the sun pleasant, still cherish in themselves that inexhaustible faith in an ideal something which supplies from century to century the invincible motor power of the race?

Presently by virtue of long critical and philosophical habit his mind brought itself to bear more and more steadily upon his own position; he stepped back, as it were, from himself and became his own spectator. The introspective temper was not common with him; his mind was naturally turned outward—toward other people, toward books, toward intellectual interests. But self-study had had its charm for him of late, and, amongst other things, it was now plain to him that up to the moment of his first meeting with Isabel Bretherton his life had been mostly that of an onlooker, a bystander. Society, old and new, men and women of the past and of the present, the speculative achievements of other times and of his own—these had constituted a sort of vast drama before his eyes, which he had watched and studied with an ever-living curiosity. But his interest in his particular role had been comparatively weak, and in analyzing other individualities he had run some risk of losing his own.

Then love came by, and the half-dormant personality within him had been seized upon and roused, little by little, into a glowing, although a repressed and hidden, energy. He had learned in his own person what it means to crave, to thirst, to wait. And now, grief had followed and had plunged him more closely than ever to his special little part in the human spectacle. The old lethargy, the old placidity of mood, were gone. He had loved, and lost, and despaired. Beside these great experiences how trivial and evanescent seemed all the interests of the life that went before them! He looked back over his intercourse with Isabel Bretherton, and the points upon which it had turned seemed so remote from him, so insignificant, that for the moment he could hardly realize them. The artistic and aesthetic questions which had seemed to him so vital six months before had faded almost out of view in the fierce neighborhood of sorrow and passion. His first relation to her had been that of one who knows to one who is ignorant; but that puny link had snapped, and he was going to meet her now, fresh from the presence of [illegible], loving her as a man loves a woman, and claiming from her nothing but pity for his grief, balm for his wound, the answer of human tenderness to human need.

[illegible] and [illegible] that she could be still in ignorance of his loss and hers! In the early morning after Marie's death, when he woke up from a few heavy hours of sleep his mind had been full of her. How was the news to be broken to her? He himself did not feel that he could leave his brother-in-law. There was a strong regard and sympathy between them; and his presence in the house of mourning would undoubtedly be useful to Paul for a little; besides, there were Marie's words: "Will you stay with him a few days after—?"—which were binding on him. He must write, then; but it was only to be hoped that no newspaper would bring her the news before his letter could reach.

However, as the day wore on, Paul came noiselessly out of the quiet room where the white shrouded form seemed still to spread a tender presence round it, and said to Eustace with dry, piteous lips:

"I have remembered Miss Bretherton; you must go to her to-morrow, after—the funeral."

"I can't bear the thought of leaving you," said Kendal, laying a brotherly hand on his shoulder. "Let me write today."

Paul shook his head. "She has been ill. Any way it will be a great shock but if you go it will be better."

Kendal resisted a little more, but it seemed as if Marie's motherly carefulness over the bright creature who had charmed her had passed into Paul. He was saying what Marie would have said, taking thought as she would have taken it for one she loved, and it was settled as he wished.

When his long pacing in the Champs Elysees was over Kendal went back to find Paul busy with his wife's letters and trinkets, turning them over with a look of shivering forlornness, as though the thought of the unaccompanied lifetime to come were already closing upon him like some deadly chill in the air. Beside him lay two miniature cases open, one of them was the case which Eustace had received from his sister's hand on the afternoon before her death, and both of them contained identical portraits of Marie in her first brilliant womanhood.

"Do you remember them?" Paul said in his husky voice, pointing them out to him. "They were done when you were at college and she was twenty-three. Your mother had two taken—one for herself and one for very old Aunt Marthe. Your mother left hers when she died, and your aunt's copy of it came back to us last year. Tell Miss Bretherton its history. She will prize it. It is the best picture still."

Kendal made a sign of assent and took the case. Paul rose and stood his hands to the fire.

"To-morrow, as soon as you are gone, I shall go off to Italy. There are some little places in the south near Naples that she was very fond of. I shall stay about there for a little while. As soon as I feel I can, I shall come back to the Senate and my work—it is the only thing left me—she was so keen about it." His voice sunk into a whisper, and a long silence fell upon them. Women in moments of sorrow have the relief of tears and caresses; men's great refuge is silence; but this silence may be charged with sympathy and the comfort of a shared grief. It was so in this case.

The afternoon light was fading, and Kendal was about to rise and make some necessary preparations for the journey, when Paul detained him, looking up at him with sunken eyes which seemed to carry in them all the history of the two nights just past.

"Will you ever ask her what Marie wished?" The tone was the even and passionless tone of one who for the moment feels none of the ordinary embarrassments of intercourse; Kendal met it with the same directness.

"Some day I shall ask her, or at least I shall let her know; but it will be no use."

Paul shook his head, but whether in protest or agreement Kendal could hardly tell. Then he went back to his task of sorting the letters, and let the matter drop. It seemed as if he were scarcely capable of taking an interest in it for its own sake, but simply as a wish, a charge of Marie's.

Kendal parted from him in the evening with an aching heart, and was haunted for hours by the memory of the desolate figure returning slowly into the empty house, and by a sharp prevision of all the lonely nights and the uncomforted morrows which lay before the stricken man.

(To be continued.)

Crystal Jewelry a Novelty.

There is a novelty in jewelry so very new that it has scarcely been put upon the market, so exquisite that every woman who has seen it desires to possess a piece of it, so costly that few are able to purchase any of it, so different from anything heretofore shown that it promises to become a [illegible].

This is the rock crystal jewelry which is trimmed with pearls and diamonds. The rock crystal is cut in thin, flat forms and then etched in such a manner that it is at once a suggestion of the star sapphire and the moonstone. A mounting of platinum is then added and white diamonds only, or diamonds and pearls, as one shall choose. The completed ornament is so distinctly bride-like that it will be most popular among items for wedding gifts for the approaching season, though it is one of the rare fashions that is as suitable for the girl of 17 and the matron as for the bride.

One of the best designs in which it [illegible] is the bar brooch. This is not to be confused with the out of mode bar shirtwaist pin. The former is one of the ornaments most in vogue at present. There are, however, to be [illegible] of this rock crystal loveliness [illegible] in every jeweled thing that is at present in favor. It can be had only of the best of Fifth avenue jewelers. [illegible] this fact that, for it [illegible] to the demand of the mode for glitter, but [illegible] the woman of good taste in that it rejects every hint of garishness.

The latest in rings is so constructed that the flesh is displayed between interstices of the mounting. The mountings themselves are still of fairy workmanship, so wonderfully wrought are they.

A [illegible] bell at the Church of the Sacred Heart in Paris is tolled by electricity. A choir boy operates the mechanism.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON XII.

March 21, 1915—Jonathan and His Armor-bearer.—I Samuel 14: 1-46. Print 14: 1-13.

Commentary.—I. A bold attack (vs. 1-12.) 1. The young man that bare his armor—He was Jonathan's trusted attendant, who proved himself both brave and strong on this occasion. Let us go over to the Philistines' garrison—The Philistines had come to the very centre of Israel's country with a great army, and were encamped on the opposite side of the valley from where Saul's small force was abiding. Jonathan's suggestion to his attendant was a bold one. Told not his father—It was not in keeping with military tactics for such a movement as this to be undertaken. Saul would not be likely to approve of the project. 2. Uttermost part of Gibeah—Saul, with his six hundred men and Samuel and Ahiah, the priest, was entrenched on one of the many hills of the extreme northern part of Gibeah. Migron—The name means precipice. Six hundred men—His army that he had had was reduced to this small company. 3. Ahiah—A great grandson of Eli. He was the high priest. Wearing an ephod—The Ephod "consisted of two parts, of which one covered the back, and the other the front, that is, the breast and upper part of the body. These were clasped together on the shoulder with two large onyx stones, each having engraved on it six of the names of the tribes of Israel. It was further united by a 'curious girdle' of gold, blue, purple, scarlet, and fine twisted linen round the waist." It was worn by the high priest of Israel.

4. Between the passages—From the description of the place it is evident there was a valley leading down to the main valley from where Saul was encamped, and one leading up on the other side to where the Philistines were. Between these, in the valley were the steep rocks of hills mentioned, called Bozez (shining) and Seneh (thorn). 5. Over against Michmash—One crag was to the north in front of Michmash and the other south of it in front of Gibeah. Michmash and Gibeah were on opposite sides of a valley that extended nearly east and west about seven miles north of Jerusalem. The facts stated in verses 2-5 are thrown in as parenthetical to give details as to the conditions under which the assault about to be described was made. 6. These uncircumcised—Circumcision was a rite by which the Israelites were set apart as God's peculiar people. The Philistines were designated as uncircumcised, since they were not the Lord's people. By this term the Israelites expressed their abhorrence of the Philistines. It may be that the Lord will work for us—This expression, did not imply a doubt; it signifies simply that the object he aimed at was not in his own power, but it depended upon God, and that he expected success neither from his own strength nor his own merit.—L. P. & B. To save by many or by few—The expression just before this indicates that Jonathan believed in God's ability to give success and that His power might be exercised on this occasion. He expressed his faith clearly. He had a conviction that God would give the victory that moved him to go forward trusting in him. 7. I am with thee—Jonathan's armor bearer had confidence in his master and also in God. He did not hesitate to go with him, nor did he attempt to turn him from his purpose.

8. We will discover ourselves unto them—They would go to the garrison of the Philistines and would make themselves known to them. 9. If they say thus unto us—Jonathan had no doubt prayed before for guidance, and now he proposed a test by which it would be clearly indicated what course he should pursue in the matter. 10. The Lord hath delivered them into our hand—This statement shows how implicitly Jonathan depended upon the Lord's direction and aid. A sign unto us—Our action will depend upon the words received from the Philistines. They will be the unconscious bearers of a message from God. 11. The Hebrews come forth—The Philistines understood the weakness of Israel at that time, and believed they were hiding in the numerous caverns of the locality. They could not have known for what purpose Jonathan and his armor-bearer had come forth. 12. Answered—The two had not addressed the Philistines, but their presence called for words from them. Come up to us—With this invitation came the knowledge of what Jonathan and his armor-bearer should do and what the Lord would do for them. We will show you a thing—These words may have been spoken in contempt or derision. Dr. Clarke thinks the Philistines desired to show them the strength of their defences.

II. A great victory (vs. 13-23). 13. Climbed up—Immediately to the east of the village of Michmash exists a natural fortress, still called the fort by the peasantry. It is a ridge rising in three rounded knolls above a perpendicular crag, ending in a narrow tongue to the east with cliffs below.—Conder. An advance guard of the Philistines may have held this position, and this crag may have been the one Jonathan and his armor-bearer ascended. They fell before Jonathan—Twenty men fell before Jonathan and his armor-bearer in a space equal to one-half of a square containing an acre. 14, 15. Great fear fell upon the Philistines because of this successful attack and the terror was increased by the quaking of the earth. 16-23. Saul was within sight of the camp of the Philistines and saw what was being done there. He caused his camp to be searched to determine who of his men were missing. His little army joined in the battle, and those who were hiding in Ephraim came out also to help their brethren. There were Hebrews in the camp of the Philistines who probably were slaves. These turned against their masters and the victory was great.

III. Saul's unwise demand (vs. 24-46). Saul was much moved by the victory which was being gained over the Philistines, and rashly decreed that no man should taste food that day. He did not consider that his men would be better fitted to pursue the enemy if they should be strengthened by taking food. There was woodland then in that country and many wild bees. Honey was produced in large quantities. Jonathan was ignorant of his father's decree and ate some honey. It was learned later what Jonathan had done and Saul was determined to have him slain in accordance with his decree, but the people interfered and saved Jonathan from death.

As The Result

Of a Neglected Cold He Contracted

SEVERE BRONCHIAL TROUBLE.

[illegible] Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup [illegible]

[illegible] I neglected to attend to [illegible]. However, it [illegible] cold, [illegible] improvement, I began to get alarmed, and went to my local doctor who informed me that I had severe bronchial trouble as a result of neglecting my cold. He prescribed some medicine for me which I took for about two weeks without any sign of improvement. I was getting [illegible] discouraged by then, but [illegible] a friend happened to be in to [illegible] I was relating my trouble, and he advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, saying that he had obtained good results from its use in a similar case. I took his advice and [illegible] several bottles from my druggist. After taking it according to directions for about two days, I noticed a [illegible] improvement, and from that on I began to get better, and in ten days I was in my usual health. I can [illegible] and can highly recommend it to [illegible]. I shall always [illegible] whenever the [illegible]."

[illegible] Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup [illegible] druggist or dealer. Price, 25c and 50c. The genuine is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Questions—What was the condition of the Israelites in their relation to Philistines at this time? Where were the two armies? What did Jonathan propose to his armor-bearer that they should do? What test did Jonathan make to learn what he should do? Describe the victory gained by Israel over the Philistines. What mistake did Saul make? How was his unwise purpose changed?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—Inspired leadership.

I. Revealed God's power to Israel.

II. Revealed Saul's true character.

I. Revealed God's power to Israel. This lesson shows what great results may attend individual effort. In Israel's extremity, under a most noble inspiration, help came through the courageous enterprise of Jonathan, who with his body-guard opened a campaign which overcame the enemies of Israel. The approach to the Philistine garrison would have been pronounced impossible by a less decisive and less courageous mind. Jonathan believed that it was the height of wisdom to give God the opportunity to reveal His mighty arm. His thought was of the promises and purposes of God concerning Israel. It was not his own project that was to be carried out, but the advancement of God's cause. There was a profoundly religious spirit controlling the impulse which led Jonathan to act. He believed that God's help was not dependent on the extent or the degree of the means by which it is realized, and that His power is absolute. The inspiration of faith vindicated itself and the noble self-devotion that had plunged into this otherwise desperate enterprise, led to a triumph more speedy and complete than even Jonathan may have contemplated. He was the hero of the scene. Saul had no thought of making an attack on the Philistines at that time. His recent transgression was now bearing some bitter fruit in his comparative inactivity and helplessness. When the Israelites, who had hidden in caves, saw that the army of the Philistines had met disaster, they helped on the victory. The faith of Jonathan had a glorious reward.

II. Revealed Saul's true character. It was a tacit understanding with Saul on the settlement of the kingdom that he might rely on the guidance of God. Samuel's exhortations and instructions emphasized the same, but Saul began to disregard God's will in his public acts and was now beginning to reap the penalty. Fear of the threatening dangers had seized on his heart; then impatience prevented him from waiting the time appointed by Samuel for sacrifice; then doubt of the trustworthiness of the divine promise came in. All this drove Saul to the purpose of helping himself, which dissipated more and more his trust in God. It was the root of unbelief from which all this sprang. Here began the unsteadiness and passionate character of Saul's inner life. He was indeed fulfilling Samuel's predictions. In accordance with his pretext that he must seek the Lord's face before going to battle, Saul sought to set forth proofs of his piety and godliness, such as calling for the ark of God, showing a great zeal against those who transgressed the law, in the building of an altar to the Lord, in asking God concerning further military undertakings and in swearing by the Lord to punish the concealed sin of the people in asking him to decide where the sin was. Saul censured and checked the people, but not himself. It was his selfish motive that determined such conduct. He appeared more deeply affected by the neglect of some outward and formal duty than by the indulgence within himself of a wrong and impious mind. In the exercise of that self-will he imposed on the people an obligation, with a penalty attached, a most presumptuous thing when no direct command of God would be infringed if the people failed to conform to his edict. If anything could have brought Saul to a sense of his error, it would have been the discovery that his rash decree and oath had imperiled his own son, and made him consider Jonathan's case on its merits regardless of his own reputation. The power put upon Jonathan in his victory against the Philistines was evident to all but the obstinate king [illegible]. A temporary revolution saved Jonathan. The people, [illegible] their king, rescued the self-devoted Jonathan. What Saul deemed a capital offense, reason and justice declared an unconscious transgression of an unwise decree. The remonstrance of the people was just, heroic, resolute, successful. T. R. A.

Making Sure of Her Sleep.

"I knew you were coming tonight to call on my sister," said little Jimmy.

"How did you know?" inquired Mr. Nervous.

"Because she's been asleep all the afternoon."

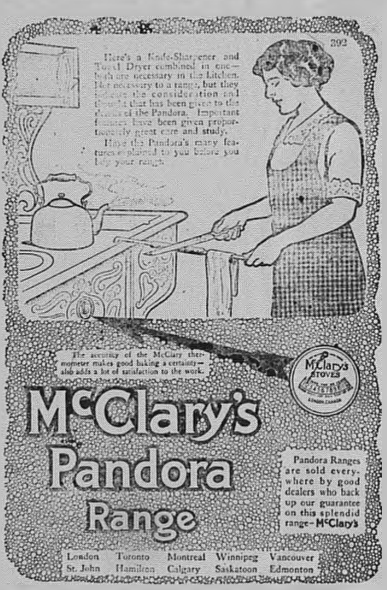
CANADIAN BANK
OF COMMERCE
HAS INSTALLED
SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.
LODGE YOUR
Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies
or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

Brooms, Brushes and Twines, Etc

Mr. C. Patrick has on hand a large quantity of Brooms, Brushes, Baskets, Twines, and etc. in fact all the stock carried at the Walkerton Broom Works which will be sold at a sacrifice in order to get it out of the house, as he is anxious to get the house in shape for to rent as soon as possible. Ring up the Telescope at any time for any of these lines.

C. PATRICK
Telescope Office Walkerton



392
Here's a Knife-Sharpener and Towel Dryer combined in one—both are necessary in the kitchen. Not necessary to a range, but they indicate the consideration and thought that has been given to the details of the Pandora. Important features have been given proportionately great care and study.

Have the Pandora's many features explained to you before you buy your range.

The accuracy of the McClary thermometer makes good baking a certainty—also adds a lot of satisfaction to the work.

McClary's Pandora Range

Pandora Ranges are sold everywhere by good dealers who back up our guarantee on this splendid range—McClary's

London Toronto Montreal Winnipeg Vancouver
St. John Hamilton Calgary Saskatoon Edmonton

[illegible]

"I would urge [illegible] the people of Great Britain [illegible]"
HON. [illegible] Minister of Agriculture.

The Empire Needs Many Foods

In the past Great Britain has imported [illegible] of these staple foods from Russia, France, Belgium, Germany and [illegible] as shown by the following:—

Average Imports
Years 1910-1913
Wheat [illegible] bush.
Oats [illegible]
Barley [illegible]
Corn [illegible]
Peas [illegible]
Beans [illegible]
Potatoes [illegible]
[illegible]

By "possible" is meant the actual results which have been obtained by our Experimental Farms and by many farmers. These "possibles" have been obtained under [illegible] cultivation [illegible] not altogether possible on the average farm, yet they suggest that great possibilities of increased production. The greater care in the selection of seed, more thorough cultivation, fertilization, better drainage, the average would be raised by at least [illegible]. That in itself would add at least $150,000,000 to the annual income of Canada from the farms. It would be a great service to the Empire, and this is the year in which to do it.

Increase Your Live Stock

[illegible] Canada's most valuable asset. The one [illegible] farming is that there will soon be [illegible] your breeding stock. Plan [illegible] Europe and the United States, as well as Canada [illegible] for beef, mutton, and bacon in the very [illegible] now. Remember that live stock is [illegible] agriculture. You are farming, not speculating.

For [illegible] write to Canadian Department of Agriculture,
Ottawa, Canada
115

WALKERTON TELESCOPE
Published every Thursday morning at Walkerton, Ont.
Subscription—$1.00 per year in advance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.
THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY, Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

GROWING IMPORTANCE OF FINANCE

One of the most notable developments of this session has been the unusual attention given to the question of finance and the unfavorable financial statement presented by the Government. One of the effects of the war, in all departments of life, has been a more careful scrutiny of expenditures and a greater determination towards economy

It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that the Ontario Government quite apart from political considerations, should be in a most unpopular position to-day owing to their extravagance. If there had been no war and if times had been good the day of reckoning would have been deferred but as it is that day has now arrived for the Ontario Government and already it is feeling the bad effects arising from its unfavorable financial statement.

Mr. Rowell, among his other gifts is a veritable genius for picking out the salient and important points in a financial statement, and his review of the Government's position, on the occasion of the Budget Debate, was one of the most effective and [illegible] reviews which the Ontario Government has received for a long time.

Mr. Rowell pointed out that [illegible] 1905 [illegible] debt of the Province was only $11,000,000 it is now $40,000,000, an increase of 245 per cent under Conservative [illegible] comparing the years 1910 and 1914, both under the Conservative Government, the increase in the public debt has been 83 per cent.

The Government this year admits a deficit on the year's business of $700,000 although their contributions to the war during the same period were less than $300,000, but Mr. Rowell showed that if the accounts had been properly presented they would show that the actual deficit is $4,200,000.

If the Government had exercised even reasonable care in the public expenditure, the public debt would not have been so increased, the present deficit would not have occurred and Ontario would have been able to make generous gifts to Great Britain and the Allies without having to levy a special direct tax of one mill on the dollar on all taxable property in Ontario.

In other words—it is the extravagance of the Ontario Government which has led to the necessity of the imposition of this tax.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE PALACE OF FOLLY

"It would be better to scrap the whole building even now," said Mr. Rowell in the Legislature this week. "We would be ahead in the long run. The maintenance cost of this monument of folly will be enormous."

Cost estimated by Government 1912, $400,000.
Already spent, $723,000.
Additional amount voted this week (in spite of Liberal protest,) $200,000
Minimum total cost, $923,000.

In other words a building which only three years ago the Government said would cost $400,000 is already costing nearly $1,000,000 and may go over that figure. No wonder the Government has to levy a special tax on the people.

The Liberals in the House this week moved that the most recent vote for the Government House, $200,000 be struck out altogether.

The Government voted down the motion.

Mr. Rowell showed that the Government, in spending such an enormous amount foolishly on Government house had not only acted unwisely, but had broken the law. Mr. Rowell read a statute of 1897, declaring that from the proceeds of the sale of old Government house the new house shall be built and maintained. As a matter of fact more money than that had been spent on the building alone and the cost of maintenance had not been provided from this source. After they had already broken the law, the Government in 1913 unnoticed by anyone, unsuspected by anyone, slipped in a clause in the Statute Revision Act repealing the old safeguard clause of 1897.

[illegible] the Government House this year $303,000, than they spent in the last fiscal year in contributions to Great Britain and Belgium, $270,000.

NOTES

Undoubtedly, owing to the uncompromising hostility of the liquor interests, who would be adversely affected in local option contests, the Government is again opposing the Liberal Bill to grant the Municipal Franchise to married women with property qualifications, although 24 municipalities voted in its favor this January and ninety three petitions already this year have been sent in addition to seventy-four last year.

Damase Racine, Liberal member for Russell, favors giving the municipalities a proportion of the fee collected from automobile licences. He was supported by a number of Liberal members. The Provincial Secretary pointed out some difficulties in the way.

An annuity of $2,000 has been unanimously voted to Lady Whitney.

Herbert Lennox, M. P. P. for North York, is the now chairman of the Public accounts committee, succeeding Hon. G. Howard Ferguson.

Mr N. C. McKay, District Representative of the Department of Agriculture at Walkerton visited the various schools of the township this week with a view to having them enter a seed competition which the government is inaugurating. Printed copies of the rules and regulations of this contest will be forwarded to each school and it is expected that the competition will be of very great educational value to the young generation now attending school.

The March to the Battlefields.

The above is the title given a picture that will for many years to come be a highly prized treasure. It is a photographic reproduction showing the 32,000 men of Canada's first contingent breaking camp and on the march to join the Continental forces. It shows miles and miles of the white tents and the marching men. It is a most inspiring sight. The size is 20 x 40 inches, all ready for framing. This picture is sure to be a popular souvenir of the war as far as Canada is concerned, and will be in great demand. It is owned by The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, and a copy is being presented to all subscribers to that great national weekly newspaper. The Family Herald, Montreal, whose subscription of one dollar a year is received from this date for a limited period.

High School Entrance examinations will begin this year on June 21st.

Mr. L. Doran, of Walkerton, was a visitor in town on Sunday.—Mildmay Gazette

Miss Vera Dippel of Walkerton was the guest of Miss Zeta Hamer this week.—Mildmay Gazette

Mr. and Mrs. John Kuntz, accompanied by their daughters, Misses Irene, Melinda and Jessie, of Walkerton, spent Sunday with Mr. Jos. Schell.—Mildmay Gazette.

Sold Two Ford Cars.

Liesemer & Kalbfleisch have disposed of two more Ford touring cars since our last issue. Mr. Chas. Buhlman, of the Commercial hotel, was one of the purchasers so the farmers along Mail Route No. 2 may expect a very rapid delivery of their mail this summer. The other buyer was Mr. George W. Scott of the 12th concession of Carrick. Both cars will be delivered as soon as spring opens up.—Mildmay Gazette.

Are You Going West This Spring?

If so, take advantage of the low one-way second-class Settler's rates to certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta; or if round-trip tickets be desired, the low rate Homeseeker's Excursions in effect each Tuesday until Oct. 26th, should appeal to you. Bear in mind that the Canadian Pacific Railway offers the finest possible equipment and fastest train service. The route is one of the most scenic in the world. Line the only line operating through standard and tourist sleepers also dining cars to Winnipeg and Vancouver. By travelling C. P. R. you avoid the necessity of changing depots. All equipment is owned and operated by the C.P.R., affording the highest form of efficiency. If such a trip is under consideration, apply to any C. P.R. Agent for full particulars, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Renew your Subscription now.

Presented With Clock.

Last Friday evening quite a number of the residents of the 10th concession assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs Peter Reuber, to bid them a formal adieu, before their removal to Mildmay. They presented Mr. and Mrs. Reuber with an ornamental clock as an evidence of their esteem. The evening was most enjoyably spent with games, music and social intercourse.—Mildmay Gazette.

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, JAN. 27th. 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered so much that I would not eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives". I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking "Fruit-a-tives", I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives".

MADAM M. CHARBONNEAU

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest stomach tonic in the world and will always cure Indigestion, Sour Stomach, "Heartburn", Dyspepsia and other Stomach Troubles.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

British Navy Biscuits
(REGISTERED)

Good as Tipperary!
44

Combination Offers

You want good reading during the coming year You can't get a better paper for local news than the TELESCOPE and with it we offer the following at the prices shown The Telescope and

One new Subscription	$1.75
Saturday Globe	1.9
Family Herald	1.9
Toronto World	3.75
Farmer's Advocate	2.40
Canadian Farm	1.90
Weekly Sun	1.90
Catholic Register	1.90
Toronto Daily Globe	3.90
Toronto Daily Mail & Empire	3.90
Toronto Daily Star	2.90
Toronto Daily News	2.90
Montreal W. Witness	1.90
London Catholic Record	2.25
Canadian Baptist	2.25
Presbyterian	2.25
Westminster	2.25
Ontario Churchman	1.50
Church Life	2.00
Farm & Dairy	1.90
Weekly Mail & Empire	1.90
Saturday Night	3.50
London Advertiser	3.90

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D. D. S., Dentist Successor to Dr. Coleman. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work Three doors east of post office. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month.

J.S.REED, Surgeon, dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne St., south of new Carnegie Library

MEDICAL

DR. BROWN, Diseases of the Eye Ear, Nose & Throat Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month 2 to 8 p.m.

W. A. HALL, B.A., M.D., C.M., Hon Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley streets

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J. G. CARTER, Greenock P.O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope Office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Powers' Hotel. Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAS. TOLTON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)
Real Estate bought and sold: money to loan; also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire, Insurance Company — Phone No. 140, ring 2 & 1.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.
[illegible]
THE COOK MEDICINE CO. TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

You can Begin Any Day at the
NORTHERN Business College
Owen Sound, Ont.
Individual Instruction
Our own three-story building and 34 successful years of experience.
Expert instructors produce the very best results.
Catalogue Free
C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal
D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photograhhs
Our photographs are more than good photographs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.
F. J. Fraser
Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES
If you want a stov buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." Non better. Also a ful line of Heating Sto at
H A HAVIL
Walkerton - - O

The War Does not Affect the Nursery Business

In spite of the war we are selling more nursery stock than ever before. We have room for another agent in this county. [illegible] applications should be sent at once. [illegible] through the winter [illegible] delivering or collecting. Outfit free.

Thos. W. Bowman Son & Co
LIMITED
RIDGEVILLE · ONTARIO

AFTER THE WAR

Business in Canada will hum. The demand for well-trained young men and women for business will be keener than ever. The wise are preparing now. Get into one of our schools and be ready. A few months will do it. It will pay you well, free catalogue. Write for instructions
SHAWS BUSINESS SCHOOLS
Toronto, 305 Yonge st.—W. Shaw, prin

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD, ONT.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

CANADIAN PACIFIC

New Train Service
Toronto-Montreal
Ottawa
Via "Lake Ontario Shore Line"

Fast time to Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville, Trenton, etc.

Particulars from C. P. R. Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Tor-

Easy rests the head that wears
"King Hat"
King Hats are flexible and self-conforming, just where the hat touches the head.
ASK THE MAN WHO HAS ONE
THE POPULAR SHAPES $2.50
T. PYE SOLE AGENT
WALKERTON · · ONTARIO

Mrs. Anthony Comio, of Walkerton, was here this week visiting her mother, Mrs. B[illegible], who is on the sick list.—Mildmay Gazette.

St. Andrews by the Sea.

Nature has done much for St. Andrews. No prettier place can be visited by the tourist of the summer vacation. It is the most popular of Canadian Seaside Resorts and it is now chosen by large numbers of summer visitors from New York and Boston who desire to get away from the overcrowded resorts of the United States. There are excellent sea bathing facilities at half a dozen places in the neighborhood. The Canadian Pacific has rebuilt the large Algonquin Hotel, while the "Inn" affords accommodation for those who desire the quietness of cottage life.

To the Panama Pacific Exposition via the Canadian Rockies.

At the present time a great many are planning their annual tour. Considerable numbers visit the popular California Resorts, while many prefer the unsurpassed Resorts, Palatial Hotel and magnificent scenery of the Canadian Rockies. This year why not combine the two by a visit to the Panama Pacific Exposition?

Numerous people in comfortable circumstances, well able to afford a trip have the mistaken idea that a journey of this nature is most expensive. This is not so: thanks to modern railway facilities, an expensive trip, both interesting and educational, can be made with speed and comfort at a comparatively small cost. Why not investigate?

Those contemplating a trip of any nature will receive full information from any C.P.R. Agent: or write M.G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

BRITISH AMERICAN
BUSINESS COLLEGE

[illegible] and successful graduates. Specialists in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31st. Write for our catalogue. Address T. Wauchope, Principal Yonge & McGill Sts., Toronto.

TREES ! TREES ! !

All kinds of Fruit and ornamental Trees, Evergreens, Roses, Shrubs, Climbers, etc. Everything in the Nursery line. Send list of your wants for prices. Catalogue free.

Agents Wanted Everywhere

Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman. Port Elgin, Ontario

Brant Township
Farms

I have, in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, 1 forty-six acre farm, 1 one hundred and thirty acre farm, 2 two hundred acre farms all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL. I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $7000. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to see me if you want to buy at right prices

H. H. MILLER
HANOVER · · ONTARIO

Culross Council

Town Hall, Teeswater, Mar. 10th.

Council met today as per motion of adjournment of last meeting.

The members all present, The Reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Case—Donaldson—That by-laws No. 2 and 3 for 1915 being by-laws appointing a Board of Health and the several paid officers of the Township having received the necessary readings. That they be now finally passed signed and sealed.—Carried.

McPherson — Donaldson — That the clerk advertise for tenders for an operator for the road grader at the rate of $2.25 per day, tenders to be in by the first day of April.—Carried.

Case—Donaldson—That we appoint the Reeve and Medical Health Officer to investigate into the condition of a family living on lot 15 con 1 as we have been informed that their health is not in good condition. And the family in destitute circumstances. They to take such steps as they think necessary. And to carry out the Public Health Act as required by statute. And to report to Council at next meeting.—Carried.

Armstrong -- Case -- That as an agetation is on hand at the present time to build Hydro Electric Railways through the Country. That we join the Hydro Electric Commission and pay the fee of $2.00 And keep in touch with the movement and that the Reeve be appointed to act on behalf of the Corporation.

A vote on the Motion being called for it was voted on as follows:

For the motion Armstrong Case and Kuntz, against the motion Donaldson—McPherson —Motion Carried.

Report of Reeve re Hydro Electric R.Y. since our last meeting I received a communication from the clerk re Hydro Electric Railways, and a convention was called for the 24th ult. at Toronto which I did attend in company with Mr. Jno S. Armstrong. At this meeting the benifits of Radial lines were thoroughly discussed by such able speakers as the Hon. Adam Beck, Chairman of the Hydro Electric Commission, Pres. Lyons of Guelph, Mayor Church of Toronto and others all of whom expressed themselves that Radial lines would be the greatest benidit to rural municipalities. Some of the speakers maintained that land values would increase nearly double their present value. It was pointed out that the Dominion Government had made grants to its railways in subsides to the extent of $250,000,000. And the Hon. Adam Beck says the same Government should make substantial grants to these roads, and it is his proposal that a monster deligation should go to Ottawa during this session and interview the Government on these lines in which every municipality should be represented. It appears that this municipality should work unceasingly to have the lines run through this locality and reap the benifit derived therefrom.

It would therefore recommend that this council should join in with the other Municipalities and pray that the Hydro Electric Commission will run a line through this Municipality.

Your humble Servant,
E. G. Glintz.

Report re Mud River.

When I was in Toronto attending the Hydro Electric convention I interviewed the Hon, the Minister of Public work through the courtesy of W. D. Cargill M. P. regarding the Teeswater river, I found the Hon. Gentleman interested in the scheme and promised to send an engineer from his Department to look over the ground early in the spring. I explained to him the so called Lippert and Thompson Bar which is one of the principal obstructions. And asked him to grant sufficient money to have it removed which he promised his utmost consideration and further said the request was reasonable. But hinted that under the present struggle it is almost impossible to undertake any such work as dredging the whole of the river. But might undertake to remove the bar. I would recommend that the matter be kept before them and ultimate results will be sure to follow.

Yours E. G. Kuntz

Finance Report.

Jas. Day, insp. sheep killed by dogs	$1 00
Jas. Day, cutting ice at bridge	2 00
Wingham Advance, balance on printing	20 00
J. C. Little, printing nomination bills	1 75
Alex Donaldson, fixing ditcholes	75
Jas Armstrong, " "	75
N. Melvin, ploughing gravelroad in winter	4 50
Wm Case, 100 lbs. flour for Indigents	3 00

Case—Armstrong—That the finance report as now read be adopted and orders issued on the Treasurer for payment of the accounts.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned to meet again on April 7th, or at the call of the Reeve.

Chas Button,
Clerk.

Richard's
QUICK NAPTHA
THE WOMAN'S SOAP

Review Of The Season

The season's past
We're glad at last
No more we'll have to tussle.
The winter's gone;
Our skates we'll pawn
And to our studies hustle.

The teams we met
Are limping yet,
Their runners sorely bended.
Some slats we broke
With one quick stroke.
And now they're getting mended.

The games were fair
We played quite square
Although we must acknowledge
A clout or two
And trip a few
Of that there "Business College".

That "Bankers" team
Was sure "some scream",
They think they're fast and speedy.
We had a bunch
We'd beat that bunch:
We made them look quite seedy.

In Chesley's rink,
We let them think
That they could trim us neatly.
But when we got
Them in our lot.
We showed them up completely.

One game we played.
We're not dismayed
To say the "Printers" took it.
They're quite a team
Although 'twould seem
The part, they don't quite look it

The "Sons of Rest"
We played the best
The score was eight or eleven.
We liked the way
We played that day
With Mac McCartney's seven.

We showed up nice
On Mildmay's ice,
Those guys we went right after.
We had to laugh
Their team was half
Made up of men like Schefter.

Hanover thought
That we were not
A team to cause them worry.
We played a game,
'Twas just the same,
We parted in a hurry.

But now we're through
Our husky crew
No more these rubes we'll hammer.
The blue and white
Are just all right
And now we'll turn to grammar.

—Dec Jay Kay.

—Walkerton High School Record.

Read the Telescope.

EXPERIMENTS WITH FARM CROPS

The members of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union are pleased to state for 1915 they are prepared to distribute into every township of Ontario material of high quality for experiments with grain, fodder crops, roots, grasses, clovers and alfalfas, as follows:—

No.	Experiments	Plots
1	—Two varieties of Oats	2
1a	—O.A.C. No. 21 Barley and Emmer	2
2b	—Two varieties of Two-rowed Barley	2
3	—Two varieties Hulless Barley	2
4	—Two varieties of spring wheat	2
5	—Two varieties of Buckwheat	2
6	— " " " Field Peas	2
7	— " " " Spring Rye	2
8	— " " " Soy, Soja, or Japanese beans	2
9	—Three varieties of Husking corn	3
10	— " " " Mangels	3
11	—Two " " sugar beets for feeding purposes	2
12	—Three varieties of Swedish Turnips	3
13	—Two varieties of Fall Turnips	2
14	— " " " Carrots	2
15	—Three " " Fodder and Silage Corn	3
16	—Three varieties of Millet	3
17	—Two " " Sorghum	2
18	—Grass, Peas and two varieties of Vetches	3
19	—Rape, Kale and Field Cabbage	3
20	—Three varieties of Clover	3
21	—Two " " Alfalfa	2
22	—Four " " Grasses	4
23	—Three " " Field Beans	3
24	—Two " " Sweet Corn	2
29	—Three grain mixtures for grain production	3
30	—Three grain mixtures for fodder production	3

Any person in Ontario may choose any ONE of the experiments for 1915 and apply for the same. The material will be furnished in the order in which the applications are received, while the supply lasts. Each applicant should make a second choice, as the material for the experiment selected as first choice might be exhausted before application is received. Material will be furnished free of charge to each applicant, and the produce will, of course, become the property of the person who conducts the experiment. Each person applying for an experiment should write his name and address very carefully, and should give the name of the County in which he lives.

C. A. Zavitz.
Director.
Ontario Agricultural College,
Guelph, March, 1915.

The Lenten Season.

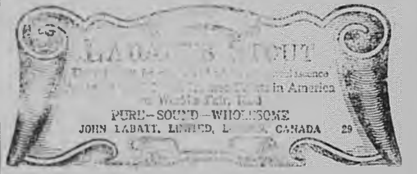
Lent, the annual season of fasting as preparation for the great spring festival of Easter, is observed by an increasing number of people because of the many beautiful sentiments associated with it. Its approach marks the lengthening of the days—from which fact, indeed, it derives its name: and it extends over the forty days preceding the great festival which terminates it—Easter, the festival which, in the Christian Church, commemorates the Resurrection of Christ, and had its prototype in Jewish and pagan religions. The word itself is the same as the name of the goddess of spring, Easter, worshipped by our ancestors, in whose honor a feast was held in April (a word too, which refers to the opening of the buds in spring), and is derived from the word "east" signifying the rising sun. Though thus connected with the sun the date of the festival was controlled by the moon, being arbitrarily fixed to be observed on the first Sunday after the full moon that falls on or next after the 21st of March. If the full moon falls on the Sunday following that date Easter is celebrated one week later, and is then said to be far out. Religiously, it has many deep meaning significances to the Church being regarded as a period of penitence, anticipating the Resurrection. As a mere interval it has its uses. It marks a period wherein there is a cessation of all those social activities that may have been rather more than strenuous during the preceding season; and it is well that the human machine should have this easing up opportunity. It may be looked on also as a testing period prior to the absorbing round of activities of the busy season, especially by those who lead the simple life. The common saying, "As the days lengthen the cold strengthens," seems to be quite true. At this period one feels the cold more; the blood has cooled off from the warming received during the heat of the previous summer that carries one so comfortably along until the days begin to "break" earlier and earlier. To the lovers of the garden and of the fields, of flocks, and of herds and of broods Lent and Easter have special joys. It is indeed a benefit of [illegible] to all who have the human instinct and love of their fellow creatures at heart; it brings all closer in the bonds of the same fraternity; and gives not only promise, but blessed assurance of that immortality which is the trust of humanity, and without which consolation man would be as a mere [illegible] driven upon a shoreless chartless ocean.

How's This ?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
We the undersigned have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.
NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, Price 75c, per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Hurting Saloon Business.

The persistent influence of the moving picture show has been a matter of frequent [illegible], but, what with [illegible] construction of theatres and the class of entertainment provided, a much larger patronage for the latter is recorded. The latest thing is to find the movies helping the cause of temperance. [illegible] dealers in a number of places in the United States are finding that the establishment of a moving picture show near a saloon seriously hurts the trade of the saloon, and cases are cited where saloons have been pushed right out of business in this way. As a result, the liquor people are organizing to fight the picture show, and signs are not wanting in Canada, too, that the saloon keeper is becoming really afraid of the show. Some of the films shown at the theatres have had great influence in hurting the liquor business so much that the company circulating Jack London's powerful story of the evils of intemperance, "John Barleycorn" was offered $25,000 by liquor dealers to have it suppressed in one State. This particular film has not yet come to Canada and it can be safely concluded that the saloon people do not want it to come. Any energies directed to seeing that it did come would be well spent in these times when temperance forces in Canada are concentrating to take local advantage of the world-wide change of sentiment towards the alcohol question.—Canadian Pictorial.



LABATT'S STOUT
[illegible] in America
[illegible] World's Fair, [illegible]
PURE—SOUND—WHOLESOME
JOHN LABATT, LIMITED, LONDON, CANADA 29

The History of the County of Bruce
And of The
Minor Municipalities Therein
(BY NORMAN ROBERTSON)
Forty Illustrations, Sixteen Maps,
Five Hundred and Sixty Pages.

The above volume covers the history of the county from the days when it was the hunting grounds of the Indians to November 1906. It has eleven chapters devoted to the county as a whole, followed by twenty-seven chapters, each of which takes up the history of one of the towns, townships or villages. Accompanying the chapter on each township is a map of it, clearly showing each farmlot therein.

In addition to being an historical narrative, in this work there are to be found many personal incidents relating to scores of prominent men in all parts of the county.

A number of historical documents have been collected and are printed in the appendix, along with a large amount of statistical information, both of which are important to have preserved. The edition is a limited one.

Regular Price, Cloth Binding $2.50
This history will be sent to those who renew their subscriptions to the TELESCOPE for 75c or both

The Telescope for one year and the History of Bruce for $1.75

Special Prices This Week!

Now is the time for Bargains. Grasp this Opportunity. It certainly will pay you to give this price list your most careful consideration.

Dry Goods Snaps
Large assortment of new Wrapperettes, reg 12½c a yd., for 9c
English & Canadian Prints, fast colors, reg. 12½c, for 9c yard
Ginghams and Chambrays, new colors, 15c yd quality, now 11c

Plain and Floral Cotton Crepes, fine quality .... 23c yard
Red Cotton Crepe, regular 15c yard now.............10c yard
Fine Voille in latest shades and patterns..............26c yard
Finest quality white Pique per yard.........................25c

Indian Head Suiting, regular 25c, for ....19c yard
Ladies Fancy Embroidered lawn and voille Waists, regular $1.50 for......................89c
Shephard's Plaid Dress Goods, reg. 15c now......10c a yard

Grocery Snaps
Finest Roasted Coffee, lb 20c
Black, Mixed or Japan Tea, 40c quality, now.....................29c
Corn Flakes, fresh, per pkg. 8c
6 lbs good Rice..................25c
Bulk Laundry Starch per lb 8c
6 bars Comfort Soap 25c

Corn, Peas, Tomatoes, and Beans, per tin........................8c
2 tins choice pink Salmon for.......................................25c
25 lb pail Clover Honey...70c
Best Corn Starch per pkg. 7c
Potatoes, good cooker, per bag, ...50c (delivered.

Seed Onions, Dutch Setts per lb.,...................................10c
Multipliers, per lb..........10c
Good quality Corn Brooms, reg. 40c, now.......................25c
5 gal. best American Oil 75c
500 lbs fresh Qualla Salmon, reg. 15c lb, at per lb 10c
300 lbs Finnan Haddie, lb 10c

Men's heavy Laced Kip Boots, 12 inch top, regular $4.50. Extra special at $3.25. Only a limited quantity of these.

C. Reaney PHONE 8 HIGHEST PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCE J. Pleskey

Old Country News

GLORIOUS WELSH FUSILIERS.

The first battalion of the famous Royal Welsh Fusiliers, the original personnel of which practically has been wiped out, has been specially mentioned by the general commanding the division to which it is attached.

"I must add my sincere appreciation of the splendid behavior of the 1st Royal Welsh Fusiliers," says the general. "On all occasions the battalion has nobly maintained the glorious traditions of the regiment, and has added to the honors gained in previous campaigns.

"All ranks have always responded to the call made on them under severe conditions. I am proud to have had the battalion in the brigade. The heavy loss, both in officers and men, bears witness to the efforts made by them on behalf of the honor of the army and the Empire."

KING HONORED RESCUERS.

Captain Pillar, of the Providence, of Brixham, and his crew of three, who saved 71 men of H. M. S. Formidable, were decorated by the King at Buckingham Palace on Saturday week with the silver medal of the Board of Trade.

The King pinned the medal on the breast of each and handed to each a voucher for the money reward which the Admiralty has bestowed. Captain William Pillar is to have £250; William George Edwin Carter and John James Clarke, second and third hand, £100 each; and Daniel Taylor, apprentice, £50. The gallant four returned home to Brixham on Sunday, proud and full of their great time in London.

SOLDIERS FOR 150 YEARS.

The family of Sergeant Hopper, who after twenty-one years' service in the 2nd Battalion, The Highland Light Infantry, has rejoined the colors and is with the 10th (Service) Battalion at Bordon Camp, Hants, holds what is no doubt a record of service in the British army.

A Hopper enlisted in the old 74th Regiment of Foot (now the H. L. I.) when that unit was first raised over 150 years ago, and ever since the family has been represented, sometimes a father and son serving at the same time. At the present Sergeant Hopper's brothers and six nephews are all serving in the Highland Light Infantry.

A WEEK'S FAILURES.

According to Stubbs' Weekly Gazette," the failures in the United Kingdom, including registered deeds of arrangement, for week ended Feb. 6th, 1915, were 107 (England and Wales 92, Ireland 5, Scotland 10) against 155 (England and Wales 137, Ireland 8, Scotland 10) for corresponding week last year, decrease 48. Total for five weeks to date 575 (England and Wales 483, Ireland 28, Scotland 64), against 661 (England and Wales 567, Ireland 31, Scotland 63), for the corresponding period of last year, decrease 86.

DRAUGHTLESS HUTS.

A new type of hut for soldiers which, it is claimed, will allow of a saving of at least 5 per cent. on present expenditure, was exhibited at the College of Ambulance, Vere-street, W.

The hut is pyramidal in shape and designed to secure a maximum of fresh air with an absence of draughts no matter what the direction of the wind.

Seventeen huts of this type, known as the Pritchard principle, will accommodate, its inventors claim, a battalion in greater comfort than they are now securing in thirty-four huts.

GIFT OF A GERMAN EAGLE.

The Grimsby Public Library Committee has received from Mr. A. Jacobs, of Capetown, a German flag captured at Luderitzbucht, South west Africa, and a helmet worn by the German chief of police when handing over the keys of the town to Colonel Beves. Mr. Jacobs also presented an armorial plate with a German eagle taken from the door of the burgomaster's house at Luderitzbucht.

NOTES.

In about eight weeks 44,700 free tramway tickets have been issued to soldiers in Sheffield.

Dr. Stanley Riseley, one of the leading ophthalmic surgeons of Sheffield and district has died, at the age of 47.

A verdict of accidental death was returned at an inquest in Sheffield on Sarah Scott (86), of Berkley road. The evidence showed that on January 30 she accidentally upset the candle on the table and her clothing caught fire. She sustained severe burns, and died in Firvale Hospital.

Elizabeth Kaye (49), widow, of Sarah Ann street, Barnsley, who was severely burnt in her home, died at the Beckett Hospital.

Lord Nunburnholme, Lord Lieutenant of the East Riding has been asked by the Army Council to raise a divisional ammunition column, in addition to the forces already contributed by East Yorkshire.

Tom Oates, the Leeds fly weight boxer, has enlisted in the First Reserve West Riding Brigade Royal Field Artillery. He holds the fly weight championship of Lancashire and Yorkshire, and hopes to continue boxing while in training.

The whole of the members of the Burbage Prize Band, Buxton, twenty-six in number, have joined the Glossop detachment of the 6th Reserve Battalion Cheshire Regiment.

Private Harris and Pullman, Territorial cyclists, who were under arrest for causing the deaths of Lieutenant Hart, R.N., and Lieutenant Simpson, A.S.C., by shooting them while on patrol duty, were discharged at Torquay.

"I want to see the night clubs done away with. They are disgraceful places, into which men are trapped when they should be preparing for war," said the Bishop of London, preaching at All Saints', Child's Hill.

The Archbishop of York has appointed the Rev. Henry Comber Holmes, rector of Kirkby and rural dean of Northallerton, to the prebendal stall of Langtoft in York Cathedral, vacant by the death of Canon Wilson.

The Upper House of Convocation of the Province of Canterbury, at Westminster, decided that it was not desirable at present to seek to introduce into the Prayer Book any of the changes suggested in the report of the Joint Committee on Letters of Business.

Snow fell heavily in North Wales on Monday week, and the Rivers Severn, Wye and Dee were in flood.

Mother of three soldiers at the front, Mrs. Challoran, a widow, has just been buried with military honors at Kildysart, County Clare.

Owing to her umbrella filling with wind a young woman named Clark, of Tollcross, Glasgow, was carried off the pier and drowned.

A police cyclist patrol at Carlisle has exceeded all expectations, says the chief constable, in reducing the amount of petty crime in the city.

The Bangor (North Wales) War Distress Committee has decided to give each Belgian refugee staying in the city one shilling each week pocket money.

The London County Council have just refused applications for the renumbering of three places numbered 13, the suggested alterations being 11a or 12a.

The care of the graves of British soldiers who have fallen in action is being undertaken by a special department of the British Red Cross Society.

Robert Richardson (13) has died at Longbenton, near Newcastle-on-Tyne, from injuries caused by being caught by a corn-grinding machine which he was watching.

Mr. James Lowe, of Stutton Grange, Tadcaster, late of the 18th Hussars, has eight sons serving with the colors. A ninth son has tried on two occasions to enter the army, but is medically unfit.

At the annual meeting of the Durham College of Medicine it was reported that sixty students have joined the colors. Most of the clinical teachers are attached to the First Northern General Hospital, and several teachers are with the colors.

Sir William Goulding, chairman of the Great Southern Railway of Ireland, at the shareholders' meeting stated that in a fortnight from August 5 the railway carried 60,000 soldiers, 10,000 horses, 200 wagons of baggage, and 1,100 wagons of guns, etc., and that the work of the company and staff had been pronounced entirely satisfactory.

A new writ was issued for Mid-Antrim, vacant by the death of the Hon. Arthur O'Neill.

Lieutenant Edward Hilton Young (Liberal), who is serving in Sir John Jellicoe's flagship, has been returned unopposed as M. P. for Norwich and Mr. T. J. Williams for Swansea District.

The death took place at Richmond, Yorkshire, of Major John Smurthwaite, of Temple Lodge, at the age of [illegible] years.

Mr. Frank Brazier, a well-known horticulturist, of Caterham, died on Sunday week from blood-poisoning, following a scratch on the finger received while working in his garden a few days ago. His wife died in hospital on previous Friday.

A number of children were playing on the beach at Aberystwyth on Saturday week, watching the huge waves breaking on the shore. A boy named John Wilson, aged seven, was knocked down by the waves and carried out to sea in full view of a number of people on the promenade. Lieut. E. S. Pryce, of the Welsh Army Service Corps, was standing there with a number of the men of the corps, and they made an effort to get at the boy. The officer narrowly escaped drowning. He was rescued in an exhausted state. The body of the boy was carried out of view.

Mr. F. C. Arkwright, deputy-Lieutenant for Derbyshire, announced that he intends to give a permanent memorial to the Derbyshire village which has the highest percentage of its male population with the colors.

Fining two defendants £1 each in an egg case at Dublin, the magistrate said it was proved that an egg ceased to be a new-laid egg after nine days, yet the defendants sold as new laid eggs what were proved to be eggs from three to eight months old.

Two women, one aged eighty-four, were burnt to death in a lonely cottage at Coseley, near Dudley, Worcestershire. When the police arrived the cottage was a mass of flames. The bedroom floor collapsed before the fire brigade reached the house, and revealed two bodies, believed to be those of Ann Newill, aged eighty-four, and her daughter Mary, a single woman, aged fifty-five.

It was stated at a Hartlepool inquest that a young married woman named Lily Elizabeth Moore, who was found hanged, had had her mind unhinged by the bombardment, and a verdict was returned accordingly. A child named Martha Wood, who was injured during the bombardment, has died, making the Hartlepool death roll 118.

At Hereford Assizes when a woman was sentenced for the manslaughter of her infant child, Mrs. Davis, wife of a Hereford clergyman, rose and exclaimed: "I call this most unfair! If the father of the child were here—" Uproar followed, and Mr. Justice Avory ordered the interrupter to be turned out. Upon being informed who the lady was, his lordship remarked, "I am sorry for the vicar."

The Admiralty have invited the Macclesfield silk manufacturers to tend for 200,000 black silk squares (presumably for the men's full-dress scarves) for the Navy. This is the largest order issued. Two Macclesfield firms are now busy on the order issued a few weeks ago for 100,000 squares for the Navy.

There were only five prisoners for trial at the Middlesex Sessions on Saturday week. Mr. Montagu Sharpe, the chairman, said that in eighteen years he had never known so few trials.

Another section of the embankment of the Little Ouse, in Norfolk, has collapsed near the original Hockwold breach of January last, and it is feared that from 7,000 to 10,000 acres more will be flooded. The original gap is still unclosed. Cottages and other buildings continue to collapse.

A new roll of honor is to be prepared for Nottingham, containing the names of employers who will give a written pledge to reinstate any of their employees who enlist. The mayor has ordered the roll to be hung up at the Exchange, Nottingham.

On the grounds that its provisions had neither reason nor public sentiment in their favor the eccentric will by Miss Catherine MacCaig, of Oban, was overturned in the Court of Session, Edinburgh. By her directions eleven bronze statues of her father, mother, brothers, and sisters were to be erected at Oban Hill at a cost of £1,000 each.

Mr. John Pares, J. P., a well-known Portsmouth man, died at Southsea on Tuesday week. He was the father of Professor Bernard Pares, the official British representative with the Russian Headquarters.

Mr. Joshua Rowntree, a prominent Scarborough man, died at Scalby on Wednesday week. He was 71 years old. He was keenly interested in politics and paid a fine of £50 on relinquishing the mayoralty of Scarborough to contest the parliamentary seat. He was Liberal member for Scarborough from 1886-92.

Canon and Sub-Dean Charles Marcus Church, who celebrated his ninety-third birthday last month, has died at his residence, Liberty Wells. Born in Florence in 1823, Canon Church could remember when a boy at a school near Bath seeing the glare of the Bristol fires caused by the celebrated riots in 1831. He was the vice-principal and later the principal of Wells Theological College. He was appointed Sub-Dean in 1861, and in 1879 was made a residentiary canon. Canon Church was a great authority on the history of the Catholic Church.

Brigadier-General Barnardiston, commander of the British forces at the siege of Tsing-tau, had a cordial greeting at Sudbury on Monday week on his way to the residence of his father, Colonel Barnardiston, at the village of Henny. The brigadier-general was met at the station by the mayor and corporation and was loudly cheered by crowds as he passed through the decorated streets. An address of welcome was presented to him in which reference was made to the honorable part played by his ancestors, some of whom had fought under Cromwell.

Worth Park, the seat of Sir Francis Montefiore, situate close to Three Bridges, is to be offered by auction by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley. It is one of the most beautiful properties in the south of England, some 500 acres forming part of the ancient Worth Forest. The mansion, in the Italian style, cost £125,000. Worth is an ancient village, and its church is said to be the only perfect ground plan of a Saxon church extant in England.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McGregor, of Arden Cottage, Arden, Loch Lomondside, celebrated the sixty-eighth anniversary of their wedding.

The death rate in the ninety-six great towns of England and Wales last week averaged 18.9 per 1,000.

John William Bowman, 28, filler, 19 Lloyd street, Parkgate, was killed whilst working at the new coke ovens in the township of Greasbro'.

The whole of northeast Yorkshire was covered with snow on Monday week, the result of a storm during the previous night.

The "pancake bell" was rung at Chesterfield and Exam on Tuesday morning before Easter.

The Rev. F. C. Carver, curate of Duffield Parish Church, has accepted the curacy of Christ Church, High Barnet.

For the first time for about fifteen years there was not a single case at Banff police court on Tuesday week.

The Rev. William Bracewell, M. A., vicar of St. Luke's Sale Memorial Church, Sheffield, has been appointed vicar of St. James', Doncaster, in the place of the Rev. George Fredericks Richardson, M. A., who has been appointed vicar of St. Paul's, Holgate, York.

Among railwaymen in the London area, it is stated, general satisfaction is expressed at the terms and the war bonus which have been conceded to them.

It was stated at the London County Council meeting that 441 motormen and 439 conductors had joined the colors.

Michael Curtin, whose death is announced at his home, near Macroom, County Cork, was 112 years old. He was an agricultural laborer.

The South Wales coalowners raised the price of coal by two shillings a ton at pit mouth, and best house coal is now from 21s to 23s a ton.

Six men were killed and several injured by the collapse of the concrete roof of an unoccupied new building at Bridge Hall Paper Mills, Bury.

King's Lynn annual mart will not be held this year. The mart has been held uninterruptedly for seven centuries, and this is its first abandonment.

At a meeting of the Cheshire County Education authority at Crewe, it was reported that fifty-nine elementary school teachers had joined the forces, and that the extra cost to the authority was rather less than £1,000 a year.

The Volunteer Club, Enfield Wash, has been struck off the register, the police stating that the whole of the officials and members had joined His Majesty's forces and that the place had been closed for some months.

A Dublin telegram says that Lieut. De Courcy O'Grady, of the 10th Cycling Corps, Royal Barracks, Dublin, has been found dead at his quarters with a bullet wound in his head. On a table close by was a loaded revolver with a chamber discharged.

Private Sir Herbert Raphael, M. P. (South Derbyshire), who has enlisted in the Second Sportsman's Battalion, Royal Fusiliers, has intimated to his platoon commander, Sergt. [illegible] Gadd, ex-middleweight Midlands boxing champion, of Burton-on-Trent, that he will pay for all boxing gloves required for the battalion when it moves into camp shortly.

Harry Rich, one of the two comedians known as Rich and Rich, has died at his home in South London, after a short illness.

The death in hospital is reported, after a few days' illness from pneumonia, of Major H. H., second in command of the 3rd Battalion, Yorkshire Regiment, stationed at West Hartlepool.

The death has occurred at Torquay of Mr. Carl Ferdinand Henry Bolckow, one of the original directors of the famous iron and steel firm of Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., Middlesbro'. He was 79 years of age.

The death has occurred in Dublin of Prof. Charles Haines Keene, brother of the Bishop of Meath, and a noted classical scholar.

Women conductors are likely to collect the fares in Edinburgh tramway cars shortly. This scheme, put forward by the Edinburgh Tramway Company, is accepted as an excellent way of meeting the shortage of male labor. Many women of independent positions have offered to become conductors and to hand over their earnings to the wives of those tramway conductors who have enlisted and are now at the front.

Sir Stephen Penfold, Mayor of Folkestone, was presented with a silver tea and coffee service, an illuminated album and address, and a cheque for £100 in recognition of his services as eight times mayor and to commemorate the knighthood conferred upon him in the New Year.

Mr. Watson, assistant master at the Grammar School, St. Ives, Huntingdonshire, was drowned on Monday while attempting to rescue a girl who had fallen from her bicycle into the River Ouse at St. Ives.

At the request of the War Office, accommodation is to be made in Leicester for wounded soldiers. The hospital will be established in the De Montfort Hall, Leicester's largest public hall, and in a number of schools.

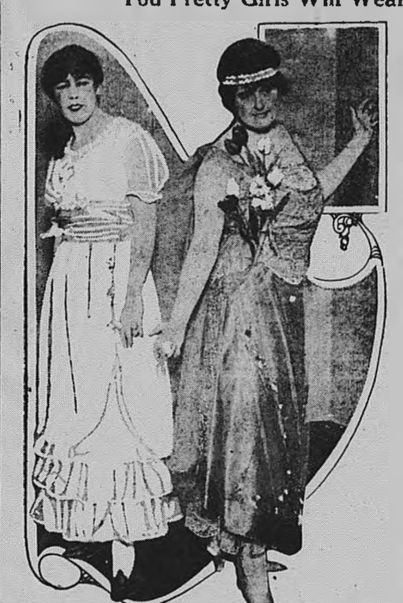
While witnessing the marriage of her daughter at Christ Church, Swansea, Mrs. [illegible] Smith fainted suddenly and was removed from her seat. It was thought that she had suffered only a momentary collapse, and the Rev. F. Griffith proceeded with the service. As she did not recover immediately steps were taken for her removal to the hospital, but she died before reaching the institution.

At the inquest held at Yarmouth on the body of Mrs. Jane Woolston, who fell downstairs in the early morning, sustaining an injury to her brain, her husband said she told him she was awakened by a light flashing on the windows, and thought the Germans were coming again. She rushed to the stairs, and then fell down. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

Fifty-seven scholars of the Faversham Wesleyan Sunday School have agreed to forego their prizes in order that their value might go to the Queen's Work for Women Fund. The amount subscribed by this self-sacrifice is £2 4s. 9d. The fifty-seven patriotic scholars have received the Queen's Certificate issued by the Fund.

Four Leeds firemen had a dangerous experience at a fire at Messrs. Maden and Ireland's shoe factory, Leeds. The floor of an upper storey gave way, crashing through to the next floor, carrying the men with it and covering them in smouldering debris. They were quickly rescued and taken to an infirmary, where their injuries were pronounced not serious.

These Pretty Party Frocks You Pretty Girls Will Wear



"Springtime" is the name of the gown shown at the right. It's designed for the easter season and the colors of spring are reproduced in the orchid satin and floral trimmings, as well as in the corsage of orchids.

Tiny pink rose buds are used to outline the double triangular design at the right front, and the left front of the slightly draped skirt. The low cut bodice is an artistic arrangement of gold-threaded lace brought into a fan-shaped drapery at the right. From this drapery falls a broad strand of brocaded lace finished with a fringe of cut steel and jet.

At the left is shown a charming frock for "party" wear made of white taffeta with an odd little overskirt made in double apron effect topping a satin underskirt ruffled with white chiffon and the ruffles give the skirt the flare effect which every skirt must have this spring. The bodice is of satin with scallops ruffled just below the bust line and a wide girdle of chiffon. The shoulder sleeves are also of chiffon.

Was Troubled With Nervous Prostration.

Many people although they know of nervous prostration do not know what the symptoms are. The principal ones are, a feeling of fright when in crowded [illegible], a dread of being alone, fear of being in a confined place, a horror of anything [illegible] from [illegible] at travelling on railroad trains, [illegible] and restless, [illegible] often troubled with [illegible].

Mr. George La[illegible], Victoria Harbor, Ont., writes: "I am writing to tell you of the experience I have had with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was so nervous I could not do my own work, [illegible]. My nerves were bad for three years, and my heart was so bad it made me tremble all over. I took three boxes of your pills, and I never was better than I am now. I weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EXCELLENT SUPPLIES.

British Army at Front Better Equipped Than Any Other.

An officer in the London Rifle Brigade writes to a friend at Haywards Heath in warm terms of praise of the completeness of the supply service. He says:—

"To one who went through the Boer War and knew very often he was served short rations, a ration which even in its entirety did not approach what is issued here unfailingly, the quantity and quality of the food given are simply astonishing. A big job it must be indeed, but it is splendidly performed. As to clothing, it never fell to us in South Africa to draw underclothing, nor did we receive sheepskin coats, whilst boots were often completely worn through before they could be replaced. That is not so now. Of course, you are not to suppose that each man gets every garment or a pair of new boots immediately he is in need; but I think that very few men have to wait any considerable length of time for items really badly wanted. Apropos of boots, you cannot impress too strongly on anybody coming out here how necessary he will find it to have those only of the very best quality; they receive such a severe testing that only very stout boots made of really good leather will be satisfactory under the treatment they are subjected to in this campaign. He would be well advised to slip a supplementary pair of stout soles into his pack. The local shoemakers still left in the villages could affix them when necessary. The boots ought to be fully large, fastened with porpoisehide laces, and studded with thick-headed nails, the latter to withstand the pave when marching is to be done.

Our preconceived idea of the training required and the sort of warfare carried on here have been disturbed in some directions by actual experience. Were I to find myself back at home entirely in charge of the preparation of men for this war some branches of training to which I should pay particular attention would be, amongst others: First, physical fitness—only those who are entirely fit can hope to stand the stress and exposure they will be subjected to. Second, a thorough knowledge of the rifle. Not only should a man be able to shoot straight, but he must also shoot quickly, and this he cannot do without getting a complete mastery over the loading and the bolt. Many of our men had by no means sufficiently appreciated this before coming out. Third, field work—how to entrench quickly in darkness and with the least possible noise. Smartness on parade is a very good thing of course, but it scarcely wins battles after all."

The Principles of a Successful Life

I. I will do the next thing.
II. I will keep stimulants of every kind out of my body.
III. I will never speak unkindly of any person who is not present.
IV. I will cultivate my thought life.
V. I will cultivate the habit of decision.
VI. I will live my own life, not in a selfish, egotistical way.
VII. I will let others live their own lives. I will not try to impose my convictions upon them.
VIII. I will practice instant obedience to my convictions.
IX. I will develop personal habits that are pleasing to other people.
X. I will save money.
XI. I will keep my face to the future.
XII. I will adjust myself to events.
XIII. I will school myself not to be afraid of old age and death.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World for February.

Auction sales originated in ancient Rome, and were introduced to enable soldiers to dispose of spoils of war.

Don't Allow Your Bowels To Become Constipated.

If the truth was only known you would find that over one half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, belching of wind, heartburn, water brash, biliousness, and a general feeling that you do not care to do anything.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They will clear away all the effete matter which collects in the system and make you think that "life is worth living."

Mrs. Hans McKitrick, Wakefield, Que. writes: "For several years I was troubled with sour stomach and biliousness and did not get relief until I used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I had only taken them two weeks when my trouble was quite gone, and I will recommend them to all suffering as I did."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c per vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all drug stores or dealers, or will be mailed on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MINE SWEEPERS OF THE NORTH SEA

This is the yarn extracted from Skipper Bob Twenty's young fellow by Skipper Lucky Jack in a dusky corner of a quayside tavern, over a discreet quantity of exceeding luscious port wine, which any ordinary seafaring man will assure you is a teetotal drink. Outside in the early darkness sleet was falling slantingly. The lamps would remain unlighted. Hoots and bellows and wails came from the shrouded water; a cart rattled; a motor-lorry panted and rumbled over the cobles; now and then the narrow, slopy pavement responded dully to hurried footfalls. These sounds may have given the tavern a sense of comfort which it did not naturally possess. Grudgingly, as it seemed, the man behind the bar turned up a couple of gas jets. It was early for much custom, and nowadays custom generally was not what it used to be. After a lack-lustre, uninterested look at the two men in the corner, he relighted a half-smoked cigarette and retired to an inner room, where there was, perhaps, a fire.

The features of the young fellow, who was really about 30, though undistinguished individually, combined to form an attractive countenance, clean shaven and blessed with a frank and ready smile. Something about him—possibly the white cloth knotted about his neck—suggested the engine room. As a matter of fact he had been a stoker, was now owner of a second engineers' ticket, and was looking forward to obtaining a first's—when the war came. His ship being laid up, he found work on a mine-sweeper as an ordinary seaman. "My fingers didn't like the deck work at first," was apparently his only objection to the change.

He accepted one of Lucky Jack's cigarettes, spat neatly into the sawdust, nodded, took a mouthful of port, and said:—

"I know a man as could tell ye 'bout the Sunburst—only he's in hospital. Ye see, he was on board when she went up."

"Guess your yarn'll suit me well enough, seein' ye saw it happen. Ye did really see it?"

"Sure! But I'm no hand at tellin' what I've seen. Never know where to begin. Besides, there's things I don't ought to tell—and shan't."

"Ho! I understand all that. Ye wasn't on Bob Twenty's trawler at the time, was ye?" said Lucky Jack, fumbling for a leading question.

"No, 'Twas the Balaclava o'—. She went ashore in a gale, month ago, and I got shifted."

"Well?"

"She was a wench, the Balaclava. When she rolled sorter heavy she'd scoop in the water over her lee something shockin'. Maybe ye know her skipper—Dancin' Billy. He——"

"Yes, yes. But tell me, now, when was it the Sunburst went up?"

"Couple o' months ago. 'Twas in the afternoon—gettin' darkish. But I see it all clear enough."

"What did ye see?"

"Her goin' up, bunkers and all."

With an effort Lucky Jack curbed his impatience and said softly: "S'pose ye tell me all what happened that day, except, of course, what it wouldn't be right to tell."

The young fellow pushed his cap back and scratched his head, thoughtfully.

"Well," he said at last, "we got up anchor in the first minute o' the dawn——"

"Anchored, was ye?"

"Always lays inshore o' nights. No use lookin' in the dark for things ye can't see in the daylight."

"Right! Go ahead!"

"Well, we followed the A ship, a destroyer, to the place where we had discovered mines previous day. 'Twas a fine mornin', wi' a fresh breeze. A little bit o' sea on, but nothin' to speak o'. The place being marked, we picked it up quick and easy."

He paused so long that Lucky Jack's lips were shaping to utter a "Well?" Then, abruptly, he resumed, every now and then switching his telling into the present tense.

"So A ship drops her anchor, and us trawlers get in touch wi' our chums, takes our positions accordin' to orders, and prepares our tackle. There was just enough sea for to make the fixin' o' the sweep a ticklish job. Our end bein' fast to the kite, we floats a buoy wi' a line to our chum, and so, at last, after some cussin' our chum gets his end o' the sweep. I'm no good at explainin', and ye'll just ha' to make the most of it. . . . Well, then, we starts ahead, the three pair o' us. This time 'twas a case o' bustin' up a whole field, which was in an extra bad place for navigation. Couldn't tell yet its exact size, but seemed to me 'twas some miles long, but not so broad. So there we was steamin' along wi' our lookouts hurtin' their eyes, though, to be sure, there was small chance o' spottin' anything, unless, maybe, a mine what had been badly moored—and even so, 'twould ha' shown—little o' itself in that sea, till too late. However, 'tis best to obey instructions, every word; saves havin' to cuss yerself later on." The speaker finished his port and took a packet of cigarettes from the lining of his cap.

"'Nother drop?" Lucky Jack hospitably inquired.

"You ha' one wi' me—and then no more. That stuff makes me too—thirsty. Used to drink anything, but there's the wife and two kiddies, and so on. Them kiddies. . . ."

At the end of three minutes Lucky Jack gently but firmly interposed.

"Was it long afore ye come upon the mines?"

"Oh, the mines! . . . Why, we was most curious unlucky that day. We sweep and we sweep for hours and hours, and gets nothin at all. And in the same time the old Sunburst and her chum gets seventeen!"

"By God!" murmured Lucky Jack.

"'Twas good enough sweepin'. Two of 'em went off under water, and one just as he was coming to top. 'Twas a spouter!"

"And ye would ha' to shoot the rest?"

"Every darn one. Good fun, too. Some goes down bubblin', others goes up in fire and smoke, wi' the noise o' big guns. One of the sweepers got rather near, and she hadn't a whole glass left in the wheel-house, and her skipper fell flat. Only the concussion, ye understand. Powerfulish things they are. Well, as I was tellin' ye, we was most curious unlucky. In the afternoon, 'bout 4 o'clock, we did sweep up one o' the mines, and a good rifle shot from the mate hits him fair on a horn and send him to glory. We all says the luck has turned, but next minute or so we somehow fouls our propeller wi' the hawser, and has to lay to. . . . So there we was, workin' like blazes to get the jammed thing clear, and wonderin' how soon we'd drift on to a mine. And we felt like blushin' fools, too, at gettin' put out o' action in such a softlike way. However, A ship orders our chum to give us a tow out o' the danger zone, and we was makin' ready for that—when the thing happened." Here the narrator halted to relight his cigarette, and, having done so, seemed to forget the matter in hand.

"Go ahead, mate."

"Oh, well, then—well, ye've got to understand that the Sunburst and her chum was 'bout a mile away to the west'ard. They'd got no more mines fer an hour or so. They was coming towards us, and I remember we was all feelin' sorter jealous, for they'd broke the records at that time, anyway. But I can't tell ye what made me look up from the line I was gettin' ready . . . But I looks up, and there's the old Sunburst a-spewin' up her inside wi' fire and reek, and in the smoke, high up, I sees black things fallin'—fallin' machinery and coals and maybe worse. Then the bang comes, and everybody looks; and then there's never a sound for a longish time. . . . The mine had exploded 'gainst her starboard side, just below the winches. 'Tis likely her bows had missed it by a foot or so, and she had slid past till one o' its horns touched her, then——well, that's all."

"But," said Lucky Jack, after a moment, "what did ye do? What did the other sweepers do?"

"Why, of course, they all started top-speed for the Sunburst. But A ship hoots for 'em to stop. S'pose she was right, fearin' they'd go slap 'into other mines. But what the hell did anybody care for mines then? Well, 'twas boats then. Ours was in the water 'bout as soon as the skipper give the word; and volunteers wasn't half out o' his mouth when the boat was manned. Dunno exactly how I got there. Didn't drop nor jump—just tumbled, I s'pose—and next I know, I had an oar in me hand. Don't think none o' us ever pulled so hard in our lives, and when someone in another boat, losin' his head, yells 'Mine ahead!' we just keeps on. 'Twas no mine, after all; just something blowed out o' the poor old Sunburst. And there she was heelin' over, half her side tore away, and her inside still smokin' and I thinks I hear the sea roarin' into her. She lasted but a few minutes. Went down wi' small fuss."

"And the chaps on board her?"

"Our boat took three from the water, and another boat took one, badly hurt. The rest we never saw no signs o'. We saved the skipper. His leg was smashed something cruel. Some o' us felt sickish. Doctors is still tryin' to save it for him; but they makes no promises."

"If 'twas saved, think he'd go back to the sweepin'?"

"Couldn't say. There was a skipper from —— got blowed up, but not sore hurt, and as soon as he was fit he offered hisself again, and they took him. But once he was 'mong the mines again he found his nerve was all broke, so he had to give up. 'Tis a curious job, the mine sweepin'. Well, now,"—the young fellow rose—"must say so long, wishin' ye best o' luck."

"Goin' back to the sweeper now?"

"Got to go to the shops. Christmas, ye know; and then kiddies 'll be startin' to look for the postman."

"Not seen 'em for awhile, I s'pose?"

"Five weeks to-morrow."

Lucky Jack opened the door. "We'll be lyin' here over Christmas day. Where are ye eatin' yer Christmas dinner?"

The young fellow smiled. "I doubt 'twill be 'mong the mines," he said. "So long."—London Chronicle.

War Possibilities.

Here are some of the things the naval and military authorities of England may do under the defense of the Realm Act, recently passed by parliament:

Take possession of any land, buildings, gas, electric or waterworks, or sources of supply, horses, automobiles or any other means of transportation.

Cause any buildings, statues, or any property to be moved or destroyed and order the inhabitants to leave any given area necessary to use for military or naval purposes.

Close saloons entirely or during specified hours.

Arrest or order the arrest of, without warrant, any suspected person.

The following are some of the things set out in the act, which a Briton may not do:

Loiter near a railroad bridge.

Give or sell liquor to a soldier or sailor on duty.

Spread reports by word of mouth or writing, near a defended area, likely to create alarm among the troops or civilian population.

Light fires or display lights of any description on hill tops or other high ground or buildings without permission.

Tamper with or loiter near any telegraph or telephone lines.

The act provides that civilians ignoring a military demand to "halt" may be shot down without a second challenge, and courtmartial shall deal with offenses against the military laws, the tribunal having power to inflict sentences of imprisonment for life.—Exchange.

Warned Against Coffee.

Once upon a time people wanted state wide prohibition of coffee. In his book, "London in English Literature," Percy H. Boyton says of the old coffee houses:

"As the number of them increased broadsides appeared against them. One was entitled "The Woman's Petition Against Coffee," and it asserted that coffee drinking encouraged idling and talkativeness and let men to trifle away their time, scald their chops and spend their money, all for a little base, black, thick, nasty, bitter, nauseous puddle water!"

The Sihlwald, or city forest of Zurich, Switzerland, adds to the town's revenues $7.20 per acre a year, reducing the amount needed to be raised through taxation by more than $12,000.

"Catarrhozone" Prevents Bad Colds Strengthens Weak Irritable Throats

Employs Nature's Own Methods and is Invariably Successful

Few will escape a cold this winter, but, alas! many colds run into Catarrh.

Neglected Catarrh is the straight gateway to consumption.

Catarrhozone is a germ-killer—destroys microbes that cause Catarrh.

It heals and soothes, relieves the cough, gives throat and lungs a chance, cleanses the nostrils, clears out the phlegm.

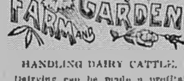
You feel better in an hour.

In a day you're greatly relieved, and on goes the curing of Catarrhozone till you're well.

No treatment so direct. Catarrhozone goes right to the spot—acts quickly, cures thoroughly catarrh, bronchitis and all throat affections.

"Nothing could kill a cold so fast as Catarrhozone," writes Amey E. Snelling, from St. Johns. "Last month I had a frightful cold in the head, suffered from itching nose, running eyes and torturing headache. Ten minutes with "Catarrhozone" inhaler gave relief and in one hour I was well of my cold. Catarrhozone I consider a marvel."

Carry "Catarrhozone" inhaler in your pocket or purse—take it to church, to the theatre—to work—use it in bed. It prevents and cures all manner of nose and throat ills. Complete outfit, guaranteed $1.00; small size 50c.; sample size, 25c.; at dealers everywhere.



HANDLING DAIRY CATTLE.

Dairying can be made a profitable industry, and it can be the source of failure. We need dairying to conserve our soil, to better utilize our labor throughout the year, to turn into profit our low-priced forage crops, and to provide a sure and steady cash income.

Success in dairying depends not only on the cost of feed and the price received for the product, but also on the individuality of the man and of the cows. To be profitable the cow should produce as a daily average for ten months 2½ to three gallons of milk, testing 4 to 5 per cent. fat. Three gallons of 4 per cent. milk means one pound of butter fat per day. This should bring an average price throughout the year of 28 cents, or $84 for 300 days. In addition to this she will produce skim-milk worth about a third as much as the butter fat, for feeding to calves, pigs and chickens. There is also the value of the manure, and the calf, which should total $25 or more per year.

The most profitable ration to feed such a cow would consist of pasture, silage, alfalfa and a carving amount of mixed grain, consisting of bran, cottonseed meal, and corn, milo or kaffir. Silage is a very valuable feed when pasture is short. In fact, many dairymen consider it indispensable. If it is not available, its place will have to be taken by green soiling crops, supplemented in the winter by some such feed as dried beet pulp. Such feeding will mean a total cost of $60 per year, divided about equally between grain and roughage. Thus it will be seen that, if $5 per month is to be paid on the purchase price of the cow, what is left of the cream check will scarcely pay for the feed that must be bought, and the farmer must look to the profit from the skim-milk to get some measure of pay for his labor. The above estimates are for a good cow. A poor cow might do little or no better than the make her own payments, and such a cow would never become profitable. A really profitable herd can only be built up by keeping an accurate check on the production of each cow and discarding the poor ones. Many a dairy herd would yield a larger net profit if a third, or in some cases, a half, were sold for butcher stock.

Aside from cows, the necessary material equipment will consist of a separator, if the cream is to be sold or churned, the ordinary utensils for handling the milk, and a shelter for the cows, a good roof with three sides enclosed, is sufficient in our climate. A silo and a good sanitary floor in the milking stable are also essential to the best results.

Cows do not, as a general thing, eat more food than they can properly digest. The more food consumed the more milk produced. The greater the amount of protein in the ration, the larger the milk flow. The great secret of high dairy production is the cow with an enormous capacity for assimilating food.

The body of the cow is warmed by the food it consumes. If through exposure to cold or rain, the temperature of the body is reduced, more food will be needed to keep up the inside warmth. If this demand is very great, there will be little or none left for milk production.

Cottonseed meal fed to dairy cows produces hard butterfat. Linseed meal and gluten produce soft butterfat.

Carrots have a feeding value far beyond the nutriment they contain. They aid digestion.

Experiments made some years ago show that when whole corn was fed to cows, 22 per cent. was unmasticated; when fed to heifers, 10 per cent., and when fed to calves, 6 per cent. Chemical analysis showed no change in composition of the unmasticated parts, consequently it is safe to assume that the animal receives no benefit from grain that passes through the digestive tract unaltered.

According to feeding trials with dairy cows, alfalfa can be made to take the place of at least one-half of the grain usually fed. As the nutrients can be produced much more cheaply with alfalfa than with grain, the cost of milk may be considerably reduced by its use.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS.

A good supply of salt and ashes for hogs should not be neglected. If wood ashes are available, the hogs should have all they will eat. When not convenient to feed ashes, charcoal is a good substitute, and even soft coal will be eaten for want of something better. Hogs are never injured by eating all the ashes they want, but it is not safe to give large quantities of salt to animals not accustomed to it. The salt and ashes mixture should be kept in a low box under cover, where it will be protected from rain, and it should consist of about two quarts salt for each bushel ashes. Many feeders add a few ounces of copperas to this mixture. Free access to such a mixture will preserve the health of the hogs, and sows which have had an abundance of such food rarely eat their young.

Salt is about as necessary to the system of sheep as food. Sheep are best judges of how much salt they need, hence it should be placed where they can reach it at all times. The old-time way of regularly salting them is all right, but it is better to give them access to it at will. Where sheep are not salted regularly they are liable to partake of too much of it at a time, and sometimes dropsical conditions are the result.

Not infrequently valuable trees are killed or seriously injured by using them for anchors, for guy wires, or for clothesline posts. If a tree is to be used for this purpose only temporarily, several blocks of inch board two inches wide should be placed around the trees, over which the wire may pass. This method is not safe for more than two or three years. A better way is to screw a large screw hook into the side of the tree, to which the wire may be attached, or for heavy anchorage a bolt with a hook at one end may be put through the tree—wire attached to this.

By selecting a good beef bull, of some particular breed and giving careful attention to the raising of calves, one can start with common-grade cattle and in a few years' time build up a good herd of either beef or dairy type, whichever is aimed at.

If one horse will pull and the other will not, it is advised to hitch the balky horse's inside trace to the tongue to the inner end of the other horse's single-tree, then hitch the puller's inside trace across tongue to inner end of balker's single-tree. The balky horse will be forced to pull.

It has been asserted by some dairymen that the feeding of crushed oats to cows will improve the flavor of milk. To ascertain the correctness of this theory a series of experiments was made by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture at the experimental dairy farm at Beltsville. Six cows were used in the experiment; three were fed a grain ration of cornmeal, bran and cottonseed meal; the other three were fed a grain mixture of five parts crushed oats and one part cottonseed meal. A number of samples of milk from the cows fed these rations were submitted to various persons in the dairy division and they were asked to indicate their preference. In all 50 opinions were passed on various samples. Of these 16 showed a preference for the milk from cows fed on crushed oats, 25 preferred that from the bran and corn rations, while 9 expressed no choice. The results show that in these rations not only was there no marked difference in favor of the crushed oats as a feed to improve flavor, but, if anything, the ration containing bran and corn was more successful in producing a fine-flavored milk.

EVER FEEL "DOPY" AFTER MEALS?

At times we all feel dull and heavy. Just one thing to do—relax the bowels and cleanse the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Unclean matter is flushed out, the liver is toned, blood is purified and at once you feel better. Good health and jovial spirits are quickly found in this celebrated medicine. Enormous benefits follow the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in every case; they are very mild, very prompt and guaranteed by the makers. Insist on getting Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25 cents per box everywhere.

A Home Industry.

An ear of sweet corn on the average dining-car and hotel a la carte bill costs 25 cents. Considering this, canning corn on the cob for the market might prove a very profitable investment for a thrifty housekeeper and bring to her considerable pin money.

One advantage of sweet corn canned on the cob over other canned corn is that all the best food values are kept with the cob. In cutting corn off, the germ quality of the kernel, which keeps up its standard, is usually lost. This germ quality is the part of the corn that is sought by rats and mice when they look for food in the corn bin, and is the most vital part. Much of the corn is also lost [illegible] when it is cut from the cob.

The happiness of your life depends upon the quality of your thoughts: therefore, guard accordingly.—Marcus Aurelius.

For You—a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor? It's a fact. Do you know that proper [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Write us today. Mention this paper. [illegible]

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited
SWANSEA ONTARIO

The Housekeeper

To remove the unpleasant odor of onion from your hands, try rubbing them with freshly-cut potato.

To remove paint stain, soak in turpentine till soft then rub with alcohol.

A great comfort to a housewife is a white oilcloth apron. Get the wide kind and cut out an apron that goes over the shoulders and well around the body and then bind the edge all around with white tape. When doing dirty work this apron is a wonderful protection, is sanitary, and may be easily cleaned. Try one.

To make silver polish, take one pound of whiting, pour over it a pint of boiling water, and when cold add one ounce of ammonia. This will keep bottled or in a glass for a long time.

To make a lotion for chapped hands, mix together one-half ounce of glycerine, two ounces of rose water and one-half dram of benzoin.

Glycerine applied to the glass stoppers of bottle will prevent them sticking.

Heat a lemon thoroughly before squeezing it and you will obtain twice as much juice.

Paint may be removed from windows by applying hot vinegar.

Onions will fry more readily if dipped in milk after slicing.

At the seashore it is often a question of how to save bedding from rusting. Try painting the springs with the same aluminum paint used for the radiators.

Apples pared, cored and set into a dish with sugar and water, to bake until tender, but not broken, are delicious served with custard poured over them.

Paint may be removed from windows with hot vinegar.

Half a pound each of soft soap, sand and whiting, simmered gently in a pint of water for half an hour and kept in a jar, is handy for scrubbing boards and pans.

When boiling beans do not put in salt till beans are nearly cooked, otherwise they will split and crack.

By taking a lemon and cutting it in two and squeezing the juice into the dish water, no soap is needed. The lemon will cut all grease and in a few days' time the silver, such as knives, forks and spoons, will become bright as new. All dark spots will also disappear from pitchers and cups. Use the lemon over and over again.

Finding Relief She Tells Others

MRS. W. J. MALONEY TOOK DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FOR BACKACHE.

She Had Tried Numerous Other Medicines, But Found No Relief Till She Used the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Barachois W[illegible] March [illegible] Maloney, a well known resident of this place, is recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to [illegible] Kidney Trouble. In an interview Mrs. Maloney says:

"After suffering for [illegible] years with backache and trying many remedies without obtaining relief, I read about Dodd's Kidney Pills and decided to try them.

"After using two boxes I was greatly benefitted, and I recommend them to other sufferers. [illegible] for my little girl [illegible]"

Mrs. Maloney [illegible] backache [illegible] Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her Kidney trouble and that was the cause of her backache. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure diseased Kidneys. Cured Kidneys do their work and strain all the impurities out of the blood. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so many diseases that are caused by impure blood.

As to Mistakes.

The people who make mistakes lead the world.

The perfect people work for them—running errands and counting columns of figures.

Only trifles are always true. Every great and serious truth has an obverse side which is also true.

Professor William James was the greatest psychologist of our time, but the best he could do in defining truth was this:

"The truth is simply what will work."

Whatever is may not necessarily be right, in spite of Pope, but whatever is is. That is the main point. And it is every man's job to accept the laness and get down to business.

Most men have the wrong location, have taken up the wrong profession, have failed to improve the opportunities for education they had in youth, have not married the woman ideally suited to them, have not the money, influence and position they need to show what's in them.

And they are of two classes. One class sits around the loafing places and tells its woes and whistles and pities itself. The other plucks up, forgets it, takes the situation as it is and makes the best of things.

The genius is not the man who never made mistakes, who had his chance thrust on him who was endowed and all that; he is the man who had no chance and was not gifted but who took the raw material of life and fate as he found it and made something fine out of it.

The only perfect person you will ever meet is the perfect fool.

The faultless, they are the biggest frauds of us all.—Rockford (Ill.) Register Gazette.

CIVIC INDIFFERENCE.

(Rochester Herald)

A city that has a bad set of municipal officials may owe them to a bad charter that confuses and obscures official responsibilities. But it is more likely to owe them to the civic indifference of the members of the community. When this is the fact, every form of government will be bad government for the city. There is no cure that does not begin with the citizen himself.

HONEST, AT LEAST.

(Detroit Free Press)

One point must be counted to our Canadian neighbor for righteousness. The verdict at Toronto was "Justifiable homicide." That is honest, at least. It doesn't dodge behind subterfuges like brainstorms and convenient insanity. If a man deserves death for assailing a woman, why should he or she who inflicts the just punishment be called crazy?

Although it is strong in taste and odor, whale meat is being extensively made use of in Japan, both canned and fresh.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM

The Disease is Always Rooted in the Blood, Which Must Be Made Rich and Pure.

There are still many people who imagine that rheumatism can be cured by liniments and rubbing, overlooking the medical fact that the trouble is rooted in the blood. Rheumatism can only be cured by cleansing and enriching the blood, thus driving out of the system the poisonous acids which cause the rheumatic pains. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure the most obstinate cases of rheumatism because they go straight to the root of the trouble in the blood. Every dose helps to make rich, red blood and this new blood expels the poisonous acid bringing health and comfort to the tortured victim. Do not waste time and money in liniments and outward applications. Give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and thus drive the disease out of your system. Here is proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can do in cases of this kind. Mr. Richard Palmer, Wroxeter, Ont., says: "For months my life was made miserable through a combined attack of rheumatism and sciatica. The rheumatism seemed to settle in all my joints and the sciatica pains were so great that I could scarcely hobble about. I am a farmer and as you can understand that in my condition I was unable to do my ordinary work. Neither doctors nor various remedies I took did me any good. Finally I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and for this I have much to be thankful for, as after taking a few boxes the pains began to decrease and by the time I had taken nine boxes every twinge of both the rheumatism and the sciatica had disappeared and I was able to work as well as usual, and have not lost a day through illness since. I am thoroughly grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

It is the curing of just such cases as these that has given Dr. Williams' Pink Pills their world-wide popularity. You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Too Much for the Cabs.

[illegible]

The Bank Graveyard.

In the heart of the City, just behind the Bank of England, [illegible] a graveyard [illegible] in 1780, [illegible] was attacked by a mob, called attention to the need [illegible] the defences [illegible] church, having the peculiar name of St. Christopher-le-Stocks, was in a military sense a source of danger, and an act of Parliament was passed to enable the directors to purchase the church and its appurtenance. This, now tastefully laid out, is called the "bank garden." In it is the largest lime tree in London.—London Standard.

CARDINAL FACTS

Everybody can do a little.

Every man should do what he can.

Every woman should do what she can.

Improved production means increased production.

Two people [illegible] be an improvement on those of one.

Canada's future depends upon our actions of to-day.

In serving the Empire we are serving ourselves.

Markets are not created, won and held in a day.

Now is the time to prove ourselves the granary of the Empire.

We have the soil, we have the resources, we must have the energy to use them to the greatest advantage.

As we acquit ourselves at this crisis, so will be our prosperity and place in the years to come.

With more than half of productive Europe engaged in war the large sections decimated, other countries, and especially those forming the British Empire, will have to make up large deficiencies, both in foodstuffs and raw material.

Great Britain imported 71,7[illegible]6,962 bushels of wheat from Canada in 1913. She imported 86,016,820 bushels from the United States. She also imported 12,789,969 bushels from Russia and Central Europe.

Great Britain imported [illegible] bushels of barley in 1913 from Russia, Roumania, Turkey, Germany and Austria. From Canada she took 5,977,533 bushels, or less than a fourth.

Great Britain took 22,454,681 bushels of oats from Germany, Russia and Roumania in 1913, of which one-half was from her bitterest and most savage enemy of to-day.

Great Britain imported 185,120,000 bushels of wheat from August 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914. Russia exported 163,-267,000 bushels and Roumania 46,643,-600 bushels in the same time. How far is Canada going to help to make up the deficiency?

Great Britain imported from August 1, 1912 to July 31, 1914, 64,307,000 bushels of oats. Russia exported 34,160,000 bushels, Germany 25,077,000, and Roumania 17,198,069 bushels. Who is going to make up this deficiency of 77,000,000 bushels?

THE POULTRY WORLD

INCUBATOR EQUALS THE HEN.

A few years ago but few raising small flocks could be induced to resort to artificial hatching and rearing. Incubation meant a deep mystery far from being solved. Failures to secure big hatches, except by expert operators, was common. Machines in those days were far from being perfect. Even to-day there is still much to be learned from incubation, and machines can still be improved but the foundation has been laid, and the standard incubators on the market this year are dependable hatchers in the hands of even the beginner who will faithfully follow the directions that come with each make of incubator. All machines are not alike, although the principle of heat and air must be nearly alike. The hot air incubator has its followers, as well as the hot water machine, and both have made successful hatchers.

While the improvements in incubators have been rapid within the past few years, the beginner must not think that they are self-regulating. One does not have to sit up all night to watch the heat, as in the old days, but from time to time regulation is necessary. There are moisture machines and non-moisture, and both give results, especially when conditions are right, but larger and better hatches can be obtained when needed. At times conditions are such that moisture is needed in or around the machine. The moisture question is still unsolved, and the beginner must use his judgment in the matter, taking into consideration the conditions where the machine is run.

Incubators can be run in almost any place and fair results obtained, but the better the hatching conditions are, such as a clear, well ventilated cellar, with little change in the temperature, the better the results will be. A safe rule with beginners is 103 degrees of heat for the 21 days, especially during the early spring. Too much heat or too little are errors to be avoided, especially should the heat be uniform the first ten days. Many weak chicks are hatched, because the operator has allowed the machine to run high for a time, and then low.

Once regulated in a well-ventilated cellar the high-grade machine will run at an even temperature, especially up to the [illegible] will cause the temperature to gradually go up. [illegible] regulated, and the even 103 degrees kept for the 21 days. Cooling the eggs once a day can begin on the tenth day and gradually increased according to the temperature of the cellar. In winter and early spring [illegible]

[illegible]

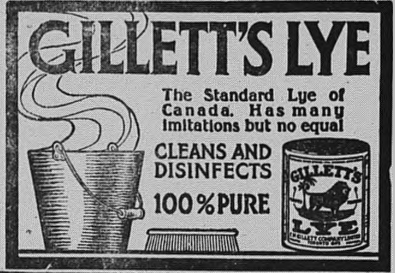
[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

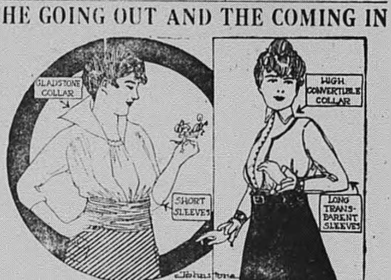
[illegible] for its [illegible] a combination [illegible] table qualities.

[illegible] should not [illegible] Very cheap stock cannot [illegible] as good as that of a higher [illegible]



GILLETT'S LYE
The Standard Lye of Canada. Has many imitations but no equal
CLEANS AND DISINFECTS
100% PURE
GILLETT'S LYE

THE GOING OUT AND THE COMING IN



THIS BLOUSE GIVES WAY TO— THIS ONE.

ACHING BONES AND SORE JOINTS CURED! ALL RHEUMATIC TENDENCIES DESTROYED!

Away Go the Crutches, Every Sufferer Made Well Quickly.

Old [illegible] is usually afflicted with rheumatism. Very few [illegible] escape its torture.

[illegible] the [illegible] of others it marks the effects [illegible] knuckle [illegible] it does this quickly and [illegible]

"Nerviline" [illegible] externally [illegible] ing through the tissues, you feel it drawing out the congestion, feel it sink in deeper and deeper till at last it touches the core of the joint or the heart of the muscle affected.

You won't stay in pain with Nerviline—no one ever does. Just try it—you will be amazed at its magical power over pain, a power it gets from the extracts and juices of certain rare herbs and roots it contains. It's harmless—any child can use Nerviline, can rub it on for a sore throat, for a bad cold, or stiff neck, or earache. No family remedy half so useful.

The large 50 cent bottle is the most economical; trial size 25 cents. All dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston.

Forgetting the Wrong.

Caesar was so ready to forgive that even Cicero, who was by no means a constant friend to him, relates, as a singular proof of his noble heart, that he never used to forget anything except the wrong done to him. Indeed, to pardon is a most beautiful revenge; but to forget is still more beautiful.—Petrarch.

GET AT THE CAUSE.

(Guelph Mercury.)

Ohio has a bill before its legislature to compensate families of drunkards from funds collected from the liquor interests. Very nice, but it would be much better to cut off the supply of drunkards. The best form of compensation for any family is a sober husband.

THE WAY OF THE FAIR ONES.

(Ohio State Journal)

Even after the styles permit a woman to have a couple of pockets, she still lugs around her handbag for fear she may bulge out a little where she doesn't want to.

A Seaforth, Ont., Home, painted with Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint

LIFE INSURANCE FOR YOUR HOUSE

Unpainted wood means decay. Not to paint your house, means a constant expense for repairs. Paint protects against wear and weather. When you take out our "100% Pure Policy", your house is insured against decay. Such paint protection resists the destructive effects of climate and temperature, besides giving beauty and distinction to the home and value to your whole property.

MARTIN-SENOUR "100% PURE" PAINT

means life insurance for your home. The genuine White Lead, Oxide of Zinc, Pure Colors and Linseed Oil—ground to extreme fineness by powerful machinery—form a combination that protects against decay.

"100% Pure" Paint makes protection sure. It spreads easy, covers completely and is the cheapest in the end because it covers most space per gallon. In all colors for spring painting.

Write for a copy of our amusing book, "The House That Jack Built". It's full of pictures, rhymes and reason, that you will enjoy as well as the children. We'll also give you the name of our nearest dealer-agent.

ADDRESS ALL ENQUIRIES TO

The MARTIN-SENOUR Co.
LIMITED
655 Drolet Street, Montreal.

MARTIN-SENOUR PAINT & VARNISHES

MARTIN-SENOUR SPIC SPAN FINISHES

For the Floors and Windows

OF YOUR HOME

With house-cleaning time near we want to emphasize the importance of our stock of Home Furnishings.

The fact that we import direct from Great Britain gives us a tremendous advantage in variety, in new designs and particularly in values.

Let us show you our stock of Linoleums, Floor Oilcloths, Floor Rugs, Lace Curtains and Curtain Net.

Handsome Floor Rugs

This Spring we have gathered together a splendid lot of imported Scotch Floor Rugs in Wiltons and Velvets, English Brussels and Tapestry Rugs. The designs are very pretty. The colors rich and the prices moderate when you take into consideration the qualities we offer.

Sizes 2½ yards by 3 yards to 3½ x4½ at $6.50 to $22 50.

Linoleums and Oilcloths.

A special big assortment of these sanitary and durable floor coverings. Attractive new patterns. Linoleums 4 yards wide at $1.75, $2.00 & $2.25 a running yard.

Tile patterns in linoleum for bath rooms, 2 yard wide at $1.00.

Canadian Oilcloths for floor, for stairs and for rug borders, in oak, floral and block patterns.

Lace Curtains, Curtain Nets and Draperies.

New imported curtains in ivory, cream, ecru and white in fine English Nets with insertion borders or floral designs—2½x3 and 3½ yards long at 50c, 75c, $1.00 to $6.00 a pair.

A splendid line of [illegible] nets in deep cream and ivory in the newest designs at 15c, 20c, 25c to 60c a yard.

Easter Furnishings for Men

Men's Suits, Young Men's Suits and Boy's Suits—without question the choicest collection of clothing we have ever shown and while we specialize on Navy Serges and fine Worsteds our lines of low and medium priced suits are of a very special kind, substantial, good looking clothes and well-lined and tailored.

Something Special in Navy Blue Serge Suits.

The cloth is a special soft finished serge of splendid weight in a Vienna finish which will not rub smooth and shiny. Coat and vest in up-to-date cut and trousers fitted for belt. The best lining and tailoring. We will match this suit against any $18.00 or $20.00 outfit. Our special leader at $15.00.

Easter Ties

Bought specially for Easter trade—Newest colorings and shapes at 50c.

Spring Shirts.

Cluett's Arrow shirts in new Spring patterns.—$1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.

Men's Spring Hats

In new hard and soft shapes—$1.25 $1.50, $2.00 & $2.25.

Cretonnes & Art Sateens

Cretonnes and Art Sateens in very pretty patterns at 12½c, 15c & 25c a yard.

STEPHAN BROS.

THE SAVOY CAFE

NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP

QUICK LUNCH

SPECIAL DINNER

Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.

BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS WITH FRIED POTATOES

BREAD AND BUTTER

PIE

WITH TEA OR COFFEE.

25 cts.

SPRING

Millinery Opening

Thursday and Friday

Mar. 25 & 26 and Following Days

You are cordially invited to inspect our Paris styles in Spring Millinery. Our milliner, Miss Mathers, has filled some of the best positions on the continent, and we are prepared to give you the very latest in up-to-date millinery.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY

The Rife Block — Walkerton

CHEPSTOW

On the 13 inst, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Long was filled with some of their numerous neighbors, friends and well wishers when the following address was read and presented.

To Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Lang.

Dear friends and neighbors.

In view of the fact that you and part of your family are now soon to leave us for your new home in the village of Chepstow we a few of your friends and neighbors have assembled here tonight to bid you farewell and to assure you of our sincere at your departure from here, you having resided amongst us for at least forty-eight years, and during that period you and your mistress have showen yourself as good and loving neighbors always ever ready to give a kind word and do others a kind favor and offering a helping hand when such services were required. We wish you Almighty God's Blessing and that you may enjoy every happiness in your new home for many years to come. Although you are leaving our neighborhood where you were an ideal and successful farmer for so many years, we are pleased that you will not be very distant from us, we are also pleased that you have received the appointment as an agent for the Formosa Fire Insurance Company in this district, we assure you that we shall always be pleased to have you call on us when passing through our vicinity on business or otherwise we certainly shall be pleased to receive you with an glad hand and wish you every success.

As a slight evidence of our esteem and love for you we humbly beg that you will accept this writing desk and silver tea pot as a small token of our esteem. We hope that you will accept this, not for its intrinsic value but as a token of love and esteem.

Dated this 13th day of March 1915, and signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors by:—

Ferdinand Graf, Alois Ernewein.

After the address being read, Mrs. Lang made a very appropriate reply and thanked his numerous friends and neighbors for the costly present given to him and Mrs Lang and assured his many friends that they appreciated it very much and that it would be a kind remembrance for them during their life time.

Mr. Wendal Wittman purchased Mr. Peter Graf's beautiful residence in the east end of the burg. Mr. Graf and daughter Mary intend leaving for Battleford, Sask.

Messrs Frank, Alex and Philip Ernewein left for Young Sask.

Miss Lizzie Herziger of the Power house, Cargill, spent Sunday at here.

Maple Syrup making is in full swing in this locality.

Mr. Duncan McKinnon returned to Detroit, Mich., today after spending a couple of weeks with relatives here

As John the telephone lineman who has been snow-shoeing all along, but as there is no snow now, he intends taking another course in school. A new beginner generally has to take the lower room.

FORMOSA

Charles Waechter sold his apple trees near the mill to A. Oppenger and A. Zimmer and they spit them up into firewood, the orchard was about 60 years old.

David Kuntz of Vancouver is visiting his relatives here, he is a son of the late Peter Kuntz.

Jos. Strausse came back from Waterloo county last week.

J M Fischer's auction sale last week Thursday, was a success in high prices

Mr. Andrew was here on business last Friday.

The Ice is moving now for the fresh fish.

Mrs. John Hundt who was visiting her daughter in Perth came home last week,

Jos. Beingessner who has been here for a long time left last week for Guelph.

Mr. Jos Bitter of Walkerton was here on business on Wednesday of last week.

The sleighs and cutters gave it up, the wagons and buggies are going now.

Newspaper agents were in town, very often this winter, they came from the cities.

SCHOOL REPORT

Form IV—Doris Schwartz, Alfred Hehn, Justine Weiler, Henry Hauck, Florence Montag, Cecelia Weiss, Loretta Montag, Rita Waechter, Joseph Obermeyer, Elizabeth Zimmer, Clara Weishn, Magdalena Schmuck.

Form III—Leo Kramer, Eugene Fischer, Stanislaus Hoffman, Helen Fedy, Clara Schmorn, Hildegarde Kuntz Rosalia Weiss, John Kramer.

Form II—Marie Schmuck, Joseph Waechter, Olivia Kramer, Clarence Hauck, Nicholas Weiler, Clara Zimmer, Alice Weiler, Johanna Fedy, William Waechter, Rupert Weistar, Richard Kuntz, Edgar Lehmann, Joseph Aultmann, Georgina Kuntz, Marie Hentinger, Alvina Doerr, Clara Oberle Magdalene Duerrer, Mary Weiss, Anthony Brick.

Form I—Edwin Hauck, Henrietta Zettel, Gertrude Zimmer, William Fahrer, Laura Beninger, Matrona Brick, William Massel, Elvira Montag, Judith Weiler, Margaret Kramer Clarence Benninger, Christian Rich, Lidivina Kuntz,

PINKERTON

Mr. Robt. Gale and Mr. Lowe of Alma are visiting the former's parents at the manse.

Miss Margaret Garvey visited her cousin Mary Donnelly on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Murdock Thompson and Miss, Susie, of Glamis visited at Mr. Cecil Garland's on Saturday.

Mr. Russel Fiddis of Elmwood is visiting his brother Mr. Alf Fiddis.

A number of the young people attended the Patriotic carnival in Paisley last Friday evening.

Our genial rink manager closed the skating season here on Saturday evening by holding a fancy dress carnival which was fairly well attended. Quite a number of skaters dressed for the occasion, the ladies costumes being especially pleasing. Something of a panic was created when the fun was at its height by the appearance of a ghost, as it was thought by some to be shades of a devoted patron of the rink who was known to be under the weather and therefore unable to be present in the flesh. Happily, this rumor proved untrue as next day the supposed owner of the ghost made his usual appearance on the street

MILLINERY

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton to call and inspect the new and fashionable Spring Millinery creations now on display.

Mrs. Porteous

Next Door to Hehn's Bakery

Application o Parliament.

Notice is hereby given that an application will be made by the Corporation of the town of Walkerton to the Legislative Assembly of the province of Ontario at the next ensuing session thereof for an act to consolidate the outstanding debenture and other indebtedness of the said town at the rate of $11 000, and authorizing and empowering the Corporation to raise by way of loan the said sum of $11.000 on the credit of its debentures to be issued under the authority of the said act.

That the said debentures shall be payable within thirty years after the issue thereof and shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding six per cent per annum as the said council shall determine. The existing debenture debt of the said town of Walkerton is as follows: and no portion thereof is in arrears:—

Former consolidated debt	$ [illegible] 73
Sewers	4007 14
Waterworks	13798 18
General improvement	7510 28
Bonus loans	1096 38
Public Library	1642 10
Floating debt	1821 59
	$11000 00

The reason for requiring the consolidation of the said debenture debt and for the issue of such debentures is to enable a reduction to be made in the sums to be raised annually for the repayment of the said debt and to enable the Corporation to pay off its floating indebtedness, which was incurred in executing works of a permanent and necessary character.

A. Collins,
Solicitor for Applicant

Dated at Walkerton,
the 11th day of February A. D. 1915

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.
Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "
Cracked Wheat, Farnia, Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.
Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton — Ont

Special this Month

Business Courses

The Walkerton Business College is offering special rates for a three months' commercial course in the following subjects; — Penmanship, Spelling, Arithmetic, Commercial law, Introductory forms to single and double entry, Book-keeping and Typewriting. Now is the time for the young people of this vicinity to improve their education, for further information regarding this course, apply to

P. J. MOLONEY
Principal Walkerton

FOR ICE CREAM
GO TO
Erdman's PHONE No. 100

Suitings, Coatings & Dress Fabrics

See our superb showing of the Weaves and Colorings prescribed by Fashion for, Suits, Dresses and Coats.

Silk Suitings in Faille, oplin, illette and Duckers eaves—All the new shades Sea Gu Grey, Putty, Sand, unset Yellow, Pink, Ivory at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 per yard.

Spring Serges, Worsteds, Tipper ry Tweeds, Gabardines Poplins, overts, Shepherd Che and Broad Cloths. olors—Navy, Belgian Blue, Greer own, Battleship Grey, Pansy Purple and Black and hite— e will be glad to have you view the display. Prices from c to $3.00 yd.

Flounci Edgings, Insertions, A Laces and Embroideries in exquisite weaves and patterns from narrow up to flouncing widths.

New Crepes, Mulls, Muslins, Organdies, Lawns Zephyrs and Ginghams—Beautiful fresh goods for Spring and Summer wear at exceptional prices.

Our new Spring ts and Dresses just in the prettiest and daintiest assortment we have ever shown. Prices 50c t $3.00.

It will be worth your while to see this display in all it's freshness and completeness

McBurney & Co.

[illegible]

Notice To Creditors

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM JOHN BILDSTEIN OF TOWN OF WALKERTON IN THE COUNTY OF BRUCE, BLACKSMITH INSOLVENT.

Notice is hereby given that the above named Insolvent has this day made an assignment to me under R. SO Cap 134 of all his estate for the benefit of his creditors.

The said Creditors are notified to meet at my office on the corner of Durham and Victoria street in the said town of Walkerton on Wednesday the 10th day of March 1915 at one o'clock in the afternoon to receive a statement of affairs to appoint inspectors and for the ordering of the estate generally.

Creditors are requested to file their claims with the assignee before the date of said meeting.

Notice is hereby given that after the twenty fourth day of March 1915, the assignee will proceed to distribute the assets of the Insolvent among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which notice shall have been given to him.

And the Assignee will not be liable for any part of the assets so distributed to any person or persons of whose claims he shall not have had notice.

S. A. Rife,
Assignee

Dated at Walkerton, Feb. 27th. 1915.

THE
Merchants Bank
OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,134

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

Walkerton Markets

Hay	per	ton	$16.00	to.......	$17.00
Oats	"	bsh.	50	".......	65
Wheat	"	"	1,20	to......	1 20
Barley	"	"	00	to.......	05
Potatoes	"	bag	50	".......	50
Butter	"	lb.	28	".......	30
Eggs	"	doz.	18	".......	18
Chicken	"	lb.	12	".......	14
Ducks	"	"	10	".......	14
Turkeys	"	"	15	".......	18

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

First Glimpse of Spring

Every day new home things are popping into view. In the peoples store house cleaning time is just ahead, new rugs draperis are needed This big home store is fairly bulging with interesting and attractive things ready for you for comfort giving, beautifying the home. No store shows more satisfying stocks and none price things more fairly. Special selling events are in evidence every day here during the spring house cleaning season.

RUGS

We have special good values in large size rugs in tapestry axminister.

NEW FLOOR OIL CLOTHS LINOLEUMS

Extra heavy Scotch printed in new block patterns.

Pure groceries alway fresh.

J. H. Appel

Produce Wanted Phone 53

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

V[illegible] No 12

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 25th 1915—8 PAGES

IT IS TIME TO TAKE BLOOD PURIFIER

Penslar

Laxative Blood Alterative

Cleanses the system and renews your strength.

ONE DOLLAR.

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

MILLINERY

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton and vicinity to attend our

SPRING
MILLINERY
OPENINGS
March 19th and 20th

Or at any time most suited to your convenience.

THE ELITE

High Class Millinery
Durham St.

Millinery Novelties
Walkerton

Ask for the
"REXALL"
Remedies for any ailment.
Some Rexa' lers.
"93" Hair Tonic, 50c & $1.00
Dyspepsia Tablets, 25c 50 $1
Excema Ointment 50 & $1.00
Orderlies, 10c 25 & 50c.

SIEVERIGHT'S
DRUGS—KODAKS

"EDISON"
PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson
Jeweller - - Walkerton

Up-To-Date
MEN'S FURNISHINGS

If you are particular about your collars, neckwear, shirts and other accessories that complete the success of a man's apparel, you should come in and make selections here.

Our Successful Tailoring satisfies the most particular people. We can please you too, why don't you let us take your measure today?

Ladies' Suits tailored to order.

G. T. ROURKE
Quality Tailor and
Men's Wear Store
Walkerton, - Ont.

"Looking back-I see I never saw before."
This is the exclamation of satisfied customers.
We have fitted successfully stubborn cases that oth s have failed in.
Satisfaction g aranteed.
Consultation e.

C. A. Fox, Walkerton
Jeweller and Optici

The man who can sit complacently in a barber's chair, on a Saturday night and have his hair cut while a score of fellow mortals are waiting to be shaved has no need of a nerve tonic.

Easter Egg Dyes 5c. at Hunter's.

Easter egg dyes at Sieveright's.

C. P. R. ticket office at Hunter's.

Fine Easter Shirts and Ties—Stephan Bros.

Films and kodaks for Easter at Sieveright's

The "Rexall" store,—Sieveright's Drug Store.

"Rexall" baby cough syrup, 25c. at Sieveright's.

Wear an Eastern Cap— Sold by Stephan Bros.

"Rexall" tooth paste and powder at Sieveright's.

Mr. W. D. Cargill M.P.P. was a visitor here on Saturday.

Mr. R. E. Truax M. P., spent Sunday at his home here.

Mr. R. W. Leslie spent Sunday in Toronto and Hamilton.

Mr. Harrison, of Mildmay, left on Monday for Saskatoon.

Reduced rates for Easter—C. P. R. Ticket Office at Hunter's.

"Rexall" shaving sticks, cream and powder 25c at Sieverights.

The first auto of the season appeared on the streets on Monday.

Boy's Suits for Easter—All new Spring styles—Stephan Bros.

Mr. Jno. Anstett of Cargill renewed acquaintances here last week.

Mr. Walter Booth of Port Elgin, was a visitor here on Thursday.

Miss Henry of Port Elgin is a guest at the home of Mrs. O. E. Klein.

See the men's best Navy Blue Suits ever offered at $15.00—Stephan Bros.

Mr. Arthur Lee of Tara was here this week serving on the grand jury.

See our splendid stock of Imported Linoleums and Floor Rugs—Stephan Bros.

Who brought down the price of meat. — McIlwain. — Schnurr's old stand.

Ladies' Spring Coats—The Season's best styles $6, $8 and $10—Stephan Bros.

Pte. Bert Cartwright of the second Contingent at London, was a visitor here on Sunday.

Mr. P. J. Moloney of the Walkerton Business College was in Peterboro on business, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leslie left on Thursday for a month's visit to Perth Galt and Hamilton.

Prayers for peace were offered in all Roman Catholic churches the world over on Sunday last.

Mrs. W. H. Adams, of Toronto, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Truax.

Miss Mattie Swanson and Miss Bera Pinkney have been added to "The Elite" staff this week.

Mrs. J. H. Watts and Miss Watts returned last week from Ottawa where they have spent the past two months.

Give me a trial order and I will do my best to please you at reasonable price.—McIlwain, butcher —Schnurr's old stand.

Mr. M. Hudson and Miss J. Hudson returned on Thursday last from Beamsville, where they spent the past three months.

Miss Fannie Ostrander, graduate nurse of Toronto, is visiting at the home of her father, Mr J. W. South at Otter Creek.

Rev. Thos Wilson gave his lime-light lecture on the war in Durham Presbyterian church Tuesday, and in Normanby Knox church on Thursday.

We try to please you in choice cuts at a reasonable figure and prompt delivery, as well as cheaper cuts at lower prices,—McIlwain butcher, - Schnurr's old stand.

Rev. D. Walker, pastor of the Methodist church, occupied the pulpit of the Hanover church on Sunday last. He spoke in the interests of the educational work of the church.

Mr. Lou Michael who was visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Michael, for the past three weeks left on Saturday for Quesnel, B. Columbia, where he has accepted a position in a hardware store.

Mr. Jno. Logie a former resident of Brant, died very suddenly at his home in Hanover on Thursday last. The deceased who was about 60 years of age and was a cousin of Messrs Chris. Chas and J. H. Ernest of Walkerton.

Remember we sell everything in the meat line at the lowest possible price, we do not cut off a shoulder steak and make you think that is the regular price of choice steak, by putting it in the window marked at a low price. —McIlwain, butcher,—Schnurr's old stand.

Mr. Jas. Whitehead has taken over the agencies of the several Fire Insurance Companies which were formerly held by Mr. R. J. Hawthorne, who is moving to St. Catherines.

The many friends of Mrs. Guggisberg a former residents of Walkerton, will be sorry to hear of her serious illness in Hamilton where the family have been residing since leaving town.

Mr. S. C. Cooper, editor and proprietor of the Bruce Peninsula News, gave the Telescope a call on Tuesday. Mr. Cooper was here giving evidence in the Parsons vs Hiltedge libel suit at the Spring Assizes.

Congratulations are extended to Ed. S. Hudson who has been successful in purchasing the King College in Brantford and has already taken possession, Ed., for the past year has owned the Hudson College in Peterboro which he disposed of recently for this larger one in Brantford.

Wanted.
Apprentices wanted.—Apply at "The Elite."

Attended Funeral.
Mrs. R. D. Ferguson attended the funeral of her niece, Mrs. Cameron, which took place in Wingham on Tuesday.

Wanted.
One or two girls wanted to set type, or boys to learn the printing trade. Apply at the Telescope office or at the house.

For Sale Or Exchange.
100 acre western farm, Saskatchewan for sale or exchange, 2½ miles from Colegate.—Apply Pleskey's general store, Walkerton.

Wanted
All kinds of cast scrap iron at The Walkerton General Casting Foundry station road. The highest prices will be paid. S. Ellinghausen.

Election in Lucknow.
Two men who are well known in town, John Joynt and J. G. Anderson ex M. P. P., are contesting the reeveship of Lucknow in the election to be held next Monday. This was made necessary by the death of Reeve Murdock a few weeks ago.

Fell on Nail.
Arthur, the ten-year-old son of Mr. A. Everett was the victim of a nasty accident on Thursday last. While playing about the yard, the youngster slipped and fell, alighting on a nail, badly cutting his leg. Six stitches were required to close the gash.

Moving to England.
Mr. and Mrs. Bothel and two daughters who have been residents of Walkerton during the past two years have decided to return to England and will sail for the Old Country about May 1st Their many friends will regret to learn of Mr. and Mrs. Bethel's intended departure

Vagrant Arrested.
Jno. H. Booth, a knight of the road, hailing from nowhere, going nowhere, not looking for work, was taken in tow by Chief Ferguson on Wednesday last and placed in the lock-up. He was later taken before Magistrate Tolton and was sentenced to thirty days in gaol.

Death of Dr. Crowe.
Walkerton business men well learn with regret of the very sudden death of one of Chesleys' most prominent citizens in the person of Dr. Crowe, which occurred on Tuesday morning. The late doctor who was about fifty-five years of age suffered an attack of quinsy, on Monday, which affected his heart with fatal results. He was at one time warden of Bruce county and his demise is throughout the county.

Death of George Farr.
Mr. George Farr a prominent Brant farmer, died at the Bruce County Hospital on Tuesday after but a very short illness from paralysis of the stomach. The deceased who was fifty-years of age is survived by one daughter, Miss Edith, his wife having predeceased him some two years ago. Mr. Jas. Farr of the Durham Road, Brant, is a brother of the deceased. The funeral will be held this (Thursday) afternoon at three o'clock, from Myles' Undertaking Parlors to the C. P. R. station, interment to be made at the Cobourg cemetery.

Wind-up At Ottawa
The end of the session of Parliament is now in sight. Morning and Saturday sittings commenced this week, and so far as the business of the house is concerned, there is nothing to hold the members in the capital after Easter. Ten days more should see the reports of the Boot and Public Accounts Committees tabled. Rapid progress is being made with the estimates and there will be nothing in the supplementaries to justify a halt. The War Revenue Bill will not take long and in this connection it is expected that the date for the collection of the war taxes will be fixed at April 1, the first day of the new fiscal year

For Sale.
Pure bred white wyandottes for sale all laying. Call or write.—Fred Brisian.

Daughters Of The Empire.
At the regular meeting of the Walkerton Chapter I. O. D. E., the treasurer reported the receipt of $50 from the Soldier's Aid Tea Room, which is hereby gratefully acknowledged. The Patriotic service committee reported a shipment of comforts to Red Cross headquarters, among them, being several pairs of socks made by the pupils of Miss Hogg's school. The chapter has sent, in addition to other articles about 500 socks. It was decided to vote an additional $25 to purchase material to be made into hospital supplies, and the committee of nurses who are in charge of this work would be glad if the members especially those who do not knit would come to the work meeting with scissors and tape measure. There will be no meeting on Good Friday.

Boys were A Nuisance.
Mr. Jas O'Connor who recently prosecuted several small boys for trespassing, wishes to have it understood by the public that he did not take this action merely because the youngsters had taken a drink of sap. The location of Mr. O'Connor's property makes it a veritable bonanza to the hungry boys in the fruit season and also in the sap season, and judging from the owner's frame of mind, they have apparently been taking advantage of it. They were so persistent in their special attention to Mr. O'Connor since he moved to town that from an ordinary nuisance, they became a plague and did so much damage that he decided to make an example of some of them by prosecuting them. He however, laid the information against the wrong boys for there is no doubt but that the youngsters who paid the fine were guilty, of no more serious crime than trepassing. His action however, will probably have the desired effect and the youngsters will doubtless remain strictly on the proper side of the fence.

Stole Harness.
John Routledge and John Thyne, two young men of Morris tp., Huron County were brought to Walkerton by Provincial constable Jose Armstrong on Wednesday of last week and lodged in gaol, on a charge of stealing harness from Mr. Anthony Schnurr hotelkeeper of Formosa. The theft was committed on February 19th and suspicion fell upon the two youths who had their horse in the hotel stable that day, and armed with two warrants to arrest and a search warrant, Constable Armstrong on Wednesday paid a visit to their homes where he recovered the stolen harness and arrested the guilty parties. They appeared before Magistrate Tolton for trial on Thursday afternoon and on pleading guilty, as they had a clear record and had good recommendations from their neighbors and friends, the magistrate let them off on suspended sentence, provided they paid all cost or on their failure to do so forwith would be sentenced to three month's imprisonment. As the costs amounted to $50.77, the boys had not the necessary money, but at the opportune moment, the father of young Thyne arrived and paid the shot. Routledg and Thyne felt their position keenly and departed from the courtroom poorer but wiser youths.

The Two By-laws.
This week, we are publishing two by-laws, which the ratepayers of the town will be asked to vote upon, on the 15th day of April. Both are money by-laws, the first to raise the sum of $1500, by the issue of debentures to pay the town's share of the cost of the construction of the one-hundred foot span to the west end bridge, and the second to raise the sum of $5000 by issuing debentures to improve and extend the water works system. It is imperative that both these measures should be approved of by the ratepayers. Should the first by-law not carry it means that the bridge must be paid for from this year's revenue, which would mean a very heavy tax-rate, while by raising the money by debentures and extending the payments over twenty years, it gives the town an easy way of paying for these improvements in these times of financial stringency. The passing of the second by-law is just as important as the first if not more so, as the proposed improvements to be made to the waterworks system will be of benefit to the townspeople in general. When the new wells are drilled, the town will have a better water supply and with the extension of the main in the west ward to Durham st., besides giving the water service to a large number of householders in that ward, we will have a more adequate fire protection, as under present circumstances, should a break occur in the one main, the citizens would be left without any source of supply for domestic purposes and their property would also be left at the mercy of the fire fiend should a fire occur unless the emergency pump, which fills the mains with river water is put in operation. Read both by-laws over carefully and vote for them on April 15th.

War Tax April 1st.
The War Tax Bill is now being considered by the Government and will be passed this week. The date for the commencement of the collection of these extra taxes will probably be set for April 1st., the first day of the new fiscal year.

Six for a Dollar.
A record for law fines was established in the Walkerton police court on Saturday afternoon when Magistrate Tolton imposed a fine of one dollar on the six boys who appeared before him on a charge laid by Mr. Jas O'Connor, each boy being ordered to pay his share of the dollar and the costs of the court. The youngsters were charged with trespassing, being disorderly and destroying property on Mr. O'Connor's premises, but when the case came up for a hearing it was proven that these boys did no damage and were not disorderly, and therefore the last two charges were withdrawn. According to the boys' stories on passing Mr O'Connor's property on Sunday 14th inst. they saw some trees tapped, climbed the fence, took a drink and walked away. In doing so, however, they had trespassed and on pleading guilty were fined as above. Mr. O. E. Klein appeared in behalf of the boys while Mr. A. E. McNab prosecuted.

Death of Rev. Garner.
On Sunday, March 21st., Rev. John Garner passed peacefully away at the home of his son, Mr. E.W. Garner, at the advanced age of 91 years 6 months and 10 days. Although he enjoyed his usual health until the day previous to his death, a coming attack of la grippe proved too much for him to withstand. He was born in 1823 in Patrington, Yorkshire, England His father was the late Rev. John Garner, first missionary Secretary of the Primitive Methodist Church, London, England, whose brothers, William and James were well-known theological authors. His mother, Mary Garner, was an educated lady of mental and moral power. He was educated in Lincoln boarding school, converted at sixteen and at once began to preach. He entered the regular ministry of the Primitive Church in 1841. He was stationed at London, (twice) Isle of Wight, St. Albans and Saffron Walden. He came to Canada in 1848. He has been pastor at Walsingham, Guelph, Reach (twice) Bowmanville, Etobicoke (twice), Markham, Scarboro Laskay, Bolton and Rosemount, superannuating in 1881. As a successful pastor, he was honored with the highest offices in his church, which he filled with dignity and ability. Firmness moderation and charity characterized his utterances. He was a man of striking originality of firm convictions and was a forcible speaker. After his superannuation from the ministry he resided on a farm at Lamlash for a number of years, then moved to Hanover where he spent sixteen years and the remaining five years was spent at the home of his son where he died. Interment took place at Hanover yesterday.

SPRING ASSIZES.

The spring assizes: Mr. Justice Lennox of Toronto presiding, commenced on Tuesday afternoon and are still in progress at the court house. There are five cases on the docket, Parsons vs. Hiltidge.

This, which was the first case to come up for a hearing was a suit for $1000.00 damages for alleged libel brought by Mr. Parsons a farmer of Eastnor township, near Lions' Head, against his neighbor Mr. Hiltidge. The controversy between these two men leading up to and resulting in this case, dated back to January 1914, when a school teacher in their section was charged with indecently assaulting several of his pupils, including a daughter of Mr. Hiltidge. Parsons and Hiltidge aired their views of the case in the columns of the Bruce Peninsula News, published at Lions Head, and one of the letters written by Hiltidge, the plaintiff alleged, was of a libelous nature and he entered action for damage. The case took up all of Tuesday afternoon and evening, the jury bringing in a verdict for the defendant stating that there was no libel, and also ordered the plaintiff to pay the costs of the court. The judge, however, withdrew this order on the part of the jury and this saved the plaintiff a considerable sum.

The second case on the docket was adjourned to the next sitting of the court. This was a case in which Chas Yeo of Hepworth was charged with seducing a girl under fourteen years of age. The grand jury brought in a true bill against him, but it was found necessary by the court to adjourn the case until the next sitting.

David Robertson, a bachelor farmer of Kincardine tp., who has been out on bail for the past two months, having been up for trial on a charge of attempted rape committed on January 15th, upon Ethel Gulliver, was to have appeared before the assize court this week, but the grand jury brought in a verdict of no bill and Robertson was freed. It has been stated the action against Robertson was the outcome of hard feelings among his neighbors.

Won Championship.
[illegible] on Northern League hockey team won the senior championship on Friday, last by defeating the Elmira team 12 8. As Wiarton won the former game by 6-4, this gave them the round by 18-12.

Sold Hotel.
Mr. Alex Yneck has given up the Commercial hotel and he and Mrs. Yneck and babe left last Monday for a visit with relatives at Durham and Walkerton, after which they expect to go to Sault St. Marie. Alex was a good hotel-keeper and a good sport, and we will miss him from our town. Mr. R. H. Manning of Toronto has taken over the hotel and is in charge. —Southampton Beacon.

The Old Story.
It's the old story over again. The town papers of Walkerton have been advocating the trade-at-home idea, and recently an item for publication was sent in on stationery printed out of town. This was a grand climax to the efforts of the local publishers whose ardor was damped by the disloyalty of citizens they were trying to help. It requires gall for the business men to expect the support of the news papers, and at the same time send their printing orders out of town. We have them here, but we hope they are few.—Durham Chronicle.

BY-LAW NO.

A by-law to raise the sum of $5000 by the issue of debentures of the town of Walkerton to improve and extend the water works system in said town.

WHEREAS the Municipal Corporation of the Town of Walkerton deem it advisable to provide an increased supply of water for the waterworks system of said Town and to secure additional fire protection by drilling a deep well at or near its pumping station and extending the water main from its present terminus at Elgin Street to connect with the main at Durham Street in said town and from the branch at Ridout Street to connect with the main crossing Ridout Street.

AND WHEREAS the cost of such drilling and extension will amount to the sum of $5000 and owing to the other requirements of the said Municipality it is not possible to provide for the said moneys in the annual levy for the year 1915, and it is therefore necessary that the said sum should be raised upon the credit of the Debentures of the said Municipality.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of the opinion that the said question should be submitted to a vote of the electors of the said Town of Walkerton entitled to vote on By-laws for the creation of debts.

AND WHEREAS the said sum of $5000 is the amount of the debt which this By-law is intended to create.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $325.20 to be raised annually by special rate for a period of thirty years, the currency of the Debentures to be issued under and by virtue of this By-law for paying the said sum of $5000 and interest thereon.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is the sum of $857,317.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing general debenture debt of the said Town of Walkerton is the sum of $40250.22 and the amount of the Local Improvement Debt thereof is the sum of $21028.40 making a total existing debenture debt of the said Municipality of $70878.63, of which no part of the principal or interest is in arrears.

Therefore The Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton Enacts as Follows

1 It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the said Town of Walkerton, and he is hereby instructed to borrow for the purpose aforesaid from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate willing to advance the same upon the credit of the said Town the said sum of $5000 for the purpose aforesaid. and to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the said amount of $5000 in sums of not less than $100 each, payable in the manner, for the amounts, and at the times hereinafter more particularly mentioned.

2 The said debentures shall each be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer of the said Town and sealed with the Corporate seal thereof which the Clerk of said Municipality is hereby instructed of affix thereto, and such debentures shall be dated on the tenth day of August 1915, and shall be payable within thirty years from the said time of their issue at the Branch or Agency of the Merchants Bank of Canada at said Town of Walkerton.

3 The said Debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum payable yearly at the said

(Continued on page 6)

TRUE TO HIS RACE

"I felt sure, by his close resemblance to the family, connected with other circumstances he communicated to me, that he was our kinsman. How near a kinsman I never guessed. So when he told me the name he bore was not his own, and not a very desirable one, either, and that he had no name, and had never even been baptized—well, by a sudden impulse, or inspiration, I offered him mine. I told him how I could make it his own—if not directly by law, yet by Christianity. And so took him to Christ's Church, and got him baptized by the name of Benjamin Seton Douglas. Under that name I got him his commission as ensign in a regiment of foot. Under that name he has distinguished himself in the Crimean war."

"Under that name he may hereafter claim the Barony of Seton-Linlithgow," said the duchess.

"And the Dukedom of Cheviot, mother," added Lord Wellrose.

The duchess looked up inquiringly.

"It is his right, dear mother. I have pointed out to my father how this right may be secured to him. And whatever it may cost to you, to me, or to any other, he should have it."

"And you, Wellrose?"

"I? Oh, I shall be the founder of another line of nobles from the ancient house of Douglas," said the earl jestingly.

"After all, I think more of the hour when I shall press the poor boy to my heart than of anything else. It is hard to have to wait until to-morrow. Ah I see what you are thinking of, Willie," she said, as she noticed her husband's grave smile. "You are thinking that if I have managed to wait all these years for my first-born, I can wait these few hours. Yes, but I did not know he was on earth all that time; now that I know he is here, in this very house, hours seem ages till I see him."

"'Time and the hour weareth away the weariest day,'" said the duke, with a kindly smile.

So the day and the night passed, and the morning came.

At 11 o'clock in the forenoon the autocrat of the sick room, Dr. Christopher Kinlock, came downstairs and notified the duke and duchess that they had his professional authority for visiting his patient.

The duke arose and drew the duchess' arm within his own. Her heart was beating fast; her color went and came; she panted with emotion.

"Come with us, Wellrose," she faltered.

And the young earl arose to attend them.

He went upstairs before them, and led the way to his brother's room.

He opened the door, and the three entered together.

They found Benny lying on the sofa, propped up with pillows, his fair wan face turned toward them in eager expectation, his golden hair flowing loose.

"How beautiful he is!" thought the duchess; and as she met the full gaze of those clear, gentle, blue eyes, and caught the smile of the delicate features, she felt as if her heart must break at that moment. A rush of tenderness, pity, love, filled her bosom, and almost overwhelmed her.

She left her husband's arm and tottered toward him and sank beside his sofa and dropped her head upon his heart, sobbing:

"My son, my son! Oh, my poor, poor, wronged boy!"

He would have risen and knelt at her feet, but for his great weakness. But he put his wasted arms around neck and murmured:

"Mother, mother!" sweetest name on earth."

Then both were silent, looking into each other's eyes for a while, she sobbing at intervals; he with his pale hand caressing her hair.

But soon she discovered that there was another present waiting to welcome their son. And she arose from her posture and said in a low tone:

"Your father, my dear."

And the duke came and knelt, and silently embraced his fading boy. For at first he could find no words to speak. Then, after some inarticulate murmurs of affection, he said with much emotion:

"You know how it was that we lost you so long, my poor boy? You know, I hope, that neither I"—his voice faltered—"nor your dear mother"—he chocked—" could have been so heartless, so cruel——" Here he broke down altogether.

Benjamin took his hand and kissed it.

"I know all, dear father," he said. "It was no one's fault; it was my misfortune. It was kismet."

"Kismet! Ah, you have been in the East. A Turk is killed in battle. He falls, crying 'Kismet,' and dies contentedly," said the duke, with that strange mingling of irrelevant matter with the most solemn business on hand, that we sometimes meet in the most awful crises in life.

"Yet I am indeed no fatalist, dear mother," said Benny, turning to the duchess, who seemed longing for a glance or a word from her new-found son.

"No; for I am sure you are too good a Christian to be that, my boy," she said.

"I have heard of your gallant conduct in the Crimea, my son; of your heroism as Balaklava, at Inkerman, at Sebastopol. You did honor to the name you bore there," said the duke, proudly.

"I did but my duty," murmured Benny.

"And where got you the wound with which you are suffering now, my brave and modest boy? At the taking of Sebastopol, if I have heard aright—in planting the colors of your regiment on the walls, in the face of a murderous fire. Was every man a hero that day also?"

"I do not know," said Benny, smiling; "but I do know that I never should have had the chance of doing what I did if it had not been for ——"

He paused and looked all around the room until his eyes lighted on the form of the Earl of Wellrose, standing apart, and then his face grew radiant, and he held out both his hands. For more than princely father or beautiful mother, Benny loved this dear brother.

The earl came to him, smiling.

"If it had not been for him, my father, Heaven knows where I should have been now!" said Benny, clasping his brother's hands.

"We know all that he was to you, my boy, even before he suspected you to be his brother. And now that he knows your position he is ready to unite with us in restoring you to all your rights."

"What rights?" asked Benny, simply, looking from one to the other.

For he had not given so much as a thought to the worldly advantages he would gain from the establishment of his birthright. He had thought only of the rich inheritance of love he would receive.

"What rights?" he asked again, seeing that they only looked at him in surprise.

"Your rights as our eldest son and heir—your rights to the inheritance of all my titles and estates," said the Duke of Cheviot, gravely and firmly.

Benny turned paler than ever before, and looked from his father's face to his dear brother's.

"Does your grace wish me to understand, then, that I shall displace, disinherit—him?"

"Yes, my boy, lawfully, naturally, inevitably. You are the eldest son, and must take the rank that he has so long and erroneously held," replied the duke, as one speaking from authority.

"Then I'll die first," said "the elder brother."

"Benjamin!" exclaimed father, mother and brother, in one breath.

"I will go down to the grave first! I shall die if I do not try hard to live, and I will not try to live; I will try to die, rather than displace, disinherit him," repeated Benny. And, oh! the ineffable tenderness he threw into that little monosyllable "him."

They gazed at him in amazement. Such love, such disinterestedness even they had never known.

"My dear brother," said the young earl, "your love, your magnanimity touches me deeply. But you may not made this sacrifice; for if you cannot think of yourself, you must think of her—Suzy."

"I love Suzy. I have proved how I love her. And I know—I know that she also would never wish to dispossess you. Had she been born with a nature so selfish, I could never have loved her."

"You hope to marry Suzy some day?" quietly said the earl.

"If I live, which is doubtful."

"Then, for your posterity you should take your rights."

"Posterity! shadows! dreams! Leave all that to time and Providence. That does not exist now. But what I see visibly before me—what I touch tangibly—is my brother, my dear brother," he said, with infinite tenderness in his tone and look, as he took the hand of the earl and pressed it to his heart, while he gazed in his face with unutterable love.

And then the cough seized and shook him.

His mother begged him to be calm, and not to excite himself.

But just as soon as he had recovered from the paroxysm he, still gazing in his loved brother's face, murmured softly:

"My brother, my dear, dear brother, you were more than a brother to me in my bitterest need—more than a brother to me when you did not even suspect our brotherhood. I could not even live, knowing that I had dispossessed you."

Again the cruel cough seized and shook him, as if it would have shaken him to dissolution.

They implored him not to talk.

The warning came too late. The new excitement had brought on a hemorrhage again. Blood gushed in torrents from his lips, and he fell back in syncope.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

In a moment all was grief, terror and confusion. The surgeon, the only self-possessed person about the bed, cleared the room of everyone except himself and the old nurse, Mrs. Bruce.

"No, your grace, he is not dead nor dying; but his life depends upon quiet," he said in answer to the questions of the agonized mother, as he led her out into the hall.

"Then heaven bless you for the words," she said.

And he went back to his patient. And she paced up and down the hall, wringing her hands and moaning:

"Oh, my son! my son! Oh, my poor, poor boy! To find you, only to lose you! to see you die! Not to be able to make your future atone for your bitter past!"

"Dear Eglantine, do not weep so bitterly," pleaded the duke, coming to her side.

"Ah, if he had had a happy life, I could have better borne to see him die! But he has had such a miserable, most miserable, life, and now he must die without even ever enjoying happiness!"

"Dear mother, it is not certain that he will die. He may recover," said the young earl, coming up to her other side.

"Oh, Wellrose, no one ever lost so much blood and lived. His poor face is white as snow! Oh, my child! my child! Oh, my poor, wronged, dying child!" she moaned, weeping and wringing her hands.

At this moment the surgeon came out of the room, whispered to Lord Wellrose, and immediately returned.

"What did the doctor say? How is my boy?" anxiously inquired the mother.

"He is just the same. And the doctor wishes me to telegraph to Glasgow for Dr. Ker, who is one of the most eminent surgeons of the day," answered the young earl.

"Oh, do so at once! Lose not an instant of time," urged the anxious mother.

And the brother hurried away to dispatch a servant with a message to the nearest telegraph station.

Meanwhile the duchess continued to pace up and down the hall, occasionally stopping to listen at the door of the sick room.

The daily routine went on. Luncheon was announced at the usual time. And the family sat down at table; but no one ate.

Early in the afternoon a telegram came from the Glasgow surgeon, in answer to the one that had been sent him. He would come down, he said, by the night train, and be at Seton early the next morning.

This was promising news.

Later in the day the doctor brought a report from the sick room. "The hemorrhage had entirely ceased, and the patient had recovered from his syncope, but was as weak as he could possibly be to live."

"Is there any hope?" almost breathlessly inquired the duchess.

"There is always hope, your grace," said the doctor to the mother.

"Do let me see him. I will be very calm. Do let me see him," pleaded the duchess.

"Not to-day, your grace. The most absolute quiet is vitally necessary to him," said the doctor resolutely.

The duke took his arm and walked him off to the oriel window at the end of the hall and inquired:

"Now how much hope is there really?"

"Not the faintest shadow of a hope, your grace," answered the doctor.

"Even so I feared. But in this case why may not his poor mother be permitted to see him?"

"Because, your grace, although we may not hope to save his life, we must not therefore hasten his death. And any such agitation as a visit from his mother under present circumstances would cause, might be instantly fatal to him. He could not survive another hemorrhage five minutes."

The duke sighed deeply, and went downstairs to give orders that a boat should be sent down the loch, to Seton, to meet the Glasgow surgeon on his arrival.

And the duchess returned to her chamber and passed the night in praying as only a mother can pray for her child.

Early in the morning the Glasgow surgeon arrived.

After a short interview with the duke and duchess, he was shown to the chamber of his patient.

After a very careful examination of the case, and a very close consultation with Dr. Kinlock, he entirely coincided with the army surgeon's opinion, and approved of his treatment. The patient, he declared, could not possibly be in better hands than in those of the country doctor.

He remained at Seton Court twenty-four hours, and then went back to Glasgow, promising to revisit the patient at the end of the week, or sooner, if called upon.

And the next morning, being the third from the day of the last terrible hemorrhage, the duchess was permitted to see her son.

She had schooled her soul to calmness; had promised herself and others that she would preserve a perfect composure, and neither do, nor say, nor look anything that might disturb the sufferer.

He was propped in bed, and the light from the bay window fell upon him.

She went up to his side. She could control her words and actions, but not her looks; so when her eyes fell upon his colorless and fleshless face, and met the gaze of his hollow eyes, her own face expressed all the deep anguish of her soul.

He held out both his pale hands toward her. Evidently he thought he was dying, and thought that she knew he was dying; for his first words were:

"Sweet mother, it seems very hard for you, very, very hard for you, to lose your boy almost as soon as you have found him."

She could scarcely restrain her tears as she pressed his thin hands to her lips and bosom, and then stooped and pressed her lips to his in a passionate kiss.

"But, dear mother, it is so much better for me to die. See how my life would compromise you all and complicate the question of inheritance, and above all, how it would injure my dear brother," he whispered, speaking faintly and with difficulty, and caressing her hair with his poor hand.

She lost all her self-control, and forgot all her promises. She fell sobbing on his neck, exclaiming:

"Oh, my son! my son! Oh, my poor, poor wronged boy! Live! live!—live—oh, try to live, for my miserable sake! Oh, do not die and leave me to a life-long remorse. Oh live! live! that I may make your future life so bright and happy that you may forget your past!"

"Sweet mother!" he murmured, still with his pale hand caressing her beautiful hair—"sweet mother, you have faith, I know. Have, then a radiant faith. Believe that, in the better world, your poor son's life will be brighter and happier far than even your dear love could ever make it here. Have a glad, radiant faith."

"Oh, my child! my child! If you had had a happy life, like all your brothers and sisters, I think I could better bear to let you go!" she sobbed, weeping bitterly. "Oh, oh, if I could—could roll back the years, dear love!—undo your dreadful past, and make that happy, I could—I think I could bear to let you go."

"Dear mother, can any but Heaven do that? Sweet mother, if you sorrow so bitterly over my miserable past, let that sorrow teach you to pity and succor the thousands and thousands of poor, neglected, innocent little ones, such as I was once, who every day perish of want, or live—oh, mother, to grow up in ignorance, vice and misery, to fill the prisons or to freight the gallows. Sweet mother! you are very rich and powerful; save the children, for my sake, and I shall not have suffered and died in vain!" he said, and his brow grew radiant as the face of an angel.

The doctor came quietly to lead the lady away. The interview, he whispered, had been too long already.

She stooped and kissed her boy's bright brow again and again, and then she went away.

The doctor came back to the bedside of his patient.

(To be Continued.)

"Hoist With His Own Petard."

The one sort of metaphor that ought not to get mixed in a history of the war is a military metaphor. However, when histories of the war begin to appear a fortnight after the war begins either the writer or the printer has to set down much in haste. That no doubt explains why we read in one of these headlong histories that Germany at a certain point of her diplomatic career, "found herself hoisted on her own petard." The writer (or printer) must have thought that a petard was a sort of elevator. Shakespeare, who coined the immortal phrase, was amused by the idea of the military engineer, "hoist with his own petard"—that is, blown up with his own bomb. A petard was a sort of bomb used for such work as blowing in gates or doors.

* * *

At Boston, five thousand unemployed men and women stormed the stage entrance of a theatre in answer to advertisements calling for 100 men and a few women to act as "supers." During the rush two of the men fainted from exhaustion. Coats were torn, hats were broken under foot and the police had to be called to stop the confusion when the stage door was opened. The hundred or more women had kept apart from the men and were not in the rush.

Justice of Peace Praises Dr. Chase's Ointment

After Nine Years of Agony He Escaped an Operation by Using This Great Healing Agent.

As a means of healing sores and wounds that defy ordinary treatment Dr. Chase's Ointment has long stood supreme. It is known far and wide as a positive cure for eczema and piles. Whatever uncertainty there may be about the results obtained by the use of medicines taken internally there can be no question of the healing of the skin when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied.

MR. HEATH.

You can actually see with your own eyes just what takes place. The sore parts are cleansed, and gradually the new skin is formed and the sore becomes smaller and smaller, until it finally disappears. It is often wonderful the results which are accomplished in a single night by the use of this great healing ointment.

Mr. N. A. Heath, J.P., Fitch Bay, Que., writes:—"Nine years ago I was taken with an abcess, and cannot begin to describe what I have suffered as a result. I was examined by two doctors, both of whom said I would have to undergo an operation to be cured. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment, it has rendered an operation unnecessary, and has completely cured me. I cannot say enough in praise of this wonderful ointment which cured me after nine years of agony."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

TOUCHES THE STATES.

(Buffalo News.)

When President Wilson says "Let us go our usual way; the war does not touch us," he confesses astigmatism.

The war is touching us.

There is scarce a way which we may turn that does not reflect a sinister reminder of what is going on beyond seas.

Perhaps it is because President Wilson does not mingle like the ordinary citizen with the people of every day. He would then see the countless abrasions war is making on our social body.

Scanning the bulletin board in front of the News building, almost any hour of almost any day, may be seen a man who wears the Victoria Cross, pinned on his breast years ago by his beloved Kitchener. The vision of three sons in the trenches gives the bulletin a strange fascination for him.

The front window of a Main street cafeteria is "Tipperary" for some sturdy chap at the far-off front. After the hurry of the noon hour an Irish girl looks out over the skyline and speeds her hopes off yonder—somewhere—with the same uncertainty he raises his rifle and sends a bullet over the treetops—somewhere.

Down in the Italian section the reservists gather nightly, to discuss the prospects of being called and pledge their king, patriots all of them.

In the clubs the manufacturers gather and compare "war orders" and speculate on the end of the conflict that has brought ruin or fortune to them.

Among the Germans the postman goes, leaving good tidings here and saddened hearts yonder. There is sorrow for a spell, an old photograph of the youngest brother is brought from the treasure chest, there is a dwelling with old memories and an offering to the Motherland, and things go on not quite as they were before.

Yes, Mr. Wilson, the war does come close to us. It touches every side of our many-sided lives, every day.

Avoid Harsh Pills! Doctors Condemn Them

Most Pills unfortunately are harsh and drastic; they cause inflammation and great discomfort. Rather like nature is the way a pill should act, mildly, but effectively. Science has established nothing more satisfactory as a family pill than the old reliable pills of Dr. Hamilton, which for forty years have had a premier place in America. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are very mild and can be effectively used by the aged, by children, and indeed by men and women of all ages. No stomach or bowel medicine is more reliable. No remedy for indigestion, headache or biliousness is so effective, so mild, so certain to quickly cure as a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The Rosses of Cocos Island.

In 1910 the Cocos Islands contained nearly 1,000 inhabitants, representing a wide variety of races—Malays, Chinese, Negroes, Hindus, East Indians and Papuans. Each successive ruler of the islands has married a Malay wife, so Sydney Ross, the present King, is only one-quarter white. Like his predecessors, however, he is a staunch Presbyterian, and in spite of the fact that most of his subjects are Moslems, the Ross influence has been so great that polygamy is unknown among them.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

KEEP BUSY!

(Brantford Expositor)

The present is a time for exercising optimism and a spirit of mutual helpfulness in order to keep as many men employed as possible. It is a far better that the helping hand over the present industrial stringency should come in this form than in that of charity, and that citizens generally should pursue, in a reasonable way, a policy of liberality rather than of retrenchment at this time.

TYPHOID SERUM'S WORK.

(Buffalo News.)

Not so many years ago typhoid fever was the great foe of the U. S. medical corps. It penned the saddest chapter of the Spanish American war. The years of peace that followed averaged from 500 to 1,000 cases of typhoid through the army numbered less than 65,000 men.

For the past three years typhoid has literally been wiped from the list of possible diseases. Last year, in the entire army, there was but one case of typhoid, that of a recruit who, beyond question, contracted typhoid before entering the service. Nothing remains to be learned of the serum except the length of time it establishes immunity.

In view of this remarkable record it is singular that any person should oppose its use or be indifferent to its benefits.

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine in the world for little ones. They are absolutely safe and never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels, break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms and make teething easy. Concerning them Mrs. D. S. Bernhardt, Port Dalhousie, Ont., writes: "I have been using Baby's Own Tablets for my baby and would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

USES OF THE LEMON.

A little lemon juice added to the pastry crust will make it much lighter.

* * * *

To clean brass that is very discolored, rub well with lemon; then clean with metal polish. This applies especially to gas brackets that are burnt.

* * * *

An excellent health rule for bright eyes and a clear skin is to take the juice of a lemon in a glass of water, with a dash of salt added. This gets directly on the liver, which has more to do with good looks than most of us imagine.

What Bobwhite Eats.

Fifteen per cent of the food of the bobwhite is composed of insects, including several of the most serious pests of agriculture. Half of its food consists of weed seeds, one-fourth of grain, and about one-sixteenth of wild fruits. Taken in all the bobwhite is very useful to the farmer, and while it may not be necessary to remove it from the list of game birds every farmer should see that his own farm is not depleted by sportsmen.

Sore Corns Go!

Absolutely Painless

No cutting, no plasters or pads to press the sore spot. PUTNAM'S EXTRACTOR makes the corns go without pain. Takes out the sting overnight. Never fails—leaves no scar. Get a 25c bottle of PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR to-day.

The Source.

"From where do cows get their milk?"
The little girl wished to learn.
"From where do you get your tears,
my dear?"
Her mother asked in turn.
And then with widely opened eyes,
Lifting her childish brows,
"Oh, mother," she asked in quick surprise,
"Do they have to spank the cows?"
—Harvard Lampoon.

Beautiful Walls For Your Home Sanitary, Fire-Proof, Inexpensive

Make your home more attractive, and protect it from fire with these beautiful, sanitary

"Metallic" Ceilings and Walls

They will out-last the building and are very inexpensive. They can be brightened from year to year with a little paint at a trifling cost. Made in innumerable beautiful designs suitable to all styles of rooms. Can be erected over old plaster as well as in new buildings. Write for catalogue.

We manufacture a complete line of Sheet Metal Building Materials. 9

THE METALLIC ROOFING CO., LIMITED
Manufacturers
King and Dufferin Sts., TORONTO 797 Notre Dame Ave., WINNIPEG

Wills Soul to Creator.

Like the late J. Pierpont Morgan, when Calvin W. Hunnicutt, a wealthy Atlanta citizen, came to draw his will he recognized in the preamble the merit of the atonement of Christ. Mr. Hunnicutt died recently at the age of 82 and his will was offered for probate recently. The preamble says:

"I, Calvin W. Hunnicutt, do make and publish this my last will and testament, hereby declaring my trust in the merit of the atoning blood of the Lord Jesus Christ for the salvation of my soul, which I commit to the God who gave it."

The Hunnicutt estate, valued at a million or more, will be shared equally by five heirs.

CHEESE SAUCE ON TOAST.

2 level tablespoons butter.
2 level tablespoons flour.
⅓ level teaspoon salt.
Speck pepper.
1 cup milk.
1-3 cup grated cheese.

Melt butter, add flour, stir until perfectly smooth, stir in the milk, and cook stirring constantly until it boils, add salt, pepper and cheese, stir until cheese melts; serve on pieces of toast or wafers.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND TRADE MARK

INFLUENZA

Catarrhal Fever Pinkeye, Shipping Fever, Epizootic

And all diseases of the horse affecting his throat, speedily cured; colts and horses in same stable kept from having them by using SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND. 3 to 6 doses often cure. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. Safe for brood mares, baby colts, stallions—all ages and conditions. Most skillful scientific compound. Any druggist.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO. Chemists. Goshen, Ind. U.S.A.

POTATOES AS FOOD.

At First Only the Seed of the Tubers Was Thought Fit to Eat.

When potatoes were first used for food it was the "seed" or "apple" that was used, and it was some time before the tuber was found to be the most delicious food. Up to the end of the seventeenth century the potato was out of the reach of people with modern incomes. It is recorded that in 1662 potatoes were sold at one shilling (25 cents) a pound in London markets, but the sale was small because so many people believed that the potato caused leprosy and fever. Others declared that they were endangering their souls if they ate the potato, since the tuber was not mentioned in the Bible.

The late Duke of Argyle in history of Scotland says that little or nothing was known of the potato in Scotland until long past the middle of the eighteenth century. The Duchess of Buccleuch, in her "Household Book" for the year 1701, speaks of the potato as "an esculent of great rarity."

Hugh Miller in his "Schools and Schoolmasters," says that his maternal grandfather about the year 1740 used to bring home in his pocket some three or four potatoes as great rarities grown by the gentry, for he was a friend of the head gardener at Balnagown castle. Thomas Carlyle tells us that his father got possession of four potatoes and knew so little about them that he hid them away for a possible time of want and the potatoes were saved to be eaten Hallowe'en. There is no doubt that the Irish were the first people to recognize the value of the potato as a staple article of food.—Youth's Companion.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—My daughter, 13 years old, was thrown from a sleigh and injured her elbow so badly it remained stiff and very painful for three years. Four bottles of MINARD'S LINIMENT completely cured her and she has not been troubled for two years.

Yours truly,
J. B. LIVESQUE,
St. Joseph, P. O., 18th Aug., 1900.

SLUMS AND THEIR EVILS.

(Montreal Star.)

As the years go by students of municipal economy are devoting greater thought to the problem of improving housing conditions. It is very clearly realized now that a man's dwelling exerts a marked influence on his life and character; more especially is this true in the case of women and children.

Bad housing conditions affect health, lower vitality, and slowly undermine hopes and ambitions for better things. An unsanitary house is a standing invitation to disease. Scientists have demonstrated that a germ of pulmonary tuberculosis can live for years in an ill-ventilated, dark and noxious room. The bacillus of typhoid may not only be conveyed through the water or the milk but it may also be carried by flies and vermin, from the filth from which it is deposited to the food of adjacent tenements. The tenement houses with their halls, stairs and closets, shared by many families, become a fruitful source of contagious diseases.

Prove it Yourself!

I will send you absolutely FREE a "1900" GRAVITY WASHER for 30 days FREE TRIAL

You don't pay a cent—I even pay the freight.

Everybody who has used this Washer says it is the "best ever."

Write me to-day personally for booklet and particulars.

A. B. MORRIS, MANAGER, '1900' WASHER CO.
357 YONGE STREET
TORONTO, CANADA
FACTORY: 79-81 PORTLAND STREET

If you have electric light, ask me about my "1900" Electric Washer and Wringer outfit.

CANADIAN SILVER COINS.

(Detroit Free Press)

The trouble with this Canadian silver is twofold. It is often worn and defaced, so that it is difficult to pass along and becomes a genuine nuisance to its unlucky possessor. And even new coins from the Dominion are practically valueless if they are carried 50 miles or more away from the boundary, because people will not take them at all except in the territory near their place of origin.

There is nothing derogatory to Canada in the effort to keep its money out of circulation on this side of the international line. If each country would trade off with the other the alien money, bills and coins that its people are passing from hand to hand, the resulting total of currency would probably be unaffected on both sides and everybody would be better satisfied. We can each take our own and have enough for all purposes.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

Wellington's Reticence.

Wellington's reticence once drew a protest from Lord Uxbridge, the brilliant cavalry leader, who lost a leg at Waterloo and became Marquis of Anglesey. On the eve of the great battle Uxbridge, although next to Wellington in command, knew nothing of his chief's plans for the morrow's battle. With trepidations he approached the Duke. If Wellington were killed Uxbridge would become commander-in-chief. What was the plan? The duke listened patiently. "Tell me, Uxbridge, who will attack the first to-morrow—I or Bonaparte?" "Undoubtedly Bonaparte." "Well, Bonaparte hasn't given me any idea of his projects, and as my plans depend upon his plans, how can you expect me to tell you mine?" Uxbridge bowed, and was about to retire, when the duke added in the friendliest way: "There's one thing certain, Uxbridge, whatever happens, you and I will do our duty."

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

Alleged Scottish Kings.

Jests innumerable have been showered upon the hundred portraits of alleged Scottish kings, with a strong family likeness, especially about the nose, which adorn Holyrood—kings, as Scott says, "who, if they ever flourished at all, lived several hundred years before the invention of painting in oil colors." The late Mr. W. C. Hazlitt, recalls the London Chronicle, had a story of a visitor who gravely inquired of the old woman who showed him over the palace, "Did you do these?" She shook her head as gravely, and he added, "You might have done better."

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

"CRIMINALS IN THE MAKING."

(Chicago Tribune)

The capture and confession of the boy "auto bandits," whose sensational exploits the other day amazed the city, furnish another illustration—if one be needed—of the tragic truth that, in the words quoted in these columns not long since from a report by Prof. Gault of the Northwestern university, juvenile delinquents and street idlers and loafers are "criminals in the making." What a simple and familiar story, after all! Poolroom talk, vicious surroundings, a chance remark by a professional offender, ungratified instinct for sport and excitement, misdirected animal spirits, and a bunch of boys became a clique of bandits.

ISSUE NO. 12, 1915.

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Reply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—CHOICE LAND IN PARCELS from one to twenty acres, located near Hamilton along the Bay and Lake Shores on Toronto to Hamilton permanent highway. This is selected land, delightfully located, being very desirable for gentlemen who desire a country residence along with garden and fruit culture. W. D. Flatt, Room 15, Federal Life Building, Hamilton.

FARMS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—SIXTEEN ACRES GARDEN and fruit farm. Box 75, St. George, Ont.

EXECUTOR'S SALE OF STOCK AND Grain Farm in Oxford County; 233 acres; clay; brick house; basement barns 96 x 40; cement silo and hog pens; near towns, villages, depots, schools, churches, creameries, condensers (Borden's); hydro power, telephone and rural mail installed. Write for printed description, and price. J. J. McNally, Otterville, Ont., R.R. No. 1.

DOES $1.50 WHEAT MAKE SASKATCHEWAN farm lands look good to you? If so, inquire about our limited number of improved farms acquired from loan companies at prices away below their actual value; money loaned on improved farms, first mortgage security, good rates of interest; references, Quebec Bank. J. W. Cadwell & Co., Box 1217, Saskatchewan.

IMPROVED HALF-SECTION IN South Central Alberta. Over half under plow, most of balance tillable, good frame house, other buildings, fenced and cross fenced, splendid well and abundance of spring water. Only part cash necessary. El. Schwartz, 266 Clemmer, Dayton, Ohio.

FARMS FOR SALE—WE HAVE SEVERAL quarters, half, and full sections, of good farm land, close up to Railway Stations, in the Vermilion-Mannville District, in Central Alberta; one dollar per acre, cash required; interest only November first next, balance on easy terms 6 per cent; best district in Alberta for mixed grain and stock raising. Wilder Smith & Phelps, 11 St. Sacrament Street, Montreal, Que.

FOR SALE—201 ACRES, 9-ROOM house other buildings; fruit and some timber; 4 miles of station. Price $6,000; $2,000 cash. Two farms adjoining; 200 acres, with buildings, fine land, nicely located; 4 to 5 miles of station; few minutes' walk of Canning Factory and Store. Price for both $10,000; $4,000 cash. Fine climate, mild, short winters. Catalogue free. J. R. McGonigal & Son, Dover, Del.

FOR SALE—157 ACRES GOOD GRAIN and stock farm; 120 acres under cultivation; 13 acres in fall wheat; 40 acres fall plowing done, balance in meadow and pasture; also good sugar bush. This farm has never been rented. For price and terms, C. J. Martin & Co., Federal Life Building, Hamilton, Ontario.

FRUIT AND POULTRY FARMS from one to twenty-five acres. Lake Shore properties near Burlington and Hamilton, with Hamilton market, the best in America. These locations are convenient to schools, churches, near proposed Toronto-Hamilton concrete highway; are exceptionally good and worth investigation. R. M. Hoose, 2 1-2 James street north, Hamilton, Ont.

FOR SALE—FARM, ANY SIZE, FROM 50 acres up, near Thorold, Merritton and St. Catharines. Fruit farms with fruit for $400 per acre. See my farms before buying elsewhere. J. D. Hilts, Merritton, Ont. Box 152. Phone 657 L.

FOR SALE—37 1-2 acres near Niagara on main road and close to Trolley and Canning factory, choice sandy fruit land. A bargain at $7,500 for quick sale. $3,550 down will purchase this excellent property. For particulars write Melvin Gayman, Limited, Investment Brokers, St. Catharines, Ont.

NEW BRUNSWICK FARM, 415 ACRES, half intervale, hay, 40 tons. Bearing orchard, good house, 3 barns, railway station 5 1-2 miles, other conveniences near. $1,650, $1,000 cash, balance mortgage. Write for our Free Illustrated Catalogue. 150 other farms. Alfred Burley & Co., 46 Princess street, St. John, N. B.

MISCELLANEOUS.

STRAWBERRIES, 50 varieties; Raspberries, 15 varieties; Seed Potatoes, 10 varieties. Free Catalogue.
THE LAKEVIEW FRUIT FARM
H. L. McConnell & Son, Port Burwell, Ont.

SEED CORN FOR SALE

For No. 1 Seed Corn of many varieties, matured and cured for seed purposes on cob or shelled. Apply, to EDWARD P. TELLIER, St. Joachim, Ont.

SEED CORN

Prize-winning Wisconsin No. 7; the best for the silo. George R. West & Sons, Northwood, R. R. No. 2.

MURDERERS IN COMFORT.

(Buffalo News.)

There are few things that tend more to exasperate citizens struggling hard to make a living, than to see an array of murderers supported for life in warmth and comfort, deprived, it is true, of their liberty though that may be regarded as precious to the honest and the industrious citizen, it counts for little with the hardened soul that takes the life of another while in the pursuit of crime, especially as it means only a few years of restraint as a rule.

PILES CURED at HOME by New Absorption Method

If you suffer from bleeding, itching, blind or protruding Piles, send me your address, and I will tell you how to cure yourself at home by the new absorption treatment; and will also send some of this home treatment free for trial, with references from your own locality if requested. Immediate relief and permanent cure assured. Send no money, but tell others of this offer. Write to-day to Mrs. M. Summers, Box P. 8, Windsor, Ont.

Function of Literature.

"A book," said Dr. Johnson, "should show one either how to enjoy life or to endure it." Was ever function of literature expressed more pungently or justly? Any man who enjoys or endures has a right to speak if he can. If he can't help others to enjoy or endure he has a right to speak, if he doubts as to his part in life, while if he cannot ecstatically enjoy he can at least good humoredly endure.—A. C. Benson in Century Magazine.

FACTORY CLEARANCE SALE

ROOFING

For Repairs or New Roofs.

85c Per Roll 108 Sq. Feet Complete with nails and cement. Freight Paid.

ASPHALT FELT ROOFING
100 per cent. Saturation.
Contains no Tar or Paper
Lowest price for Pure Asphalt Roofing ever offered in Canada.
Send for Free Sample

The Halliday Company, Ltd.
Factory Distributors.
HAMILTON, CANADA.

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1915.

AN ELECTION COMING.

All signs point to a Dominion election some time this year. Tory candidates are in the field in most of the constituencies. Tory campaign literature is being "franked" through the post office all over the country, arrangements are talked of whereby the men at the front can record their votes, and it is now said that the coming British Columbia elections are being held as a feeler as to the feeling in the country. Perhaps a strong reason for the holding of an election this year is the fear that the longer it is put off the more dissatisfied the people will become with the "frightfulness" of the Government in regard to the public expenditure. When the people begin to realize that the increased taxes are not to be used for paying the war expenses, rather to pay for a "dead horse," and when they know that all this huge expense of war is to be hung up as a debt [illegible] heads they will not feel so [illegible] to the Government. [illegible] have still fond recollec[illegible] good times they had un[illegible] Wilfrid Laurier, and they, no [illegible] sigh for their return.

◆

ANOTHER GERMAN PLOT.

The joint resolution passed by both Houses of Congress enlarging the powers of President Wilson to deal with vessels suspected of violating United States neutrality by making the ports of the United States bases of naval operations, authorizes the refusal of clearance except under heavy bonds to American ships suspected of loading men or supplies for belligerent warships, and for the internment of foreign merchantmen engaging in such traffic, and would impose heavy penalties for violations. The need for this new law would not have been apparent had it not been for disclosures made before a grand jury in New York in regard to supplying German cruisers by means of vessels that sailed from United States ports. It is now believed that the German squadron defeated by Admiral Sturdee was kept supplied with necessaries by vessels from United States ports. Since then the false passport exposures has led to the discovery that German officers now in the States are fitting out the faster German merchant vessels now interned in New York harbor, with the purpose of turning them into armed vessels and then dashing out of New York some favorable night. The story goes that these vessels will prey upon British shipping. The new power given the President will enable him to put a stop to this sinister plot of the Germans.

◆

SECOURS NATIONAL.

The claims of Belgium upon the sympathy and help of the Canadian people have been made well known all over the Dominion, and much help has been extended that unhappy country. Less has been heard about the plight of northern France, which the Germans have devastated, depopulated their towns, cities and factories, and overrun the country, ravishing their women and murdering innocent people. But the cry of distress has at last reached Canada, and something is being done in the way of helping them. The Ontario Branch of the "Secours National" has been organized [illegible] Toronto, under the patronage of the Duke of Connaught, the honorary president being His Honor Lieut.-Governor John S. Hendrie. An appeal has been sent out, in which it is stated that

It must be remembered that a territory in France more than double that of the whole area of Belgium has been devastated. There are today eleven million refugees in France, composed of those who have fled from the devastated districts of France and Belgium, to which must be added many thousands from Alsace and Lorraine.

What does this mean? It means that a population greater by half as much again as that of the whole of Canada is in sore need. Practically every able-bodied man is under arms. What does this mean? It means that her industries and agricultural pursuits are paralyzed.

It must also be borne in mind that the northern part of France is a densely populated region, and that this section is largely in ruins. When we pause to consider this appalling condition of affairs, and remember that added to this heavy burden is the strain of having huge armies on her territory, with the consequent derangement of trade conditions, we should be moved to immediate action.

Belgium was really Britain's first line of defence; France is her second.

The object of this organization is to give immediate relief to those who need food, clothing, money or shelter, and to furnish hospital supplies where needed. Money and clothing are given to those who have fled from the devastated districts. Agents visit the war zone to prevent black misery for those who have been unable to escape from the scene of conflict, and are forced to remain near their ruined homes. No request has come for aid from the French people. The organization is entirely voluntary and aims to be a tangible expression of Canadian appreciation for the heroic conduct of our great ally. Through the courtesy of Mr. Stephen Haas and the directors of the Union Bank, the committee of the Secours National have [illegible]tained quarters at 51 King street [illegible]t, Toronto, and will [illegible] receive any [illegible] be sent. The following articles are most urgently in demand. Blankets, woollen yarn, materials of all kinds, cloth, serge, flannel, cotton, underclothing, hosiery, shoes for men, women, children and babies, clothing of all kinds for men, women, boys, girls and babies. Worn articles, in good condition, are as acceptable as new ones. Donations of money may be sent to the honorary treasurer, Mr. W. R. Johnston, corner Front and York streets. Contributions or donations of money should be clearly marked "For the Secours National." All correspondence should be addressed to the honorary secretary, Mr. John M. Lyle, 51 King street west, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

◆

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Austrian "Red Book" is well named.

◆

Then the Kaiser can't signal to the Sultan, "Hold the forts, for I am coming."

◆

Neutral nations will please take notice that there is no peace party in Canada.

◆

Some of the boots made for the first contingent were so bad that they were burned. That was one way of getting rid of the evidence.

◆

In increasing the British preference Canada is fighting the old country commercially while it is fighting the Germans in the trenches.

◆

German spies will be pleased to learn that Carl Ruerode, indicted in connection with the German passport frauds, got three years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

◆

Sam Hughes threatened to have shot those responsible for giving our soldiers shoddy boots. We would not go as far as that, but somebody should go to jail.

◆

The German reservists who tried to get home from the States on forged passports and were fined $200 each should come over here and join one of our concentration camps.

◆

The Liberals are with much unanimity denouncing the decrease in the British preference. Borrowing money from Britain and at the same time stabbing her in the back is not regarded with favor by the Liberal party.

◆

Lloyd-George says that the war is being won in the workshops of Britain as well as in the trenches. He has therefore, as it were, mobilized all the British machine shops and put them under the control of the Government. No loafing allowed.

◆

Germany probably regrets that General Von Hindenburg isn't twins.—Detroit Free Press.

Gen. Von Hindenburg is no nearer Warsaw than he was at the beginning of the war. His successes have been followed by retreats. He has sacrificed thousands of men's lives and has nothing to show for the loss.

◆

The annual report of the New York compensation commission shows that the average award paid to workmen during the first year under the new law was about [illegible]. The high cost of insurance is said to be the most discouraging feature in the working of the new law. The results of the Ontario law will be looked forward to with interest.

◆

There is little or nothing to which exception can reasonably be taken in all that and "there can be no quarrel with its (Germany's) statement that enemy merchant vessels should not be armed and should abstain from resisting search, alike because the law of nations prohibits such conduct and because armed resistance would render it impracticable for submarines to proceed as international law requires.—Philadelphia Record.

But "enemy" merchant ships were not armed and did not resist arrest until Germany began to sink them and drown their crews without warning.

◆

There has been much activity of late in the open spaces around London where military motor squadrons have been practising manoeuvres. Each squadron is complete in itself, and consists of a large armored car having a Maxim quick-firing gun mounted in a revolving turret. A second car carries a 1 or 2 pound gun. For these there are two supply cars; and the squadron also includes a red cross car. These combinations are so complete and mobile that they have been found extremely valuable, especially in the skirmishes that so frequently take place in villages. A few of these would be very handy at the front just now.

◆

The Ash on the Cigar.

Young men, very young men, in their earlier smoking days like to keep the ash on a cigar as long as it will stay. Somebody has told them that it is a mark of a good cigar for it to have an ash that does not crumble and fall off; it is at least true that a long ash marks a cigar as one with a long filler.

As he grows older the young man comes to be a smoker of another sort. He flicks the ashes off his cigar jauntily. Then as he grows older still he may come to be so engrossed with other things as he smokes that he lets the ashes accumulate, to drop maybe on his garments and cover them with ashes.

Still later in life the grown, mature man is likely to knock the ash off his cigar at frequent intervals, to keep it down short. He smokes in a business way, he doesn't want the ashes scattered over him. But as he grows older yet, when he comes to be an oldish man, he may come again as he smokes to keep the ash on a cigar as long as he can.

You may see an old man smoking a cigar thus, holding it carefully and smoking slowly and contemplatively, looking at the ash occasionally and clearly interested in seeing it grow, just as he did when he was young. Why he does so now is uncertain, but perhaps it is because it brings back memories of his youth.

A Public Idol

But, as Paris receded further and further behind him, and the sea drew nearer, and the shores of the country which held Isabel Bretherton, it was but natural that even the grip upon him of this terrible and startling calamity should relax a little, and that he should realize himself as a man seeking the adored woman, his veins still beating with the currents of youth, and the great unguessed future still before him. He had left Marie in the grave, and his life would bear the scar of that loss forever. But Isabel Bretherton was still among the living, the warm, the beautiful, and every mile brought him nearer to the electric joy of her presence. He took a sad strange pleasure in making the contrast between the one picture and the other as vivid as possible. Death and silence on the one side—oh how true and how irreparable! But on the other, he forced on his imagination till it grew for him an image of youth and beauty so glowing that it almost charmed the sting out of his grief. The English paper which he succeeded in getting at Calais contained the announcement: "Miss Bretherton has, we are glad to say, completely recovered from the effects of the fainting fit which so much alarmed the audience at the Calliope last week. She was able to play 'Elvira' as usual last night, and was greeted by a large and sympathetic house." He read it, and turned the page hastily, as if what the paragraph suggested was wholly distasteful to him. He refused altogether to think of her as weak or suffering; he shrunk from his own past misgivings, his own prophecies about her. The world would be a mere dark prison-house if her bright beauty were over-clouded! She was not made for death, and she should stand to him as the image of all that escapes and resists and defies that tyrant of our years, and pain, his instrument and herald.

He reached London, in the midst of a rainy fog. The endless lines of streets stretched before him in the dreary December morning like so many roads into the nether regions, the gas lamps scattered an unreasonable light through the rain and fog. It was the quintessence of murky, cheerless winter.

He reached his own rooms, and found his man up and waiting for him, and a meal ready. It was but three days since he had been last there, the open telegram was still lying on the table. One of his first actions was to put it hastily out of sight. Over his breakfast he planned his embassy to Miss Bretherton. The best time to find her alone, he imagined, would be about midday, and in the interval he would put his books and papers to right. They lay scattered about—books, proofs, and manuscripts. As his orderly hands went to work upon them, he was conscious that he had never been so remote from all that they represented. But his nature was faithful and tenacious, and under the outward sense of detachment there was an inward promise of return. "I will come back to you," seemed to be the cry of his thought. "You shall be my only friends. But first I must see her and all my heart is hers."

The morning dragged away and at half-past eleven he went out, carrying the little case with him. As he stood outside the Bayswater house, in which she had settled for the winter, he realized that he had never yet been under her roof, never yet seen her at home. It was his own fault. She had asked him, in her gracious way, on the first night of "Elvira," to come and see her. But instead of doing so, he had buried himself in his Surrey lodging, striving to bring the sober and austere influences of the country to bear upon the feverish indecision of his mood. Perhaps his disappearance and silence had wounded her; after all, he knew that he had some place in her thoughts.

The servant who opened the door murmured in his request, to see Miss Bretherton: "The doctor says, sir, that at home she must keep quiet; she has not seen any visitors just lately." But Kendal persisted, and his card taken in, while he waited result. The servant hurried along the ground-floor passage, knocked at the door at the further end, went in for a moment and came out beckoning to him. He obeyed with a beating heart and she came toward the door for him.

Inside stood Isabel Bretherton with eager surprise and pleasure in her whole attitude. She had just risen from her chair, and was coming forward; a soft white cashmere shawl hung around her; her dress of some dark rich stuff, fell with its flowing stately lines, peculiar to it; her face was slightly flushed, and the brilliancy of her color, of her hair, of her exhaustion. His black eyes seemed to Kendal to take all the chill and gloom out of the winter air. She held some loose sheets of a new play in her hand, and the rest lay piled beside her on a little table.

"How kind of you, Mr. Kendal!" she said, advancing with her quick, impulsive step toward him. "I thought you had forgotten me, and I have been wanting your advice so badly! I have just been complaining of you a little in a letter to Madame de Chateauvieux! She——"

Then she suddenly stopped, checked and startled by his face. He was always colorless and thin, but the two nights he had just passed through had given him an expression of haggard exhaustion. His black eyes seemed to have lost the keenness which was so remarkable in them, and his prematurely gray hair gave him almost a look of age in spite of the lightness and pliancy of the figure.

He came forward and took her hand nervously and closely in his own.

"I have come to bring you sad news," he said gently, and seeking anxiously word by word how he might soften what, after all, could not be softened. "M. de Chateauvieux sent me to you at once, that you should not hear it in any other way. But it must be a shock to you—for you loved her."

"Oh!" she cried, interrupting him, speaking in short, gasping words, and answering not so much his words as his look. "She is ill—she is dead—something has happened?"

"I was summoned on Wednesday," said Kendal, helpless after all in the grip of the truth which would not be managed or controlled. "When I got there she had been two days ill, and there was no hope."

He paused: her eyes of agonized questioning implored him to go on. "I was with her six hours—after I came, she had no pain—it was quite peaceful, and—she died in the evening."

She had been watching him open-eyed, every vestige of color fading from cheek and lip. When he stopped, she gave a little cry. He let go her hand, and she sank into a chair near, so white and breathless that he was alarmed.

"Shall I get you water—shall I ring?" he asked, after a moment or two, bending over her.

"No," she whispered with difficulty; "let me alone—just for a minute."

He left her side, and stood leaning against the mantelpiece, waiting anxiously. She struggled against the physical oppression which had seized upon her, and fought it down bravely, but he noticed with a pang now that the flesh was gone, that she looked fragile and worn, and, as his thought went back for a moment to the Surrey Sundays and her young rounded beauty among the spring green, he could have cried out in useless rebellion against the unyielding physical conditions which press upon and imprison the flame of life.

At last the faintness passed off, and she sat up; her hands clasped round her knees, and the tears running fast over her cheeks. Her grief was like herself, frank, simple, expressive.

"Will you tell me more about it? Oh, I cannot believe it! Why, only last week when I was ill she talked of coming to me! I had just been writing to her—there is my letter. I feel as if I could not bear it; she was a mother to me in Paris. Oh, if I could have seen her!"

"You were one of the chief thoughts at the last," said Kendal, much moved. And he went on to tell her the story of Marie's dying hours, describing that gentle withdrawal from life with a manly tenderness of feeling and a quick memory for all that could soften the impression of it to the listener. And then he brought out the miniature and gave it to her, and she accepted it with a fresh burst of sorrow, putting it to her lips, studying it, and weeping over it, with an absolute abandonment and self-abandonment which was lovely because it was true.

"Oh, poor M. de Chateauvieux!" she cried, after a long pause, looking up to him. "How will he live without her? He will feel himself so forsaken!"

"Yes," said Kendal huskily, "he will be very lonely, but—one must learn to bear it."

She gazed at him with quick, startled sympathy, and all her womanly nature seemed to rise into her upturned face and yearning eyes. It was as though her attention had been specially recalled to him as though his particular loss and sorrow were brusquely brought home to her. And then she was struck by the strangeness and unexpectedness of such a meeting between them. He had been to her a judge, an authority, an embodied standard. His high-mindedness had won her confidence; his affection for his sister had touched and charmed her. But she had never been conscious of any intimacy with him. Still less had she ever dreamed of sharing a common grief with him, of weeping at his side. And the contrast between her old relation with him and this new solemn experience, rushing in upon her, filled her with emotion. The memory of the Nuneham day woke her nature and his, of her overwhelming sense of the intellectual difference between them, and then of the thrill which his verdict upon "Elvira" had stirred in her. The relation which she had regarded as a mere intellectual and friendly one but which had been far more real and important to her than even she herself had ever guessed, seemed to have transformed itself once he had entered the room into something close and personal. His last words had called up in her a glimpse, sudden, of the man's inmost nature as it was, beneath the polished scholarly surface. They had appealed to her on the simplest, commonest human ground; she felt them impulsively as a call from him to her, and her own heart overflowed.

She rose and went near to him, bending toward him like a spirit of healing, her whole soul in his eyes. "Oh, I am so sorry for you!" she exclaimed, and again the quick tears dropped. "I know it is no common loss to you. You were so much more to each other than brother and sister often are. It is terrible for you."

His whole man was stirred by her pity, by the eager, tremulousness of her sympathy.

"Say it again!" he murmured as their eyes met; "say it again. It is so sweet from you."

There was a long pause; she stood as if fascinated, her hands falling slowly beside her. Her gaze wavered till the eyelids fell, and she stood absolutely motionless, the tears still on her cheek. The strange intoxicating force of feeling, set in motion by sorrow and pity, and the unsuspected influence of his love was sweeping them out into deep waters. She could hardly breathe, but as he watched her all the manhood in him rose, and from the midst of grief put forward an imperious claim to the beloved and beautiful woman before him. He came forward, took the cold, unresisting hands.

"Your pity is heavenly," he said brokenly; "but give me more, give me more! I want your love!"

and, bending before her, pressed them to his lips, while her bewildered eyes looked down upon him.

She gave a little start and cry, and, drawing away her hands from him, sank back on her chair. Her thoughts went flying back to the past—to the stretches of Surrey common, to the Nuneham woods, and all she had ever seen or imagined of his feelings toward her, she had never, never suspected him of loving her. She had sent him her friendly messages from Venice in the simplest good faith; she had relished his sister's praises of him without a moment's self-consciousness. His approval of her play in "Elvira" had given her the same frank pleasure that a master's good word gives to a pupil—and all the time he had loved her—loved her! How strange! how incredible!

Kendal followed, bent over her, listened, but no word came. She was, indeed, too bewildered and overwhelmed to speak. The old bitter fear and certainty began to assert itself against the overmastering impulse which had led him on.

"I have startled you—shocked you!" he cried. "I ought not to have spoken—and at such a time. It was your pity overcame me—your sweet womanly kindness. I have loved you, I think, ever since the first evening after the 'White Lady.' At least, when I look back upon my feeling, I see that it was love; but I would not acknowledge it. I fought against it. It seemed to me that you would never forget that I had been harsh, that I had behaved rather like an enemy than a friend. But you did forget—you showed me how noble a woman could be, and every day after we parted in July I loved you more. I thought of you all the summer when I was buried in the country; my days and nights were full of you. Then when your great success came it was base of me, but all the time while I was sending my congratulations to you through my sister at Venice, I was really feeling that there was no more hope for me, and that some cruel force was carrying you away from me. Then came 'Elvira' and I seemed to give you up forever."

Her hands dropped from her face, and her great hazel eyes were fixed upon him with that intent look he remembered long ago when she had asked him for the "truth" about herself and her position. But there was no pain in it now; nothing but wonder and a sweet moved questioning.

"Why?" The word was just breathed through her parted lips.

Kendal heard it with a start—the little sound loosed his speech and made him eloquent.

"Why? Because I thought you must inevitably be absorbed, swallowed up by the great new future before you; because my own life looked so gray and dull beside yours. I felt it impossible you should stoop from your height to love me, to yield your bright self to me, to give me heart for heart. So I went away that I might not trouble you. And then" his voice sank lower still "came the summons to Paris and Marie on her death-bed tried to make me hope. And just now your pity drew the heart out of my lips. Let me hope you forgive me."

Every word had reached its mark. She had realized at last something of the depth, the tenacity, the rich illimitable promise of the passion which she had roused. The tenderness of Marie seemed to encompass them, and a sacred pathetic sense of death and loss drew them together. Her respect, her reverence, her interest had been yielded long ago; did this troubled yearning within mean something more, something infinitely greater?

She raised herself suddenly, and, as he knelt beside her, he felt her warm breath on his cheek and a tear dropped on to his hands, which her own were blindly and timidly seeking.

"Oh!" she whispered, or rather sobbed, "I never dreamed of it. I never thought of anything like this. But do not leave me again, I could not bear it."

Kendal bowed his head upon the hands nestling in his, and it seemed to him as if life and time were suspended, as if he and she were standing within the "wind-warm space" of love, while death and sorrow and parting—three grave and tender angels of benediction kept watch and ward without.

The End.

◆

FIRST PAPERMAKERS.

An Interesting Study of the Hornets and Their Habits.

A school teacher at Huntington, Pennsylvania, wrote to Professor H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, and asked "What becomes of the hornets in the fall and how are they resurrected in the spring?" To this interesting enquiry Professor Surface replied in a manner that throws considerable light on the habits and value of these common insects. His reply was as follows:

"Hornets are unusually interesting insects. In the first place they were first and original paper makers. Over 50 years ago a prominent entomologist wrote that if we knew how to make paper out of wood, as the hornets do, it would be of great service to mankind. The process has been discovered and his prophecy fulfilled.

Perhaps few things contribute more to the welfare of mankind than wood paper which is now in general use. By examining nests of hornets carefully the amount of wood pulp that is chewed up and carried at one time to make a layer of paper can be observed, as it is taken from different kinds of wood and consequently is of different color in the nests.

"The life history of the hornets of which you make particular enquiry is as follows: In the fall of the year the workers die and the females, having mated, leave the old paper nests and fly to some protected place such as under loose dry bark of a log, and there remain during the winter.

"In the spring they come forth, fly around, feed on insects, and find a suitable place to start their nest. When they do so by making paper cells or combs of wood paper pulp surrounding them with paper as it is to be observed in the large nests, and placing the eggs in the cells, feeding the young on the chewed-up substance of insects and as soon as the young are able to fly, they in turn commence to capture insects for their own food, and also for the food of the young, which come from later eggs placed in the same and additional cells by the queen. The workers all take part in enlarging the nest and feeding the young and the queen can devote more of her attention to the laying of eggs and building up a strong colony.

"The so-called American or White Faced Hornet is especially an enemy of the house fly, and where its nest occurs near a building, it devotes a great deal of time to destroying these pests. For that reason alone it is worthy of protection and encouragement although it also destroys other [illegible] insects.

"I am aware that it is the custom of many persons to destroy the nests of hornets whenever they see them but this is a mistake. In the economy of nature these creatures are worthy of preservation. The hornet is really a wasp, and there are other species of wasps that are also important [illegible] spiders."

◆

OUR SYSTEM OF "REFORM."

(London Free Press)

A Toronto magistrate sent a young man to the penitentiary for two years for appropriating an automobile for a night "joy ride." The prisoner had done the thing before.

At long range the punishment does not seem to fit the crime. Two years in the penitentiary at Kingston! Two years in the association of criminals of every class! Two years in which the young man will be known by number and not by name, will see the sun through barred window, will be under the eye of armed guard, will suffer the indignity of close-cropped hair and striped suit.

Besides, doesn't the country take a long chance on the infliction of a sentence like that. Isn't there not a strong likelihood that instead of a sneaky, mischievous young man who goes into the penitentiary will we shall liberate two [illegible] criminal outcast?

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson XIII. March 28, 1915.

God's Mercies to Disobedient Israel. Review. Nehemiah 9: 26-31.

Summary.—Lesson I. Topic: God's methods. Place: The land of Canaan. The people observed God's law during Joshua's lifetime and while those were alive who had been associated with him. Afterward they turned to idols. As a punishment for their disobedience the Lord permitted their enemies to gain the advantage over them and oppress them. The Lord heard them when they cried to him and raised up judges to deliver them.

II. Topic: Israel called to freedom. Place: Northern Canaan. Israel fell into sin repeatedly and was oppressed by the people of Mesopotamia, the Moabites and the Canaanites. Sisera and his hosts came against the Israelites in northern Canaan, and the Lord inspired Deborah to undertake the deliverance of her people. She called Barak, the captain of the army of Israel, to take the field. She went with him and defeated the enemy. Sisera was slain.

III. Topic: Oppression for Israel. Place: Plain of Jezreel. Israel had peace for many years after the victory of Deborah and Barak, but later the people sinned again and the host of Midian overran the land, robbing the inhabitants and inciting terror throughout the nation. The people cried to the Lord and he called Gideon to become their judge and deliverer. The Lord gave him unmistakable signs that he had called him.

IV. Topic: Divinely ordained tests. Place: Plain of Jezreel. Gideon was called Baal-fighter, because he tore down the altar of Baal. He called the tribes of Israel to battle, and thirty-two thousand responded. He was divinely directed to apply two tests, which resulted in reducing his army to three hundred men. These, armed with trumpets, pitchers and lamps, put the great Midian army to flight by blowing their trumpets, breaking their pitchers and shouting.

V. Topic: Parenthood. Place: Zorah, Samson's birthplace. The Philistines, who dwelt on the plain along the Mediterranean Sea, troubled Israel greatly after the Israelites again fell into idolatry. The Philistines made trouble especially in the southwestern part of Israel. The Lord promised Manoah and his wife that they should have a son and told them that he should be a Nazarite all his life. The wife of Manoah should refrain from wine or strong drink before the child was born. Samson became a judge in Israel.

VI. Topic: True consecration. Places: Moab; Bethlehem. Elimelech and Naomi and their two sons moved from Bethlehem to Moab on account of famine. The sons married Moabite women, Ruth and Orpah. During the ten years of residence there, Elimelech and the two sons died. Naomi returned to Canaan and tried to have Ruth and Orpah remain in Moab, but Ruth persisted in going with her. She chose God and his people for hers.

VII. Topic: Preparation for success. Place: Shiloh. The Lord promised Hannah, the wife of Elkanah, a son. She said that she would devote him from his early infancy to the Lord. At the age of three or four years she took him to the house of the Lord, there to remain and serve under Eli, the priest and judge. When he was about twelve years old the Lord called him one night and gave him a message for Eli.

Places: Ebenezer; Aphek; Shiloh. There was war between the Israelites and the Philistines. Israel was defeated, and it was decided to bring the ark of the covenant into the camp. This was done and the Philistines defeated Israel again and captured the ark. The sons of Eli were slain in the battle. Eli died when he heard the ark was taken. Though Eli failed in the proper government of his sons, he had a great interest in the welfare of the nation.

IX. Topic: Israel's return to God. Places: Ramah; Mizpeh; Ebenezer. The Philistines had oppressed Israel many times. Samuel had tried to bring about a reformation, and the people were turning toward the Lord. They confessed their sins, gave up their idols and vowed to serve God only. The people gathered at Mizpeh and were sacrificing to God when the Philistines came upon them. The Lord sent a great storm which threw the Philistines into confusion. There was a great victory for Israel. Samuel marked the victory by setting up a stone, calling it Ebenezer, which means, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

X. Topic: National revolution. Place: Ramah. The people of Israel desired a king so as to be like other nations. They were displeased with Samuel's sons whom he had employed to help him in judging Israel. The Lord directed Samuel to anoint Saul to be king of Israel. The Lord told Samuel that the people were turning against himself and not against Samuel in demanding a king. The Lord had a man in readiness on whom he could place the responsibility of kingship.

XI. Topic: Invasion of Israel. Places: Jabesh-Gilead; Gibeah; Bezek; Gilgal. Not all Israel received Saul as king at first. The Ammonites threatened Jabesh-Gilead, and all Israel. When Saul heard it he raised an army of three hundred and thirty thousand men and defeated the Ammonites. Thereupon all Israel was glad to recognize Saul as king. The kingdom was renewed at Gilgal.

XII. Topic: Inspired leadership. Places: Gibeah; Michmash. The Philistines were still troublesome and were encamped at Michmash. Saul had six hundred men at Gibeah. Jonathan, Saul's son, proposed to his armor-bearer that they two go to the stronghold of the Philistines. They scaled the height and slew the guard. The Philistines were put to confusion.

Topic.—Sin in Israel.

I. Caused internal disorganization.

II. Set at naught divine sovereignty.

I. Caused internal disorganization. Nothing is more certain than the fact that God takes into account the record of His people whether good or bad. His watchful care is unceasing. At the beginning of the quarter we have the record of Israel's faithfulness during [illegible]. Under Joshua God's plan for the conquest of Canaan and the peaceful settlement of his people was carefully carried out. The inhabitants of Canaan learned the object of the settlement of the Hebrews in their land. They were made to know that Jehovah was a God of power who fought for His people and against Him there could be no successful warfare. They learned also the weakness of Israel when they lapsed from strict observance of all that God commanded. It is in that weakened state spiritually and morally that we begin to follow their career. Israel was not at first charged with complete rejection of the religion of their father and the worship of Jehovah but of mingling with idolaters in their worship which amounted to the breaking of the first commandment. The various tribes of Israel were stationed in their allotted places in Canaan for the purpose of subduing it and driving out their enemies. As they ventured into forbidden relations with the inhabitants, they involved themselves accordingly and lost the favor of God correspondingly. This led to tribal differences where there was no solidarity in their religious life. When they reached their extremity they called upon God for relief, but with no deep sense of sin. The exceeding mercy and patience of God came to view in repeated seasons of uplift which He sent through the instrumentality of judges by whom he drew Israel into a revived state. In the days of Deborah Israel was woefully disorganized and indifferent to the commission God had given them. Under her ministry a revival began and the enemies of God's children were subdued. At the time when God called Gideon, the people were so far subjected to the heathen that they lived in constant dread of their oppressors. The same sin of idolatry prevailed with no manifest trust in God and no unity of the tribes. The power of God was again exercised to deliver Israel and some measure of reformation was begun. So vital is the connection of family life with national life, that God sent His angel to Manoah's wife directing her in the preparation of Israel's future judge, through whom Israel was to be taught what an irresistible nation they would be if faithful to their covenant with God and how powerless they would be without Him. Among the various ills that befell the disobedient Israelites was famine. In seeking to escape the chastisement of God Elimelech was not permitted to enjoy the plenty of a heathen land. Naomi's loyalty to God led her back to Canaan with a trophy from heathendom, a true convert to God. When not only the people but the priesthood were corrupt, the yearning heart of Hannah asked for a son whom she might devote to the service of God, and Samuel was given.

II. Set at naught divine sovereignty. So blinded were the people to the real cause of their distress and so set were they to pattern after other nations, that they rebelled against the prayer life of Samuel and the method of defeating their enemies by prayer. Samuel stood as the mouth-piece of God to Israel and warned the people that they were rejecting God and his claim upon them, crushing their spiritual life and depending upon human power rather than upon God. Though Israel was given a king and God through his prophet instructed him the days of seeming success were brief. Only one recorded instance is given where Saul moved under divine leadership. His departure from God resulted in much injustice to his son and the army of Israel.—T. R. A.

HAD A BAD COLD
WITH PROLONGED COUGHING.

TRIED NEARLY EVERYTHING
FINALLY
DR. WOOD'S
NORWAY PINE SYRUP
CURED HIM.

Mr. Wallace H. Graves, Vancouver, B.C., writes: "During a cold spell here about the middle of last October (1913), I caught a cold which got worse despite all treatments I could obtain, until about November 22nd, a friend said, 'Why not try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup?' Really, I had no faith in it at the time as I had tried nearly every other remedy I had heard of, to no avail, but I thought I would give this last remedy a trial. I purchased a 25c. bottle, and in three days I was feeling a different man. My cold was so hard, and the coughing so prolonged, that vomiting occurred after a hard spell of coughing. I carried the bottle in my pocket, and every time I was seized with a coughing spell I would take a small dose. I can most heartily recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to anyone with a severe cold, as its powers are most marvelous, and I never intend being without it at all times."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get what you ask for. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Disapproval.

Greene—He doesn't look very cheerful. But you must give him credit for one thing. He doesn't quarrel.

Homer—Exactly. He's so ill natured that no one wants to get well enough acquainted even to quarrel with him.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

◆

Many a man burns his bridges behind him without taking the precaution of having them insured.

War News
Affected Her.

Many people who have been reading the terrible war news from day to day, especially those who have relatives at the seat of war, have become so nervous that it is impossible for them to sleep.

The nerves have become unstrung and the heart perhaps affected.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will build up the unstrung nervous system and strengthen the weak heart.

Miss Hilda Dicaire, Martintown, Ont., writes: "In August, 1914, I was out of school for my health. I was visiting friends in London, and heard of the war. It made me so nervous that I could not sleep, but after using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I improved greatly, and could take my school again. I have recommended them to many of my friends."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO

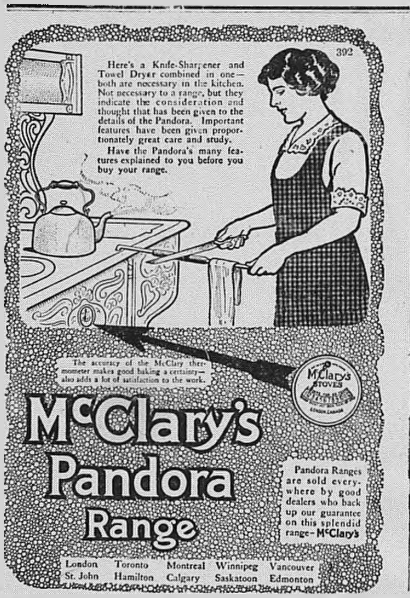
H. M. LAY, MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

Brooms, Brushes and Twines, Etc

Mr. C. Patrick has on hand a large quantity of Brooms, Brushes, Baskets, Twines, and etc. in fact all the stock carried at the Walkerton Broom Works which will be sold at a sacrifice in order to get it out of the house, as he is anxious to get the house in shape for to rent as soon as possible. Ring up the Telescope at any time for any of these lines.

C. PATRICK

Telescope Office Walkerton



Here's a Knife-Sharpener and Towel Dryer combined in one—both are necessary in the kitchen. Not necessary to a range, but they indicate the consideration and thought that has been given to the details of the Pandora. Important features have been given proportionately great care and study.

Have the Pandora's many features explained to you before you buy your range.

The accuracy of the McClary thermometer makes good baking a certainty—also adds a lot of satisfaction to the work.

McClary's Pandora Range

Pandora Ranges are sold everywhere by good dealers who back up our guarantee on this splendid range—McClary's

London Toronto Montreal Winnipeg Vancouver
St. John Hamilton Calgary Saskatoon Edmonton

PATRIOTISM and PRODUCTION

"I would urge the farmers of Canada to do their share in preventing the people of Great Britain from suffering want or privation."

HON. MARTIN BURRELL, Minister of Agriculture.

The Empire Needs Many Foods

In the past Great Britain has imported immense quantities of these staple foods from Russia, France, Belgium, Germany and Austria-Hungary as shown by the following:

Average Imports
Years 1910-1913

Wheat	26,439,60?	bush.
Oats	23,685,304	"
Barley	15,192,268	"
Corn	7,621,374	"
Peas	703,058	"
Beans	639,663	"
Potatoes	4,721,590	"
Onions	271,569	"
Meat	26,509,766	lbs.
Eggs	121,112,916	doz.
Butter and Cheese	61,765,233	lbs.

The above mentioned sources of supply of staple foods are now, in the main, cut off as a result of the war. Great Britain is looking to Canada to supply a large share of the shortage. Every individual farmer has a duty to perform.

Millions of bushels rather than millions of acres should be Canada's aim.

That there is abundant reason to expect larger returns from the same area is conclusively shown when we compare the average production of the present time with the possible production. Note the following brief table which shows the average in 1914 and possible production per acre.

	Average	Possible
Fall Wheat	20.??	62.
Spring Wheat	1?.??	23.
Barley	16.15	60.
Oats	35 30	91.
Corn, Grain	70.	200.
Corn Ensilage (Tons)	12.	19.
Peas	16 33	37.
Beans	16.79	60.
Potatoes	119.10	[illegible]
Turnips	421.81	1000.

By "possible" is meant the actual results which have been obtained by our Experimental Farms and by many farmers. These "possibles" have been obtained under intensive cultivation methods and [illegible] not altogether possible on the average farm, yet they indicate the great possibilities of increased production. By better care in the selection of seed, more thorough cultivation, fertilization, better drainage, the average could be raised by at least one-third. That increase would add [illegible] to the annual income of Canada from the farms. It would be a great service to the Empire, and this is the year in which to do it.

For information and bulletins write to

Canadian Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada

Increase Your Live Stock

Breeding stock are to-day Canada's most valuable asset. The one outstanding feature of the world's farming is that there will soon be a great shortage of meat supplies. Keep your breeding stock. Plan to increase your live stock. Europe and the United States, as well as Canada, will pay higher prices for beef, mutton, and bacon in the very near future. Do not sacrifice now. Remember that live stock is the only basis for prosperous agriculture. You are farming, not speculating.

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published every Thursday morning at Walkerton, Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in advance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY, Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

SASKATCHEWAN'S EXAMPLE

Now that the Saskatchewan Government has announced that they are going to close all bars during the war and that a vote will be taken on a majority basis after the war as to whether these places will ever be re-opened or not, the temperance question has become acute again in Ontario.

Although some of the details are different, these main features of Saskatchewan's proposal correspond to Mr. Rowell's proposals here which are to close all bars during the war and then to submit to a majority vote of the electors the question as to whether they will ever be re-opened or not.

What will the Ontario Government do on the temperance question is thus again the live issue of the day.

The temperance people are none too confident owing to Hon. Mr. Hearst's avowed declaration that he prefers a zig-zag method. Saskatchewan has chosen a straight road.

NINE MILLION DOLLART SHORT

Estimated Ontario Expenditure and receipts, 1915.

Expenditures.

Main and supplementary estimates, $11,109,469 Further supplementary, $3,468,955. Statutory expenditures, (based on last two years,) $4,698,370. Total estimated expenditures, $19,276,794. Total estimated receipts, $10,003,788. Estimated deficit, $9,273,006.

These are not the deficit figures which have been mentioned during the last few weeks which were for the fiscal year of 1914. These are new figures based on the estimate of this year, the fiscal year of 1915 and it shows that the province is still running far behind.

Taking out $3,000,000 for the Hydro and $500,000 for the T. N. O. Railway, which may be revenue producing; it still leaves a net shortage of over $5,000,000.

When the Premier was asked how he intended to meet this big deficit he said that for one thing there would be a new borrowing bill.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE WAR

It is to be noted that none of the estimated expenditures nor receipts for 1915 include war items. As a matter of fact the Government have now passed all their estimates for the fiscal year of 1915 and have not secured from the legislature a single dollar for war purposes. Any money they have spent this year has been obtained under special war: rant.

In view of the fact that the Dominion and Imperial Governments did secure big votes from their parliaments for war, it rather confirms an idea which is becoming prevalent that the Ontario Government does not intend to use all the proceeds of the war tax for war purposes.

In spite of the arguments of Mr. Rowell and his colleagues, the Government lead by Mr. Hearst, refused to pass the Leader of the Opposition's amendment to the war tax bill stating specifically that all the proceeds from this special tax should be applied for war purposes only. The Government did accept one or two Opposition proposals, among them their proposal that exemption of industrial concerns from taxation should not apply in this case. There will be no exemption except statutory ones such as schools churches and similar institutions.

NOTES

Mr. Gooderham's bill to grant reciprocity in automobile licenses with the American States, although introduced by a Conservative member, was opposed by Hon. Mr. Hanna and withdrawn.

The private bills Committee threw out the bill to encorporate a college of Chiropractic.

The Government is broadening the scope of the succession duties to provide more revenue from this source.

Hon. Messrs McGarry and Ferguson, new Ministers of the Crown, are in attendance at each meeting of the public accounts committee coaching Herbert Lennox, M. P. P. the new Chairman and showing him how to follow their example and shut off investigation. There has already been one stormy meeting on account of this.

John Grieve, now Liberal member for North Middlesex, is introducing a bill to provide registration for electors in rural districts as well as in the cities.

One hundred and seven men, exclusive of officers are now in training in the third contingent at Owen Sound. It is the intention to recruit a half company, 125 men

Maple syrup making is now the order of the day for those who have trees. No doubt the high price of sugar will be an inducement to make more syrup and sugar this spring.

Famine Imminent In Austria

A Rome despatch quotes the Vienna Weiner Journal as saying that famine is immient in Austria. The Vienna newspaper was quoted as saying that bread is now unbuyable in the Austrian capital.

It's Up To Ontario.

"It's up to Ontario." Such is the attitude of the temperance people of Ontario following the announcement that Saskatchewan would abolish the bar during war time. Premier Scott of that province has set the pace for the other provinces in temperance legislation, and his announcement at Oxbow of the Government's intention has aroused enthusiasm in Ontario.

95,000 Canadians in Service.

Approximately 95,000 Canadian soldiers are now on active service and under arms. This number comprises the men in the trenches in Flanders, reserves in England, men on guard duty in Canada, two regiments in Bermuda and the West Indies, two mounted brigades for services in Egypt twenty thousand men for the Second Contingent, and twenty thousand for the Third and future contingents, now enlisted and in training at various divisional centres in Canada. These are official figures, and they will come as a surprise to most Canadians, who have not realized how effectively the Government has been carrying out the policy of sending a continuous stream of fighting units to the aid of the Motherland. The disposition of the Canadian troops is as follows:—

First Contingent now at front with reserves in England, 34,000.

Princess Patricia Light Infantry and reinforcements, 1600.

Royal Canadian Regiment at Bermuda, 1200.

Regiment at St. Lucia, British West Indies, 500.

Thirteen regiments of mounted men 7100.

Second Contingent, including 4000 now in England, 20,000.

Twenty-six regiments of Third and Fourth Cotingents, 20,000.

Men on home defence duty and guarding alien camps, 10,092.

In addition to the forgoing there has been sent forward various hospital, veterinary and other detachments, which would make something like 1500 or 2000 men.

Mr. "Dutch" Yeck left on Tuesday for Walkerton and later expects to go to the Soo. Southampton Beacon.

The I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge will not meet this year, but instead will devote the amount, $9000, or thereabouts, to keeping the Odd Fellow soldier boys at the front in good standing in the Order. We hope the majority of the three-linkers will be able to return home in due course when peace is proclaimed in the fall.

To Be A Good Auctioneer.

To be a good auctioneer, a man should be brainy, brassy and breezy. He should be quick to observe the winks and nods of the bidders and have knowledge enough of the goods he handles to form a fair estimate of the value and to form that estimate quickly. A glib tongue and a proper amount of self conceit are essentials, but these are not the only essentials.

LOVAT

Mr. John Teple spent Sunday at home.

Mr. Peter McArthur lost his valuable stock horse, Bute Hiror.

Mr. John McKay is at present sawing. Seems like old times when we hear the whistle blowing.

Mr. James McArthur lost his fine driver last week.

Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Neil McLean on account of the recent death of her sister.

Mr. Hume Currie spent the week-end in Cargill.

Miss Annie Barrie visited her sister, Mrs. Colonel Thomas Hay.

Mr. Alex McLean is going to work in the burg this summer.

Mr and Mrs. Geo. Baker spent Sunday at Mr. James McKay's.

Nobody Here! Guess I'll help Myself!

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

Combination Offers

You want good reading during the coming year You can't get a better paper for local news than the TELESCOPE and with it we offer the following at the prices shown The Telescope and

One new Subscription	$1.75
Saturday Globe	1.90
Family Herald	1.
Toronto World	3.7
Farmer's Advocate	2.40
Canadian Farm	1.90
Weekly Sun	1.90
Catholic Register	1.90
Toronto Daily Globe	3.90
Toronto Daily Mail & Empire	3.90
Toronto Daily Star	2.90
Toronto Daily News	2.90
Montreal W. Witness	1.90
London Catholic Record	2.25
Canadian Baptist	2.25
Presbyterian	2.25
Westminster	2.25
Ontario Churchman	1.50
Church Life	2.00
Farm & Dairy	1.90
Weekly Mail & Empire	1.90
Saturday Night	3.50
London Advertiser	3.90

WHOLE FAMILY USES THEM

"Fruit-a-tives" Keeps Young And Old In Splendid Health

J. W. HAMMOND Esq.

SCOTLAND, ONT., Aug. 25th. 1913

"Fruit-a-tives" are the only pill manufactured, to my way of thinking. They work completely, no griping whatever, and are plenty for any ordinary person. My wife was a martyr to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money until we happened on "Fruit-a-tives". I cannot say too much in their favor.

We have used them in the family for about two years and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-tives".

Their action is mild, and no distress at all. I have recommended them to many other people, and our whole family uses them".

J. W. HAMMOND.

Those who have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives" are proud and happy to tell a sick or ailing friend about these wonderful tablets made from fruit juices.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D. L. DS Dentist Successor to Dr. Cream. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work Three doors east of postoffice. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month

J.S.REED, Surgeon, dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne Str., south of new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR. BROWN, Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month from 2 to 6 p. m.

W. A. HALL, B. A. M. D. C.M. Hon Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J. G. CARTER, Greenock P. O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope Office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. H. has opened office in Cargill [illegible] Hotel. Treatment of all do[illegible] by the most modern app[illegible] night and day attended.

JAS. TOLTON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

JAMES COULTER

(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and sold: money to loan; also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire, Insurance Company.—Phone 140, ring 2 & 1.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

A safe, reliable regulating medicine, sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE COOK MEDICINE CO. TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

You can Begin Any Day at the

NORTHERN Business College

Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three-story building and 34 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors produces the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal

D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photograhhs

Our photographs are more than good phothgraphs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser

Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES

If you want a stov buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." None better. Also a full ine of Heating Stov at

H A HAVILL

Walkerton - - On

The [illegible] Nursery Business

[illegible]

Thos. W owman Son & Co
LIMITED
RIDGEV E ONTARIO

AFTER THE WAR

Business in Canada will boom. The demand for well-trained young men and women for business will be keener than ever. The wise are preparing now. Get into one of our schools and be ready. A few months will do it. It will pay you well. Free catalogue. Write for instructions.
SHAWS BUSINESS SCHOOLS
Toronto. 395 Yonge st. W Shaw prin

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD. ONT.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School. We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

CANADIAN PACIFIC Ry.

New Train Service
Toronto-Montreal
Ottawa
Via "Lake Ontario Shore Line"

Fast time to Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville, Trenton, etc.

Particulars from C. P. R. Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Tor-

Easy rests th head that wears

"King Hat"

King Hats are flexible and self-conforming, just where the hat touches the head.

ASK THE MAN WHO WEARS ONE
THE POPULAR SHAPES $2.50

T. PYE SOLE AGENT
WALKERTON - - ONTARIO

RUPTURE
(SEE DATES AT BOTTOM)
COMING

NEW 1915 INVENTION
RETAINS RUPTURE WITHOUT KNIFE, HARNESS, DANGER OR PAIN. COSTS YOU NOTHING TO INVESTIGATE.

[illegible]

THIS FREE RUPTURE COUPON
Upon presentation to J. Y. Egan, specialist, 6 West King street, Toronto, who will visit the towns below, entitles bearer to free consultation and examination of samples. Ask at hotel office for room number. Note dates.

HANOVER—Reid Hotel, April 9th
WALKERTON — Hartley House, Saturday and Sunday, all day and night, 2 days only, April 10th and 11th
PAISLEY—B moral Hotel, April 12th.

(MADE IN CANADA)

BRITISH AM AN

Yonge & McGill Sts. Toronto

TREES! TREES!!

Agents Wanted Everywhere.
Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman. Port Elgin, Ontario

Brant Township
Farms

I have, in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, 1 forty-six acre farm, 1 one hundred and thirty acre farm, 2 two hundred acre farms all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL. I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $7000. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to see me if you want to buy at right prices.

M. M. MILLER
HANOVER - - ONTARIO

BY-LAW NO.

A By-law to raise the sum of $3500 by the issue of Debentures of the Town of Walkerton to pay the Town's share of the construction of an addition to the Yonge Street Bridge over the Saugeen River in said Town.

WHEREAS by an order of the Judge of the County Court of the County of Bruce dated the 14th day of December, A. D., 1911, it was ordered and declared that the Yonge Street Bridge over the Saugeen River in said Town of Walkerton was a County bridge to be maintained and kept in repair by the Corporation of the County of Bruce, and by said order it was further ordered and declared that one half of the cost of the maintenance and repair of such bridge was to be paid by the Town of Walkerton to the County of Bruce.

AND WHEREAS the Corporation of the County of Bruce have constructed an addition to the said bridge at a cost of $7000 and have made a demand on the Town of Walkerton for the sum of $3500 being one half the cost of the construction of said bridge.

AND WHEREAS owing to the other requirements of said Municipality it is not possible to provide for the said moneys in the annual levy for the year 1915 and it is therefore necessary that the said sum should be raised upon the credit of the Debentures of said Municipality.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of the opinion that the said question should be submitted to a vote of the electors of the said Town of Walkerton entitled to vote on By-laws for the creation of debts.

AND WHEREAS the said sum of $3500 is the amount of the debt which this By-law is intended to create.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $280 85 to be raised annually by special rate for a period of twenty years, the currency of the debentures to be issued under and by virtue of this By-law for paying the said sum of $3500 and interest thereon.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is the sum of $857,347.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing general debenture debt of the said Town of Walkerton is the sum of $46250.22 and the amount of the Local Improvement Debt thereof is the sum of $24028.46 making a total existing debenture debt of the said Municipality of $70878.68, of which no part of the principal or interest is in arrear.

Therefore the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton enacts as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the said Town of Walkerton and he is hereby instructed to borrow for the purpose aforesaid from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate willing to advance the same upon the credit of the said Town, the said sum of $3500 for the purpose aforesaid and to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the said amount of $3500 in sums of not less than $100 each payable in the manner, for the amounts, and at the times hereinafter more particularly mentioned.

2. The said debentures shall each be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer of the said Town and sealed with the corporate seal thereof, which the Clerk of said Municipality is hereby instructed to affix thereto, and such debentures shall be dated on the Tenth day of August, 1915, and shall be payable within twenty years from the said time of their issue at the Branch or Agency of the Merchants Bank of Canada at said town of Walkerton.

3. The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum payable yearly at the said Branch or Agency of the said Bank on the Tenth day of August in each and every year during the currency thereof, the first payment of interest to be made on the Tenth day of August 1916, and shall have attached thereto coupons for payment of the said interest which coupons shall be signed by the said Mayor and Treasurer.

4. That one of said debentures to be issued under this By-law shall be payable on the Tenth day of August in each and every year during said period of twenty years, so that the sum to be raised for principal and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal in each year.

5. The first one of such debentures shall be made payable the Tenth day of August 1916, and one debenture shall be made payable in each successive year thereafter on each Tenth day of August till all of said debentures and the interest thereon are paid as follows, that is to say:—

Year	Interest	Principal	Total Ann Amt.
1916	$ 175 00	$ 105 85	$ 280 85
1917	169 71	111 14	280 85
1918	164 15	116 70	280 85
1919	158 32	122 53	280 85
1920	152 19	128 66	280 85
1921	145 76	135 09	280 85
1922	139 00	141 85	280 85
1923	131 91	148 94	280 85
1924	124 47	156 38	280 85
1925	116 65	164 20	280 85
1926	108 43	172 42	280 85
1927	99 81	181 04	280 85
1928	90 76	190 09	280 85
1929	81 26	199 59	280 85
1930	71 28	209 57	280 85
1931	60 80	220 05	280 85
1932	49 80	231 05	280 85
1933	38 25	242 60	280 85
1934	26 12	254 73	280 85
1935	13 38	267 52	280 90
		$3500 00

6. During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised and levied in each year by a special rate sufficient therefor on all the rateable property in the Municipality of the said Town of Walkerton over and above all other rates, the sum of $280.85 for the payment of the said debt of $3500 and the interest thereon.

7. This By-law shall come into force and take effect on and from the final passing thereof.

Dated and passed this day of A.D., 1915.

Clerk Mayor.

Notice.

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton to be submitted to the votes of the electors on the 16th day of April, A.D. 1915, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon at the following places:—

East Polling Subdivision—Smith & Henderson's Block.
Centre Polling Subdivision—Town Hall.
West Polling Subdivision — John Schnurr's house.
South Polling Subdivision—Joseph Yaech's house.

and that the 15th day of April A.D. 1915, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the Town Hall, in the said Municipality has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice and that such first publication was made on the 25th day of March, A. D. 1915.

Take Notice further that a tenant who desires to vote upon said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable or for at least twenty-one years, and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant other than local improvement rates.

A. COLLINS,
Clerk.

Richard's
QUICK NAPTHA
THE
WOMAN'S SOAP

The Krupps has contributed $7,500,000 to the war fund, but how much have they contributed to the cemeteries in the way of human relics and how much to the corpse-strewn battlefields.

According to a prominent miller in Sarnia, the fall wheat crop will be 25 per cent larger than last year provided that the ensuing weather does not harm the seed, which so far is declared by the farmers to be in fine condition.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We the undersigned have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

War between Italy and Austria is inevitable unless Emperor Franz Joseph returns to Italy all Austrian districts inhabited by Italians.

Thirty years ago to-day wheat was worth 75c a bushel, oats 26c, clover seed $1.50, potatoes 25c, butter 16c, eggs 18c and dressed hogs $5.50.

Entrance Examinations.

High School Entrance Examination according to the timetable just issued by the Department of Education will commence on June 23rd. The public school graduation examinations which when passed, entitle the student of a fifth form class in the country school to a certificate of graduation, will be given on June 10th and continue until June 23. The graduates of fifth form classes, which are taught only in country schools, often are admitted into the second and even third year forms in the collegiate institutes throughout the province. It is expected that the number writing on examinations this year will be fewer than usual. High School exams commence on June 9th and finish on the 30th.

British Navy Biscuits
REGISTERED
At your grocers
47

PATENTS
PROMPTLY SECURED
In all countries. Ask for our INVENTOR'S ADVISER, which will be sent free.
MARION & MARION,
University St. Montreal.

The History of the County of Bruce
And of The
Minor Municipalities Therein
(BY NORMAN ROBERTSON)
Forty Illustrations, Sixteen Maps,
Five Hundred and Sixty Pages.

The above volume covers the history of the county from the days when it was the hunting grounds of the Indians to November 1906. It has eleven chapters devoted to the county as a whole, followed by twenty-seven chapters, each of which takes up the history of one of the towns, townships or villages. Accompanying the chapter on each township is a map of it, clearly showing each farmlot therein.

In addition to being an historical narrative, in this work there are to be found many personal incidents relating to scores of prominent men in all parts of the county.

A number of historical documents have been collected and are printed in the appendix, along with a large amount of statistical information, both of which are important to have preserved. The edition is a limited one.

Regular Price, Cloth Binding $2.50
This history will be sent to those who renew their subscriptions to the TELESCOPE for 75c or both
The Telescope for one year and the History of Bruce for $1.75

Statement of Debentures on 31st December, 1914.

Title and Description of Debts	No. of By-Law	Original Amount of Debt	Date When Issued	No. of Deb.	Amount of Each Deb.	Rates of Interest	Amount of Principal 1914	Amount of Interest paid in 1914	Bal. of Prin. unpaid Dec. 31, 1914	Amt. due and unpaid Dec 31, 1914	Amt. of S. F. levied in 1914	S F on hd. as law, up to Dec. 31, 1914
Consolidated Debt Debentures	374	$ 24000 00	July [illegible]	30	$ [illegible]	5 per cent	$ [illegible]	$ [illegible]	$ [illegible]	$	$	$
Waterworks Debentures	375	15000 00	[illegible]	20	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterworks Debentures, 2nd issue	413	[illegible]	Sept. 21, [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chair Factory Loan	[illegible]	[illegible]	Apr. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"			[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterworks and Sewers, 1st issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Apr. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Town Hall Debentures	[illegible]	[illegible]	Apr. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Local Improvement, 1st issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Oct. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]			[illegible]
" " 2nd issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Oct. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]			[illegible]
" " 3rd issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Aug. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	4 per cent		[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterworks and Sewers 2nd issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Jan. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Local Improvement, 4th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	July [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
" " 5th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Feb. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterworks, Sewers and Sundry Improve	[illegible]	[illegible]	Jan. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Local Improvement, 6th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Jan. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" " 7th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Jan. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hospital Debentures	[illegible]	[illegible]	Apr. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Local Improvement, 8th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Feb. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Pitt Biscuit Factory Loan	[illegible]	[illegible]	Dec. 8, [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hosiery Factory Loan	[illegible]	[illegible]	Dec. 8, 1903	[illegible]	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Yonge St., Local Improvement, 1st issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Jan. [illegible] 1904	1	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" " 2nd issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Jan. [illegible] 1904	1	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterworks Extension Debentures	[illegible]	[illegible]	Nov. [illegible] 1905	18	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Local Improvement, 9th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	June [illegible] 1909	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" " 10th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	May [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
" " 11th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Mar. [illegible]	1	[illegible]	"			[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
General Improvement Debentures	[illegible]	[illegible]	Oct. [illegible]	—	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]
Local Improvement, 12th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Dec. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	5 per cent		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" " 13th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	Dec. 13, 1911	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
" " 14th issue	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	"		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Public Library Debentures	[illegible]	[illegible]	Jan. [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible] 750 00	"		[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]
Public School Debentures	[illegible]	[illegible]	May 21, [illegible]	10	[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Special Prices This Week!

Now is the time for Bargains. Grasp this Opportunity. It certainly will pay you to give this price list your most careful consideration.

Dry Goods Snaps

Large assortment of new Wrapperettes, reg 12½c a yd., for 9c

English & Canadian Prints, fast colors, reg. 12½c, for 9c yard

Ginghams and Chambrays, new colors, 15c yd quality, now 11c

Plain and Floral Cotton Crepes, fine quality .... 23c yard

Red Cotton Crepe, regular 15c yard now............1c yard

Fine Voille in latest shades and patterns..............26c yard

Finest quality white Pique per yard......................25c

Indian Head Suiting, regular 25c, for ....19c yard

Ladies Fancy Embroidered lawn and voille Waists, regular $1.50 for........................89c

Shephard's Plaid Dress Goods, reg. 15c now......1c a yard

Grocery Snaps

Finest Roasted Coffee, lb 20c

Black, Mixed or Japan Tea, 40c quality, now...............29c

Corn Flakes, fresh, per pkg. 8c

6 lbs good Rice...............25c

Bulk Laundry Starch per lb 8c

6 bars Comfort Soap 25c

Corn, Peas, Tomatoes, and Beans, per tin....................8c

Cheaper grade, per tin.........7c

2 tins choice pink Salmon for..................................25c

25 lb pail Clover Honey...70c

Potatoes, good cooker, per bag, ...50c (delivered.

Best Corn Starch per pkg. 7c

Seed Onions, Dutch Setts per lb,............10c, 3 lbs 25c

Multipliers, per lb..........10c

Good quality Corn Brooms, reg. 40c, now.........................25c

5 gal. best American Oil 75c

300 lbs Finnan Haddie, lb 10c

Men's heavy Laced Kip Boots, 12 inch top, regular $4.50. Extra special at $3.25. Only a limited quantity of these.

C. Reaney
PHONE 8
HIGHEST PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCE
J. Pleskey

CANADA SHOWN FROM SEA TO SEA

Far and Away the Best Exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition is the One Representing Our Country.

(By Herman Whitaker, author of "The Settler," "Cross-Trails," "The Probationer" and other Canadian Tales.)

"Would you care to write us an article about the Canadian building?"

Perhaps the exposition publicist didn't know that my grandfather pioneered in the deep maple woods of Western Ontario seventy years ago, that I once swung a broad-axe in a Nipissing tie-camp, pioneered for eight years in northwestern Manitoba, and have sung Canada, the "Lady of the Snows," in romance and story, taking my motifs from her rugged life, using for their setting her prairies, lakes and streams? Would I care? He soon found out.

While still unaware of its nationality, I had already seen the building and picked it for one of the finest of the eighty-four structures erected by American states and foreign nations. At the first glance one is struck by the combination of dignity and good taste in its appearance; for both in his composition and by the use of "travertine" stone effects for columns and outer walls the architect brought the building into harmony with the exposition architectural scheme. With its double rows of fine Corinthian pillars, broad facades, great bronze lions that lie couchant before the doors, its appearance may well cause any Canadian a thrill of pride. It has the additional advantage of facing toward the Golden Gate. Standing under its wide portico, one may see the coast liners from Vancouver and Puget Sound heave slowly in and out.

The big wide doors open into a spacious foyer and through a central arch one looks at once down a wide central aisle which is lined on both sides with large show windows that contain mineral products. Table cases down the centre hold others whose range seems to cover every known ore and mineral from salt to asbestos, iron and gold. Inspection fills the layman with astonishment at their variety and number, which is not altogether assuaged by the knowledge that in ores and minerals Canada is the richest country in the world. Above the cases, the length of the aisle, colored transparencies faithfully represent every feature of the processes by which the exhibits are converted into the finished articles of commerce; and between the wonderful pictures of farm life alternate with reproductions of the heraldic insignia of the provinces, all done in grains and seeds.

On each side of this central aisle, the nave one might call it, run parallel aisles, but before attempting their exploration, it will pay the visitor to step into a circular chamber at the east end of the foyer, where is displayed a panoramic map of the Dominion. For me it had a special interest, for my literary career dates back to an article on "Canada from Sea to Sea," published in an American magazine, planned and polished with all of the ardor and zeal of a beginner in letters. My soul went into it. But standing in front of this great colorful map which lifts one, as it were, a hundred miles in the air, and lays out the continental spread of Canada beneath, I realized the pen's narrow limitations. It may never compete with the eye. The Atlantic, icy spread of Labrador, mighty stream of the St. Lawrence leading inland to the network of great lakes, the boundless prairie, Hudson's Bay reaching far up to the Polar ice, the snow-crowned Rockies running on their western slopes into the vast blue of the Pacific. It was there to be taken in a sweeping glance that inspires something of the feeling inspired by days and nights of travel in the cars across its vast expanse. That feeling is not for the pen. It comes under the classification of that "incommunicable thrill of things" which Robert Louis Stevenson the master of prose, describes and laments. The thrill of it was strong upon me when I turned into the western aisle and saw in a wide deep recess something that caused me a sudden pang of home-sickness.

The lake in front of my old cabin was always black with waterfowl, and here, vividly recalling it, teal and mallards, wild geese, canvas backs and the humble mud-hen, the loon and the stately white cranes, a hundred kinds of water fowl were grouped about a reedy slough. Far off in the background a farm house that might have been mine, stood in the midst of golden wheat fields that came running down the painted canvas to real "stukes" that were being rapidly denuded of grain by a flock of prairie chicken. They were stuffed specimens, of course, but the realistic way in which one old cock looked at me over his shoulder, provoked a sudden impulse to let fly a stone at him. I knew very well what he would do—just dodge and keep on dodging like the fool bird he is till a stone found its mark. No doubt prairie chicken have become gun-shy since I stood in my tracks and shot twenty six out of one flock thirty years ago. It was murder, I admit it. But a pioneer settler has no conscience when meat is in question. My mouth still waters at the thought of those chicken-breasts, thick as young turkey, split and fried in fresh butter.

Further down the aisle the sight of a big elk and huge bull moose recalled my first winter in the north when their wild forbears used to come out of the forest and feed off my stacks of prairie hay. They were welcome, for the sight of a big moose shambling away over the snow was always sufficient pay for what he took, and once in a while they contributed a haunch of venison to my larder. Close to them, a black buffalo bull grazes at the edge of an imitation prairie. In fact, each variety of Canada's big game from the mountain goat to the rare wood bison of which there are said to be less than two score roaming at large—were still fully placed in a rugged setting of mountain, lake and woods. Alongside an enormous yellow pine, a giant female grizzly upreared eight full feet of threatening bulk. On one big paw sat her cub, a little thing not much larger than a three-months'-old kitten. It would have proved an easy prey for the lynx that peered down at it from the rocks above. The mountain lion in the background would have swallowed it at one gulp. From its cousins, the cinnamon, brown and black bears, it might receive mercy, but not from the deep-chested timber-wolves, fox and wolverine that sneaked in the foreground. Even the otter and mink, peering from among the rocks of a tumbling stream would have made short work of the little thing. It was comforting to know that it could roll and tumble in its native wilds at will under the protection of that mighty paw. There it was safe from all but the bullet that brought both it and its mighty protector here to San Francisco to delight the hearts of thousands upon thousands of little children.

Even more interesting is the beaver pool. In front of a painted background representing woods and lake, a beaver dam with domed houses sticking up above the water, crosses a running stream. Among the trees on the bank, stuffed beavers are to be seen, felling trees, cutting up sticks, dragging them to the water to haul to their fellows who are building new house. All this, of course, is merely dumb show for the benefit of human observers but it appears to be the real thing to the colony of live beavers that live in a pool below. Through the crevices of the dam they peer with great interest at their silent brethren, and were it not for the overhang of the concrete coping which defeats his persistent efforts, the old king beaver would soon crawl out and transmute his stuffed relatives into real "dead ones."

In default, he takes it out in bossing his own household. At any old hour, one or another of his devoted spouses may be seen rubbing through his fur on a still hunt for the water parasites that make life, for beavers, "one dam thing after another," and at four o'clock every afternoon, they form a silent audience while he performs a solemn function. Crawling out upon a rocky isle in the pool's centre, he appears on his short hind legs and looks around, selecting a tree for the colony to fell that night. There are some in the foreground, and the deep woods painted on the canvas behind, no doubt, appear to his beavership as the real thing. But he cannot reach them. One wishes that the directors would place one for his special benefit on the edge of the pool. But the fact that they won't makes no difference. He continues the performance each evening with the regularity of a vaudevillian in "the continuous."

Above these game exhibits, as in the tier aisles, colored transparencies set forth familiar Canadian scenes; stock farms of Quebec and Ontario with prize herds of Durham, Hereford and Polled-Angus cattle, golden wheatfields, orchards, gardens, saw mills and lumber camps, and the massed logs behind the boom in a "river-drive;" great lumber sheds, piled tier above tier with tens of logs, the sight smote one with the sudden chill of forest snows and filled my nostrils with the resinous odors of slaughtered pine woods. One cannot walk the length of the aisle without learning more of Canada than could be learned in a year of steady reading.

At its end one passes through groves of coal, finished lumber exhibits, cases of mineral ores, asbestos, etc., in all their forms from the crude ore to finished products along a [illegible] which ends in a wonderful [illegible] of the city and harbor of Vancouver. In the foreground stands the city, its principle building faithfully modelled, with its docks, shipping and lovely residential districts running back to a realistically painted canvas which carries the views on to snow-clad mountains in the distance. It is interesting in the extreme and very informative.

Walking on down the western aisle toward the foyer, one turns at right angles into an "L," the upstroke of which brings up to an apple orchard seen across the stretch of green turf. Apple picking is in full blast, and the large glass jars and show cases outside line both sides of the "L," displaying fruits fresh, canned and preserved, that would do honor to sunny California. It would be quite easy, indeed, for the visitor to imagine that he had made a mistake and wandered into the state exhibit of this land of fruits. Above the cases, in these recesses, are placed splendid oil portraits of Canada's rulers and leading statesmen. On one side King Edward the Seventh and Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, respectively, flank the portraits of King George and Queen Mary. Opposite them, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Robert Borden and the late Sir John A. Macdonald appear, with the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

Toward the end of the western aisle, in the longest and deepest recess of all, I came on what, to me at least, was the star view of the exhibit—the prairie, from Winnipeg running west. The sight sent time whirling backward for thirty years to the morning that the Canadian Pacific express ran out of thick woods that stretch from Rat Portage to Selkirk, and I got my first view of the level plains. From the horizon, just as in this panoramic reproduction, they ran out in all directions, so vast, illimitable, that the fast train seemed to crawl like a [illegible] over the level distances. Later we ran into wheat. Wheat! miles of it! [illegible] of it! undulating in long golden billows that ran off and away before the wind over the horizon—again, just as it does in the panorama. In the foreground of the painting a [illegible] of red elevators such as one sees at Portage la Prairie or Brandon were discharging wheat into a toy freight train. As each car was filled, the train backed up with realistic jerks until the last came under the spout. Then, just as another train came puffing out from under a distant bridge, it [illegible] off on the long journey to Port Arthur or the coast. It was all so real one could have sworn that he was surveying the thing from a distance.

Specimens of the wheat, grains and other products of the Northwest form part of this exhibit. Others are to be seen in the aisles, sometimes in the form of pictures that reproduce the varied operations of western farm life. And there are other things to be seen, too numerous for recapitulation, the equal of anything here described. Taken in all, Canada's private exhibit is something for all Canadians to be proud of. I can sum it best in a remark made by a New York man to a Californian:

"Say! this makes the best of our state exhibits look like ten cents in a fog!"

THE WEAK SPOT IN THE BACK.

When the kidneys get ill the back gives out.

But the back is not to blame.

The ache comes from the kidneys, which lie under the small of the back.

Therefore dull pain in the back, or sharp, quick twinges, are warnings of sick kidneys—warnings of kidney trouble.

Plasters and liniments will not cure a bad back, for they cannot reach the kidneys which cause it.

Doan's Kidney Pills reach the kidneys themselves. They are a special kidney and bladder medicine. They heal the diseased surface of kidneys and bladder, and help them to act freely and naturally.

Mrs. Chester Rowan, Fort Coulonge, Que., writes: "I had been troubled with sore back for over four years, and could get nothing to do me any good until I heard of your Doan's Kidney Pills. I got three boxes, and took them and now I am completely cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

◆

BUYING FOWL.

Here Are Rules for the Guidance of Those Not Expert.

The selection of tender fowl requires a considerable amount of skill as well as practice. The highest market price may be paid, believing that the best young fowl is being procured, but the purchaser is to a great extent at the mercy of the vendor, unless the former possesses a knowledge of the various points to be observed in order to determine the age and the wholesomeness of the bird.

Those purchasing fowl should bear in mind and observe the following rules which will be found beneficial:

(a) The age of chickens. In very young domestic fowl the back portion of the breast bone can be easily bent outward, in young fowl it breaks [illegible] considerable force is applied.

An old rooster has a spur over 1 inch in length, which in the young is correspondingly smaller. Old hens have hard spurs and rough scales on the legs, the lower half of the bill cannot be bent at all with the fingers, as is the case with young hens.

(b) In turkeys, the age is determined by the spur, and also by the appearance of the first quill feathers.

(c) In ducks and geese, the windpipe at the entrance to the thorax can be easily indented in the young, while in the old it resists pressure.

After having ascertained the age of the bird, the next thought may be as to whether it is diseased or not. Poultry suffer from a great variety of diseases, some of which are: Chicken-pox, chicken cholera, chicken pest, diphtheria, fowl arthritis, roup, scaly feet, blackhead and tuberculosis.

Of all the diseases named, only tuberculosis is transmissable to human beings. However, the bird may be in an emaciated condition as a result of some of these disorders and, if so, is a spoiled food material.

The slaughter wound is first to be tested in dressed poultry. The skin should not be discolored (bluish or bluish-gray) faded or shriveled, and should not disclose "dead" spots. Turkeys are frequently rubbed with flour to give the skin a nice appearance.

The [illegible]. If the bird appears whitish-green, especially if a duck or goose. This discoloration may be due to the fowl having been in cold storage. The objective deterioration of the appearance [illegible] of a whitish-yellow to a whitish-green discoloration of the skin, which, after thawing out becomes oily, yellow, leather-like and tightly attached. The muscles of the cold storage geese are red violet or deep dark red, and when roasted appear dark brown to brownish-black and tough. The fat of a cold storage goose is oily, does not stiffen, and deposits a gray, gritty sediment; its taste is rancid or musty.

Due to these characteristics, cold storage geese are, under all conditions, of inferior quality, and, besides, they may be in a highly spoiled condition, and consequently unfit for consumption. There is an unfavorable influence, and even danger, in the storing of undrawn fowl in cold storage houses.

As most fowls sold in Canada are undrawn this duty must be performed in the preparation for the oven. Those who are accustomed to performing this task are invariably familiar with the normal appearance of the viscera, and hence are quick to observe any pathological condition. Let us suppose that you have noted some of these lesions. You are now perplexed to know whether it is fit to eat or not. Does the bird appear in what you call a poor condition? This "poor" condition is the result of either insufficient nourishment or disease "emaciation."

On the other hand, the bird may not be either poor or emaciated, but presents what you consider evidence of disease.

If You Wish to Be Well You Must Keep the Bowels Regular.

If the bowels do not move regularly they will, sooner or later, become constipated, and constipation is productive of more ill health than almost any other trouble.

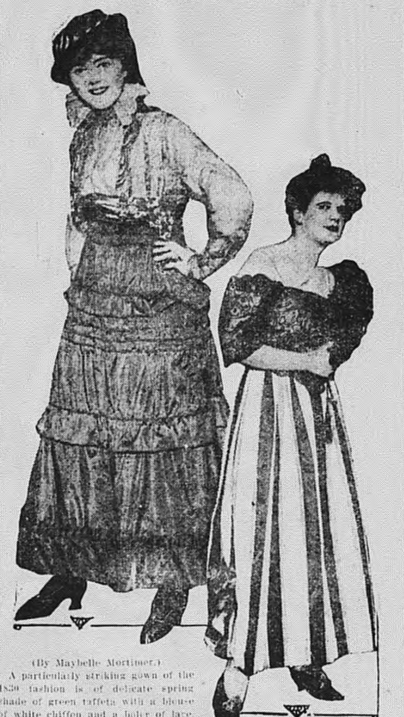
The sole cause of constipation is an inactive liver, and unless the liver is kept active you may rest assured that headaches, jaundice, heartburn, piles, floating specks before the eyes, a feeling as if you were going to faint, or catarrh of the stomach will follow the wrong action of the liver, one of the most important organs of the body.

Keep the liver active and working properly by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills.

Mrs. Elijah A. Ayer, Fawcett Hill, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with constipation for many years, and about three years ago my husband wanted me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, as they had cured him. I got a vial and took them, and by the time I had taken three vials I was cured. I always keep them on hand, and when I need a mild laxative I take one."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"JOY GOWN" IS GOING TO BE POPULAR THIS COMING SUMMER



(By Maybelle Mortimer.)

A particularly striking gown of the 1830 fashion is of delicate spring shade of green taffeta with a blouse of white chiffon and a bolero of lace. The lapels of the little jacket are bound with green silk. The much-ruffled, shirred and piped skirt is quaint enough, but rather too heavy and clumsy to please the girl whose idea of style is trimness. The 1830 gown, shown at the left, was photographed at the recent Fashion Art League of America exposition.

The "joy gown" at the right, seen at the recent Fashion Art League of America exposition, proves the effectiveness of black and white for evening wear. Black and white striped satin, each stripe an inch wide, "dead rose" tints held the skirt up was used to make the skirt, and black lace was draped into a low-cut evening gown suspended over the shoulders with narrow straps of black velvet. A cluster of roses of in a graceful drapery at the right.

THE BUSINESS OF BEING A WIFE.

A woman has just told us of what she did the night her young husband found himself bankrupt. His factory was closed, he had lost all he owned—plus a good deal more—and, as he looked at it, life was about at an end. He reflected that he had taken his wife from a happy and charming home, and that he had brought disgrace and poverty on her. It occurred to him that a well-placed bullet might be the best all-round solution of his difficulties. His wife, at home, made a poignant surmise as to what he was thinking. Suddenly it occurred to her that here was a chance for team-work—an opportunity to show what being a wife really meant. She prepared a delicious little dinner, she made her home as inviting as she could, and she arrayed herself in her most becoming dress. Her husband returned, not to a disheveled and sobbing woman, to a neglected house and a drama of disaster, but to a home where everything spoke of resolution, of continuity, of expectation. The fire on his hearth, his simple, well-cooked dinner, the courageous eyes of his attractive wife, restored him to a true sense of values. He was able, amid all his confusion of purpose and torment of realization, to see his failure as only a retrievable episode in his life. He is now a successful manufacturer, his debts are paid, and he has a happy home with a son and daughter in it. He was saved from being a suicide by the fact that a woman was sportsmanlike at the right moment. Not a bad thing to think about in these days when unaccustomed poverty is bringing dismay to thousands.—Collier's.

◆

John Moersch, 98, of Brooklyn, N. Y., gives this longevity recipe: "Don't quarrel."

Royal Mexican Ghost.

The hot springs of Las Siervas, near Valle de Canizas, in a remote part of the State of Guerrero, Mexico, have been visited by few people from the outside world, but they are famous in the legends and history of the Indian tribes of that part of the republic.

According to the natives, the waters of the springs possess great medicinal properties. In ancient times the springs were the favorite bathing resort of the noble families of the Tepaneca, Alcolhua and other tribes that lived in that region.

On both sides of the chief spring there are huge rocks with hieroglyphics and in figures of women beautifully carved. Judging from the robes worn by the women, their stately appearance and the jewels around their necks, the figures must represent princesses or ladies of very high rank.

The spring is at the entrance to a grotto that has never been explored. From the grotto a rumbling sound resembling distant thunder is to be heard all the time. According to natives, the rumbling is caused by the ghost of King Excamina, who ruled over that part of the country three or four centuries before the Spaniards discovered America.

King Excamina, the tradition says, was as bad as man could be. He murdered people merely for the pleasure of seeing them die, and committed every crime. He had his palace constructed in another cave, which communicated with that of the spring by a tunnel. There Excamina, in company with some of his favorites, had orgies that lasted weeks and months.

When he died an earthquake destroyed his palace. Since that day his ghost has been haunting the cave near the spring, and none of the natives has ever dared go into the cave.

HOME-MADE BATTERY WITH A BIG KICK --YOU CAN MAKE IT THIS WAY, BOYS.

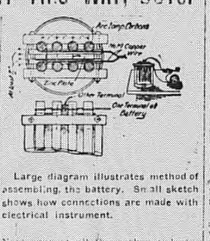
(By An Expert Electrician.)

Here's a simple electric battery, fellows. It's easy to make, but it's got the kick. It will run a small motor or light a two-volt lamp.

The material needed are: a glass jar 6 inches in diameter and 8 inches high; 2 feet of No. 14 bare copper wire (any electrical supply store will sell it for a few cents) two stove bolts 1-4 by 4 inches, to be had for 10 cents at hardware store; 1 pound of sodium bichromate, 20 cents; 1 pound of "commercial" sulphuric acid, and 5 cents worth of paraffine, all from the drug store.

You will need besides two pieces of wood, 7x1-2x1-2 inches, 2 pieces 7x1x1 inch, and a small piece of zinc 4x6 inches with a projection in the middle of one end. The hardware store will supply this, perhaps for nothing and you can buy for a few cents from a man who cleans the electric arc lamps, 8 light carbons, about 8 inches long. If the latter are copper-coated (shown by their having a bronze color) the copper on the lower 5 inches must be filed off.

Now refer to the drawing and having grooved the pieces of wood as shown, and drilled 1-4-inch holes with a bit and brace for the stove bolts in the position shown, put the carbons in the grooves and fasten the wooden holder together. Allow the carbon to stick up one inch above the frame. At the same time put the zinc plate in place, allowing the projection to come above the wooden frame so a wire may be attached.



Large diagram illustrates method of assembling the battery. Small sketch shows how connections are made with electrical instrument.

Next connect all the carbon rods together at the top with the No. 14 copper wire, and also attach a wire by tight wrapping about the top projection on the zinc. It is best to dip the wood portion now into boiling paraffine letting it drain off, or to pour melted paraffine on the wood.

The solution for the cell is made by dissolving the sodium bichromate in a gallon of boiling water. After the chromate has cooled add sulphuric acid and fill the jar to within three inches of the top.

Now lower the carbon rods and zinc into the liquid and connect wires to motor or lamp or other experimental apparatus, as shown in small diagram. When the battery is not in use, lift the plates out of the solution to save the zinc from being eaten away.

Some Aids to Health

A FLY'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

(Spring brings flies. Flies convey disease—kill human beings—especially babies. Kill the flies.)

"The first thing I remember is before I had any legs or wings and was wiggling and squirming in a nice warm bed of stable filth, where I spent my time eating and drinking the food about me.

"After a while I began to feel uncomfortable, and found that I had grown too big for my skin. Relief came soon and my skin came off; and I ate some manure and enjoyed it. In a few days more my skin again got too tight and off it came, and then I went to sleep for I don't know how long.

"When I awoke I was kicking and struggling out of a very dry, hard skin, and after freeing myself I found I was in the open air and had legs and wings and loked and felt very differently than when I went to sleep. I was thirsty, so tried my wings for the first time and flew to a puddle by the stable, and took a long drink, after which I felt much better.

"Up to this time I had eaten nothing but filth, but I soon found out that there were other things just as good. I saw a lot of other flies, big and little, around an outbuilding, not far from a pile, so I flew over and had a feast.

"It was fun to wade around in your food and find so much that you hardly know where to begin. I'm afraid I'm a glutton.

"I spent quite a while here and then flew out in the sunshine, where the white clothes were hanging on a line and walked over the napkins for a while. Wet things are very pleasant for a time, but my feet get covered with little pieces of food and things that wiggle around and tickle me, so I like to wipe the stuff on a nice white napkin or tablecloth, and then I get around better.

"While I was enjoying the sun I smelled the most delightful smell that has ever come to me. It came from an open window, so in I flew. Things were smoking on a stove and a woman was fixing up some white stuff on a table. There were a lot of other flies about, and one that was to busy eating to see his danger got rolled up in the dough and I never saw him again, so I was careful and flew in and out and got a mouthful each time. I get rid of some more filth there, too, for the dough was sticky and pulled it off my feet.

"Nearby there was a bowl of milk which smelled good, so I flew over and tok a drink. Here I nearly lost my life, and if I had not been young and active, I am sure I would never have escaped.

"Several of us were drinking when the woman suddenly put out her hand in our direction, and we all made a run.

"Two got hit and fell right in the middle. She hit me, to, but I landed near the edge and struggled out and flew away, but she caught the other two and pinched them and threw them on the floor, and went on mixing her dough, apparently without a thought that she had killed two of my companions."

— —

To avoid pneumonia

1. Do not drink alcoholic liquors.
2. Dress warmly, but not too thickly.
3. Do not have your rooms too hot and then go into the open air unprotected by wraps.
4. If exposed to extreme or rough weather and wet or numb, undress in a warm room, rub off with rough towels until the skin glows, then go to bed and stay there for several hours.
5. Avoid overeating and keep the bowels open.
6. A moderate amount of brisk exercise in the outdoor air daily.
7. Avoid dust and other irritating substances of the upper air passages.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF A FLY.

(Continued.)

I stayed in the kitchen a long time and then went into another room where there was not so much to eat, as I was not very hungry. Here I found a lot of other flies and a table set.

One poor fly had drowned in the ice water; it must have been awfully cold; and two or three had their feet so tangled up in the butter that they couldn't get away, and the number of little germs that they had wiped off was enormous!

They were swarming on the butter, but I had eaten enough that day, and before long it got dark and I was tired so I went to sleep on the edge of a glass, scraping off as much dough as I could.

The edge of a glass is a very nice thing to wipe your feet on.

In the morning the man and woman and a child came in to eat and the woman poured out a glassful of milk for the child—in the glass I slept on.

I guess people like germs and filth and things just as much as I do, for the baby drank all the milk.

Day after day went by; we spent part of our time in the house and often we would fly to the pile and the little building back of it and we lived on the fat of the land.

After some weeks of this life, I flew away up in the air one morning and went through a window I had not seen before and found the child asleep on a bed.

I went over and walked across his lips and it was warm and nice, and I wiped my feet and stretched my wings and almost went to sleep myself; but the child rolled over so I flew over to a glass of water on the table and drank some.

Presently the woman came in and a man I had never seen before. They went over and looked at the child and felt him and asked a lot of questions, and the woman seemed worried.

She asked him what the trouble was, and he looked at the child again and then out of the window toward the stable and around the room at us and then he said something that sounded very funny to me—"typhoid fever; too many flies."

In order to give the baby a really fair start on the road of life you must begin about 100 years before he is born!

TONSILS.

The subject of tonsils at this time of the year should concern every parent. The tonsils are two in number and their function is not exactly known. They vary in size and shape in each individual.

On their free surfaces are a number of depressions called crypts. The crypts become diseased.

As a rule the tonsils are relatively larger in childhood. They reach their maximum size in early adult life and afterward tend to atrophy and in old age may become almost entirely obliterated or converted into fibrous tissue.

We do know that they warm the air before it passes into the lungs, and that in a way they act as scavengers. Also they secrete a mucous which assists in lubricating the throat.

They are the seat of many diseases play an important role in what is termed "sore throat" should be always treated intelligently, by a well-equipped physician.

The sore throat may be a symptom only. There are many important structures in close proximity to the tonsils, and infection from them can so easily pass to the middle ear, and thus to the brain. Do not neglect or ignore your warnings!

This does not mean because you have a pair of tonsils in your throat they should be removed by a surgeon. There is much that can be done by careful treatment.

But keep the mouth and throat clean and your breath sweet and pure by being sure that the tonsillar crypts are not packed full of nasty, foul-smelling, cheesy mass, or deposit. This condition is responsible for more foul breaths than any other one condition.

It is not pleasant to think of the amount of this cheesy mass that unconsciously goes into our stomachs. Have your throats examined, and if there is a diseased condition of tonsils it will be corrected.

The cause of the various conditions coming under the head of rheumatism is as yet unknown. Every year more men of ability are joining those who believe that these conditions enter the body through tonsils, and, therefore, its removal is of prime importance. There are many patients in whom various conditions of joints and pains in muscles have disappeared after attention to the tonsils.

The tonsil must have some function early in life, which later is easily overcome, in many cases by the raids of bacteria on it.

In infancy it is rarely affected, but in early childhood it often causes trouble in a number of ways.

◆

PA WON AFTER ALL.

Pa Jenkins chuckled as he put his latchkey into the proper place in his front door and scraped his feet on the Jenkins doormat.

As the door opened a warm and spicy atmosphere greeted him, but ma didn't appear to be around.

Now, there may be here and there an elderly man who can come home and go upstairs and get ready for dinner without making any fuss if he doesn't see the wife first. But pa wasn't that kind. All machinery stopped, as far as he was concerned, until he located ma immediately upon his home coming. So pa raised his voice.

"Oh! Ma!"

Ma pushed open the swinging door from the kitchen. "Oh! is that you?" she said in a falsely cheerful voice.

"Sure!" boomed pa, as he ambled kitchenward. "My! but this house smells good! Been baking?"

"Yes."

"Er—anything happen to-day?"

"Nothing particular."

Pa winked at the pup, who considered this an invitation to hurl itself at pa and plant its forefeet on that gentleman's prosperous looking front.

"Er—did anything come?" queried pa. "Down! Mike!"

"Oh! Yes—that washing machine!" Ma's voice was not enthusiastic.

"Well—" And pa chortled. "How d'you like your Christmas present?"

Ma slammed the oven door.

"It's electric—just what you wanted," continued pa.

"Well"—ma's back was turned, so pa didn't see the two big tears that ran down her cheeks and dropped into the dish of apple dumplings—"if you think a wash machine is an appropriate Christmas gift for your wife, I have nothing to say."

"Ah, now, ma," began pa. "That thing cost me ninety dollars."

"I don't care if it cost a million," snapped ma. "Supper's ready."

It was a silent supper, though pa tried to make conversation, and two or three times choked into his napkin. They were well into the dessert when the doorbell rang. Pa jumped.

"You go, ma," he said.

Ma went.

"Something for Mrs. Jenkins," shrilled a boy's voice when she opened the door. And when the avalanche fell upon her ma had just a glimpse of her next-door neighbor's husband and small son as they scuttled away into the darkness.

There were short bundles and long bundles, flat ones and thick ones, some heavy and some light, and ma stood in their midst with a dazed look at pa, who was grinning until his ears laid flat against his head.

"Pa Jenkins, is this your doing?" she demanded.

"Come and finished your supper," he gurgled.

"Not till I find out what the joke is," she firmly responded, and sat herself down in the middle of the chaos, where pa promptly joined her.

Then these two big children untied and unwrapped until they were surrounded by the spread-out contents of the packages, most of them folderols, none really expensive, that ma had longed for from time to time and had thought she couldn't afford at the moment. But Pa had put them down in his note-book, and, taking the next-door neighbor into his confidence, had collected them for his Christmas "surprise."

When they'd sufficiently looked and exclaimed and laughed pa made ma dress up in the quilted Japanese kimono, put on the little lace cap with the wreath of rosebuds, and the new "comfy" slippers with ribbon rosettes on the toes. And when he had sufficiently turned her around and admired her he pulled her down on to his lap and told her how "durned pretty" she looked.

"But I'm getting so fat!" sighed ma. "Ain't I too heavy to hold?"

"Well, I couldn't stand it all day," quoth pa, with the frankness of a worried man. "Say—what d'you think of that wash machine now?"

"Pa," solemnly admonished ma, "don't you ever dare to give me anything really useful for Christmas. Now come and see your presents. They're under the sofa."

◆

Albumen Water for Illness.

To prepare it, mix the white of one egg with a pint of cold water (which has been boiled), a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of brandy may be added. [illegible] on ice. Albumen [illegible] in a variety of conditions attended by gastric irritability. Give it cold.

An Amazing Cure For Neuralgia Magical Relief For Headache

The Most Effective Remedy Known is "Nerviline."

The reason Nerviline is infallibly a remedy for neuralgia resides in two very remarkable properties Nerviline possesses.

The first is its wonderful power of penetrating deeply into the tissues, which enables it to reach the very source of congestion.

Nerviline possesses another and not less important action—it equalizes the circulation in the painful parts, and thus affords a sure carrier to the re-establishment of congestion.

Your see the relief you get from Nerviline is permanent.

It doesn't matter whether the cause is spasm or congestion, external or internal; if it is pain—equally with its curative action upon neuralgia—Nerviline will relieve and quickly cure rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, strains, swellings or enlarged joints, and all other muscular aches.

Nerviline is a guaranteed remedy. Get the larger 50 cent family size bottle; it is far more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or direct from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

FARM AND GARDEN

SAND SPROUTED SEED POTATOES

Earliness is one of the most important factors in profitable market gardening. A difference of a few days or a week, in marketing, frequently makes the difference between profit and loss, and the prices secured for extra early crops have stimulated cultural experiments with every kind of fruit and vegetables.

Both the Kansas and the Rhode Island Agricultural Experiment Stations have reported some interesting results along this line with potatoes.

At the Kansas Station seed tubers of four different varieties of medium-sized potatoes were placed in shallow boxes with the seed ends up in February. They were packed in sand leaving the upper fourth of the tubers exposed, and the boxes were placed in a room with rather subdued light having a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Vigorous sprouts soon pushed from the exposed eyes. The whole potatoes were planted in furrows in March in the same position they occupied in the boxes. The same variety of potatoes taken from a storage cellar were planted in parallel rows. The sand-sprouted potatoes took the lead from the start in vigor and strength of top and produced potatoes the first of June a week earlier than the storage cellar potatoes. At the final digging they showed better potatoes and give a 10 per cent. larger total yield.

In another experiment part of the potatoes were treated the same as in the first test, except that the sand was kept moistened, and the other part was placed in open boxes and kept in a light room having a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The tubes placed in sand developed strong sprouts and nearly all rooted. When planted in the field they outstrapped both the tubes sprouted in open boxes and the storage cellar tubers in vigor of growth. The tubes started in the open boxes gave earlier yields than were obtained from the storage cellar tubers, but not as early as the tubers sprouted in moist sand produced table potatoes from 7 to 10 days earlier than the storage cellar seed.

At the Rhode Island Station medium sized whole potatoes sprouted on racks, in a fairly warm and light room, gave a 27 p.c. better yield at the first digging than potatoes kept in a cold cellar until planting time, and this was increased to 40 per cent. at the final digging. The percentage of large tubers was also greater at each digging with the sprouted tubers.

The results of these experiments are suggestive. The handling of seed potatoes in such manner as to secure strong, stocky sprouts before the tubers are planted out, is shown to be an important factor in increasing both the earliness and the total yield of the crop. By planting only well-sprouted seed, a full stand is assured.

One of the objections to this method of growing potatoes is the large amount of space required for exposing the tubers to the light for sprouting. This objection has been overcome in part by the use of tray and racks. At the Rhode Island Station the rack use held nine trays. Each tray was 3 3-4 feet long and 1 1-2 feet wide, and it would hold about one bushel of potatoes when spread out in a single layer for sprouting. The bottoms of the trays are made of pieces of lath placed about an inch apart. Nine trays were placed in a rack over each other, leaving about nine inches of space between each tray. This method of arrangement has the advantage of securing a very uniform distribution of the light, heat and air from all the trays. It greatly facilitates the handling of the potatoes and lessens the danger of breaking off the sprouts when transferring to the field of planting.

Another method of securing early potatoes in Rhode Island on a commercial scale is that of sprouting tubers in a cold-frame and planting out as soon as danger of frost is past. The tubers are cut into pieces not smaller than an English walnut, after rejecting the two or three eyes near the stem end, which have been found to start late. The pieces are placed side by side in the bed, skin side upward, and covered about four inches deep with fine, rich earth. Their growth can be controlled by proper regulation of the cold-frame sash. At planting time the tubers, the sprouts of which should be just breaking the surface of the soil, are carefully lifted with manure forks, separated by hand and placed in well fertilized rows and entirely covered with soil; or, if danger of frost is past, they are placed with the apex of the sprout just at the surface of the soil. About 21 square feet of cold frame is required to sprout sufficient potatoes to plant an acre in 30 to 32-inch rows, 12 inches apart.

Eight men can transplant an acre in a day.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS.

We are opposed to overwork. Our bodies are not built to stand the strain. There "rushers" overwork themselves; they are first to break down. The systematic man is like the horse with a regular trot. Such an animal covers a great many miles during the day. On the other hand, the excitable, nervous horse will spurt ahead for a mile or two, and then go on a slow walk. He is not able to compete with the other beast. The man with an easy, regular move accomplishes the most work.

The Kansas Experiment Station produced cheaper beef with silage and found that silage-fed steers sold for a higher price than steers fed on dry fodder. It was also found that corn silage when put in the silo would keep for five or six years and retain its feeding value. But not many feeders would keep it that long, as they would need it sooner.

It is estimated that a good crop of sweet clover when turned under will add as much humus as 15 tons of barnyard manure.

To train a colt to walk fast is not done in a day or a week; it is a matter of months. To make a slow walker, hitch the colt continually with a lazy old horse and spoil him. If you wish him to walk fast, start him that way. Put him in a place where he will have to walk fast, and then keep him at it.

Bulletin No. 98, of the Wyoming Station, reports that experiments with six horses fed during ten one-month periods on alfalfa hay showed a total gain of 203 pounds, while during an equal period on native hay there was a total loss of 84 pounds.

It was found at the Missouri station that corn silage compared with hay in feeding steers saved $1.07 for every 100 pounds of sheep produced. In Illinois corn silage was worth 31 per cent. more than cornfodder when all cost was considered.

The triple profits derived from the fleck—wool, lambs and mutton—come in at different seasons; and for this reason sheep are better suited to the farmer of small means than any other stock.

Good digestion is the result of feeding enough to sustain the animal and repair waste, but not enough to keep the stomach in an overloaded condition all the time. It will do the horses good to have sufficient appetite to relish a meal when it is given them.

'Donkey Ears' For Swell Dresses

"Donkey-ears" are not worn exclusively by—er—er—by four-footed creatures. Fashion has pinned a pair on the chappy-boy of 1915.

The chappy, owever, wears his "donkey-ears" on the lapels of his new single-breasted coat and they are no indication of his family connections. The "donkey-eared" coats are built upat the shoulders to give a military air to the wearer.

When Gas Was New.

There is a tradition to the effect that when domestic lighting by gas was still a novelty Sir Walter Scott introduced it into every room and staircase of the house that he was building at Abbotsford and did so without provision for any unexpected failure. His [illegible] inauguration was made the occasion for a house warming [illegible], and in the very middle of the festivities all the lights suddenly went out. The guests were left in absolute darkness until such time as mounted messengers could return from Melrose, whither they had been dispatched with instructions to collect all the tallow candles. And in [illegible] of candlesticks which the village could furnish.—London Times.

It is not the clock with the loudest tick that keeps the best time.

For You-a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor? It's a fact. Do you know that proper, inexpensive tile drainage [illegible] surface [illegible] prevents drought and [illegible] and improves the quality of your crops?

[illegible] free of charge, a very interesting booklet on this subject? Much to learn—nothing to pay. Don't neglect anything that will help you grow better, bigger crops. Proper drainage means as much as two dollars [illegible] for every one that goes there now, and the Government lends you money for the Tile if desired.

Write us today. Mention this paper. Your book is waiting.

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited

[illegible]

THE POULTRY WORLD

TWO OUNCES A DAY PER HEN.

The proper amount of feed for a hen is in the minds of many an all absorbing question. It is not always expedient to follow ironclad rules, because it is believed that hens' appetites vary, that they will eat more some days than others, depending perhaps upon the weather conditions, their physical welfare, their productiveness and other factors. Last year's records in the egg laying contest at Storrs, Conn., seem to indicate that each White Leghorn hen on an average ate close to 45 pounds of grain during the year. This means an average daily consumption of about 2 ounces per hen. This means that 12 or 13 pounds of grain per day ought to be sufficient for one hundred hens. If it be assumed that the average grain mixture weighs 1 1-2 pounds to the quart then 8 quarts or a trifle more would be sufficient for one hundred hens.

This compares closely with the rating made by the Maine Experiment Station, where 2 quarts of corn, 1 quart of wheat and 1 quart of oats are fed daily to 50 laying pullets. This suggestion regarding the amount of grain presupposes that the hens will have before them at all times a supply of dry mash to which they can help themselves freely.

The fifteenth week of the laying contest closed with a total production for all pens of 2,218 eggs which is 17 more than was produced in the preceding week but relatively 302 less than for the corresponding period last year. For the first fourteen weeks of the competition the hens regularly each week laid more eggs than for the corresponding period in the previous week, namely, the twelfth, the egg yield this year was more than double that of last year. Even though the hens did not quite come up to the scratch in the fifteenth week it is greatly to their credit that they so constantly outlaid last year's birds for fourteen consecutive weeks.

The White Wyandottes owned by Tom Barron of England won first place for the week with a yield of 49 eggs. The Rhode Island Reds belonging to Charles O. Polhemus of Newburgh, N. Y. and those belonging to Springdale Poultry Farm, Durham, Conn., tied for second place with a yield of 48 eggs. Third place was won by the sour milk White Wyandottes owned by the Storrs Station with 46 eggs to ther credit.

LICE ON HENS.

The estimated offspring from a single pair of lice in eight weeks is 125,000. lice are insects which inhabit the feathers of the bird, says J. A. Helmreich, Colorado Agricultural College. They have not a piercing mouth but one that is used for biting. The louse subsists on the production of the skin and fragments of feathers. It is not so much what they get as nourishment from the individual that hurts as the violent itching and pain they cause, especially if present in large numbers.

They also spread as rapidly as they breed. The lice from one individual acid and three parts of gasoline, add enough plaster of paris to take up the liquid; mix thoroughly. Spread out and may spread through the entire flock. Factors which favor their development, are, poorly ventilated quarters, insufficient food and weak stock. The bird that looks poor and sickly is one most likely to be infected.

Provide the flock with a dust bath, and apply the following home-made powder: To one part of crude carbolic let dry. If it is to dumpy, run through a sieve. Store away in tight cans. Work well into the feathers, especially in fluff under the wings. Repeat in ten days and make a thorough job of it.

NOTES.

Bad houses does not pay the right kind of dividends. More farmers should get in the habit of keeping a few geese. There's money in them taking into account the value of the feathers.

Sunflowers are one feed that can be fed fresh from the field and seem to have and excellent effect on moulting hens. Those who have learned the poultry business through a long apprenticeship never breed from hens undersize or from very late hatched pullets.

It does not pay to pick up fowls off the range and sell them. Put them in marketable condition by liberal feeding in the fattening pen before you let them go.

Dry sand is one of the best materials to use under the roots in the poultry houses. If the droppings cannot be removed every day, they should be kept well covered with sand. They will then be easy to remove and the manure, partly mixed, as it will be with the sand, will be in much better conditions for use when it is needed.

Poultry manure is rich in all fertilizing elements, particularly nitrogen but this it soon loses by fermentation if not properly mixed with absorbents.

Poultry droppings should not be put in the compost heap with other manures, but should be well mixed with sand or dry earth, and store in boxes or barrels in a dry place until ready for use. It is one of the most concentrated and valuable of manures.

They're Popular In Nova Scotia

WHY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE A HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.

People Have Learned From Long Experience that by Curing the Kidney Ills They Benefit the Entire Body.

Spry Harbor, Halifax Co., N. S., March 22nd—(Special).—"I have taken a couple of boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and have received great benefit from them. They are certainly a fine pill for anyone suffering from Kidney trouble." So says Mrs. Alex. E. Kilchey, and she speaks the sentiments of a large number of the women of Nova Scotia.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have so long been in general use that they are recognized as the standard remedy for Kidney troubles. They have become a family medicine in thousands of homes. People have learned from long experience that if they cure their minor Kidney ills with Dodd's Kidney Pills they need not fear those more terrible developments such as Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsey and Rheumatism. They have also learned that when the Kidneys are cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills the whole body benefits. For cured Kidneys mean pure blood, and pure blood is the foundation of all health. That's Why Dodd's Kidney Pills are universally popular.

MACARONI AND CHEESE.

1¼ cups macaroni.
2 level tablespoons butter.
4 level tablespoons flour.
2 cups milk.
1 level teaspoon salt.
Pepper.
½ cup grated cheese.
1 cup buttered crumbs.

Break macaroni into inch pieces. Cook in a large amount of boiling salted water; when tender, pour into a colander and run cold water through. Mix flour with an equal measure of milk until perfectly smooth; put remaining milk on to heat in a saucepan; when hot stir in the flour and cook, stirring constantly, until it boils. Add butter, salt, pepper, cheese and macaroni.

Pour into a buttered baking dish, cover with crumbs and bake until brown in a moderate oven.

His Mite of Sense.

"Well, gentlemen," said Tompkins to a couple of his friends, "you can talk as much as you please about the inferiority of women, but there are lots of them that can discount most of us for brains. Take my wife, for instance. She's got twice as [illegible] as I have, and I ain't ashamed to acknowledge it, either."

"But don't you think," said one of his auditors, "that you put rather a low estimate on your wife's intellectual powers?"—Liverpool Mercury.

MOST PERFECT MADE

THE INCREASED NUTRITIOUS VALUE OF BREAD MADE IN THE HOME WITH ROYAL YEAST CAKES SHOULD BE SUFFICIENT INCENTIVE TO THE CAREFUL HOUSEWIFE TO GIVE THIS IMPORTANT FOOD ITEM THE ATTENTION TO WHICH IT IS JUSTLY ENTITLED.

HOME BREAD BAKING REDUCES THE HIGH COST OF LIVING BY LESSENING THE AMOUNT OF EXPENSIVE MEATS REQUIRED TO SUPPLY THE NECESSARY NOURISHMENT TO THE BODY.

E. W. GILLETT CO. LTD.
TORONTO, ONT.
WINNIPEG MONTREAL

The HouseKeeper

To remove vaseline stains, try turpentine. If that fails, sponge them with ether.

To remove paint from dress fabrics place a white blotter underneath the spot and rub with benzine.

Salt on the fingers when cleaning fowl or fish, will prevent slipping, and a little vinegar on the hands will prevent odor.

Crackers with grated cheese put in the oven and browned, are good served with a salad.

If eggs are placed in hot water a few minutes before breaking, the whites will separate from the yolks very easily. They should be cooled before starting to whip the whites.

To restore velvet spotted by rain or snow, steam the whole surface to make the shade even. Do not brush before steaming. The velvet will look darker at first, but it will become lighter in the open air.

To make a lotion for chapped hands, mix together one-half ounce of glycerine, two ounces of rose water and one-half dram of benzoin.

Wine stains which have dried on the tablecloth or napkin should be touched with a few drops of whiskey before the linen is sent to the laundry.

To remove paint from glass, dissolve some washing soda in very hot water and wash the windows with it, using soft flannel, or rub a dime briskly over the stain and then wash with turpentine.

To take tea and coffee stains of long standing out of a fabric apply a mixture composed of the yolk of an egg stirred in a cup of tepid water, to which a few drops of glycerine have been added. Rub the mixture well into the stain, then wash thoroughly with warm water.

To clean white leather belts rub powdered borax in, gently, with a piece of white flannel.

To remove lampblack stains wash with kerosene and wipe with a dry cloth; then wash in soap and water to remove the kerosene.

Castor oil applied to a wart two or three times a day for a week will cause it to disappear.

When putting the paper or oilcloth on pantry shelves, use thumb tacks instead of the ordinary tacks and you will make a better job of your work.

Nifty Outing Outfit For Outdoor Girl

A green velvet cap and a white serge skirt is Dame Fashion's idea of what a [illegible] should wear when summer comes.

The smartest of sport models is a [illegible] coat of this green velvet worn with a knee-length white serge skirt, a white canvas hat, with a green band.

Society Islands last year sent [illegible] worth of vanilla to the United States.

CATTLE RAISING IN WEST CANADA

The Buffalo Country Gives Wonderful Results.

Beef of the North Better and More of It.

The result in the continued shortage in cattle, the future price of beef, and the solution of the perplexing problem of feeding the world, are vital questions uppermost in the minds of many thinking people to-day. There is no doubt that the wide acres of Western Canada can, and will, be made to play an important part in bringing about a proper balance in supply and demand. In the northern parts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan and in Alberta along the Canadian Northern Railway are many thousands of acres of the richest pasture in the world, well watered and treated by the sunniest of climates. These rolling hills, for the greater part, are still unpeopled and untrodden by the hoofs of domestic animals.

The foot hills district of Alberta is traditionally a cattle country, a natural feeding ground where peculiar climatic conditions prevail which make it best suited to cattle on the range. Ranchers who know old Mexico, Texas, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming and the other ranching states, as well as Alberta, are at a loss to understand the superior qualities of vast sections of this province as a pasturing field for live stock. They will tell you that so far as the appearance of the grasses are concerned the pasturage is about the same here as it is in Texas or parts of Mexico. But they say also, "Take four yearling steers out of the same herd in Mexico and leave one in Mexico; place a second one a thousand miles north of Carolina; a third still farther north in Montana or Wyoming, and the fourth in Alberta, and it will be found that at the end of three years, when all four animals are ready for market, the Mexican product will weigh from 900 to 950 pounds; the Colorado steer will weigh from 1,000 to 1,050; those in Montana and Wyoming will weigh from 1,100 to 1,150; while the animal fed in Alberta will go to market weighing from 1,200 to 1,300 pounds."

Why is it that these beef animals take on from 100 to 150 pounds extra weight with each progression northward between old Mexico and Alberta? The rancher cannot explain or answer the question, but cattlemen all over America know that such is the case.

At Vermilion Experimental farm an interesting investigation was conducted last winter in the feeding of beef cattle. One lot of steers were fed indoors, each animal being allowed to stand untied in a box stall while another herd of the same number was left to feed and fatten outside on the native grasses. The result at the end of the experimental period was that the animals which had enjoyed the outdoor life weighed more and were of better marketable quality than those cared for in stables.

SPRING IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

A Tonic Medicine is a Necessity at This Season.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all year round tonic, blood-builder and nerve restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these Pills helps to make new, rich, red blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions and boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily clear the skin because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. In the spring anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, erysipelas, and many other troubles are most persistent because of poor, weak blood, and it is at this time when all nature takes on new life that the blood most seriously needs attention. Some people dose themselves with purgatives at this season, but these only further weaken themselves. A purgative merely gallops through the system, emptying the bowels, but it does not cure anything. On the other hand, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, which reaches every nerve and organ in the body, bringing new strength, new health and vigor to weak, easily tired men, women and children. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring—they will not disappoint you.

You can get these health renewing Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"MADE IN CANADA."

(Vancouver Sunset)

Did you ever stop to think that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds make the "Made in Canada" campaign possible, even though they suffer most keenly from outside competition?

Does it strike you as being fair that the publishers should bear the brunt of the battle, without the support of the public?

This is the case. The "Saturday Sunset" is "Made in Canada." It is "Made in B. C." published by Canadians for Canadians, an inveterate supporter of home industries, yet the general public calmly go ahead spending large sums to support foreign periodicals of all kinds.

Since we are supporting home industries, we feel we have a right to put in a word for ourselves, and for the other Canadian publications. We buy Canadian paper and Canadian ink. Our employees are Canadians and the money they receive is spend in Canada.

A USEFUL FASHION.

(Guelph Mercury)

The cup veil is the latest. It simply means that the veil a young lady wears is scooped out so she can drink a cup of tea. No doubt many an ambitious young man will see another good use for the scoop-out.

A. B. [illegible] of [illegible] is the largest man in the Massachusetts militia, standing 6 feet 6 inches in height, and weighing [illegible] pounds.

RASH ALL OVER HEAD AND FACE

Of Baby. Could Not Sleep. Fretful and Cross. Itched and Burned. Hair Came Out. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Darnley, P. E. I.—"When my little girl was three days old a fine rash came out all over her head and face. At first I thought it was baby rash but after a week or two I found that it was very itching and she could not sleep. She was getting very fretful and cross and it made her sick. It itched and burned so much that she used to scratch it until it became one solid mass of sore eruption and it made nearly all her hair come out. It was getting worse all the time and it spoiled her looks.

"I was told she had eczema and I got some ointment to use on her but it did no good. By the time she was four months old the eczema was all over her face, head and neck. I then decided to send for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The first application relieved her of the itching. I then bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap and used it according to directions for eczema. I bathed her face and head with the Cuticura Soap and put the Cuticura Ointment on gently and by the time the box of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap were gone there was not a sign of eczema and she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Philip Roach, May 12, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

To prevent falling hair, remove crusts and scales, and allay itching and irritation of the scalp, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are indispensable. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U.S.A."

RADIUM AND LIGHTNING.

Radium has been discovered vastly to improve lightning rods in their protection of buildings during thunderstorms. Of course the enormous cost of radium prevents any practical use of the fact as yet. But there is a very fair possibility that the information gained inthis way will lead to a new form of lightning rod which will be more efficient or that further experiments will show that a tiny quantity of radium at a reasonable cost will improve the protection.

The purpose of lightni gnrods, of course is to catch the electrical currents in the air during a storm and lead them safely into the ground instead of allowing the lightning to pick its own course down through a house or church steeple, and their use is based on th eprinciple that a metal rod will give the electricity a smoother path of less resistance than ordinary building material.

The whole trouble with lightning rods now is that, though they can be made to do the trick of the electrical discharge is near them, there is no way to lead electricity through the air to the rod. Radium will do this part of the work, a shas been demonstrated by scientific experiments. Two milligrams of radium on the end of a rod made the air considerable distance away a vastly better conductor.

Thus any electrical discharge within several yards of the rod had a path open for it along the radium rays to the rod then down the rod to the earth.—Saturday Evening Post.

Sunday School Teacher—Can you tell me who dwelt in the garden of Eden?

Little May—Yes, ma'am; the 6Adamses.

"What is an amateur Bobby?" pueried his small sister.

"An amateur," replied Bobby, "is anything that isn't nature."

"Mama," puried little Myra, "do you think grandpa has really gone to heaven?"

"Yes, dear," was the reply.

"Well, continued Myra, "I'll bet he sneaks outside once in awhile to smoke his pipe."

In the lesson mention had been made of the canthook that is used for rolling logs.

"Can you tell me what a canthook is, Tommy?" asked th eteacher.

"Sure," replied Tommy. "It's a cow that hasn'e any horns."—Detroit Free Press.

DO NOT BOTHER THE EDITOR.

Every craft has its crosses. One of the sore afflictions of the newspaper business, says the Emporia Gazette, is found in the fact that people generally think it's not work to get out a paper. One of the hardest jobs every editor does, though generally the pleasantest, is to read his exchanges. But it is hard work and it must be done. For the editor who gets a day or two "back" in his exchanges never catches up. And the thing that makes him maddest, though he will look up and greet the stranger with a smile who does it, is for a man to come in saying, "Well, I saw you were sitting there doing nothing but reading, so I thought I'd just pass the time of day with you!"

Remember this, you who would have business with the editor: It's all right to come in when he's reading or writing, or editing copy, but don't get it into your head that when he's reading his exchanges you have come in the idle hour. How can an editor get any ideas if he doesn't read others' ideas? Do you think he sits down and thinks 'em out of his head? Well, he doesn't. He reads a score of papers every morning, and from one or two he gets a suggestion or two. Sometimes he finds an item that makes him mad; then he writes well. Sometimes a vagrant item, a pay local, a telegraphic head, an advertisement starts a rich train of suggestion. But the sure way to wreck the train and make your paper stupid and inane is to come bustling in when he's reading the exchanges. He is doing the best work of his day.

SEE CANADA FIRST.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

There is no doubt that for at least a season or two Canadian tourists could spend their money advantageously for both themselves and the country by confining themselves to journeys made in Canada. Whether it be the awe-inspiring grandeur of towering peak and yawning cataract, the imposing majesty of mighty rivers or the simple beauty of Rural landscapes that is sought, there is no need to go out of Canada. There is an abundance of all that could be desired to please the eye or stir the emotions. If the desire is for historic association there is plenty of opportunity for its gratification without ever crossing the Canadian boundary.

PATRIOTISM PRODUCTION

Patriotism without production is an empty sound. If ever there was a time when by deeds one should be known, it is now. Now, when the Empire is at war; now, when many of the regular channels of supply are closed; now, when men in millions have been summoned from the paths of industry to the inferno of destruction; now, when Britain is fighting for Belgium's right to live; now, when the world's liberties are at stake; now, when Germany seeks to prostrate Britain even as she has prostrated Belgium; now, when Germany threatens the forty million people of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales with starvation; now, when the enemy is bombarding peaceful towns and villages, slaughtering innocent and harmless women and children; now, when fertile fields and fruitful gardens of other lands are lying in waste and swollen with death; now, is the time when Canada is called upon to put forth her mightiest effort to help stem the tide of destruction, to aid the Empire and to profit herself.

In entering upon the campaign in which it is now engaged, the Department of Agriculture of the Dominion has entered upon a task that should do untold good. It is not that the farmers needed altogether to be prompted to benefit themselves but that perhaps some of them do not entirely recognize the seriousness of the present and the more than probable critical conditions of the future. If the war were to end to-morrow, there would still be need for every effort in productiveness, for many years must elapse before the devastation that has been caused can be remedied or repaired. Unhappily the probabilities are that the giant conflict will continue for many months yet, in which case the mind of man cannot fathom or foresee the damage that will have to be done to every form of industry, to agriculture in particular, by the waste of life, by the wrecking of property and by the spreading of desolation. It is in repairing the damage others cause that the farmers are called upon to aid. It is their mother country that cries to them.

The Agricultural Department is not alone holding conferences at many points in the country, but is engaged, as will be seen by the announcement elsewhere, in distributing large quantities of literature, telling how the farmer can best serve the interests of the Empire, display his grateful sense of patriotism and bring profit to himself. In brief and explicit language, that all who run may read and understand, is pointed out the needs of the situation and how those needs can be met. Above all, the advice is given to avoid waste. Everything can be utilized. Nothing need be thrown away as valueless. The economy of production is in saving.

The wisest can learn something by reading, and in the bulletins and reports prepared and written by experts and men of practical science farmers will find hints, suggestions and information of the greatest possible value at this season, and such as will advantage both their land and themselves for all time. They will also aid them in that duty to the Empire which is such passing and instant importance that to shirk it is to be criminal. Copies of the publications of the Department can be had upon addressing Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. No postage is required on the application.

PLAYS FAVORITES

The War Has Benefited Some and Hurt Others.

Not very many in Canada foresaw the war or laid any plans with it in view. Therefore, if it has helped business they are simply fortunate; if it has hurt they are unfortunate, but not to blame. Is it any more than fair, then, that those who have profited should take some thought for those who have not? Farmers are getting more for their crops; some manufacturers are selling more goods than they ever sold in times of peace, some busines and professional men are making more money than usual. On the other hand, thousands of workmen have had their hours shortened and their pay cut down, because the wave of economy has lessened the demand for the goods they make. The fortunate ones have it in their power to even up the scale, to spend their money for goods "Made in Canada." This will so increase the demand for Canadian products as to keep practically every Canadian factory working full time, and to give to all that prosperity now enjoyed only by the fortunate ones.

Uncorking a Bottle.

It often happens that in attempting to uncork a bottle the stopper is forced into the bottle instead, and it thus floats on the liquid. This would perhaps not be a drawback were it not that each time the bottle is to be emptied the cork come to the neck and causes an obstruction, preventing the flow of the liquid. This can be avoided very readily, and all that is needed is to bend a piece of stiff iron wire in a long U-shape, properly fitting it to the neck of the bottle so that the loop portion projects somewhat below the neck. Upon overturning the bottle, the wire loop prevents the cork from reaching the neck to obstruct it.

STOP THAT DISGUSTING SNIFFLE! SOOTHING "CATARRHOZONE"--A QUICK CURE

The Rich Healing Balsams of Catarrhozone Are Death to Colds, Bad Throat and Catarrh.

Simply a marvel—you get relief so quickly from Catarrhozone.

Try the inhaler and count ten—your throat and nose are cleared—you feel better at once.

Every breath you take is laden with the rich piney vapor of Catarrhozone—every breath is full of healing—full of soothing curative medicine that destroys sniffles and nose colds almost instantly.

Thousands are using Catarrhozone to-day who couldn't live without it.

Try it for your irritable throat, test it out for that bronchial cough, give it a chance to rid you of that chronic catarrhal condition.

Years of wonderful success and testimony from the best people of our land go to prove that nothing so far discovered is quicker, safer, surer, more pleasant than Catarrhozone. It is in its application purely scientific—is recommended only for certain ailments above mentioned, but those it does certainly cure.

Use the complete dollar outfit of Catarrhozone; it always does the work; small size 50c; sample trial size 25c; sold by dealers everywhere.

Fashionable Spring Coats for Misses and Women

Two of the most popular styles for Spring, tailored in covert cloth and tweed mixtures.

One a very swagger Military effect, full back, with belt, high convertible collar, pockets and fancy button trimmed, other style in covert cloth in Empire style, yoke back, flare skirt and flare back collar. Colors, sand and grey and fawn tweed mixtures. Price $10.00. Other styles, $6, $8 & $8.50

The Ladies' Spring Suits

These suits are certainly good styles, copied from imported models. Tailored in high-class, all wool materials. Serges, Poplins and Gaberdines.

Coats in smart Military and Eton styles. Flare and side pleated skirts. Beautifully trimmed and satin lined. 34 to 40 bust measure. Styles all different. Very moderately priced.

THE NEW SPRING WAISTS

Very many pretty styles in these new waists. Made in fine sheer Lawns, Organdy and Crepe. Have embroidered fronts, smart lay back and flare-up collars, edged with lace, front fastening, three quarter sleeves, beaded seams. All good, smart styles. Prices $1.50 to $3.50.

D. & A. CORSETS

New Models. In white Coutil, strong and well boned, medium bust and long skirt, four wide side steels, four garters. Deep lace and ribbon trimmed Rust proof. Sizes 18 to 26. Special values, 75c, $1., to $3.

NEW EMBROIDERIES & FLOUNCINGS. FINE VAL. LACES & INSERTIONS

New Edgings, Insertions, Flouncings and Beadings—a consignment arrived from Switzerland within the last week. They're particularly fine of weave and delicately patterned. Small dainty effects in organdy, muslin, cambric and Nainsook.

BIG VALUES IN SILKS

SATIN PAILETTES. Yard wide. Soft lustrous finish. New spring shades. Regular $1.25 quality. Our special import value $1.00

DUCHESS MOUSSELINE. Yard wide. In Nile, Taupe, Battleship, Saxe, Belgian, Brown, Tan, Gold, Purple and Black. Regular $1 50; our price $1.25

FANCY SHOT SILKS. 36 in. wide In tones of green, wine, navy and royal blues. Special value per yard $1.50

NEW SUITING SERGES

Navy and Black. Splendid weight. Soft and pliable, gloss and dust resisting. In deep navy blue and black. Special values at 75c, $1, $1.25 and 1.50 per Yard.

STEPHAN BROS.

BY-LAW NO.

Continued from page 1

Branch or Agency of the said Bank on the tenth day of August in each and every year during the currency thereof (the first payment of interest to be made on the tenth day of August 1916) and shall have attached thereto coupons for payment of the said interest which coupons shall be signed by the said Mayor and Treasurer.

4 That one of said debentures to be issued under this By-law shall be payable on the tenth day of August in each and every year during said period of thirty years, so that the sum to be raised for principal and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal in each year.

5 The first one of such Debenture shall be made payable on the tenth day of August 1916, and one debenture shall be made payable in each successive year thereafter on each tenth day of August, till all of said Debentures and the interest thereon are paid as follows, that is to say:—

Year	Int	Principal	Total Annual Amt
1916	250 00	75 26	325 26
1917	246 24	79 02	325 26
1918	242 20	82 97	325 26
1919	238 14	87 12	325 26
1920	233 78	91 48	325 26
1921	229 21	96 05	325 26
1922	224 41	100 85	325 26
1923	219 36	105 90	325 26
1924	214 07	111 19	325 26
1925	208 51	116 75	325 26
1926	202 67	122 59	325 26
1927	196 54	128 72	325 26
1928	190 11	135 15	325 26
1929	183 35	141 91	325 26
1930	176 26	149 00	325 26
1931	168 80	156 46	325 26
1932	160 98	164 28	325 26
1933	152 77	172 49	325 26
1934	144 14	181 12	325 26
1935	135 09	190 17	325 26
1936	125 58	199 68	325 26
1937	115 60	209 66	325 26
1938	105 11	220 15	325 26
1939	94 10	231 16	325 26
1940	82 55	242 71	325 26
1941	70 41	254 85	325 26
1942	57 67	267 59	325 26
1943	44 29	280 97	325 26
1944	30 24	295 02	325 28
1945	15 49	309 74	325 26
		$5000 00

6 During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised and levied in each year by a special rate sufficient therfore on all rateable property in the Municipality of the said Town of Walkerton over and above all other rates the sum of $325.26 for the payment of the said debt of $5000 and the interest thereon.

7 This By-law shall come into force and take effect on and from the final passing thereof.

Dated and passed this day of A. D. 1915.

Clerk Mayor

NOTICE

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton to be submitted to the votes of the electors on the 10th day of April A. D. 1915, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon at the following places:—

East Polling Subdivision—At Smith & Henderson's Block,

Centre Polling Subdivision—At the Town Hall,

West Polling Subdivision—At John Schnitzler's House,

South Polling Subdivision — At Joseph Yaeck's House.

And that the 15th day of August A. D. 1915, at twelve o'clock noon at the Town Hall, in the said Municipality has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice and that such first publication was made on the 25th day of March A. D. 1915.

Take notice futher that a tenant who desires to vote upon said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable or for at least twenty-one years, and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all Municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant other than local improvement rates.

A. COLLINS, Clerk.

RIVERSDALE

Miss V. Houle of Port Huron is visiting at A. Dietrich's.

Mr. Stanley Hodgekinson intends leaving for the West on Tuesday next.

Miss Olela Schurter visited at Heidmiller's last week.

Miss Hapburn is visiting at Alex. Symon's.

Mr. George Symon has sold his farm to P. Valad, Jr.

Mr. A. Frieburger had his chopping mill badly damaged by fire on Tuesday last.

Mr. Jake Frieburger has hired with Mr. French this year

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Scharbeck, a daughter.

Rev. A. C. Stuart and family of North Mornington arrived at Riversdale on Wednesday.

PINKERTON

Mr. Robt. Gale who was visiting his parents at the manse, returned to his home in Alton on Friday.

Mr. Albert Pinkerton returned last week from a business trip to Toronto.

Our maple syrup men report a poor run so far this year.

Mr. Walter Clark and family are moving to Cargill this week. While we are glad that this arrangement is much more convenient for Mr. Clark we are sorry to lose the family from our midst.

Miss Alma Reid arrived home from Toronto on Monday evening to nurse her mother, Mrs. Adam Reid who is suffering from a severe attack of La Grippe.

Mr. Jas. Andrews was in Paisley on Saturday.

Dr. de Van's Female Pills

A reliable French regulator; never fails. These pills are exceedingly powerful in regulating the generative portion of the female system. Refuse all cheap imitations. Dr. de Van's are sold at $5 a box, or three for $10. Mailed to any address. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

THE SAVOY

CAFE

NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP

QUICK LUNCH

SPECIAL DINNER

Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.

BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS WITH FRIED POTATOES

BREAD AND BUTTER

PIE

WITH TEA OR COFFEE.

25 cts.

Application to Parliament.

Notice is hereby given that an application will be made by the Corporation of the town of Walkerton to the Legislative Assembly of the province of Ontario at the next ensuing session thereof for an act to consolidate the outstanding debenture and other indebtedness of the said town at the rate of $11,000, and authorizing and empowering the Corporation to raise by way of loan the said sum of $11,000 on the credit of its debentures to be issued under the authority of the said act.

That the said debentures shall be payable within thirty years after the issue thereof and shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding six per cent per annum as the said council shall determine. The existing debenture debt of the said town of Walkerton is as follows: and no portion thereof is in arrears:—

Former consolidated debt	$ [illegible]75 72
Sewers	4907 14
Waterworks	13796 08
General improvement	7510 29
Bonus loans	1696 38
Public Library	1612 10
Floating debt	1821 30
	$11000 00

The reason for requiring the consolidation of the said debenture debt and for the issue of such debentures is to enable a reduction to be made in the sums to be raised annually for the repayment of the said debt and to enable the Corporation to pay off its floating indebtedness, which was incurred in executing works of a permanent and necessary character.

A. Collins,
Solicitor for Applicant

Dated at Walkerton,
the 10th day of February, A. D, 1915

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.

Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "

Cracked Wheat, Farnia Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.

Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton — Ont

FOR ICE CREAM GO TO Erdman's PHONE No. 190

SPRING

Millinery Opening

Thursday and Friday

Mar. 25 & 26 and Following Days

You are cordially invited to inspect our Paris styles in Spring Millinery. Our milliner, Miss Mathers, has filled some of the best positions on the continent, and we are prepared to give you the very latest in up-to-date millinery.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY
The Rife Block — Walkerton

MILLINERY

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton to call and inspect the new and fashionable Spring Millinery creations now on display.

Mrs. Porteous
Next Door to Hehn's Bakery

Easter Offerings

WE ARE NOW READY to show you a most complete selection of anything you desire in early Spring clothing or wearing apparel for Men, Women, Misses and Children.

Ladies' New Spring Blouses 50c, 1.00, 1.25 to $3.00.

Dainty Collars and Collar and Cuff Setts, 25c. to 2.00.

Ladies' Spring Suits $10, 12, 15, 18, 20 to $25.

Ladies' and Misses' Spring Coats and Waterproof Coats Prices $5.00, 10.00, 12.00, 15.00 and $20.00

Childrens', Misses and Ladies' Spring Wash Dresses—All prices up to 5.00 and 6.00

Silks and Dress Goods Coming in Every Day.

Boy's and Men's Furnishings

All the new styles in "Fitwell" Hats, stiff and soft felt $1.00 to $2.00 each.——Men's and Boy's Spring Caps 25c to $1.50

Easter Novelties in Ties just in.

Boy's and Youth's suits—Buster Brown, Norfolk, Single and Double Breasted Duck Suits, Polo Suits.—The most up-to date Boy's clothing ever shown in Walkerton—Prices 2.00 to 12.00 a suit.

Men's Ready to Wear and Made to Measure clothing—correctly tailored suits 8.00 to 30.00.

McBurney & Co.

[illegible]

Notice To Creditors

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM JOHN BILDSTEIN OF TOWN OF WALKERTON IN THE COUNTY OF BRUCE, BLACKSMITH INSOLVENT.

Notice is hereby given that the above named Insolvent has this day made an assignment to me under R. SO Cap 134 of all his estate for the benefit of his creditors.

The said Creditors are notified to meet at my office on the corner of Durham and Victoria street in the said town of Walkerton on Wednesday the 10th day of March 1915 at one o'clock in the afternoon to receive a statement of affairs to appoint inspectors and for the ordering of the estate generally.

Creditors are requested to file their claims with the assignee before the date of said meeting.

Notice is hereby given that after the twenty fourth day of March 1915, the assignee will proceed to distribute the assets of the Insolvent among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which notice shall have been given to him.

And the Assignee will not be liable for any part of the assets so distributed to any person or persons of whose claims he shall not have had notice.

S. A. Rife,
Assignee

Dated at Walkerton, Feb. 27th. 1915.

THE

Merchants Bank OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,134

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

Walkerton Markets

Hay	per ton	$16.00	to.......	$17.00
Oats	" bsh.	50	".......	65
Wheat	" "	1.20	to......	1 20
Barley	" "	60	to.......	65
Potatoes	" bag	50	"......	60
Butter	" lb.	28	"......	30
Eggs	" doz.	18	"......	18
Chicken	" lb.	13	"......	14
Ducks	" "	10	"......	14
Turkeys	" "	15	"......	16

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

First Glimpse of Spring

Every day new home things are popping into view. In the peoples store house cleaning time is just ahead, new rugs draperis are needed This big home store is fairly bulging with interesting and attractive things ready for you for comfort giving, beautifying the home. No store shows more satisfying stocks and none price things more fairly. Special selling events are in evidence every day here during the spring house cleaning season.

RUGS

We have special good values in large size rugs in tapestry axminister.

NEW FLOOR OIL CLOTHS LINOLEUMS

Extra heavy Scotch printed in new block patterns.

Pure groceries alway fresh.

J. H. Appel
Produce Wanted Phone 53

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

VOL XXXIV - No 12

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 1st 1915—8 PAGES

Fine Packaged Chocolates

You will find our packaged chocolates to be the finest products in that line and at same price as many poorly finished and packed kinds.

Every package of Willards Forkdipt Chocolates is guaranteed to please you or we are authorized to replace or refund your money.

In all price packages from 10c.

Our Chocolates are always fresh.

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

MILLINERY

Easter Specials

For EASTER WEEK I am making a special effort to please you both in Quality and in Price, and would be pleased to have you call.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY

The Rife Block — Walkerton

Ask for the

"REXALL"

Remedies for any ailment.

Some Rexall Sellers.

"93" HairTonic, 50c & $1.00

Dyspepsia Tablets, 25c 50 $1

Excema Ointment 50 & $1.00

Orderlies 10c 25 & 50c.

SEVERIGHT'

DRUGS—KODAKS

"EDISON" PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson

Jeweller - Walkerton

Up-To-Date

MEN'S FURNISHINGS

If you are particular about your collars, neckwear, shirts and other accessories that complete the success of a man's apparel, you should come in and make selections here.

Our Successful Tailoring satisfies the most particular people. We can please you too, why don't you let us take your measure today?

Ladies' Suits tailored to order.

G.T.ROURKE

Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store

Walkerton, - Ont.

"Looking back I see I never saw before."

This is the exclamation of satisfied customers.

We have fitted successfully stubborn cases that others have failed in.

Satisfaction guaranteed.

Consultation

C. A. Fox, Walkerton

Jeweller and Optician

Wanted.

Apprentices wanted.—Apply at "The Elite."

Wanted!

An industrious man who can earn $100 per month and expenses, selling our products to farmers. Must have some means for starting, expenses and furnish bond signed by two responsible men. Address W. T. Rawleigh Co., Toronto, Ont., giving age, occupation and references.

JAS. TOLTON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

A Happy Easter to all.

To-day is April Fool's Day.

Pass Egg Dye, 5c at Hunters.

T. E. Attwood issuer of marriage licenses.

Eastman U. C. films, all sizes at Hunters.

Stylish Easter foot-wear at Ramsey's shoe store.

Get a "Fitwell" hat for Easter at McBurney's.

See McBurney's specially priced boy's suits for Easter.

Ladies' long kid gloves only $2 a pair —at McBurney's.

The new shapes in men's soft and derby hats—Stephan Bros.

Mr. Amos Pletsch returned from Calgary last week.

New spring styles in Regal shoes at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

The "Eastern" is the smart cap for young men.—Stephan Bros.

Cushionette shoes need no breaking in—Ramsay, the Shoeman.

Boys new Norfolk bloomer suits, $3 to $8 at Stephan Bros.

Easter perfumes and toilet waters. All the popular odors at Hunters.

Mrs. Ralph Terry is visiting at the home of her parents in Oakville.

The very smartest styles in Ladies spring coats and suits.—Stephan Bros.

The Mildmay Football club are entering intermediate teams in the W. F. A.

Perrin&Fownes French kid & Suede gloves for men and women.—Stephan Bros.

The High School students are putting on a play in the town hall on April 20th.

Women's $3.50 and $4.00 tan shoes clearing at $2.19.—Ramsey the Shoeman.

Mr. Harry Wells of Sundridge is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Wells.

Don't miss seeing our men's suits. The finest lot we've ever had.—Stephan Bros.

Regal, on your shoes means quality in them.—Sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Mrs. (Judge) J. H. Scott, of Perth, renewed acquaintances here this week.

Miss Lydia Weber of Formosa, is learning the dress-making at Mrs Cooling's.

For tired aching feet try a pair of Reed's cushionshoes, sold at Ramsey's shoe store.

A list of the contributors to the Walkerton Red Cross Fund will be found on page 8.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Malcomson, of Kincardine, were visitors here on Thursday last.

Mrs. D. Robertson left on Saturday for a month's visit to her daughter. Mrs. Roy, in Kenora.

Captain G. H. D. Martyn of the Third Contingent, at Guelph, spent Sunday with Mrs. Martyn.

Mr. Harry Wettlaufer of the Hydro Electric staff at Hamilton is spending Easter week at his home here.

Mr. Ted Crawford of Winnipeg and Mrs. Pierson of Toronto are visiting their father, Mr. N. Crawford.

Alex McGonis who has been serving thirty days on a charge of vagrancy released from the goal on Monday.

The Walkerton Dramatic Club are putting on a play in the town hall on Friday April 10th, in aid of the hospital.

Miss Elva Ingram of the Business College staff leaves on Thursday to spend Easter week at her home in Peterborough.

Mr. Andrew Lettner of Eye Brow, Sask who has been on the sick list for some time, arrived here on Saturday and will remain here for some time

Mr. Henry Spitzig left on Wednesday morning for Brantford to attend the funeral of his nephew, Lorenz Niechner, who died on Tuesday.

Mr. Arthur Crydeman who has spent the past three weeks with his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. W Crydeman, returned to Sarnia on Monday.

Mrs. Borden, mother of Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada, died on Monday at her home in Grand Pre, Nova Scotia. She was 90 years of age.

Fertilizer for gardens and field crops, cheaper, more productive and more easily applied than manure. Large stock on hand. C. P. Nutting, Walkerton, phone 63.

The Bachelors and Benedicts are giving their annual Easter dance on Thursday April 8th. Kelley's orchestra of Owen Sound have been engaged to supply the music.

Claude Harefeld a former Walkerton boy, now of Stratford who joined the first Canadian Contingent has been invalided home after four months in the military hospitals in England.

Eat your supper of Boston Baked beans, white or brown bread, tea or coffee, pie, doughnuts and cake, at the Soldiers Aid Tea Room on Wednesday evening next from 5 to 8 o'clock.

For Sale.

Eggs for hatching and poultry for sale, white Wyandottes.—Apply to Fred Brislan.

Women's Institute.

The Women's Institue will meet at the home of Mrs. Andrew Oberle on Thursday, Apr. 1st.

Wanted.

Solicitor to get pupils for the Walkerton Business College. Apply at the College or Box 171 for terms. — P. J. Maloney.

Joynt is Reeve.

In the contest for the reeveship of Lucknow, John Joynt was elected on Monday, his majority over his opponent, Mr. J. G. Anderson, ex M. P. P. being 40.

Change of Business.

Mr. Geo Yaeck has taken over the Brush and Broom Business carried on by Mullin Bros., and takes possession at once.

Left For Galt.

Mrs Thos. Adamson, who has been a resident of Walkerton for a great many years, left on Monday for Galt where she will reside in the future.

Operated on.

Miss Nellie Beattie was taken to the hospital last week where she was operated on for throat trouble. The operation was successful, and Miss Beattie is rapidly recovering.

Brought to Goal.

Gustave Kupskey was brought to goal here on Tuesday, having been sent up for trial on a charge of receiving stolen goods. He will be tried before Judge Klein next week.

Matinees at the Red Star.

Matinees will be given at the Red Star theatre on Good Friday afternoon and also Saturday and every Saturday afternoon following until further notice. Admission 5c

Factory Accident.

While operating the rip-saw in R. E. Truax & Son's factory on Monday, Mr. Harry Buehlow had the misfortune to have his hand come in contact with the saw with the result that he had a finger badly lacerated. He will be off work for a few days

Small-pox Placard Removed.

The placard which has kept under quarantine a section of the poverty block for the past four weeks was removed on Wednesday, by chief Ferguson. Mrs. George Small who was suffering from the disease, having completely recovered. The building has been thoroughly fumigated and every precaution taken by the health officers to prevent a further outbreak of the dread malady. The type of the disease from which Mrs. Small was suffering from was very mild.

Improved the Theatre.

Since taking possession of the Red Star Theatre, Mr. Dave Karges has made many improvements. The theatre is now illuminated better, both in the interior and exterior and the proprietor is showing a better grade of films. No better place can be found for an entertainment any evening. Mr. Karges also purposes making other improvement including the enlarging of the theatre, which will be extended back some twenty feet, giving better seating capacity and accommodation for his patrons.

Advanced in Price $20.

A Walkerton stock buyer purchased a cow recently, shipped it to Toronto, sold it in the city for $72.00, and of course made some money in the transaction. This same bovine was reshipped to Walkerton and on being placed on auction at the marketsquare on Saturday brought $92.00. Just why this cow advanced so rapidly in price or whether someone paid a fabulous price for her, those who are ready to vouch for the authenticity of the incident, are not prepared to state.

Curling Notes.

The junior rink semi-finals were played on Monday night. Rourke defeated Severight and McBurney defeating Letson. Rourke and McBurney played the finals in a keenly contested game on Tuesday night winding up the season's schedule, McBurney winning by 3 shots.

The following were the players, and score:

Ralph Krueger	A Benninger
George Smith	A P. Johnston
F. W. Lippert	A Collins
W. H. McBurney	G. T Rourke
Skip 17	Skip 11

Not Leaving Town.

It is rumored that W. H. Brockelbank, our live auctioneer is leaving town and moving to Toronto. This is not correct, for although his family have moved to the city, Mr. Brockelbank will remain a citizen of Walkerton and will continue to conduct sales. Anyone intending to have a sale will do well to consult him. Word left at the Telescope office or with Mr. Brockelbank will receive his prompt attention.

Walked from Toronto to Glamis.

A travel-stained, mud-be-spattered man appeared on the streets of Walkerton one night last week and on being questioned by pedistrians, claimed to have walked from Toronto and was on his way to Glamis, where, he stated he had secured employment with a farmer. He inquired as to whether there were any more trains that night and having only 35c in his pocket, not enough for a night's lodging, he struck over the hills on the last lap of his long and tedious journey. This incident, of a man walking 130 miles for work will give some idea of the acuteness of the unemployed problem in Toronto and other cities.

Special Supper at Tea Room.

The young ladies who have been conducting the Soldiers, Aid Tea Room will close the season with a special supper on Wednesday evening of next week April 7th from 5 to 8 o'clock. The price will be 25c for a supper of Boston baked beans, brown or white bread, tea or coffee, pie, doughnuts and cake. The young ladies of the tea room are desirous of making their earnings reach the $500 mark and everyone who is in a position to do so should eat supper at the tea room on Wednesday next. Contributions of cake, etc., for this occasion from the ladies of the town will be gratefully received.

I. O. O. F. Lodge Of Instruction.

The annual Odd Fellows Lodge of Instruction of this district will be held at the local lodge rooms on Good Friday afternoon commencing at one o'clock. It is expected that there will be about eighty visiting "three-linkers from the towns of Southampton, Port Elgin, and Paisley. The Southampton lodge will put on the initiatory degree, Port Elgin the first degree Walkerton the second and Paisley the third. Dinner and supper will be served in the Methodist church. The members of lodge No 81 extend a cordial invitation to all visiting brethern who reside in-town and yet are not members of the local court, to spend the afternoon in the lodge rooms.

Death of Brant Pioneer.

Another of the old pioneers of Brant one of the few remaining who cleared away the Queens bush and made for themselves a home in the forest, passed away on Saturday last in the person of Mr. Samuel Cristy who died after but a short illness from a general break-down of the system due to old age. He was about 86 years of age and is survived by four sons and three daughters viz: Richard of Bruce tp. Leonard and Wm of Saskatchewan and Thos. who lives on the homestead and Mrs. H Young, Mrs. H. Napper and Mrs. Robinson all of Brant township. The funeral took place from his late residence, lot 8 con 8 Brant on Tuesday afternoon to the Walkerton cemetery and was largely attended.

Live Stock Men Organize.

A meeting of the Pure Bred Live Stock Breeders from Brant, Carrick and the neighboring townships was held in the Dept. of Agr. on Saturday. A Breeders Club was then organized with the following officers:—President, Thos. Jasper, Carlsruhe; Vice-President, W. A. Tolton, Walkerton, Secretary, N. C. MacKay, Walkerton. Directors—Jas. Thompson, Mildmay; W. T. Hopper, Paisly; Geo. B. Armstrong Formosa; J. Millar, Belmore; Herb Pletsch, Carlsruhe; Ab. Rowand, Henry Hossfeldt, Jas. Moore, Jas. L. Tolton and Jacob Dippel, Walkerton. The object is to promote the Live stock industry and they purpose holding an annual sale. The first will be held early in the spring of 1916.

Death of Joseph Reichenbach

It is our duty this week to chronicle the death of one of Walkerton's oldest and most respected citizens in the person of Mr. Joseph Reichenbach, who passed away at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. John Wingefelder, on Tuesday night at the ripe old age of eighty two years. The deceased was born in Baden, Germany, and came to Canada early in life, and lived for a time in Berlin and Elora, coming to Walkerton in the spring of 1870 when the town was in its babyhood. He has resided in Walkerton ever since and until late years conducted the butcher business now under the firm name of Wingefelder & Kreuger. The funeral will take place this (Thursday) morning at ten o'clock to the R. C. church, thence to the Walkerton cemetery for interment.

BORN

SCHUETT—In Walkerton, on Tuesday, March 23, to Mr. and Mrs. R. Schuett, a son.

Wanted.

One or two girls wanted to set type or boys to learn the printing trade. Apply at the Telescope office or at the house.

Mr. Chas Addley has moved with his family to Miss McDonald's house in the east ward formerly occupied by Mr. Bandbauer. The house which Mr. Addly vacated has been purchased by Mr. A Fennell who will occupy one section, while Mrs. Griffen has rented the other half.

Crab Apples in March.

Mr. John Hodgson brought somewhat of a novelty into the Telescope Office on Friday last in the shape of a small basket of crab apples. Ordinarily this fruit keeps no longer than a month but those which Mr. Hodgson brought to this office were in excellent condition after the entire winter.

Walkerton Boy Promoted

Mr. Ed Schnurr, formerly of the local Bell Telephone staff who has for some time been local plant chief at Orangeville has been promoted by the Company to the position of local manager of the Orangeville exchange. Ed's many friends here will be pleased to learn of his advancement.

Confirmation Services.

Confirmation services were conducted at the Lutheran church on Sunday afternoon by the pastor Rev. Mosig. The following were those confirmed: Alma Fasel, Louisa Stade, Matilda Shaus, Elsie Bandhauer, Luella Ernest, John Hackle, Lincoln Schuler, George Hosfeld, Anson Misch, Chas Polfus, Henry Krueger, George Polfus, Edward Kraupp, Norman Misch.

Charged with Abduction.

William Pruder of Owen Sound was brought to the Walkerton jail on Wednesday to await his trial before the Judge on the charge of abducting his own son, who is a ward of the Bruce County Children's Aid Society. Pruder's wife being dead, the boy was handed over to the Children's Aid Society, who placed him in a home near Wiarton. The father heard of the boy's whereabouts and is said to have come and taken him away from the foster home and placed him in charge of another party.

Settled Out Of Court.

The case of the Hanover Portland Cement Company vs William Knechtel & Son also of Hanover which was being heard at the spring assizes last week was amicably settled after the suit had occupied the attention of the court for a full day. It appears that William Knechtel & Son, grist-millers contracted for a certain amount of water power from the Hanover Portland Cement Company years ago, and having renovated and installed additional machinery since then the Cement Company claimed of late years, they have been using a great deal more than their contract allowed, and it was for the payment of this additional power that the Company entered suit.

Red Cross Work In Walkerton.

In another column will be found a list of amounts donated by the people of Walkerton and immediate vicinity to this worthy cause. The present war is the most barbarous and at the same time the most merciful war ever waged. Although the casualities are much larger than in any previous clash of nations, the percentage of deaths from wounds is much smaller. Wounded soldiers recover more quickly and more rapidly than ever before. This is due to the wonderful stride made in surgery and to the increased efficiency of the Red Cross. Money is urgently required to continue this good work and a special appeal is made to those who have not already done so, to send in their donations now, when they can do the most good. K. M. Taylor, Sec—Treas.

Lacrosse Club Organized.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held in the council chamber of the town hall on Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing a lacrosse club for the coming season. The following officers were elected:—

Hon. President	R. E. Truax, M. P.
Hon. Vice Pres.	J. H. Runstedtler
President	F. O. Edt
1st Vice Pres.	Mayor Lippert
2nd "	Reese McNab
Vice President	A. McCartney
Secretary	H. Oberle
Treasurer	J. P. Murray
Managing Committee:	J. Heffernan, Roy Wesley, W. Schnurr and H. Runstedtler.
Mascot	Frank Scherrer

As the younger generation are taking a great interest in Canada's National game, it was decided to enter a junior team in the O. A. L. A. and if sufficient material is available a juvenile team will also be entered. It was also decided to form a town league with the age limit at twenty and under. H. Runstedtler was chosen as manager of the east ward team, E. Reichenbach for the centre and O. Schefter for the south and west. Lacrosse is this year being boomed throughout western Ontario, and from the enthusiasm displayed by the boys, it is apparent that Walkerton is one of the towns in which the game will be revived this season.

Walkerton not Represented.

The annual meeting of the Western Football Association will be held in Stratford tomorrow (Friday). Walkerton will not be represented at the meeting this year and it has not yet been decided whether the local club will enter a team in either the junior or intermediate series, as there is still some feeling against the W.F.A. for their alleged mismanagement of affairs in the past. But here's hoping that the boys will be good sports, get together and organize, or at least hold a meeting and look into the possibity of having at least an intermediate team in the 1915 competition. If the local club does not enter a team the Mildmay Stars will probably secure the services of several local players.

On the Bridge at Midnight.

It was not midnight, but was nearing that hour, on a night last week, when a youthful high school student stood on the west-end bridge awaiting his lady-love. In whiling away the time he was leaning far over the railing, peering into the dark swirling waters beneath, and all oblivious to all else about him, probably thinking to himself that it was on such a night that Longfellow received the inspiration, and penned that poem:

I stood on the bridge at midnight,
As the clocks were striking the hour,
And the moon rose o'er the city
Behind the dark church tower.

I saw her bright reflection,
In the water under me,
Like a golden goblet falling
And sinking into the sea.—etc.

He was rudely awakened from his reverie, however, by an excited tap on the shoulder and turning about, looked into the terror-striken face of a young fellow of chance acquaintance who had apparently became possessed with the absurd idea that he was contemplating suicide, and regardless of the student's remonstrances and assurances to the contrary he refused to leave him and coaxed, implored and pleaded with him to come away from the bridge. After what seemed to be an interminable period, the delicate situation was relieved by the appearance of the H. S. boy's lady-friend. Naturally the young man then realized his mistake and quickly disappeared. What his feelings were at this time, we have not cared, or rather dared to ask. It really was a terrible mistake on his part, for who ever heard of an H. S. student committing suicide. This life is too easy and sweet for them to give it up for another.

LETTER FROM ENGLAND

The following letter from which the personal paragraphs have been excluded, was received by Mr. Timothy Hanley of Chepstow from his son, William who is a member of the 23rd battalion of the second Canadian contingent, now in training in England.

Private Hanley, it will be remembered by many Walkertonian's, having learned the printing trade at the Telescope office. Failing health, forced him to forsake the art, however, and he has since lived in British Columbia, where he now owns a valuable homestead. He enlisted in the second contingent at Quebec and in giving his reasons for doing so, said:—"I joined the army. I will tell you why: Because the country needed me and many more, to sacrifice themselves for their country. One man has as much right as another to pick up his gun and defend his home land. If it was only for the sake of helping the poor Belgians get their rights back. I think I would be doing a great deal."

The following letter written since his arrival in England, was received by his father this week.

23rd. Battalion,
No. 23452, "C" Co. 11 Platoon,
Moore Barracks,
Shorncliffe,
Kent England.

Dear Father:—

The 23rd battalion is just after having an inspection from one of the high officers of England. We are getting along very well and feel quite contented with the surroundings.

When we arrived last Sunday it was snowing fairly heavily, but Tuesday the snow was all gone and the sun came out bright and the weather has since been magnificent. This town is about a mile away from the barracks, a town of about 30000 population, a summer resort, built along the side of the English Channel. It is a very pretty town only it is kept almost entirely in darkness. It is about twenty-one miles across to France so you can see that it will only take but a short time for us Canadians to go to that country, although it will be a few months yet before we are fit to go.

The trip from Halifax was a magnificent one. The ocean was calm and the accomodation on the boat was fairly good. The first land we saw after leaving Halifax was Queenston, Ireland. I don't wonder at the Irish being so found of their country for in looking from the boat, it was the prettiest land scenery I have ever seen. To my regret, staying two d in the Queenston Harbor and not

(Continued on page 8)

MARIETTA ABDICATES

"Old maids should be gently chloroformed into another and a better world."

Marietta sniffed and searched for her handkerchief, while Dan moved uneasily in his chair.

"I'm mighty sorry you are so opposed to it," he said, gently. "Still, I'm not your only brother. George has always said you would be welcome to live with him."

"I'll never live in the same house with George's wife," she flashed. "And, Dan, I can't for the life of me understand why you want to marry at all. We have a pleasant home together, you and I. What you see in that little Nora O'Hara passes my comprehension."

Dan sunk into silence. He couldn't put into everyday language his feelings for Nora. It dated far back to the time she was a little girl and lived next door. She used to say she would marry him when she grew up. Now she was battling bravely with adversity he wanted more than anything else in the world to ask her to redeem her promise. But what would become of Marietta was the problem. He cleared his throat. "I suppose it does look foolish and sentimental from your point of view, Marietta. I guess we'd better let the matter drop. I shan't do anything that will make you unhappy." Dan took up a magazine and became absorbed in its pages.

Marietta went on with her crocheting as she brooded over her grievances. Dan would renounce his plans for a wife if she disapproved, and it was right that he should. His salary wasn't enough to support both of them. Moreover, Dan had lived to be 40 and more pretty comfortably without a wife. Nobody ever thought of such a thing as she or Dan getting married. It was neither just nor right in Dan to ask her to go out in the world as a wage earner. Besides, there was nothing she could do. To be sure, she crocheted doilies, but that only brought in a little pin money. If she went to live with George, and his domineering wife it would mean giving up the home where she was mistress, her friends, her church, her clubs, and societies—all that constituted her life. Dan was mistaken if he thought it would make him happy to marry a girl like that outer Nora O'Hara.

They sat in comfortable silence until bedtime. Dan rose and put away his pipe, opened the front door for Tim, the little Scotch terrier, and deposited the milk bottles on the front steps. Marietta straightened the chairs in her prim fashion, laid the magazines on the table, locked the windows, laid away her work in a fancy bag, and turned off the reading lamp.

"Good-night, Dan," she called from the top of the stairs.

"Night," he answered, absently.

In the morning at the breakfast table Marietta chattered in her usual fashion. "I'm going for my walk this morning, Dan. I'm going to walk downtown and back. I think I've lost several pounds since I began to take regular exercise."

Dan smiled at his roly poly sister. Her superabundance of flesh was Marietta's cross. "I'll be late to dinner," he remarked. "Made an appointment with an oculist. My eyes bother me, guess I must need glasses."

Marrietta nodded. "All right," she said. "You aren't eating much breakfast, seems to me."

Dan made no answer. All day Marietta felt worried and uncomfortable. He had no better appetite for his dinner, although Marietta took pains to have things he liked. He threw himself wearily in his easy chair, put back his head and closed his eyes.

Marietta was alarmed. "Look here Dan," she said. "I met Mrs. Waite to-day. She had just been to see Nora. I'm going to ask you a question. Probably it will make you angry, but I think I have a right to know. Have you ever proposed to Nora?"

Startled at the blunt way of putting it, Dan opened his eyes and moved uneasily. As he perceived the troubled, affectionate expression of his sister's face, he repressed his irritable impulse to snap out an answer that would hurt her feelings, and replied in a kind tone: "Since you ask me, Marietta, I'll tell the truth. I have never asked Nora to marry me in so many words."

"Why haven't you, Dan?" she urged. "On account of my objections?"

"Not entirely, Marietta. Please don't distress yourself. I'm not going to marry her."

"Did you know she had been sick, and she's going abroad with her aunt?"

"Yes, I know it, Marietta, I've been trying to get up the courage to tell you something. That oculist says if I don't give up office work and live out doors I shall soon be blind."

"Oh, my poor boy!" Marietta dropped her crocheting, the tears started to her eyes. "What will you do?"

"I shall have to resign at once. We must look for a small place in the country and raise chickens and small fruits. For myself I shall rather like it, but it will be hard for you to give up the city and your friends."

Marietta sat as if stuned. "I wonder if Nora would like to live in the country?" she said at last.

"Oh, don't Marietta," Dan groaned. "Leave her out of this. It wouldn't be fair. She's too young. She'll find somebody else."

The more Marietta thought about it the more she regretted her opposition to Dan's marriage. In some way she must find out if Nora would not be willing to marry Dan. If she would, then Marietta herself would keep boarders. She knew she could make a success of it. She brooded over the problem of how to bring Nora and Dan together with no result. Mrs. Waite said Nora was going to New York on Sunday.

Sunday morning Marietta went to Sunday school, but came home without staying for church. As she opened the door she saw Nora standing in the hall. Dan, looking very stern, was evidently saying farewell.

"Oh, Miss Marietta," Nora exclaimed. "I just ran over to say [illegible]-by to you and Dan. I'm going [illegible] 3 o'clock this afternoon."

[illegible]rietta glanced from one to the [illegible]er. "Nora," she said, brusquely, [illegible] think Dan is letting you go [illegible] asking you to marry him because I've been so opposed to his getting married. I'm going to tell you plainly that you're mistaken."

"Stop that there, Marietta," Dan spoke sharply.

"I won't do it," Marietta answered. "I did make a fool of [illegible] at first, but I see it differently now. Dan's eyes have given out. He's got to resign and live in the country."

Nora turned white and then red as a rose. Dan fled into the adjoining room. "Then I'll never have him in the world!" Nora cried passionately. "The steamer can sail without me. I know the dearest little farm that can be bought for next to nothing, if Dan cares—"

But Marietta had gently pushed her through the opening between the curtains into Dan's outstretched arms. She turned away with a long drawn sigh of relief. Blinking away the tears she thought, "There seems to be some use for old maids after all."

◆◆◆

ISOLATED ISLANDS.

Lonely Tristan da Cunha Gets Outside News Once in Two Years.

Though scientific progress has made it possible to do a double journey between England and America in a fortnight, there remain many islands with which it takes years to communicate.

Off the Scottish coast are the groups of islands known as the Hebrides, Orkneys and Shetlands. Of these the most isolated island is St. Kilda, some three miles long and two miles broad. The inhabitants lead lives of great loneliness, for it takes a month to get to the next island, and the winter storms make any communication with St. Kilda impossible for months.

The group of eight Phoenix islands in the Pacific has a total population of only 158, while another little bit of the British Empire is Fanning Island. This is a landing place for the Pacific submarine cable, and usually there are about 100 people in the place.

The loneliest of all parts of British territory is the Island of Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic, which is also the smallest inhabited island in the empire. It is 1,500 miles from land, has a population of seventy-four Scottish Americans, and the inhabitants get news of the outer world usually once every two years.—London [illegible].

SHEPHERD PLAID FOR UP-TO-DATE GIRL

Whatever else the up-to-date girl provides for her Easter wardrobe she'll be sure to have a shepherd plaid suit for street wear. The smart little checks, no more than a pin head in size, have been revived by the fashion designers and black and white promises to reign supreme during the late spring.

The costume pictured is made with the new flare-skirted coat, and there is a decided flare at the bottom of the skirt. Buttons of jet and pearl, and collar and cuffs of black faille carry out the black and white scheme very effectively.

◆◆◆

ART TREASURES OF FRANCE.

Precautions That Guard Them at the Louvre, in Paris.

Those who visit the Louvre do not suspect the labor that is necessary in keeping the building in order. It must be protected at night against fire and burglars by watchmen, who, with revolvers at hip and dark lanterns in hand, make their rounds, accompanied by police dogs.

Upstairs and downstairs and along the corridors, says the Paris correspondent of the New York Sun, the distance they travel amounts to four miles, and in every room the watchmen must "punch" the clock that shows whether the rooms have been inspected and how often.

During the night the most valuable works of art are kept under lock and key. When the galleries are closed to the public a clever piece of mechanism is set in motion that carries the royal jewels, worth millions of dollars, into a special burglar proof chamber. The Venus de Milo, too, has her own special bedroom. An iron shutter rises from the ground in front of her and hides the marble features of the goddess.

In the early morning an army of custodians pours through the rooms, and the process of cleaning begins. A force of 150 men sets to work with brooms, dusters and floor polishers. The custodians exceed the strength of a company of soldiers on a war footing. There are one chief custodian, three underchiefs, twenty-seven superior and 148 inferior custodians. To these must be added the Louvre's artisans, for the great place has its own works department and almost its own factory.

OF SILVERCLOTH.

Metal effects are very much liked. A dance frock of silver cloth shows great simplicity in the making and beauty of material. The embroidery of silver in the decolletage is interwoven with gold thread. The [illegible] to the ankles on a very wide circular skirt.

Some Aids to Health

PNEUMONIA.

The germ which produces pneumonia is usually present at all times in the throats even of healthy persons. For this reason you must observe "keep well" rules that will keep these germs from developing to such an extent that an acute condition of the disease sets in. This usually is caused by one of two things: either when an additional supply of germs has been taken into the system or when the resisting power of the body's cells has fallen below the point at which the germs can be held in check.

It is by means of sputa (discharges from the lungs, throat, nose and mouth) that the germ that causes pneumonia is conveyed to another individual in its most dangerous form. For this reason a person suffering from the disease should be extremely careful about coughing or spitting. Unless great care is observed those who come in contact with the sick person are very liable to be stricken with the disease.

To be on the safe side the patient should cough into a moistened cloth and the cloth should be burned before it is allowed to dry.

This precaution should be taken not only during the patient's illness, but even after the case is recovered, for the germs that cause pneumonia may live for considerable time in the nose or mouth of the one who has had the disease.

More deaths are caused by pneumonia during the winter months than in any other season. For this reason one should be careful to keep the general condition of health up to normal. Otherwise the germs which are present in the throat will be able to overcome the weakened resistance of the body cells with the result that pneumonia sets in.

Don't let a cold develop, for nothing weakens the system as quickly.

If forced to be out in cold, sloppy weather don't neglect to change into warm dry clothing at the first opportunity. It may be a bother at the time, but it will often prevent a long siege of sickness.

Probably more ill-health can be attributed to carelessness than to any other single cause. It is carelessness that makes for the unsanitary factory, that permits the back yard to become filthy; that allows the sale of tainted food stuffs; that tends towards decay in household or office.

CORRECT DIET.

Eating the right things at the right time in moderation, according to the most reliable medical opinion will add 20 years to your life.

It isn't a secret that you will feel at 60 like a healthy man of 40. You will feel at 40 like a man of 25.

Most people overeat.

Many people eat unwisely. It is a question which is the most injurious practice. There are few records to show that the gourmet suffers unduly when his diet is consistent. But to make a "melting pot" of your stomach is contrary to all nature's laws and intentions.

Stuffed with more food than the system can conveniently and properly assimilate, the eliminating organs are unable to carry off poisons that generate rapidly in the stomach and intestinal tract.

It is an accepted theory that one should never eat unless there is desire.

Don't eat heavily when worried or unduly excited.

Eat only what nature tells you agrees with your digestive organs. All stomachs are not alike.

Proper mastication of food, in the mouth is the most important function of digestion.

It isn't how much you eat that does you the most good. It is what you eat and most important of all how well you assimilate it or in other words how capable your organs are of getting the proper nourishment out of it.

Eat slowly.

Those who live to old age depend upon the holding out of their digestive functions until the end. Most old people die of poor nutrition or disabled digestive organs.

Careful treatment of these organs through life will nearly always add on to the years of one's life.

If the slightest indications of sore throat are given prompt attention scarlet fever or diphtheria can be avoided.

RATS.

Rats are at the same time about the most expensive and the most unnecessary pest in civilization.

There's hardly any kind of creature we couldn't be better off without.

Rats consume yearly millions upon millions of dollars of grain and merchandise; many buildings are destroyed by fire on account of them; the number of rats in any community is limited only by the food supply and the nesting opportunities.

Dreadful diseases are due to rats. The bubonic plague is first and foremost a rat disease. Rats are subject to leprosy and cancer; and they harbor many parasites which they may convey to humankind.

Especially there is trichinosis—a parasitic disease very common among rats.

The rats become infected by eating scraps of pork, which they find around slaughter houses, butcher shops and in swill. Then swine become infected by eating rats.

And then human beings become infected by eating pork or sausage that has not been thoroughly cooked.

We don't have to endure rats.

We can get rid of them.

All we have to do is to separate them from their provender—their food supply.

Do you snore in your sleep? If you don't take the "midnight concert" as a joke—snoring is proof that there's something wrong with the nasal passageway. There may be some boney substance obstructing the air-passage, or you may have adenoids or diseased tonsils.

Try sleeping on your back so that the mouth will not drop open. If the snoring persists the trouble in the nasal airway should be corrected.

OUTDOOR EXERCISE.

During the cold, damp days of the late winter people are too apt to keep within doors. Since outdoor exercise is most essential to health, we should ignore the weather and get out of doors at least a part of each day.

The need of exercise in the fresh air is best indicated by contagious disease records, which invariably show an increase during the winter months.

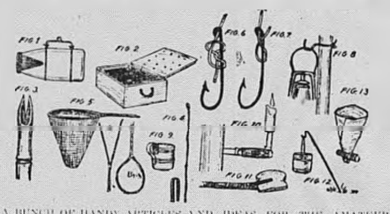
Even a walk in a cold rain will do one less harm than stay "cooped up" indoors and breathing stale air. The air in most homes is constantly contaminated. This contamination may be slight, but combined with low vitality is very likely to bring on serious sickness.

When the winter turns towards spring we do not need as much heat in our homes. We let the furnace run low or go out entirely, and then the chill that creeps into the house keeps us from opening windows and doors as much as we should. Thus the air in a great many homes becomes foul. That is no reason for urging outdoor exercise at this season.

Another reason is that after a siege of winter our physical stamina is at a low ebb. It is badly in need of recuperation, and this recuperation can best be obtained by getting out in the open. It doesn't need to be sunshiny or warm for even the cold, damp day outside affords a better physical return than a warm, dry house, the air in which is dead.

Many people, ignorant of the fact that the skin contains grease as well as sweat glands, foolishly use preparations to keep the skin dry. Secretions from the grease glands are of great benefit to the skin and should be protected, not hindered.

GET READY FOR FIRST NIBBLE, BOYS; TRY THESE NEW FISHING HUNCHES



A BUNCH OF HANDY ARTICLES AND IDEAS FOR THE AMATEUR IZAAK WALTON. FULL DESCRIPTION IN ACCOMPANYING TEXT.

(By John L. Dougheny. Printed by Special Arrangement with the American Boy Magazine.)

How are you fixed for fishing, fellows?

The season for the good old sport is approaching fast. Why not organize a fishing club and enjoy a little real adventure with hook and line, this spring?

Here are a dozen suggestions of handy things to have about your fishing camp. Some will be especially useful to you if you want to rough it for the night on the banks of a stream or lake; others you'll need if you're going to spend only an hour with hook and line some morning or evening.

The first (Fig. 1) shows a minnow trap made from a fruit jar and a piece of fly screen. Remove the jar cover and fit the screen funnel as shown. Cut the flat part of the jar away and use the threaded part to hold the lap over of the funnel in place.

The wire bail is useful to tie the jar to the dock and makes it easier to handle. Put some bread in the jar and sink it about a foot of water in an hour or so you will have all the minnows you can use all day.

Fig. 2 pictures a bait box in which you can keep enough angleworms to last two weeks. A wood box filled with moist but not sticky wet clay, with a lid for a top and a perforated cover [illegible] will serve your purpose well. The box is buried its own depth under the porch or in any shady place. Once in three days throw coffee pot rinsings to the angles and they will repay you by keeping fat and sleek. It is absolutely necessary to have clean, fresh well-preserved bait for still fishing, and I know by experience that this box has no equal in helping you to accomplish this purpose.

Fig. 3 shows the end of the cane pole which forms the handle of the landing net shown in Fig. The smaller sketches "A" and "B" show how the frame is made. Fig. 9 is a handy tin cup made from a vegetable can. The handle is a strip of tin lashed on with wire or fishline.

The small stick, Fig. 4, is for catching clams. The bud or knob on end is inserted in the opening of the clam shell which will close and permit the clam to be raised out of the water. Figs. 6 and 7 show how to make a safety hook knot. The next, Fig 8, is a wire clip fastened to the tent pole or mast of a boat for hanging the lantern on.

Fig. 10 is a novel idea for a candle holder if you spend a night in your camp.

Fig. 11 shows a split stick used for toasting bread or broiling meat at an open fire. Fig. 12 is a bent iron rod used for bailing water out of the lake or as a pot hanger over the open fire. The last is a drinking cup made of a piece of birch bark twisted cone shape the small end being closed by means of a split stick.

◆◆◆

A MARRIAGE MAKER.

Lucrative Calling Pursued in Jewish Quarter of London, England

There are scores of Jews who live comfortably in old London simply by contracting marriages between their co-religionists. These marriage-makers are known as "Shadchans." The custom which prevails among the Ghetto Jews of getting married through the agency of a marriage broker is imported from the continent, where Jews consider it immodest for young men to do their own courting without intervention of a "Shadchan."

The Jews who dwell east of Aldgate, have great respect for the "Shadchan," for they never know when they might have to utilize his services. The remuneration of the "Shadchan" usually consists of a fee from the bride and bridegroom, according to their means, and often he also claims a percentage of the dowry as his perquisite.

The business of the "Shadchan" is, apparently, in a very flourishing condition. One of the fraternity informed a writer that a Jewish marriage broker would consider it a bad year indeed, if he did not make $2,000. Only recently a "Shadchan" well known in the East End of London died, leaving more than $35,000 accumulated by fees for bringing couples together.

A "Shadchan" sometimes employs curious means of persuasion. He threatens the prospective bridegroom, whom he has introduced to one of his clients, with a breach of promise action should he refuse to marry her. Fortunately, the majority of the matches turn out well, and the most prominent individual under the "Chuppah" (wedding canopy) is the "Shadchan," who is held in high esteem by all assembled on he happy occasion.

The occupation of the "Shadchan" has been a highly respected one for over 1,000 years, and formerly, even great Rabbis did not think it beneath their dignity to engage in it as a means of subsistence.

◆◆◆

Do the Right Thing.

That which can be done with perfect convenience and without loss is not always the thing that most needs to be done, or which we are most imperatively required to do.—John Ruskin.

◆◆◆

The average man is more apt to have bouquets thrown at him after he is dead than when he is alive.

Nell—Would you say that Mr. Guzzler was well bred? Belle—Well, he generally has a little bun.

The House on the Hill

It lay a derelict house far up on the hills. For years it has been untenanted. At sunset fancy forms danced on the dust-begrimed panes of the windows.

Stanmuir got out at Lavering station and looked around. Little had changed in the ten years he had been away.

The whole scene came back. The crowded courthouse, the solicitor explaining how Abel Grant, the farmer had been murdered by a man who had come to steal his money. The decision the magistrates came to was that he, Charles Stanmuir, was the man who had been guilty of that awful crime. Three faces stood out. His father, grim and relentless, his mother weak and tearful, and another, calm and serene, the face of a woman who loved, and believed in him whom she loved. He was a fool to have taken his freedom, since it confirmed a guilt which was never his. He had often wondered who had instigated that rescue. At first he had thought it was Madge, the woman he loved, and who had promised to stand by him she would wait, forever if need be, and asking him what mad folly of a moment had prompted him to run away, instead of standing his trial and proving his innocence like a man.

A voice aroused him. Before him stood Simmons, the stationmaster, stouter, but little older.

"No," answer Stanmuir, "I shall walk. You can send my bag to the George hotel."

He had not gone far along the road when he realized it would have been wiser had he waited for the 'bus. Dark clouds, racing low, warned him. A sudden vivid flash, a whip-like crack, told him how near the storm was. Ahead, Saint Saire, sheltering the house he had known and the man whose crime he had been accounted guilty. He quickened his steps.

It was not until he was near the house upon the hill that the rain commenced to fall. At first large, heavy spots, then suddenly a drenching deluge.

In a few moments he was soaked, the water dripping off his hat, down his collar.

Level with him stood the house. Stanmuir smiled grimly as he thought of the reputation it bore. Ten years wandering, fighting the forces of nature, the cruel cunning of man had bereft him of fear. He walked towards it.

He pushed his way through the wet undergrowth which obliterated the path. The door had stood open for years. He entered a room, which had once been the dining-room, and looked around. It was his first visit to the house, and curiosity gave place to reverence.

A sense of peace stole over Stanmuir, the first peace he had known for ten years. It was as if the house held out a friendly hand to him.

He crossed to the window and looked out. The rain was still beating down so fiercely that the grass in the garden was beneath its force.

He stood gazing at the ruins when there came the sound of footsteps on the floor beneath. Another traveler had come to seek shelter from the rain.

Stanmuir walked downstairs. His fellow traveler had gone into the dining-rom. As Stanmuir entered, a look of incredulity spread over his features, then a smile of triumph.

He wondered if Scriven would remember.

The traveler looked at him keenly. "Good afternoon," he said, "a terrible day."

"Terrible," assented Stanmuir.

"I was crossing the hills to Lavering when I got caught. Otherwise, I should not have come here." He laughed nervously and glanced around as he spoke. The action and that which prompted it pleased Stanmuir, since it was fear.

"I have heard it bears a bad reputation," he said. "Folks say it is haunted, eh?"

"Old folk's tales," assented the traveler. He felt more brave in the presence of another. "Are you a stranger here?"

"Comparatively," answered Stanmuir. "I have been here before."

The traveler nodded. "We are in for a long spell." He nodded towards the window, against which the rain splashed.

"It wil spoil the 'crops,'" said Stanmuir.

The traveler nodded gloomily.

For an hour the rain poured down incessantly. It was still light as the two men faced one another across the table. They had seated themselves upon two of the least rickety chairs.

The other man was regarding Stanmuir closely. He was trying to place his. His face seemed dimly familiar. "You know Saint Saire well?" he said.

"I used to know it very well," replied Stanmuir. He paused. For an hour he had played with the other man, glorying in the idea that he had been at his mercy. They two were along in the house. "Do you remember the murder of Abel Grant ten years ago?"

The other man started and looked at him more closely. "Aye," he replied.

"I left Saint Saire about that time. That was a strange murder. They never caught the right man?"

"No, he was helped from gaol. Otherwise he would have been hanged."

"Would he? I often wonder who murdered poor old Grant. They caught the wrong man when they laid Stanmuir by the heels. That was the name, wasn't it?"

"Aye, that was the name. You remember it well?"

Stanmuir strove to be calm as he asked the next question. "He left a girl behind what became of her?"

"She waited. Some women are fools: they will believe in one man, and have nothing to do with others." The traveler started as a flash of lightning lit up the room. He paused for the crash.

Ah! there are some good women in the world. Then she's still single? I must tell Stanmuir."

"Tell Stanmuir—you know him?" The traveler started. His face changed color.

"Yes," answered Stanmuir. "I met him abroad. He's coming home soon."

The other man went livid. "Coming home," he said, in a louder voice. "He'll hang if he does. They'll have him."

Stanmuir's hand closed on the other man's. "Scriven," he said, "who murdered Abel Grant?"

"You know my name? Who are you?" The other man had risen. His face was not pleasant to look upon. Fear was writ large upon it.

"I am Stanmuir. Now, tell me who killed Abel Grant?"

"You did."

Stanmuir laughed. "You lie, and you know you lie. You are lying as you lied before the magistrate when you swore my life away. We are alone in this house, and before God you shall speak the truth now, if I have to wring it from you with my hands at your throat."

The two men were facing each other. They both had risen to their feet now. "Who killed Abel Grant?"

"How should I know? If I had known, I should hav spoken ten years ago."

"Don't lie," said Stanmuir, sternly. "You are nearer your end than you think. My hands have only to close on your flesh, so."

Scriven struggled and screamed. He looked into the other's face and saw no mercy there. He saw also that the other knew the truth. He screamed again as a flash lit up the room and the thunder echoed and re-echoed.

He heard the other's voice, sounding far away. "Who murdered Abel Grant?"

"I did," he screamed, "I did."

The grip on his throat relaxed. Stanmuir was putting paper and a fountain pen on the table before him. "Write down a confession," he said.

Scriven hesitated. His throat still hurt, and already he could feel the rope around it. He glanced at his tormentor. There was no mercy on his face. "Stanmuir," he said, "I'll give you money, any money you like. I'm a rich man."

"Do you think that would give me back the ten years of my life? Besides, I'm a rich man myself now. Write."

Still Scriven hesitated. The pen shook in his fingers. A sudden flash of lightning illuminated the faces of the two men, and it showed upon that of his adversary only the hard vengeance of a man who has waited ten years. "What shall I write?"

"Take it down," said Stanmuir. "I, George Scriven, being of sound and also contrite mind, confess that I murdered Abel Grant on September 18, 19[illegible] and allowed Charles Stanmuir to stand trial for my crime. Have you got it all down?"

"Yes," said Scriven. "Man alive, I'll swing for this."

"Now write your name and to-day's date."

Scriven's face was ashen white. His hand shook as he affixed his signature.

He flung down the pen, and hid his face on his hands.

Stanmuir picked up the paper. "That will do nicely," he said. He walked towards the door. On the threshhold he paused. Scriven still sat motionless. He came back and touched his slightly on the shoulder. He shook him gently at first, then with more force.

Scriven slid from the chair on to the floor. One glance at his face was sufficient. He had gone before his Maker for judgment [illegible].

DON'T GIVE
CONSUMPTION A CHANCE
To Get a Foothold on Your System.

Check the First Sign of a Cold By Using
DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

A cold, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise you that on the first sign of a cold or cough you get rid of it immediately. For this purpose we know of nothing better than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and those who have used it have nothing but words of praise for its efficacy.

Mrs. H. N. Gill, Truro, N.S., writes: "Last January, 1913, I developed an awful cold, and it hung on to me for so long I was afraid it would turn into consumption. I would go to bed nights, and could not get any sleep at all for the choking feeling in my throat and lungs, and sometimes I would cough till I would turn black in the face. A friend came to see me, and told me of your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got a bottle of it, and after I had taken it I could see a great change for the better, so I got another, and when I had taken the two bottles my cough was all gone, and I have never had an attack of it since, and that is now a year ago."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; and price, 25c and 50c.

It is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

◆◆◆

COLORED MOTION PICTURES.

They Are Made by Using Screens of Red and Green Glass.

There are colored motion pictures that are made so by hand, each little picture being painted separately. In making pictures "in natural colors" the film is the same as that of the ordinary motion picture, but in making it the speed is twice as fast, thirty-two pictures to the second.

"Colored" pictures are photographed through tints or screens of colored glass. Two primary colors are used, red and green, with a systematic touch of blue. When the machine that makes the photograph is started a device causes the red screen to pass before the lens as the first photograph is taken, and the green screen passes the same way as the following picture is made. They continue to do so alternately as the film continues to be exposed.

The negative is developed and a positive printed, and when run through the projecting machine the color screens are used in the same way as when the negative was made, red and green pictures being flashed on the screen alternately. Those colors that are in sympathy with the red are brought out and those that are in sympathy with the green are shown in the same way, and through the persistence of vision we do not notice the changes. Instead they blend harmoniously to our delight.—Charles M. Seay in American Boy.

◆◆◆

A Smart Bird.

In the house of the Consul in Bangkok is a bird that keeps up an incessant chatter that might almost be called conversation, so clever is it. The voice of this bird is much like a human voice, far more so than the parrot's. The bird is called the mineur or minor. It learns much more readily than the parrot and is as clever at imitating as the American mocking bird. It whistles in exact imitation of its master and sings whole songs through without making a mistake.

The master of this songster always summons his servant to him by calling "Boy." The mineur learned to do the same thing, with the result that the servant was sent on a fool's errand many times. None could tell whether the master called or the mineur. This greatly annoyed the servant, whose owner told him that he need not come unless he heard the call, "Boy, boy," repeated twice. In three days' time the mineur had learned his trick and was doing the same thing. Then it was arranged that the master should strike on the table or clap his hands, as they do in Turkey or Siam. This was too much for the mineur, who found that his fun was over.

◆◆◆

He Liked the Name.

"I suppose you would never be willing to live anywhere except in your beloved Boston?"

"Well, there is a town in Wisconsin which has a name that attracts me."

"What town is that?"

"Superior."—Pittsburgh Post.

◆◆◆

Vincennes, Ind., has leased from a private corporation the plant used in garbage reduction, paying $1,500 a year.

NERVES WERE BAD
Hands Would Tremble So She Could Not Hold Paper to Read.

When the nerves become shaky the whole system seems to become unstrung and a general feeling of collapse occurs, as the heart works in sympathy with the nerves.

Mrs. Wm. Weaver, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I doctored for a year, for my heart and nerves, with three different doctors, but they did not seem to know what was the matter with me. My nerves got so bad at last that I could not hold a paper in my hands to read, the way they trembled. I gave up doctoring thinking I could not get better. A lady living a few doors from me advised me to try a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so to please her I did, and I am thankful to-day for doing so, for I am strong, and doing my own work without help."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RHEUMATISM, A SNEAKING DISEASE HAS AT LAST MET ITS CONQUEROR

Throbbing Muscles and Swollen Joints Made Well.

RUB ON NERVILINE

Old age knows no foe more subtle, more unrelenting than rheumatism.

At first only a grumbling pain is felt. But, alas, it settles in the joints and muscles, and finally tortures its victims.

To-day the disease may be in the muscles of the back, thigh, shoulder or neck—to-morrow in the joints of the hand, toes, arms or legs it may work with redoubled fury.

Whether the pain is constant or occasional, makes no difference to "Nerviline."

Because other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged. Nerviline has cured the worst of cases. It has brought health to those in the deepest despair, has ended years of awful suffering for those who never hoped to be well again.

There is a marvellous healing power in Nerviline, which it derives from the extracts of juices of certain rare herbs and roots. It allays almost magically the awful pain that only rheumatics can describe.

Congestion is drawn out of the muscles, stiffened joints are eased and limbered up, the old time feeling of depression is cast off, and once again Nerviline brings the sufferer to buoyant, vigorous lasting good health.

Every home needs good old Nerviline, needs it for earache, toothache, headache, neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, stiff neck, chest colds and sore throat. Wherever there is pain, congestion or inflammation, Nerviline will cure it.

Large family size bottle, 50c; trial size, 25c, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FARM AND GARDEN

THE SEED LAW.

With the opening of the 1915 seed trade, seedsmen, farmers and gardeners may wish to review the conditions under which sales may be made. The Seed Control Act provides that timothy, alsike, red clover and alfalfa seed must not be put on sale for the purpose of seeding without being plainly marked with the grade, namely: Extra No. 1, No. 1, No. 2, No. 3. Farmers may sell seed below No. 3 in quality only to dealers to be cleaned and brought up to grade. All other grass, clover and forage plant seeds and those of cereals and flax must be marked in a plain and indelible manner with the common name or names of any noxious weed seeds present.

Seed of cereals, flax, grasses, clovers, forage plants, field roots and garden vegetables must have a germination of two thirds of the percentage standard of vitality for good seed of the kind or be marked with the percentage that are capable of germinating. "Papered seeds" must be marked with the year in which the packet was filled.

Representative samples of seeds for purity and germination tests may be sent to the Seed Branch, Ottawa. Two ounces of grass seed, white or alsike clover; four ounces of red clover, alfalfa or seed of like size and one pound of cereals are desired. Samples under eight ozs. may be sent without postage and are tested free of charge up to twenty-five in number for each person or firm.

WEED SEEDS IN SOIL.

The presence of weed seeds in soils under different systems of culture and cropping should be suggestive to farmers. An investigation being conducted by the Seed Branch, Ottawa, shows a sod field which had been in hay or pasture for six years to contain 19,183 weed seeds in a surface square yard one inch deep, 8,912 in the same volume of soil at a depth from two to three inches, and 1,709 at a depth of five to six inches. Another field which had been under a good system of cultivation and rotation contained 4,981 weed seeds in the surface soil, and 2,620 in each of the other depths. The concentration of seeds in the surface layer of the sod field may be explained by weeds being allowed to reproduce themselves from year to year. Information as to the percentage vitality of weed seeds in the case of the sod field are vital. This investigation indicates the importance of short rotations, good cultivation and prevention of weeds going to seed. Other important methods of weed control are summer ploughing of sod lands, followed by frequent autumn cultivation to destroy growing weeds, thorough cultivation during the growing season of hoed crops and after harvest cultivation of cereal crops which have not been seeded down.

ECONOMICAL MACHINES.

Has it impressed itself on your mind, as a practical man, selling farm crops in the form of milk through the medium of cows' manufacturing apparatus, that possibly some of this animated machinery needs overhauling, and closely examining? A new machine, running more economically, may save a manufacturer its cost several times over in a very short while, so if your cows were regarded in this light, some might be found to be very economical producers, and possibly the less said about the capacity of others the better.

Some cow-testing figures given to the Dairy Division, Ottawa, by dairy farmers prove that some herds of cows produce milk at a feed cost of $1.15 per 100 pounds, while close by are other herds whose average feed cost of production is only eighty cents per hundred pounds of milk. Again, between two cows in the same herd the cost of feed per pound of butter-fat is frequently found to vary as much as from twenty-three to forty-nine cents.

What is of importance to the average dairyman is this fact, that cow testing helps to put each cow in the herd on a good paying basis very quickly. A simple plan of weighing and testing each individual cow's milk soon discovers if any unit machines in the milk-making factory are not in good economical running order. Then plans are laid for keeping the type of cow that makes twenty or thirty dollars or more clear profit above the cost of feed. Does each one of your cows do that? It will pay you to find out.

C.E.W.

NOTES.

The swine industry is profitable and affords a market for waste products and materials of little or no value in themselves. Swine fit perfectly into a diversified farm plan.

The silo is the best insurance a farmer can take out.

Lime does not need to be plowed under. It goes down naturally. It is better to broadcast it on the surface of plowed land and thoroughly harrow it in.

Acid phosphate has a tendency to cause the land to become sour with continued use, and especially on lands where lime is already beginning to be needed.

The determining factor in the yield of a good variety of corn is not the size of the ear, but rather the strength of the whole plant and the percentage of stand secured.

The first hundred pounds put on a pig costs less than the second, and the second less than the third, and every additional hundred costs more than the preceding.

There is, no doubt, a best time to apply lime. That time, says A. M. Bachtell, of the Ohio Agricultural College, is probably during the preparation of the seed bed for corn. The thorough cultivation of this corn mixes the lime with the upper soil. If the time clover is sown on that soil the lime has changed it from a sour to a sweet condition. This time, however, admits of wide variation. Usually a busy spring compels the farmer to bend all his energies in getting ready for a seasonable planting. Liming is neglected, but it can be performed at time of preparation of seed bed for wheat. The intelligent farmer will use his judgment in choosing a time which is convenient and good, if not the best. Lime should not be applied to the surface, and immediately plowed under, as this tends to place it too far from the surface, where it is needed. Neither should the caustic forms (hydrated and quicklime) be applied in connection with manure or fertilizers. It is better to plow the manure under and put the lime on top of the soil. In case the manure is desired for top-dressing, the lime should be worked into the soil at least two weeks prior to application of the manure. Likewise it is well to apply the lime some time previous to commercial fertilizers.

The cow gives us on an average five times its weight in milk, while the goat has demonstrated that she can give us ten to fifteen times her weight. This, in connection with the cheaper grades of feeding stuffs she is anxious and ready to consume, makes her of excellent value as a milk producer.

A western peach grower says that since he began using the lime and sulphur spray and covering the trunks clear down to the ground he has had no trouble with borers.

It doesn't make any difference whether your cows are scrubs or purebreds, fatten and sell every animal for beef that isn't earning a profit on the feed and care given her.

It has been demonstrated by the Ohio Experiment Station that 27 cents' worth of acid phosphate added to the stable manure will return $1.50 worth of crops. This is well worth testing on the farm.

◆

BACON AND HAMS

In 1912, Great Britain imported 5,410,387 hundredweight of bacon. Canada supplied 272,715 hundredweight. Russia, Sweden, Denmark and the Netherlands furnished 3,129,570, and the United States 2,018,774 hundredweight.

In 1912, Britain imported 957,695 hundredweight of hams, of which Canada supplied 100,532 hundredweight and the United States 851,635. In 1910 Canada only supplied 42,136 hundredweight.

There is some improvement in hams but a sad falling off in bacon. Britain took [illegible],704 hundredweight of the latter commodity from this country in 1911, but as previously stated, only 272,715 hundredweight in 1912, a decrease of 436,959 hundredweight in two years.

◆

France will build homes for people in devastated areas after the war is over.

For You—a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor? It's a fact. Do you know that proper, inexpensive tile drainage [illegible]—lengthens the season—prevents surface washing—makes your land lighter to work—prevents drought and increases the quantity and improves the quality of your crops?

Why not have us send you, today, free of charge, a very interesting booklet on this subject? Much to learn—nothing to pay. Don't neglect anything that will help you grow better, bigger crops. Proper drainage means as much as two dollars in your bank account for every one that goes there now, and the Government lends you money for the Tile if desired.

Write us today. Mention this paper. Your book is waiting.

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited
SWANSEA, ONTARIO

The HouseKeeper

Boil a new baking dish before using it, starting it in cold water and ending it in the same way and it will be much less likely to crack.

Grate an apple into your horseradish and you will give it a fine flavor.

Make a neat apron of table oilcloth and an old raincoat for washing dishes.

To facilitate the work of tieing comforts, or of embroidering, have several needles threaded at the same time and laid within a hand's reach.

If you do not have ice and wish to keep fresh meat over a day, place on an earthen dish and cover it with cloth wrung out of vinegar, covering with a pan to keep from drying out. Set in a cool place. This will not injure meat.

An attractive way of arranging fruit such as red apples is to fill a big brown basket and use it for a centrepiece for your dining table. Grapes arranged in a graceful long-handled basket and allowed to spill over the edges, piled high in the centre, make another attractive centrepiece.

To remove obstinate stains from hardwood floors, rub them with a cloth just moistened with turpentine.

Borax water for washing the hands may be made by simply dissolving the borax in warm water in a bottle, as much as the water will take up. A spoonful of the solution in a pint of water is about the right proportion for washing the hands. It is best used just before retiring, and will tend to keep the hands soft and smooth.

When basting velvet, always use sewing silk, then stitches will not show when bastings are removed.

For sore throat, beat the white of an egg stiff, with all the sugar it will hold, and the juice of one lemon.

After washing a wooden bowl, dry it at a distance from the stove, so that it may not warp or crack.

To cleanse enameled or porcelain bath-tubs use kerosene, which is better for the surface of the enamel than gritty powders or sand soap.

To remove paint from clothing, saturate the spots with equal parts of ammonia and turpentine and then wash out in soapsuds.

NERVOUS DISEASES IN THE SPRING

Cured by Toning the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves.

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more trouble than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often overheated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nerve trouble are at their worst, and that then, more than any other time, a blood-making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

◆

Would You Lose Flesh?

Then eat— [illegible]

[illegible]

Russia's 1911 imports were valued at [illegible]

RHUBARB.

Some Good Ways to Cook This Spring Dish.

Besides the usual stews and sauces there are many simple ways of serving rhubarb. Baked rhubarb is good and it's not hard to prepare.

This is the recipe: Cut the stalks in pieces 2 inches in length and pour boiling water over and allow to stand three minutes. Drain and measure; to each cup of rhubarb add 2-3 cup of sugar, mix sugar and fruit and turn into buttered baking pan and bake in slow oven half an hour.

Brown Betty—Wash enough rhubarb to make 3 cups when cut in small pieces, melt with 1 1-3 cupfuls of sugar; melt 2 tablespoonfuls of butter and add to it 1 1-2 cupfuls of bread crumbs, put layer of buttered crumbs on bottom of shallow pudding pan, then layer of rhubarb, then crumbs and alternate till all is used. Have top layer of crumbs. Cover and bake in slow oven over 30 minutes; remove cover and brown crumbs. Serve warm with cream and sugar.

Rhubarb and Ginger—Wash and cut rhubarb in 2-inch pieces. To each cup of fruit add 1-2 cup of sugar; boil 5 minutes and add 1 tablespoonful of candied ginger, boil 3 minutes longer. This is very nice used as a filling for any cake or pudding.

Rhubarb Meringue—Stew 1 pint of rhubarb until tender, add 1-2 cup of sugar and beat thoroughly. While very hot remove from fire and add 1 tablespoon of butter and a dash of vanilla.

Beat the yolks of 3 eggs very light and add slowly to the cooked rhubarb; whip the whites of the eggs to stiff dry froth, and fold into the first mixture. Turn into buttered pudding dish and set in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven 15 minutes. Serve with cream.

Rhubarb Fritters—Cut the rhubarb into 2-inch pieces. Make syrup of 1 cup of water and 1-2 cup of sugar, drop rhubarb into syrup and cook 8 minutes. Drain from syrup and cool. Make a fritter batter of 3 eggs beaten very light, a pinch of salt, one cup of milk and 1 cup of flour measured after sifting. Beat the batter for 3 minutes and add 1 cupful of the drained rhubarb.

Drop by small spoonfuls into deep hot grease, and fry to light brown. The syrup from the rhubarb may be thickened with corn starch and served over the fritters.

Rhubarb Pie—Cut rhubarb in very small pieces. Two cups of the fruit; 1 of sugar; 1 tablespoonful of corn starch, a pinch of salt; mix all together and turn into pie crust; dot top with bits of butter and put on top crust and bake in hot oven 25 minutes.

"Different" Way for Cabbage.

Cabbage dressed with rice and sausage meat is a substantial dish, and a very palatable one. Select a sound head of cabbage and pour over it boiling water, let stand fifteen minutes, drain, scald again and let stand thirty minutes. Drain and shake until dry. Make the stuffing as follows: Wash two heaping tablespoonfuls of rice in cold water, then mix it with half pound of sausage meat, add a tablespoonful of onion and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley; mix all well together.

Open the cabbage carefully to the very centre; put in half teaspoonful of the mixture, fold over two or three of the leaves; now cover these with a layer of the mixture, fold over this the next layer of leaves, and so on until each layer is stuffed. Press all firmly together, tie in a piece of cheesecloth, put it into a kettle of salted boiling water, and boil two hours.

When done, carefully remove the cloth, stand the cabbage in a deep round dish, pour over it cream sauce, and serve very hot.

The United States government built more than two thousand miles of trail and three thousand miles of telephone line on the national forests in 1914.

Barns at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.
Painted with
MARTIN-SENOUR PAINT

FARMERS

You'll Find Just What You Want For Spring Painting, In

MARTIN-SENOUR PAINTS AND VARNISHES

"MADE IN CANADA"

Your needs have been foreseen. Dealers in your neighborhood have been supplied with the Martin-Senour line. And you have only to name your Painting Wants, to have them promptly filled.

HOUSE PAINT—Why should you waste money on impure paint, or bother with mixing lead and oil, when you can get Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint for all outside and inside painting? Always the same in quality, color, fineness and purity.

BARN PAINT—Martin-Senour "RED SCHOOL HOUSE" is the paint for the barn. It spreads easily—covers more surface—and holds its fresh, bright color against wear and weather.

FLOOR PAINT—There's only one to be considered—the old reliable SENOUR'S Floor Paint—the kind that wears, and wears, and wears.

WAGON PAINT—Keep the machines, wagons and tools fresh and bright—and protect them against rust and weather—by giving them a coat or two of Martin-Senour "Wagon and Implement" Paint.

Write us today for "Farmer's Color Set" and name of our nearest dealer-agent.

ADDRESS ALL ENQUIRIES TO
The MARTIN-SENOUR Co.
LIMITED
655 Drolet Street, Montreal.

MARTIN-SENOUR 100% PURE PAINT & VARNISHES

74

A HIDDEN POCKET.

The Latest Wrinkle in Trousers for Thrifty Married Men.

A man who bought a new suit of clothes the other day at one of the establishments that sells a large quantity of ready-made clothing discovered that the trousers of the suit contained an extra pocket, which aroused his curiosity. It was small, about the size of a watch pocket, and opened on the inside of the right hand trousers pocket, making it invisible as far as outward appearance went. At the top of the little pocket there was still material which kept it closed, so that on putting one's hand in the large pocket the little one would not be found unless its presence was known.

"Something new, isn't it?" the customer asked the salesman.

"Yes; that's come into style since the war created a shortage of loose change," was the reply. "A person making a hurried search through the pockets for pin money has no luck at all when the owner of the suit uses this pocket—unless she hears something jingle. Best plan is to wrap your change up in a dollar bill."

The customer paid for the suit and left orders for the clothes to be delivered to him at a bachelor apartment house uptown.—New York Times.

◆

More Than He Needed.

"At the end of five and a half hours, if you are still in town," said the judge, "you will be arrested on the same charge."

"You may have five full hours of that time back," said the lawbreaker. "I can get along with the thirty minutes."—Philadelphia Ledger.

VALUE OF PUBLICITY.

Publicity is the strength of every movement. It is characteristic of the Patriotism and Production Campaign that the best is being done to shine in the glare of the big white light. All known means are being utilized to reach the people that they may be encouraged, not so much to extend as to improve production. It is unavoidable that prices should vary. This is not entirely owing to speculation, but also due considerably to conditions of the period. Of this one great fact not only agriculturalists, but all classes may be assured, that with a large section of Europe devastated, and even shipping channels closed, the great output of Russia effectually blocked, and production minimized by reason of the demands of war upon man and beast, there must be for things Canadian an upward and a permanently upward trend. Latterly, in some times there has been a rush to market, consequent upon money tightness, which, with the curtailment of facilities for shipment across the seas, has led to a drop in price. But that can only be temporary. Demand will, must and always does come to its own.

◆

Unreasonable.

"Why did you divorce your first husband?"

"He did not remain around enough."

"And your second?"

"He remained at home too much."

"But I should not think that would be an objection?"

"But he wanted me to remain at home also."

MAGIC BAKING POWDER
MAKES THE WHITEST, LIGHTEST
CONTAINS NO ALUM

To guard against alum in baking powder see that all ingredients are plainly printed on the label, and that alum or sulphate of alumina or sodic aluminic sulphate is not one of them. The words "no alum" without the ingredients is not sufficient. Magic Baking Powder costs no more than the ordinary kinds. For economy, buy the one pound tins.

MAGIC BISCUIT, CAKE, ETC. DIRECTIONS
THIS BAKING POWDER IS COMPOSED OF THE FOLLOWING INGREDIENTS AND NONE OTHER: PHOSPHATE, BI-CARBONATE OF SODA AND STARCH.
MANUFACTURED BY E.W.GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED TORONTO, ONT.
CONTAINS NO ALUM

E. W. GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED
WINNIPEG TORONTO, ONT. MONTREAL

THE POULTRY WORLD

SPRING DISEASES OF CHICKS.

Much of the sickness prevalent during early spring can be prevented by absolute cleanliness and regular disinfection of the premises. It should be the rule to clean up the droppings daily—if possible—and each and every month give the entire interior of the houses a good disinfecting. A spray pump is an important implement on a poultry farm. All this, coupled with plenty of fresh air, and with houses so constructed that sunlight can enter and dry up any moisture that might be present, will do more good than a ton of cures after the fowls are sick.

For disinfection there is nothing more effective than coal tar products. These are diluted in water and make an excellent spray.

Fowls that have been properly wintered will be in good, strong health in spring, but it is well to give them a tonic, such as rusty iron placed in the drinking water, or a tablespoonful of permanganate of potash solution to a pail of drinking water. This solution is made by adding an ounce of the potash to a quart of water. Keep it in a bottle. This bracing up will prevent many cases of colds incident to spring. In the brooding of early chicks care must be taken not to overcrowd, for it is a very small step from colds to roup, and if the colds are not nipped in the bud roup is pretty sure to appear.

My favorite remedies for colds are permanganates of potash in the drinking water daily and a one-grain quinine pill each night for a week. The sick bird must be removed from the rest of the flock and kept in a warm, dry place, and fed soft nourishing food.

Of late years a new trouble has arisen that for a time baffled the poultrymen of the country. It is what is known as bacillary white diarrhoea among chicks, especially those hatched by incubators.

The disease is due to a germ life that is deposited with the yolk of the egg. Scientists claim that this germ is conveyed in the ovaries of the hen, and it is in the small yolks as they lie in the abdomen. These germs, with the yolk, are absorbed into the abdomen of the chick just prior to its emerging from the shell.

When a chick has white diarrhoea it wants to be alone and takes no interest in what may be going on about it. The wings droop and the feathers become rough. The appetite is poor or entirely gone, and every movement it makes seems to be a great effort. Then follows the whitish discharge from the vent, which sometimes is of a creamy nature, and at other times it is mixed with brown, but in either case it is more or less sticky or glairy. Quite frequently it sticks to the down in sufficient quantity to stop the bowels. The chick seems to be in great pain, chirping or peeping continually, and when attempting to void the excreta will give a shrill cry. In the majority of cases the chick has the appearance of being "short backed" or "big bellied."

While chicks often die with but little warning and showing but few of the above symptoms, in most cases they linger for a long time, showing all the symptoms mentioned above.

White diarrhoea does its deadly work with chicks a month old or [illegible]. If the disease is not fatal at that age the patient is apt to live and mature, and if a pullet will carry the disease in its eggs to future generations. The germ may be deposited in the chick at its birth, or it can be taken in from the shell of an egg that is infected, or in the babyhood of the chick it can be eaten with food or drunk with water.

It is contagious and a single case in a flock can be quickly communicated to the entire family. Treatment is unsatisfactory; prevention and fighting the disease when it does appear are about the only methods that will do any good.

It is recommended to give the chicks scalded sweet milk, to which is added a little grated nutmeg. Repeat this three or four times a day. Boiled rice should also be fed, and powdered charcoal should be mixed in the mash. Fed green food. Add permanganate of potash solution to the drinking water, as advised above in case of colds.

As a precaution hens suffering with bowel troubles should not be used for breeding.

Dipping the eggs in a good disinfectant before placing them in the incubator or under the hen has done great work in preventing this disease.

But reliance upon disinfectants must not be final. We must go further into the matter in order to stamp out the disease. We must endeavor to ascertain the source of the infection. It has been shown that this germ has continued to live in the bodies of hens. If possible such hens should be destroyed.

Care should be taken in the purchase of baby chicks. The breeder, his methods and the condition of his stock are well worth investigating.

After the chicks are a week old there is no danger of having the disease transmitted to them through the food supply. But up to this time the chicks should be kept in small flocks and the food and water vessels so arranged that it is not possible to have either contaminated by the droppings.

The bottom of the brooder should be covered with a good amount of fine, absorptive litter, like alfalfa meal, which will quickly cover and seal up the loose droppings. The brooder should not only be well disinfected but kept in clean condition.—M. K. Boyer, in N. Y. Sun.

Separate School Teacher Speaks

TELLS OF THE GOOD DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS HAVE DONE.

She Had No Faith in Them, but the Results and Health Obtained Convinced Her.

Grates Cove, Trinity Bay, Nfld., March 28th.—(Special.)—Among the thousands in Newfoundland who put their faith in Dodd's Kidney Pills is Miss Mary Bridget Whelan, teacher in the Roman Catholic School here.

"I am exceedingly grateful to Dodd's Kidney Pills," Miss Whelan states in an interview. "I was very much run down in health. Close confinement to my work brought on my trouble.

"Reading of the many cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills, I began to use them and I must confess with very little faith.

"Before I had taken one box I was not only cured but my strength was growing rapidly, and I felt a great improvement in every way."

Miss Whelan gives the real reason of the popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They do not cure the ailment aimed at at the expense of some other part of the body. They build up health all over the body. They do this by curing the Kidneys. Cured Kidneys mean pure blood.

◆

FIGURES THAT CARRY A LESSON.

Great Britain imported 51,756,915 bushels of wheat from Canada in 1913. She also imported 9,260,400 bushels from Russia, 2,050,987 from Germany, 504,533 from France, 201,653 from Roumania, 265,843 from Austria-Hungary and 26,533 bushels from Bulgaria, a total of 12,353,949 bushels that will have to be made up. There was a decrease in Russia's exportation to Britain 7,000,000 bushels in 1913 compared with 1912 and of 21,000,000 compared with 1911. In 1913 the United States supplied the United Kingdom with 80,013,879 bushels, an increase of 32,000,000 bushels over 1912 and 43,000,000 bushels over 1911, while Canada's increase in 1913 over 1912 was only 1,177,000 bushels. Great Britain's total importations reached 229,580,863 bushels.

Great Britain imported 14,245,000 bushels of barley from Russia in 1913, 3,240,533 bushels from Roumania, 2,205,700 bushels from Turkey in Asia, 832,067 from Germany and 622,[illegible] bushels from Austria-Hungary; a total of 21,148,833 bushels. Canada supplied 5,977,533 bushels and the United States 10,355,567 bushels. Great Britain's total importations amounted to 52,358,245 bushels.

Great Britain imported 9,173,[illegible] bushels of oats from Russia in 1913, 11,273,469 bushels from Germany and 2,007,765 bushels from Roumania, a total of 22,454,683 bushels. Canada supplied 7,734,588 bushels and the United States 4,723,814. Great Britain's total importations of oats were 58,629,950 bushels.

Surely the foregoing figures carry their own moral to Canadian farmers.

Irregular Schedule.

Crawford—Did you have any regular schedule when you went on your motoring tour?

Crabshaw—Oh, no; we just naturally stopped wherever the car happened to have its breakdown.—Judge.

◆

Petroleum has been installed as fuel in Chile's great nitrate works at a saving of more than 30 per cent. of the cost of coal.

WILL EASE YOUR THROBBING HEAD—AND STOP DROPPINGS IN THE THROAT

To Cure Sniffles and Clear Stuffed Nostrils Nothing Equals "Catarrhozone"

You can end a cold mighty quick—cure it completely—by Catarrhozone. Any sort of Catarrh, whether in nose, throat or bronchial tubes, can be driven forever out of the system by simply breathing in the healing vapor of Catarrhozone.

It's in the nostrils and air passages that Catarrh germs breed. The germ-killing vapor of Catarrhozone means instant death to these germs—means that a healing process is started throughout all the sore membranes, thereby effectually ridding the system of the real cause of the trouble.

Catarrhozone promptly opens up clogged nostrils, takes that irritating pain out of the nose, prevents the formation of hard painful crusts, it loosens the nasty discharge. It disappears with a few hours' use of Catarrhozone Inhaler. If a bad cold keeps you sneezing, if you have dull, frontal pains over the eyes, you'll get the speediest cure possible with Catarrhozone.

Years of wonderful success in Europe and America have proved Catarrhozone a specific for all catarrhal, throat, bronchial and breathing-organ troubles. Simple, pleasant, safe and sure. Use the tried and proven remedy. Any dealer anywhere can supply Catarrhozone. Large complete outfit, $1.00; small size, 50c; trial size, 25 cents.

CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

Brooms, Brushes and Twines, Etc

Mr. C. Patrick has on hand a large quantity of Brooms, Brushes, Baskets, Twines, and etc. in fact all the stock carried at the Walkerton Broom Works which will be sold at a sacrifice in order to get it out of the house, as he is anxious to get the house in shape for to rent as soon as possible. Ring up the Telescope at any time for any of these lines.

C. PATRICK
Telescope Office Walkerton

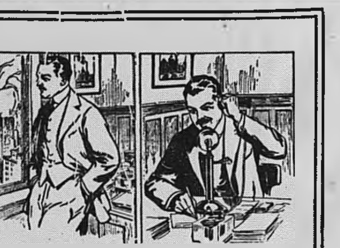
MILLINERY

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton to call and inspect the new and fashionable Spring Millinery creations now on display.

Mrs. Porteous
Next Door to Hehn's Bakery



Don't Wait For Business-Work For It!

Working, not waiting, will make your business prosper.

It is often a long, weary road to business success, and the goal is seldom reached by waiting for opportunity to come to you!

Perhaps you have a plan in mind for promoting business. Why not turn to your Long Distance Telephone and test out the possibilities of your plan? Your personal appeal will go far towards making it a success.

Put the power of your personality into your efforts! It costs little to find out by Long Distance Telephone how you can get more business—the telephone may give you just the help you need to pull prosperity your way!

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station."

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published
every Thursday morning at
Walkerton, Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in vance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY, Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

BY-LAW NO.

A By-law to raise the sum of $3500 by the issue of Debentures of the Town of Walkerton to pay the Town's share of the construction of an addition to the Yonge Street Bridge over the Saugeen River in said Town.

WHEREAS by an order of the Judge of the County Court of the County of Bruce dated the 11th day of December, A. D., 1911, it was ordered and declared that the Yonge Street Bridge over the Saugeen River in said Town of Walkerton was a County bridge to be maintained and kept in repair by the Corporation of the County of Bruce, and by said order it was further ordered and declared that one half of the cost of the maintenance and repair of such bridge was to be paid by the Town of Walkerton to the County of Bruce.

AND WHEREAS the Corporation of the County of Bruce have constructed an addition to the said bridge at a cost of $7000 and have made a demand on the Town of Walkerton for the sum of $3500 being one half the cost of the construction of said bridge.

AND WHEREAS owing to the other requirements of said Municipality it is not possible to provide for the said moneys in the annual levy for the year 1915 and it is therefore necessary that the said sum should be raised upon the credit of the Debentures of said Municipality.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of the opinion that the said question should be submitted to a vote of the electors of the said Town of Walkerton entitled to vote on By-laws for the creation of debts.

AND WHEREAS the said sum of $2500 is the amount of the debt which this By-law is intended to create.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $280 85 to be raised annually by special rate for a period of twenty years, the currency of the debentures to be issued under and by virtue of this By-law for paying the said sum of $3500 and interest thereon.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is the sum of $857,317.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing general debenture debt of the said Town of Walkerton is the sum of $46250.22 and the amount of the Local Improvement Debt thereof is the sum of $24628.46 making a total existing debenture debt of the said Municipality of $70878.68, of which no part of the principal or interest is in arrear.

Therefore the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton enacts as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the said Town of Walkerton and he is hereby instructed to borrow for the purpose aforesaid from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate willing to advance the same upon the credit of the said Town, the said sum of $3500 for the purpose aforesaid and to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the said amount of $3500 in sums of not less than $100 each payable in the manner, for the amounts, and at the times hereinafter more particularly mentioned.

2. The said debentures shall each be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer of the said Town and sealed with the corporate seal thereof, which the Clerk of said Municipality is hereby instructed to affix thereto, and such debentures shall be dated on the Tenth day of August, 1915, and shall be payable within twenty years from the said time of their issue at the Branch or Agency of the Merchants Bank of Canada at said town of Walkerton.

3. The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum payable yearly at the said Branch or Agency of the said Bank on the Tenth day of August in each and every year during the currency thereof (the first payment of interest to be made on the Tenth day of August 1916) and shall have attached thereto coupons for payment of the said interest which coupons shall be signed by the said Mayor and Treasurer.

4. That one of said debentures to be issued under this By-law shall be payable on the Tenth day of August in each and every year during said period of twenty years, so that the sum to be raised for principal and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal in each year.

5. The first one of such debentures shall be made payable the Tenth day of August 1916, and one debenture shall be made payable in each successive year thereafter on each Tenth day of August till all of said debentures and the interest thereon are paid as follows, that is to say:—

Year	Interest	Principal	Total Ann Amt.
1916	$ 175 00	$ 105 85	$ 280 85
1917	169 71	111 14	280 85
1918	164 15	116 70	280 85
1919	158 32	122 53	280 85
1920	152 19	128 66	280 85
1921	145 76	135 09	280 85
1922	139 00	141 85	280 85
1923	131 91	148 94	280 85
1924	124 47	156 38	280 85
1925	116 65	164 20	280 85
1926	108 43	172 42	280 85
1927	99 84	181 01	280 85
1928	90 76	190 09	280 85
1929	81 26	199 59	280 85
1930	71 28	209 57	280 85
1931	60 80	220 05	280 85
1932	49 80	231 05	280 85
1933	38 25	242 60	280 85
1934	26 12	254 73	280 85
1935	13 38	267 52	280 90
		$3500 00

6. During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised and levied in each year by a special rate sufficient therefor on all the rateable property in the Municipality of the said Town of Walkerton over and above all other rates, the sum of $280 85 for the payment of the said debt of $3500 and the interest thereon.

7. This By-law shall come into force and take effect on and from the final passing thereof.

Dated and passed this day of A.D., 1915.

Clerk Mayor.

Notice.

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton to be submitted to the votes of the electors on the 15th day of April, A.D. 1915, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon at the following places:—

East Polling Subdivision—Smith & Henderson's Block.
Centre Polling Subdivision—Town Hall.
West Polling Subdivision — John Schnitzler's house.
South Polling Subdivision— Joseph Yaeck's house.

and that the 15th day of April A.D. 1915, at twelve o'clock, noon, at the Town Hall, in the said Municipality has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice and that such first publication was made on the 25th day of March, A D. 1915.

Take Notice further that a tenant who desires to vote upon said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote, a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable or for at least twenty-one years, and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant other than local improvement rates.

A. COLLINS,
Clerk.

NEW LIQUOR LEGISLATION

As was expected, the Government's new Liquor Legislation has provided the subject of greatest interest during the Session. The bill was brought down on the evening of Tuesday, the 23rd, March, 1915. Widespread dissapointment has been expressed at the utter failure of the bill to deal in any effective way with the liquor problem, especially in its relation to the War, as has been done in Russia, France, Saskatchewan and elsewhere. Mr. Hearst has come in for special censure for it was thought by many, that he, as a Prime Minister anxious to make a name for himself, would have taken advanced ground. The Opposition, led by Mr. Rowell will fight hard for radical measures, as opposed to what they consider the Government's breakdown.

A BRIEF ANALYSIS

Mr Rowell's Proposals

Close every drinking place in the Province during the war.

Submit to the people on a majority vote the question whether these places shall ever be re-opened

Hearst's Answer Government Bill

Not one drinking place to be closed even during the war.

Hours of sale for bars and clubs not reduced.

Shops closed at 7 o'clock.

No liquor to be sold to soldiers in uniform.

Central License Commission Board to be established.

COMPARISON OF LEADERS

MR. HEARST—(to Temperance deputation)— "The zig-zag path is often the best." This bill shows what Mr Hearst meant by zig-zag.

MR. ROWELL'S COMMENT—"The people asked for bread— they have been given a stone." "This is no time for zig-zagging in the Temperance movement."

These Men Were Interested

Hotelkeepers and liquor-dealers from all the parts of the Province were in Toronto during the discussion of the liquor bill in the Conservative caucus, applying pressure on the Conservative members. It is common knowledge that a number of Conservative members fought in the caucuses for more advanced reform, but the results show that they were absolutely over-ruled.

Mr Hearst allowed himself to be dominated by the liquor interests and the liquor section of his own Government and party which now again is in full control.

Collected Opinions on Liquor Law

Liquor Interests. George Wright President of the Toronto hotelkeppers Association.."It is a good measure and I cannot see where there should be any criticism."

James Haverson, K. C Solicitor to the Licensed Victuallers—"I do not think any serious change has been made either in the way of restriction or in the nature of temperance reforme Manager Bailey of the King Edward hotel congratulated the Provincial Secretary on his measure.

Church and Temperance

Dr. A. S. Grant Presbyterian Home Mission Superintendent— "They hav'nt done anything. The thing is so infinitesimally small it would take a microscope to see what they have done.

Dr McKey, editor of the Canadian Baptist—"The more I think the madder I get. We were led to expect something worth while."

Ben Spence, Secretary Dominion Alliance—"It is a ghastly joke. Ontario will be tremendously disappointed. The Government is doing practically nothing to relieve the situation. I cannot conceive that the right thinking people of the province will submit tamely to the proposed legislation"

Rev. Canon Green, President, Dominion Alliance—"I believe our friend Mr Hearst had the opportunity of his life and the people would stand right by it. I am quite disappointed"

Mrs A E Stevens President W C T U—"The regulations do not come up to our expectations We had hoped for larger things after the example that had been set by Saskatchewan"

Military

Gen Lessard—"The soldier is entitled to the rights and priviliges of civilians It is an invidious distinction"

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

"Fruit-a-tives" Have Proved Their Value In Thousands of Cases

WONDERFUL RECORD OF A WONDERFUL CURE

Only Remedy That Acts On All Three Of The Organs Responsible For The Formation Of Uric Acid In The Blood.

Many people do not realize that the Skin is one of the great eliminators of waste matter from the body. As a matter of fact, the Skin rids the system of more Urea (or waste matter) than the Kidneys. When there is Kidney Trouble, Pain In The Back and Acrid Urine, it may not be the fault of the kidneys at all, but be due to faulty Skin Action, or Constipation of the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures weak, sore, aching Kidneys, not only because it strengthens these organs but also because "Fruit-a-tives" opens the bowels, sweetens the stomach and stimulates the action of the skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

BRITISH AMERICAN BUSINESS COLLEGE

Leads in age, influence, and successful graduates. Specializes in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31th. Write for our catalogue Address, T. Wauchope, Principal, Yonge and McGill Sts, Toronto.

Brant Township Farms

I have, in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, 1 forty-six acre farm, 1 one hundred and thirty acre farm, 2 two hundred acre farms all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $7000. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to see me if you want to buy at right prices

H. H. MILLER
HANOVER - - ONTARIO

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D. L. DS Dentist Successor to Dr. Coram. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work Three doors east of postoffice. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month.

J.S.REED, Surgeon, dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne Sts., south of new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR. BROWN, Diseases of the Eye Ear, Nose & Throat Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month from 2 to 8 p. m.

W. A. HALL, B A, M D, C M, Hon Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets.

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J G CARTER, Greenock P. O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope Office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Powers' Hotel, Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAS. TOLTON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and old: money to loan; also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire, Insurance Company. — Phone n e 140. ring 2 & 1.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE COOK MEDICINE CO. TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

You can Begin Any Day at the

NORTHERN Business College

Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three-story building and 34 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors produces the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal
D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photograhhs

Our photographs are more than good photographs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser
Studio - - Walkerton.

STO VES

If you want a stov buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." Non better. Aso a ful ine of Heating Sto v at

H A HAVILL
Walkerton - -On

Combnation Offers

You want good reading during the coming year You can't get a better paper for local news than the TELESCOPE and with it we offer the following at the prices shown The Telescope and

One new Subscription	$1.75
Saturday Globe	1.90
Family Herald	1.90
Toronto World	3.75
Farmer's Advocate	2.40
Canadian Farm	1.90
Weekly Sun	1.90
Catholic Register	1.90
Toronto Daily Globe	3.90
Toronto Daily Mail & Empire	3.90
Toronto Daily Star	2.90
Toronto Daily News	2.90
Montreal W. Witness	1.90
London Catholic Record	2.25
Canadian Baptist	2.25
Presbyterian	2.25
Westminster	2.25
Ontario Churchman	1.50
Church Life	2.00
Farm & Dairy	1.90
Weekly Mail & Empire	1.90
Saturday Night	3.50
London Advertiser	3.90

The War Does not Effect the Nursery Business

In spite of the war we are selling more nursery stock than ever before. We have room for another agent in this county. [illegible] and applications should be sent in at once. A good man should earn from [illegible] to $[illegible] per week right through the winter. No delivering or collecting. Outfit free.

Thos. W. Bowman Son & Co
LIMITED
RIDGEVILLE - ONTARIO

AFTER THE WAR

Business in Canada will hum. The demand for well-trained young men and women for business will be keener than ever. The wise are preparing now. Get into one of our schools and be ready. A few months will do it. It will pay you well. Free catalogue. Write for instructions.
SHAWS BUSINESS SCHOOLS
Toronto, 395 Yonge st. W. Shaw, prin

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD, ONT.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School. We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

EASTER EXCURSIONS

Single Fare—Good going Friday, April 2nd, 1915, return limit Friday, April 2nd.

Fare and One third—Good going April 1, 2, 3 and 4th, 1915, return limit April 6th.

(Minimum charge 25 cents)

Particulars from C.P.R. Ticket Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

H. G. Hunter, - Town Agent.
N. Hilton, - Station Agent.

Easy rests the head that wears a

"King Hat"

King Hats are flexible and self-conforming, just where the hat touches the head.

ASK THE MAN WHO WEARS ONE
THE POPULAR SHAPES $2.50

T. PYE SOLE AGENT
WALKERTON - - ONTARIO

Murdered Small Boy.

One of the most dastardly and cold-blooded murders in the annals of crime in Western Ontario was committed at Owen Sound on Tuesday 23rd, when Eddie Nicholson, a twelve year old boy was stabbed to death by Herbert King a man who has been employed as a farm laborer by his brother in the vicinity of Owen Sound. King took the lad for a drive into the country and after setting fire to his brother's barn returned to his rig and stabbed the boy to death. It is alleged that King spent twenty years in an insane asylum in England and brooding over his recent dismissal from his brother's employ caused him to become demented once more and his atrocious crimes resulted.

British Navy Biscuits
REGISTERED
At your grocers

TREES ! TREES ! !

All kinds of Fruit and ornamental Trees, Evergreens, Roses, Shrubs, Climbers, etc. Everything in the nursery line. Send list of your wants for prices. Catalogue free.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman. Port Elgin, Ontario

RUPTURE
(SEE DATES AT BOTTOM)
COMING

NEW 1915 INVENTION
RETAINS RUPTURE WITHOUT KNIFE, HARNESS, DANGER OR PAIN. COSTS YOU NOTHING TO INVESTIGATE.

Mr. Egan's new 1915 appliances, "the Curaline" and "the Curatrice", are rapidly taking the place of the old-fashioned trusses purchased by mail order.

These new inventions are constructed to assist nature in her work of healing and are free from every cumbersome feature that you possibly have been annoyed with some time or another. Complete comfort awaits you. Correct holding will be experienced from the start. No more escape of rupture. Misery comes to an end at once. You will enjoy that absolute confidence of being able to do anything at any time or anywhere without the bowel making its escape outside the abdomen. This will relieve you of mental unrest and worry. This will make you feel like a new person. This kind of invention is intended to assist nature to close the opening. These new inventions are adapted to different forms of hernia to meet the needs of every man, woman or child. Stop further experimenting with foreign appliances and end your rupture troubles at small cost by consulting a Canadian rupture appliance specialist. Delays may be dangerous; tear off coupon now.

THIS FREE RUPTURE COUPON
Upon presentation to J. Y. Egan, specialist, 4 West King street, Toronto, who will visit the towns below, entitles bearer to free consultation and examination of rupture. Ask at hotel office for room number. Note dates.

HANOVER—Reid Hotel, April 9th
WALKERTON — Hartley House, Saturday and Sunday, all day and night, 2 days only, April 10th and 11th
PAISLEY—Balmoral Hotel, April 12th.
(MADE IN CANADA)

BY-LAW NO.

A by-law to raise the sum of $5000 by the issue of debentures of the town of Walkerton to improve and extend the water works system in said town.

WHEREAS the Municipal Corporation of the Town of Walkerton deem it advisable to provide an increased supply of water for the waterworks system of said Town and to secure additional fire protection by drilling a deep well at or near its pumping station and extending the water main from its present terminal at Elgin Street to connect with the main at Durham Street in said town and from the branch at Ridout Street to connect with the main crossing Ridout Street.

AND WHEREAS the cost of such drilling and extension will amount to the sum of $3700 and owing to the other requirements of the said Municipality it is not possible to provide for the said moneys in the annual levy for the year 1915, and it is therefore necessary that the said sum should be raised upon the credit of the Debentures of the said Municipality.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of the opinion that the said question should be submitted to a vote of the electors of the said Town of Walkerton entitled to vote on By-laws for the creation of debts.

AND WHEREAS the said sum of $5000 is the amount of the debt which this By-law is intended to create.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $325.26 to be raised annually by special rate for a period of thirty years, the currency of the Debentures to be issued under and by virtue of this By-law for paying the said sum of $5000 and interest thereon.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is the sum of $857,317.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing general debenture debt of the said Town of Walkerton is the sum of $40250 22 and the amount of the Local Improvement Debt thereof is the sum of $31028.10 making a total existing debenture debt of the said Municipality of $70878.68, of which no part of the principal or interest is in arrears.

Therefore The Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton Enacts as Follows

1 It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the said Town of Walkerton, and he is hereby instructed to borrow for the purpose aforesaid from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate willing to advance the same upon the credit of the said Town the said sum of $5000 for the purpose aforesaid, and to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the said amount of $5000 in sums of not less than $100 each, payable in the manner, for the amounts, and at the times hereinafter more particularly mentioned.

2 The said debentures shall each be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer of the said Town and sealed with the Corporate seal thereof which the Clerk of said Municipality is hereby instructed to affix thereto, and such debentures shall be dated on the tenth day of August 1915, and shall be payable within thirty years from the said time of their issue at the Branch or Agency of the Merchants Bank of Canada at said Town of Walkerton.

3 The said Debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum payable yearly at the said Branch or Agency of the said Bank on the tenth day of August in each and every year during the currency thereof (the first payment of interest to be made on the tenth day of August 1916) and shall have attached thereto coupons for payment of the said interest which coupons shall be signed by the said Mayor and Treasurer.

4 That one of said debentures to be issued under this By-law shall be payable on the tenth day of August in each and every year during said period of thirty years, so that the sum to be raised for principal and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal in each year.

5 The first one of such Debenture shall be made payable on the tenth day of August 1916, and one debenture shall be made payable in each successive year thereafter on each tenth day of August, till all of said Debentures and the interest thereon are paid as follows, that is to say:—

Year	Int	Principal	Total Annual Amt
1916	250 10	75 26	325 26
1917	246 24	79 02	325 26
1918	242 29	82 97	325 26
1919	238 14	87 12	325 26
1920	233 78	91 48	325 26
1921	229 21	96 05	325 26
1922	224 41	100 85	325 26
1923	219 36	105 90	325 26
1924	214 07	111 19	325 26
1925	208 51	116 75	325 26
1926	202 67	122 59	325 26
1927	196 54	128 72	325 26
1928	190 11	135 15	325 26
1929	183 35	141 91	325 26
1930	176 26	149 00	325 26
1931	168 80	156 46	325 26
1932	160 98	164 28	325 26
1933	152 77	172 49	325 26
1934	144 14	181 12	325 26
1935	135 08	190 17	325 26
1936	125 58	199 68	325 26
1937	115 60	209 66	325 26
1938	105 11	220 15	325 26
1939	94 10	231 16	325 26
1940	82 55	242 71	325 26
1941	70 41	254 85	325 26
1942	57 67	267 59	325 26
1943	44 29	280 97	325 26
1944	30 24	295 02	325 26
1945	15 49	309 74	325 23
		$5000 00

6 During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised and levied in each year by a special rate sufficient therefor on all rateable property in the Municipality of the said Town of Walkerton over and above all other rates the sum of $325.26 for the payment of the said debt of $5000 and the interest thereon.

7 This By-law shall come into force and take effect on and from the final passing thereof.

Dated and passed this day of A. D. 1915.

Clerk Mayor

NOTICE

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton to be submitted to the votes of the electors on the 10th day of April A. D, 1915, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon at the following places:—

East Polling Subdivision—At Smith & Henderson's Block

Centre Polling Subdivision —At the Town Hall.

West Polling Subdivision—At John Scholtzler's House,

South Polling Subdivision — At Joseph Yaeck's House.

And that the 15th day of April A. D. 1915, at twelve o'clock noon at the Town Hall, in the said Municipality has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice and that such first publication was made on the 25th day of March A. D. 1915.

Take notice further that a tenant who desires to vote upon said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable or for at least twenty-one years, and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all Municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant other than local improvement rates.

A. COLLINS, Clerk.

Richard's QUICK NAPTHA THE WOMAN'S SOAP

The jury at Orangeville on the murder of Annie Violet Armstrong by Jas. Stevens, a Barnardo boy who afterwards killed himself, criticized the Barnardo Homes for lack of attention to the habits and training of boys placed in Canadian homes.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Moffat of Narva, Ont., announce the engagement of their daughter, Emma Mae, to Mr. George S. Allan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Allan of Riverview, Ont., the marriage to take place early in April.

Easter Holiday Fares, Can. Pac. Ry.

Return tickets will be issued between all stations in Canada, Fort William and east also to Detroit, Saulte Ste. Mich., Niagara Falls, and Buffalo, N. Y. as follows:—Single fare tickets good going Friday April 2nd, return limit April 2, 1915. Fare and one-third tickets good going April 1st, 2nd 3rd and 4th, return limit April 6th, 1915. Particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

Meningitis Victim.

Private Alexander Dempsey, a member of the 18th Battalion, C. E. F., died of spinal meningitis at Victoria Hospital, London, on Thursday afternoon. He was a member of "A" Company and enlisted at Windsor. He was formerly a member of the R. C. R., which left London for Bermuda for garrison duty in August.—Dempsey was a member of the 18th Battalion of which all the Walkerton boys are members and as a result of this one case of meningitis every man in the battalion has been examined, but no additional cases have been discovered by the medical men.

Government Grant Increased.

Word has just been received that the grant to Western University from the Ontario Government has been increased this year by $5,000. In recognition of the splendid work accomplished during the academic year now drawing towards a close. Five thousand dollars additional will also be given to the Institute of Public Health, making the total grant to all the departments under the control of the University Board of Governors $35,000. This will enable the Western to take another long step in advancing its "forward movement." Last year a new president was appointed and the faculty considerably enlarged. The library equipment and the laboratory apparatus were also greatly strengthened, so that these now compare favorably with those to be found elsewhere, as far as the essential requirements of students are concerned. As a result of the "forward movement" the University has had a record attendance this year and confidently looks for a still larger number of students from all parts of Western Ontario for next year.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We the undersigned have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Highway Bill.

Forty percent of construction and twenty per-cent of maintenance cost will in the future be the Ontario Government's contribution to the improvement of highways in the older part of the province now enlisted to assistance under the Highways Act. The long-expected legislation of the Government, based upon the report of the Highways Commission, was brought down in the House on Friday last by Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid.

Returns From Salisbury.

Pte. Asa Day, of Wiarton, who enlisted here in the first contingent, returned last week from Salisbury, having been a victim of pneumonia and pleurisy while at that place, and finding himself unable, after recovering from it to go to the Continent with the troops. He was very seriously ill while suffering from this trouble and only the excellent care and nursing, of which he speaks in the highest terms of praise, were responsible for his recovery. Mr Day came out on the boat which left England only a day or so before the others which were sunk by mines, and states that the crossing is very perilous.

Lecture Appreciated.

The Girl Guides entertainment in the town hall Tuesday night was well patronized, the house being filled. The program, consisting of over a hundred war slides, was presented by Rev. Mr. Wilson of Walkerton. At intervals during the lecture appropriate patriotic songs were sung by the Guides. These were illustrated on the canvas by appropriate scenes and gave a nice variety to the entertainment. The pictures exhibited consisted of leading military men of the day, the principal crowned heads of Europe now engaged in the war, scenes of the soldiers in training at Valcartier, the transportation of soldiers across the Atlantic, views of Brussels, Louvain, Antwerp, London and other places, some of which showed ruin and destruction caused by the war. The pictures of Zeppelins, aeroplanes, submarines and the big war guns, with the explanations given by the lecturer, formed an interesting and instructive part of the program and contained information that many of the audience were not in possession of. The close attention given by the audience is our best evidence of their appreciation. — Durham Chronicle.

Miss Zeta Black visited over the week end with Walkerton friends.—Durham Review.

Miss Isabel Lawson is visiting friends in Walkerton for a week.—Durham Review.

Three Cars Derailed.

Three cars on an extra Toronto-to Stratford freight were derailed one mile west of Rockwood at 7.55 a. m. on Friday morning, when a broken wheel on the sixth car from the second engine left the track, taking with it the two next following. As a result traffic on the main line was handicapped for several hours until the Stratford auxiliary cleared up the derailment after five or six hours' work. There was no one injured. The wreck caused a tie-up and as a result the Toronto mail and papers did not reach Walkerton until the night train.

FORMOSA

Intended for last week.

John Kreitz formerly an implement agent here was in town on Tuesday.

Last Wednesday, Matt Messner was here and in Ambleside

Mr. Mathew Scheistel was seriously ill last week.

Died—Last Tuesday, in Culross, after a short illness, Joseph Anthony age 61 years 7 months. The remains were interred here last Saturday at 10 a.m.

Auctioneer John Purvis was a visitor here on Thursday.

Last week there were three priests here to assist our Rev J J Gehl.

F. Schmuck is laid up with Rheumatism.

Mrs Jacob Brick who has been sick for some time is able to be out again.

Mr. J. Noll who has been very ill is improving fine.

Mr. George Lambertus, of Teeswater was in town last Saturday.

The Culross assessor was in our town last Friday.

Mr Jos D Schumacher went to Barrie to put up machinery for Mr Thompson on Monday.

John Vogt who is at work in Otter Creek Sundayed at home.

Mr. Simon Leseman intends to take a trip to West Branch, Michigan.

The History of the County of Bruce
And of The
Minor Municipalities Therein
(BY NORMAN ROBERTSON)
Forty Illustrations, Sixteen Maps, Five Hundred and Sixty Pages.

The above volume covers the history of the county from the days when it was the hunting grounds of the Indians to November 1906. It has eleven chapters devoted to the county as a whole, followed by twenty-seven chapters, each of which takes up the history of one of the towns, townships or villages. Accompanying the chapter on each township is a map of it, clearly showing each farmlot therein.

In addition to being an historical narrative, in this work there are to be found many personal incidents relating to scores of prominent men in all parts of the county.

A number of historical documents have been collected and are printed in the appendix, along with a large amount of statistical information, both of which are important to have preserved. The edition is a limited one.

Regular Price, Cloth Binding $2.50

This history will be sent to those who renew their subscriptions to the TELESCOPE for 75c or both

The Telescope for one year and the History of Bruce for

$1.75

White, Cream & Flowered
FRILLING
Regular 25c. per yard
With this Coupon only
10c. per yard

RED ROSE TEA
Black, Green, or Mixed,
Regular 35c. lb.
Special 30c. lb.
Saturday Only

Lynn Valley Baked Beans
Regular 10c. per tin
4 tins for 25c.
Only 4 tins to customer.

Infant's Delight Soap
Regular 10c. per cake
4 Cakes for 25c.
Saturday Only

PEAS
4 Tins
Meadow SweetPeas
for 25c.
Saturday Only

Extra Special
6 Bars Borax Soap for 23c.
Better than Comfort.
Saturday Only.

$1.00 to $1.50
Dressgoods
New shades and materials with this coupon only
45c per yd.

All Colors
VEILINGS
Regular 25c. a yard
With this Coupon only
5c. per yard

Ladies' Blouses
Regular value up to $1.75
Newest styles
With this Coupon only
85 cents.

OUR EASTER SPECIALS

MRS. CUSTOMER! MR. CUSTOMER! MISS CUSTOMER!

Here's a bunch of remarkable values. Each worthy of your consideration. Each and every article advertised here is marked down far below the regular price. The values are winners. Look them over. Don't forget to clip the coupons.

Mrs. C. Reaney PHONE 8 J. Pleskey

Colored Military Braid
Regular 15c. per yard
With this Coupon only
3c. per yard

Fine Bleached
Table Napkins
Regular $1.50 dozen
With this Coupon only
$1.19 per doz.

Very Fine
Bleached Cotton
36 in. wide—With this Coupon only
12 yds. for $1.00

Colored Bed Spreads
Regular $1.25—With this Coupon only
75 cents each

All Colors
Wrapperettes
Regular 12½c. per yard
With this Coupon only
8c. per yard

Ginghams & Striped Piques
Regular 15c. per yard
With this Coupon only
9c. per yard

Striped Art Ticking
Only 10 yards to customer
With this Coupon only
12c. per yard

Bleached Table Linen
56 in. wide. Reg. 35c. yard
With this Coupon only
25c. per yard

Colored Wash Silks
Regular 25c. and 50c. value
With this Coupon only
19c. per yard

TRUE TO HIS RACE

"You must not give way to thoughts of death," he said encouragingly; for, though he had not a hope in the world of saving Benny's life, yet he continued to flatter him with delusions.

"It is better that I should die, doctor. My position is a false one. Legitimate in one country, illegitimate in another, I am in a false position, and my life compromises everybody, complicates everything connected with me, and most of all, my beautiful mother and my beloved brother. Don't you see that I must die?" he murmured faintly.

"Not by any means. All these complications can be straightened out by a simple act of the House of Lords, as has been——"

"Let us talk no more about it, dear doctor. Even if I could live, no such thing should be done, with my consent. And if it were done without it, I would never profit by my dear brother's loss. But I shall die. And there an end."

The doctor said no more then.

Later in the day, when the Earl of Wellrose enquired as to his brother's state, Dr. Kinlock answered:

"The worst of it, and what makes the case so utterly hopeless is, that he does not seem to care in the least to live."

"Oh, if Susan were here! Why does not that ship come in?" murmured the earl to himself.

At that very moment a footman came in, and brought the mail bag from the Seton post-office.

Lord Wellrose emptied it. There were many letters forwarded from London. Among them was one that Lord Wellrose seized first of all. It bore the Southampton postmark. It was from Suzy, and it announced her arrival in England. Mrs. Brown, the curate's widow, was her companion. They were coming up to London, and should take apartments at the Brunswick Hotel, Berners street, where their letters were to be addressed.

Lord Wellrose, neglecting all the other contents of the mail bag, took Suzy's letter and went to his mother.

He found the duchess in her boudoir, weeping.

He put Suzy's letter in her hand, and begged her to read it.

She complied, as well as her tear-laden eyes would let her. And then she looked up inquiringly at the face of her son.

"It is from the girl he loves, and whom he resigned because he thought I loved her; and in the magnanimity of his soul, preferred my happiness to his own!"

"Wellrose! what is all this, my dear?"

"Listen, mother dear, and I will explain," said the young man. And he told the story of his acquaintance with Suzy and Benny, leaving out such portions of it only as must have wounded the spirit of the duchess.

"And now, dear mother, I wish you to invite this young lady to come here. If anything on earth can rouse and save my brother, it will be the presence of his love."

"She is a pure-spirited and noble-hearted girl, from all you have told me, Wellrose. And if she can do my poor boy any good, she shall be most welcome," said the duchess.

And she immediately sat down and wrote a letter of invitation, that it might be in time for the first mail.

Lord Wellrose also wrote, telling her that Benjamin was ill at Seton Court, explained as much of the circumstances as he deemed prudent to trust in a letter, and implored her to accept his mother's pressing invitation, and come at once to Seton Court to rouse Benjamin.

These letters despatched, Lord Wellrose went up to cheer his brother with the intelligence.

"I have good news for you, my dear fellow," he said cheerfully, as he sat down by his brother's bed.

Benny lifted his blue eyes inquiringly.

"Susan has arrived in England. She is in Southampton. Nay, indeed, by this time she must be in London."

"Suzy has come back! Suzy is in London! Oh! I wish I could see her!" said Benny, eagerly, brightening up at once.

"You shall see her in a few days. My mother has written and invited her to come here."

"Suzy coming here!" said Benjamin, joyfully.

"Yes, assuredly, as soon as our letters can reach her, and she can make the journey; for she will not neglect so pressing a call, I am sure, nor will she lose an hour on the road."

"Thank Heaven; And, oh! I thank you, too, Wellrose! I owe all the good I have, under Heaven, to you. I thank you, my dear brother."

"Cheer up, now. Take your nourishment. Resolve to live, for Suzy is coming. And my mother will make her welcome."

"Does our mother know?"

"She knows of your mutual love; for I told her this morning. That is the reason why she wrote for Suzy."

"Bless her! Bless her!" said Benny, fervently.

"Now here comes Mrs. Bruce with your broth. I order you to take it all, and then to go to sleep," said the earl as he went out.

Oh, magic of love! Elixir of life! From the time that Benny heard that Suzy was coming, and began to look forward to her arrival, he brightened and mended day by day.

And his mother saw it and rejoiced.

On the third day after the sending of the letters, Suzy, having travelled day and night, arrived at Seton Court.

She was not at all like the brilliant Mademoiselle Arielle of that dazzilgn Mademoiselle Arielle of that dazzling and ended in tragedy. She was a "grave fairy," with golden hair, blue eyes and blooming face, habited in a plain, methodistical suit of grey serge that might have become her grandmother.

The duchess received her with a kiss, called her her dear child, and took her to a pleasant bedroom where she could change her dress, while Lord Wellrose went to prepare Benny to receive her.

In a few minutes more, Suzy, leaning on the duchess' arm, entered Benny's chamber.

He was lying, as usual, propped up by pillows, and with the light of the window falling on his fair, wan, spiritual face. He held out his hands to his love. But as soon as she saw what a mere shadow he was, she sank on her knees beside his bed and burst into tears, and sobbed as though her heart would have broken.

Under other circumstances this violent emotion might have hurt the invalid. But he was stronger now. He put his hands around her fair head, and murmurd softly:

"Weep no more, dear Suzy. Dear, dearest Suzy, weep no more. You are here now, and all is well."

But she could not stop weeping all at once. Indeed, she wept the more.

"Mother," inquired Benny, softly, "is she to be my wife?"

"Yes, dearest, if she will," as softly answered the duchess.

"If she will! Why, of course, she will. We have been engaged ever since we were seven years old; have we not, love?" he inquired, caressing the fair hair.

"Yes Benny, for only one short season when I lost my senses. But, oh, my dear! when I saw you about to lay down your life for my sake, I knew how you loved me, and discovered how I loved you also," murmured Suzy, in an almost inaudible voice.

"Engaged since we were seven years old, dear mother, and that was nearly twenty years ago," said Benny, brightly smiling up into his mother's face.

"And that is quite a long engagement—quite long enough. It should be ended soon now in marriage," answered the duchess, smiling back.

"Suzy, our childish dreams will be realized," murmured Benny, trying to raise her. But he was as yet too feeble; so she got up and sat by his side, holding his hand and continuing to hold it until the surgeon came with his peremptory orders that all should now leave the room, that his patient might seek repose in sleep.

A little later in the day Suzy was presented to the duke, who received her courteously and kissed her cheek.

A little later still, she had a word apart with the Earl of Wellrose.

"I see that you not only forgive me, but thank me, Lord Wellrose, for setting you free," she said, pleasantly.

He bowed and smiled.

"I wish you much joy, fair sister," he said.

"Thanks. And you? When am I to congratulate you?" she archly inquired.

"In a few days, I hope."

And then he gave her his arm to lead her in to dinner.

From that time Suzy was encouraged to spend the greater portion of every day in Benny's room. And his improvement was thenceforth very rapid. The surgeon expressed astonishment at it. The old nurse declared it was a miracle.

Son Benny was able to leave his bed, and soon after, his chamber. In a fortnight from the day of Susan's arrival he dined with the family.

Meanwhile the autumn was waning into winter, and the weather in the highlands becoming very bleak.

One day the Glasgow surgeon arrived on a visit, and he advised that Captain Douglas should spend the winter on the south coast.

Therefore the family all went down the the duke's marine residence at Brunswick terrace, Brighton.

Here they were soon joined by the daughters of the duke and duchess, and also by Lady Hinda Moray.

And here Benjamin—oh, triumphs of time!—found himself in the same seaside palace, the beloved son, the centre of a fond domestic circle, where once he had been taken in a poor street boy. He was recognized as Captain Benjamin Seton Douglas, master of Seton, and heir of the old Scotch Barony of Linlithgow, in right of his mother by her first marriage; heir also, in certain contingencies, of the ancient Dukedom of Cheviot.

But Benny would in nowise consent that any step should be taken to reinstate him in any position by which the brother he loved more than life should be a loser. Nay, he declared most positively, that if any movement should be made to establish his right to the heirship of the dukedom of Cheviot at his brother's expense, he would at once give up parents, country, and home, and take Suzy and go with her to the uttermost parts of the earth.

And they knew that he would keep his word.

And then he stretched forth his hand, and clasped his father's, saying gaily and yet tenderly:

"I am the son of 'Bonnie Willie Douglas' and his fair bride Eglantine, and not of the most noble the Duke and the Duchess of Cheviot. You never dreamed of inheriting your great-uncle's dukedom when you married my mother, dear father, did you?" he asked, with a smile. "And after all," he continued, "why all this talk about an inheritance of so many happy, happy years off yet? Our father is a man in his prime—not over forty-five or six, and may and probably will live a half century longer."

* * * *

Time has accomplished its many triumphs, and will also accomplish many more. It is now fifteen years since Benjamin Seton Douglas, master of Seton, married his love, Susan, and took up his residence at Seton Court, on the loch; since the Earl of Wellrose married Lady Hinda Moray, and fixed his abode at Wellrose Park, in Sussex.

The Duke and Duchess of Cheviot are now a handsome, healthy, happy couple, really considerably over sixty years of age, but not looking more than forty, and likely to live to complete their century. Both their sons and all their daughters being married, they have even more grandchildren than had her gracious Majesty the Queen, which is saying a great deal.

Captain and Mrs. Seton have five fair daughters, but no son; and as their youngest daughter is eight years old, it is nearly certain that they never will have one.

But the Earl and Countess of Wellrose have both sons and daughters.

And the complicated question of inheritance will clear itself in this way:

The eldest son of the Earl of Wellrose, styled Viscount Douglas, is of course the lineal heir, after his father, of the dukedom of Cheviot. He is a dark, gypsyish looking youth of fourteen, with much of his mother's warm Hindoo blood in his veins. With the precocity of his part Eastern nature, he has fallen in love with his fair cousin Eglantine, the eldest daughter of Captain Seton Douglas, and she certainly returns his affection; while the parents on both sides, for excellent reasons, favor their attachment. And in the future marriage of these young people the estates of both brothers will be united.

(The End.)

◆

The Brazilian cotton crop is increasing in quantity and quality.

A BRAZILIAN SNAKE FARM

Serpent worship and snake charming are institutions as old as history, and so long as there have been snakes, so long has man suffered from their bites and hunted for that which would cure. But it has remained for modern science to build institutions to cope with this matter intelligently and sympatheticaly and for governments to spend thousands of dolars annually that the work of these laboratories may be carried on and men be able to give their whole lives to the study of this branch of medicine.

Naturally these institutions exist where snakes are most abundant. The serpent is a reptile which loves the sun. They are about equally distributed throughout the tropical sections of the world, and as Brazil and India are the two largest nations situated in the torrid zone it is there that are found the only two government snake farms in the world; one at Calcutta and the other in the outskirts of Sao Paulo.

There are no English guides or guide books at Sao Paulo. Everything is Portuguese; but if you have a knowledge of French, Spanish or German you can find somebody, perhaps a hotel waiter, who will tell you what train to take for Butantan, as the snake farm is called. The regular reception day of the men in charge of the Institut de Butantan is the first Thursday of the month; but the snakes may be seen any time, as they glide, undulate, climb, wriggle, push their way about in a city of small beehive looking houses surrounded by a moat and fence which occupies the front yard of the new institute building.

The institution is fourteen years old, but it has only occupied its present fine home about a year. Not all of the snakes are kept in this one corral. There is another in which there are a few trees around at the side. In all there are about 1,500 live snakes in captivity on the farm which are used for bactereological and biological research work. There is a large barn in the rear where they raise pigeons and guinea-pigs for experimental purposes.

Inside the building one may see the wonderful collection of snakes owned by the authorities. They have over 300 species, the largest snake collection in the world it is said, outside of the British Museum in London.

The average visitor who cares to spend an hour or two there studying the reptiles can come away with a much increased knowledge of the beauty, structure and habits of these animals, for they are splendidly preserved and classified, the only drawback being that none of the labelling is in English.

The purpose of this farm, which costs the Brazilian Government about $10,000 a year, is not only to extract the venom and make serum crystals but to send out literature and lecturers to teach the people of Brazil that all snakes are not poisonous and that they must learn which are not so as to protect them, for the harmless snakes are helpers in the effort to exterminate those that are dangerous. It was very interesting to watch a great black mussurana devour a venomous yellow jararaca, an exhibition which the students arranged for us during our visit.

The number of deaths in Brazil annually from snake bites is given as 4,800, while the number of accidents is reckoned at 19,200.

Brazil is the home of the most dreaded of snakes, the noted fer-de-lance. This snake, so often spoken of in connection with the island of Martiniqeu and St. Lucia, is a native of Brazil, very common in some parts of the country. It has an especial liking for sugar cane fields, and one is seldom cut without many of these venomous reptiles being discovered. It was one of these snakes that bit the Empress Josephine when she was a child and her life was saved because a nurse sucked the poison out.

Most poisonous snakes avoid men, but not so with this one. It takes the initiative, leaps from its hiding place and bites the passer-by, who usually dies within a few hours. Even if the victim recovers his system is generally affected seriously, and he may suffer for years from boils and ulcers. The poison of this snake attacks the nervous system, producing giddiness and paralysis, convulsions and severe pains around the heart.

It is hard to avoid in its native haunts, where it lies curled up under heavy leaves, or coiled up in some bird's nest, where it has devoured the eggs or the young. It gives no warning by hiss or rattle of its presence, but watches its chance and then strikes with a blow as direct as that of a fencer.

All animals seem to dread this snake. A horse will not go within striking distance of it. The pig seems to be the only quadruped which is indifferent to it.

This snake varies in color, but its usual tints are olive above with dark cross bands and whitish gray below, covered with very heavy minute dark spots. The head is brown. Its tail is a horny spine, which scrapes harshly against rough objects, but does not rattle. It is of some use, for it lives mainly on rats, and thus keeps down the damage done to the cane by rats.

There is a large snake called the cribo which devours the fer-de-lance. The common cat is said also to be able to kill this snake. It seizes it by the spine just back of the head and does not let go until it has severed the head from the body. Then instinct seems to teach the cat to let the head alone, for the head of this snake, like that of the turtle, even though separated from the body, can still bite.

◆

Stevenson and Light.

Robert Louis Stevenson would probably have welcomed the lowering the lights of London as a change for the better. For a brilliantly-lit city was one of his abominations, and he viewed with alarm the advent of electricity as an illuminant. "To look at it only once," he wrote, "is to fall in love with gas, which gives a warm domestic radiance fit to eat by. Mankind, you would have thought might have remained content with what Prometheus stole for them, and not gone fishing the profound heaven with kites to catch and domesticate the wildfire of the storm. Yet here we have the levin brand at our doors, and it is proposed that we should henceforward take our walks abroad in the glare of permanent lightning."

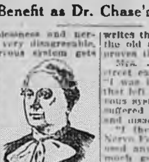
◆

And on Washday, Too!

Mrs. Winchester, a councillor's wife in Worthing, England, who died on Monday, April 20, was born on a Monday, christened on a Monday and married on a Monday. Before she was married her name was Monday.

Twitching of the Nerves Broken-down System

Now Entirely Cured—Never Used Any Medicine With Such Benefit as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.



MRS. M'KELLAR.

Headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness are often very disagreeable, but when your nervous system gets into such a condition that the nerves twitch and jerk, and you have peculiar nervous sensations come over you there is cause for grave alarm.

Everybody dreads the thought of paralysis or locomotor ataxia. Nothing is worse to look forward to than helplessness. Sometimes it is helplessness of body, and at other times the mind is affected, which is far worse.

The writer of this letter did not know what to expect, but fortunately began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in time to head off danger, and writes that she was entirely cured of the old trouble. The last paragraph proves that the cure was lasting.

Mrs. John McKellar, 11 Burton street east, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was injured some years ago, and that left me with a broken-down nervous system. I could not sleep, and suffered from twitching of the nerves and disagreeable nervous sensations.

"I then began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that I never used any medicine that did me so much good; in fact, I am entirely cured of my old trouble. The Nerve Food not only strengthened the nerves, but also built up my system in every way."

Under more recent date Mrs. McKellar writes confirming her cure, and states that she has had inquiries from many people who had heard of the great benefits she obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. At all dealers.

A Curious Worm.

There is a flat worm about half an inch long called Planaria vitata which reproduces itself in a most extraordinary manner. According to an article in the Biological Bulletin, when it grows old it loses its appetite, its colors fade and its movements become slow. It drops a tiny fragment of its tail, then another, still another, and so on until after it has left about half of its body in scattered places. Each detached piece curls up, secretes a mucus that soon dries and forms a hard shell. In this condition the fragments remain throughout the summer, fall and winter. In the spring the shells burst and liberate many minute worms, which eat voraciously and soon grow to adult size. The fore part of the worm, after it has shed all these bits, either dies or encysts itself in its turn.

Japan's Isles of Pines.

Matsushima is regarded as one of the "sankei," or three most beautiful places in Japan. And it well deserves this reputation, for there are indeed few fairer natural scenes on earth. It reminds the traveller of the Thousand Isles of Canada and the English lakes all in one. Here innumerable pine-clad islands lift their fronded faces through the purple haze, over a sea of silver green, and when the sun sets, throwing the myriad islands into a golden glow, the mind is charmed to ecstasy. Matsushima bay is more than six miles long and five wide, and to visit all the hundreds of islands that adorn the surface of the sea in this place would take years. Yet one may see the best part of Matsushima in two or three days if one knows how. —Japan Magazine.

BRUCE'S SEEDS

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

(Prices Prepaid)

Bruce's Collection Floral Gems, 1 pkt. each 6 varieties, Fine Annuals, each separate, many colors, for 25c.

Bruce's Peerless Collection Tall Nasturtiums, 1 pkt. each of 6 finest varieties, separate colors, for 25c.

Bruce's Rural Nosegay Collection Sweet Peas, 1 pkt. each 6 superb sorts, separate colors, for 25c.

Bruce's Peerless Collection Dwarf Nasturtiums, 1 pkt. each of 6 finest sorts, separate colors, for 25c.

Bruce's Empire Collection Asters, 1 pkt. each of 4 magnificent varieties, separate, all colors, for 25c.

Bruce's "A" Vegetable Collection, 6 pkts. different varieties, our selection, for 25c.

Bruce's "B" Vegetable Collection, 12 pkts. different varieties, our selection, for 50c.

Bruce's "C" Vegetable Collection, 11 pkts. different varieties and ½ lb. each, Beans, Corn and Peas, our selection, for 75c.

FREE—[illegible]

John A. Bruce & Co., Ltd. Hamilton, Ontario
Established sixty-five years.

When You Have Pineapples.

The knife used in peeling a pineapple should not be used in slicing it, as the peel contains an acid that will cause a sore, swollen mouth. Salt is an antidote for this acid.

◆

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

Mock Cherry Pie.

Cherries are a luxury in winter time, and so is cherry pie; a very good substitute for cherries, however, is cranberries, which are never very expensive.

This is a very good recipe for mock cherry pie: Cut 1 cup of cranberries in halves and one-half cup of raisins cut in small pieces. Mix 1 scant cup of sugar with 1 tablespoon of flour and stir into the berries and raisins. Line pan with rich paste and turn the mixture in. Dot the top of berries with 1 teaspoon of butter, cover with top crust and bake in moderate oven for twenty minutes. As soon as taken from the oven spread the top with a little butter and sprinkle over a tablespoon of pulverized sugar. Serve warm.

◆

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 8, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

◆

Winding Clocks.

Be careful about winding clocks. Wind them always at the same time, and never wind them too tight. Find out just how many full turns of the key it takes to wind the clock to the proper point and always stop with that number of turns.

Corns Drop Out

Instant Relief

Paint on PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR to-night and corns feel better in the morning. Magical the way "PUTNAM'S" eases the pain, destroys the roots, kills a corn for all time. No pain. Cure guaranteed. Get a 25c bottle of "PUTNAM'S EXTRACTOR to-day.

WHEN PEACE WILL REIGN.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

When people realize the power and significance and living force of international sentiments, when public opinion has been brought to realize that there is nothing in dispute in international relations which cannot be taken up and adjudicated by law instead of by force we will have peace, but not until then. To make this clear is the duty of the sincere citizen, call him crank or fool or hypocrite as may suit the time.

WAR BREEDS WAR.

(Toronto Star.)

Even without any wanton frightfulness, war tends to breed war. Nothing is sillier than the common talk of war "clearing the air." The comparison of war with a fight between quarrelsome boys, who "have it out," and then shake hands and become good friends, is misleading. There never was a war without hatred, but it is true that the more "frightfulness" there is, the more hatred, and therefore the more sowing of the seed of future wars.

WHAT MOTHERS SAY OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she will use no other medicine. She quickly realizes the Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy and one that will give sure results. Concerning them Mrs. R. L. Wright, Pennant, Sask., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my three babies and think so much of them that I always keep them in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

◆

COMPULSORY VOTING.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

And after all, a man may show his honesty and intelligence as well by refusing to vote as by voting under pressure or compulsion. Under our party system abstention from voting is often the only course open to the strong party man to show his disapproval of his own party's course. Compel him to vote and he will probably vote for his party, though he may be out of sympathy with it or may not approve of its candidate. What possible advantage could there be to good government from compelling an elector to misrepresent himself by his vote? Many a man will show his disapproval of his party by staying at home on election day who would not go the length of voting against his party. It is not well that he should have the right to show his disapproval by staying at home?

WHISKERS AGAIN.

(London Advertiser.)

Whiskers are said to be bidding for a return in favor, in the armies at the front. They warm the gallant soldier on a cold night, and unless pink or tansy shade, make the face a more difficult target. They blend into the surrounding scenery, and might even be dyed to suit any landscape scheme.

Shaving in the trenches must be a problem. The only drawback to a full beard would be the time spent in combing out the shrapnel splinters, the sand sprinkled into the brush by "Jack Johnson's," and the Flanders mud. The artistic possibilities of whiskers are considerable. With a pair of shears for barb-wire entanglement cutting a soldier might sculpture a good healthy growth into such various figures, as, for instance, may be seen in evergreen shrubs on an old-fashioned lawn. A book could be written on the subject.

◆

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

◆

A SIGN OF THE TIMES.

(Buffalo Courier.)

Mayor Mitchel, of New York, is making speeches in support of the woman suffrage amendment to the state constitution. When the mayor of a city of nearly 6,000,000 population thus becomes active for equal suffrage, the fact is of far more than ordinary importance.

FOR DISTEMPER

Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever, and Catarrhal Fever

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any age are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue, acts on the Blood and Glands, expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine kidney remedy. Cut this out. Keep it. Show it to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet "Distemper, Causes and Cures." DISTRIBUTORS—ALL WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

RESULT OF IRRIGATION

When Sir William Van Horne said many years ago that the C. P. R. by undertaking the work of irrigation east of Calgary, would make the wilderness to blossom like the rose, he was derided, but to-day that prophecy may be said to be a literal fact. At any rate, millions of acres have not only been reclaimed by the company, but the whole district has been so improved and beautified that there is now a general clamor for irrigation in sections which are still untouched. Deputations have gone to Ottawa to stir the Government into undertaking the work outside the proprietarial limits of the C. P. R., on lands which seem to require this treatment to produce similar results to those so gratifying and profitable on the C. P. R. lands.

As one result of this demand on the part of the people of Southern Alberta, Prof. Fairfield, superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Lethbridge, convinced farmers that with irrigation production will not only be greatly increased, but permanent homes established on the prairie, which can be rendered naturally beautiful when irrigation works are available. The professor laid great stress on growing alfalfa corn, which meant more fodder for live stock, more fertility of soil, improvement to all crops. Resolutions were passed asking the Minister of the Interior to carry out irrigation works, or to arrange for an extension of the C. P. R. system.—From the Gazette, Montreal, March 16, 1915.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—I had my leg badly hurt, the pain was very severe and a large swelling came above the knee. I expected it would be serious—I rubbed it with MINARD'S LINIMENT, which stopped the pain and reduced the swelling very quickly. I cannot speak too highly of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

AMOS T. SMITH.

Port Hood Island.

Two Story Lake in Mexico.

One of the wonders of Mexico is the salt producing lake near Salinas station on the Tampico division of the Mexican Central Railway, 72 miles west of San Luis Potosi. It may well be termed a two storey lake, for at times when is a lake of fresh water overlying the salt lake. A water tight roof of green mud separates the fresh from the salt water. For a large part of the year there is no fresh water lake there. The sun licks it up soon after the rainy season is over. The salt secured from this lake goes all over Mexico. The lake has been worked about 66 years. The whole town of 5,000 people makes its living from the salt.

◆

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

◆

Out of the Mouths of Babes.

First Small Boy—"How was the circus?"

Second Small Boy—"Great! Why, it was almost as good as the posters."

Mamma—"Willie, why didn't you finish sawing that wood."

Little Willie—"I just couldn't mamma; the poor saw had the toothache."

Teacher—"When little George Washington's father forgave him for cutting down the cherry tree, what lesson did it teach?"

Small Johnny—"That it's a wise father who knows when to bury the hatchet."—Chicago News.

◆

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

◆

Fair Exchange.

It was Mrs. Malloon's birthday, and she felt a trifle disappointed that there was no gift beside her plate. It was the first time in twenty years that her husband had forgotten the occasion. Mr. Malloon smiled at her frankly.

"My dear," he said, "I have been so busy lately that I have not had time to buy you a birthday gift, but I'll give you the cow."

She thanked him graciously. "Daisy is a beautiful cow," she said.

Two months later Mr. Malloon's birthday came around. When he appeared at breakfast his wife greeted him with a radiant smile. "My dear," she said, "I have been so busy lately sewing for the children that I haven't had time to buy you a birthday gift, but I'll give you the cow."—Chicago News.

◆

WAS IT FOR THIS?

(London Advertiser)

Two thousand years ago at Bethlehem, Palestine, was born the Prince of Peace. To-day at Bethlehem, Pa., the great steel works are rushing some of the biggest war contracts ever placed.

◆

$1,000.00 Reward Forfeited If Remedy Fails

We hope this notice will reach the eyes of people who are troubled with constipation and bowel trouble. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have been guaranteed to cure any case within three days, and the above reward will be paid for any case resisting this greatest of all remedies.

No prescription ever written could surpass Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. For years they have been curing the most obstinate cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches and sour stomach. Here is your chance to test Dr. Hamilton's Pills. If they fail—your money back for the asking. Be sure you get the yellow box, and insist on being supplied with only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c, at all dealers.

◆

ADVERTISING.

(Beck's Weekly, Montreal)

The Montreal merchant who spends twenty to twenty-five thousand dollars a year in newspaper advertising doubtless thinks he is accomplishing great things. As a matter of fact he is a mere "piker" when his spendings are compared with those of some of the great American merchants for the same purpose. For instance, last year Marshall Field & Co. spent [illegible] for advertising in the Chicago daily newspapers alone. One paper, the Chicago Daily News, carried [illegible] worth of advertising for that firm. Several others were not far behind. Marshall Field & Co's advertising bill was duplicated by several other Chicago firms. It was exceeded by those of a number of New York business concerns. In Philadelphia one firm is said to have spent half a million with the newspapers. It is significant, too, that these firms are among the biggest profit-making concerns in the country. It pays them to advertise. The average rate for store advertising in the daily papers of the three largest American cities runs close to twenty cents a line, the average rate in Montreal is about six cents. In population Montreal ranks ninth in the list of cities on this continent, in the matter of newspaper advertising it ranks about fortieth. Perhaps that's the reason so many of our merchants complain that they are constantly on the brink of bankruptcy. They haven't learned how to use printers' ink.

◆

A double thickness of material cut shieldwise and stitched under the arm while a dress is being made, will prove a great resource when the dress begins to wear out.

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Reply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—CHOICE LAND IN PARcels from one to twenty acres, located near Hamilton along the Bay and Lake Shores on Toronto to Hamilton permanent highway. This is selected land, delightfully located, being very desirable for gentlemen who desire a country residence along with garden and fruit culture. W. D. Flatt, Room 15, Federal Life Building, Hamilton.

FARMS FOR SALE.

$16.50 PER ACRE — ALBERTA'S most productive grain and stock farm land. Near good town on Canadian Northern main line. Lloydminster district. In settled community school, church, telephones, on main road to town. Fine rich soil on clay subsoil. Water plentiful. Luxuriant growth of grass; finest cattle country in the west. 1914 wheat yield 30 bushels to acre, Oats 70. Your choice of a number of quarter sections. Have actual photographs and guaranteed field notes. Free Railroad Fare to purchasers. Party leaving Toronto April 20th, make arrangements to come out with us. Great opportunity for yourself and boys. Small cash payment 6 per cent. interest; seven years to pay. Write at once for particulars. WATSON, 160 Bay street, Toronto.

NINETY ACRES—LINCOLN COUNTY, two miles to Silverdale Station. All cultivated, 2 acres hardwood timber, good 8 roomed house, bank barn, other out buildings, one acre orchard, 15 acres fall wheat, soil clay loam. Good stream. Price $5,000. F. J. Watson, Farm Specialist, 160 Bay street, Toronto, Ont.

HUNDREDS OF FARMS FOR SALE and exchange. County catalogues, describing them sent free anywhere. The Western Real Estate Exchange, Ltd., Head Office, London, Ont.

WHITFIELD & WHITNEY, REAL Estate and Insurance, Bank of Hamilton Bldg., Hamilton, Ont. 102-acre grain and stock farm; 13 miles from Hamilton, on stone road. $12,000.

WHAT KIND OF A FARM ARE YOU looking for? I have small and large farms in Western Canada and Ontario; very easy terms, or exchange your property; write requirements. J. Johnson, 203 Clyde Block, Hamilton.

BUY CHOICE FARM LANDS IN Sunny Southern Alberta. Prices ranging from $10.00 to $30.00 per acre. Deep, rich chocolate loam. One crop pays for the land. Write us to-day. P. M. Ginther Land Co., Medicine Hat, Alta.

DOES $1.50 WHEAT MAKE SASKATchewan farm lands look good to you? If so, inquire about our limited number of improved farms acquired from loan companies at prices away below their actual value; money loaned on improved farms, first mortgage security, good rates of interest; references, Quebec Bank. J. W. Cadwell & Co., Box 1317, Saskatoon, Sask.

FOR SALE—157 ACRES GOOD GRAIN and stock farm; 130 acres under cultivation, 17 acres in fall wheat; 45 acres fall plowing done, balance in meadow and pasture; also good sugar bush. This farm has never been rented. For price and terms J. Martin & Co., Federal Life Building, Hamilton, Ontario.

FRUIT AND POULTRY FARMS from one to twenty-five acres, Lake Shore properties near Burlington and Hamilton, with Hamilton market, the best in America. These locations are convenient to schools, churches, near proposed Toronto-Hamilton concrete highway; are exceptionally good and worth investigation. R. M. Hoose, 7 1-2 James street north, Hamilton, Ont.

FOR SALE—FARM, ANY SIZE, FROM 10 acres up, near Thorold, Merritton and St. Catharines. Fruit farms with fruit for $40 per acre. See my farms before buying elsewhere. J. D. Hiltz, Merritton, Ont. Box 152. Phone 657 L.

FOR SALE—37 1-2 acres near Niagara on main road and close to Trolley and Canning factory, choice sandy fruit land. A bargain at $7,500 for quick sale, $3,550 down will purchase this excellent property. For particulars write Melvin Gayman, Limited, Investment Brokers, St. Catharines, Ont.

NEW BRUNSWICK FARM, 415 ACRES, half intervale, hay, 60 tons. Bearing orchard, good house, 3 barns, railway station 5 1-2 miles, other conveniences near. $1,650, $1,000 cash, balance mortgage. Write for our Free Illustrated Catalogue. Also other farms. Alfred Burley & Co., 46 Princess street, St. John, N. B.

MISCELLANEOUS

STRAWBERRIES, 56 varieties; Raspberries, 15 varieties; Seed Potatoes, 10 varieties. Free Catalogue.
THE LAKEVIEW FRUIT FARM
H. L. McConnell & Son, Port Burwell, Ont.

SEED CORN FOR SALE

For No. 1 Seed Corn of many varieties, matured and cured for seed purposes on cob or shelled. Apply, to EDWARD P. TELLIER, St. Joachim, Ont.

SEED CORN

Prize-winning Wisconsin No. 7, the best for the silo. George R. West & Sons, Northwood, R. R. No. 3.

Braid.

It is military.
Broad braid figures.
It runs up to twenty inches.
And narrow braid is seen.
Or ribbon masquerades are braid.
Single rows are used in several ways.
And numerous rows may also figure.

Daguerre.

The inventor of the process of photography was Louis Daguerre, born at Cormeilles, France, in 1789. He was first employed painting scenes for the theatre, and while there at work he discovered the method of representing night and day by the illumination of a transparent canvas painted on both sides. That was in 1822, but as early as 1814 Nicephore Niepce had made some experiments of photography on metal. In 1826 he and Daguerre became partners, but a few years the former died, leaving Daguerre to develop the remarkable art. The French Government gave the medal of the Legion of Honor to the inventor of the daguerreotype.

DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

Itching, Burning, Irritated Scalp. Kept Awake at Night. Used Cuticura. Now Head Is Well.

24 De Salaberry St., Quebec, Que.—"About six years ago dandruff began to form on my scalp. At first I didn't notice it, but my hair began falling out gradually and it kept getting worse. The itching and burning were so bad that I scratched and irritated my scalp. I was kept awake at night by the irritation.

"I then tried a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, washed my head with the Soap and warm water, and applied the Ointment. After the first time my hair stopped falling. I got one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment. I continued using them for a few months and my head is now well." (Signed) Miss Myrtle Davis, June 3, 1914.

Sample Each Free by Mai

With 32-p. Skin Book on request. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Bo U. S. A." Sold throughout the world.

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, APRIL 1, 1915.

SOME WANT ADS.

It is not the men at the front who always suffer the most. Those left behind, the women and children, fathers and mothers, have often a suffering all their own which the soldier seldom knows still the soldiers sometimes suffer in this way too. A somewhat melancholy interest attaches to the following, taken from the want ad column of the Paris Matin of a late date:

MME. FIEVE, Rue Gessendi, Paris, will be deeply thankful to any soldier who can tell her the place of burial of her son Louis, who fell in the fight of Aroimont, and of her husband, Marcel, sergeant, supposed to have died near Rheims.

MME. DUFFAUD, of Broye, desires word of her husband Maurice, of the Fifth Hussars, who fell wounded near Courbesseaux and was never found.

MME. MANCERON, Avenue Bosquet, without news of her son, lieutenant Fourth Cuirassieres.

FERNAND BAUVAL, Belgian soldier, seventh line, asks information concerning his wife and three babies lost at Termonde. Address his Hospital Tour-d'Auvergne, Paris.

CHARLES DEBERGUE, wounded at Namur, is now recovering and asks news of his wife and little girls of Tirlemont.

MADAME FRANCIS DORVAUX: NOTICE —Your four sons in the trenches in the Argonne are all safe and sound up to this time.

ALIX ROUSSELOT, of Neuilly, asks aid from the family of her fiance, Sergeant Faivre of the 55th, in her search for the latter and for her brother, Raoul Rousselot.

MR. BORDEN'S BREAK.

Although there has been a complete truce between the Imperial Government and the Opposition since the opening of the war, the Opposition lending every assistance to its prosecution, the Tory members of the House have not abdicated their functions as an Opposition or as critics of the Government's actions, nor have the Tory newspapers ceased to criticise and attack the Government. Nevertheless, the truce exists and both parties are fighting shoulder to shoulder against the enemy. When the war began Sir Wilfrid Laurier cancelled all his party engagements, called off his trip to the Northwest and unreservedly offered his services to the Government, an offer which it saw fit to ignore. However, he has done what he could by public addresses and by pressing upon the youth of the land their duty to their country. But while doing all this, he did not expect that he would be called upon to acquiesce in everything that the Government has done since the war began. He could not, for instance, remain silent in face of the disclosures regarding the contracts for soldiers' boots or the other scandalous contracts, like that of the military dressings, without being a party to the alleged graft.

Similarly when the Finance Minister proposed to increase the tariff and reduce the British preference as a means of raising revenue, not for war purposes, but to pay the running expenses of the Government, Sir Wilfrid protested and moved an amendment to the resolutions of the Minister. Tuesday the House divided on the question, defeating the Laurier motion. At the same time Premier Borden took occasion to make a bitter attack on Sir Wilfrid, charging him with breaking the truce, and declaring that he was ready to appeal to the country, if need be. The Premier lost his temper or worked himself up into a pretended passion so that he could announce that an election was coming. He rang the changes on the navy question, although he has done nothing to provide a navy in the four years he has been in office. But the Premier was particularly annoyed over Sir Wilfrid's protest in favor of the British preference. "I am prepared to leave the issue to this House, and, if necessary, to this country," declared the Premier. If the change had not been made in the duty on British goods, he argued, scores of factories would close and men would be out of employment. "We were thus bound to give consideration to the Canadian manufacturer."

This statement is false, unless the Canadian manufacturers are to increase the price of their manufactures up to the limit of the increased tariff. British goods were not closing any Canadian factories before the 5 per cent. increase was made, and had the preference been left at the old figure there would be no increase in importations unless the Canadian manufacturers raised the price of their goods. Is the tariff being raised so that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association can get bigger profits or is it raised so as to give the country more revenue? If it is to give the country more revenue, then the Government should take some steps to see that the extra 7½ per cent. comes into the public exchequer and not into the pockets of the manufacturer. What the country wants is more revenue and not more profits for the manufacturer. We have no wish to see the manufacturers hurt in any way. But we take it that the purpose of the Government is to get more revenue. If the manufacturers are to take advantage of the 7½ per cent. and increase the price of their goods accordingly, they will benefit at the expense of the consumer. But will the country get its needed revenue?

Mr. Alphonse Verville, [illegible] member, made a [illegible] Premier Borden, [illegible] time to increase the cost of foodstuffs and clothing and the necessaries of life. Why further oppress the masses of the consumers? Why make the poor poorer and the rich richer?" They had been called, he declared, to "administer the affairs of the country when times were prosperous, when there was an overflowing public treasury, when employment was plentiful and prosperity abounded. They had "spent their heritage in riotous and reckless living," and now they proposed to make the poor pay.

BAD BLOOD

Is The Cause of Boils and Pimples.

When boils or pimples start to break out on your face or body you may rest assured that the blood is in an impure state, and that before you can get rid of them it will be necessary for you to purify it by using a good medicine that will drive all the impurities out of the system.

Burdock Blood Bitters is a blood purifying remedy. One that has been on the market for the past forty years. One that is known from one end of the country to the other as the best blood purifier in existence. It cures boils, pimples and all other diseases arising from bad blood.

BOILS CURED.

Mr. Andrew E. Collier, River Glade, N.B., was troubled with boils for years, in fact, did not know what it was to be rid of them until he used Burdock Blood Bitters. It cured him.

PIMPLES CURED.

Mr. Otto Boyce, Yarker, Ont., had his face and neck break out with pimples. He tried several kinds of medicine without success. Two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters banished them.

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It's just one protest after another with President Wilson.

◆

Canada is the leading attraction at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco. It's a great ad.

◆

The soldiers soled their boots with shingles and tied them on with bags. And yet nobody is in jail.

◆

Sir Geo. Foster is evidently opposed to the holding of an election this year. Perhaps he respects the truce.

◆

For horrible examples and "frightfulness" there is not much to choose between Belgium, Poland and Serbia.

◆

So far none of the Canadians at the front have asked for a vote. What they want is a shot at the enemy.

◆

When a Canadian soldier wiggled his big toe it made a hole in the boot he got from the Government to wear.

◆

"Millions for war, but not a cent for graft," is Geo. P. Graham's ultimatum, and it should ring all over the Dominion.

◆

The Ontario Government voted down the proposal to give married women the municipal vote. The women will please make a note of this.

◆

Those who tell you that it is the war that is causing hard times in Canada should be told that if it were not for the war times would be much harder.

◆

The British Government is putting under Government control all concerns engaged in manufacturing munitions of war. The war will be won or lost in the factories as much as in the trenches.

◆

The United States press is pretty unanimous in condemning Great Britain's retaliatory measures. Yet the same press is very complacent over the sinking of an American vessel by a German pirate.

◆

Strong as the liquor interest is in Great Britain, we would not be surprised to hear that the Government had taken some drastic measures to put a stop to drinking. Evidently the men in the factories and foundries can't stand prosperity.

◆

Britain is beginning to feel the drain on her male population on account of the war. She now proposes to employ her female population as far as possible in men's jobs. Canada should make a note of this fact. Britain wants men and more men.

◆

The Elections Committee of Parliament has come to the conclusion that it would be impracticable to give the Canadians in the trenches a vote in the event of an election being held. The men in the contingents at home can be given one.

The Old Fashioned Purging and Griping Action of Pills Is Now Done Away With.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all waste and effete matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract.

They do this by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood, and thus causing constipation, jaundice, catarrh of the stomach and similar troubles.

Mrs. L. M. Ratchford, Peterboro, Ont., writes: "Having been troubled for years with constipation, and trying many different remedies which did me no good whatever, I was asked to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I have found them most beneficial, for they are indeed splendid pills, and I can gladly recommend them to all people who suffer from constipation."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE Changeling

'Mid the New England hills, and beneath the shadow of their dim old woods, is a running brook, whose deep waters were not always as merry and frolicsome as now; for years before our story opens, pent up and impeded in their course, they dashed angrily against their prison walls, and turned the creaking wheel of an old saw mill, with a sullen, rebellious roar. The mill has gone to decay, and the sturdy men who fed it with the giant oaks of the forest, are sleeping quietly in the village graveyard. The waters of the mill-pond, too, relieved from their confinement, leaped gayly over the ruined dam, tossing for a moment in wanton glee their locks of snow-white foam, and then flowing on, half fearfully as it were, through the deep gorge overhung with the hemlock and the pine, where the shadows of twilight ever lie, and where the rocks frown gloomily down upon the stream below, which, emerging from the darkness, loses itself at last in the waters of gracefully winding Chicopee, and leaves far behind the moss-covered walls of what is familiarly known as the "Old House by the Mill."

'Tis a huge, old-fashioned building, distant nearly a mile from the public highway, and surrounded so thickly by forest trees that the bright sunlight, dancing merrily midst the rustling leaves above, falls but seldom on the time-stained walls of dark gray stone, where the damp and dews of more than a century have fallen, and where now the green moss clings with a loving clasp, as if 'twere its rightful resting-place. When the thunders of the Revolution shook the hills of the Bay State, and the royal banner floated in the evening breeze, the house was opened by an old Englishman, who, loyal to his king and country, denounced as rebels the followers of Washington. Against these, however, he would not raise his hand, for among them were many long-tried friends, who had gathered with him round the festal board; so he chose the only remaining alternative, and went back to his native country, cherishing the hope that he should one day return to the home he loved so well, and listen again to the musical flow of the water-brook, which could be distinctly heard from the door of the mansion. But his wish was vain, for when at last America was free, and the British troops recalled, he slept beneath the sod of England and the old house was for many years deserted. The old Englishman had been greatly beloved, and his property was unmolested, while the weeds and grass grew tall and rank in the garden beds, and the birds of heaven built their nests beneath the projecting roof, or held a holiday in the gloomy, silent rooms.

As time passed on, however, and no one appeared to dispute their right, different families occupied the house at intervals, until at last, when nearly fifty years had elapsed, news was one day received that Madame Conway, a grand-daughter of the old Englishman, having met with reverses at home, had determined to emigrate to the New World, and, remembering the "House by the Mill," of which she had heard so much, she wished to know if peaceable possession of it would be allowed her, in case she decided upon removing thither, and making it her future home. To this plan no objection was made, for the aged people of Hillsdale still cherished the memory of the hospitable old man, whose locks were grey while they were yet but children, and the younger portion of the community hoped for a renewal of the gayeties which they had heard were once so common at the old stone house."

But in this they were disappointed, for Madame Conway was a proud, unsocial woman, desiring no acquaintance whatever with the neighbors, who after many ineffectual attempts at something like friendly intercourse, concluded to leave her entirely alone, and contented themselves with watching the progress of matters at "Mill Farm," as she designated the place, which soon began to show visible marks of improvement. The Englishman is a man of taste, and Madam Conway's first work was an attempt to restore the grounds to something of their former beauty. The yard and garden were cleared of weeds; the walks and flower beds laid out with care, and then the neighbors looked to see her cut away a few of the multitude of trees which had sprung up around her home. But this she had no intention of doing. "They shut her out," she said, "from the prying eyes of the vulgar, and she would rather it should be so." So the trees remained, throwing their long shadows upon the high, narrow windows, and into the large, square rooms, where the morning light and the noonday heat seldom found entrance, and which seemed like so many cold, silent caverns, with their old-fashioned massive furniture, their dark, heavy curtains, and the noiseless footfall of the stately lady, who moved ever with the same measured tread, speaking always softly and low to the household servants, who, having been trained in her service, followed her across the sea.

From these the neighbors learned that Madam Conway had in London a married daughter, Mrs. Miller; that old Hagar Warren, the strange-looking woman, who, more than any one else, shared her mistress' confidence, had grown up in the family, receiving a very good education, and had nursed their young mistress, Miss Margaret, which, of course, entitled her to more respect than was usually bestowed upon menials like her; that Madam Conway was very aristocratic, very proud of her high English blood, that, though she lived alone, she attended strictly to all the formalities of high life, dressing each day with the utmost precision for her solitary dinner, dining from off a service of solid silver, and presiding with great dignity in her straight, high-backed chair. She was fond, too, of the ruby wine, and her cellar was stored with the choicest liquors, some of which she had brought with her from home, while others, it was said, had belonged to her grandfather, and for half a century had remained unseen and unmolested, while the cobwebs of time had woven around them a misty covering, [illegible] them still more valuable to the lady who knew full well how age improves such things.

Regularly each day she rode in [illegible] ponderous carriage, sometimes alone, and sometimes accompanied by Hester, the daughter of old Hagar, a handsome, intelligent-looking girl, who after two or three years of comparative idleness at Mill Farm, went to Meriden, Connecticut, as seamstress in a family which had advertised for such a person. With her departed the only life of the house, and during the following year there ensued a monotonous quiet, which was broken at last for Hagar by the startling announcement that her daughter's young mistress had died four months before, and the husband, a gray-haired, elderly man, had proved conclusively that he was in his dotage by talking of marriage to Hester, who, ere the letter reached her mother, would probably be the third bride of one whose reputed wealth was the only possible inducement to a girl like Hester Warren.

With an immense degree of satisfaction Hagar read the letter through, exulting that fortune had favored her at last. Possessed of many sterling qualities, Hagar Warren had one glaring fault which had embittered her whole life. While others were rich while she was poor she could not understand, and her heart rebelled at the fate which had made her what she was. But Hester would be wealthy—nay, would, perhaps, one day rival the haughty Mrs. Miller across the water, who had been her playmate; there was comfort in that, and she wrote to her daughter expressing her entire approbation, and hinting vaguely of the possibility that she herself might some time cease to be a servant, and help to do the honors of Mrs. Hamilton's house! To this there came no reply, and Hagar was thinking seriously of making a visit to Meriden, when one rainy autumnal night, nearly a year after Hester's marriage, there came another letter sealed with black. With a sad foreboding Hester opened it, and read that Mr. Hamilton had failed; that his house and farm were sold, and that he, overwhelmed with mortification both at his failure and the opposition of his friends to his last marriage, had died suddenly, leaving Hester with no home in the wide world, unless Madam Conway received her again into her family.

"Just my luck!" was Hagar's mental comment, as she finished reading the letter, and carried it to her mistress, who had always liked Hester, and who readily consented to give her a home, provided she put on no airs from having been for a time the wife of a reputed wealthy man. "Mustn't put on airs!" muttered Hagar, as she left the room. "Just as if airs wasn't for anybody but high bloods!" And with the canker worm of envy at her heart, she wrote to Hester, who came immediately; and Hagar, when she heard her tell the story of her wrongs—how her husband's sister, indignant at his marriage with a sewing-girl, had removed from him the children, one a stepchild and one his own, and how of all his vast fortune there was not left for her a penny—experienced again the old bitterness of feeling, and murmured that fate should thus deal with her and hers.

With the next day's mail there came to Madam Conway a letter, bearing a foreign postmark, and bringing the sad news that her son-in-law had been lost in a storm, while crossing the English Channel, and that her daughter Margaret, utterly crushed and heart-broken, would sail immediately for America, where she wished only to lay her weary head upon her mother's bosom and die.

"So there is one person who has no respect for blood, and that is Death," said old Hagar to her mistress, when she heard the news. "He has served us both alike—he has taken my son-in-law first and yours next."

Frowning haughtily, Madam Conway bade her be silent, telling her at the same time to see that the rooms in the north part of the building were put in perfect order for Mrs. Miller, who would probably come in the next vessel. In sullen silence Hagar withdrew, and for several days worked half reluctantly in the "north rooms," as Madam Conway termed a comparatively pleasant, airy suite of apartments, with a balcony above, which looked out upon the old mill-dam, and the water-brook pouring over it.

"There'll be fine doings when my lady comes," said Hagar, one day to her daughter. "It'll be Hagar here, and Hagar there, and Hagar everywhere; but I shan't hurry myself, I'm getting too old to wait on a chit like her."

"Don't talk so, mother," said Hester. "Margaret was always kind to me. She is not to blame for being rich, while I am poor."

"But somebody's to blame," interrupted old Hagar. "You was always accounted the handsomest and cleverest of the two, and yet for all you'll be nothing but a drudge to wait on her and the little girl."

Hester only sighed in reply, while her thoughts went forward to the future, and what it would probably bring her. Hester Warren and Margaret Conway had been children together, and in spite of the difference of their stations they had loved each other dearly; and when at last the weary traveler came, with her pale, sad face and mourning garb, none gave her so heartfelt a welcome as Hester, and during the week when, from exhaustion and excitement, she was confined to her bed, it was Hester who nursed her with the utmost care, soothing her to sleep, and then amusing the little Theo, a child of two years. Hagar, too, softened by her young mistress' sorrow, repented of her harsh words, and watched each night with the invalid, who, once when her mind seemed wandering far away in the past, whispered gently, "Tell me the Lord's prayer, dear Hagar, just as you told it to me years ago when I was a little child."

It was a long time since Hagar had breathed that prayer, but at Mrs. Miller's request she commenced it, repeating correctly until she came to the words, "Give us this day our daily bread," when she hesitated, and, bending forward, said: "What comes next, Miss Margaret? Is it 'Lead us into temptation'?"

"Yes, yes," whispered the half-unconscious lady. "'Lead us not into temptation;' that's it." Then, as if [illegible] and her a dim foreboding of the great wrong Hagar was to do, she took her old nurse's hand between her own, and continued "Say it often, Hagar—'Lead us not into temptation'—you have much need for that prayer."

A moment more and Margaret Miller slept, while beside her sat Hagar Warren, half shuddering, she knew not why, at the thought of her mistress' words, which seemed to her so much like the spirit of prophecy.

"Why do I need that prayer more than any one else?" she said, at last. "I have never been tempted more than I could bear—never shall be tempted—and if I am, old Hager Warren, bad as she is, can resist temptation without that prayer."

Still, reason as she would, Hagar could not shake off the strange feeling, and as she sat, half dozing, in her chair, with the dim lamplight flickering over her dark face, she fancied that the October wind, sighing so mournfully through the locust trees beneath the window and then dying away in the distance, bore upon its wing, "Lead us not into temptation. Hagar, you have much need to say that prayer."

Aye, Hager Warren, much need, much need!

CHAPTER II.

The wintry winds were blowing cold and chill around the old stone house, and in the deep untrodden snow lay high piled upon the ground. For many days the gray, leaden clouds had frowned gloomily down upon the earth below, covering it with a thick veil of white. But the storm was over now, with the setting sun it had gone to rest, and the pale moonlight stole softly into the silent chamber, where Madam Conway bent anxiously down to see if but the faintest breath came from the parted lips of her only daughter. There had been born to her that night another grandchild—a little, helpless girl, which now in an adjoining room was Hagar's special care; and Hagar, sitting there with the wee creature upon her lap, and the dread fear at her heart that her young mistress might die, forgot for once to repine at her lot, and did cheerfully whatever was required of her to do.

There was silence in the room below—silence in the chambers above—silence everywhere—for the sick woman seemed fast nearing the deep, dark river whose waters move onward but never return.

Almost a week went by, and then, in a room far more humble than that where Margaret Miller lay, another immortal being was given to the world, and, with a softened light in her keen black eyes, old Hagar told to her stately mistress, when she met her on the stairs, that she, too, was a grandmother.

"You must not on that account neglect Margaret's child," was Madam Conway's answer, as, with a wave of her hand, she passed on; and this was all she said—not a word of sympathy or congratulation for the peculiar old woman whose heart, so long benumbed, had been roused to a better state of feeling, and who, in the first joy of her new-born happiness, had hurried to her mistress, fancying for the moment that she was almost her equal.

"Don't neglect Margaret's child for that!" How the words rang in her ears as she fled up the narrow stairs and through the dark hall, till the low room was reached where lay the babe for whom Margaret's child was not to be neglected. All the old bitterness had returned, and as hour after hour went by, and Madam Conway came not near, while the physician and the servants looked in for a moment only and then hurried away to the other sick room, where all their services were kept in requisition, she muttered: "Little would they care if Hester died upon my hands. And she will die, too," she continued, as by the fading daylight she saw the pallor deepen on her daughter's face.

And Hagar was right, for Hester's sands were nearer run than those of Mrs. Miller. The utmost care might not, perhaps, have saved her, but the latter was not tested, and when the long clock at the head of the stairs struck the hour of midnight, she murmured: "It is getting dark here, mother—so dark—and I am growing cold. Can it be death?"

"Yes, Hester, 'tis death," answered Hagar, and her voice was unnaturally calm as she laid her hand on the clammy brow of her daughter.

An hour later, and Madam Conway, who sat dozing in the parlor below, ready for any summons which might come from Margaret's room, was roused by the touch of a cold, hard hand, and Hagar Warren stood before her.

"Come," she said, "come with me!" and thinking only of Margaret, Madam Conway arose to follow her. "Not there—but this way," said Hagar, as her mistress turned towards Mrs. Miller's door, and grasping firmly the lady's arm, she led to the room where Hester lay dead, with her young baby clasped lovingly to her bosom. "Look at her—and pity me now, if you never did before. She was all I had in the world to love," said Hagar, passionately.

Madam Conway was not naturally a hard-hearted woman, and she answered gently: "I do pity you, Hagar, and I did not think Hester was so ill. Why haven't you let me know?" To this Hagar made no direct reply, and after a few more inquiries Madam Conway left the room, saying she would send up the servants to do whatever was necessary. When it was known throughout the house that Hester was dead, much surprise was expressed and a good deal of sympathy manifested for old Hagar, who, with a stony brow, hugged to her heart the [illegible] of jealousy, which kept whispering to her of the difference there would be were Margaret to die. It was deemed advisable to keep Hester's death a secret from Mrs. Miller; so, with as little ceremony as possible, the body was buried at the close of the day, in an enclosure which had been set apart as a family burying ground; and when again the night shadows fell Hagar Warren sat in her silent room, brooding o'er her grief, and looking out at the plain pine cradle, where lay the little motherless child, her grand-daughter. Occasionally, too, her eye wandered towards the mahogany crib, where another infant slept. Perfect quiet seemed necessary for Mrs. Miller and Madam Conway had ordered her baby to be removed from the antechamber where first it had been kept, so that Hagar had the two children in her own room.

In the pine cradle there was a rustling sound; the baby was awaking, and taking it upon her lap, Hagar soothed it again to sleep, gazing earnestly upon it to see if it were like its mother. It was a bright, healthy-looking infant, and though five days younger than that of Mrs. Millerf, was quite as large and looked as old.

(To be continued.)

◆

Many an actress has been wedded to her art, not to mention a few husbands.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON 1.

April 4, 1915—The Resurrection—Easter Lesson—Matt. 28: 1-10.

Commentary.—I. The empty tomb (vs. 1-6.) 1. In the end of the Sabbath—The Jewish Sabbath closed at sunset but the night following is here mentioned. First day of the week—It was early on Sunday morning. Came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary—Mary from Magdala, whom Jesus had cured of demoniacal possession. "The other Mary" was the sister of the mother of Jesus, and the mother of James the Less and Joses. With the two Marys came Salome (Mark 16: 1) and Joanna (Luke 24: 10) They had left their different homes at a very early hour, some while "it was yet dark" (John 20. 1), to reach the sepulchre at about daybreak. To see the sepulchre—Their purpose was to embalm the body of Jesus since they had no thought that he would leave the tomb in the manner he did. 2. a great earthquake—This occurred very early in the morning, before the women reached the sepulchre. There was an earthquake attending Christ's crucifixion, and one attending his resurrection. The angel of the Lord—A messenger sent on a special errand His mission was to roll back the stone, to overawe the guards and to show that Jesus' body was not removed from the tomb by the disciples. Luke and John speak of two angels while Matthew and Mark mention one. The fact that they mention but one does not prove that there were not two. Rolled back the stone—A stone, in shape something like a mill-stone, was used to close the entrance to the sepulchre. Christ could have rolled it back himself, but angelic agency was employed in the great transaction. Sat upon it. The Roman soldiers had guarded the closed and sealed tomb, and had been supernaturally overpowered: the angel was sitting by the tomb that had been supernaturally opened. The angel was there to explain the disappearance of the Lord. 3. His countenance—"Appearance."—R. V. Like lightning—Compare the appearance of the angel here described and that given in Rev. 1: 14, 15. The appearance indicated a heavenly origin. 4. for fear of him—The soldiers were guarding the tomb for fear that human hands might steal away the body of Jesus, and were not prepared for a heavenly visitation. The watchers did quake (R. V.)—Showing that their terror was genuine and extreme. As dead men—They were completely overcome by the experiences of that night. The earthquake and the dazzling splendor of the angel were more than they could endure.

5. the angel....said unto the women—It is probable that Mary Magdalene reached the tomb first and saw that the stone was rolled away. She hastened to tell Peter, and while she was gone the other woman arrived and entered the sepulchre. They were naturally affrighted at the absence of Jesus and the circumstances attending his disappearance. One of the two angels mentioned by Luke and John spoke words of comfort to the women. Fear not ye—The guards were terrified at the presence of the angels, but a message of comfort was borne to the women by the heavenly visitors. I know—A reassuring proof that the angels were divinely sent upon this especial mission. Was crucified—The followers of Jesus believed that he was dead, for they went about the duty of embalming the body. Joseph of Arimathaea sought the privilege of burying the body in his own new tomb. Two places are claimed as the tomb of our Lord, and each of these places has its strong supporters. The Church of the Holy Sepulchre stands over the spot which is claimed to be the place of the crucifixion and burial of Christ. It is within the walls of Jerusalem, while the place where Christ suffered was the gate. This location seems to lack the hill Calvary, or Golgotha. The church is held jointly by Greeks, Roman Catholics, Armenians and other sects, and adherents of these faiths now seem to worship places and images there instead of the living God. Outside the walls of the city on the north is a hill that many regard as Calvary. Its shape is like that of a skull. Close by is a garden and the tomb hewn out of the solid rock. The hill and the tomb both answer well the descriptions we have of the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ. It is the belief of many, that if either place is in the tomb where our Lord was laid—the one under the church in the city, or the one outside the walls on the north, known as the Garden Tomb,—the latter is the one. The Lord's body was placed in a tomb. The Roman officer had pronounced him dead, and the soldiers had pierced his side, so there could be no doubt of the fact of Christ's death. 6. He is risen—A reason why he is not here. These words have even furnished inspiration to the followers of Christ. He "was dead", but is "alive for evermore," and has "the keys of death and of hell." He has fulfilled his prophecy and promise. See the place where the Lord lay—As if to give further assurance and comfort. The fact that they sought Jesus showed their love for him, and his resurrection brought great gladness to their hearts. Christians of all ages have gathered encouragement and strength from this simple, yet forceful, recital of the resurrection of our Lord. They have been strengthened for the duties and conflicts of life, and have been encouraged to be true until death with the hope of a glorious immortality beyond this life.

II. Bearing the message (vs. 7, 8). 7. Tell His disciples—The sorrowing, despairing disciples must be told quickly that Jesus is risen. Peter's sad and penitent heart must be cheered. Into Galilee—Before His crucifixion He had told His disciples that He would go before them into Galilee (Matt. 26. 32; Mark 14. 28). He appeared to them before going there, but His appearance to the greatest number of His followers was in Galilee. 8. Departed quickly from the sepulchre—There was no further attraction for them there since Jesus was gone. With fear—Because of the awe-inspiring angelic visitation. Great joy—Because of the resurrection of their glorious Lord. Their joy made them swift of foot. A marvelous change had come over them within a short time, perhaps within a few minutes. They had been almost in despair over the death of their Master. Through a lack of understanding and of faith they had nearly given up hope of the establishment of the new kingdom of which they had heard much. All was now changed. Jesus was alive, and their faith and hope would be greater than ever in the past from the very fact that He had risen from the dead. Their joy must have been very great.

III. Meeting Jesus (vs. 9, 10). 9. As they went—In obedience to the angel's command. It was a glad message they were bearing. Jesus met them—This was the second appearance. The first appearance was to Mary Magdalene (Mark 16. 9). It seems that when she told Peter and John of the empty tomb they at once ran to the sepulcher to see for themselves (John 20. 2-10), and she also returned at once to the tomb. During her absence the other women had received their commission from the angel and had hurriedly left. Peter and John soon left also, and Mary remained alone at the tomb weeping. It was then that Jesus appeared to her (John 20. 11-18). Later in the morning Jesus met the other women who had gone to tell the disciples, who were probably scattered and may have been some distance away. All hail—Literally, rejoice; the Greek salutation on meeting and parting. 10. Shall they see Me—This public appointment was made in order that the whole body of disciples might meet the risen Lord. Five hundred were present on a mountain in Galilee.

Questions.—How long was Christ's body in the tomb? What proofs are there that He was dead? When did He rise from the dead? Who came early to the sepulcher? Why did they come? Describe the appearance of the angel. What was the angel's message to the women? To whom did our Lord first appear? How did the Jews explain the disappearance of Christ's body from the tomb? What were the feelings of the disciples when they learned that Christ had risen from the dead? What appointment did Jesus make with His disciples?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—The First Easter Day.
I. Completed man's redemption.
II. Introduced the gospel age.

I. Completed man's redemption. The first great Easter day was succeeding its most [illegible] night, through the surrounding darkness when the holy women came with trembling steps but loving hearts to the sepulcre where Christ had been laid. It was a gloomy approach, characterized by visible grief, secret hope, timid faith. They came in earnest personal search, to render loving service and entire devotion to him whom the world had rejected. A wonderful sight met their eyes. An angel replied to their inward emotion. He understood their errand and their mistake. Gentle rebuke was in his words. He sat upon the stone which had sealed the tomb as in triumph to show that it was not to be replaced. Christ's humiliation was past. The hour of his triumph had come in the completion of human redemption. His atonement was accepted by the Father. His offering of himself for the sins of men had met every requirement. His resurrection was the seal of truth upon all he had said and done. The crucifixion was not simply a temporary incident in the history of Christ. It was an eternal principle in his kingdom. His resurrection crowned all that preceded it. The circumstances of his death with its attendant wonders were lost on the disciples until after his resurrection. They had forgotten all that the prophets had spoken, all that the Lord himself had said about his resurrection on the third day. They were enveloped in misery, disappointment and despondency, beclouded by many remorseful memories. The angel at the open tomb uttered momentous truths, furnishing proof of man's immortality and assurance of his redemption with definite hope for the future. The first work of the new dispensation was committed to the women. The angel bade them bear the tidings to the disciples.

II. Introduced the gospel age. The first day of new life dawned for humanity when Christ conquered death and came forth to greet his despairing disciples. It was the day which was to be consecrated throughout his church as the beginning of new hopes and new aspirations. The resurrection was the greatest victory ever obtained against an enemy. The explicit testimony of the angel and the instructions which followed sent the women in joyous return to the disciples who were to believe without seeing. The disciples had deserted their Master in his humiliation. They had not lingered at his cross nor aided in his burial. They were giving no thought to further care of his body. They were not honored with the vision and interview of angels. They were not the first to see their risen Lord. This wonderful experience was granted to the faithful women. They were commissioned to carry a message to the disciples. Their great joy overcame their fear. They did as they were bidden. Jesus met them with the most fitting salutation and benediction. They were all aglow with happy excitement, enraptured with the sight of their Lord. They were ardent with reverent love. They worshipped him. They were amazed at his glory, overcome and in fear. They were afraid they should lose their bliss. They held him by the feet. Their touch and their bended knee signified their faith in his resurrection. Jesus repeated the instruction of the angels and by them sent the first Easter greetings to his disciples whom he called brethren. It was a message of love and forgiveness, a gracious message full of comfort to the sorrowing, conscience-stricken. The gospel were set forth in that errand of the women, seeking the good of others, with the assurance of their perfect forgiveness. Christ's appointment to meet his disciples in Galilee would prove their faith in him as their risen Lord. From Galilee his spiritual kingdom was to proceed. The circle gradually widened from the women to a great company, as they were prepared to see and believe. In finding Christ the women and the disciples found everything suited to banish their fears. From him they received new life, new understanding, new instruction. That last dismal Jewish Sabbath was the dividing between the old dispensation and the new. T. R. A.

◆

Car Exploded Bullet.

A curious accident occurred the other day in Dublin when a passing tramcar exploded a cartridge. A man was hit in the neck by the bullet and now lies in hospital. Several other cartridges were picked up.

◆

The High Sheriff of Somerset, G. B., announces that 19590 men of the county are serving with the colors. The population of the county is 453,025, and the male population of military age 69,700: thus 2 of every 7 eligible are serving.

Your Spring Needs

There's both pleasure and satisfaction in choosing your Spring Needs at THIS STORE. Stocks are large and varied, featuring exclusive novelties in every line. The merchandise is unusually attractive and old prices prevail in practically every instance.

Women's Smart Coats

AT $6.00—A smart model in Belgian Blue. In wool Ratine. Patch pockets and belted.

AT $8.00—In smart Tweed. A very attractive model in Balmacan cut.

AT $10.00—A beautiful coat in Sand shade. Covert cloth with pleated back. Empire style. Convertible and flare back collar.

AT $15.00—A charming style in the new Alpine Cheviot. In fawn, grey and green shades. Satin lined throughout. Fancy silk collar.

A Hint for Your Easter Gloves

Not all of us get everything new for Easter but its next to necessity to have new gloves. We have as good values in gloves as can be bought anywhere today. Prices 69c, $1.00, $1.25 $1.50 a pair. All guaranteed with the exception of the first price.

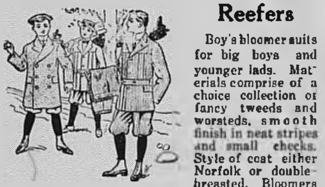
They are genuine French makes. Splendid fitting and best finish in dressed kid, suede and washable. Shades of tan, grey, brown, mode, black and white.

You'll find these glove values the very best:

Big Shipment of New Floor Rugs

Brings our stock to the perfection point. You'll find no difficulty in choosing from this splendid collection of rugs. All the sizes from 2½ yards by 3 yards to 3½ by 4½ are here in extra quality, Tapestry, Brussells and English Wiltons. Very attractive designs and beautiful rich colorings.

Boys New Suits and Spring Reefers



Boy's bloomer suits for big boys and younger lads. Materials comprise of a choice collection of fancy tweeds and worsteds, smooth finish in neat stripes and small checks. Style of coat either Norfolk or double-breasted. Bloomers are all out large and roomy Prices $2.50 to $8.00.

BOY'S SERGE SUITS

Fine twilled imported all wool navy serge. Extra well made and particularly well lined. Full fitting bloomers $5.00 to $7.50.

STYLISH SPRING REEFERS

For boys, ages 3 to 7 years. $3 to $4.50.

Mens' Spring Suits

Have you seen our stock of Mens' and Young Mens' Suits? It's by far the largest and best lot of clothes ever collected under one roof in Walkerton. In values we are ready to match them as winners.

The patterns are very neat stripes and small fine checks. Colors quiet and in good taste. Sizes 33 to 44.

The up to date styles, the excellence of materials and the superiority of tailoring combined with very moderate prices makes our clothing the best buying proposition that can be offered in ready to wear garments.

STEPHAN BROS.

SEPARATE SCHOOL REPORT

HONOR ROLL.

Sen. IV—Agnes Obrecht, Florence O'Neil, Bernard Zettler, Joseph Gill, Norval O'Malley, Minnie McGregor, Florence Oberle, Peter Zettler, Albert Waechter, Lorne Hergott, Robert Wilhelm.

Jun. IV—Edna Giesler, Olive Weiler, Jerome Bruder, Charles McNab, Irene Brick, Cecilia Batte, Jean Reichenbach, Bella Lippert, Arthur Giesler, William Irwin, Clement Obrecht, L. Monahan, Harold Walker, Lizzie Sweeney, Margaret McCurdy, Gillen Eckenswiller, Mabel Schmidt.

Sen. III—Margaret Yaeck, Clement Wilhelm, Cecilia Canio, Veronica Scanlon, Thomas Monahan, Madeline Weller, Melvin Schmidt, Rita Weiss, George Lettner, Mary Hauck, Kathleen Oberle, Leander Meyer, Hilda Kuntz, Frank Mosack, Louise Lippert, Mellnda Schumacher, Frances Ernst, Beatrice Klein, Gladys Fehrenbach, Loretta Schumacher, Thomas Reichenbach, Stephen St. Marie, Leo Weiler.

Jun. III—Florence Obrecht, Elizabeth O'Connor, Fred Irwin, Violet Lumley, Henry Flach, Gladys Jarvis, Christella Schnurr, William Batte, D. Waechter.

Sen. II—H. Schnurr, Elna Sutter, Clarence Weller, Edwin Schmidt, C. Hesch, Wilbert Frieburger, Loretta Schuett, Lyal Cousins, Violet Frieburger, Alex. McNab, Edwin Weller.

Jun. II—Loretta Kunneman, Hilda McNamara, A. Sutter, J. Sweeney, Gladys Eckenswiller, Lavrene Yaeck, Mary Weber, Clara Giesler, H. Zimmer, Willard Walker.

Sen. I—Harold Schiestel, Kathleen Sidle, Agnes Weber, Rita Waechter, Leona Waechter, Gerard Ernewein, Norman Frieburger, Cleopha Weiler, Albert Batte.

Jun. I—Albert Giesler, Teresa Meyer, Andrew Fehrenbach, Alex. Hann, Joseph Batte, Joseph Lippert, Olive Hesch, Marie Ernewein, A. Canio, B. Schnurr, Leona Schnurr, Lillian Frieburger, Charles Schnurr, Vera Oberle, Clarence Barbetich, Harold Schnurr, Kelly Lettner, Clarence Deutinger.

THE SAVOY CAFE

NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP

QUICK LUNCH

SPECIAL DINNER

Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.

BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS WITH FRIED POTATOES

BREAD AND BUTTER

PIE

WITH TEA OR COFFEE.

25 cts.

PINKERTON

Mr Robt Gale who has been visiting at the Manse the past week returned to his home near Alma on Monday.

Mr Jas Andrews returned on Wednesday of last week from Walkerton where he had been serving on the jury.

Mr Jerry Desmond left for the west on Monday.

Mr Harry Elphick left for the west last week.

The numerous sufferers from la grippe all seem to be well on the way to recovery.

Our announcement two weeks ago that the rink had closed for the season was a little hasty as it has been in full swing ever since. The boys intend to have ice for Easter and possibly Victoria Day.

FORMOSA

Mr. Jos Ernewein, of Belmore, and his mother were here on business last week.

Henry P. Goetz of Buffalo, came on a visit last Wednesday and left for home again on Saturday.

Mathew Beninger of Mildmay, moved in his mothers house near the church last week.

Henry Mosack has leased the Riversdale Hotel for 5 years.

A lot around here are laid up with lagrippe.

Mr. Jim Kramer intends to make cider a few days when the weather gets warmer.

Some of our farmers are busy making maple syrup.

LETTER FROM ENGLAND

Continued from page 1

ing allowed off the boat, came very hard on all of us.

We considered ourselves very lucky that we came to the Irish coast safely. There was a German submarine on the lookout for us. It was rammed by a British passenger boat and sunk. The last night of our journey we went about twenty-two miles an hour faster than the boat called the Massanobia, ever made. We were in much danger, perhaps the most when we left the Irish coast for England about ourteen hours run, for Avonsworth on the west coast of England. The same morning that we arrived in England there was a cattle-boat sunk close by where we arrived.

There was an Austrian spy caught signalling out of one of the port holes of the boat on which we sailed. He was hired on the vessel as a violinist for the officers in the first class department of the boat. He was put under arrest and if the military authorities give him the full penalty for his offence he will be put to death. I also got news from good authority that there were spies arrested on the two boats behind us, Megantic and the Vanderland.

Five thousand Canadians of the second contingent have arrived safely in England and they are all ever ready for a chance to serve their King and country.

In the small area of the country around us there are stationed about 35,000 soldiers, and it is a very rare thing to see a man in civilian clothes.

Your Son,

W. P. Hanley.

Lion-like Exit.

Following its lamb-like entrance, the month of March has every indication of bearing out the old saying of "coming in like a lamb and going out like a lion" and vice versa. After a spell of real spring weather, a regular blizzard has been raging all this week, and the snowfall is almost as heavy as any this year in the same time.

New Postage April 15th.

A war tax of one cent has been imposed on each letter and postcard mailed in Canada for delivery in Canada, and United States or Mexico, and on each letter mailed in Canada for delivery in the United Kingdom and British Possessions generally, and wherever the two cent rate applies, to become effective on and from the 15th April, 1915. This War Tax is to be prepaid by the senders by means of a War Stamp for sale by Postmasters and other postage stamp vendors. Wherever possible, stamps on which the word "War Tax" have been printed should be used for prepayment of the War Tax, but should ordinary postage stamps be used for this purpose, they will be accepted. This War Stamp or additional Stamp for war purposes should be affixed to the upper right hand portion of the address side of the envelope or post card, close to the regular postage so that it may be readily cancelled at the same time as the postage. In the event of failure on the part of the sender through over-sight or negligence to prepay the war tax on each letter or postcard they will be sent immediately to the nearest Branch Dead Letter Office. It is essential that postage on all classes of mail matter should be prepaid by means of ordinary postage stamps. The War Tax stamp will not be accepted in any case for the prepayment of postage.

Donations to Red Cross Fund

Mr. K. M. Taylor, Sec.-Treas. of the Walkerton Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, acknowledges the receipt of the following amounts towards the needs of the Society:—

Proceeds Lecture held Dec. 11	$82 05
" " " Feb. 20	27 65
Town of Walkerton, grant for Feb	100 00
Town of Walkerton, grant for March	100 00
Miss Corinna Sinclair, Life Membership	25 00
Collected on Flag Day	105 13
Soldiers' Aid Tea Room Dec. donation	50 00
Soldiers' Aid Tea Room Jan. donation	50 00
Soldiers' Aid Tea Room Feb. donation	50 00
School Sec. No. 5 Brant	20 00
" " 6 "	37 30
" " 3 "	31 05
Proceeds Entertainment, C.O.F.	35 73
Grant I.O.O.F.	10 00
" Sons of Scotland	5 00
" Cargill Dist. L.O.L	2 25
R. M. Player	5 00
Norman Robertson	5 00
James Warren	2 00
D McKechnie	2 00
K. M. Taylor	2 00
G. D. McKay	5 00
Mrs. C. F. Nutting	2 00
Jos. Ellinghausen	50
Miss Margaret McGregor	2 00
O. E. Klein	2 50
Mrs. O. E. Klein	2 50
Dr. Porter	5 00
Jos. Morgan	2 50
Mrs. Morgan	2 50
Jack Fraser	2 00
P. J. Lambertus	1 00
Fred W. Lippert	10 00
A. Collins	5 00
Arthur Robertson	10 00
W. H. McFarlane	2 00
Mrs. "	2 00
Miss Daisy McFarlane	2 00
Miss Greta "	2 00
Wilfrid "	2 00
H. G. Hunter	2 00
Dr. Farewell	5 00
A. B. Klein	2 00
Mrs. A. B. Klein	2 00
John McCool	5 00
Miss A. McCool	1 00
H. L. Willoughby	5 00
W. G. Searle	2 00
Jos. White	2 00
C. H. Rogers	1 00
Mrs Moody	2 00
A. McCartney	2 00
Rev. Purdue	2 00
G. H. D. Martyn	5 00
A. Wesley	2 00
H. M. Lay	2 00
H. Pletsch	2 00
E. H. Sheffield	1 00
N. Hucox	2 00
Mrs M. J. Ramsey	2 00
A. P. Sieveright	2 00
Mrs. E. J. Skelton	2 00
A. P. Todd	2 00
D. McKecracher	2 00
R. M. McCrum & Co	2 00
C. A. Fox	2 00
Stephan Bros	2 00
G. T. Rourke	2 00
John Pleskey	2 00
Carswell Bros	2 00
A. Hutchison	1 00
R. E. Hueghan	1 00
Clarence Smith	1 00
Con Reichenbach	1 00
Albert Beninger	1 00
John Ward	1 00
J. J. Schumacher	2 00
P. J. Moloney	1 00
C. L. Oberle	50
P. J. Murray	50
Mrs. Jno. Rowland	2 00
Miss Florence Rowland	2 00
Miss Norma Rowland	2 00
Miss Ella Beattie	5 00
E Myles	2 00
Jas. Smith	25
Thos Cunningham	1 00
Sam Earwaker	50
H Spitzig	25
E McIntee	25
Chas Giebe	25
Mrs C Oberle	25
W R Halliday	2 50
McCarter & Gibson	1 00
David Korges	25
E Walford	1 00
Jas Hunter	1 00
Miss Jessie Stephan	1 00
Thos Dixson	1 00
J C Bauman	1 00
R E Truax	5 00
H E Truax	1 00
Geo Giesler	25
E Ingram	1 00
F Rennie	1 00
Ed Pengelly	1 00
Mrs Haas	1 00
Mrs D Miller	1 00
Mrs A Pengelly	50
Robt Wilson	50
" "	1 00
John McLean	2 00
Jacob Watchter	1 00
D McLennan	1 00
Sisters Notre Dame	1 00
Joseph Batte	50
Bruder & Schnurr	50
Mrs W Winter	50
Frank Maher	50
Mrs Thos Hyslop	50
Mrs P Kenny	50
Mrs J Bergmann	50
Robt Harrison	50
Mrs L. R Anderson	50
John Vogt	2 00
Fred Schmidt	25
David Robertson	5 00
John S Tolton	5 00
Janet Flett	2 00
Elizabeth Flett	2 00
L Sinclair, M D	3 00
H H Sinclair	2 00
Rev Thos Wilson	2 00
The Regent	2 00
The Secretary I. O. D. E	2 00
The Convenor	2 00
Peter Bremner	2 00
John O'Malley	1 00
S W Vogan	2 00
J H Appel	1 00
H J B[illegible]	1 00
T E Attwood	2 00
Michael Scheerter	2 00
R Irwin	2 00
Alex George	1 00
James White	5 00
[illegible] Goode	2 50
W H McKay	2 50
Rev R M Haller	1 00
W H Thompson	2 00
Miss A Thompson	3 00
W M Shaw	5 00
Alma Swain	50
Proceeds of Tipperary Tea at Mrs Hugh McNeill's	11 00
	$981 00

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.

Pure Manitoba Flour

Pastry "

Graham "

Cracked Wheat, Farnia Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.

Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS.
Walkerton — Ont.

Seeds

1913 Catalogue Now Ready

80 pages brim full of good things. Contains valuable information for the farmer, market gardener and private planter. 12 pages of the latest and best, world-wide introductions. Valuable premiums. Your choice of 6 new varieties still unnamed (not for sale until 1914) absolutely free with every order, large or small. Don't delay writing. Mail this with your name and address. Your request will receive special attention. State if you grow vegetables or flowers for market, as we have a special price list. Write to-day while it's fresh in your mind.

DARCH & HUNTER SEED CO., Limited
Dept.
LONDON, CANADA

Wood's Phosphodine,

The Great English Remedy. Tones and invigorates the whole nervous system, makes new Blood in old Veins. Cures Nervous Debility, Mental and Brain Worry, Despondency, Loss of Energy, Palpitation of the Heart, Failing Memory. Price $1 per box, six for $5. One will please, six will cure. Sold by all druggists or mailed in plain pkg. on receipt of price. New pamphlet mailed free. THE WOOD MEDICINE CO., TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE COOK MEDICINE CO., TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

Easter Offerings

WE ARE NOW READY to show you a most complete selection of anything you desire in early Spring clothing or wearing apparel for Men, Women, Misses and Children.

Ladies' New Spring Blouses 50c, 1.00, 1.25 to $3.00.

Dainty Collars and Collar and Cuff Setts, 25c. to 2.00.

Ladies' Spring Suits $10, 12, 15, 18, 20 to $25.

Ladies' and Misses' Spring Coats and Waterproof Coats Prices $5.00, 10.00, 12.00, 15.00 and $20.00

Childrens', Misses and Ladies' Spring Wash Dresses—All prices up to 5.00 and 6.00

Silks and Dress Goods Coming in Every Day.

Boy's and Men's Furnishings

All the new styles in "Fitwell" Hats, stiff and soft felt $1.00 to $2.00 each.——Men's and Boy's Spring Caps 25c to $1.50, $2.50

Easter Novelties in Ties just in.

Boy's and Youth's suits—Buster Brown, Norfolk, Single and Double Breasted Duck sack Suits, Polo Suits.—The most up-to date Boy's clothing ever shown in Walkerton. Prices 2.00 to 12.00 a suit.

Men's Ready to Wear and Made to Measure clothing—correctly tailored suits 8.00 to 30.00.

McBurney & Co.

Dr. de Van's Female Pills

A reliable French regulator; never fails. These pills are exceedingly powerful in regulating the generative portion of the female system. Refuse all cheap imitations. Dr. de Van's are sold at $5 a box, or three for $10. Mailed to any address. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR

ICE CREAM

GO TO

Erdman's PHONE No. 100

THE

Merchants Bank

OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,134

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

Special this Month

Business Courses

The Walkerton Business College is offering special rates for a three months' commercial course in the following subjects:—Penmanship, Spelling, Arithmetic, Commercial law, Introductory forms to single and double entry, Book-keeping and Typewriting. Now is the time for the young people of this vicinity to improve their education. for further information regarding this course, apply to

P. J. MOLONEY
Principal Walkerton

Walkerton Markets

Hay	per	ton	$16.00	to	$17.00
Oats	"	bsh.	55	"	60
Wheat	"	"	1.20	to	1 30
Barley	"	"	60	to	65
Potatoes	"	bag	50	"	60
Butter	"	lb.	28	"	30
Eggs	"	doz.	18	"	18
Chicken	"	lb.	12	"	14
Ducks	"	"	12	"	14
Turkeys	"	"	15	"	16

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

First Glimpse of Spring

Every day new home things are popping into view. In the peoples store house cleaning me is just ahead. new rugs draperies are needed his big home store is fairly bulging with interesting and attractive things ready for you for comfort giving, beautifying the home. No store shows more satisfying stocks and none price things more fairly. Special selling events are in evidence every day here during the spring house cleaning season.

RUGS

We have special good values in large size rugs in tapestry axminister.

NEW FLOOR OIL CLOTHS LINOLEUMS

Extra heavy Scotch printed in new block patterns.

Pure groceries alway fresh.

J. H. Appel

Produce Wanted Phone 53

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

VOL XXXIV-No 14

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 8th 1915—8 PAGES

Fine Packaged Chocolates

You will find our packaged chocolates to be the finest products in that line and at same price as many poorly finished and packed kinds.

Every package of Willards Forkdipt Chocolates is guaranteed to please you or we are authorized to replace or refund, your money.

In all price packages from 10c.

Our Chocolates are always fresh.

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

MILLINERY
Easter Specials

For EASTER WEEK I am making a special effort to please you both in Quality and in Price, and would be pleased to have you call.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY
The Rife Block — Walkerton

Sufferers from Rheumatism will be delighted with

"Rexall" RHEUMATIC Tablets

50c. a box only at

SIEVERIGHT'S
The REXALL Store

MEN'S FURNISHINGS

THE new Spring Furnishings are here. New Cheney Cravats, the new tie with some of the cleverest color combination and designs you ever saw.

New Spring shirts, collars, gloves. See the new Arrow collar, Norman, in ¼ sizes.

Our Spring hats lead in fashions.

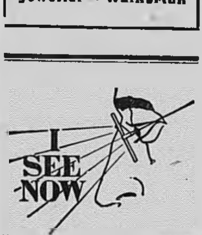
G.T.ROURKE
Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store
Walkerton, - Ont.

JAS. TOLTON
Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

"EDISON" PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson
Jeweller - Walkerton



"Looking back I see I never saw before."
This is the exclamation of satisfied customers.
We have fitted successfully stubborn cases that others have failed in.
Satisfaction guaranteed.
Consultation free.

C. A. Fox, Walkerton
Jeweller and Optician

FOR ICE CREAM GO TO
Erdman's PHONE No. 100

Vote for the By-laws!

Mr. Ted Kidd, of Mildmay spent this week here.

Miss Millie Ferguson spent Easter in Stratford.

Rev. Father Haller was a visitor in Preston this week.

Mr. "Mike" LaFrance was a visitor in Clinton on Sunday.

Miss Diebel of Hanover spent Sunday at Mr. C. Cooper's.

Mr. W. D. Ostic of Toronto, was a visitor here this week.

The smartest ladies spring coats and suits at Stephan Bros.

Mr. John Casklonette, of Preston, is visiting friends in town.

All the new import dress goods are now here.—Stephan Bros.

Mrs. Alex McCarter and Gladys are visiting friends in Glamis.

Mrs. Hughes and children of Waterloo spent Easter at C. Fox's.

Miss Gladys Smith, of Toronto, is visiting friends here this week.

Mr. Harry Galbraith of Shelburne spent Sunday with friends here.

Miss E. Cameron and Miss O. Fisher, of Paisley, spent Tuesday in town.

Miss Florence and Mr. Jno Rowland Jr, spent Easter in Rochester, Mich.

Miss Lilian Baechler is spending two weeks with her parents in Greenock

Miss Roland of Toronto was a guest at the home of Mrs. F. Clarke on Sunday.

Mr. Sam. Hessnauer of Berlin, is renewing acquaintances here this week.

Mrs. R. Harrison of Toronto, spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Appel.

Miss Martin of the High School Staff, is on a visit to her parents in London.

Mr. James George, of Port Credit, spent Easter with his brothers Alex and Wm.

Mrs. and Miss McNeill, of Paisley were guests at Mr. Frank Spieran's on Sunday.

Watsons ladies spring underwear. Combinations and two piece, at Stephan Bros.

Mrs. Devereaux and two children are guests at the home of her mother, Mrs Porteous,

Mr. W. H. Adams of Toronto was a guest at the home of R. E. Truax M. P. on Sunday.

Buy Lancaster linoleums, New designs, three qualities, 4 yards wide.—Stephan Bros.

Mr. Wm. Taylor of Toronto spent the holiday with his cousins, Messrs, Ernie and Bert Cartwright.

See the new silk crepes for waists and gowns. Worth $1.00 for 75c a yard. Stephan Bros.

Mrs. Norman Walford left today for Hespeler where she will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ramsey.

Miss Fanny Ostrander, who has spent the past month at her home at Otter Creek, leaves for Kingston this week.

Mrs. B. Courtney of Amherstburg, accompanied by her son Armond, is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. E. Walford.

5 or 6 room flat to rent by May 1st, very convenient, hard and soft water. Apply at The Telescope office, or to C. Patrick.

Mrs. W. Norrish and daughter, Miss Vera left to-day for Ottawa where they will visit at the home of Mr. Erbrooke Norrish.

Mr. and Mrs. Symon Bundscho and Mrs. Dietrich, of Shakespeare, Ont., spent Easter with the latter's daughter. Mrs. J. D. Hergott.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Sinclair (nee Miss Ella South), of Cheltenham, spent Easter at the home of the latter's father, Mr. J. W. South, at Otter Creek.

Fertilizer for gardens and field crops, cheaper more productive and more easily applied than manure. Large stock on hand. C. F. Nutting, Walkerton, phone 61.

Mr. Wm. Truax of Thamesville is on a visit to his parents. Mr. and Mrs. S. Truax. Mr. Truax is doing well and is now foreman of the planing mill in Thamesville

Miss Laura Wagner a recent graduate of the Walkerton Business College, now holding a position in Mayor Halliday's office Chesley, was a visitor in town on Saturday.

Miss Emma Lippert a recent graduate of the Walkerton Business College who has been holding a position in L. M. Haye's office, Toronto, was a visitor in town last week.

Cracked Eggs.
Cracked eggs for sale at the Walkerton Egg & Dairy.

To Rent.
A brick house on Victoria St, to rent all modern conveniences. Apply to F. Rennie.

Wanted.
A good servant girl to go to London, sixteen dollars a month,—Apply to Goode & McKay.

Notice.
Owing to the high price of flour, bread will be strictly cash, on and after Monday next, April 15th.

A. HEHN, baker

For Sale.
Eggs for hatching and poultry for sale, white Wyandottes.—Apply to Fred Brislan.

Wanted.
One or two girls wanted to set type or boys, to learn the printing trade. Apply at the Telescope office or at the house.

Brant Farmer's Club.
A meeting of the Brant Farmer's club will be held at the home of Mr. Conrad Felzing on Tuesday evening, April 13. Ladies welcome.

Bill Passed.
The bill authorizing the town council of Walkerton to consolidate their debenture debt was given the final reading and passed in the Legislature on Tuesday last.

Attended Funeral.
Mrs. H. M. Lay was in Toronto this week attending the funeral of her sister Miss Isabel King who died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno King, 4 Grange Road, on Sunday.

Struck Flowing Well.
The contractors who are drilling the new artisian wells at the pumping station have struck an excellent flowing well at the depth of 230 feet. From this it would appear that Walkerton will never again be facing a water famine.

Johnston Defeated.
In the bout for the heavyweight championship of the world fought at Havana on Easter Monday, Jess Willard, the giant white hope took away the world's title from the negro, Jack Johnston. Willard knocked Johnston out in the twenty-sixth round.

Easter Visitors.
Among those who spent the Easter holidays in Walkerton were:- Miss Donalda McKechnie, Shelburne, Miss Jean Everett, Purple Valley. Fred Tory, Durham, Neil Sinclair, Toronto, Miss Ruby Norrish, Drayton, George Clarke, Toronto, Vera Norrish, Niagara Falls, Miss Jean Todd, Toronto, Joe Cain, Durham, Reg Porter, Toronto, Miss Irene and Billie Mattell, Berlin.

Volunteers here.
Among the soldiers who spent the Easter holidays here were:—From London—Privates, Norm Huck, Bert Cartwright, George Kingsbury, Alfred Tolton, Jim Leech. From Guelph—Captain Martin, and privates, Joe Wallace, Reg McCarter, Bob Turner, Norman and Philip Denny, Vic Bell, Louis Rumstadtler, Henry Von Hattan Ray Hyslop, Wm. Weidner, A. Dean, Fred Jewell. From Toronto—Wilbur Cryderman, and Louis Dippel.

Report is Unfounded.
A report has been circulated in Brant recently to the effect that Mr. E. H. Glintz formerly of Brant had been arrested and placed in gaol at Oak River, Man., on a charge of being a German sympathizer and giving expression to pro-German views on the war. Word was received from Mr. Glintz this week stating that this report was without any foundation whatever and is absolutely false. How the story originated is a mystery.

Died in North Dakota.
Word was received here on Tuesday of the death of a former resident of Brant in the person of Mr. Chas Wilhelm which occurred in Forest River N. D., on Monday, He was about fifty years of age. Two brothers of the deceased, Frank and Ambrose and his mother reside in Brant. Mrs. Noah Binder, also of Brant is a sister. The remains will be brought home for burial, interment to be made in the Chepstow cemetery.

Bruce is Hit.
In the casuality list sent out from Ottawa last Friday, the name of Private H. Bridge appears in the list of Canadians killed while in action. He was a member of the First Battilion and enlisted in Walkerton. Private Ernie Parsons of this town, who went away with the first bunch of Chesley boys, was wounded in a village in the north of France by the bursting of a sharpnel and is now in a hospital in that locality. He was not on the firing line when the accident happened. Word was also received in town on Tuesday morning that Capt. Gruver was ill in a hospital near the firing line.—Chesley Enterprise.

Brought to Hospital.
Mrs. Haughan, an aged resident of Brant township, who has been ill for some time was brought to the hospital here on Monday. The aged lady's condition is said to be serious.

Eggs For Hatching.
For the balance of the season, eggs for hatching from Fraser's high class barred rocks, white wyandottes, Campines, and Butter Cups, will be $1.00 for 15 eggs.

Meeting of Bowling Club,
The annual meeting of the Bowling Club will be held in the council chamber, Town hall, on Friday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of electing officers and general business.

Comedy Play.
The Walkerton Amateur Dramatic Club will present "A Pair of Spectacles" a comedy in three acts, in the Opera House, Walkerton, on Friday, April 16th, under the auspices of the Ladies' Hospital Aid. Admission 25c. Reserved seats 35c. and 50c.

Bob Rowland Enlisted.
Mr. Bob Rowland of Queens, Kingston, spent Wednesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Rowland, Bob has joined the Platoon Corps of Queens University, organized for overseas service and left today for Montreal where he will join his comrades and the corps will shortly return to Niagara on-the-Lake where they will receive a months' training, prior to leaving for England.

Engaged New Solicitor
The Walkerton Business College is making rapid progress and Mr. Moloney means to outdo the past having engaged a regular solicitor for looking up students and positions and placing them in the very best as soon as they are ready, in the person of Mr. Wood cock. He is well up in college work having for the past twenty five years been connected with the Hamilton, London, Ingersol, Tilsonburg and Buffalo N. Y. colleges.

Wants a License.
One of the items of business with which the South Bruce License Commissioners will have to deal with at their meeting this month will be a petition which is being circulated by Mr. Adam Knox proprietor of the Pinkerton Hotel asking that a license be given to that hostelry. In view of the fact that the temperance question is now so much before the public, and that the sale of intoxication liquors is slowly but surely being stamped out, not only in Canada, but throughout the world, we would deem Mr. Knox's efforts to secure a license, wasted energy, for under the present circumstances there is no doubt but that the judicious commissioners of South Bruce will refuse to grant his request.

Petitions for Dry Canteens.
The Ontario W. C. T. U has organized a campaign against the introduction of the wet canteen among the Canadian soldiers at the front. A circular has been sent out to the "mothers of soldiers" pointing out that they allowed their sons to go on the understanding that there would be no wet canteen and that, in the words of General Hughes, the boys would "return home as clean and as manly as they went.". "In the face of these objections," says the circular "the Imperial military authorities have re-established the sale of alcoholic liquors in the canteens serving our soldiers and to this the Canadian Government has given its passive consent." A petition to Sir Robert Borden from "Mothers and wives in Canada" was posted in the churches throughout the town on Sunday of last week and were largely signed.

Hynes Released from Coast League.
The following despatch referring to Matt Hynes, formerly of Walkerton, appeared in the London Advertiser on Friday:

"Matt Hynes the former London pitcher, who has been out on the Pacific Coast for the past couple of seasons, has been the property of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific coast league until just recently. Matt went to the Los Angeles team last spring, but could not get his arm into shape, to take his turn in the box. He was given another trial this spring and the same trouble developed. Matt's arm refused to get into working order and the Los Angeles club finally tied the can to him and released him outright. Matt may be back in the Canadian League although he likes the coast climate, he may find it easier to get his pitching fin in shape in this part of the country.

MARRIED.

WATSON—LAMB—At the Manse on Wednesday, April 7th, Mr. Robert Marshall Watson, of Eldersile, to Miss Katherine E. Lamb, of Greenock.

BORN

FILZING — In Brant on Saturday, April 3rd, to Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Filzing, (nee Miss Whitehead,) a daughter.

Proceeds $103.50.
The ladies' Association of the Methodist church served dinner and supper to the visiting Odd Fellows on Good Friday, the proceeds of the day amounting to $103.50 Contary to a report in the London Free Press this money does not go to Red Cross work, but will be used in the church.

Sheldon Out of Pen.
Charles D. Sheldon, the blind pool operator, who victimized a large number of Walkerton people and whose case caused so much interest in Canada when he was exposed and arrested in 1911, was released from the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary this morning. He was sentenced to five year's imprisonment, but has been a good prisoner and has earned the maximum remission of his sentence each year.

Knocking the College.
In last week's Herald & Times an item appeared which was not only detrimental to the good name of the Walkerton Business College as an educational institution but also to the good name of the principal, Mr. P. J. Moloney The general public consider the Times criticism is no doubt attempting to compel Mr. Moloney to answer for the sins of former proprietors of the College. The more educational opportunities a town can offer to the young people, the better it is considered it be, and in this regard, to Walkerton, the Business College is no small asset, therefore in knocking the College our contemporary has forsaken the straight and narrow path and in knocking the town. Since the present principal has taken over the Business College it has taken on new life and the fact that there is a great demand for the students who have completed their courses in this college, should be sufficient assurance that the tuition given the pupils of Mr. Moloney is as good as can be secured in Ontario.

Dr. Fraser at the Front.
Mr. A. Collins received a letter from Dr. J. J. Fraser who is with the first Canadian Contingent in France, on Monday, The doctor has been at the Canadian base hospital at the front for some time and just prior to writing Mr. Collins had been taking his turn at field ambulance service, caring for the wounded right at the trenches and assisting in removing them to the hospitals. Amongother things he gave a description of a Zeppelin which he had seen scouting above the British lines and also the wonderful sight of several of the Allies' aeroplanes doing reconnaissance work above the German lines, while the Teutons fired shot and shell at them in an attempt to bring them to earth. The planes, however, returned to their quarters unscathed. Dr. Fraser is apparently enjoying the soldier's life, but the one objection which he makes, is that the water which they are obliged to drink is in a very unsanitary condition. That citizens of Walkerton should object to pay the few dollars in water-rates for water such as we have here is now an absurdity to him.

Much Ado About Nothing.
Some days ago an express messenger at Whitby eloped with $9000 which had been shipped by express to that town. Included in the $9000 was 500 one dollar bills, and as all trace of the erring messenger was lost, the Company offered through the medium of the daily papers $50. for everyone of these bills returned and it was this offer which led up to the "much ado about nothing" in Walkerton. Naturally the local sleuths and get-rich-quick friends began fingering their greenbacks. Chief Ferguson was the first to fall, finding a bill in his pocket on Thursday night which he had recently received from the bank which as he thought answered the description in the newspapers in every particular. He notified Mr. Bean the Canadian expressman and he also found a bill with all the identification marks of those stolen. Despite the late hour, they wired the provincial authorities at Toronto and their suspicions were strengthened when they were told that they probably had some of the $1.50 dollar bills. The following morning the Chief consulted the money specialist, K. M. Taylor, and from the description in the papers, he also identified the bill presented to him, as some of the missing five hundred and prepared to pack up for immediate shipment 250 of these bills with the same identification marks which were in the bank. Excitement ran high for a time for it became a foregone conclusion that the thief had visited Walkerton for at least half a dozen men were found with similar greenbacks in their wallets. Then came the awful tumble to terrafirma. While examining one of the bills in the Hartley House, Mr. W. H. McBurney discovered the tell-tale deficiency which relegated these green-backs back to the class of ordinary everyday, dollar bills and thus blasted the hopes of not a few, who were counting on some easy money, and relieved the agitation in the chief's mind with regard to the whereabouts of the messenger. Instead of being stamped "C" as the stolen money, they bore the first letter in the alphabet, "A." The Chief at once wired the provincial authorities that there was "nothing doing."

Opera House, Friday, April 16th.
Keep the date in mind and reserve it, to see the comedy "A Pair of Spectacles", presented by the Walkerton Amateur Dramatic Club in the town hall.

Literary Society Formed.
The pupils and staff of the Walkerton Business College met in their class rooms on Thursday last, when they elected the following officers for their literary society for the coming session:—

Honorary Pres.	Miss E. Ingram
President	Mr. R. Stewart
Hon. Vice-Pres.	Mr. P. J. Moloney
Vice-Pres.	Miss R. Warren
Secretary	Mr. H. Henderson
Man. Com.	Miss M. McKee Mr. H. Young Mr. H. Oberle Mr. E. Bilger

Exercises will be held on the afternoons of each Friday to which any one interested is cordially invited.

Moffat—McMorran.
The following item was clipped from the Swan Lake, Manitoba Echo:—

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, March 24th, at the home of the brides' parents, when Miss Nellie Findlay, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McMorran of Somerset was united in marriage to Mr. Geo. Elmer Moffat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moffat of Elgin, by the Rev. J. R. Campbell. At the appointed hour, to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus played by Miss Myrtle McMorran, the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, where the groom awaited her. She looked very dainty in her bridal dress of cream satin with overdress of cream ninon, trimmed with swansdown and carrying a boquet of cream roses, carnations and ferns, her only ornament being a lovely pearl necklace the gift of the groom. After the wedding breakfast, the young couple left by the noon train amid showers of rice and confetti for their future home in Elgin.

Public School Report

GRADE VII

Sr IV—Pass—R. Barrington N. Lay H. Everett M. Wilson M. Bonnyman C. Wilton D. Kenny B. Farewell B Moore I Wisser B. Everett P. Myles E. Ramsey S. Taggart G. Hibbert H. Johnston.

Jr. IV—Hon—N Shaw S. Bremner G. McCarter J. Norrish C. McKay Pass—T. Crawford J Kenny M Hylker

H. L. Willoughby
Principal

GRADE VI.

Sr. — Honours - Gladys VanHorne Catharine Attwood Lorne Wallace

Pass — Hazel Paull, Irvin Ingles, Willie George, Jim Rennie, Iva Ernst, Arthur McCartney.

Jr.—Honours— Gladys Millar Pass —Ada Bolden, Violet Bush, Eileen Cryderman, Florence Wilton, Arlie Lindy Mildred Royce, Milton McGregor.

J. Stead.

GRADE V

Honours—Elda Searle, Bruce Hunter Elgar Thick, Pass— Clara Kerney, John Ernel, John Dietsche, Minnie Petteplace.

Jun.— Pass— Helen Wilson. Allan Schaus, Irene Harrison, Dora White

M. Ross.

GRADE IV

Hon—Clifford Yates, Norman Pleskey (Alma Searle, Doris Vanhorne,) Earl Forsythe. Jack Knepflar. (Madaleen Hyslop, Pearl Riehl, Gladys Sutton, Mary Perdue, Harvey Inglis.

Pass—Norman Webb Emma Schaus Dorothy Truax, Vinnie Dennie,

M. Sinclair

JUNIOR II

Hon—J Lowe, F Bush, C Gordon, E Riley, V Anderson, D Anderson, W Goode, Pass—J McConnell, A McNeill W Forsythe, D Crawford, V Trussler, N Truax, H Myles, J Pengelley, N McCartney, E Pletsch, E Yaeck.

Sen 1—Hon—J Vanhorne, I Moore, H Buehlow, H Paull, E Yates, D Polley, W Hunt, M Dietz, G Cousins.

Pass—A Royce, W Ballantyne, W Jerrome, M Fortune, K Perdue, O Sieling, G George, A Taggart, D McNeill, R Hampson.

Agnes Warren

GRADE II

First cl—Hon—E Singer, W Hehn. E Webber, C Hood, J Griffen, R Fruin, K Hawthorne, F Johnston, Pass—C Fields K Pletsch.

Prim Hon—O Fisk, G Gordon, O Paull, G Wallace, H Ernest, E Lindley K Perdue, I Schmidt, J Weber, A Buehlow, E Truax S Hehn. Pass—J Nutting.

W Thompson

GRADE I

Sr Primer—M Everett, E Abel, S Lymberry, N Whitehead, H Moore, B Orner, A Reichenbach, B Bush, M Lindley, H George K Fortune, P Webb, N Forsythe, N Buehlow.

Mid Primer—T McEwen, J Godwin, N Adair, F Lymberry, C Baulk, L Player, M Appel, I Baulk.

Jr Primer—R Hunter, M Shaw, H Hawthorne, S Anderson, M Pletsch, A Fennell. L Searle- E Leake, E Schmidt.

A D. Thompson

THE KING'S PARDON

(From the Sketch.)

Ask the first thousand bluejackets you meet ashore any afternoon the fleet is going to leave why they joined the navy. Nine hundred and ninety-nine will eye you suspiciously, awaiting the evitable tract. If none is forthcoming, they will give a short, grim laugh, shake their heads, and, as likely as not, expectorate. These portents may be taken to imply that they really do not know themselves or are too shy to say so if they do.

The thousandth does not laugh. He may shake his head; spit he certainly will. And then, scenting silent sympathy, he guides you to a quite harparlor where you can pay for his beer while he talks.

This is the man with a past and a grievance.

* * * * * *

Nosey Baines, stoker, second class, was a man with a past. He also owned a grievance when he presented himself for entry into His Majesty's navy. It was about his only possession.

Nosey was not, of course, his strict baptismal name. That was Orson no less. Therein lay the past. Nosey was the result of facial peculiarities quite beyond his control. His nose was out of proportion to the remainder of his features. This system of nomenclature survives from the stone age, and sailors being conservative folk, still finds favor on the lower decks of H. M. ships and vessels.

The writer in the certificate office at the naval depot where Nosey Baines was entered for service as a second-class stoker under training had had a busy morning. There had been a rush of new entries owing to the conclusion of the hop-picking system, the insolvency of a local ginger-beer bottling factory, and other mysterious influences. Nosey's parchment certificate was the nineteenth he had made out that morning.

"Name?"

Nosey spelt it patiently.

"Religion?"

Nosey looked sheepish and rather flattered—as a Hottentot might if you asked him for the address of his tailor. The writer gave the surface of the parchment a preparatory rub with a piece of india-rubber. "Well, come on. R. C., Churcher-England, Methodist."

Nosey selected the second alternative. It sounded patriotic, at all events.

"Next o' kin. Nearest relative?"

"Never 'ad none," replied Nosey, haughtily. "I'm a norfun."

"Ain't you got no one?" asked the weary writer. "S'pose you was to die—wouldn't you like no one to be told?"

Nosey brought his black brows together with a scowl and shook his head. This was what he wanted—an opportunity to declare his antagonism to all the gentler influence of the land. If he was to die even.

* * * * * *

The ship's corporal waiting to guide him to the new entry mess touched him on the elbow. The writer was gathering his papers together. A sudden wave of forlornness swept over Nosey. He wanted his dinner, and was filled with emptiness and self-pity. The world was vast and disinterested in him. There were evidences on all sides of an unfamiliar and terrifying discipline.

"You come alonger me," said the voice of the ship's corporal—a deep, alarming voice, calculated to inspire awe and reverence in the breast of a new entry. Nosey turned, and then stopped irresolutely. "If he was to die—"

"Ere," he said, relenting. "Nex o' kin—I ain't got none. But I gotter fren'." He colored hotly. "Miss Abel's 'er name, 14, Golder's Square, Bloomsbury, London—Miss J. Abel."

This was Janie, the grievance. It was to punish Janie that Nosey had flung in his lot with those who go down to the sea in ships.

Prior to this drastic step Nosey had been an errand-boy—a rather superior kind of errand-boy who went his rounds on a ramshackle bicycle with a carrier fixed in front. Painted in large letters on the carrier was the legend—

J. HOLMES AND SON,
FISHMONGER.
ICE, ETC.
And in smaller letters underneath—
Cash on Delivery.

Janie was general servant in a Bloomsbury boarding-house. She it was who answered the area-door when Nosey called to deliver such kippers and smoked haddocks as were destined by the gods and Mr. Holmes for the boarding house breakfast-table.

It was hard to say in what respect Janie lit the flame of love within Nosey's breast. She was diminutive and flat-chested; her skin was sallow from life-long confinement in basement sculleries and the atmosphere of the Bloomsbury boarding-house. She had little beady black eyes, and a print dress that didn't fit her at all well. One stocking was generally coming down in folds over her ankle; her hands were chapped and nubbly—pathetic as the marred hands of a woman alone can be. Altogether, she was just the little unlovely slavey of fiction and the drama and everyday life in boarding-house land.

Yet the fishmonger's errand-boy loved her as Antony loved Cleopatra.

Janie met him every other Sunday as near three o'clock as she could get away. The Sunday boarding-house luncheon included soup on its menu, which meant more plates to wash up than usual.

Once a fortnight, from 3 p. m. till 10 p. m., Janie tasted the penultimate triumph of womanhood: she was courted. Poor Janie! No daughter of Eve had less of the coquette in her composition. Not for a moment did she realize the furrows that she was plowing in Nosey's amiable soul. Other girls walked out on their Sundays. The possession of a young man—even a fishmonger's errand-boy on twelve bob a week—was a necessary adjunct to life itself. Of all that walking out implied of love, even as it was understood in Bloomsbury basements, Janie's anemic little heart suspected very little. But romance was there, fluttering tattered ribbons, luring her on through the drab fog of her workaday existence.

It was otherwise with Nosey. His love for Janie was a very real affair, although [illegible] the seeds were not apparent, and the soil in which they took root and thrived—the daily interviews at the area door and these fortnightly strolls—seemed, on the face of it, inadequate. Perhaps he owed his queer gift of constancy to the mysterious past that gave him his baptismal name. They were both unusual.

A certain Sunday afternoon in early autumn found them sitting side by side on a seat in a grubby London square, Janie gripping the handle of cook's borrowed umbrella, which she held perpendicularly before her, the toes of her large boots turned in a little [illegible] was sucking a peppermint bull's-eye.

To Nosey the hour and its place seemed propitious, and he proposed honest marriage.

"Lor'!" gasped Janie, staring before her at the autumn tints that were powdering the dingy elms with gold-dust. There was mingled pride and perplexity in her tones. Slowly she savored the romantic incident to the full, turning it over in her mind, as the bull's-eye revolved in her cheek, before finally putting it from her. Then—

"I couldn't marry you," she said, gently. "You ain't got no prospecks." Walking out with twelve bob a week was one thing; marriage quite a different matter.

In the orphanage where she had been reared in infancy the [illegible] sisters had, perhaps, not been unmindful of the possibility of this accident. A single life of drudgery and hardship, even as a boarding-house slavey, meant, if nothing more, meals and a roof over her head. Poor, ill-paid marriage demanded [illegible] sooner or later, starvation. This one idea remained to guide her when all else of the good sisters' teaching grew dim in her memory.

"Prospecks!" Marry without and you were done. So ran Janie's philosophy. The remains of the bull's-eye faded into dissolution.

Nosey was rebuffed. The perfidy of woman!

"You led me on," he cried. "You bin carryin' on wiv me—'Ow could you?—cheap places an' fried fish suppers an' all—" He referred to the sweets of their courtship. "Ow Janie!"

Janie wept.

After that the daily meetings at the area door were not to be thought of. Nosey flung himself off in a rage and for two successive nights contemplated suicide from the parapet of Westminster bridge. The [illegible] round of duties on the ramshackle bicycle became impossible. The very traffic [illegible] the name of Janie in his ears. London stifled him; he wanted to get away and bury himself and his grief in new surroundings. Then his eye was caught by one of the admiralty recruiting posters in the window of a Whitehall post office. It conjured up a vision of roving, care-free life, of illimitable spaces and great heathen [illegible]. A life of hard living and hard drinking, when a man could forget.

But somehow Nosey didn't forget.

The navy received him without emotion. They cut his hair and pulled out his teeth. They washed and disinfected and fed him generously. He was taught, in a [illegible] drill-shed, to recognize and respect authority and after six months' preliminary training informed that he was a second-class stoker and as such drafted to sea in the battle cruiser squadron.

Here Nosey found himself an [illegible] efficient unit among nearly a thousand barefooted, free-fisted, careless, clean-shaven men, who smelt perpetually of soap and damp serge, and comprised the lower deck complement of a British battle-cruiser.

He worked in the electric lit steel tunnel, with red-hot furnaces on one side and the gaping mouths of coal caverns on the other. You reached it by perpendicular steel ladders descending through a web of hissing steampipes and machinery; once across greasy deck-plates and through a maze of dimly-lit alleys, you would find Nosey shoveling coal into the furnaces under the direction of a hairy-chested individual afflicted, men said, by religious mania, who sucked pieces of coal as an antidote to chronic thirst and spat about him indiscriminately.

There were eight-hour intervals in this work, during which Nosey slept or ate his meals or played a mouth organ in the lee of one of the turret-guns on deck, according to the hour of the day. He slept in a hammock, slung in an electric-lit passage far below the waterline. The passage was ten feet wide, and there were six hammocks slung abreast along the entire length of it.

He ate his meals in a mess with twenty other men, the mess consisting of a deal plank covered with oilcloth for a table, and two narrower planks on each side as seats; there were shelves for crockery against the ship's side. All this woodwork was scrubbed and scoured till it was almost as white as ivory. Other messes, identical in every respect, situated three feet apart, ranged parallel to each other as far as the steel-enameled bulkheads. There were twenty men in each mess, and seventeen messes on that particular mess-deck, and here the members simultaneously ate, slept, sang, washed their clothes, cursed and laughed, skylarked or quarreled all round during the hours of their watch off.

Still Nosey did not forget.

Then came Janie's letter from the Middlesex hospital. Janie was in a decline.

The men who go down into trenches in the firing-line are, if anything, less heroic than the army of cooks and Janies who descend to spend their lives in the basement domestic offices of early Victorian London. Dark and ill-ventilated in summer, gas-lit and airless throughout the foggy winter; flight upon flight of stairs, up which Janie daily toiled a hundred times before she was suffered to seek the attic she shared with the cook under the slates; overwork, lack of fresh air and recreation—all these had told at last.

Nosey availed himself of week-end leave from Portsmouth to journey up to London, and was permitted an interview with her in the big, airy ward.

Neither spoke much. At no time had they been great conversationalists, and now Janie, more diminutive and angular than ever, lost in the folds of a flannel night-gown, was content to hold his hand as long as he was allowed to remain.

The past was ignored, or nearly so. "You didn't orter gone off like that," said Janie, reproaching. "But I'm glad you're a sailor. You look beautiful in them clothes. An' there's prospecks in the navy." Poor little Janie! She had prospecks herself at last.

He left the few flowers he had brought with the sister of the ward when the time came to leave. The nurse followed him into the corridor. "Come and see her every visiting day you can," she said. "It does her good and cheers her. She often speaks of you."

Nosey returned to Portsmouth and his ship. His mess—the mess-deck itself—was agog with rumors. Had he heard the buzz? Nosey had not. "'Ad bin to London to see a fren'," he explained. Then they told him.

The battle cruiser to which he belonged had been ordered to join the Mediterranean fleet. That was Monday. They were to sail for Malta on Thursday.

And Janie was dying in the Middlesex hospital.

* * * * *

The next visiting day found him at Janie's bedside. But instead of his spick-and-span serge suit of Number Ones and carefully ironed sailor collar, Nosey wore a rusty suit of civies (Anglice—civilian clothes). Instead of being clean-shaven, an inconsiderable moustache was feeling its way through his upper lip.

"Where's your sailor clothes?" asked Janie, weakly.

Nosey looked around to reassure himself that they were not overheard. "I done a bunk!" he whispered.

Janie gazed at him with dismayed eyes. "Not—not deserted?"

Nosey nodded. "Don't you take on, Janie. 'S only so's I can stay near yer." He pressed her dry hand. "I got a barrer—whelks an' periwinkles. I've saved a bit o' money. An' now I can stay near you an' come 'ere visiting days."

Janie was too weak to argue or expostulate. In fact, it may have been that she was conscious of a certain amount of pride in Nosey's voluntary outlawry for her sake. And she was glad enough to have someone to sit with her on visiting days and tell her about the outside world she was never to see again. She even went back in spirit to the proud days when they walked out together. It brought balm to the cough-racked nights and the weary passage of the days.

Then the streets echoed with the cries of the paper-boys. The nurses whispered excitedly together in their leisure moments. The doctors seem to acquire an added briskness. Once or twice she heard the measured tramp of feet in the streets below, as a regiment was moved from one quarter to another.

England was at war with Germany. They told her, but the intelligence did not interest Janie much at first. That Empires should battle for supremacy concerned her very little till she remembered Nosey's late calling.

It was two days before she saw him again and he still wore his civvy suit. Janie smiled as he approached the bed, and fumbled with the halfpenny daily paper that somebody had given her to look at.

"Ere," she whispered, "read that."

Nosey bent over and read the lines indicated by the thin forefinger.

"His Majesty, the King, has been graciously pleased to approve of pardons being granted to all deserters from the royal navy and marines who surrender themselves forthwith."

There was a silence in the ward for a moment. Far below in the street outside a transport wagon rumbled by. [illegible] for the supreme [illegible] of her life.

"Your better go," said she.

Nosey stared at her and then back at the newspaper. "Not me," he retorted, and took possession of her hand.

"That's the king's pardon," said Janie, thrusting the halfpenny newspaper [illegible] fingers. "Tain't no [illegible] more, 'cos I [illegible]. I'll ask [illegible] to let you in."

Nosey knew that note of indomitable obstinacy in the weak voice. He knew, [illegible] looking down upon the frail form in the bed, that he could kill her with the pressure of a finger. But there was no [illegible] making Janie go back on her decision once her mind was made up. "If there's a war, you orter be fightin'," she sobbed. "There's prospecks." Her weak voice was almost inaudible and the nurse was coming down the ward towards them.

Nosey lifted the hot, dry little claw to his lips. "If you sez I gotter go, I'll go," he said, and rose to his feet.

"Course you gotter go. The King sez so, an' I sez so. Don't you get worritin' about me; I'll be all right when you come 'ome—wiv yer medals."

Nosey caught the nurse's eye and tiptoed out of the ward. Janie turned her face to the valley of the shadow.

REPAIRING WARSHIPS.

Huge Dreadnoughts Can be Taken Clear Out of Water.

Among the greatest engineering marvels of to-day are the gigantic floating docks owned by the British Admiralty and utilized for the repair of naval vessels. The biggest type of these docks has a minimum lifting capacity of 32,000 tons, and is capable of lifting a battleship like H.M.S. Lion, which displacement over 30,000 tons, high and dry out of the water to a height of 30 feet in three hours and ten minutes, thus permitting every part of the vessel's hull to be accessible.

Some idea of the labor involved in the construction of one of these huge docks may be gathered from the fact that whereas a first class warship takes about two and a half years to built, it takes two or three times as long to construct a floating dock of a size sufficient to receive the vessel.

A floating dock may be likened to a box with neither ends nor lid. It is built of steel throughout, the largest type having a length of 680 feet and a width of 141 feet, while the walls are [illegible] feet in height.

The dock is first submerged by admitting water into the ballast tanks, of pontoons forming the base of the structure. When it has been sunk to a sufficient depth to receive the vessel the latter is warped into its correct position on the keel blocks of the dock, and is then made fast. Powerful pumps are set to work to eject water from the pontoons, causing the structure to rise gradually with its burden. To lift a battleship the size of the Lion 45,000 tons of water has to be pumped out of the pontoons. So perfectly, however, are these huge floating docks constructed that one man can control every movement from what is known as the valve house, which is at the end of the side walls.

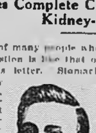
Histrionic Requirements.

"There is no reason for mentioning your name," said the eminent player. "You are a press agent, not an actor."

"Believe me," replied Mr. Bowstington, "a press agent has to be some actor to convince a star that he believes all the things that he hammers out on the typewriter."—Washington Star.

A Great Blessing to be Freed of Indigestion

For Years He Suffered After Almost Every Meal—Attributes Complete Cure to Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.



MR. BARRETT.

The experience of many people who suffer from indigestion is like that of the writer of this letter. Stomach medicines may bring some relief, but chronic indigestion is almost invariably the result of derangements of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and cannot be actually cured until these organs are set right.

With the liver sluggish there is constipation, and the food ferments in the bowels instead of being digested. This is the source of pain and suffering, and the cause of such dreaded diseases as appendicitis, peritonitis and kidney disease. It is much better to be on the safe side and prevent such ailments by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. R. Barrett, Nelson, B.C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble, and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured.

"Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing. I feel grateful for this cure, and shall gladly answer any inquiries from persons suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Profit in Alligators.

The State of Florida reaps a great profit from the sale of alligators, which are grown there in large numbers. When he feeds his pets the alligator farmer must give them meat, and considering their size and corresponding appetites, this would seem to be an almost prohibitive item of expense, but this is not so serious as it may seem, for the gator eats only about nine months of the year. The remainder of the time is spent in hibernating, during which time all food is refused.

ENGINES

MARINE:—

[illegible]

STATIONARY:—

[illegible]

GUARANTEE MOTOR CO.
HAMILTON, ONTARIO.

Old Time English Recruiting.

Recruiting in the great war which ended in the fall of Napoleon was a vastly different matter from that which prevails today. Take the militia act of 1802, for instance. In each subdivision of a county a list was made of all men between the ages of 18 and 45, classified into six classes [illegible] under 30 and without children, the over that age, [illegible] men with no children under 14, [illegible] men with only one child under 14 and [illegible] all others. If the men required equaled the number in the first or second or any of the consecutive classes they were taken. If not, all the names were put in a bag and drawn until the requisite number was obtained. Any ballot [illegible] could purchase exemption for five years on paying a fine of £10, raised to £15 in 1807, the money being paid for a substitute. The men paying this were exempted from the second ballot, and the money was devoted to enabling the men in the second ballot to obtain substitutes. [illegible] this vicious principle the only man really obliged to serve was the poor man drawn in the first ballot.—Dundee Advertiser.

MOTHERS PRAISE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. S. E. Laurie, Grafton, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets ever since my baby was two weeks old and would not be without them, as I consider them the best medicine in the world for little ones." What Mrs. Laurie says thousands of other mothers say. Simply because they have found the Tablets safe and sure, and pleasant for the little ones to take. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Beautiful Kashmir.

It has been said that India is the brightest jewel in the British crown. But one cannot realize the brightness of the gem to the full until one has sojourned for a space in that veritable dreamland situated in the wedge of mountains forming the north centre boundary of that peninsula. No other country in the world can boast of such a diversity of scenery or is so full of beauty spots as the valley and uplands of Kashmir. Snow covered mountains, pine clad hills, rushing torrents, clear streams, limpid lakes and broad alluvial plains all combine to make up this wonderland, which forms the summer haunt of many jaded plainsmen from the sultry cantonments of India. Of late, alas, the ubiquitous globe trotter has discovered it, and his excessive supply of cash brings higher prices, silk socks and white waistcoats into a paradise where "boiled shirts" and other appurtenances of an evil civilization should never have been allowed to penetrate.—Wide World Magazine.

CLEAR YOUR SKIN

By Daily Use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trial Free.

You may rely on these fragrant supercreamy emollients to care for your skin, scalp, hair and hands. Nothing better.

Sample Each Free by Post

With 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston, U.S.A. Sold throughout the world.

We All Fall For It.

It was a woman long married who wisely said to a bride:

"If you want to keep your husband, jolly him."

The advice applies to husbands. It applies to wives. For that matter, it's a pretty good recipe for oiling any part of the machinery of life.

The other morning, in a crowded car, a conductor helped a woman with a heavy bundle. She thanked him graciously, took his number and promised to write a note of praise to the boss.

You should have seen that conductor's face beam.

She may not have kept her word; possibly she was only jollying him.

But, accustomed, as he was, to fretful kicks and knocks, just this little glint of sunshine gilded the day for him and made him courteous the rest of the route.

Yes, we're all susceptible to blarney. Even when we know it isn't very deep, we like it. W say we don't stand for it, but the grouchiest of us are, nevertheless, more or less tickled on the inside.

Why People Feel Depressed In the Cold Weather

Why is tiredness and fatigue so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated in that organ everything goes wrong. No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humors. They put new life into worn-out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills today.

Lyddite.

Lyddite, the powder that has enormous explosive force and can be fired from a gun easily carried about, does not, as has been widely supposed, take its name from a man, but from an ancient town near the coast of Kent, England, the town of Lydd, where there is a government artillery range, where the tests were made that resulted in the preparation of this explosive. Dyddite has extraordinary qualities aside from its explosive force, since its fumes are so suffocating as sometimes to be intolerable. Lydd shares the notoriety that attaches to the name of Dumdum, that other peaceful city in Bengal, where are manufactured the expanding bullets that attract so much unfavorable comment in war.

A WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO WOMEN

If you are troubled with weak, tired feelings, headache, backache, bearing down sensations, bladder weakness, constipation, catarrhal conditions, pain in the sides regularly or irregularly, bloating or unnatural enlargements, sense of falling or misplacement of internal organs, nervousness, desire to cry, palpitation, hot flashes, dark rings under the eyes, or a loss of interest in life, I invite you to write and ask for my simple method of home treatment, with ten days' trial entirely free and postpaid, also references to Canadian ladies who gladly tell how they have regained health, strength, and happiness by this method. Write today. Address: Mrs. M. Summers, Box 8, Windsor, Ont.

BALONESS.

(Buffalo News)

It has been noted for centuries that women are much less likely to become bald than men, and it is attributed to their natural attitude toward the use of headgear. Either they wear no hat at all or a very light one at most, so that all the hair gets the benefit of coolness and of such exposure to nature as will fortify rather than weaken it.

It was said of Egyptian soldiers no less than 1,500 years B. C. that they were redoubtable warriors in conflict because they always went bareheaded and, therefore, had full growth of hair and very stout skulls for resisting [illegible].

Perhaps the modern man would have less difficulty if he should wear lighter hats than is usual practice, or even should follow habit of some of the younger men, especially, in wearing no hat at all during the warmer season.

Yes, He Was In.

The collector was after a deadbeat, and there were rumors that he was in more serious trouble even than owing debts. The collector was told to get after him at once and run him down before anybody else got hold of him. So he chose a time of day when the deadbeat would be most likely to be at home and went to his house and rang the bell. The man's wife came to the door. "Your husband is in?" he said sternly—he made a statement rather than a question of. She looked scared and answered, "Y—yes, sir." "I want to see him at once," he went on, very severely. "Why, you can't see him," she answered. "He's in, and yet I can't see him? I'd like to know why I can't!" "Because he's in for six months!" she sobbed, and shut the door in his face.—Argonaut.

Make three bites of a cherry.—Rabelais.

TRANSPORTATION

The transportation arrangements of the British Government in connection with the war have extorted the general admiration for the precision and adequacy which marked them. A million men have been moved to France, and yet not a single life has been lost. The man responsible for this wonderful organization, or "Director of Transports," with the official salary of just $6,000, is Mr. Graeme Thomson, "one of the discoveries of the war," according to Mr. Winston Churchill. He comes of a shipping family, his father being head of the firm of Stewart, Thomson & Company, Manchester shippers, and after a public school and Oxford education he entered the British Admiralty in 1900 as a higher division clerk.

As Mr. Churchill said in the British House of Commons, this war had entailed "performances and transactions, the like of which were never contemplated by any state in history." These performances and transactions were Mr. Thomson's opportunity. In November he was appointed civil assistant director, and in this higher position he exhibited such extraordinary powers of organization that in December, on the retirement of Rear-Admiral Savory, who is now afloat, Mr. Churchill entrusted to the one-time clerk the whole responsibility of the transport department.

It is Mr. Thomson's delicate task to reconcile as far as he can the various conflicting shipping interests concerned in the process of requisitioning, and the manner in which he is doing this, in addition to his great work of equipping and despatching his great Armada, won for him one of the warmest eulogies ever spoken in Parliament of a state official.

From the Gazette, Montreal, March 16, 1915.

Glazed Sweet Potatoes.

For 6 large sweet potatoes make a syrup of 1 cup of sugar, 3 tablespoons of butter and half a cup of water. Boil 3 minutes. Wash the potatoes and boil them for 15 minutes in salted water. Drain, peel and cut in half, lengthwise, and put them in the syrup, being careful to have all the potatoes coated with the syrup. Turn all into buttered pan and bake 15 minutes, basting often. Should be served in pan in which they were baked, and each serving should be covered with syrup.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

Cooling by Flame.

It is hard to appreciate that fire has widely different degrees of heat, for every burning blaze seems to have the extreme heat of fire, yet the flame of burning alcohol is actually used for cooling purposes in one make of searchlight because the alcohol flame is not nearly so hot as the point of fire at the centre of the searchlight.

A good searchlight needs to have its lamp as small as possible, and the nearer it is to just a point of light, though still having intense light, the farther can its beams be thrown. The only way to congregate the light is to raise the degree of heat of the light source, such as an electric arc, but intense heat is likely to result in melting the whole apparatus.

The above searchlight succeeds in highly concentrating the light source, and then to prevent this concentrated light from melting everything near it alcohol vapor is fed round it. The alcohol vapor burns of course, but as it naturally burns at a temperature far lower than that of the electric arc it acts something like the water packet of an automobile engine and prevents the metal and glass of the searchlight from becoming excessively hot.—Saturday Evening Post.

I consider MINARD'S LINIMENT the BEST Liniment in use.

I got my foot badly jammed lately. I bathed it well with MINARD'S LINIMENT, and it was as well as ever next day.

Yours very Truly,

T. G. McMullen.

Athletic Newsies in Greece.

Imagine Canadian boys assembling in relay teams to deliver newspapers! At Kalamata, in Greece, this is the method that obtains for delivering morning newspapers. The main square in Kalamata, where the newspapers are sold, is a full half mile from the railway station. Keen rivalry exists between the carriers on the various papers, and from the moment the train arrives there is a great contest to be the first to place the papers on the stands at the square. Relay teams of newsies have been organized and these accomplish the delivery of papers in a little more than two minutes, each member racing with a bundle of papers a short distance and then passing his burden into the hands of the next runner. The race is the subject of much interest among the townspeople, who like the spirit of the boys

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

The Test of Art.

Where the weakness of the artistic life really lies is that it is often not taken up out of mere communicativeness and happy excitement, as a child tells a breathless tale, but as a device for attracting the notice and earning the applause of the world, and then it is on a par with all other self-regarding activities. But if it is taken up with a desire to give rather than to receive as an irresistible sharing of delight it becomes not a solemn and dignified affair but just one of the most beautiful and uncalculating impulses in the world. A. C. Benson, in Century Magazine.

No More Corns

Cure Guaranteed

Never known to fail, acts without pain in 24 hours, is soothing, healing, takes the sting right out. No remedy so quick, safe and sure as PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR. Sold everywhere—25c per bottle.

Avoid Introspection.

Photographer (taking plain looking girl and her escort): Now, try not to think of yourselves at all—think of something pleasant.—London Opinion.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

New South Wales has [illegible] men than [illegible].

ISSUE NO. 14, 1915

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Apply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—CHOICE LAND IN PARCELS from one to twenty acres, located near Hamilton along the Bay and Lake Shores on Toronto to Hamilton permanent highway. This is selected land, delightfully located, being very desirable for gentlemen who desire a country residence along with garden and fruit culture. W. D. Flatt, Room 15, Federal Life Building, Hamilton.

FARMS FOR SALE.

104 ACRES — AT ENNISKILLEN — choicest level land; clay loam; in high state of cultivation; [illegible] acres fine orchard; eleven-roomed house; barn, 100 x 40; stone stable, cement floor; litter-carrier, driving sheds, pig pens, hen houses; well watered; well fenced; fall plowing all done; price, eight thousand, with reasonable cash payment. H. J. Ashton, 156 Simcoe street, Toronto.

MANITOBA IMPROVED FARMS—A full section on half crop payments, fully equipped with stock, implements, seed and feed; close to market and school; good water; small cash payment to good man; also two good half sections, improved and fully equipped on same terms. We specialize in this class of farms and handle real bargains only. Wilkinson Land Co., 101 Carlton Bldg., Winnipeg, Man.

GENTLEMEN'S FARM—8 ACRES; 11 room house, basement barn, will accommodate twenty head cattle; large drive shed, granary, hen house; land gently rolling and sloping to south; two wells, good spring, 75 apple trees, forty plums, quantity peaches, pears, grapes; fine maple grove, few implements; price [illegible], [illegible] down; balance easy terms. Lewis, 508 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

3 ACRES—MOST SUITABLE TO ANYone in the chicken business; large brick dwelling and good outbuildings. 1½ acres; large, well-built, solid brick dwelling; good barn, and land of the best; some fruit. Apply, E. F. Saunders, Burford, Ont.

FOR SALE—FOUR FIRST-CLASS IMproved quarter sections in famous Jack Fish Lake Summer Resort and farming district. Few hundred cash will handle. Write owner. Terms to suit purchaser. F. W. Tobey, Meota, Sask.

$16.50 PER ACRE — ALBERTA'S most productive grain and stock farm land. Near good town on Canadian Northern main line. Lloydminster district. In settled community school, church, telephones, on main road to town. Fine rich soil on clay subsoil. Water plentiful. Luxuriant growth of grass, finest cattle country in the west. 1914 wheat yield 30 bushels to acre, Oats 76. Your choice of a number of quarter sections. Have actual photographs and guaranteed field notes. Free Railroad Fare to purchasers. Party leaving Toronto April 29th, make arrangements to come out with us. Great opportunity for yourself and boys. Small cash payment 6 per cent. interest; seven years to pay. Write at once for particulars. WATSON, 180 Bay street, Toronto.

NINETY ACRES—LINCOLN COUNTY, two miles to Silverdale Station. All cultivated, 2 acres hardwood timber, good 8 roomed house, bank barn, other out buildings, ten acre orchard, 10 acres fall wheat, soil clay loam. Good stream. Price [illegible]. F. J. Watson, Farm Specialist, 180 Bay street, Toronto, Ont.

HUNDREDS OF FARMS FOR SALE and exchange. County catalogues describing them sent free anywhere. The Western Real Estate Exchange, Ltd., Head Office, London, Ont.

WHITFIELD & WHITNEY, REAL Estate and Insurance, Bank of Hamilton Bldg., Hamilton, Ont. 100-acre grain and stock farm, 12 miles from Hamilton, on stone road. $12,000.

WHAT KIND OF A FARM ARE YOU looking for? I have small and large farms in Western Canada and Ontario, very easy terms, or exchange city property, write requirements. R. Johnson, 206 Clyde Block, Hamilton.

BUY CHOICE FARM LANDS IN Sunny Southern Alberta. Prices ranging from [illegible] to [illegible] per acre. Deep, rich chocolate loam. One crop pays for the land. Write us today. F. M. Ginther Land Co., Medicine Hat, Alta.

DOES $1.25 WHEAT MAKE SASKATchewan farm lands look good to you? If so, inquire about our limited number of improved farms acquired from loan companies at prices away below their actual value, money loaned on improved farms, first mortgage security, good rates of interest; references, Quebec Bank. J. W. Cadwell & Co., Box 337, Saskatoon, Sask.

FOR SALE—157 ACRES GOOD GRAIN and stock farm; 120 acres under cultivation; 12 acres in fall wheat; 40 acres fall plowing done, balance in meadow and pasture; also good sugar bush. This farm has never been rented. For price and terms, J. Martin & Co., Federal Life Building, Hamilton, Ontario.

FRUIT AND POULTRY FARMS from one to twenty-five acres. Lake Shore properties near Burlington and Hamilton, with Hamilton market, the best in America. These locations are convenient to schools, churches, near proposed Toronto-Hamilton concrete highway; are exceptionally good and worth investigation. R. M. House, 2 1-2 James street north, Hamilton, Ont.

FOR SALE—FARM, ANY SIZE, FROM 50 acres up, near Thorold, Merritton and St. Catharines. Fruit farms with fruit for [illegible] per acre. See my farms before buying elsewhere. J. P. Hilts, Merritton, Ont. Box 132. Phone 67 L.

FOR SALE—37 1-2 acres near Niagara on main road and close to Trolley and Canning factory, choice sandy fruit land. A bargain at $7,500 for quick sale. $1,250 down will purchase this excellent property. For particulars write Melvin Gayman, Limited, Investment Brokers, St. Catharines, Ont.

NEW BRUNSWICK FARM, 80 ACRES, half intervale, hay, 40 tons. Bearing orchard, good house, 3 barns, railway station 3 1-2 miles, other conveniences near. [illegible], $1,000 cash, balance mortgage. Write for our Free Illustrated Catalogue, 170 other farms. Alfred Burley & Co., 46 Princess street, St. John, N. B.

MISCELLANEOUS.

STRAWBERRIES, 30 varieties; Raspberries, 15 varieties; Seed Potatoes, 10 varieties. Free Catalogue.
THE LAKEVIEW FRUIT FARM
H. L. McConnell & Son, Port Burwell, Ont.

SEED CORN FOR SALE

For No. 1 Seed Corn of many varieties, matured and cured for seed purposes, on cob or shelled. Apply, to EDWARD F. TELLIER, St. Joachim, Ont.

SEED CORN

Prize-winning Wisconsin No. 7; the best for the silo. George R. West & Sons, Northwood, R. R. No. 2.

AN IDEAL CONDITION.

(Rochester Times)

Work, which is one of the greatest blessings in the world, ought to be made as pleasant as possible, even under our changed and more complicated industrial system. A contented body of employees should be the aim of every employer, and every employee should feel his responsibility toward the firm which gives him employment. This is the ideal condition, of course. And its attainment is not so far from possible when a reasonable fellow-feeling is striven after on the part of those who work together, and whose interests in contributing to the success of one another are largely identical.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

STRANGE, BUT TRUE.

(Detroit Free Press)

"Politics," says Professor Hadley, of Yale, "is no business for a poor man [illegible]" [illegible] yet the fact remains [illegible] men do get

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1915.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL.

It is now many years since the [illegible] was made to build a tunnel under the English Channel between England and France. Several times a movement has been made to have the operations begun. But every time this was checked by the fear that it might make a [illegible] means for the invasion of the country by France. Military and naval men always objected. But now that the political horizon has changed, and now that Britain is not immune from invasion by the air, the proposal to build the channel is viewed with favor as adding one more link to the friendship of France and Britain, and it is said that one of the immediate results of this war will be the building of this tunnel. A channel tunnel, if in existence at the present time, would be of enormous military and commercial value. A French deputy, M. de Clagny, recently brought the matter up in the French assembly, urging the immediate commencement of the tunnel. It appears that in August last the Committee of Imperial Defence were on the point of arriving at a decision upon the proposition to construct this tunnel for communication to the British Parliament. Owing to the war, however, the intention was not carried out. Should the time be now considered opportune to proceed, the British Channel Company, it is said, is in a position to begin at a very short notice. The French Channel Tunnel Company have their plans on even a more advanced stage, and can begin work on their side without delay.

The completion of such a tunnel would practically make Great Britain a continental power. In time of war it could prove invaluable and in time of peace it would be of the greatest convenience for those who travel. Viewed in all lights, it is hardly possible that such a tunnel would be anything but a benefit to both France and Britain.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Will Constantinople be the next to fall?

◆

Missing—The Turkish invasion of the Suez Canal.

◆

A few remarks from the Crown Prince would now be in order.

◆

Soles of boots cracked after being worn five times. Yet nobody is in jail.

◆

Canada's army of grafters threatens our good name as well as our treasury.

◆

The Ontario Government has increased the bounty on wolves. But the ones in sheep's clothing are still at large.

◆

Mr. Powell has coughed up, and Mr. Garland has confessed that he made a mistake. Any more ready for the repentant bench?

◆

The Kaiser has sent Liebnecht to the front. Suppose King George was to send Keir Hardie to the trenches. What a roar he would make.

◆

Mr. Foster, M. P. for Kings, N. S., bought horses for the Government "without remuneration." Yet it is likely the transaction will be investigated.

◆

Mr. Rowell wants the war taxes of Ontario used for war purposes — to help fight the Germans. But Premier Hearst is not so anxious [illegible] to beat the enemy.

◆

The French-Canadian is doing his fair share of enlisting. This is all the more praiseworthy considering that Bourassa is working so hard on behalf of the enemy.

◆

Mr. Powell, Mr. Garland's drug clerk, made $9,000 on the side in the military dressings deal with the Militia Department. It must be great to be a drug clerk for Mr. Garland.

◆

Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested to the Government that letters to the soldiers at the front should go free, but Mr. White demurred. Sir Wilfrid believes that nothing is too good for the soldiers.

◆

It is not plain just now how England and France can disregard the protests of Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden against the British blockade of Germany.—Buffalo News.

How about the German blockade of Britain?

◆

Hyslop Brothers, bicycle manufacturers, Toronto, were unable to secure a Government contract for bicycles, although they could have supplied them cheaper than what the Government paid the other contractors. The Hyslops may be Grits, and [illegible] not on the patronage list.

◆

Hon. Frank Cochrane has given notice of a resolution in the Commons which forshadows the continued operation by the Government of the National Transcontinental from Moncton to Winnipeg as a part of the Government's system of railways. This is as it should be.

◆

We understand that the Government has changed its mind and that there will be no war [illegible] stamps will [illegible] except Sir Wilfrid Laurier [illegible] may issue three-cent stamps. That would save the trouble of putting an extra one-cent stamp on a letter.

◆

Mr. Proulx, member for Prescott, has introduced a bill to prevent companies with which members of Parliament are connected, from tendering for Government contracts. The Independence of Parliament Act can at present be evaded by a member turning his business into a joint stock affair.

◆

There is an idea in the old country that there is or was a big kick in Canada against the appointment of Colonel Seely to the command of the Cavalry brigade, which includes two regiments of Canadian mounted troops. Canadians are quite satisfied with the appointment.

◆

The Weekly Sun, commenting on the blocking of investigation of an item of $34,000 in the Ontario Public Accounts Committee warns Premier Hearst that "His political ascendancy might be easily endangered, if the proceedings of the Public Accounts Committee were to persuade the public that he is conducting a government of untamed frontier politicians."

◆

Premier Hearst's temperance [illegible] comes far short of the aims of the Dominion Alliance. It has the following for Quebec: A time limit to the existence of bars and the sale of drink by grocers; local option by wards for the cities of Montreal and Quebec; the bringing of clubs under the same regulations as hotels; the making of requisitions for the submission of prohibitory bylaws mandatory on county councils. But Quebec is doing pretty well in the prohibition line. Of 1,143 municipalities, licenses remain only in 272; twenty-three counties out of 71 are "dry"; there are eight counties with only one municipality "wet," and six with only two.

◆

While the Dominion Government is wrestling with the unemployed problem and considering the back to the land movement why does it not take a leaf out of the C. P. R's plan of land return? Several large interests in the west, following the C. P. R's example of ready-made farms, have, on their own land, built a number of homes with certain land allotments in each case as a good speculation. As far as the C. P. R. is concerned, the ready-made farm idea has proved a brilliant [illegible] success [illegible] the news of the ready-made farm was not long in spreading over wide areas. It percolated into the remote Irish villages; and before the idea was actually launched the C. P. R. was overwhelmed with applications from intending immigrants to whom the idea of a ready-made home had a powerful appeal. There is a big difference between walking into a comfortable home on the prairies with the kettle boiling for you on the stove to crawling into a dug out below the earth and living there throughout the long winter. The Ontario Government might spend some of its North Ontario development fund in preparing ready-made farms for settlers.

Place Names in England.

England can boast that no other country possesses so many scriptural place names as it does. The name of Jordan occurs six times on the ordnance maps, Paradise five times and Nineveh, Mount Zion, Mount Ararat and Mount Ephraim three times each. In Bedfordshire there is a Calvary Wood and in Dorsetshire a Jordan Hill.

Was All Run Down
WITH HEART TROUBLE
AND NERVOUSNESS.

When the heart does not do its work properly and the nerves become unstrung the whole system becomes weak and run down, and needs building up before you can feel fit again.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you.

Mrs. Hugh Mosher, Chester Basin, N.S., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have suffered greatly with heart trouble and nervousness, and was all run down. I used lots of medicine, but received no benefit until I was advised to try your pills, and did so, and before I had finished the first box I felt so much better I got 3 boxes, and am now well and strong. I can truly say they are the best medicine I have ever used. I cannot praise them too highly. I recommend them to anyone suffering from heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUFFERED WITH LAME BACK.

Could Hardly Straighten Up For Pain.

When the back becomes lame and starts to ache it is the sure sign of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure the aching back by curing the aching kidneys beneath, for it is really the kidneys aching and not the back.

The cures [illegible] "Doan's" cures are lasting—the medicine cures the actual cause of the disease—the kidneys.

Mr. J. W. Aylett, South Oshawa, Ont., writes: "I have much pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Last summer I suffered with a lame back. Sometimes I could hardly straighten up for the pain. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to give them a trial. I can truthfully say that the [illegible] boxes cured me. I can recommend them to all as a speedy cure to all sufferers [illegible]."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

THE Changeling

"And you will be a drudge, while she will be a lady," muttered Hagar, as her tears fell on the face of the sleeping child. "Why need this difference be?"

Old Hagar had forgotten the words "Lead us not into temptation," and when the tempter answered "It need not be," she only started suddenly as if smitten by a heavy blow; but she did not drive him from her, and she sat there reasoning with herself that "it need not be." Neither the physician nor Madam Conway had paid any attention to Margaret's child; it had been her special care, while no one had noticed hers, and newly-born babies were so much alike that deception was an easy matter, but could she do it? Could she bear that secret on her soul? Madam Conway, though proud, had been kind to her, and could she thus deceive her? Would her daughter, sleeping in her early grave, approve the deed. "No, no," she answered aloud; "she would not;" and the great drops of perspiration stood thickly upon her dark, haggard face, as she arose and laid back in her cradle the child whom she had thought to make an heiress.

For a time the tempter left her, but returned ere long, and creeping into her heart, sang to her beautiful songs of the future which might be, were Hester's baby a lady. And Hagar, listening to that song, fell asleep, dreaming that the deed was done by other agency than hers—that the little face resting on the downy pillow, and shaded by the costly lace, was lowly born; while the child, wrapped in the coarse blanket, came of nobler blood, even that of the Conways, who boasted more than one lordly title. With a nervous start she awoke at last and creeping to the cradle of mahogany, looked to see if her dream were true, but it was not. She knew it by the [illegible], blue look about the nose, and the thin covering of hair. This was all the difference which even her eye could see, and probably no other person had noticed that, for the child had never been seen save in a darkened room. The sin was growing gradually less heinous, and she could now calmly calculate the chances for detection. Still, the conflict was long and severe, and it was not until morning that the tempter gained a point by compromising the matter, and suggesting that while dressing the infants she should change their clothes for once, just to see how fine cambrics and soft flannel would look upon a grandchild of Hagar Warren! "She could easily change them again—'twas only an experiment," she said, as with trembling hands she proceeded to divest the children of their wrappings. But her fingers seemed all thumbs, and more than one sharp pin pierced the tender flesh of her little grandchild, as she fastened together the embroidered slip, teaching her thus early, had she been able to learn the lesson, that the pathway of the rich is not free from thorns.

Their toilet was completed at last—their cradle beds exchanged, and then with a strange undefined feeling, old Hagar stood back and looked to see how the little usurper became her new position. She became it well, and to Hagar's partial eyes it seemed more meet that she should lie there beneath the silken covering, than the other one whose nose looked still more pinched and blue in the plain white dress and cradle of pine. Still, there was a gnawing pain at Hagar's heart, and she would, perhaps, have undone the wrong, had not Madam Conway appeared with inquiries for the baby's health. Hagar could not face her mistress, so she turned away and pretended to busy herself with the arrangement of the room, while the lady, bending over the cradle, said, "I think she is improving, Hagar. I never saw her looking so well"; and she pushed back the curtain to obtain a better view.

With a wild, startled look in her eye, Hagar held her breath to hear what might come next, but her fears were groundless; for in her anxiety for her daughter, Madam Conway had heretofore scarcely seen her grandchild, and had no suspicion now that the sleeper before her was of plebeian birth, nor yet that the other little one, at whom she did not deign to look, was bone of her bone and flesh of her flesh. She started to leave the room, but impelled by some sudden impulse, turned back and stooped to kiss the child. Involuntarily old Hagar sprang forward to stay the act, and grasped the lady's arm, but she was too late—the aristocratic lips had touched the cheek of Hagar Warren's grandchild, and the secret, if now confessed, would never be forgiven.

"It can't be helped," muttered Hagar, and then, when Mrs. Conway asked an explanation of her conduct, she answered: "I was afraid you'd wake her up, and mercy knows I've had enough worry with both the brats."

Not till then had Madam Conway observed how haggard and worn was Hagar's face, and instead of reproving her for her boldness, she said gently, "You have, indeed, been over-worked. Shall I send up some one to relieve you?"

"No, no," answered Hagar, hurriedly, "I am better alone."

The next moment Madam Conway was moving slowly down the marble hall, while Hagar, on her knees, was weeping passionately. The voice of kindness had effected more than a thousand reproaches would have done, and wringing her hands, she cried, "I will not do it; I cannot."

Approaching the cradle, she was about to lift the child, when again Madam Conway was at the door, and [illegible] to Margaret, who needed better this morning, and had asked to see it.

"Not now, not now. Wait till I put on her a handsomer dress, and I'll bring her myself," replied Hagar.

But Madam Conway saw no fault in the fine cambric dress, and taking the infant in her arms, she walked away, while Hagar followed [illegible]. Very lovingly the mother folded to her bosom the babe, calling it her fatherless one, and wetting its face with her tears, while through the half-closed door peered Hagar's wild, dark eyes—one moment lighting up with exultation as she muttered, "It's mine flesh, an' blood, proud lady!" and [illegible] growing dim with tears, as [illegible] of [illegible] she had done.

"I did not know she had so much hair," said Mrs. Miller, parting the silken locks. "I think it will be like mine," and she gave the child to her mother, while Hagar glided swiftly back to her room.

That afternoon the clergyman, whose church Mrs. Conway usually attended, called to see Mrs. Miller, who suggested that both the children should receive the rite of baptism. Hagar was accordingly bidden to prepare them for the ceremony, and resolving to make one more effort to undo what she had done, she dressed the child whom she had thought to wrong in its own clothes, and then anxiously awaited her mistress' coming.

"Hagar Warren! What does this mean? Are you crazy?" sternly demanded Madam Conway, when the old nurse held up before her the child with the blue nose.

"No, not crazy yet; but I shall be, if you don't take this one first," answered Hagar.

More than once that day Madam Conway had heard the servants hint that Hagar's grief had driven her insane, and now, when she observed the unnatural brightness in her eyes, and saw what she had done, she, too, thought it possible that her mind was partially unsettled; so she said gently, but firmly, "This is no time for foolishness, Hagar. They are waiting for us in the sick-room; so make haste and change the baby's dress."

There was something authoritative in her manner, and Hagar obeyed, whispering incoherently to herself, and thus further confirming her mistress' suspicions that she was partially insane. During the ceremony she stood, tall and erect, like some dark, grim statue, her hands firmly locked together, and her eyes fixed upon the face of the little one, who was baptised "Margaret Miller." As the clergyman pronounced that name, she uttered a low, gasping moan, but her face betrayed no emotion, and very calmly she stepped forward with the other child upon her arm.

"What name?" asked the minister, and she answered, "her mother's; call her for her mother!"

"Hester," said Madam Conway, turning to the clergyman, who understood nothing from Hagar's reply.

So "Hester" was the name given to the child, in whose veins the blood of English noblemen was flowing; and when the ceremony was ended, Hagar bore back to her room "Hester Hamilton," the child defrauded of her birthright, and "Maggie Miller," the heroine of our story.

CHAPTER III.

"It is over now," old Hagar thought, as she laid the children upon their pillows. "The deed is done, and by their own hands, too. There is nothing left for me now but a confession, and that I cannot make"; so, with a heavy weight upon her soul, she sat down resolving to keep her own counsel and abide the consequence, whatever it might be.

But it wore upon her terribly—that secret—and though it helped in a measure to divert her mind from dwelling too much upon her daughter's death, it haunted her continually, making her a strange, eccentric woman, whom the servants persisted in calling crazy, while even Madam Conway failed to comprehend her. Her face, which was always dark, seemed to have acquired a darker, harder look, while her eyes wore a wild, startled expression as if she were constantly followed by some tormenting fear. At first, Mrs. Miller objected to trusting her with the babe; but when Madam Conway suggested that the woman who had charge of little Theo should also take care of Maggie, she fell upon her knees and begged most piteously that the child might not be taken from her. "Everything I have ever loved has left me," she said, "and I cannot give her up."

"But they say you are crazy," answered Madam Conway, somewhat surprised that Hagar should manifest so much affection for a child not at all connected to her. "They say you are crazy, and no one trusts a crazy woman."

"Crazy!" repeated Hagar, half scornfully, "crazy—'tis not craziness—'tis the trouble—the trouble—that's killing me. But I'll hide it closer than it's hidden now," she continued, "if you'll let her stay; and 'fore Heaven, I swear, that sooner than harm one hair of Maggie's head, I'd part with my own life;" and taking the sleeping child in her arms, she stood like a wild beast at bay.

Madam Conway did not herself really believe in Hagar's insanity. She had heretofore been perfectly faithful to whatever was committed to her care, so she bade her be quiet, saying she would trust her for a time.

"It's the talking to myself," said Hagar, when left alone. "It's the talking to myself, which makes them call me crazy; and though I might talk to many a worse woman than old Hagar Warren I'll stop it; I'll be still as the grave, and when next they gossip about me, it shall be of something besides my craziness."

So Hagar became suddenly silent, and uncommunicative, mingling but little with the servants, but staying all the time in her room, where she watched the children with untiring care. Especially was she kind to Hester, who, as time passed on, proved to be a puny, sickly thing, never noticing any one, but moaning frequently as if in pain. Very tenderly old Hagar nursed her, carrying her often in her arms, until they ached from very weariness, while Madam Conway, who watched her with a vigilant eye, complained that she neglected little Maggie.

"And what if I do?" returned Hagar, somewhat bitterly. "Ain't there a vast difference between the two? S'pose Hester was your own flesh and blood, would you think I could do too much for the poor thing?" And she glanced [illegible] form, which lay upon her lap, gasping for breath, and presenting a striking contrast to the little Maggie, who, in her cradle, was crowing and laughing in childish glee, at the bright firelight which blazed upon the hearth.

Maggie was indeed a beautiful child. From her mother she had inherited the boon of perfect health and she [illegible] in spite of [illegible] and [illegible] fingers, which frequently [illegible] to her, when Hagar [illegible] she [illegible] notice her. The plaything of the whole house, she was greatly petted by the servants, who vied with each other in tracing points of resemblance between her and the Conways; while the grandmother prided herself particularly on the arched eyebrows, and finely cut upper lip, which, she said, were sure marks of high blood, and never found in the lower ranks! With a [illegible] on her face, lest Hester could listen to these remarks, and then, when sure that no one heard her, she would mutter, "Marks of blood! What nonsense! I'm almost glad I've solved the riddle, and know 'taint blood that makes the difference. Just tell the truth once, and she'd quickly change her mind. Hester's blue, pinched nose, which makes one think of [illegible], would be the very essence of aristocracy, while Maggie's lip would tell of the little Paddy blood there is running in her veins!"

And still, Madam Conway herself was not one-half so proud of the bright, playful Maggie, as was old Hagar, who, when they were alone, would hug her to her bosom, and gaze fondly on her fair, round face, and locks of silken hair so like those now resting in the grave. In the mean time Mrs. Miller, who, since her daughter's birth, had never left her room, was growing daily weaker, and when Maggie was nearly nine months old, she died, with the birdie one folded to her bosom, just as Hester Hamilton had held it, when, she, too, passed from earth.

"Double blessed," whispered old Hagar, who was present, and then when she remembered that to poor little Hester a mother's blessing would never be given, she felt that her load of guilt was greater than she could bear. "She will perhaps forgive me if I confess it to her over Miss Margaret's coffin," she thought; and once when they stood together by the sleeping dead, and Madam Conway, with Maggie in her arms, was bidding the child kiss the clay-cold lips of its mother, old Hagar attempted to tell her. "Could you bear Miss Margaret's death as well," she said, "if Maggie, instead of being bright and playful as she is, were weak and sick, like Hester?" and her eyes fastened themselves upon Madam Conway with an [illegible] intensity, which that lady could not fathom. "Say, would you bear it as well—could you love her as much—would you change with me, take Hester for your own, and give me little Maggie?" she persisted, and Madam Conway, surprised at her excited manner, which she attributed in a measure to envy, answered coldly: "Of course not. Still, if God had seen fit to give me a child like Hester, I should try to be reconciled, but I am thankful He has not thus dealt with me."

"Tis enough, I am satisfied," thought Hagar. "She would not thank me for telling her. The secret shall be kept;" and half exultingly she anticipated the pride she should feel in seeing her granddaughter grown up a lady and an heiress.

Anon, however, there came stealing over her a feeling of remorse, as she reflected that the child defrauded of its birthright would, if it lived, be compelled to serve in the capacity of a servant; and many a night, when all else was silent in the old stone house, she paced up and down the room, her long hair, now fast turning gray, falling over her shoulders and her large eyes dimmed with tears, as she thought what the future would bring to the infant she carried in her arms. But the evil she so much dreaded never came, for when the winter snows were again falling they made a little grave beneath the same pine tree where Hester Hamilton lay sleeping, and while they sadly dug that grave old Hagar sat with folded arms and tearless eyes, gazing fixedly upon the still, white face, and thin, blue lips, which would never again be distorted with pain. Her habit of talking to herself had returned, and as she sat there she would at intervals whisper "Poor little bane! I would willingly have cared for you all my life, but I am glad you are gone to Miss Margaret, who, it may be, will wonder what little, thin-faced angel is calling her mother! But somebody'll introduce you, somebody'll tell who you are, and when she knows how proud her mother is of Maggie she'll forgive old Hagar Warren!"

"Gone stark mad!" was the report carried by the servants to their mistress, who believed the story when Hagar [illegible] came to her with the request that Hester might be buried in some of Maggie's clothes.

Touched with pity by her worn, haggard face, Madam Conway answered: "Yes, take some of her commonest," and choosing the cambric one which Hester had worn on the morning when the exchange was made, Hagar dressed the body for the grave. When, at last, everything was ready and the tiny coffin stood upon the table, Madam Conway drew near and looked for a moment on the emaciated form which rested quietly from all its pain. Hovering at her side was Hagar, and feeling it her duty to say a word of comfort, the stately lady remarked that "'twas best the babe should die; that were it her grandchild, she would feel relieved, for, had it lived, it would undoubtedly have been physically and intellectually feeble."

"Thank you! I am considerably comforted," was the cool reply of Hagar, who felt how cruel were the words, and who for a moment was strongly tempted to claim the beautiful Maggie as her own, and give back to the cold, proud woman the senseless clay on which she looked so calmly.

But love for her grandchild conquered. There was nothing in the way of her advancement now, and when at the grave she knelt down to weep, as the bystanders thought, over her dead, she was breathing there a vow that never so long as she lived would the secret of Maggie's birth be given to the world, unless some circumstance then unforeseen should make it absolutely and unavoidably necessary. To see Maggie grow up into a beautiful, refined and cultivated woman was now the great object of Hagar's life; and fearing lest by some inadvertent word or action the secret should be disclosed, she wished to live by herself, where naught but the winds of heaven could listen to her incoherent whisperings, which made her fellow-servants accuse her of insanity.

(To be continued.)

Strong Back Saw Blade.

The layman watching a tiny back saw blade working its way through a tough piece of steel is filled with wonder, for it seems like putting a tiny boy to do the task of a giant. The latest idea is that of making a saw which has a soft, flexible back with hard tempered teeth. At a test of the [illegible] a total weight [illegible] breaking.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON II.

April 11, 1915. David Anointed King. 1 Samuel 16:1-23. Print 16: 4-13.

Commentary. I. Samuel sent to Bethlehem (vs. 1-5). 1-3. While Samuel was mourning over Saul's rejection, the Lord told him not to grieve longer; but to take prepared oil and go to Bethlehem, for He had chosen a king from the family of Jesse. Samuel feared what Saul might do to him if he should anoint another to be king in his place. The Lord told him to arrange to offer a sacrifice there, and call Jesse to the sacrifice and He would show him what to do. Samuel was accustomed to hold religious meetings at various places. It was not necessary for him to reveal to Saul the fact that he was about to anoint one as king. 4. Came to Bethlehem—Bethlehem is about ten miles south of Ramah where Samuel lived. In making the journey he doubtless passed close to the site of Jerusalem. Elders of the town trembled—Samuel was a prophet and one of his duties was to rebuke sin, and the leaders in the city were afraid that some particular wrong had been committed, for which they were to be reproved. It has been suggested that they feared to receive Samuel, since by doing so they might incur Saul's displeasure. Comest thou peaceably — The people of Bethlehem desired to know whether Samuel's visit to the place meant anything ill to them. 5. I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord — Samuel had not only come peaceably, but he had also come to observe a religious rite. Sanctify yourselves—The people were to get ready for the sacrifice by washing their bodies and their clothes (Exod. 19. 10). Come with me to the sacrifice—The invitation to this religious service was general. He sanctified Jesse and his sons—Samuel gave special attention to the members of this family, that they might be ceremonially clean. It is probable that others were invited to the sacrifice, but only Jesse and his family were present at the feast which followed. Particulars regarding the sacrifice and the feast are wanting, since the anointing of David is the principal event.

II. The anointing of David (vs. 6-13). 6. When they were come—The sons of Jesse came into the presence of Samuel. It is quite possible that Samuel made known to Jesse that he was about to anoint one of his sons, but did not say for what purpose it was to be done. Said—To himself. The Lord's anointed is before him—Eliab by his height and his countenance seemed the natural counterpart of Saul, whose successor the prophet came to select; but the day was gone when kings were chosen because they were head and shoulders taller than the rest.—Stanley. 7. The Lord said—Samuel was in direct communication with Jehovah. Dr. Clarke thinks that his communion with God was as close and full as was that of Moses. Look not on his countenance, etc.—Samuel could see only the outside, but God was looking within, and would indicate to Samuel his choice. I have refused him—The Lord had seen all that Samuel saw and had passed Eliab by. The Lord looketh on the heart—God first gave the people a king of stately stature and majestic appearance, such as they would have chosen for themselves (ch. 10. 24); now He will choose "a man after His own heart" on the true ground of his inner moral worth.—Cam. Bib. It is a comforting thought to the true child of God that He looks on the heart and sees all that is there. The wicked may well tremble for the same reason.

8. Neither hath the Lord chosen this—These are the words of Samuel as Abinadab was brought before him. The Lord made it clear to Samuel that he was not the one whom He was to anoint. 9. Shammah—He is called Shimeah in 2 Sam. 13: 3, 10. Again, Jesse made seven of his sons to pass—"And Jesse made seven of his sons to pass."—R. V. The seven included the three who had already passed before Samuel. The Lord hath not chosen these—If Jesse had been told by Samuel that one of his sons was to be anointed, he might possibly have been tempted to doubt the word of the prophet, for the most likely of his sons, as he regarded them, had been rejected. 11. Are here all thy children—Samuel was convinced that not all of Jesse's sons were present, for he was to anoint one, and all those who had passed before him had been rejected. There remaineth yet the youngest. He was probably a youth of eighteen years. He keepeth the sheep—It was doubtless necessary for one to look after the sheep and as it seemed unlikely that this young and inexperienced lad would be chosen, he was left to act as shepherd. He was performing well his humble task when the call came that indicated the day to higher duties. We will not sit down—To eat the sacrificial feast. 12. He was ruddy—The language indicates that David had auburn hair and a fair complexion. In those lands, red or golden, hair and a fair skin were considered especially beautiful. Of a beautiful countenance—Rather, "beautiful as to the eyes." This indicates that his eyes were keen and penetrating, enlivened by the fires of genius, and beating with a generous warmth.—Whedon. Goodly to look to—Of an attractive appearance. This is he—The Lord was in charge of the entire affair and made his will definitely known to Samuel, item by item. 13. Samuel took the horn of oil—He had brought it with him, according to divine directions. Samuel had anointed Saul king and probably used the oil with which men were anointed for the priesthood. The oil used on such occasions was carefully prepared. In the midst of his brethren—It appears that the anointing took place in Jesse's house in the presence of the family. None of the members of the family knew the purpose of the anointing. They might have supposed that Samuel did it to set him apart to make him a student in his school of the prophets. It is probable that David himself did not understand the significance of the anointing, yet Josephus thinks that Samuel took David by himself and whispered to him the reason for it. The spirit of the Lord came upon David—A spirit of prudence to behave himself wisely upon all occasions, with a spirit of courage, so that he durst grapple with a lion and a bear; [illegible] the spirit of prophecy, in which he afterward very eminent. In short, a spirit fit for a prince.—Patrick. It is recorded of Saul that after his anointing, he would be changed into another man (ch. 10: 6), so David came to be more and more fully prepared to undertake the duties of king.

III. David called to Saul's court (vs. 14-23). David was soon to exchange his place as a shepherd boy for one in Saul's court. This came about through a particular train of providences. Because of Saul's wicked course the Spirit of God departed from him and an evil spirit, by God's permission or direction, took possession of him. He may have become mentally affected and the evil spirit came upon him at times to make him violent. His servants knew of the efficacy of music to quiet some who were thus affected, and they advised Saul to secure some one skilled in the use of the harp to play before him. One of the servants knew of David's skill and advised sending for him. David was thus introduced to Saul and pleased him well. He was successful in quieting the king when the evil spirit came upon him. David was in the royal court in a far different capacity from that in which he was to be there a few years later.

Questions.—Against what enemies of Israel did Saul fight successfully? What command did God give concerning the Amalekites? In what did Saul do wrong? How did Samuel feel about Saul's course? What command came to Samuel from the Lord? Describe the anointing of David. How did God judge men? How was David brought into contact with Saul?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—Divine Sovereignty.
I. Declared the vacancy of a throne.
II. Provided for a nation's uplift.

I. Declared the vacancy of a throne. The lesson before us introduces a new epoch in the development of God's purpose, showing how he determines his own methods for the accomplishment of his own ends. The changes which history records prove that the Ruler of the universe is never at fault. Saul had unfitted himself to carry out the divine plan, but God was not at the end of his resources. The son of Jesse could take the place of the son of Kish. The special faculty and power by which Saul had been prepared for his kingly work were withdrawn from him. He lost the special endowment of power which had enabled him to subdue his enemies and to order his kingdom. He was smarting under Samuel's words, writhing under the sentence of deposition. He was stirred to neutralize, if possible, the divine verdict. When Samuel charged him with his transgression, the whole impurity of his character came to view. His sin was followed by lamentable effects in his mental and moral nature, and doubtless also in his physical constitution. This affliction as a result mainly of his own misconduct, bore the character of a divine retribution, that he might know that it was an evil and bitter thing to depart from God and thus be constrained to turn to God for help. When Saul had proved himself unworthy to reign longer over Israel, a train of influences was put into operation to bring a more worthy man to the throne. Samuel was summoned to undertake a new commission and provide a new leader for God's chosen people.

II. Provided for a nation's uplift. Saul had been the nation's choice for [illegible] the people. David was God's provision for raising them to a high standard. God alone knew the spiritual work to be done in the coming king and he alone could see the latent qualities in David by which it could be performed. The historical narrative [illegible] where David's life became an instrument of service for God, when he was anointed by the aged Samuel, the last and greatest of the judges. The anointing of David was not only the designation of a successor to Saul, it was also the crowning and perfecting of the [illegible] influences of Samuel on David's head and character. The seer prophet had conferred many benefits on his nation, but none could compare in importance with his eager care for its youth. Although by Samuel's act the youthful David was now anointed, he was yet to be trained to become a king. This God effected by methods of his own. Saul knew nothing of the anointing of David. Samuel took no steps to dethrone Saul or to alienate the people from him. The kingdom was undisturbed though a new king was anointed. Jesse did not know the great man he had among his sons. To Samuel was given the blessed work of discovering men. From whatever side we view the life of David it is remarkable. After the interview with Samuel, David resumed his former position and avocation, but with new thoughts, new hopes, new prayers, and with an exalted mind and increased piety. David's early employment had a direct and divine bearing upon his later life. As a shepherd the sense of responsibility to another was powerfully called into exercise. It was his part to give special attention to the weak, the helpless and the distressed of his flock. Self-sacrifice for others was the ruling principle of the shepherd and later of the King. Great warrior though he was, the spirit most congenial to David was that of peaceful development and progress. To [illegible] of Israel he felt that he had stood in the same relation as he had occupied to his father's sheep, and to [illegible] stood to his father. David had the [illegible] without which the outward anointing was an unmeaning form. It seemed to be God's purpose in sending David to Saul as his musician to afford the king a last and best means of grace. The temporary calm which the soft tones of David's harp imparted to the stormy soul of Saul was but a superficial emotion which did not lead to repentance. T. R. A.

◆

Flat Buttons.

Use only flat-back buttons on garments that are to be laundered. They stay on best and they do not wear the cloth when ironed. They are less apt to be pulled off in the wringer. Buttons that sew through are not as easily broken. Nor do they [illegible] as large a button hole. Buttons with metal shanks are apt to rust and ruin the garment.

Sew buttons on with double thread and run the thread through the [illegible] as many times as it will go. Place a pin under the button before beginning to sew. When [illegible] the button are filled remove the pin and wind some thread around the threads between the button and the cloth. Put the thread four inches from [illegible] and tie several times.

Wax a double thread and it will pass through the holes in the button much easier.

◆

The shoe dealer has to advertise if he would leave any footprints in the sands of time.

Nelson Morris, of the famous family of packers, never wears a hat.

CANADIAN BANK
OF COMMERCE

HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

Brooms, Brushes and Twines, Etc

Mr. C. Patrick has on hand a large quantity of Brooms, Brushes, Baskets, Twines, and etc. in fact all the stock carried at the Walkerton Broom Works which will be sold at a sacrifice in order to get it out of the house, as he is anxious to get the house in shape for to rent as soon as possible. Ring up the Telescope at any time for any of these lines.

C. PATRICK
Telescope Office Walkerton

MILLINERY

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton to call and inspect the new and fashionable Spring Millinery creations now on display.

Mrs. Porteous
Next Door to Hehn's Bakery

Read This!

Give the Boy or Girl a Chance of a few Months at

The Walkerton Business College
IT IS THE BEST. NONE BETTER.

ARE YOU determined to make a success in life? If so don't fail to take advantage of the Low Rates for the next
30 DAYS — 30 DAYS — 30 DAYS — 30 DAYS
Offers unexcelled advantage in Commercial and Shorthand.

Learn while you earn. Prepare yourself for future opportunities, which are sure to come after the Great War by taking up our Home Course for those who are unable to attend Day School; BY MAIL. Circulars Free.
ENTER ANY TIME! WHY NOT NOW?
College open the year round.

P.J.MOLONEY PHONE 173 Principal

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published
every Thursday morning at
Walkerton, Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in vance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY,
Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

BY-LAW NO.

A By-law to raise the sum of $3500 by the issue of Debentures of the Town of Walkerton to pay the Town's share of the construction of an addition to the Yonge Street Bridge over the Saugeen River in said Town.

WHEREAS by an order of the Judge of the County Court of the County of Bruce dated the 11th day of December, A. D., 1911, it was ordered and declared that the Yonge Street Bridge over the Saugeen River in said Town of Walkerton was a County bridge to be maintained and kept in repair by the Corporation of the County of Bruce, and by said order it was further ordered and declared that one half of the cost of the maintenance and repair of such bridge was to be paid by the Town of Walkerton to the County of Bruce.

AND WHEREAS the Corporation of the County of Bruce have constructed an addition to the said bridge at a cost of $7000 and have made a demand on the Town of Walkerton for the sum of $3500 being one half the cost of the construction of said bridge.

AND WHEREAS owing to the other requirements of said Municipality it is not possible to provide for the said moneys in the annual levy for the year 1915 and it is therefore necessary that the said sum should be raised upon the credit of the Debentures of said Municipality.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of the opinion that the said question should be submitted to a vote of the electors of the said Town of Walkerton entitled to vote on By-laws for the creation of debts.

AND WHEREAS the said sum of $3500 is the amount of the debt which this By-law is intended to create.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $280 85 to be raised annually by special rate for a period of twenty years, the currency of the debentures to be issued under and by virtue of this By-law for paying the said sum of $3500 and interest thereon.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is the sum of $857,317.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing general debenture debt of the said Town of Walkerton is the sum of $10250.22 and the amount of the Local Improvement Debt thereof is the sum of $24628.40 making a total existing debenture debt of the said Municipality of $70878.68, of which no part of the principal or interest is in arrear.

Therefore the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton enacts as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the said Town of Walkerton and he is hereby instructed to borrow for the purpose aforesaid from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate willing to advance the same upon the credit of the said Town, the said sum of $3500 for the purpose aforesaid and to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the said amount of $3500 in sums of not less than $100 each payable in the manner, for the amounts, and at the times hereinafter more particularly mentioned.

2. The said debentures shall each be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer of the said Town and sealed with the corporate seal thereof, which the Clerk of said Municipality is hereby instructed to affix thereto, and such debentures shall be dated on the Tenth day of August, 1915, and shall be payable within twenty years from the said time of their issue at the Branch or Agency of the Merchants Bank of Canada at said town of Walkerton.

3. The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum payable yearly at the said Branch or Agency of the said Bank on the Tenth day of August in each and every year during the currency thereof (the first payment of interest to be made on the Tenth day of August 1916) and shall have attached thereto coupons for payment of the said interest which coupons shall be signed by the said Mayor and Treasurer.

4. That one of said debentures to be issued under this By-law shall be payable on the Tenth day of August in each and every year during said period of twenty years, so that the sum to be raised for principal and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal in each year.

5. The first one of such debentures shall be made payable the Tenth day of August 1916, and one debenture shall be made payable in each successive year thereafter on each Tenth day of August till all of said debentures and the interest thereon are paid as follows, that is to say:—

Year	Interest	Principal	Total Ann Amt.
1916	$ 175 00	$ 105 85	$ 280 85
1917	169 71	111 14	280 85
1918	164 15	116 70	280 85
1919	158 32	122 53	280 85
1920	152 19	128 66	280 85
1921	145 76	135 09	280 85
1922	139 00	141 85	280 85
1923	131 91	148 94	280 85
1924	124 47	156 38	280 85
1925	116 65	164 20	280 85
1926	108 43	172 42	280 85
1927	99 81	181 04	280 85
1928	90 76	190 09	280 85
1929	81 26	199 59	280 85
1930	71 28	209 57	280 85
1931	60 80	220 05	280 85
1932	49 80	231 05	280 85
1933	38 25	242 60	280 85
1934	26 12	254 73	280 85
1935	13 38	267 52	280 90
		$3500 00

6. During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised and levied in each year by a special rate sufficient therefor on all the rateable property in the Municipality of the said Town of Walkerton over and above all other rates, the sum of $280.85 for the payment of the said debt of $3500 and the interest thereon.

7. This By-law shall come into force and take effect on and from the final passing thereof.

Dated and passed this day of A.D., 1915.

Clerk Mayor.

Notice.

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton to be submitted to the votes of the electors on the 10th day of April, A.D. 1915, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon at the following places:—

East Polling Subdivision—Smith & Henderson's Block.
Centre Polling Subdivision—Town Hall.
West Polling Subdivision — John Schnitzler's house.
South Polling Subdivision — Joseph Yaeck's house,

and that the 15th day of April A.D. 1915, at twelve o'clock, noon, at the Town Hall, in the said Municipality has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice and that such first publication was made on the 25th day of March, A D. 1915.

Take Notice further that a tenant who desires to vote upon said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable or for at least twenty-one years, and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant other than local improvement rates.

A. COLLINS,
Clerk.

LAST WEEK IN THE LEGISLATURE

The Legislature sat very late every night the last week. The hours of adjournment were as follows—Tuesday morning, 1 a m., Wednesday morning 3 20 a m, Thursday morning 5 20 a m, Friday morning 3 30 a m,

This is the longest stretch of late sessions which the Legislature has had for years.

What the Government Rejected

Besides voting down the Opposition proposals to close all drinking places during the war and then submit to a majority vote to the people the question of whether they will ever be reopened or not, the Government also rejected a number of amendments to their actual bill submitted by the Liberals on the third reading. These amendments were as follows:—

1 Close all bars and clubs at 7 o'clock in the evening during the war. (Shops already closed at 7 o'clock under the new Government bill.)

2 Close all bars and clubs at 8 o'clock in the evening.

3 Close all clubs and bars at 9 o'clock in the evening.

4 Close all bars and clubs at 10 o'clock in the evening.

5 Close all clubs, bars and shops on Saturday at 1 o'clock.

6 Add New Year's to the list of prohibited days.

7 Make local option county-wide

8 Substitute majority vote for three-fifths in local option contests.

9 Strike out clause making it necessary for municipalities in which a vote for license reduction has been defeated to wait three years before the submission of a similar vote again.

10 To add shops and clubs to the bars in the clause authorizing the board to prohibit the sale of liquor to any particular class of persons.

11 Giving the board power to appoint its own inspectors and officers instead of their being appointed by the Government as under the Government bill.

Changes in Liquor Act

On the suggestion of the Opposition the Government amended their Liquor Act so as to give up their control of the new central board in regard to the suspension or the cancellation of a license.

The Government also introduced a new clause giving the commission power to make any section of the Province, large or small, entirely dry.

Public Opinion

As far as can be gauged by resolutions and meetings in all parts of the Province, public opinion is still strongly against the Government on the new liquor legislation in the view that it is quite inadequate to meet the present emergency. The rapid development of prohibition sentiment in Great Britain has helped to increase this dissatisfaction.

MR. ROWELL ON BILINGUALISM AND THE OTTAWA SCHOOL BILL

One of the most masterly addresses of the session was that given by Mr. Rowell on the bilingual question It was so eminently fair and wise that it evoked applause not only from the Liberals, but also from Conservative members.

Mr. Rowell's main points were as follows,

1 In regard to the Ottawa bill, giving the Government power, if necessary, to appoint a commission to see that the Ottawa Separate Schools are kept open no matter how acute may be the difference between the opposing sides there.

Mr. Rowell said that although he himself did not believe this was the wisest way to deal with the difficult situation there, yet since the Government recognized that the responsibility was theirs and since the Government said a bill of this kind was necessary for them to carry out the law, he would not oppose the bill or throw any obstacle in the way of the government in their trying to deal with the situation.

Mr. Rowell affirmed his strong belief that laws as long as they were in force should be obeyed and said he did not sympathize with what appeared to be a growing tendency in some quarters in Great Britain, United States and Canada to repudiate the obligation of obeying the law. Those dissatisfied should try to have the laws changed by constitutional methods.

On the general bilingual question—

1 Every child in the province of Ontario must receive a thorough English education.

2 French Canadians themselves are anxious for this.

3 The Government is responsible for seeing that every child does receive a thorough English education.

4 But, according to the Minister of Education himself, about 75 per cent of the English-French schools are without properly qualified teachers. The schools want them but they are not available and it is the Government's responsibility that these schools are not supplied with teachers. In this point lies chief difficulty in the whole situation.

HIS HEALTH IN A TERRIBLE STATE

"Fruit-a-tives" Healed His Kidneys and Cured Him

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th. 1913.
"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My Kidneys were not doing their work and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect, I found more than satisfactory.

Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

My Kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am enjoying the best health I have ever had".

B. A. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Kidney Remedy in the world. It acts on the bowels and skin as well as on the kidneys, and thereby soothes and cures any Kidney soreness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Brant Township
Farms

I have, in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, 1 forty-six acre farm, 1 one hundred and thirty acre farm, 2 two hundred acre farms all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $7000. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to see me if you want to buy at right prices

H. H. MILLER
HANOVER - - ONTARIO

Combnation Offers

You want good reading during the coming year You can't get a better paper for local news than the TELESCOPE and with it we offer the following at the prices shown The Telescope and

One new Subscription	$1.75
Saturday Globe	1.90
Family Herald	1.9
Toronto World	3.75
Farmer's Advocate	2.40
Canadian Farm	1.90
Weekly Sun	1.90
Catholic Register	1.90
Toronto Daily Globe	3.90
Toronto Daily Mail & Empire	3.90
Toronto Daily Star	2.90
Toronto Daily News	2.90
Montreal W. Witness	1.90
London Catholic Record	2.25
Canadian Baptist	2.25
Presbyterian	2.25
Westminster	2.25
Ontario Churchman	1.50
Church Life	2.00
Farm & Dairy	1.90
Weekly Mail & Empire	1.90
Saturday Night	3.50
London Advertiser	3.90

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D. L. DS Dentist Successor to Dr Coram. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work Three doors east of postoffice. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month.

J.S.REED, Surgeon, dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colbourne Str., south of new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR. BROWN, Diseases of the Eye Ear, Nose & Throat Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month 8 a m 2 to 6 p m.

W. A. HALL, B A, M D, CM, Hon Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets.

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J G CARTER, Greenock P. O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope Office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Powers' Hotel. Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and sold: money to loan; also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire, Insurance Company. — Phone No 140, ring 2 & 1.

BRITISH AMERICAN
BUSINESS COLLEGE

Leads in age, influence, and successful graduates. Specializes in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31sth. Write for our catalogue Address, T. Wauchope, Principal Younge and McGill Sts., Toronto.

You can Begin Any Day at the

NORTHERN Business College

Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three-story building and 34 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors producee the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal
D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photograhhs

Our photographs are more than good phothgraphs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser
Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES

If you want a stov buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." Non better. Aso a ful ine of Heating Stov at

H A HAVILL
Walkerton - -On

The War Does not Effect the Nursery Business

In spite of the war we are selling more nursery stock than ever before. We have room for another agent in this county, however, and applications should be sent in at once. A good man should earn from $12 to $20 per week right through the winter. No delivering or collecting. Outfit free.

Thos. W Bowman Son & Co
LIMITED
RIDGEVILLE - ONTARIO

TREES ! TREES ! !

All kinds of Fruit and ornamental Trees. Evergreens, Roses Shrubs, Climbers, etc. Everything in the nursery line. Send list of your wants for prices Catalogue free.

Ag Everywhere

Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman. Port Elgin, Ontario

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD. ONT.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

For Winnipeg and Vancouver
leave Toronto 10.20 p m daily

Attractive Tours to
Pacific Coast Points

Particulars from C.P.R. Ticket Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

H. G. Hunter, - Town Agent.
N. Hirner, - Station Agent.

Easy rests th he ad that wears

"King Hat"

King Hats are flexible and sel.-conforming, just where the hat touches he head.

ASK THE MAN WHO HAS ONE
THE "POPULAR SHAPES $2.50

T. PYE SOLE AGENT
WALKERTON - - ONTARIO

BY-LAW NO.

A by-law to raise the sum of $5000 by the issue of debentures of the town of Walkerton to improve and extend the water works system in said town.

WHEREAS the Municipal Corporation of the Town of Walkerton deem it advisable to provide an increased supply of water for the waterworks system of said Town and to secure additional fire protection by drilling a deep well at or near its pumping station and extending the water main from its present terminus at Elgin Street to connect with the main at Durham Street in said town and from the branch at Ridout Street to connect with the main crossing Ridout Street.

AND WHEREAS the cost of such drilling and extension will amount to the sum of $5000 and owing to the other requirements of the said Municipality it is not possible to provide for the said moneys in the annual levy for the year 1915, and it is therefore necessary that the said sum should be raised upon the credit of the Debentures of the said Municipality.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of the opinion that the said question should be submitted to a vote of the electors of the said Town of Walkerton entitled to vote on By-laws for the creation of debts.

AND WHEREAS the said sum of $5000 is the amount of the debt which this By-law is intended to create.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $325.26 to be raised annually by special rate for a period of thirty years, the currency of the Debentures to be issued under and by virtue of this By-law for paying the said sum of $5000 and interest thereon.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is the sum of $857.317.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing general debenture debt of the said Town of Walkerton is the sum of $46250 22 and the amount of the Local Improvement Debt thereof is the sum of $24628.46 making a total existing debenture debt of the said Municipality of $70878.68, of which no part of the principal or interest is in arrears.

Therefore The Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton Enacts as Follows

1 It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the said Town of Walkerton, and he is hereby instructed to borrow for the purpose aforesaid from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate willing to advance the same upon the credit of the said Town the said sum of $5000 for the purpose aforesaid, and to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the said amount of $5000 in sums of not less than $100 each, payable in the manner, for the amounts and at the times hereinafter more particularly mentioned.

2 The said debentures shall each be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer of the said Town and sealed with the Corporate seal thereof which the Clerk of said Municipality is hereby instructed to affix thereto, and such debentures shall be dated on the tenth day of August 1915, and shall be payable within thirty years from the said time of their issue at the Branch or Agency of the Merchants Bank of Canada at said Town of Walkerton.

3 The said Debentures shall bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum payable yearly at the said Branch or Agency of the said Bank on the tenth day of August in each and every year during the currency thereof (the first payment of interest to be made on the tenth day of August 1916) and shall have attached thereto coupons for payment of the said interest which coupons shall be signed by the said Mayor and Treasurer.

4 That one of said debentures to be issued under this By-law shall be payable on the tenth day of August in each and every year during said period of thirty years, so that the sum to be raised for principal and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal in each year.

5 The first one of such Debenture shall be made payable on the tenth day of August 1916, and one debenture shall be made payable in each successive year thereafter on each tenth day of August, till all of said Debentures and the interest thereon are paid as follows, that is to say:—

Year	Int	Principal	Total Annual Amt
1916	250 00	75 26	325 26
1917	246 24	79 02	325 26
1918	242 29	82 97	325 26
1919	238 14	87 12	325 26
1920	233 78	91 48	325 26
1921	229 21	96 05	325 26
1922	224 41	100 85	325 26
1923	219 36	105 90	325 26
1924	214 07	111 19	325 26
1925	208 51	116 75	325 26
1926	202 67	122 59	325 26
1927	196 54	128 72	325 26
1928	190 11	135 15	325 26
1929	183 35	141 91	325 26
1930	176 26	149 00	325 26
1931	168 80	156 46	325 26
1932	160 98	164 28	325 26
1933	152 77	172 49	325 26
1934	144 14	181 12	325 26
1935	135 08	190 17	325 26
1936	125 58	199 68	325 26
1937	115 60	209 66	325 26
1938	105 11	220 15	325 26
1939	94 10	231 16	325 26
1940	82 55	242 71	325 26
1941	70 41	254 85	325 26
1942	57 67	267 59	325 26
1943	44 29	280 97	325 26
1944	30 24	295 02	325 26
1945	15 49	309 74	325 26
		$5000 00

6 During the currency of the said Debentures there shall be raised and levied in each year by a special rate sufficient therefor on all rateable property in the Municipality of the said Town of Walkerton over and above all other rates the sum of $325.26 for the payment of the said debt of $5000 and the interest thereon.

7 This By-law shall come into force and take effect on and from the final passing thereof.

Dated and passed this day of A. D. 1915.

Clerk Mayor

NOTICE

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the Town of Walkerton to be submitted to the votes of the electors on the 10th day of April A. D. 1915, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon at the following places:—

East Polling Subdivision—At Smith & Henderson's Block,
Centre Polling Subdivision—At the Town Hall,
West Polling Subdivision—At John Schnitzler's House
South Polling Subdivision — At Joseph Yaeck's House.

And that the 15th day of April A. D. 1915, at twelve o'clock noon at the Town Hall, in the said Municipality has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice and that such first publication was made on the 25th day of March A. D. 1915.

Take notice futher that a tenant who desires to vote upon said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable or for at least twenty-one years, and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all Municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant other than local improvement rates.

A. COLLINS Clerk.

Richards QUICK NAPTHA THE WOMAN'S SOAP

School Reports.

S. S. No. 7, BRANT.

Sr IV.—S Scott, F Young, G Kerry, H Reed, W Brown, M Fordyce, O Sieler

Jr. IV.—G Scott, D McKeeman, T Desmond, G Kerry.

Sr. III. — G Gregg, L Scott, W O'Reilly, D Desmond E Acton.

Jr. III.—J McKeeman, K Kauffman.

Sr. II.—V Blue, M Young, T Young, A Young, F Smith, M Brown, A Hoffarth.

Jr. II. —L Kerry, L Gregg, H Scott, E Blue, M Young, N Kerry, F Desmond, M Kauffman, T Desmond, J O'Reilly, S Kauffman.

Sr. I.—P Gregg, C Hoffarth, M Pearson.

Sr. Pr.—B Edmunds, M Napper, J Alexander, W Zettler, A Kauffman, J Kupperschmidt.

Jr. Pr.—G Kerry, L Zettler.

No. enrolled 37, average attendance 22.

E. S. LOVELL,
teacher.

S. S. No. 2, CARRICK.

Sr. IV.—Harry Krueger, Edward South.

Jr. IV.—Jennie Jasper, Stanley Wilton, Eleanor Hossfeld.

Jr. III. - Albert Polfus, Bertha Polfus, Otilda Polfus, Zenolea Miller, Elsie Jasper, Martha Voigt, Evelyn Hossfeld.

Sr. II.—Lizzie Polfus, Louisa Hossfeld, Olivia Schmidt, Wilma Koenig, Edward Vogt.

Jr —Arthur Hossfeld, Rose Freiburger, Lorena Voigt, Nellie Jasper, Wallace Wilton, Arthur Procknow.

First Book— Alma Krueger, Evelyn Weber Martin Polfus, Katie Hossfeld, Alice Sotten.

Primer — Freddie Polfus, Willie Hossfeld, Orlando Smith, Annie Hossfeld.

Average attendance 20.

M. B. Hogg,
teacher.

S. S. No. 5 GREENOCK

Class A.—40% on each subject, 75 on total.

Class B—40 on each subject, 60 per cent on total

Class C—Failure in a subject or in total.

Sr IV.—A—F Donnelly 87, N Murray 80. B—G Lambertus 73, M Knox 70, M Pinkerton 67.

C—R Garland 60, R Clark

Jr IV.—A—C Donnelly 79, C Campbell 79. B—N Alexander 72, T Garland 60, E Alexander 65.

C—J Gregg 61, E Donnelly 53, E Desmond 45, E Taylor 42.

Jr III.—A—G Gale 76, N Clark 76. B—A Pinkerton 72, A Donnelly 70, C Kenny 68, J Elphick 60, V Lambertus 62. C—W Campbell 51, H Kenny 56.

Sr II.—A—C Baxter 79. B—S Clark 69, H Desmond 61. C—G Knox 50, L Chick 55.

Sr I.—Names in order of merit. A Lambertus, E Campbell, E Chick, J Kenny, E Pinkerton, D Donnelly, A Elphick.

Jr I.—M Taylor, R Clark, F Richardson, J Kraemer, E Taylor, G McKee.

Sr Pr — R Taylor, C Andrews, R Campbell, P Desmond, J Thompson.

Jr Pr—C Elphick, L Taylor.

A. E. REID,
teacher.

Rhyme for the Season.

Now let us give the war a rest, the rout, the siege, the sally, and gaily shed our coat and vest, and go and clean the alley! Let's gather up the dogs and cats which this life departed, and let the cats and bricks and hats off to the dump be carted. In winter you may voice your views which you believe important, and base long sermons on the news, but in the spring you orten't. Then every able-bodied man should whoop the "Clean Up" slogan, and chase the old tomato can, the cast-off hat and brogan. So let us clear our bulging brows of trifling thoughts and narrow, and gather up the old dead cows and work the rake and harrow. The rubbish left by careless men and lazy human cheeses will bring a host of germs again, and they'll bring punk diseases. And forty million flies will come as many microbes bearing and round our weary heads they'll hum and keep us busy swearing. Clean up! Clean up! On every block let all the workers rally. No man should stand around and talk until he's cleaned his alley.—Exchange.

Bruce doing it's Share.

Some days ago there appeared an effusion from the pen of A. E. Belcher, of Toronto, urging the young men of Bruce to enlist. Apparently the writer, who at one time was a resident of Southampton, but of late years has been a resident of Toronto, and while in touch with Toronto conditions, is sadly out of touch with conditions in Bruce. The young men of Bruce are doing their share in the defence of the empire. The fact is the west has many of our sons, and from all the western provinces scores of Bruce young men may be found in the first and second contingents. We fancy Mr. Belcher decided to get his name into print, and simply pitched into Bruce County, knowing that anything is received kindly up here. However, Mr. R. Stewart Muir, a former Bruce man takes exception to the insinuation and sets forth in cold figures the facts that Bruce young men are living up to the best traditions of the men of the country. The only discouraging feature of Mr. Muir's reply is that it offers another opportunity for a column or two reply. In The Globe on March 10th Mr. Muir makes this reply:—

To the Editor of The Globe: In a recent issue appeared a complaint regarding "Recruiting in Bruce." The writer has obtained the following figures, which so constitute a complete reply to such complaint or criticism: In the first contingent were 86 men, 2 lieutenants and 3 Captains. Bruce County sent to the second contingent 50 men (full quota) 1 Sergent, 2 Lieutenants and 2 Captains. For the third contingent there are 75 men, 1 Lieutenant, 1 Major and 1 Lieutenant Colonel. In addition, there is a company of 38 men and a captain on guard duty at the wireless station at Tobermory." Of this record Bruce may well be proud, but when it is known that sons of Bruce both in eastern and western Canada, have equally shown devotion to the Empire, there is greater reason to rejoice that our home country is no lag in practical patriotism Devotion to duty did not die with the heroes of 1866.—Port Elgin Times.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & Co. Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The 34th Annual Presentation of medals and prizes took place at the Nothern Business College, Owen Sound on Wednesday afternoon. The College has had its usual good attendance and the contests were very keen. The judging was done by Town Treasurer A. F. Armstrong and Mr. W. P. Telford, Manager of the Grey and Bruce Loan Co. In many instances they had considerable difficulty in reaching a decision and the work was a credit to the students and to their instructors. The presentations made by the Principal C. A. Fleming, F. C. A., and members of the Staff were as follows:—

Best Specimen of Writing: — 1st, Miss Olive Corry; 2nd, Miss Elsie Stephen; 3rd, Miss Lillian Perkins; 4th Mr. J C Knowles.

Rapid Business Writing:—1st, Miss Rhoda Rose; 2nd, Mr. Bruce Smith; 3rd Miss Lillian Perkins; Mr. J C Knowles.

Greatest Improvement in Writing:—1st, Mr. W J Morgan; 2nd, Mr Roy Benedict; 3rd, Mr. George Ledingham; 4th, Miss Janetta H Sinclair.

Final Test in Spelling:—1st, David Dusie; 2nd, Miss Annie Stark; 3rd, Miss Lillian Perkins; 4th, Miss Jean Armstrong.

Weekly Record in Spelling:—1st, Miss Annie Stark; 2nd, Miss Jennie Maynard; 3rd, Mr David Dusie; 4th, Miss C[illegible].

Rapid Calculations:—1st, Miss Lillian Perkins; 2nd, Mr J Munro, Mr G Ledingham; 3rd, Miss Rhoda Rose, Mr J C Knowless; 4th, Mr George White, Mr S J McDougall.

Best Kept Set of Business Books:—1st, Miss Lillian Perkins; 2nd, Miss Olive Corry; 3rd, Miss Jean Armstrong; 4th, Mr J C Knowles.

Letter Copying:—1st, Miss Jennie Maynard; 2nd, Miss Ida Dunn; 3rd, Mr Clarence McGire; 4th, Miss May Minor.

Get a Line on - -
PERRIN'S
British Navy
Biscuits
REGISTERED
At your grocers

Widen Your Influence!

Your telephone connects you intimately with the varied interests of the community in which you live. You are in touch with all phases of the life of your town. Though you seldom go far from your own office, yet your influence is a factor.

Through your telephone you can widen your influence, you can extend the scope of your business. The long distance lines bring distant communities within reach of your voice, your personality, in the most inexpensive way.

By careful planning and systematic application, you can so keep in touch with distant customers, wholesalers, manufacturers, that all the advantages of personal intercourse are secured through the telephone.

Why not make a study of long distance telephone service as related to the special needs of your business. It will pay you, and we will gladly give you any information in our power.

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station."

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

Extra Special Grocery Items

ARE YOU BUYING WHERE YOU GET THE BEST RESULTS ?

We ask this question knowing that we are giving better values than you can get elsewhere.
It will shorten your mileage to prosperity to trade here.

Ladies' Coats
For Spring, in black, brown and grey shades
Regular $15 and $18 values
Clearing at $5.00

Curtains Clearing at Half-Price
Fine Swiss Nett and Nottingham Lace.
Reg. $4.00 and $5.00 pair for $2.49 pair
Reg. 75c. pr. for 48c pr

6 Boxes
Eddy,s Silent Matches for 25c.
5 Gallons
best American water-white oil for 75c.

50 Bags Potatoes
90 lbs. to bag
Only 40c. bag

Black, Green or Mixed Tea
Regular 35c. a lb. for Saturday only
25 cents a lb.
Quality guaranteed.

Window Shades
All widths in White, Cream and Green
Some pure linen.
Regular 65c for 35c.
75c to $1 25 " 50c.

Axminster and Tapestry
Carpet Ends
1 yard and 1 yard and a quarter lengths.
Regular 85 cents each
Clearing at 65c.

Orders promptly delivered
Mrs. C. Reaney PHONE 8 J. Pleskey
We pay the highest prices for produce.

Old Country News

MORE VICTORIA CROSSES.

His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve of the grant of the Victoria Cross to the under-mentioned officers and men for their conspicuous acts of bravery and devotion to duty while serving with the Expeditionary Force:

Lieut. Arthur Martin Leake, Royal Army Medical Corps, who was awarded the Victoria Cross on May 13, 1902, is granted a clasp for conspicuous bravery in the present campaign.

Lieut.-Col. Ernest Wright Alexander, 119th Battery, Royal Field Artillery, for conspicuous bravery on Oct. 24, 1914, when the flank guard was attacked by a German corps, in handling his battery against overwhelming odds with such conspicuous success that all his guns were saved, notwithstanding that they had to be withdrawn by hand by himself and three other men. This enabled the retirement of the 5th Division to be carried out without serious loss.

1535, Drummer William Kenny, 2nd Battalion, the Gordon Highlanders, for conspicuous bravery on Oct. 23 near Ypres, in rescuing wounded men on five occasions under very heavy fire in the most fearless manner, and by twice previously saving machine guns by carrying them out of action.

Lieut. James Anson Otho Brooke, 2nd Battalion, the Gordon Highlanders, for conspicuous bravery and great ability near Gheluvelt on Oct. 29 in leading two attacks on the German trenches under heavy rifle and machine gun fire, regaining a lost trench at a very critical moment. He was killed on that day.

Capt. John Franks Vallentin, 1st Battalion, the South Staffordshire Regiment, for conspicuous bravery on Nov. 7 at Zillebeke. When leading the attack against the Germans under a very heavy fire he was struck down, and on rising to continue the attack was immediately killed.

Lieut. Frank Alexander de Pass, late 34th Prince Albert Victor's Own Poona Horse, for conspicuous bravery near Festubert on Nov. 24 in entering a German sap and destroying a traverse in the face of the enemy's bombs, and for summarily rescuing, under heavy fire, a wounded man, who was lying exposed in the open. Lieut. de Pass lost his life on this day in a second attempt to capture the aforementioned sap, which had been reoccupied by the enemy.

11,340, Pte. Henry Howey Robson, 2nd Battalion, the Royal Scots (Lothian Regiment), for most conspicuous bravery near Kemmel on Dec. 14, 1914, during an attack on the German position, when he left his trench under a very heavy fire and rescued a wounded non-commissioned officer, and subsequently for making an attempt to bring another wounded man into cover, whilst exposed to a severe fire.

8185, Pte. James Mackenzie, late 2nd Battalion, Scots Guards, for conspicuous bravery at Rouges Bancs on Dec. 19, in rescuing a severely wounded man from in front of the German trenches under a very heavy fire and after a stretcher-bearer party had been compelled to abandon the attempt. Pte. Mackenzie was subsequently killed on that day while in the performance of a similar act of gallant conduct.

Lieut. Philip Neame, Royal Engineers, for conspicuous bravery on Dec. 19 near Neuve Chapelle, when, notwithstanding the very heavy rifle fire and bomb-throwing of the enemy, he succeeded in holding them back and rescuing all the wounded men whom it was impossible to move.

10,694, Pte. Abraham Acton, 2nd Battalion, the Border Regiment; 6423, Pte. James Smith, 3rd Battalion, the Border Regiment (attached 2nd Battalion), for conspicuous bravery on Dec. 21 at Rouges Bancs, in voluntarily going from their trench and rescuing a wounded man, who had been lying exposed against the enemy's trenches for 75 hours, and on the same day again leaving their trench voluntarily, under heavy fire, to bring into cover another wounded man.

RUSSIAN V. C. FOR A BRITON

The St. George's Cross for Valor, the Russian equivalent of our British Victoria Cross, we are informed by his father, has been awarded by the Czar to Mr. George Schack-Sommer, a Londoner, and an old Etonian, aged 21, who is serving with the 12th Akhtyrky Hussars, with which regiment he went through the Dukal Pass of the Carpathians into Hungary. There he performed the deed which won for him the cross, Russia's greatest recognition of valor.

In a letter to his sister he says: "We were storming the Austrian lines all day. After 4 o'clock they did not reply. It was decided to send scouts to find out if they were bluffing. I volunteered to go, and eight others made up the party. We all got down to a stream, and from there another chap and I crept forward, trying to look like tree-stumps. There was no moon and it was snowing, but the snow on the ground made it light enough to see and be seen. When about twenty yards from the lines I heard voices and waited some twenty minutes and ascertained that several men were there. Then I saw two men and they spotted me, so I beat a hasty retreat. They fired twice, but either very wide or low, as I did not hear the bullets."

This is believed to be the only occasion on which the Russian "V. C." has been given to an Englishman serving as an officer in the Russian army.

MAN'S 16FT BEARD

Mr. Richard Latter, who has died at the age of 84, at Tunbridge Wells, claimed to have grown a longer beard than any other man in Europe. His beard was 16 feet in length and he frequently exhibited it with great pride to his friends. Mr. Latter found his beard, which was made into a plait, an excellent as well as unique "chest protector."

NOTES

Eleven lives were lost in a fire in the Newhorn Heath Colliery, Chesterton, North Staffordshire.

Falling through the ropes of the ring on the floor during the second round of a regimental contest at Aldershot, Trooper John [illegible] [illegible] after complaining of feeling "groggy." He died in the Cambridge Hospital from a fractured skull.

The Belfast Corporation has decided [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] running [illegible] recruiting [illegible]. The car is illuminated at night and arrests the attention of all passers-by.

The death of W. P. Manners, managing director of Messrs. Worthington, brewers, Burton-on-Trent, recalls the fact that he entered the firm's employ as office boy, but displayed such energy and ability that at the age of 23 [illegible].

The single plank on which Joseph Buick and Edward Smith, painters, were standing while working in St. Mary's Church, Drogheda, snapped and both men fell from the scaffolding. The distance to the ground was about 25 feet, and both men were killed.

The Leeds Education Committee has approved by a large majority of a scheme for the rifle practice for scholars attending the elementary schools in the city.

The death took place at Wimbledon of Mr. George Augustus Richardson, who during the last thirty-eight years acted as secretary to Mr. D'Oyly Carte, and later to Mrs. D'Oyly Carte.

The King has appointed Mr. Francis Edward Stoner to be Page of Honor to His Majesty, vice Mr. [illegible] Penn Curzon Howe, resigned.

Major-General Viscount Falmouth has been appointed Colonel of the Coldstream Guards in succession to the late General Lord W. F. E. Seymour.

As the result of a pontoon disaster near Gainsbro', seven members of the 4th K.O.Y.L.I. were drowned.

With one exception all the shipyards of note on the upper reaches of the Clyde are affected by the engineers' strike.

The decreased competition of motor omnibuses is benefiting the London County Council tramways, which now have an increased revenue of £5,000 weekly as compared with last year.

The body of a private in a South Wales battalion was found on the road near Rhyl, his regiment's headquarters, and it is thought he lost his way at night and died of exposure.

The London County Council has arranged to wait until peace is declared before deciding its policy with regard to women doctors and marriage, but meanwhile these doctors must resign if they marry.

Corporal Knowles, of the South Lancashire Regiment, has been promoted on the battlefield, mentioned in despatches, and awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal for exceptional gallantry in obtaining water for wounded comrades under terrific shell fire.

The death is announced of the Rev. Neil MacLachlan, B. D., of Dalkeith, who was a prominent figure in the United Free Church Assembly.

The death has taken place at Leeds, in his 87th year, of the Rev. Charles Henry Middleton Wake, F. L. S., who is known as an authority on Rembrandt.

Mr. George Lister, ex-Chief Constable of Doncaster, a widely known and popular police official, has died at the age of 78. He had seen 51 St. Legers.

The Hon. John Edward Gordon, a Unionist member for Brighton from 1911 to 1914, died, aged 65. He was the eldest son of Lord Gordon of Drumearn, a life peer who was twice Lord Advocate for Scotland.

A blackbird's nest containing five fully grown young birds has been found in a box underneath a spring cart belonging to Mr. John Eccles, a well-known Sheffield tradesman.

Dr. Du Pre, assistant to Dr. Parke, of Tideswell, has just been appointed Assistant Medical Inspector of Schools for the County of Derby.

The death has taken place somewhat suddenly of Mrs. Piper, of Arboretum street, Derby, wife of Mr. W. J. Piper, J. P., editor of the "Derby Daily Telegraph."

Mr. Kenneth William Doughty, of the Accountant's Department of the Midland Railway, Derby, has been appointed accountant of the Great Western and Midland Railway Companies' Severn and Wye Joint Railway, in succession to Mr. T. A. H. Smith.

Rev. A. B. Browne, for 27 years rector of Bradfield, was instituted and inducted to the benefice of [illegible]-cum-Grafton, in the diocese of Ripon, on the presentation of the Council of St. John's College, Cambridge.

The Rev. Claud William Janvrin, M. A., senior curate of [illegible], has been appointed vicar of Woodhouse, in succession to the Rev. George [illegible] Rankine, recently appointed vicar of Fernhurst, in the diocese of Chichester.

The Rev. W. Blackshaw has accepted the pastorate of Highgate Congregational Church in succession to the Rev. Dugald Macfadyen, says the "British Weekly." Mr. Blackshaw hopes to begin his ministry on 6th of June.

It is understood that the Government have taken Byrkley Lodge, Burton-on-Trent, as a convalescent home for wounded Belgian soldiers. The mansion is the property of Sir William Bass and has been in the market for a considerable time. It stands in a park which forms part of the original Royal Forest of Needwood.

At Slough Mrs. John Sutton, of Lewins Farm, Chippenham, Slough, was buried in the same grave as her husband. She died the day following the funeral of Mr. Sutton, after she had watched from her bed of illness the cortege leave the house.

Miss Montgomery Buckle has been appointed "postmaster" in the place of her father, Captain Montgomery Buckle, who is on active service, and has charge of sixty Boy Scouts on duty at Porthcothan, Cornwall, assisting the special coast watchers.

An extra lifeboat named the [illegible] Porter-Barton has been placed at [illegible] by the Royal National Lifeboat Institution.

There has been a coal famine at Hartlepool [illegible]. Nothing approaching a normal supply of coal has yet been reached.

Evidence at Galway at the inquest on John Kelly, who was found dead, was given to the effect that the man, who was over eighty years old, had been [illegible].

[illegible] his colleagues at the [illegible] when he suddenly fell back in his chair and died. Mr. Moore was [illegible]enty-eight years of age, and a leading local Liberal.

UP-TO-DATE LITTLE MISS DRESSES JUST LIKE HER GROWN-UP SISTER

Little Miss Up-to-Date has caught right up to Big Sister in the spring fashion parade, and for the remainder of this season at least the littlest girl in the family will be as smartly dressed as any young lady of fashion.

But even if little girls do dress like big girls, the little ones are just as sweet and cute as when they wore French dresses and Kate Greenaways, because straight-lined coats and "tippie" skirts, and even the military collars are so easily modified to suit juvenile figures.

Suggested arterial roads in greater London were discussed at the meeting of the Middlesex County Council upon a motion of the Highways Committee viewing with favor the [illegible] of two arterial roads, one from Denham, Bucks, through Middlesex to the Colchester road, the other from Chertsey, Surrey, joining the [illegible] arterial road at Redhill, Edgware road and continuing thence to join the St. Albans road and the Great North road at Hadley High Stone.

A fire broke out at the parish church of [illegible], Warwickshire, owing to a [illegible] and the fire was subdued before very serious damage was done to the building beyond the burning of a large hole in the roof.

Saturday was "Threepenny Day" at Eton College, a custom ranking in age with "[illegible]" and "Montem," though it has survived the latter. Seventy new threepenny pieces were distributed by the Provost [illegible] to the collegers in hall after luncheon. The custom was originated by Roger Lupton, who was provost from 1503 to 1535.

The outer wall of [illegible], a house just below Windsor Bridge, Windsor, collapsed and fell into the river. The whole side of the house was carried away and articles of furniture fell into the river and were washed away. No one was injured.

William Martin Tasker, fruit grower, Berkeley Lodge, Worthing, aged 73, had only just entered a church on Saturday evening when he staggered and fell. On being carried into one of the vestries he was found to have died.

Wath Council sealed an agreement for the purchase of land at £2,000 for the purpose of a [illegible] school.

Private C. Ward, a Leeds man, who gained a V. C. in the South African War whilst serving with the 2nd K. O. Y. L. I., has been gazetted Lieutenant with the [illegible] K. O. Y. L. I.

Dr. William Angus, formerly [illegible] Hereford, has been appointed acting Medical Health Officer for Leeds at a salary of £900 [illegible] Dr. [illegible] Cameron, resigned.

Joseph [illegible] was [illegible] and fatally injured [illegible] Malton, as a result of [illegible] of a steam wagon.

The funeral took place at Liverpool of Mr. W. Carter, who for many years was headmaster of [illegible] School, Wirksworth.

The Rev. W. H. Pollard [illegible] of St. George's Church, [illegible], has been appointed curate of St. James', Stainland, near Halifax, in succession to the Rev. H. D. Irvine.

A son of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, of Westminster Chapel, the Rev. Percival Morgan has accepted the pastorate of the Tatnall Square Presbyterian Church, Macon, Georgia.

The Rev. J. P. Morson, the Primitive Methodist minister at Alfreton, recently notified his proposed removal in 1916, and at the quarterly meeting of the circuit it was reported that the Rev. J. H. Thornley, of Tunstall, Stoke-on-Trent, had accepted the appointment as his successor.

Charged with bigamy at Hull, a soldier pleaded that his first marriage was not proper, as he did not give the girl a ring.

Two brothers, Owen and Edward Fitzsimmons, were sentenced to death at Durham Assizes for the murder of [illegible] at Sunderland. The jury had recommended the men to mercy.

It is officially announced that the King has appointed Mr. Edward Graham Wood of Southport to be Sheriff of the County Palatine of Lancaster for the current year.

Mrs. Ibrahim, wife of Captain W. N. Ibrahim, Army Veterinary Corps, of [illegible] Cottage, Dorchester, has given birth to triplets (girls). Captain Ibrahim is with the Expeditionary Force.

Newcastle Council has adopted a scheme of quayside extension and improvement which is to cost £250,000.

By seven votes to six the Mold Urban Council declined to allow religious cinema pictures at the Old Town Hall on Good Friday.

It is estimated that 40,000 men have joined the army from Tyneside, which has in addition contributed 3,000 to the naval brigade.

A benzine tank exploded at Cardiff while being removed from Trinity House in a steam yacht, and six men were seriously injured.

The death is announced at Dalkeith of Miss [illegible] Stewart Kilgour, who was within a few days of attaining her 102nd birthday, having been born on March 7, 1813.

[illegible] battalions raised by the Newcastle Chamber of Commerce [illegible] from which the men's dependants are [illegible] has reached £27,000.

The Admiralty offers substantial money rewards to civilians on the [illegible] coast for information leading to the capture or destruction of enemy war vessels, including submarines, mine-layers, and also for reports of mines [illegible].

[illegible] municipal employees, skilled and unskilled, have sent in a demand for a [illegible] advance in wages.

At a meeting of the shipyard workers [illegible] have decided to [illegible] the engineering portions [illegible].

QUITE DEMURE.

[illegible] in this beautifully [illegible] frock of pink chiffon [illegible] white tulle give the very [illegible] flare, which would otherwise hang limp, the [illegible] and flare which is so much admired and [illegible]. Over the shoulders are [illegible] shoulder fastened to the [illegible] of chiffon.

YOU SHOULD BE AFRAID OF A COUGH OR COLD.

Coughs and colds do not call for a detailed recital of symptoms as they are well known to everyone, but their dangers are not so well known. All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes are, in the beginning, but coughs and colds.

Many people when they contract a slight cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps that it will pass away in a day or two. The trouble is that before they know it, it has settled on their lungs.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cough or cold it must be gotten rid of immediately, as failure to do this may cause years of suffering from serious lung trouble.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

will cure the cough or cold and prevent any serious trouble, such as bronchitis, pneumonia, or consumption.

Mrs. R. E. Dunn, Hastings, Ont., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to [illegible] Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, telling you what it did for my [illegible]. The doctor had given her up [illegible] as we thought, gone [illegible] with the cough she had. I was told by a friend to try "Dr. Wood's" and when she had taken two bottles she was on her feet again, and four bottles cured her."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy for coughs and colds. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A war bonus is now being paid by the Metropolitan Railway to their employes. An addition of 3s. per week has been made to the current pay to servants over 18 years of age in receipt of less than £150 per annum, and 2s. per week to all whose standard earnings are over that amount.

The marriage of the Bishop of Gibraltar with Miss M. B. Swete, niece of the Rev. Dr. Swete, Regius Professor of Divinity, Cambridge, will take place immediately after Easter.

The death has occurred at Mytholmroyd of Mr. Clarence William Greenwood, aged 63, for 22 years a member of the District Council.

Old cricketers will learn with regret of the death of the Rev. C. D. Marsham, in his day the best amateur bowler in England. Born on Jan. 30, 1835, Mr. Marsham had completed his 80th year.

The Hull City Council has lost one of its senior members, Alderman William G. Wharram, who has died at the age of 84. The deceased gentleman entered the Corporation in 1881. He was also a guardian for 40 years.

Mr. Francis Coates, a noted Yorkshire agriculturist, and for 51 years a member of the Malton Board of Guardians, has died at his home at Little Habton. Noted as a breeder of shorthorns. Mr. Coates was in his 80th year.

The death is announced of Colonel R. E. Boothby. He joined the Royal Artillery in 1875, and retired at Leeds in 1905, when holding the command of the 2nd Brigade R. F. A., which he also commanded at Bradford for a couple of years. Col. Boothby took part in the Afghan war, 1878-80, and the Boer War, 1902.

The Sheffield Crimean and Indian veterans held their 21st annual dinner. 21 years ago there was a company of 100. The expenses of the dinner are borne by members of the committee.

A gardener, while at work in a garden adjoining St. Peter's Church, Bournemouth, discovered a silver chalice used for invalids' private Communions which has been lost for eight years. The chalice was missed in August, 1906, and diligent searches for it proved futile.

NAVAL BOY HERO.

An instance of juvenile courage worthy of a Henty novel is told of a sailor boy on board H. M. S. Tiger during the last fleet action in the North Sea. The periscope glass of a turret were [illegible] by smoke and spray, making it difficult if not impossible to train the guns [illegible]. [illegible] first class, climbed outside and cleaned the periscope. Firing recommenced and the boy was forgotten. He remained on the turret and cleaned the glass throughout the action, being practically deafened by the roar of the guns.

Slicing Bacon.

To slice bacon properly always place it rind down and do not attempt to cut through the rind. When you have the desired number of slices slip the knife under them and cut them free from the rind, keeping as close to it as possible.

Knew His Limitations.

"I don't want to brag about myself. I've done many foolish things in my time, but I've been wise in one way."

"What's that?"

"I never had an idea that I could [illegible] a bedroom [illegible]."—Detroit Free Press.

[illegible] yearly imports $25,000 worth of [illegible].

The Slow, Sluggish, Torpid Action of the Liver is Responsible for Many Ills.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills stimulate the sluggish liver, clean the coated tongue, sweeten the obnoxious breath, clean away all waste and poisonous matter from the system, and prevent as well as cure all complaints arising from a liver which has become inactive.

Constipation, sick headache, bilious headache, jaundice, heartburn, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc., all come from a disordered liver.

Mr. Victor B. McNeills, Sandstone, Alta., writes: "I thought I would write and tell you of my experience with Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, as I am greatly pleased with the results I received by using them. I was troubled with sick headache for a long time, and would get so heavy right after I ate my dinner that I could not do any work. A friend of mine, from Toronto, visited me last summer and he asked me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. He told me they had done him so much good for his stomach. I used several vials, and I found they did me so much good that I can recommend them to any one suffering from liver trouble."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CLEVEREST SWINDLER

However strongly one may reprobate crime of all descriptions, there are impostors whose exploits are so clever, audacious and amusing that the severest moralist of us all can scarcely resist a feeling of admiration for talents which, if better exercised, would certainly have made them famous in such creditable calling in life.

Such a man was Anthelme Collet, one of the cleverest swindlers of any age or country, a man who might have made a great reputation as an actor if his gifts had not been hopelessly perverted. But Anthelme, who first saw the light of France in 1785, was a born criminal if there ever was one. From the cradle to his early grave he never seems to have had the least inclination to run straight if there was any possibility of going crooked.

As a child he proved such a thorn in the side of his parents, who were highly respectable people, that they were obliged to send him from home and to place him under the charge of an uncle, a priest in Italy, who within three years was compelled to give him up in despair.

Young Collett was then sent to a military school and, after several escapades which nearly led to his expulsion, entered the French army as sub-lieutenant and was stationed at Grenoble. At last Anthelme, to the satisfaction of his parents, seemed to be fairly launched on a respectable career, but their hopes were soon doomed to disappointment.

The young subaltern resented the restrictions and discipline of army life, he quarreled with a brother officer, fought a duel with him, was wounded, and found himself in a hospital at Naples. There he came under the influence of a monk, and, professing piety, was induced to take the cowl, while his nursing of a sick major in the same ward of the hospital was rewarded by a legacy of several thousand francs on the major's death.

When he was restored to health he turned his back on the army and entered the monastery of Saint Pierre, where his zeal, piety and ability were soon rewarded by a responsible position. He was entrusted with the collection of subscriptions and made so excellent use of his opportunities that he transferred thousands of francs to his own pockets. Fearing detection, he got permission from the prior to go to Naples in order, he said, to claim a large fortune which had been left to him.

Arrived at Naples he played his cards so cleverly that he was soon in possession of 22,000 francs, obtained by a forged cheque, and was at last in a position to commence the series of swindles and impostures which for daring and success have never been rivaled in the story of crime. His first act was to discard his clerical garb as he had thrown off his soldier's uniform. He blossomed into a great noble dubbed himself Marquis of Dodo, and with an imposing retinue and in a gorgeous equipage started on his travels, being received everywhere with the deference due to his exalted rank and wealth.

But Collet soon wearied of posturing as a marquis, or it may be that his finances were exhausted. At any rate, when chance threw in his way the papers of a sea captain called Tolosan he promptly adopted his name and personality. As Tolosan he was warmly welcomed in Rome by a friend of the captain's family and was introduced by him to Cardinal Fesch, the most powerful of all the dignitaries of the papal court and an uncle of the great Napoleon.

Now we find Anthelme Collet, former lieutenant, monk, marquis and sea captain, installed in a cardinal's palace [illegible] and in [illegible] with [illegible]. [illegible] perfectly [illegible] portable or convertible, until, within [illegible] he was in possession of [illegible],000 francs.

Not content with this [illegible], he [illegible] a bull for the creation of a bishop and a number of [illegible] for appointing priests. Thus equipped, Collet vanished from the scene of his triumphs, ostensibly on a mission for the church, but [illegible] without any intention of showing his face in Rome again for many a year.

After some weeks of [illegible].

Among other things, [illegible] a series of theatrical performances [illegible] all their sumptuous trimmings, [illegible] the first performance [illegible] the entire wardrobe [illegible] for them.

From the [illegible] of fashion [illegible] he now lapsed into the character of a poor monk and made his way into Switzerland—a refugee from persecution. There he enlisted the [illegible] of the Bishop of Sion, who not only gave him hospitality, but appointed him to a vacant benefice in [illegible] parishes.

And never did any man more enthusiastically dedicate himself to the cure of souls than this arch hypocrite and swindler. He preached eloquent sermons from the pulpit; was tireless in visiting the sick and ministering to the poor; he baptised, married and buried his parishioners, and generally conducted himself as a very model of pastors to his little flock. Nor did his zeal end there, for he set on foot a scheme for renovating the parish church and canvassed so zealously that the funds quickly amounted to 30,000 francs.

An architect was invited to submit plans for the restoration and the purchase of valuable pictures and vessels of gold and silver for the altar. And when at last the whole scheme was ripe for execution—presto! this model and indefatigable cure was gone and the building and decorating funds with him!

Then commenced a long and adventurous tour of Europe, each week seeing Collet in a fresh disguise and character, his route marked by a trail of victims of his duplicity. In Italy he forged a bill for 10,000 francs and barely managed to escape in time to avoid arrest. Now was the time for playing his trump card. He had still in his possession the bull for the appointment of a bishop, and why should he not now blossom into a church dignitary?

A few strokes of his versatile pen converted him into the Right Reverend the Bishop of Monardan, and in his exalted character Collet presented himself to the Bishop of Nice, who gave him a right cordial and fraternal welcome and made him an honored guest in his palace. A man who had played so many varied parts with success was not likely to fail in the character of a bishop, even when the guest of another bishop; but he can scarcely have anticipated the severe ordeal that awaited him on the very threshold of his new career.

This came when his host asked him to examine a number of his deacons. In vain did the bogus ecclesiastic try by one pretext or another to escape from his predicament; and finally, putting on his episcopal robes, purchased for the theatricals at Mondovi, he not only examined 30 deacons, but ordained them all, and preached them a sermon of rare eloquence which he had fortunately committed to memory some time earlier.

But the right reverend gentleman felt that, as a bishop, he was treading dangerous ground, which might at any moment give way under him with disastrous consequences, and it was with a feeling of profound relief that he put off his episcopal raiment and lapsed into a private individual again. In this modest role he went to Paris, and through the influence of an old colleague was able to resume his position in the army. He was sent to Brest to take up his duties, and turned his journey to account by robbing people right and left on the way.

But Collet, who had tasted the sweets of high positions, was not long content with the lowly rank of lieutenant or even of captain. He had been a bishop and a marquis, why should he not aspire to be a general and a count? And with this laudable ambition he forged the necessary papers and blossomed in a few hours into the Count of Borromeo, general of the Catalonian army.

In this exalted character, in a brilliant uniform smothered with ribbons and medals and gold lace, and with an escort suited to his rank, he made a state procession to Draguignan, where he presented himself as the emperor's emissary to enquire into the army accounts.

From Draguignan he proceeded to Marseilles and Nismes, holding reviews of the troops, investigating accounts, and on the strength of a forged authority drawing liberally on the military chests for the purposes of his army in Catalonia. In this way he enriched himself within a few days to the extent of 300,000 francs. But Nemesis was on his track, his bogus character was revealed, and at Montpelier, while he was the guest of the prefect, the building was surrounded and General Count Borromeo was arrested and lodged in the local jail.

Naturally, Collet thought that he had at last reached the end of his tether and that it was only a question of a few days or weeks before a few bullets would put an end to his varied career. But the end was not yet. One day the prefect, indignant at the trick that had been played on him and proud of his capture, had Collet brought from jail to exhibit him to the guests whom he was entertaining at dinner, the prisoner being placed in a chamber adjoining the dining-room of the prefecture and guarded by soldiers until the prefect was ready to produce him at the conclusion of the banquet.

Locked in a room, with two sentries guarding the door, one would have from all possibility of escape, but his jailers little knew the resourcefulness of their captive. Looking around his improvised cell, which was used as a serving room for the banquet, Collet discovered a white suit similar to those worn by the cook's assistants. To change into this costume was the work of a few moments; then, seizing a dish, Collet walked boldly through the doorway communicating with the dining-room, past the prefect and his unsuspecting guests, and out of the building to liberty.

Great was the amazement when it was found that the bird had flown, and in every direction parties were sent to hunt and recapture the fugitive. But Collet had made good use of his start and was safe in Toulouse, while his pursuers were following false trails round Montpelier. At Toulouse he pocketed 5,000 francs through a forged bill of exchange and had reached Grenoble when at last he was run to earth. Then followed quickly his trial and the sentence of five years in the galleys.—New York Press.

Scared.

"What was the matter with old Boozie when he called the doctor at midnight last night?"

"He thought he had lost his sense of taste. His wife's hat was on the dining room table and he ate the [illegible]."—Houston Post.

Camel meat does not strike the western palate as a delectable dish, but it certainly seems delectable to jackal. [illegible] of Morocco, we are [illegible] visitor, where jackal [illegible] esteemed as a table delicacy.

"NERVILINE" STOPS EARACHE IN 10 SECONDS, FIXES TOOTHACHE IN 2 MINUTES

It Seems to Possess Almost Some Divine Power Over Pain.

RUB ON NERVILINE

Toothache is usually due to neuralgia in the gums or to the congestion and swelling of the nerve pulp.

As "Nerviline" relieves congestion, you can easily see why it cures toothache.

Nerviline does more—cures any other pains in any part of the body.

It matters not where your pain is, it may be in a joint or muscle; it may be neuralgia or lumbago; it may be a surface pain is deeply situated in the back, side or chest. Nerviline will reach it; Nerviline will drive it out.

What is Nerviline, you ask? Just a liniment, but very much stronger in pain-subduing power than other liniments—one that penetrates more deeply in the tissue than any other liniment. It is a liniment that cures quickly, that gives permanent relief.

You might spend ten or a hundred dollars, but you couldn't buy as much relief as you get from a single bottle of Nerviline.

We guarantee Nerviline; we refund your money if it does not relieve you.

In many lands it is a household trust, a remedy that has justified itself under the experience of those who have sold it. Guaranteed for neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, pleurisy, strains or sprains; the large 50-cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Dealers everywhere sell Nerviline, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

AGRICULTURAL VALUES IN 1914.

A press bulletin issued by the census and statistics office summarizes the results of inquiries made by crop-reporting correspondents as to (1) the values of farm land, (2) the values of farm help and (3) the values of farm live stock in 1914.

Values of farm land.—For the whole of Canada the average value of farm land held for agricultural purposes, whether improved or unimproved, and including the value of dwelling houses, farms, stables and other farm buildings, is returned as $38.41 per acre, which is about equal to that of the last similar inquiry in 1910, when the value was given as $38.45 per acre. In 1911 the average was returned by the census as $39.41, but this value was based upon returns from all occupiers, including farms only recently settled and therefore of less value. By Provinces the average values of 1914 range from $21 per acre in Alberta to $150 per acre in British Columbia. In this Province, however, the high value is due to orcharding, ordinary agriculture being subsidiary to fruit culture.

Wages of farm help.—In recent years the wages of farm help have increased considerably, and they reached their highest point during the bumper harvest of 1913. But in 1914 the pendulum swayed back, less labor being required on farms owing to lighter crops. Since August the war has had for one of its effects an increase in the supply of farm labor and consequently a fall in the wages. The demand for labor this winter has also decreased because of the increased cost of board. For the Dominion the average wages per month during the summer, including board, were $35.55 for male and $18.51 for female help. For the year, including board, the average wages were $323.30 for males and $189.35 for females, whilst the average cost of board per month works out to $14.27 for males and $11.20 for females, as compared with $12.49 and $9.52 in 1910. Average wages per month in 1914 were lowest in Prince Edward Island, viz., $24.71 for males, and $11.48 for females; in Nova Scotia they were $31.20 and $14.80, and in New Brunswick $31.93 and $15. In Quebec the averages were $32.56, and $15.65, and in Ontario $32.09, and $16.67. In the western Provinces they were for males $39.15 in Manitoba, $40.51 in Saskatchewan and $40.26 in Alberta, females receiving $22.55 in Manitoba, $2.96 in Saskatchewan and $23.63 in Alberta. The highest wages were paid in British Columbia, viz., $42.85 for males and $31.18 for females, these averages being substantially less than in 1910, when males received $57.10, and females $38.

Values of farm live stock.—Values are well maintained so far as comparison with the three years ended 1910 is concerned; but during 1914 there has been a substantial reduction in the value both of horses and of swine. It is a cause of general complaint that the demand for horses other than for military purposes has fallen off, and that prices are less by from 25 to 40 or 50 p.c. than they were in 1912.

Owing to the high price of grain the keeping of swine in the west is said to be no longer a paying proposition. Hogs have been sold for what they will fetch—frequently for as little as 5½ cents per lb.—and many have been marketed in an unfinished condition. On the other hand the prices of cattle have been well maintained and the average values for dairy cows and for other horned cattle are considerably above those of 1910. The averages per head for all Canada come to $127 for horses, $57 for milch cows, $42 for other cattle, $7 for sheep and $12 for swine. The following is believed to be a rough approximation of the total value of Canadian farm live stock in 1914: Horses, $371,430,000, cattle $297,131,000, sheep $14,551,000 and swine $42,418,000, or an aggregate of $725,530,000 for all descriptions.

The principal crops to be sown are beans, peas, potatoes, beets and seed corn. Barley can replace oats, and freight rates must be reduced to permit the transportation of fertilizers, notably crude phosphate, from Belgium. The Russian prisoners of war, most of them agricultural workers, must be employed on the 20,000 square

The Government has already forbidden the use of bread corn as fodder for cattle and there must be limitation in the production and breeding of cattle. Beet parings can be used instead. Further restrictions include the preservation of potatoes by drying, reduction in the quantity of cream and butter produced and diminution in the use of edible oils for producing soap, which must be used sparingly. Illuminating oil or oil paint. The edible fungi should be utilized more and local authorities should provide rooms for winter storage of vegetables.

CHEESE INSTEAD OF BUTTER.

Milk and all its products are to be carefully utilized. The use of cheese instead of butter is encouraged, as its value as food is higher than that of butter. Full milk is to be retained in its present quantity, production of cream and butter limited, and cheese to be produced more, and the use of skim milk encouraged by propaganda and cheap prices.

The slaughter of twelve per cent. of the pigs and 10 per cent. of the kilometres of unused moor land. cows is to be done gradually, and the Government must buy the superfluous meat to prevent a subsequent meat famine. Storing, smoking, pickling and making meat into sausage are encouraged.

The pamphlet, pointing out that the consumer's is the task of defeating the British starvation plan, says the people must become accustomed to an ultimate reduction in meat consumption. It points to the increase in meat consumption since 1816 and tells the people they would be healthier if they returned to the comparative vegetarianism of their forefathers.

FIGHTING WILD OATS.

The Manitoba Department of Agriculture has obtained excellent results this year for the eradication of wild oats. A field of forty acres was found to be badly infested with wild oats, and the experiment conducted gave good results, showing that it at least reduced the amount of the wild oats in the field.

The land was "skim plowed" extremely thin in the fall of 1913 and harrowed once and back. The wild oats were then permitted to grow until June 1, when the field was found to be a perfect mat of wild oats from six to nine inches high. During the first week in June the field was plowed about five inches deep and immediately harrowed while damp, and sown with barley at the rate of one and a half to three bushels to the acre. Apparently all the wild oat seed near the surface had germinated during the spring, for when the crop of barley was cut and stooked there was only about three stooks in the field which showed wild oats. The field will be summer fallowed now and laid out for demonstration purposes.

HORSE TALK.

Patience, perfect control of temper, and an even, musical voice are essentials in the proper training of a colt.

The rapid cleaning up of all marketable horses of all types to supply the demand created by the war makes it certain that good prices will be maintained for several years.

It takes three or four years to grow a colt to marketable age.

It seems a most opportune time for up-to-date farmers to start breeding some good colts.

There will also be an increasing demand for good mules.

Breeding of horses must be done intelligently, because there is no place in the market for a misfit.

The farmer must breed either a draft horse or a roadhorse.

If a farmer crosses a heavy and a light horse he will only get a plug.

Keep the stable floors even. Standing on uneven floors will cause blemishes and unsound legs, especially in colts.

Every horse, young or old, should exercise in harness or yard every day.

One secret of a successful feeder is that he never allows his horses to be thirsty.

Bearing on hard with the comb is not necessary when grooming a horse. The dust is mostly on the outer ends of the hair; brush lightly.

Azoturia is the result of undigested food, and lack of exercise is the straightest road to that condition.

Every horse should have a chance to drink.

Tried it On the Postman.

A young business woman on her way to the car, at closing time, stopped at the box to mail a letter. Just as she was about to drop the letter in the box the collector arrived and, reaching for it, said, "I'll take it."

The young woman looked at him a moment and handed him the letter, with the remark, "Now, don't forget to put that in the postoffice."

The collector looked at her in disgust and said nothing.

"He never saw the joke," the young woman said after she had told the story of the incident. "I suppose he has no women folk in his family who know that the letters they entrust to the men are carried around in their pockets for days before they are mailed."—Columbus Dispatch.

For You—a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor? It's a fact. Do you know that proper, inexpensive tile drainage aids pulverization—lengthens the season—prevents surface washing—makes your land lighter to work—prevents drought and increases the quantity and improves the quality of your crops?

Why not have us send you, today, free of charge, a very interesting booklet on this subject? Much to learn—nothing to pay. Don't neglect anything that will help you grow better, bigger crops. Proper drainage means as much as two dollars in your bank account for every one that goes there now, and the Government lends you money for the Tile if desired.

Write us today. Mention this paper. Your book is waiting.

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited

SWANSEA, ONTARIO

The Housekeeper

Olives, stoned and chopped, and mixed with fresh butter or heavy cream and cream cheese; make one of the most delicious of sandwich fillings.

A sweet green pepper, boiled and chopped fine, is a delicate addition to a dish of scalloped potatoes.

The edge of a silence cloth should be finished with a buttonhole stitch, not too close. A hem makes a ridge under the tablecloth.

Sprinkle flour very sparingly on the top of a loaf of cake to stop frosting from running off.

To prevent flour from lumping easily, and to overcome the raw taste that sometimes clings to it when it is used for thick gravies, soups and sauces, bake it in an oven until it is thoroughly heated and dry. Prepare a small quantity at a time and keep it in a covered receptacle.

When preparing a chicken try rubbing it inside with a piece of lemon. It will whiten the flesh and make it more tender.

A delightful way to serve tartar sauce is to cut a lemon in half, clean out the inside thoroughly and then fill the halves with the sauce. One is served to each guest. When fish is served, the little lemon cups are placed around the edge of the plater and one served to each guest. By this method the cause remains firm instead of melting into a liquid when put into a warm plate.

If the zinc lining of a refrigerator looks shabby, it can be enameled and made look like new.

If, by any chance, a room is filled with smoke, open all the windows at once and wave a towel wet in vinegar and hot water around the room.

If cream proves too thin to whip, add the white of an egg before beginning to whip.

Soiled satin slippers may be dyed with the ordinary powdered dyes, mixed with gasoline. Apply with a clean sponge.

REPLENISH YOUR BLOOD IN THE SPRING

Just now you are feeling "out of sorts"—not your usual self. Quite exhausted at times and cannot devote real energy to your work. Sleep does not rest you and you wake up feeling "all tired out." Perhaps rheumatism is flying through your muscles and joints, or may be your skin is disfigured by rashes, boils or pimples. Headaches, twinges of neuralgia, fits of nervousness, irritability of temper and a disordered stomach often increase your discomfort in the spring.

The cause—winter has left its mark on you. These troubles are signs that your blood is poor and watery, and your nerves are exhausted. You must renew and enrich your blood at once and restore tone to your tired nerves, or there may be a complete breakdown. The most powerful remedy for these spring ailments in men, women and children is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, because these Pills cleanse bad blood and strengthen weak nerves.

New, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring—is plentifully created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and with this new, pure blood in your veins you quickly regain health and increase your strength. Then your skin becomes clear, your eyes bright, your nerves strong, and you feel better, eat better, sleep better, and are able to do your work.

Begin your spring tonic treatment to-day for the blood and nerves with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—the Pills that strengthen.

These Pills are sold by most dealers, but do not be persuaded to take "something just the same." If you can't get the genuine Pills from your dealer they will be sent you by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RECORD FOOTBALL RUSH.

It Came When a New and Ugly Tackle Broke Into the Game.

One day, while the whaleship Narwhal was tied to an ice floe in Bering Sea and the lookouts were at the masthead scanning the open water southward for the appearance of whales, a party of the forecastlemen made a football of rags and cord and went over the bow to kick the misshapen thing round on a smooth stretch of ice a short distance from the vessel.

The fun was at its height and the men were just getting the kinks out of their legs when the harpooner in the crow's nest called softly down to the deck that a polar bear had scented the men on the ice and was excitedly making his way toward them. No warning was given to the football players. Before long the bear appeared close to the edge of the floe, and he seemed to be in a great hurry. He shambled rapidly along in and out among the hummocks, and every few feet he would pull himself erect to sniff the air and crane his head anxiously. Closer and closer he came, and it was plain that he grew more and more excited. The men on board the ship got out their rifles to make sure that the bear did no harm to the men on the ice.

The gaunt ice bear came to the last hummock that separated him from the field of play. One of the men was in the act of "kicking the stuffing" out of the ball when the bear suddenly emerged into clear view. The ball fell on the ice, the man's leg came hurriedly down on the ice, and the man himself broke for the ship like a deer. There was a succession of frightened shouts, and the ice became alive with running men. Never was there a quicker change of scene. Men stumbled and fell and yelled and fought for a grasp of the rope ladder.

The men on deck were so convulsed with laughter that they made no effort to shoot the bear. And after the first whoop the bear became so thoroughly alarmed at the consternation he had caused that he turned tail and fled in a clumsy gallop down the ice floes.—Youth's Companion.

WASTED TIME.

(Pittsburg Gazette-Times)

"Undoubtedly," says a Boston professor, "women require much more sleep than men." But wives will continue to sit up for their husbands.

When a girl first goes in for physical culture, she is naturally very much exercised over it.

THE POULTRY WORLD

HATCHING BY INCUBATOR.

Mr. M. A. Jull, manager and lecturer of Macdonald College, has issued the following useful information for poultry raisers.

To ensure successful hatching good eggs are necessary and they should come from healthy and vigorous breeding stock. The eggs should be of good size and uniform, the standard weight is two ounces for each egg. Make sure the eggs are good in fertility. Start with the very best eggs for hatching that you can produce and your battle is half won.

One of the things most needed is well developed pullets in the fall when the laying season commences. Pullets must be fully matured before beginning to lay and to ensure this they must be hatched early enough and they must be well cared for during the growing season. The month of April and the forepart of May is the best time to hatch. This gives the pullets about six months to grow before the first of November when they should commence laying. Late hatched and poorly developed pullets in the fall of the year means a scarcity of fresh eggs and this is just where most farmers fail as successful poultry keepers. Egg production in the winter months is most profitable so that every farmer should endeavor to secure the most eggs when prices are high.

The usual advance in the price of eggs, particularly fresh eggs, during the fall of the year, is due largely to natural causes. The moulting of the yearling stock shuts out this source of production, leaving pullets practically as the only source of fresh eggs at this time. The greatest hope of increasing the fresh egg supply in the fall lies in the proper handling of the pullets during the growing season.

Where one hundred or more chicks are to be hatched the use of the incubator may prove a distinct advantage. The management of the incubator often entails less work than looking after a number of sitting hens, the work is more convenient and sanitary, and the incubator is one means of checking the spread of poultry lice.

Local conditions should determine whether hens or the incubator should be used in hatching the chicks.

The problem in the operation of the incubator is to maintain a temperature of approximately 103 degrees with other conditions to which an egg is subjected when incubated under a hen.

Although many of the incubators on the market to-day are, practically speaking, duplications of standard makes, there are good and poor machines. It pays to buy a well made machine and it is usually a poor investment to purchase a cheap incubator. The various makes of incubators are something like the strains in breeds; there are good and poor strains in the various breeds and there are good and poor individuals in each strain. The higher grade machines give best satisfaction in the long run.

Hot air machines are commonly preferred to hot water ones. The principle of heating the egg chamber is different, though the same results are accomplished.

It is generally advisable for the beginner to follow the directions furnished with the incubator. These instructions may not be exactly adapted to every locality but until experience is gained they afford the best starting point. The knowledge is gained concerning the effect of local conditions in the operation of the incubator the method should be adapted to suit those conditions.

The incubator should be located in a well-ventilated cellar or room and one which is free from draughts.

All incubators, and particularly new ones, should be started a few days before filling with eggs. An even temperature of 103 degrees must be maintained, and to do this the heat regulator must be properly adjusted before incubation begins.

It is advisable to thoroughly disinfect the incubator before and after each hatch. Use a ten per cent solution of a standard commercial disinfectant and apply with a scrubbing brush or rag.

The lamp is filled once a day and this is best done in the morning after the eggs have been turned. Do not handle eggs when the hands are smeared with coal oil. The flame should always be smothered with well-rounded corners. Remove the charred portion of the wick with the fingers and be very sure that the ends of the flame do not flare up, as this often causes smoking and consequently an uneven temperature.

Turning the eggs usually begins on the third day and is continual until about the eighteenth day. The eggs are shuffled much the same as the hen shuffles the eggs in her nest. It is found that turning twice a day is sufficient.

The air or cooling of the eggs is accomplished when the eggs are turned. Testing is usually done, for the first test, on the seventh day, and for the second test on the fourteenth or fifteenth day.

The temperature should be lowered gradually, and when about twenty-four hours old the ounce and one-half ball of fluff can be removed to the brooder.

THE STORRS CONTEST.

The sixteenth week of the laying contest was one in which records were made and broken about each alternate day. On Monday the hens made a new high record for daily production by laying 411 eggs; on Thursday this record was broken by thirteen eggs, putting the mark at 424; and on Saturday this figure was beaten by eight, making the best daily yield to date 432 eggs.

A New York pen of Rhode Island Reds from Newburg was the first pen to make a perfect score by laying ten eggs in any one day. The best weekly record of forty-nine eggs made by Windsweep Farm in the second week of the contest, has finally been broken by Tom Barron's English White Wyandottes that laid fifty-eight eggs, thus easily winning first place for the week.

The total yield for all pens amounted to 2,822 eggs, which is 694 better than the preceding week and relatively 474 better than for the corresponding week last year. It now seems certain that the hens will gain between one and two thousand eggs over last year's production in February. The five leading pens to date are as follows:

Ed. Cam, Hoghton, near Preston, England, White Wyandottes	565
Hillview Poultry Farm, St. Albans, Vt., Rhode Island Reds	512
Meritt M. Clark, Brookfield Centre, Conn., Barred Rocks	460
Colonial Farm, Temple, N. H. Rhode Island Reds	443
Tom Barron, Catforth, near Preston, England, White Wyandottes	443

Reduce Your Roofing Costs, Protect Your Buildings From Fire, Lightning and Weather

You accomplish all these results by using our heavily zinc coated

"Eastlake" Metallic Shingles

They give longer service than any other roofing. Cost less to lay. Are rust-proof and do not require painting. Those laid 28 years ago are still giving good service. Send for free book that shows how "Eastlake" shingles make your buildings lightning, fire, and weather-proof and why they cost less per year than any other roofing.

We Manufacture a complete line of Sheet Metal Building Material

THE METALLIC ROOFING CO., Limited

Manufacturers

797 Notre Dame Ave., WINNIPEG

King and Dufferin Sts., TORONTO

I Never Want to Be Without Them

WHAT MRS. A. AVERON SAYS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Alberta Lady Feels it her Duty to Tell Her friends of the Benefit she has received from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Faith, Alberta, April 4.—(Special).—"I never want to be without Dodd's Kidney Pills," so says Mrs. A. Averon, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of this place.

"I am an old lady, sixty-eight years of age," Mrs. Averon continues, "and had Kidney trouble for twenty years. My heart bothered me, my muscles would cramp, and my back ached. Neuralgia was added to my troubles.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only medicine that have helped me and I cannot recommend them too highly. I feel it my duty to tell my friends what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the favorite remedy of the old folks. They cure the Kidneys which are the first of the organs of the body to feel the strain of years. By curing the Kidneys Dodd's Kidney Pills ensure pure blood and pure blood gives renewed energy all over the body. That's why the old folks say "Dodd's Kidney Pills make me feel young again."

AN OLD DUTCH LEGEND.

How Jantje the Bellringer Saved Sluis From the Spaniards.

An old statue in the steeple near the bells at Sluis, in Holland, which was originally erected in honor of Jantje Van Sluis, is worked by mechanical means, which cause it to strike the bell at every hour and a half with a hammer.

Jantje was a bellringer and watchman during the eighty years' war with Spain. On the night of June 12, 1606, Jon Terrall, a Spanish captain, resolved to recover Sluis, the principal fortress of Zeeland, from Prince Maurice of Orange, who had conquered it two years previously.

When the clock struck nine it was in order to draw the Dutch soldiers should sound a false alarm at one gate in order to draw the Dutch soldiers away from another, thus leaving a means of ingress for the enemy.

Providentially Jantje forgot to wind up the clock till late in the evening, and, being terribly afraid of ghosts, he did it so hastily that he damaged the works. Another story avers that he was intoxicated, the result of Sluis fair, which had been held on that afternoon.

Be that as it may, Terrall waited in vain to hear the familiar striking of the old clock, and thus the attack was put off till midnight. In the meantime the garrison had suspected something amiss, and were on the alert. Consequently the Spaniards were repulsed with great loss.

Jantje had accidentally saved his town, and to honor him his fellow citizens erected the bell-ringing statue to his perpetual memory.—London Tatler.

SHE WANTED A TITLE.

A title gives the right to embroider a coronet on the body linen. It is pleasant in a railway train to pour scent on a coroneted pocket handkerchief. La Marechale Niel thought so, I dare say, in the summer of 1859. Her husband escaped the carnage of one of the battles fought that year in Lombardy. He also assured against heavy odds and the terrible blunders of the general staff victory to the French. His wife was with him when his marshal's baton was brought in with a letter from Napoleon III. Niel thought Mme. Niel would have melted into tears from joy. Instead of that her mouth fell. "You are marshal, are you," she said. "That does not make me duchess."—London Truth.

Compensation.

If it is true, as our business philosophers tell us, that "those who never do more than they get paid for never get paid for more than they do," then it is quite clear that if you want to get paid for more than you do you must do more than you get paid for. Even a philosopher ought to see how impossible that is, but, of course, the true philosopher cannot be expected to hesitate over a mere impossibility.—Life.

CATARRHAL FOREHEAD PAINS GO QUICK! SNIFFLING, CLOGGED NOSTRILS CURED

Not a Sign of Cold, Catarrh, or Throat Trouble Will Remain!

Quick relief for that headache—just one breath through Catarrhozone Inhaler and you feel better.

The soothing, piney vapor of Catarrhozone clears the head instantly; its healing balsamic fumes take the sting out of the nose, stop sniffles, ease the throat cure the cough and destroy all the vileness of catarrh.

No other remedy treats Catarrh so directly, so quickly; every breath you draw through the Inhaler carries a marvelous lot of healing virtue—carries death to the germs that cause the trouble.

You can't keep Catarrh—nor can you hang to a cold, or have any chest or throat trouble if you use Catarrhozone. It is guaranteed to make you well.

"My head used to fairly split with an awful pain over the eyes.

"It was always worst when my catarrh was bad. I had the meagest sores and crusts inside the nose, and continually coughed, both day and night. The first day's use of Catarrhozone made a grand improvement. Every hour I felt better. Catarrhozone cured me perfectly."

O. P. DINGMAN
Cordova, Ont.

No one ever uses Catarrhozone without being satisfied. If your case is curable, Catarrhozone will do the work. It is guaranteed—get the complete dollar outfit. Small size 50c. Sample trial size 25c.

THE NEED OF GREATER PRODUCTION

Great Britain has invested more money in this country than in any other country in the world, outside of the United States. The sum total is no less than $2,800,000,000, being equal to $400 for every man, woman and child.

This money has gone largely to provide railway and other facilities for carrying on our business. It is loaned money, and bears one hundred and twenty millions of dollars interest annually. This interest must be met. It can be met only by exporting surplus products. There is a ready market for all the farm products we can produce over and above our own requirements. A twenty per cent. increase in farm production will cover our interest payments and maintain the country's credit.

This is one answer to the question, Why is it necessary that Canada at this particular time should increase the output of the farm?

It is neither asked nor expected that the farmer should bear the whole burden. The railway and other organizations engaged in the transportation of products must bear their share. The financial institutions of the country must be asked to assist in financing the farmer's business as well as the manufacturer's. The farmers of almost every country in Europe enjoy the advantages of rural credits. Similar facilities are urgently needed here.

The need of supplying the farmer with information that will enable him to distribute and market his products to the best advantage, is becoming more and more urgent. The Canadian Minister of Agriculture recently put the matter in this form:

"It is not, therefore, only greater production, but better production and cheapened production, more accurate knowledge of markets and better facilities for reaching them. All these things are tied up together and it is to these things that not only farmers but Governments, bankers and transportation men have to address themselves."

A clearer understanding of some of the handicaps retarding production will be one of the good results that must grow out of the present campaign.

But let not the farmer stay his hand because there and other defects in the economic system have not yet been remedied. Your country needs you, and needs you now.

The loyalty and patriotism of the farmer has never been called into question. He has the opportunity before him to give expression to his patriotism by helping to keep up the food supply of Britain and her Allies. There is a higher motive than that of the pocket merely, and it should be a stronger one.

At the same time the business aspect must be recognized. With a food shortage staring it in the face the world is ready to absorb at good prices all we can produce.

The main object of the campaign is to make clear the situation.

There is no more reasonable body to deal with than the farmers. Lay the facts before them clearly and fully and they may be relied on to reach a correct decision.

There is no necessity for calling upon the farmer to work harder or for longer hours. Neither is it advisable to dictate to him as to what he should produce nor how he should produce it. The individual farmer must decide for himself how best to meet the demand.

We see, the question asked, and asked too by agricultural journals, How can the farmer increase the output without putting more acres under cultivation and employing more labor?

That production may be to some extent be increased without a corresponding increase in labor is clearly indicated. The best strains of seed will give larger yields than inferior kinds. A strain suited to the soil and climate and sown at the right time will give better returns than seed that is not. Pure seed, plump seed, seed of strong vitality, will increase the yield. These and other important principles are not as widely applied as they might be.

There is an appalling and almost universal waste in the handling of liquid and soil manure in this country. Rectify this and restore to the soil the elements of fertility now lost through lack of care, and production may be increased without any appreciable increase in labor.

If the facts of the case indicate it, as we believe they do, then the farmer is warranted in employing more labor, provided suitable labor can be secured; he is warranted in preparing his land better, sowing his seed better, and in this manner doing what he can to meet the Empire's needs. The man who fails in his duty in the country's crisis, will regret it all his days.

HINDU EGG DANCE.

Curious and Difficult Feat Performed by Girl Jugglers.

Of the many wonderful feats performed by Hindu jugglers one of the most remarkable is the egg dance. Usually it is executed by a girl, fantastically dressed. She makes use of a willow wheel, around which at equal distances are threads, and at the end of each thread there is a noose held open by a bead.

This wheel the girl places on her head, while she carries a basket of eggs on her arm. When the music strikes up she begins to dance, and the wheels begin to spin around. She then takes an egg from the basket, places it in one of the thread nooses and throws it from her with sufficient force to draw the knot tight. The spinning of the wheels keeps the thread stretched with the egg at the end of it.

She then takes another egg from the basket, places it in another noose and repeats this until there is an egg in every noose. Her fantastic costume, her perfect motion and all the eggs swinging on stretched threads at once present a curious sight.

It requires much art to execute the dance, for one false step would cause the eggs to be dashed together and the dancer to be disgraced.

After dancing for some time with all the eggs swing round her head she takes them out of the noose one by one, all the time keeping the wheel balanced and in motion, and again places them in the basket on her arm.

After the performance the spectators are allowed to examine the eggs to see that they are real.—London Ideas.

NEWSPAPERS' RESPONSIBILITY.

(Guelph Mercury)

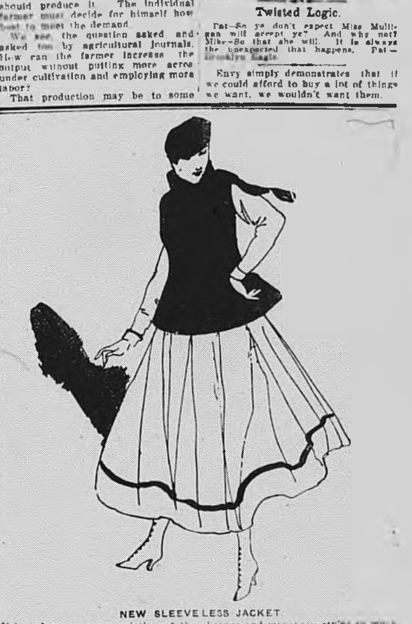
Some people have the idea that when a person signs his name to an article that it frees the paper from responsibility in case of a suit for libel. It does not. Does any one suppose that a judge would say in such a case "Mr. Blank signed his name to this letter, therefore, the publisher of the newspaper is not responsible. Mr. Blank will have to become the defendant and pay whatever damages are awarded."

Things don't break that way, though. The paper printing a libelous article must stand behind it. The fact that it is signed makes no difference.

Twisted Logic.

Pat—So ye don't expect Miss Mulligan will accept ye? And why not?
Mike—So that she will. It is always the unexpected that happens. Pat—Brooklyn Eagle.

Envy simply demonstrates that if we could afford to buy a lot of things we want, we wouldn't want them.



NEW SLEEVELESS JACKET

Velvet forms a new variation of the basque and moyenage styles so much worn during the past season. It is plain in itself. It is worn over a plain one-piece frock of serge. The new skirts are pleated, gathered or circular and measure yards about the hem. The voluminous circular skirt has met with instant success.

Magnificient Selection in Floor Rugs

New Wiltons—Velvets—Brussels and Tapestry Squares—come to us direct from Scotland and England. They're durable hard-wearing rugs and the assortment gives choice for every room in the house.

The colorings are beautiful and the patterns very new and attractive. All the regular sizes in stock at $6.50 to $26.50.

Fashionable Material for Spring Dress and Suit is included in the new stock of Dress Goods which we now offer for your choosing. Every price is reasonable and many of them exceedingly moderate.

By importing direct from Europe we have confined to us every line of dress goods we buy. We also have the opportunity of selecting from larger, newer and more complete ranges than wholesalers generally have to offer.

That's the reason why every season we show colorings and weaves that are fully six months to a year in advance of usual dress goods stocks.

All the new weaves in the new Spring shades at 65c, 75c, $1, $1.25 to $1.50 a yard.

Sale of Silk Crepes

These beautiful crepes have just arrived and in addition to the fact that these are the most adorable silk materials we've ever shown, we're glad to be able to offer them at very special prices. The shades are Belgian Blue, Pigeon Blue, Reseda, Golden Brown, Cream and Amethyst and the regular price is $1.00 per yd.

Our selling price is 75c yd.

Dainty Spring Blouses

Matters not what your taste may be in blouses we know you will find models after your own heart . here and better still you can buy them at a very small price. They're beautifully made and trimmed, very servicable and all are particularly good style.

Sizes 32 to 42 at $1.25 to $3.50.

STEPHAN BROS.

School Reports.

Riversdale School Report

The following report is based on the examinations held during March. The names are in order of merit. The names of those who have not obtained 60 % in the examinations do not appear in this list. The average attendance for March was 44.

Sen. IV—Hon—C M Dietrich. Pass S. Hodgkinson J. Cassidy.

Sr. III—Hon F. O'Hagan. H. Deitrich, A. Moore, M. Loftus. Pass—A. Sadlo, J. Petteplace, M. Petteplace.

Jr. III—Hon—H. Symon, E. Moore, C. Cashanette, Pass—A. Racher.

Sr II—Hon—L. Hoffman. Pass—M Petteplace. E. O'Hagan, J. Cassidy, H. Petteplace.

Jun. II—Hon—A Chatreau, N. Racher. Pass—F. Deitrich, M. O'Hager,

Sen I—R. Strauss. M. Klemp. M. Moore, H. Lamont, R. Racher, W. Moore.

Jr. I—R. Cascankette, B. Dietrich. Primary—C. Petteplace, W. O'Hagan, R. Moore, M. Cassidy, F. Brown.

J. A. Deltrich
Teacher.

S. S. No. 6 Brant.

Sr. IV—(Harriet Pohlman Gordon Pohlman,) Clara Blohm.

Sr III Clara Lambertus Andrew Manto.

Jun III—Willie McWhinney Emma Manto, Frieda Monk, Charlie McNaughton, Gladstone McIntyre.

II Class—Lizzie Blohm, Ruby McWhinney, Johnie Wilkin, Eva Lesso, (Loretta Keiswetter, Edna McNaughton,) Milton Monk.

I Class—May Lambertus, Lloyd Marshall, Harold Lesso, Orvan Wilkin,

Sr. Primer—Etlna Keiswetter, Edward Lambertus.

Jr. Primer—(Eddie Schlorff, Arthur McNaugton,) Andy Schlorff, Mary Monk, Mary Keleswetter.

Average Attendance 25.

A. Haverson

Dr. de Van's Female Pills

A reliable French regulator; never fails. These pills are exceedingly powerful in regulating the generative portion of the female system. Refuse all cheap imitations. Dr. de Van's are sold at $5 a box, or three for $10. Mailed to any address. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

THE SAVOY
CAFE

NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP

QUICK LUNCH

SPECIAL DINNER

Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.

BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS WITH FRIED POTATOES
BREAD AND BUTTER
PIE
WITH TEA OR COFFEE.
25 cts.

Cargill

Public School Report
Room 2

Sr. IV—J Clancy, L. Elder, B Abell, C Martin. E Jordan. P Crawford, G. Schrum, R Clark,

Jun IV—A Pegelo, L Hettrick, L Crawford, G Elder, A Hamilton, M (Clark, M Scharbach absent:)

Jun. III—to Sen III—Hon N Sharbach, T Powers.

Pass—J. Clancy A Walsh, W Sharling, A Thompson, L Grainger, Conditionally—M Grainger, A Anderson, D Martin.

Jun III—D Schramm, C Powers, O Thompson, R Mahoney, J Taylor, Nevia Clark, V Taylor, L Brown, J Hood

Sr II—J Martin, F Hettrick, P Somerville, E Reaburn, R Nablo, H Thompson, E Elphick, absent.)

E A Ruttle,
Teacher.

Room I

Jun II—Hon—H Richardson, C Pegelo, A Hood, J Power:

Sr I—Hon—G Meyers, M Hood, F Nye G Greenaway, L Hopf.

Jun I Hon—M McWhinney, W Streeter, E Reaburn, M Sharback, N Schuett, W Bester, G Murray. Pass C Greenaway.

Sr Prim Hon—J Power, J Young, H Hardaker, T Baillie. Pass—D Streeter, C Taylor, M Grainger' F Mahoney

Jr Prim Hon (P Elder, A Meyers,) W Pegelo. (J Sharbach, M Clancy, W McWhinney, F Hanson. Pass T Gray I Crawford.

Primary—Hon—M Schuett. H Taylor, W Reaburn, M Cassidy, G Kyle, M Gray. Pass—H Mawhinney, J Clark, K Richardson, B Hood, W Young, Wm Gray. W Schuett.

M McCoy,
Teacher.

CHEPSTOW

The engagement of Mr. Adam Lippett to Miss Veronica Cassidy was announced from the R. C, puplit here last Sunday.

Quite a number of the young people returned to the burg for their Easter vacation, some of them being Frank Phelan of Fort William, Anthony and Mrs Kockie, of Mildmay, Val Schurter of Ambleside, Miss Josephine Fritz, of Berlin, Miss Margaret Lacey, of Detroit and Mr. Ed Diemert.

Mr Albert McNab shipped a carload of fine cattle to Toronto on Saturday and reports that the market is good.

John, the telephone lineman was in the county town on Saturday looking for employment with the Bell Telephone Co., but he says there's nothin' doin' as yet.

Miss Irene McNab is spending the vacation in Berlin.

Mr Walter Hunziger says he is going to try duck walloping this summer at Port McNichol. That's a job that won't necessitate the use of a driver.

Mr Roger Clancy took a trip to Durham in his Ford car on Monday

The funeral of Mrs. Henry Bester of the 10th con., took place here on Wednesday. The deceased was suffering from the effect of a paralytic stroke.

Mr Martin Oblinger is doing quite an extensive business in his cobblery on Water St., E:

Mr Thomas Mullin & Co. are cutting shingles four days a week now.

An employment bureau would be a great boost to this town as some of our most esteemed young men are out of employment.

Mr John Collins from Kingarf passed through here on Tuesday on his way to the House of Refuge.

Mr Aloysius Clancy of Sault Ste Marie is spending the vacation at his home here

WESTFORD

Mr. James Murray visited friends in Chepstow last week.

Mrs C Hetherington spent Wednesday the guest of Mrs J Hodgins.

Miss Merab Armstrong visited Miss Edna Hallenby last Wednesday afternoon,

Mr E Zettler of the 14th con. was in our burg cutting wood with his gasoline engine a few days last week.

Mr Tom Fallen visited Mr. John Becking one day last week.

Miss Mable Holman, of Teeswater, spent a few days with her friend Miss Margaret Murray last week.

Mrs J Armstrong is visiting her daughter Miss Jim Hodgins.

Mr Reg McBride is visiting friends at Bervie.

Bad colds are the order of the day, and it looks as though those who did not have the lagrippe will soon have it.

FORMOSA

Mrs Eng Zettel of Chepstow, is with her relatives the last few week.

Serie, son of Jos J Fedy came home last Saturday from Berlin to spend his Easter holidays with his parents here.

Alphons Vogt, of Otter Creek, spend his Easter holidays with his parents here.

Now as soon as the weather allows it we will have the electric lights here.

The wedding bells will soon ring again here.

Mr and Mrs Fred Wanchs near Belmore spent Easter with their relatives here.

Berney Meyer, of Culross, lost one of his best horses.

Mr Andrew Oberle was here on business last week.

As the hotels were closed last Friday the town was very quite.

The sick around here are improving.

Dr McCue bought the store and lot where he keeps his Drug Store, last week.

Rev, Father Hening, of Berlin, assisted our Rev Father Gehl here last week.

The roads are in a bad condition again the last two weeks.

Mrs Mat Benninger sr., was taken seriously ill last week but she is improving again.

Address and Presentation.

A large number of friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. B Graf, met at their home, lot 8 con 10, Greenock, on Monday to bid farewell to Mr and Mrs Graf who leave shortly to make their home in Saskatchewan. Those present took advantage of the occasion, and as a slight token of esteem, presented them with handsome chairs and the following address to which Mr. Graf made a very suitable reply:

Cargill, Ont-
April 5, 1915

Mr. and Mrs. B. Graf.

Dear Friends:

We learn with regret of your intended departure from our midst for the "Great West." We have enjoyed your sojourn here among us and we will always remember the many pleasant evenings we have spent in your home. We have always found you a kind neighbor willing to lend a helping hand when it was needed and we will miss you and your family. But what is our loss is a gain to those with whom you will mingle in your new sphere.

We feel we cannot let you depart without expressing in a small measure our appreciation of the help you have given and the kindness you have shown us and so we ask you to accept these chairs, and may you long be spared to enjoy them and may prosperity and happiness follow you wherever your lot is cast.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors.

John Hall.
Jos. Lambertus.

Wanted!

An industrious man who can earn $100 per month and expenses, selling our products to farmers. Must have some means for starting, expenses and furnish bond signed by two responsible men. Address W. T. Rawleigh Co., Toronto, Ont., giving age, occupation and references.

The "Devil's" Mistake.

It wasn't an Ontario editor but a printer's devil who was going through his first experience of making up forms. The paper was late and the boy got the galleys mixed. The first part of an obituary notice had been put in the forms and the next handful of type came off a galley describing a recent fire. It read read like this. The pallbearers lowered the body into the grave and as it was consigned to the flames there were few, if any, regrets, for the old wreck had been an eyesore to the town for years. Of course there was individual loss, but that was fully covered by insurance —The widow thinks the editor wrote the obituary that way because the lamented partner of her joys owed one year's subscription.

Agricultural Bulletins.

So great has been the demand for Bulletins, Pamphlets, Records and Reports upon the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa as a result of the Patriotism and Production Movement that it has been found impossible to comply with all the applications as promptly as could be desired. Of some of the Bulletins the supply has been exhausted and no time has been afforded for reprinting, while of others the quantity asked for individually has been such that instant compliance would mean many applicants might have to go without. This has meant extra correspondence and consequent delay. The situation is, of course, satisfactory as indicating the success of the campaign, and the widespread interest created, but the inability to respond on the instant with the multitude of applications is greatly regretted. At the same time it is impossible that the size of the demand could have been forseen. As fast as possible the requests will be attended to, but in the meantime there will have to be reprinting and in cases revising. In such circumstances patience appears to be a desirable and necessary quality.

PINKERTON

Home for Easter:—Harold Pinkerton of the Mounted Rifles, Toronto, Mertie Donnelly of Loretto Academy Toronto and Melville Reid of Stratford Normal School.

Mr Herb Fiddis visited with his brother, on Sunday.

Miss Viola Pitcher, of Toronto, spent Easter at Mr Adam Reids.

Mr J B Campbell and Hardy were in the village on Friday and Saturday of last week renewing old acquaintances.

Away for Easter:—Mrs S Garland, Miss Hattie Gale and Miss Kathleen Pinkerton visiting friends in Toronto and Miss Alma Reid visiting at Harriston the guest of Rev and Mrs George Mason.

Pte. A. Culham an ex-Pinkerton boy now stationed with the 3rd contingent in Guelph spent his Easter leave in Paisley, returning to Guelph on Monday.

We understand that Mr Adam Knox the proprietor of the hotel here is taking the steps necessary to secure a license. With total prohibition working satisfactorily in Russia and France, advocated by Great Britians leading statesmen and in force in Saskatchewan and in many of the states to the south of us, it would appear that the bar is gradually losing favour with large masses of people and is regarded as an undesirable establishment in a community.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE COOK MEDICINE CO. TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

Wood's Phosphodine,

The Great English Remedy. Tones and invigorates the whole nervous system, makes new Blood in old Veins. Cures Nervous Debility, Mental and Brain Worry, Despondency, Loss of Energy, Palpitation of the Heart, Failing Memory. Price $1 per box, six for $5. One will please, six will cure. Sold by all druggists or mailed in plain pkg. on receipt of price. New pamphlet mailed free. THE WOOD MEDICINE CO., TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.
Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "
Cracked Wheat, Farnia Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.
Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton — Ont

Spring House-Cleaning Season

This is the time of the year the busy housewife starts in to renew and beautify the home, with new rugs, squares, runners, oilcloths and linoleums. We have the best variety it has ever been our good fortune to show, bought early before the big advance in prices and our customers will reap the benefit,

Beautiful hall runners at $2.00 to $10.00.

Small rugs and matts in all new colorings at 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $2.00 up to $5.00 each.

Union squares in neat patterns and good sizes at $5.00, $6.00 $6.50 and $7.00 each.

Small bed room rugs in Tapestry, Brussels and Velvet at $5.00, $7.50 $9.00 $10.00 and $12.00.

Floral and Oriental designs in handsome squares in Tapestry, Brussels, Wilton, Velvet and Axminster. Prices from $10.00 to $40.00.

We have assortment of Curtain Muslins, Scrims, etc. 10c. to 50c. per yard, in white, cream, arab and fancy colorings.

New patterns in floor oilcloths and linoleums in all widths,

Lace, Scrim and Nett Curtains from 50c. to $7.50 per pair.

We will be pleased to show you these new Spring goods and ask you not to delay. Our assortment never was better and the prices are within reach of everyone.

McBurney & Co.

It was discovered at the end of last week that the house of Mr. C. M. Bowman had been broken into during the absence of the family. Robbery seems to have been the motive but what was stolen will not be known until the folks arrive home and make an investigation.—Southampton Beacon.

Every Woman

is interested and should know about the wonderful MARVEL Whirling Spray

The new Vaginal Syringe. Best—Most convenient. It cleanses instantly. Ask your druggist for it.

If he cannot supply the MARVEL, accept no other, but send stamp for illustrated book—sealed. It gives full particulars and directions invaluable to ladies.

WINDSOR SUPPLY CO., Windsor, Ont. General Agents for Canada.

Special this Month

Business Courses

The Walkerton Business College is offering special rates for a three months' commercial course in the following subjects:—Penmanship, Spelling, Arithmetic, Commercial law. Introductory forms to single and double entry, Book-keeping and Typewriting. Now is the time for the young people of this vicinity to improve their education. for further information regarding this course, apply to

P. J. MOLONEY
Principal Walkerton

THE
Merchants Bank
OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,134

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

Walkerton Markets

Hay	per	ton	$16.00	to.......	$17.00
Oats	"	bsh.	55	".......	60
Wheat	"	"	1.30	to.......	1 30
Barley	"	"	60	to.......	65
Potatoes	"	bag	40	".......	40
Butter	"	lb.	30	".......	30
Eggs	"	doz.	18	".......	18
Chicken	"	lb.	12	".......	14
Ducks	"	"	12	".......	14
Turkeys	"	"	15	".......	16

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

First Glimpse of Spring

Every day new home things are popping into view. In the peoples store house cleaning time is just ahead, new rugs draperies are needed this big home store is fairly bulging with interesting and attractive things ready for you for comfort giving, beautifying the home. No store shows more satisfying stocks and none price things more fairly. Special selling events are in evidence every day here during the spring house cleaning season.

RUGS

We have special good values in large size rugs in tapestry axminister.

NEW FLOOR OIL CLOTHS LINOLEUMS

Extra heavy Scotch printed in new block patterns.

Pure groceries alway fresh.

J. H. Appel

Produce Wanted Phone 53

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

Vol. xxxix - No 15

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 15th 1915—8 PAGES

Formaldehyde or Formalin for Grain Smut

The Government warns you against using "cheap" or weak" formaldehyde in the treatment of grain toprevent smut.

"Beaver Brand" is guaranteed to be full Government standard—40 per cent—and you will be sure of definite results.

50 Cents Pound.

Full directions on label for grain smut, potato scab and disinfecting.

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

Spring Millinery

We are showing all the latest and popular styles in Spring Millinery creations. Charming effects in small, medium and large hats. Copies of imported originals and American creations.

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton and vicinity to call and inspect this showing of latest models in Spring Millinery.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY

The Rife Block — Walkerton

Sufferers from Rheumatism

will be delighted with

"Rexall" RHEUMATIC Tablets

50c. a box only at

SIEVERIGHT'S

The REXALL Store

MEN'S FURNISHINGS

THE new Spring Furnishings are here. New Cheney Cravats, the new tie with some of the cleverest color combination and designs you ever saw.

New Spring shirts, collars, gloves. See the new Arrow collar, Norman, in ¼ sizes.

Our Spring hats lead in fashions.

G.T. ROURKE

Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store

Walkerton, - Ont.

JAS. TOLTON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

Cracked Eggs.

Cracked eggs for sale at the Walkerton Egg & Dairy.

Our readers are reminded that the war tax comes into effect today (Thursday' April 15 (h) ' and all notes and cheques will have to bear a 2 cent stamp under penalty of $50 for infractions of the law. Keep this date in mind

War Stamps Here.

The first supply of war stamps arrived at the local post office this week and were issued for the first time, this (Thursday) morning

New Deliveryman.

Mr. P. I. Plesky disposed of his horse to the gov't buyers on Tuesday and the delivering for that store will in future be done by Mr. C. F. Nutting.

Pinkerton Women's Institute.

The Pinkerton Women's Institute will hold their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. John Keys, 12 Con., Greenock, on Wednesday. April 21st. at 2.30 p.m.

Election Date June 14th?

The Free Press, Ottawa, (Conservative) quotes a prominent Conservative member from Quebec as stating that the government has decided on Monday, June 14th, as the date for the general election. There is no confirmation.

Gov't Horse Buyers Here.

Messrs. Dr. Tamlin and Col. McEwen of London were here on Tuesday purchasing horses for army purposes. Out of a large number offered the government buyers purchased only eight. Messrs Tamlin and McEwen went to Mildmay from here but failed to secure a single equine.

Seeding in the West.

All the information received by the Government from Western Canada shows that seeding is already in progress throughout most of the West, that the land is in splendid shape and that there is an enormous increase in acreage. This year's seeding commenced about ten days earlier than last year.

Making Shells in Chesley.

The idle plant of the Canada Bed Company in Chesley, will be humming this week making shells as part of a big war order for Canadian firms. It is expected work will start today (Thursday) on a contract for 25,000 shells, which will necessitate the employment of two shifts of 50 men, working day and night.

Captain Dr. Cannon Honored.

A despatch from Stratford which appeared in the dailies, says:—Prior to his departure from the city to go to the front as medical officer, Capt. Dr. O. A. Cannon was presented by the members of Stratford Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of which he is worshipful master, with a handsome match box, embossed with the Masonic emblem. From the officers and pastmasters of Stratford Lodge, he received a fine set of spurs, leggings and a riding crop, suitably engraved.

Vote for the By-laws.

New "Fitwell" hats at McBurney's.

Charlie Bryce has joined the Telescope staff.

See McBurney's silk poplins at $1.25 per yard.

Mr. Jim Russell left on Saturday for Hamilton.

Special sale of imported floor rugs at McBurney's.

Mrs. Crompton is spending this week in Toronto.

Miss Cecelia Schnurr left today for Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. N. Walford returned from Hespeler on Monday.

Chesley citizens are holding a celebration on May 24th.

Vote for the Bylaws tomorrow and keep the taxes down!

Beautiful new yard wide silks in new shades.—Stephan Bros.

Mr. Leslie Young of Woodstock was a visitor here this week.

Mr. A. A. Black of Guelph was a business visitor here this week.

Cushionette shoes need no breaking in.—Sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Friday of this week, April 16th, is voting day on the two money by-laws.

Miss Lulu Harvey, of Whitby, is spending this week at her home here.

The first May flowers of the season were picked in the woods on Sunday.

Mr. Robt. Tegler of Edmonton is renewing acquaintances in this locality.

Mr. J. P. Connors of the Imperial Cordage Company was a visitor here this week.

Mr. J. E. McConnell, of London, was a business visitor here on Thursday last.

Regal on your shoes means quality in them.—Sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Walking is a pleasure in a Dr. Reed cushion shoe.—Sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Curtain Nets—Splendid new designs 25c, 35c, and 50c. a yard. — Stephan Bros.

Mr. Roy Oberle returned from Formosa on Tuesday and will spend this week here.

Mr. Walter Guggisburg of Regina renewed acquaintances here during the past week.

Another lot of stylish Spring Coats for ladies. Tweeds and covert cloths. —Stephan Bros.

New Velvet and Brussels floor rugs, beautiful colors, fine close weave.—Stephan Bros.

Private Symon Small of the third contingent at Guelph spent Sunday at his home here.

We carry in stock a full line of Dr. Schrol's footwear specialties.—Ramsey the Shoeman.

Raincoats for men and women—Special Import Paramatta at $5, $6, $8 and $10.—Stephan Bros.

Miss Doris Graef, of Clifford, was the guest of Miss Annie Rennie on Thursday and Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Matheson and child of Ripley were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser on Tuesday.

On the Bargain Table—Women's $3.50 and $4.00 shoes, clearing at $2.65. —Ramsey the Shoeman.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Shaw and children spent Saturday with Capt. G. H. D. Martyn, in Guelph.

In stock this week, women's new military bal, sand cloth quarters, fancy foxing new heels.—Ramsey the Shoeman.

Donald Kerr, of Kincardine, a retired farmer, aged 79, while suffering from illness, drowned himself in a cistern.

Mr. F. W. Warren of Hamilton with bride spent the end of the week with his uncle Rev. Thomas Wilson at the manse.

Hear Prof. Reithdorf's lecture under the auspices of the Red Cross Society in the town hall on Monday evening April 19th.

Miss Lizzie Rennie of the Woodstock General Hospital staff spent Sunday and Monday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rennie.

Miss Grace Chalmers of Moncton spent Sunday at Mr. W. Wells and left on Monday to resume her duties as teacher at Dundalk.

Among those who attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Hickling yesterday were, Mr. J. A. Cousins, Stratford Mr. E. D. Cousins, West Toronto and the Misses Tillie, Eva and Myrtle Cousins of Paris.

Wanted.

An experienced general servant. Apply to Mrs. H. M. Lay.

A Pair of Spectacles.

Come with us and see through Mr. Goldfinch's spectacles at the Opera House on Friday night.

I. O. D. E. Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the local chapter of the I. O. D. E. will be held in the armory on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

Moving to Walkerton.

Mr. Hank Irwin, horse-dealer of Paisley has rented Mr. Frank Rennie's residence on Victoria St., and will move to Walkerton early in May.

Help the Hospital.

Help the hospital and see the comedy play at the Opera House on Friday night. Plan of hall open at McCrum's at nine o'clock this (Thursday) morning.

Ratepayers Attention!

If you are interested in the town's welfare, go to the polling booth on Friday and cast your vote for the two money by-laws.

Janitor Resigned.

Mr. Robert Bates who has been janitor at the Bruce County hospital for the past five years, has resigned, and will leave that institution on May 1st.

Auction Sale.

An auction sale of farm stock, implements etc., will be held at lot 7 con 9 Brant on Wednesday April 21st at 1 p.m. Jno Purvis auctioneer, Jos Schutafski prop.

For Sale.

Good strong delivery waggon (covered) also one set brass mounted harness in first class condition. Quantity of hay and oats.—Pleskey's Store, Walkerton. C. Reaney. Phone 8.

New Assistant.

Mr. A Hutchinson who has been assistant to Mr. N. C. McKay, Agricultural Representative for the past few months leaves this week for his home in Mount Forest. His place here will be taken by Mr. G. Skinner of St. Mary's, who will commence his duties on Monday.

Buggy Stolen.

Some time during Sunday night of last week a buggy was stolen from in front of the blacksmith shop of Mr. J. W. Frieburger by unknown parties Provincial constable Jos. H. Armstrong is working on the case but the guilty parties have not yet been apprehended.

Petitions For New Sidewalks.

Several petitions have been received by the town council, asking that sidewalks be built and it is understood there are several others still to be presented. Citizens who desire to have sidewalks built should secure one of these forms at once as they must be presented to the council before the 1st of May.

Case Fell Through.

Mr. Jos M. White license inspector for South Bruce had Ignatz Diemert of Teeswater up before Magistrate Tolton and Brink on a charge of being intoxicated in a local option territory. The trial took place on Friday April 9th in Teeswater, and the case was dismissed on account of insufficient evidence.

Purchased Business in Toronto.

Mr. W. G. Searle formerly of the firm of Pletsch & Searle, proprietors of the Walkerton Flour Mills has taken over the business of the Peerless Milling Company on Dufferin St., Toronto, and left on Monday to take possession. Mr. Searle's many friends in Walkerton wish him every success in his new enterprise.

Home to Recuperate.

Miss Nettie Kenny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Kenny arrived home from Toronto last night and will spend some time with her parents, recuperating from a severe attack of pleurisy which she recently suffered. She was accompanied on the journey home by her brother Mr. Thos Kenny who went to the city on Wednesday morning.

First Lashing in Years.

The cat-o'-nine tails used for lashing prisoners at the Walkerton gaol which has become almost a forgotten part of the paraphernalia of the office of Depty Sheriff Harris, will be resurrected this week for use upon the Indian prisoner who was sentenced by Magistrate Miller of Wiarton to imprisonment and lashes for wife-beating. This is the first time in a score of years that the lash has been wielded on a prisoner in the county gaol.

Society's First Meeting.

The Literary Society of the Walkerton Business College held its first meeting on Friday last, when the interesting debate of "Country Life vs City Life" was discussed by four of the college students. When the points were summed up, it was found, by a majority of five, that Country Life is preferable to City Life. Three other speeches during the afternoon gave the society's initial meeting a most interesting and beneficial aspect.

Janitor Wanted For Hospital.

Preference given to married man without children whose wife could fill some position on the staff of the hospital. Apply to Mr. H. M. Lay., Sec.

Appointed J. P's.

Messrs George Sirrs of Cargill and L. G. Brink of Teeswater have been appointed Justices of Peace by the Ontario Government and took the oath of office before Crown Attorney Dixon last week

Improvements at Garage.

Liesemer & Kalbfleisch are equipping their Walkerton garage with a modern 250 gallon gasoline tank, and a compressed air apparatus to inflate tires. This will be welcome news for tired motorists.

Drilling a Second Well.

The drilling of the artesian well at the pumping station has increased the water supply of the town to such an extent that the town council deemed it advisable to sink another well, and the contractor started work on his second contract on Monday. Well No. 2 is being drilled about 200 feet west of the spot where the flowing well was struck last week. The drilling of the two wells will cost in the neighborhood of $900.

Friday is Voting Day.

Owing to a typographical error in this paper two weeks ago some ratepayers are under the impression that the voting on the two money by-laws is to take place today; but such is not the case, the date set for voting being tomorrow, Friday, April 16th. It is necessary for the welfare of the town that these two by-laws should be carried and the town council are desirous of having a large vote registered. It is the duty of every ratepayer to cast his ballot and everyone is urged to go to the booth and vote for the by-laws.

Lacrosse Notes.

The district committee of the O. A. L. A. met in Toronto on Monday night and made the initial draft of the groups for the coming season. In the intermediate series Walkerton is grouped in group No. 2, with Chesley, Hanover and Durham, in the junior Hanover and Durham and in the Juvenile series, Hanover, Durham and Mount Forest. Whether all three teams will be left in the respective series has not yet been decided upon, but the question will be dealt with at a meeting of the executive of the club to be held this week.

Sanitary Inspector Here.

Dr. McNally, the provincial sanitary Inspector, paid Walkerton his annual official visit on Tuesday. The inspector found the sanitation of the town in a very fair condition, but contrary to his orders issued on his last visit, he found the local slaughter houses in the same condition with no improvements made. This incensed Dr. McNally somewhat and he forwith ordered the butchers to erect new buildings or remodel their present slaughter houses to comply with the conditions set forth in the health act. These improvements and alterations must be made by June 1st.

Successful Dance.

The Easter Dance of the Bachelors and Benedicts of Walkerton which was held in the town hall on Thursday last was a very successful affair. First-class music was supplied by Kelly's orchestra of Owen Sound. Among the out-of-town guests were:—Misses M. Smith and R. Pollick, Drayton, Miss Gladys Smith Toronto, Miss Doris Graef, Clifford, Misses E. Diebel, Burgess and Elliott of Hanover, Mr. Helwig of Drayton, Mr. Chas Miller of Clifford and Messrs H Young and J. Doubt of Hanover and the Misses Colwell and Mr. Marshall of Durham.

Made the $500.

The young ladies of the Soldier's Aid Tea room concluded the season on Wednesday last, their earnings from the tea room having more than reached the $500 mark which they set out to attain. Half of this amount was donated to the Red Cross Society and half to the Daughters of the Empire. Besides the $500 the young ladies also raised $165 on Flag Day, $50 of which they contributed towards a hospital cot for the Toronto base hospital which is being established at the front. The young ladies are to be congratulated and are deserving of highest praise for the good work which they have accomplished.

Bowling Club Meeting.

The Annual organization meeting of the Walkerton Lawn Bowling Club was held in the council chamber on Friday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. Pres.	W. H. McBurney
President	K. M. Taylor
Vice President	R. M. Player
Sec.—Treasurer	C. S. Stephan

A committee was also appointed to secure the green for the year and it was also decided to hold the annual tournament on Labor Day as formerly. The past year was a very successful one for the club, but prospects are bright this year for a larger membership and a more successful year on the green.

Tendered For Coal at $6.42.

The tender of Mr. Alex Ernest to supply coal for the town hall was accepted by the council on Monday evening Mr. Ernest's was the lowest tender at $6.42 per ton.

Indian Gets Lashes

A Cape Croker Indian was brought to the gaol here this week having been sentenced to a term of imprisonment with lashes daily, on a charge of wife-beating, by Magistrate B B Miller of Wiarton. The details of the nature of the Indian's crime are lacking, but this must have been an extreme case to warrant such a severe penalty, yet it should be a warning to some white men, not Indians, in Walkerton who make a practice of pommelling their wives without the slightest provocation.

Red Cross Lecture.

A lecture under the auspices of the Red Cross Society by Prof. Reithdorf-German Professor of Woodstock College will be given in the Town Hall on Monday evening next, November 19th, commencing at eight o'clock Prof. Reithdorf is a native born German and understands the prevailing conditions in Germany. He will speak on "The underlying causes of the war and the curse of militarism in Germany." This will be an excellent lecture and the people of Walkerton and vicinity should take advantage of the opportunity of hearing Prof. Reithdorf's discourse on this interesting subject. A silver collection will be taken at the door.

Suspended Sentence.

Gustave Cupskey of Hepworth who has been a prisoner in the Walkerton gaol for ten day awaiting trial on a charge of receiving stolen goods appeared before Judge Klein on Thursday afternoon and was found guilty. The judge, however, dealt very leniently with the prisoner allowing him his liberty on suspended sentence. The charge against Cupskey arose from the theft of a set of harness from a freight car at the Hepworth station in June last. Chas King was charged with the theft and on trial at the sessions, pleaded guilty and in his evidence implicated Cupskey which resulted in the G. T. R. laying a charge against the latter. J. T. Moore, barrister of Wiarton defended the prisoner.

Death of Francis Gokey.

Another of Walkerton's old residents departed this life peacefully on April 8th., in the person of Francis Gokey, at the advanced age of nearly 93 years. He was an infant in arms when his parents emigrated to Montreal from Paris, France in August 1822. Before coming to Walkerton the deceased conducted a coopering business in Erin, Everton and Guelph in the county of Wellington, and was an esteemed and highly respected christian resident of this town for over 40 years. His wife predeceased him 3 years ago. His daughter Miss Gokey with whom he resided and the other members of his family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community. The remains were taken to Guelph on the early train on Saturday for interment.

A Drastic Measure.

There is still to be collected nearly $1700 of the town's taxes of past years and among the delinquents are many ratepayers who are well able to pay yet are apparently attempting to beat the municipality of its righteous dues, or are of the opinion that taxes do not have to be paid. Collector Crawford has tried many ways to convince these people of the error of their ways but his efforts have been of no avail and the situation was aired at the council meeting on Monday night. The council authorized Mr. Crawford to take the only course left for him and as a consequence he has had printed at this office two hundred warrants to distrain for taxes which he will fill and hand to Bailiff Briggs for execution. This may be considered a drastic measure, but nevertheless it was necessary and will no doubt have the effect of bringing the $1700 in taxes due, rolling into the town coffers.

BORN.

Roy—At Royal Jubilee Hospital, Kenora, Ont., on Wednesday, April 7th, to Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Roy, (nee Miss Florence Robertson, daughter of Mr and Mrs. D. Robertson, of Walkerton) a son.

Lindsay — In Red Deer, Alta., on Tuesday, April 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. Geo Lindsay, (nee Miss Flo Harrison), a son.

MARRIED

Grierson—Wilson—At the home of the bride, in Walkerton, on Wednesday, April 14th, Mr. Arthur Grierson of Brant to Lillian Roberta Wilson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs Robert Wilson.

Pletsch—Caseman—In Hanover on Thursday, April 9th, Mr. John Pletsch of the Walkerton Flour Mills to Miss Caseman of Hanover. Mr. and Mrs. Pletsch have taken up residence on Gibson St.

Donations Received.

The superintendent of the Bruce County hospital wishes to acknowledge with thanks the following donations:—Three pair curtains from Mrs. W. M. Dack, Toronto, two baskets of apples from Mr. Addis of Brant, six jars marmalade from Mrs. McGregor and canned soups, pickles, tea, sugar, cheese and cake from the young ladies of the Soldier's Aid Tea Room.

Died in Toronto.

Mr. G. L. Keeling a former resident of Cargill and manager of the Planing Mill there for eight years, died in Toronto on the 8th inst., at the age of 58 years. Deceased left Cargill 22 years ago for Nipissing district where he conducted a successful lumbering industry at Warren for 18 years. Retiring from business four years ago he moved to Davidson, Sask. During the past year he complained of not feeling well and in October he with Mrs. Keeling came east in the hope that a change of climate would prove beneficial. Mr Keeling was an active member of the Presbyterian church, was choir leader every place in which he resided and for the last twenty years was S. S. superintendent. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, one son C. Lewis, of Elbow, Sask., and one daughter, Mrs. Wm Barrie, (Bessie) Davidson, Sask. also two brothers, C. W. of Cargill and J. M. of Berlin. The remains were taken to Davidson for interment.

Rupture Expert Here.

Seeley, who fitted Czar of Russia called to Harriston. F. H. Seeley of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will be at the Royal Hotel and will remain in Harriston Friday only April 23rd. Mr. Seeley says: The Spermatic Shield as now used and approved by the United States Government will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete relief, but closes the opening in 10 days on the average case. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, harmful injections, medical treatments or prescriptions. Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. All charity cases without charge, or if any interested call he will be glad to show same without charge or fit them if desired. Any one ruptured should remember the date and take advantage of this opportunity.

War Tax Annoucement.

The Post Office Department having given notice a week or two ago, in connection with the War Revenue Act, that all letters and postcards mailed in Canada for delivery in the United Kingdom and British possessions generally, or wherever the two cent rate applied, should in addition to ordinary postage carry a one cent stamp as a "war Tax" could, if such stamp were not available, be paid by an ordinary one cent postage stamp, is now issuing further notice to the effect that postage stamps may be used for the prepayment of war duties on bank cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes, express money orders, proprietary or patent medicines, perfumery, wines or champagne, as well as upon letters and postcards, postal notes and post office money orders, the intention being to provide facilities in those portions of the country where excise stamps are not readily available. This in view of the fact that postage stamps may be obtained at all points over the whole country, in many places where there is no Collector of Inland Revenue and no Inland Revenue stamps could be obtained, is a distinct convenience to the public, and no doubt will be largely taken advantage of.

Death of Mrs. Hickling.

Mrs. Edward Hickling one of the early pioneers of Carrick township, who has resided in Walkerton for the past thirty years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Cousins on Monday morning at the advanced age of eighty-one years, after having been in failing health for some six months. The late Mrs. Hickling, whose maiden name was Matilda Ayers was born in England in 1834 and came to Canada with her parents 65 years ago settling near Elora. Shortly afterwards they moved to Carrick and in 1856 the deceased was married to Mr. Edward Hickling. They settled on the 12th con. of Carrick, and resided there until about thirty years ago when they moved to Walkerton and lived retired. Mr. Hickling predeceased his wife seven years ago. During her thirty years' residence in Walkerton, Mrs. Hickling became one of the town's most respected citizens and her demise is deeply regretted by all who knew her. She is survived by one son, Mr. T. H Hickling on the old homestead in Carrick, and one daughter, Mrs. Cousins of Walkerton. She is also survived by three brothers, E. D. Ayers, formerly a merchant of Walkerton, now of Minneapolis, and Chas and Robt Ayers of St Claude, Minn., and one sister Mrs. Carter also of St. Claude. The funeral which was largely attended took place to the Hanover cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

A GIFT OF A SOUL

CHAPTER I.

Dr. Davidoff, an inspired look lighting up his rugged and strongly marked countenance, turned toward the guests of Prince Patrizzi and let fall in the midst of the discussion the following remarkable words.

"Do you believe, then, in the power of suggestion, urged with the sharpness of persistence of a gimlet's point, to make a thought enter your mind? Do you believe that this thought can influence your moral conditions to such a degree as to alter your physical condition? You concede, do you not, that the moral nature exercises a potent, an irresistible influence over the physical?

"We do," tranquilly responded the Neapolitan. "And for this reason—and here is the ground on which I propose to meet you—it would be necessary to conclude—"

This response to the Russian doctor's question, which seemed to promise a lengthy discussion, was succeeded among the men and women who had just finished dining in the salon of the Hotel de Paris, on the terrace at Monte Carlo, by a moment of stupefied silence. Around the table, sumptuously laid, and on which the flowers were dying, asphyxiated in the heat of the lights and the smoke of the cigarettes, glances of astonishment and ennui were interchanged. Then a storm of remonstrances and exclamations—the indignant protest of these worldly people, compelled to abandon for a moment, the habitual frivolity of their discourse to listen to the dry details of a scientific discussion, broke forth.

"We have had enough of physiology!"

"We are here to drink, to smoke, to laugh."

"This is a dining-room, not a clinic."

"Bah! The doctor is crazy!"

"Listen, gentlemen, I beg of you; it is very curious!"

"These ladies are getting bored."

"Open the windows, this smells of science."

"For my part I would rather be at the Casino. I dreamed last night that red turned up thirteen times—"

"That was a suggestion of the croupiers."

"Don't you want to come and dance?"

"Oh, Laura, come to the piano and play for us."

"Well, my children, go where you will, but let us have peace."

"How rude you all are!"

Several of the guests arose noisily and asked their wraps from the maître d'hotel, who hastened to get them. Patrizzi remained seated, looking with a smile at the beautiful women, who with coquettish gestures shook out their skirts, and gave a few touches to their bodices. He extended his hand nonchalantly to his friends, saying.

"Let every one follow his own inclination. Go on before us. In an hour we will join you."

Then turning toward the painter, Pierre Laurier, his friend Jacques de Vignes and Dr. Davidoff, who had not moved—

"Go on, my dear fellow," he said to the doctor, "you interest me amazingly."

The Russian doctor threw away the cigarette he was smoking, lighted another, and looking at his three listeners with an authoritative air, he continued the recital that had been abruptly cut short by the interruptions of those who had just withdrawn.

"I confess that the story I had begun to tell our friends is strange enough, and that to skeptical minds it may seem improbable, although in our Slav countries, where the atmosphere is foggy and gloomy, and which seem the native land of spectres and phantoms, it would not have awakened the least incredulity. Half of our compatriots are unconscious Swedenborgians, who believe with the great philosopher but without examination, in the phenomena of the invisible world; and if you should state in their presence as I state now, the astonishing fact that the soul of a dying person may enter into a living body, through the will of the person about to die, you would see them turn pale and tremble indeed, but they would not dispute its truth. In our country we believe in vampires who issue from their tombs as soon as the first ray of moonlight falls upon the stone; we believe in apparitions that announce an approaching death. And by the sole fact of believing in these miracles they are rendered possible. A strong conviction is the most powerful of forces, and spiritualism requires as its first condition unquestioning belief. 'If you doubt,' the adepts will tell you, 'do not seek to penetrate our mysteries; they will remain, for you, unfathomable. The invisible world reveals itself only to those who desire ardently to have a knowledge of it. Scoffers and skeptics will find it forever closed to them.'"

Jacques de Vignes was here taken with a violent fit of coughing, which caused a deathlike pallor to overspread his handsome and melancholy countenance. He recovered his breath with difficulty, and turning to the doctor, as if encouraged by a secret hope

"And you yourself were a witness of the occurrence?" he asked, in a choking voice. "You saw this young girl re-born into existence, recover her strength, her health, as if the vitality of her betrothed had passed into her undiminished?"

"I do not discuss the question whether the material fact occurred," responded Davidoff, "I give you solely and simply its psychological consequences. Wladimir Alexievich, seeing Maria Fedorowna, whom he adored, expiring gradually, as the flame of a lamp expires for want of oil, sought in vain, by turns, the help of every physician in Moscow, and having sent for me to St. Petersburg, me, who am now speaking to you only to hear from my lips her sentence of death, conceived the idea of directing himself to an old Tongouze sorceress who had brought with her from Nijni-Novgorod the reputation of being able to work miracles. He went one evening Christmas eve it was to the wretched hovel outside the city in which she lived, to consult her. The witch, after performing in his presence her terrific incantations, gave him in a wooden cup a strangely smelling beverage to drink. As he hesitated to drink it she looked at him with threatening air and said:

"You pretend to love a woman, and to desire to save her life, even at the expense of your own, and yet you are afraid to drink a liquid because the nature of it is unknown to you, and you think it may be poison. Go, man! Son of man, a coward like all men, suffer and shed tears like a man, since you are not able to elevate yourself above humanity!"

As she spoke, Wladimir Alexievich, touched with shame, emptied the rude goblet at a draught, and felt as if seized with a sudden intoxication. A delicious warmth pervaded his frame and he felt himself become lighter and lighter, until it seemed to him as if he were floating in air. His eyes seemed veiled in a luminous mist, as if his gaze, piercing beyond the clouds had been arrested by sudden splendors. His blood surged in his veins and seraphic hymns sounded in his ears. He felt himself transported into boundless realms of light, and his brow was refreshed by delightful breezes. Little by little he lost the consciousness of terrestrial things, and in the midst of a divine transport, an ecstatic beatitude, he saw advancing toward him a celestial shape, a shining and wondrous apparition, which in a voice, sweet as the song of angels, thus addressed him:

"Do you wish to purchase the life of her you love? Then give your own in exchange for it. Your soul in her body, and your body in the cold earth you will have nothing to regret, since you will dwell in her, and in her happiness will be your joy."

The celestial phantom vanished in a luminous mist, and Wladimir Alexievich regained consciousness. He found himself in the hut of the Tongouze, near a fire of spruce wood. The old woman was muttering confused words, without seeming to take any notice of her guest at all. Terrified by what had been revealed to him, the young man tried to collect his thoughts, and get some clear idea of his strange adventure. He saw before him only a commonplace and filthy hag, who had placed him en rapport with the spirits, as the doorkeeper of a temple opens to the worshiper the sanctuary of the shining gods. He laid his hand on the old woman's shoulder. She turned toward him a dull glance, and in sardonic accents said

"Well, have you learned what you desired to know?"

"By what means did you deprive me of consciousness of the external world?" he asked. "What was it you gave me to drink?"

"What does it matter to you? Did you behold the spirits?"

"By what sorcery did you make them visible to me?"

"Ask that of them! They are here all around you. Do you doubt it? Remain then without hope. Trust in them, and supreme delight awaits you!"

The sorceress seemed to grow in stature. Her countenance was ennobled with a sad dignity, and pointing to the door she said to Wladimir:

"Do not tempt Heaven. Go! And believe; believe!"

He dropped on the floor his purse, which the old woman pushed disdainfully toward the hearth with her foot. She extended her arms as if about to make a final invocation, and her countenance glowing with an inspired light, she repeated in accents that vibrated in the breast of Wladimir Alexievich:

"Believe, poor child! In that is safety. Believe!"

He left the hut, returned to his house, wrote far into the night, and on the following day was found dead in his room.

"And did his betrothed recover her health?" asked Pierre Laurier.

"She recovered her health," replied Davidoff, "but although she was beautiful and adored, she would give her hand to none of her suitors, and remained married, as if she had desired to remain faithful to a mysterious and secret love."

"And do you believe in this miracle?" asked Jacques de Vignes, with an effort.

Davidoff shook his head, and answered in a tone of raillery.

"Doctors do not believe in much, in the age in which we live. Materialism has many advocates among my colleagues. Yet magnetism has, in these latter days, taken on strange forms and opened new horizons to our gaze. We walk side by side with spiritualism, which testifies to the existence of the soul. And, to admit the influence of mental suggestion over subjects in the hypnotic sleep, is not this coming very near to a belief in a superior principle which directs and, as a consequence, governs matter?"

"You philosophize, my dear fellow," responded the prince, "but you do not answer."

"Oh, as for you, Patrizzi," said Pierre Laurier, laughing, "you believe in Saint Januarius, and in serious cases you invoke the aid of the Madonna; you carry branches of coral as a protection against the evil eye, and you turn pale when you see a knife and fork laid crosswise on the tablecloth; you are, consequently, already a convert to the juggleries of Davidoff. But Jacques and I, we are tougher, and we need some proofs to convince us."

"Yet it would be pleasant to believe in a mysterious influence that could restore me to health," murmured the sick man. "Ah, to be able to cling to some supreme hope! would not that itself be health? Has not confidence half the merit in effecting a cure."

"Parbleu! Those are the most reasonable words that have been uttered for the last two hours," cried Pierre Laurier. "To the devil with your witches, your Swedenborgians, your lunar apparitions, and your souls that pass from body to body, like the ferret of Bois-Joli. To give a sick person the assurance that he will recover, is almost sure to cure him; that is the truth! So, take my friend Jacques de Vignes here present, who has had himself ordered south because he has taken a cold, make him understand that his malady is purely imaginary, that his lungs are not affected, that he commits a great mistake in thinking that they are. In a word, prove to him that he has only a slight ailment, of no consequence whatever, and, doing away with the cause, you do away with the effect. The aforesaid Jacques de Vignes will be obliged to renounce his languid speech, his languishing airs, his Wertherian glance. He will return to a love for life, for a beefsteak, a cigar, a pretty woman."

"Alas!" murmured Jacques, a severe fit of coughing shaking his frame. "If it were only possible for me to hope! I love life, and every day I feel my hold upon it growing weaker."

The painter laid his hand on the shoulder of the sick man, and in a friendly voice said:

"You do not believe me when I tell you that you are not seriously ill; you do not believe Davidoff, who has examined you. You desire, in spite of everything, to nurse your uneasiness and to torture yourself, as if for pleasure. You make your mother wretched by so doing, and you cause your sister to shed tears. Is there nothing, then, that will convince you? Must I do for you what Wladimir Alexievich did, and give you a soul in exchange for yours. I have only my own, as you know, and that is not of much account. Come, if I were to give it to you some night, in a fit of spleen, it would not be a very splendid present. But one should not look a gift-horse in the mouth, and the important point is that you should live, you have everything to make you happy, you who are loved, you who would be regretted. Whilst I—I might throw myself this moment from the terrace of the Casino into the sea, and who would regret the fool called Pierre Laurier, the artist powerless to grasp his ideal, the gambler grown indifferent to the emotions of the game, the lover scoffer at by his mistress, the viveur weary of life!"

He made the table shake with a blow of his clenched hand, his face distorted by a painful emotion and his lips curled in a bitter smile.

"I am stupid indeed to persist in beginning anew every morning the existence I curse every night! To the devil with it! Jacques, do you want my soul?"

"Come," said Jacques, "you have had another quarrel to-day with Clemence Villa. Give her up, my poor friend, since she makes you suffer so much."

"As if I could!" cried Pierre, growing very pale and pressing his hand to his forehead, which suddenly grew clouded.

"Beat her, then," said Patrizzi, tranquilly.

"If I only dared!" cried the young man, his eyes flashing. "But I am the slave of that girl. She does with me whatever she wishes. Her vices, her follies, her infidelities, I put up with them all. At times I would like to kill her. And it is I myself I would strike in seeking to escape from her tyranny. Ah, I am cowardly and base. I know that she betrays me. I surprised her the other day in a meeting with an insignificant Italian baritone. She ruins me, she degrades me, she lowers me more than she does herself, yet I have not the strength to break my chain. I am indeed very unfortunate!"

"It is ten o'clock," said Jacques de Vignes. "The carriage must be in waiting for me. I am going back to Villefranche."

"Wrap yourself up well," said the prince; "the nights are cold."

The artist helped his friend on with his overcoat, wrapped a plaid around him, and at the foot of the stairs said to him in a voice that still vibrated with his recent emotion:

"Good-night. And remember count upon my soul."

Dr. Davidoff put Jacques de Vignes into the carriage, closed the door, and gave the coachman his orders. Then, after listening for a moment to the noise of the carriage-wheels rolling on the sand, he slowly returned to the artist, who was looking at the stars while he waited for him.

"Shall we go to the Casino?" asked Patrizzi.

"What for? The night is so beautiful, let us walk."

"Which way do you go?"

"Toward Mentone."

"And you will pause three-quarters of a mile from here, at the door of a villa of which the gate is covered with roses?"

"Yes."

"And you will come out in a moment furious with others and with yourself. Do not go to see that girl."

"And where would you have me go? If obedient to your wishes, I return to my hotel, in the solitude of my chamber, I shall think only of the woman you bid me shun. She holds complete sway over me. I confess it, and the ties that bind me to her must be strong indeed, since, notwithstanding the desperate efforts I have made, I have not been able to break them. After each effort I return to her, weaker and more enslaved than before, and I hate and despise myself for it."

"It is an easy matter, nevertheless, to leave a woman," said the Neapolitan, smiling. "Unhappily one does not find it out until it is too late. But one should make the effort, at all events. It is easy, however, to counsel philosophy to those who are suffering. Good-night, gentlemen. I am going to break the bank."

He lit a cigar and went away. Davidoff and Pierre Laurier continued their walk through the gardens bathed in the moonlight. The air was mild and gragrant. They left the town, and to their right at the base of the rocks along the shore they could see the sea, shining like a silver mirror. The night was so bright that the lights of the vessels in the distance shone red and tremulous. They descended the acclivity in silence. They paused a moment near a clump of mastic and cactus bushes, their glances piercing into space, and oppressed, as it were, by the expanse before them. A sudden noise, as of an animal rising abruptly from a thicket, arrested their attention and a moment later they saw running up the path on the side of the acclivity a man carrying a gun that glittered in the moonlight.

"What is that?" asked Davidoff, in surprise.

Pierre Laurier looked at the man attentively, and then answered:

"A custom house officer."

They paused. The man continued to ascend the hill. Arrived on the flat, he looked at the two pedestrians suspiciously. The spot was deserted, although they had left the last house not more than two miles behind them. But the whole coast is a wild one and favorable to the enterprise of smugglers.

"Do you take us for contrabandists?" said the artist.

"No, sir," replied the officer, "not now that I see you near by; but below there, when I saw you stand motionless, I thought you had just given some signal."

"Are there smugglers in the country, then?"

(To be Continued.)

Unfortunately, the man who is his own master seldom exercises the privilege of bossing himself.

The Supreme Test of a Healing Agent

Psoriasis or Chronic Eczema Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used.

After suffering with the terrible itching of Psoriasis for five years, and being told by physicians that she could not be cured, Mrs. Massey turned to Dr. Chase's Ointment and was entirely cured.

You will find this letter interesting, and will not wonder that the writer is enthusiastic in praising this ointment.

MRS. MASSEY.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

Can you imagine a more severe test for Dr. Chase's Ointment? This should convince you that as a cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease Dr. Chase's Ointment stands supreme. Put it to the test. 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

CONSIDER THE HOBO.

(Louisville Courier-Journal)

Tramps have a few vicissitudes. They do not have to cater to fickle constituencies as public servants must. They are never alarmed about losing a sinecure. They do not fail and go into the hands of a receiver, as corporations often do, or into bankruptcy, where many individuals fetch up after entering with high hopes and fine confidence upon profitable and honorable projects. Tramps are not sued for divorce and compelled to pay alimony sufficient to keep up disgruntled wives in the style to which they aspire. They are under no necessity of getting up in the early morning, when all of the [illegible] of paradise are claimed by the fortunate few who can awaken just sufficiently to be able to realize their luck and then turn over to pick up again the golden thread of unfinished dreams. They are not pinned to one pitiful spot in a world of wonders and delights to vegetate in a desolate cell and become stunted. The tramp is a gentleman of unlimited leisure.

The crumpled rose leaf in the hobo's basket of earthly pleasures has been the hospitable attitude of the conventional world toward those who have unlocked the treasure house of idleness, and turned their backs upon the tawdry prize hung up for toilers. Now the great and good state of New York has set aside a fund out of which every wanderer may be provided for, to the extent of 5 cents a day, while being furnished a free bed.

Who is the happy worker? Who is he of every man-in-arms should wish to be? The hard worked barrister, getting his fees from the strife of his neighbors? The overworked physician, getting his bread and cheese by prescribing physic for a melancholy horde of complaining patients who will blame him if he does not work a miracle? The business man with the hot cornwheels in his head and the fear of the bank hanging over him like a sword of Damocles? The honest farmer, scourged by Jupiter Pluvius, pursued by [illegible], smitten by the [illegible], an elderly [illegible] of falling rate, afflicted with rheumatism? The officeholder, harassed by [illegible], responsible to everybody, defenceless against criticism? Or the sorry hobo?

The Cause of Appendicitis Now Definitely Known

The commonest cause of appendicitis is constipation. Every doctor says so. When you require physic, don't use a cheap drastic pill—get Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are made from the private formula of one of the greatest physicians. Dr. Hamilton's Pills strengthen the stomach, regulate the bowels and prevent any tendency to appendicitis. In one day you feel the tremendous benefit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. By purifying the blood and cleansing the system they prevent headaches, lift depression and drive away weariness. No medicine so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Sold everywhere in 25c boxes, with yellow cover; get the genuine.

Electric Catfish Can Stun a Horse.

A powerful electric battery which is actually alive and swims about at will—that is Dame Nature's champion electrical experiment. You boys who are experimenting with electricity yourselves will be interested to read about it.

It is found in the River Nile and is known as the electric catfish. The fish often grows to a length of 4 feet, and has electrical plates all along its body. From these plates the fish can discharge a strong current, which kills other fishes instantly, is powerful enough to stun a horse and often gives a severe shock to a human hand.

PILES CURED at HOME by New Absorption Method

If you suffer from bleeding, itching, blind or protruding Piles, send me your address, and I will tell you how to cure yourself at home by the new absorption treatment; and will also send some of this home treatment free for trial, with references from your own locality if requested. Immediate relief and permanent cure assured. Send no money, but tell others of this offer. Write to-day to Mrs. M. Summers, Box P. 8, Windsor, Ont.

Dogs' Pants.

Dogs do not perspire. In hot weather they regulate the temperature of their blood by breathing more quickly, which produces a rapid evaporation of water from the surface of the lungs. That is the reason why a dog pants in hot weather.

He Brought Them.

Mr. Sweet opened the door of the kitchen and said:

"Hello, Ella; company for dinner."

"Goodness, Tom, you don't mean that you have brought any one home to dinner to-night?" queried the wife.

"Sure I have!" replied Mr. Sweet. "Haven't you got any grub for them?"

"Why, no," said the wife, despairingly. "Don't you remember you told me you would bring home a couple of lobsters for dinner, and I depended on them?"

"Well," said Tom, "they're here."—National Monthly.

MOTHERS

REMEMBER! The ointment you put on your child's skin gets into the system just as surely as food the child eats. Don't let impure fats and mineral coloring matter (such as many of the cheap ointments contain) get into your child's blood! Zam-Buk is purely herbal. No poisonous coloring. Use it always.

All Druggists and Stores.

USE ONLY ZAM-BUK FOR CHILDRENS SORES

CHILDREN AND SCHOOL.

(Philadelphia Record)

The number of children who would rather work than go to school is not small. It is not limited to one girl of 14 who would rather make cigars than learn lessons out of books. Plenty of boys in the country would rather hoe corn than study arithmetic, though of course fishing is very much more entertaining than either. In the cities there are thousands of boys and girls who have no ambition for an education, even of the most elementary sort, and who find any sort of work that isn't exhaustingly severe less irksome than geography and grammar and "doing sums." It doesn't follow that they should be allowed to do as they please; while incapable of judging what is best for them they must be directed by their parents or the school authorities. But the real evil in releasing children from school attendance is that they do not always go to work, and in many instances the parents do not care. In this city thousands of children of school age have certificates allowing them to leave school and go to work, but they are not at work; they are playing in the streets.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS USED ELEVEN YEARS

Mrs. McEachern, Glenco, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past eleven years for my children and have every reason to praise them as they always do good." Once a mother uses the Tablets for her little ones she will use no other medicine. They are absolutely safe, pleasant to take and never fail to regulate the bowels and stomach. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GOD'S HOLY WORD.

Looking for the early robin
 In the Maple tree,
Looking where the apple blossom
 Later on will be.

Looking at the frisking lambkin
 On the hill side fair.
Greeting now the balmy breezes,
 The perfume-laden air.

Stooping o'er the early crocus
 Peeping through the ground,
Listing to the humming bee
 Buzzing all around.

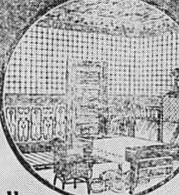
See the sparrows mating
 Picking bits of hay.
Plow-boy whistling early
 Milk-maid dressed so gay.

Gladsome Summer days ahead,
 Pasture fields and flowers,
Cattle in rich clover fields
 Lovers 'neath the bowers.

Nature speaks of God,
Life abounds with beauty
 Nature speaks of God,
Those who understand the word
 Spread the truth abroad.

WILLIAM STRONG.

Love at first sight is usually inspired by an heiress.—Detroit Journal.



Beautiful Walls For Your Home Sanitary, Fire-Proof, Inexpensive

Make your home more attractive, and protect it from fire with these beautiful, sanitary

"Metallic" Ceilings and Walls

They will out-last the building and are very inexpensive. They can be brightened from year to year with a little paint at a trifling cost. Made in innumerable beautiful designs suitable to all styles of rooms. Can be erected over old plaster as well as in new buildings. Write for catalogue

We manufacture a complete line of Sheet Metal Building Materials. 9

THE METALLIC ROOFING CO., LIMITED
Manufacturers
King and Dufferin Sts., TORONTO 797 Notre Dame Ave., WINNIPEG

How the Black Watch Helped Russia.

The Scotsman publishes the following extract from a speech delivered by Sir John French to the Black Watch:—

Black Watch, you have suffered great losses, on which I condole with you. You have suffered also great hardships. I condole with you on the loss of your gallant colonel, Col. Grant-Duff, who fell, as I am certain he would have wished to have fallen, in the forefront of battle.

The Black Watch—a name we know so well—have always played a distinguished part in the battles of our country. You have many well-known honours on your colors, of which you are naturally very proud, but you will feel as proud of the honors which will be added to your colors after this campaign.

At the battle of the Marne you distinguished yourselves. They say that the Jaeger of the German Guard ceased to exist after the battle. I expect they did. You have followed your officers, and stuck to the line against treble your numbers in a manner deserving the highest praise.

I, as commander-in-chief of this force, thank you, but that is a small matter—your country thanks you and is proud of you.

The Russians have won great victories, and we have just received news of another great Russian victory; but you, by holding back the Germans, have won great victories as well, as if you had not done this the Russians could not have achieved their successes.

I am very glad of this opportunity of addressing you and thanking you personally for your splendid service.

I was cured of Acute Bronchitis by MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Bay of Islands. J. M. CAMPBELL.

I was cured of Facial Neuralgia by MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Springhill, N. S. WM. DANIELS.

I was cured of Chronic Rheumatism by MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Albert Co., N. B. GEO. TINGLEY.

Wellington's Reports Voluminous.

In the campaigns of the past our generals had much more time to write dispatches than now. Wellington, for instance, was able to write a detailed account of the Battle of Waterloo on the night following its occurrence, and he read the whole of his dispatches in his various campaigns you would have to wade through twenty bulky, closely printed volumes.—London Chronicle.

WAR GRAFTERS.

(New York Sun)

It has required centuries to bring the art of war in other departments to its present stage of development, and some nations exceed others in the progress they have made towards perfection in armament and methods; but the army contractor attained the highest degree of scoundrelism when the first armed host set out to conquer, and has remained unimprovable in every land ever since. No nation is preeminent in its specimens of this stern utilitarian; every army suffers from his ministrations; what a noble target a carefully selected party of these vermin would make for an international firing squad!

ENGINES

MARINE:—

2 h.p. at $40, 3 h.p. at $50, 5 h.p. at $60, 7 h.p. at $90, 9 h.p. at $90, Buffalo 8 h.p. $125, 4 Cylinder Buffalo $135, 24 h.p. engine at $175.

STATIONARY:—

2½ h.p. at $65, 4 1-2 h.p. at $85, 5 h.p. at $145, 3½ h.p. at $85. Send for complete list, also catalogue of new ones.

GUARANTEE MOTOR CO.
HAMILTON, ONTARIO.

ENLISTING CRIMINALS.

(Stratford Beacon)

The man who goes astray and commits an offence against the laws of the land should be given a chance to reform, but the protest which has been made in Toronto against offering enlistment in the Canadian Expeditionary Force as an alternative for a term in jail is fitting. This has been offered in Toronto and some other places, and some of those who have been brought before the authorities there and elsewhere have asked for this privilege. It should not be granted except in rare cases. The reformation of criminals is not to be found in getting any large number of them together, but in separating them. The present in the army of a number of those who have committed crime is likely to contaminate those who are free from it rather than to reform the offenders. We think upon our Canadian soldiers as exemplary young men, men who will reflect credit upon Canada in every respect, and neither the parents of those who have enlisted, nor the people of Canada generally would regard with satisfaction the addition of offenders against the law to those who are going forth in defence of the Empire.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

A MATTER OF INTERPRETATION.

(Hamilton Herald)

Discussing the waste of male lives in the war, some "progressive" thinkers in England are seriously proposing a resort to polygamy after the war as a means of making good the shortage. They are astray in their progressive thinking. Before the war there were in Britain upwards of a million more women than men. The war will help to redress the balance and make it easier for every Joan to have her Darby.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

Sharpening Scissors.

To sharpen scissors take a bottle and cut with the scissors as if you had to cut the neck off the bottle. This is effective.—Woman's Home Companion.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

THE ERA OF GLASS.

The iron ore deposits of the world are being rapidly exhausted, and the time is not far distant when we will have to get along without iron and steel. Before that day arrives some substitute for these valuable things will have to be found, and it has been suggested by a scientist familiar with the subject that the logical successor will be glass.

Glass can be made to meet nearly all the requirements of iron and steel and with improved methods of manufacture will be a great deal cheaper. There is an abundant supply of the materials from which glass is made, and long before iron reaches the obsolete stage it is more than likely that glass will be one of its strongest competitors.

The chief fault with glass is its brittleness, but it is possible even now to produce a grade of glass which can stand a good deal of hard usage and serve many of the purposes for which iron is employed. The progress of invention is bound to evolve a quality of glass which will be as strong and durable as iron and transparent as well.

The use of glass will effect a great improvement in sanitary conditions. The building of the future, according to this scientist, will have its walls, ceilings, floors, sanitary fixtures and almost everything else made of glass.—Exchange.

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Apply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE.

$12,000 ONE HUNDRED ACRES grain and stock farm between Burlington and Appleby. Solid brick house, two bank barns, splendid water, clay loam. Owner will take house part exchange and leave $6,000 mortgage. Send your requirements. Have large list of farms in Ontario and Western Provinces on easy terms. Apply, J. R. La France, 20 Clyde Block, Hamilton, Ont.

TWO ADJOINING SECTIONS—SASKATCHEWAN—five miles from elevator; beautiful creek; for quick sale at assessed value. H. B. Harrison, Owen Sound, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE—IN COUNTIES of Victoria, Peterboro and Haliburton; $500 up. Train and Crowe, Kinmount.

104 ACRES — AT ENNISKILLEN — choicest level land; clay loam; in high state of cultivation; ten acres fine orchard; eleven-roomed house; barn, 100 x 46; stone stable, cement floor; litter-carrier; driving sheds, pig pens, hen houses; well watered; well fenced; fall plowing all done; price, eight thousand, with reasonable cash payment. R. J. Ashton, 156 Simcoe street, Toronto.

MANITOBA IMPROVED FARMS—A full section on half crop payments, fully equipped with stock, implements, seed and feed, close to market and school; good water; small cash payment to good man; also two good half sections, improved and fully equipped on same terms. We specialize in this class of farms and handle real bargains only. Wilkinson Land Co., 104 Carlton Bldg., Winnipeg, Man.

GENTLEMEN'S FARM—31 ACRES; 14 room house; basement barn, will accommodate twenty head cattle; large drive shed; granary; hen house; land gently rolling and sloping to south; two wells; good spring; 75 apple trees; forty plums; quantity peaches; pears; grapes; fine maple grove; few implements; price $7,500; $3,500 down; balance easy terms. Lewis, 150 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

3 ACRES—MOST SUITABLE TO ANYone in the chicken business; large brick dwelling and good outbuildings. 1½ acres; large, well-built, solid brick dwelling; good barn, and land of the best; some fruit. Apply, C. F. Saunders, Burford, Ont.

FOR SALE—FOUR FIRST-CLASS IMproved quarter sections in famous Jack Fish Lake Summer Resort and farming district. Few hundred cash will handle. Write owner. Terms to suit purchaser. F. W. Tobey, Meota, Sask.

NINETY ACRES—LINCOLN COUNTY, two miles to Silverdale Station. All cultivated, 2 acres hardwood timber; good 8 roomed house, bank barn, other out buildings, one acre orchard, 10 acres fall wheat, soil clay loam. Good stream. Price $5,000. F. J. Watson, Farm Specialist, 160 Bay street, Toronto, Ont.

HUNDREDS OF FARMS FOR SALE and exchange. County catalogues, describing them sent free anywhere. The Western Real Estate Exchange, Ltd., Head Office, London, Ont.

WHITFIELD & WHITNEY, REAL Estate and Insurance, Bank of Hamilton Bldg., Hamilton, Ont. 100-acre grain and stock farm; 13 miles from Hamilton, on stone road. $12,000.

WHAT KIND OF A FARM ARE YOU looking for? I have small and large farms in Western Canada and Ontario; very easy terms, or exchange clear properties; write requirements. S. Johnson, 29 Clyde Block, Hamilton.

BUY CHOICE FARM LANDS IN Sunny Southern Alberta. Prices ranging from $10.00 to $30.00 per acre. Deep, rich chocolate loam. One crop pays for the land. Write us to-day. F. M. Ginther Land Co., Medicine Hat, Alta.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SEED CORN

Prize-winning Wisconsin No. 7; the best for the silo. George R. West & Sons, Northwood, R. R. No. 3.

EDUCATION.

(Chicago Tribune)

Let educators, instead of proclaiming the failure of democratic education, work at the problem of making that education deeper and broader, of reaching the inner man and exercising meanness, greed, cruelty, lust, and wantona ggressiveness. Education that does not beget right thinking and right feeling is not education. Not why educate, but how to educate, is the question.

Corns Cured Quick

Applied in 5 Seconds

Sore, blistering feet from corn-pinched toes can be cured by PUTNAM'S EXTRACTOR in 24 hours. "PUTNAM'S" soothes away that drawing pain eases instantly, makes the feet feel good at once. Get a 25c bottle of "PUTNAM'S" to-day.

Greatness.

Genuine greatness is marked by similarity, unostentatiousness, self-forgetfulness, a hearty interest in others, a feeling of brotherhood with the human family.—Channing.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

Information.

It was a very fashionable concert and the artists very well known ones, but the two young things were too busy with picking out their peculiarities to hear the music.

In the midst of a beautiful selection the pianist suddenly lifted his hands from the keys and one of the young things was heard to say clearly:

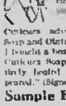
"I wonder if that hair is his own?"

The old man who sat beside her was slightly deaf, but he turned with a benevolent smile.

"No, miss," he imparted pleasantly; "that is Schubert's."—Philadelphia Press.

BLISTERS ON FEET COULD NOT SLEEP

Skin Much Inflamed, Itched and Smarted. Could not Wear Shoes. Cuticura Entirely Healed.



Victoria St., Thetford Mines West, Que.—"One day I was repairing a valve on top of a boiler when a steam pipe close to my feet burst scalding both. Blisters came on my feet and I could not wear my shoes. The skin was very much inflamed and it gave me such pain that I could not sleep at night.

"One day I came across the Cuticura advertisement. The Cuticura Soap and Ointment gave me such relief that I bought a box of Ointment and some soap Cuticura Soap. Now the wounds are entirely healed and the scars have disappeared." (Signed) William Neck, Jan. 31, '14.

Sample Each Free by Mail

With 32-p. Skin Book on request. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A." Sold throughout the world.

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, APRIL 15 1915.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

Germany has issued a protest and threat to Great Britain through the United States, that if the crews of submarines, held prisoners in Britain are treated differently from ordinary prisoners of war, reprisals will be made on British prisoners in Germany. The British reply is to the effect that these crews are not ordinary prisoners of war, but rather "persons who, at the order of their Government, committed offences against the law of nations and contrary to common humanity." In the meantime they are being treated better than are British prisoners in Germany, and have no forced labor to do. When the war is over the courts will decide whether they are honorable prisoners or common criminals. It was also pointed out by the British Government that the British had saved a thousand Germans from drowning after sea engagements, while the Germans had saved not one British subject. Sir Edward Grey made it plain that there would be no change in the treatment of these [illegible]. But the gallows may await them when the war is over. It has been suggested that hereafter the crews of any German submarines wrecked at sea should be allowed to drown. There is some danger of this submarine warfare becoming a serious matter for the old country. The sinking of neutral ships shows that Germany's desire is to so terrorize the neutral nations that they will cease trading with Britain.

The eighth month of the war has now about come to a close, and although the British and Canadian press may to a certain extent be "fed up" on news favorable to the Allies, yet, taking into account all that the Germans claim, we can come to no other conclusion than that Germany and Austria are fighting a losing battle. They are making no progress in either France or Flanders. They are not even holding their ground. The dash to Paris and to Calais are things of the past. They are in the position of a man who can neither move backward nor forward, and the longer they stay in their present position, the worse it must become for them. If the allies have been able to hold them in check for months, with the assistance of a handful of British troops, how can they withstand the pressure when Kitchener's army begins to move in full force?

In the eastern arena, Hindenburg has been trying for months to reach Warsaw. He is further away from achieving the capture of that city than ever he was, and he has nothing to show for his labors but a ghastly butcher's bill. Russia has had ample time to mobilize all her forces, and, notwithstanding her immense losses, she is more powerful to-day than she was. Przemysl has fallen, releasing many thousands of her army for service elsewhere and in the east as in the west the allies seem to be the dominant factor. Should the Dardanelles be forced, and we believe they will be, Turkey's power for evil will be destroyed, and Germany's ambitions in that direction made impossible of realization. The financial pressure on Germany must be getting more severe every day, and her inhuman submarine warfare [illegible] from the sympathies of the neutral nations. The United States cannot look with anything but horror on the murder of innocent people on the high seas.

EDITORIAL NOTES

All signs point to an early election. Get ready.

* * *

The Golden Horn has no connection with Werner Horn.

* * *

The "gospel of hate" is bearing fruit. The harvest will be bitter.

* * *

Will this temperance wave wash clean over the British Isles?

* * *

Will Kitchener go to the front in May? Is that when the war will begin?

* * *

As the forts in the Dardanelles tumble down, the price of wheat also tumbles.

* * *

The Canadian "honor roll" is growing large. The boys may be taking too many risks.

* * *

President Wilson objects to people rocking the boat. He is afraid she may go on the rocks.

* * *

The Government is trying to find out what became of the [illegible] which were lost or missed at Valcartier. Some more [illegible].

* * *

Great is the middlemen! One of them made $15,000 out of a Government boot contract upon which the contractors only realized [illegible] profit.

* * *

That horse deal in connection with the Government's remounts for the front looks as black as the boot scandal. Mr. Foster, M.P., has yet to be heard from.

* * *

It turns out that the man appointed by the Militia Department as "Chief Adviser on Boots," because he had much experience in the making of boots, was only a tanner.

* * *

Parliament has decided that soldiers at the front shall have a vote if there be an election. But it has not yet decided the method of their voting. Will the ballot boxes be stuffed?

* * *

The British Opposition press is attacking Premier Asquith because of his alleged lack of vigor in pushing certain matters connected with the war. Has Kitchener complained?

* * *

The Financial Post of Canada commends the new amendments to the Ontario license law, but would like to see the bars closed within half an hour after working hours. Does it want Hearst or Hanna to have a fit?

* * *

Said Private McGarvey to the Boot Committee: "Some of the boots are 'like a sponge in the centre.' The uppers were too light for military wear. When the heels gave way the men walked round like flounders." The boots were 'all right for Sunday.' McGarvey is a Scotch cobbler, and knew what he was talking about.

* * *

Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, is credited with saying that he is in favor of empowering the President to proclaim a retaliation embargo on goods for England and France. How could that help the Georgia people or the cotton market? He should know that a blockade, according to the London Conference, is not practicable. He knows also that such a conference is not binding on the nations. Why should the Senator be so anxious to ship goods to Germany?

* * *

To cause the drowning of 130 non-combatants on a passenger ship and call it war is another form of reasoning that the Germans will find few citizens slow to follow, says the New York World. Dr. Dernburg is reported as saying: "It is ridiculous to call 'murder' or 'piracy' the death of people who unnecessarily get in between the fighting lines in a war." The doctor apparently stands ready to endorse the devil and all his works, provided he wears a German garb.

* * *

Don't Allow Your Bowels To Become Constipated.

If the truth was only known you would find that over one half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, belching of wind, heartburn, water brash, biliousness, and a general feeling that you do not care to do anything.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They will clear away all the effete matter which collects in the system and make you think that "life is worth living."

Mrs. [illegible] McKittrick, Wakefield, Que., writes: "For several years I was troubled with sour stomach and biliousness and did not get relief until I used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I had only taken them two weeks when my trouble was quite gone, and I will recommend them to all suffering as I did."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c per vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all drug stores or dealers, or will be mailed on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DEMORALIZED THE ENEMY.

An Unexpected Charge That Resulted in Rout and Annihilation.

There have been many curious bits of strategy in warfare, but none more effective than the coup of the Terceirans when threatened by the Spaniards.

Early in the morning of the 25th day of July, 1581, the inhabitants of the village of St. Sebastian, Isle of Terceira, one of the Azores or western group, were alarmed at the sight of a squadron, consisting of seven large Spanish war galleons, anchored off the little bay of Salga, the operations for landing a hostile force being actually in progress.

Hastily summoning some companies of militia and collecting behind a neighboring knoll a large herd of semi-wild cattle from the neighboring pastures, the islanders quietly awaited the massing of the Spaniards on the beach.

When this had been accomplished, the Terceirans advanced close up to [illegible], largely due to the roads and the foe, as if to attack, when, suddenly opening out into two long columns and leaving a wide open space between, the numerous cattle were sent thundering down the centre, goaded on by herders on horseback. So unusual and unexpected a charge threw the Spaniards into complete disorder, and being at once set upon by the islanders, scarcely a man escaped to the ships, several guns which had been landed falling as spoil to the conquerors.—Exchange.

* * *

It is possible for the human ear to distinguish sounds over a range of about 11 octaves, but only 7 [illegible] octaves are used in music.

The Cause of Dyspepsia.

The Symptoms and The Cure.

THE CAUSE.

Too rapid eating, eating too much, and too often, improperly chewing the food, eating too much stimulating food, and indulging in improper diet generally.

THE SYMPTOMS.

Variable appetite, rising and souring of food, heartburn, wind in the stomach, a feeling of weight in the stomach, in fact a feeling that your stomach has gone all wrong and that the food you eat does not seem to agree with you.

THE CURE.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Mrs. E. Wilkinson, Wheeler, Ont., writes: "I have been a sufferer for years from dyspepsia, and could scarcely eat anything. I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, and I am entirely cured. I have not been troubled since I took it, and that is two years ago. I can now eat anything I wish."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE Changeling

Down in the distant shadow of the woods, and distant from the old stone house nearly a mile, was a half-ruined cottage, which, years before, had been occupied by miners, who had dug in the hillside for particles of yellow ore, which had been held in the mould they fancied to be gold. Long and frequent were the night revels said to have been held in the old hut, which had at last fallen into bad repute and been for years deserted. To one like Hagar, however, there was nothing intimidating in its creaking old floors, its rattling windows and noisome chimney, where the bats and the swallows built their nests, and when one day Madam Conway proposed to give little Maggie into the charge of a younger and less nervous person than herself, she made no objection, but surprised her mistress by asking permission to live by herself in the "cottage by the mine," as it was called.

"It is better for me to be alone," said she, "for I may do something terrible if I stay here, something I would sooner die than do," and her eyes fell upon little Maggie sleeping in her cradle.

This satisfied Madam Conway that the half-crazed woman meditated harm to her favorite grandchild, and she consented readily to her removal to the cottage, which by her orders was made comparatively comfortable. For several weeks, when she came, as she did each day, to the house, Madam Conway kept Maggie carefully from her sight, until, at last she begged so hard to see her that her wish was gratified; and as she manifested no disposition whatever to molest the child, Madam Conway's fears gradually subsided, and Hagar was permitted to fondle and caress her as often as she chose.

Here, now, for a time, we leave them: Hagar in her cottage by the mine; Madam Conway in her gloomy home; Maggie in her nurse's arms; and Theo, of whom as yet but little has been said, playing on the nursery floor; while with our readers we pass silently over a period of time which shall bring us to Maggie's girlhood.

CHAPTER IV

Those dark rooms, and their silence is broken by the sound of other feet, not moving stealthily and slow, as if following in a funeral train, but dancing down the stairs, tripping through the halls, skipping across the floor, and bounding over the grass; they are never tiring, never ceasing till the birds and the sun have gone to rest.

And, [illegible] the good lady cannot check the gleeful mirth or hush the clear ringing laughter of one at least of the fair maidens, who, since last we looked upon them, have grown up to womanhood. Wondrously beautiful is Maggie Miller now, with her bright, sunny face, her soft, dark eyes and raven hair, so glossy and smooth, that her sister, the [illegible] blue-eyed Theo, likens it to a piece of shining satin. Now, as ever, the pet and darling of the household, she moves among them like a ray of sunshine and the servants, when they hear her bird-like voice waking the echoes of the weird old place, pause in their work to listen, blessing Miss Margaret for the joy and gladness her presence has brought to them.

Fifteen years have passed away, and around the old stone house there is outwardly no change. The moss still clings to the damp, dark wall, just as it clung there long ago, while the [illegible] branches of the forest trees still cast their shadows across the floor, [illegible] just as they did in years gone by, when Hagar Warren [illegible]. Madam Conway, still and straight and cold as ever, moves with the same measured tread through her gloomy rooms, which are not as noiseless now as they were wont to be, for [illegible] has a home in them.

Old Hagar, in her cottage by the mine, has kept her secret well, whispering it only to the roaring wind and the running brook, which have told no tales [illegible] to the gay, light-hearted girl, [illegible] to murmur in her ear that a life untrammeled by etiquette and form would be a blissful life indeed. And Maggie, listening to the voice which speaks to her so oft in the autumn wind, the running brook, the opening flower, and the falling leaf, has learned a lesson different far from those taught her daily by the prim, stiff governess, who, imported from England six years ago, has drilled both Theo and Maggie in all the prescribed rules of high life as practised in the old world. She has taught them how to sit and how to stand, how to eat and how to drink, to become young ladies of Conway blood and birth. And Madam Conway, through her golden spectacles looks each day to see some good from all this teaching come to the bold, dashing, untamable Maggie, who, spurning alike both birth and blood, laughs at form and etiquette as taught by Mrs. Jeffres, and winding her arms around her grandmother's neck, smothers her [illegible] with a most unladylike hug, and then bounds away to the stables, pretending not to hear the distressed Mrs. Jeffres calling after her, [illegible] Yankee fire and vulgar [illegible] should be [illegible] "Yes, a Yankee, native born, and ready for all Johnny Bull."

Greatly horrified at the [illegible] of total depravity, Mrs. Jeffres brushes down her black silk apron and goes back to Theo, her more tractable pupil, while Maggie [illegible] from the stable door, the horse [illegible] one leap of her high-mettled pony, which John, the coachman, had bought at an enormous price of a traveling circus, on purpose for his young mistress, who complained that grandma's horses were all too lazy and moderate in their movements for her.

In perfect amazement Madam Conway looked out when first Gritty, as the pony was called, was led up to the door prancing, pawing, chafing at the bit and impatient to be off. "Margaret should never mount that animal," she said; but Margaret had talked for sixteen years and now, at a nod from John, she sprang nimbly upon the back of the fiery steed, who, feeling instinctively that the rider he carried was a stranger to fear, became under her training perfectly gentle, obeying her slightest command, and following her around like a sagacious dog. Not thus easily could Madam Conway manage Maggie, and with a great [illegible] she saw her each day [illegible] the garden gate, and out into the woods, [illegible] in all directions.

"She'll break her neck, I know," the disturbed old lady would say, as Maggie's flowing skirt and waving plumes disappeared in the shadow of the trees. "She'll break her neck some day," and thinking some one must be in fault, her ire would turn reproachfully upon Mrs. Jeffres for the latter's [illegible] in training Maggie, whom the old governess pronounced the "veriest [illegible] in the world, there was nothing like her in all England," and [illegible] her low-bred ways [illegible] American soil.

If Maggie was to be censured, Madam Conway chose to do it herself, and on such occasions she would answer: "Low-bred, Mrs. Jeffres, is not a proper term to apply to Margaret. She's a little wild, I admit, but no one with my blood in their veins can be low-bred," and in her indignation at the governess, Madam would usually forget to reprove her granddaughter when she came back from her ride, her cheeks flushed, and her eyes shining like stars with the healthful exercise. Throwing herself upon a stool at her grandmother's feet, Maggie would lay her head upon the lap of the proud lady who very lovingly would smooth the soft, shining hair, "so much like her own," she said.

"Before you had to color it, you mean, don't you, grandma?" the mischievous Maggie would rejoin, looking up archly to her grandmother, who would call her a saucy child, and stroke still more fondly the silken locks.

Wholly unlike Maggie was Theo, a pale-faced, fair-haired girl, who was called pretty, when not overshadowed by the superior presence of her more gifted sister. And Theo was very fond of this sister, too, proud of the beautiful Maggie, to whom, though two years her junior, she looked for counsel, willing always to abide by her judgment, for what Maggie did must, of course, be right, and grandma would not scold. So if at any time Theo was led into error, Maggie stood ready to bear the blame, which was never very severe, for Mrs. Jeffres had learned not to censure her too much, lest by so doing she should incur the displeasure of her employer, who in turn loved Maggie, if it were possible, better than the daughter whose name she bore, and whom Maggie called her mother. Well kept and beautiful was the spot where that mother lay, and the grave was marked by a costly marble, which gleamed clear and white through the surrounding evergreens. This was Maggie's favorite resort, and here she often sat in the moonlight, musing of one who slept there, and who, they said, had held her on her bosom when she died.

At no great distance from this spot, was another grave where the grass grew tall and green, and where the headstone, half-sunken in the earth, betokened that she who rested there was of humble origin. Here Maggie seldom tarried. The place had no attraction for her, for rarely now was the name of Hester Hamilton heard at the old stone house, and all, save one, seemed to have forgotten that she had ever lived. This was Hagar Warren, who, in the cottage by the mine, has grown older and more crazy than when we last saw her. Her hair, once [illegible] than that which Madam Conway [illegible] her own, has bleached as white as snow, and her tall form is shrivelled now, and bent. The [illegible] is wearing her life away, and yet she does not regret what she has done [illegible]. When she looks upon the beautiful girl, who comes each day to her lonely hut, and whom she worships with a species of wild idolatry. Maggie knows not why it is, and yet to her there is a peculiar fascination about that strange old woman, with her snow-white hair, her wrinkled face, her bony hand, and wild, dark eyes, which when they rest on her, have in them a look of unutterable tenderness.

Regularly each day when the sun nears the western horizon, Maggie steals away to the cottage and the lonely woman, waiting for her on the rude bench by the door, can tell her bounding footsteps from all others that pass that way. [illegible] but the sound of Maggie's voice, calling to her in the gathering twilight, is the sweetest she has ever heard, and as she sits and listens, while her bony hands work nervously together, and her whole body trembles with the longing, intense desire, she feels to clasp the young girl to her bosom, and claim her as her own. But this she dare not do, for Madam Conway's training has had its effect, and in Maggie's bearing there is ever a degree of pride which effectually forbids undue familiarity. And it was this very pride which Hagar loved to see, whispering often to herself, "Conway blood and Conway pride. The two go well together."

Sometimes a word or a look would make her start, and remind her so forcibly of the dead that once she said involuntarily, "You are like your mother, Maggie. Exactly what she was at your age."

"My mother!" answered Maggie. "You never talked to me of her. Tell me of her now. I did not suppose I was like her in anything."

"You are in everything," said old Hagar, "the same dark eyes and hair, the same bright red cheeks, the same [illegible]."

"Why, Hagar, what can you mean?" interrupted Maggie. "My mother had light blue eyes and fair brown hair, like Theo. Grandma says [illegible] at all, while old Hannah, the cook, [illegible] and [illegible] the very image of Hester Hamilton."

"And what if you are? What if you are?" eagerly rejoined old Hagar. "Would you feel badly to know you looked like Hester?" and the old woman bent anxiously forward to hear the answer. "No, not exactly, perhaps, provided Hester was handsome, for I think a good deal of beauty, that's a fact; but it would annoy grandma terribly to have me look like a servant. [illegible] for grandma wonders every day where I get my lowbred ways, as she calls my liking to run and laugh and be natural."

"And supposing Hester was your mother, would you care?" pursued Hagar.

"Of course I should," answered Maggie, her large eyes opening wide at the strange question. "I wouldn't for the whole world be anybody but Maggie Miller, just who I am. To be sure I get awfully out of patience with grandma and Mrs. Jeffres, for talking so much about birth and blood and family, and all that sort of nonsense, but, after all, I wouldn't for anything be poor and work as poor folks do."

"I'll never tell her, never," muttered Hagar, and Maggie continued: "What a queer habit you have of talking to yourself. Did you always do so?"

"Not always. It came upon me with the secret," Hagar answered, inadvertently, and eagerly catching at the last word, which to her implied a world of romance and mystery, Maggie exclaimed: "The secret, Hagar, the secret! If there's anything I delight in it's a secret!" and sliding from the rude bench to the grass plat at Hagar's feet, she continued: "Tell it to me, Hagar; that's a dear old woman. I'll never tell anybody as long as I live, I won't, upon my word," she continued, as she saw the look of horror resting on Hagar's face; "I'll help you to keep it, and we'll have such grand times talking it over. Did it [illegible]?" and Maggie folded her arms upon the lap of the old woman, who answered in a voice so hoarse and unnatural that Maggie involuntarily shuddered. "No! Hagar would die [illegible] than tell you, Maggie Miller, her secret."

"Was it, then, so dreadful?" asked Maggie, half fearfully, and casting a [illegible] glance at the dim woods, where the night shadows were falling, and where a winding path she must traverse alone on her homeward route. "Was it, then, so dreadful?"

"Yes, dreadful, dreadful; and yet, Maggie, I have sometimes wished you knew it. You should forgive me, perhaps, if you knew how I was tempted," said Hagar, and her voice was full of [illegible] tenderness, while her bony fingers parted lovingly the shining hair from off the white brow of the young girl, who pleaded again, "Tell it to me, Hagar."

There was a fierce struggle in Hagar's bosom, but the night wind, wailing through the hemlock boughs, seemed to say, "Not yet, not yet," and, remembering the vow, she answered: "Leave me, Maggie Miller; I cannot tell you the secret. You of all others. You would hate me for it, and that I could not bear. Leave me alone, or the sight of you, so beautiful, pleading for my secret, will kill me dead."

There was command in the tones of her voice, and, rising to her feet, Maggie walked away, with a dread feeling at her heart—a feeling which whispered vaguely to her of a deed of blood; for what, save this, could thus affect old Hagar? Her road home led past the little burying-ground, and impelled by something she could not resist, she paused at her mother's grave. The moonlight was falling softly upon it, and seating herself within the shadow of the monument she sat a long time, thinking, not of the dead, but of Hagar and the strange words she had uttered. Suddenly, from the opposite side of the graveyard, there came a sound as of some one walking, and looking up Maggie saw approaching her the bent figure of the old woman, who seemed unusually excited. Her first impulse was to fly, but knowing how improbable it was that Hagar should seek to do her harm, and thinking she might discover some clue to the mystery if she remained, she sat still. While kneeling on Hester's grave old Hagar wept bitterly, talking the while, but so incoherently that Maggie could distinguish nothing save the words, "You, Hester, have forgiven me."

"Can it be that she has killed her own child?" thought Maggie, and starting to her feet she stood face to face with Hagar, who screamed: "You here, Maggie Miller! Here with the dead who know my secret. But you cannot wring it from me. You shall never know it, unless the dead [illegible] to tell you!"

"Hagar Warren," said Margaret, [illegible], "is murder your secret? Did Hester Hamilton die at her mother's hands?"

[illegible] woman, Hagar [illegible] backward a pace or two, and then, standing far more erect than Margaret had ever seen her before, she answered: "No, Maggie Miller, no, murder is not the secret. These hands," and she tossed in the air her [illegible] arms, "these hands are as free from blood as yours. And now go! Leave me alone with my dead, and see that you tell no tales. You like secrets, you say. Let what you have heard tonight be your secret. Go!"

Maggie obeyed, and walked slowly homeward, feeling greatly relieved that her suspicion was false, and experiencing a degree of satisfaction in thinking that she, too, had a secret, which she would guard most carefully from her grandmother and Theo. "She would never tell them what she had seen and heard—never!"

Seated upon the piazza was Madam Conway and Theo, the former of whom chided her for staying so late at the cottage, while Theo asked what queer things the old witch-woman had said tonight.

With a very expressive look, which seemed to say, "I know, but I shan't tell," Maggie seated herself at her grandmother's feet and asked, "How long has Hagar been crazy? Did it come upon her when her daughter died?" she inquired; and Madam Conway answered: "Yes, about that time, or more particularly, when the baby died. Then she began to get so strange that I removed you from her care, for, from something she said, I fancied she meditated harm to you."

For a moment Maggie sat wrapt in thought; then clasping her hands together, she exclaimed: "I have it; I know now what ails her. She felt so badly to see you happy with me that she tried to poison me. She said she was sorely tempted, and that's the secret which is killing her."

"Secret! What secret?" cried Theo, and, womanlike, forgetting her resolution not to tell, Mag told what she had seen and heard, adding as her firm belief that Hagar had made an attempt upon her life.

"I would advise you for the future to keep away from her then," said Madam Conway, to whom the suggestion seemed a very probable one.

But Maggie knew full well that whatever Hagar might once have thought to do, there was no danger to be apprehended from her now, and the next day found her as usual on her way to the cottage. Bounding into the room where the old woman sat at her knitting, she exclaimed: "I know what it is! I know your secret!"

There was a gathering mist before Hagar's eyes, and her face was deathly white as she gasped: "You know the secret! How—where? Have the dead come back to tell? Did anybody [illegible] it?"

(To be continued.)

* * *

Australia prohibits leather exports.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON III.—APRIL 18, 1915.

The Shepherd Psalm.—Psalm 23, 1-6.

Commentary.—I. Provision (vs. 1, 2) 1. The Lord is my shepherd.—This general statement expresses the condition of a submissive, trusting child of God in his relation to the great Shepherd. It expresses the author's confidence in Jehovah. The psalm throughout is taken up with the figure of the shepherd and his sheep. The relation is a most tender one. There are mutual confidence and love. The shepherd has full control of the sheep and his great care is for their welfare. What a shepherd was to his sheep in Palestine in David's time, and conditions are still practically the same as they were then, the Lord is to His people now. We note the use of the possessive pronoun, "my," in this clause. David claimed Jehovah as his personal Shepherd. It was not enough to be assured that He was the Shepherd of Israel. That was a great blessing to Israel as a nation, but David was an individual, and as such he craved and obtained the assurance that Jehovah was his Shepherd, and had a care for him personally. I shall not want—In consequence of the relation expressed in the preceding clause, David declared definitely that his needs would all be met. He would not want for provision, for the resources of Jehovah are boundless. He would not lack guidance, for his Shepherd was infinite in wisdom. He would not lack protection, for Jehovah is the Almighty. He would not want for comfort, for God is the Comforter of His people. David expressed full confidence in God. He did not know all that was in the future, yet he was bold to declare that in times of peace or in times of trouble, in health or in sickness, in the strength of manhood or in the feebleness of old age, he should not want. He should not lack any good thing, whether of a temporal nature or spiritual.

2. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures—This and the following verses of the psalm follow up the general statement made in the first verse and give the particulars in which Jehovah acts as the Shepherd of His people. It was no small task for the shepherd to find always suitable pastures for his sheep. The figure here denotes an abundance of rich herbage. This is an expressive figure, as we consider conditions in Palestine. During the months when rain falls there is a plentiful growth of grass and there is no difficulty in finding pasturage; but during the long period of rainless days and nights, the vegetation is dried up and the ground is parched. Then the shepherd must exercise great care to find pasture for his sheep. In the figure there is plenty of herbage. The sheep graze until their hunger is appeased and they lie down in the grass. He leadeth me beside the still waters—Pasturage and water meet the needs of sheep as far as sustenance is concerned. In Palestine during the dry season there are comparatively few living streams. There are many wadies, or watercourses, which are torrents in the wet season, but are dry in summer. The shepherd must take care that during the latter part of the day he may lead his flock to a supply of water. There are streams that are swift. Sheep are timid creatures, and helpless as well, and must be led to quiet waters to quench their thirst. Hence the shepherd knows where there are wells or fountains at which his sheep may slake their thirst, and this whether it is in the dry season or in the wet. So the great Shepherd is abundantly able to provide for his sheep at all times, under all circumstances.

II. Guidance (vs. 3, 4). 3. He restoreth my soul—The Syrian shepherd knows his sheep by name, even though there may be hundreds in his flock. He watches carefully lest one should stray away and so run into danger. If one should become injured in any way the shepherd nurses it carefully and seeks to restore it to strength and health. In a spiritual sense the Lord refreshes the weary. He gives "power to the faint." If one should fall out by the way, the great Shepherd seeks after the lost one in an effort to restore him. He leadeth me—Shepherd life in Syria is very different from that with which we are familiar. Here, sheep are placed in enclosed pastures and are there provided with food and water. No wild beasts or robbers threaten them and they are not in need of constant guidance to lead them into places of pasture, water and safety; there no flock is seen grazing without a shepherd. The shepherd goes ahead of his flock and the sheep follow. In the paths of righteousness for his name's sake—Whatever God may give us to do we would do it, led by his [illegible]. Some Christians overlook the blessing of sanctification, and yet to a thoroughly renewed heart this is one of the sweetest gifts of the covenant. If we could be saved from wrath, and yet remain unregenerate, impenitent sinners we should not be saved as we desire, for we mainly and chiefly pant to be saved from sin and led in the way of holiness. All this is done out of pure free grace; "for his name's sake." It is to the honor of our great Shepherd that we should be a holy people, walking in the narrow way of righteousness. If we be so led and guided, we must not fail to adore our heavenly Shepherd's care.—Spurgeon.

III. Protection (vs. 4, 5). 4. Though ... the valley of the shadow of death—One needs to see Palestine in the summer season to appreciate the force of this expression. There are deep ravines, with dangerous precipices and infested with wolves and other wild beasts, and where robbers lurk, into which the sunlight comes but little. Outside of these ravines the sun shines and its glaring light falls upon the bare soil and rocks and the contrast is so great that the deep ravines are fittingly called the valley of the shadow of death. This represents the times of distress in the Christian's life when the trial of faith is great, and such times come to all. I will fear no evil—There is danger, but the shepherd guards his flock as a whole and each sheep in particular, and the sheep hear his voice and trustingly follow him. There is danger in the Christian's falling at such times as are here represented, but with confidence in God and a heart made clean through the blood of Christ he can say, "I will fear no evil." For thou art with me—This is the explanation of the assurance of safety. The presence of the great Shepherd makes hard places easy and dangerous places safe. God ever says to his true followers, "I am with thee." Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me—The rod is a shepherd's weapon to ward off robbers and wild beasts. It is a heavy club two or three feet long. It promises safety and hence is a comfort. The staff is the shepherd's crook. It is six or seven feet long and has a hook at the upper end. With this the shepherd draws back the sheep from dangerous places or guides it in the right direction. With it he may pull the sheep out of a pit or cleft of the rock.

5. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies—Some think the figure changes here and the children of God are enjoying a banquet of spiritual good, but it seems rather that it is the continuation of the former figure, and there is a figure within a figure. The shepherd leads his sheep into a good pasture and they feed in safety, although there are robbers and wild beasts around them. God supplies his children with grace and joy in the face of the assaults of Satan. Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over—Here begins the beautiful picture at the end of the day. The psalm has sung of the whole round of the day's wanderings, all the need of the sheep, all the care of the shepherd. Now the scene closes with the last scene of the day. At the door of the sheepfold the shepherd stands and "the rodding of the sheep" takes place. The shepherd stands turning his body to let the sheep pass; he is the door as Christ said of himself. With his rod he holds back the sheep while he inspects them one by one as they pass into the fold. He has the horn filled with olive oil and he has cedar-tar, and he anoints a knee bruised on the rocks or a side scratched by thorns. And here comes one that is not bruised, but is simply worn and exhausted; he bathes its face and head with the refreshing olive oil, and he takes the large two-handled cup and dips it brimming full from the vessel of water provided for that purpose, and he lets the weary sheep drink. There is nothing finer in the psalm than this. God's care is not for the wounded only, but for the worn and weary also.—Knight.

IV. Comfort (v. 6). 6. Goodness and mercy shall follow me—As God had blessed David in the past, he would continue until the end of life. The past was a pledge for the future. In the house of the Lord—The blessings represented in the psalm are spiritual. The author had confidence that he would have an eternal home with God.

Questions.—When and by whom was this psalm written? What relation is maintained in this psalm? In what sense is Christ a Shepherd? How does an Eastern shepherd care for his sheep? What is meant by still waters? In what sense does the Christian's cup run over? What is meant by dwelling in the house of the Lord?

PRACTICAL SURVEY

Topic.—Divine fellowship.

I. Insures the possession of good.

II. Secures protection from harm.

III. Affords assurance of victory.

I. Insures the possession of good. This psalm, so personal and tender, sets forth the weighty theme that feeble man may have constant companionship with the mighty and everlasting God. It breathes in every line the air of serene and happy confidence undisturbed by a single doubt. The world could spare many a large book better than that sunny little psalm. It is the utterance of personal trust in Jehovah, darkened by no fears or complaints and so perfectly at rest that it has no more to ask. It sings of many mercies which the believers receives and traces them all to one source, the great Shepherd Himself. David, the royal poet, puts a spiritual meaning into the various experiences of his shepherd life, and ascribes the peace and happiness of his own life to the kindly guidance of God. He had a most vivid perception that the feast, the anointing, the fulness, all came from the divine hand. The expression, "I shall not want," is absolute and unlimited. Food, protection, guidance, care, sympathy, repose, restoration are all anticipated. For a time desire is stilled in satisfaction, repose and serene enjoyment. Apprehension is allayed, anxiety dispelled, the whole nature satisfied, and repose is found in the affluence of divine love. The possession of all gifts is found in possessing the Father. David had learned the lesson of weariness. He had passed under discipline. He had learned to know himself. He had learned to know God. He was glad simply to trust and let himself be taken care of. By the thoughtfulness, tenderness, sympathy and care he had exercised in his shepherd calling, David learned and realized the heart and character of the great Shepherd. While the psalm is not the utterance of shepherd days it perpetuates their memory. David here teaches that peace and rest do not depend upon the absence of life's burdens, but wholly upon the shepherding of God. He had consented to follow his guidance. He was relying upon God to save him from making a wrong decision in critical moments, from failure in making the most of his powers and opportunities and finally to conduct him to mansions above.

II. Secures protection from harm. "Fear no evil," no apprehension of real or ultimate injury. Trust in the divine Shepherd is an antidote to all harm. The answer to all doubt is "Thou art with Me." It is the utterance of a soul absolutely unshaken and perfectly serene. With perfect composure and serenity the psalmist looked forward to the time when he was to pass through the "valley." The prospect heightened his triumph in that security which the presence of his Guardian afforded him. His experience was ripe for the change. He could anticipate the event with confidence. He looked upon the Shepherd as the Master of death. Exquisite simplicity marked his anticipation of the valley. His habitual communion with God prepared him for death. His confidence in God gave strength for life's work, gave support under life's trials, secured the fulfilment of life's great hopes. The fact that Jehovah condescended to be his shepherd was the underlying basis of all his rich experience.

III. Affords assurance of victory. The psalm is a song of gratitude, of hope, of consecration, a song of the soul on its way to heaven. To David the events of life were displays of God's goodness and mercy, at the close of which he would bring his own to his everlasting habitation. The last verse of the psalm summarizes what went before with the additional thought of continuance. It is the performance of heaven that is one of the greatest joys in prospect, a most complete picture of happiness. The loveliness of this psalm is found in the sublimity of its sentiments, the delightful spirit it breathes and the hallowed impression it produces. God is presented in closest relations with individual life and experience.

CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies
or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

Brooms, Brushes and Twines, Etc

Mr. C. Patrick has on hand a large quantity of Brooms, Brushes, Baskets, Twines, and etc. in fact all the stock carried at the Walkerton Broom Works which will be sold at a sacrifice in order to get it out of the house, as he is anxious to get the house in shape for to rent as soon as possible. Ring up the Telescope at any time for any of these lines.

C. PATRICK

Telescope Office Walkerton

MILLINERY

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton to call and inspect the new and fashionable Spring Millinery creations now on display.

Mrs. Porteous
Next Door to Hehn's Bakery

Read This!

Give the Boy or Girl a Chance of a few Months at

The Walkerton Business College

IT IS THE BEST. NONE BETTER.

ARE YOU determined to make a success in life? If so don't fail to take advantage of the Low Rates for the next

30 DAYS — 30 DAYS — 30 DAYS — 30 DAYS

Offers unexcelled advantage in Commercial and Shorthand.

Learn while you earn. Prepare yourself for future opportunities, which are sure to come after the Great War by taking up our Home Course for those who are unable to attend Day School; BY MAIL. Circulars Free.

ENTER ANY TIME! WHY NOT NOW?

College open the year round.

P.J.MOLONEY PHONE 173 Principal

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published
every Thursday morning at
Walkerton, Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in vance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY,
Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

THE SCANDALS AT OTTAWA

"If the majority of our people are really Christians, it ought to be shown in our Government, our State, our callings and our professions. Yet right at this moment in the most sacred of our patriotic efforts to equip our soldiers; scandal follows scandal. We are struggling in this very church to raise money for soldier's needs, while big steals are reported from Ottawa."

So spoke Rev. Byron H. Stauffer in Bond Street Congregational church Toronto, in "Pilate's Hands and Ours."

"When can you say you have washed your hands of political scandal? There is scarcely an item of war supplies that is not tainted with stealing. The Ottawa Citizen says: There is a maggot eating at the heart of Canada's National life. Are you saying anything about it. Or do you only know one thing about politics and that is to vote Grit and Tory?

It is absolutely idle for our Christian people to call Christ, 'Lord Lord' in our beautiful churches and not do the things which He says. Our political leaders are nearly all members of the Christian church. For us to go to church and say our prayers and not wax indignant over our political corruptions is to wash our hands prematurely and imitate Pilate in the most terrible way."

◆

WAR IN EDEN

The British seizure and occupation of Basra, the Turkish ports on the Persian Gulf puts Britain practically in possession of the site of the garden of Eden. There can be no doubt that the region described in the book of Genesis as the garden of Eden is in Mesopotamia "the country lying between the rivers... These rivers are the Tigris, Euphrates and their tribularies.

The town of Basra, is situated on the outlet of Mesopotamia upon the ocean. It lies within a few miles of the Biblical Garden of Eden. A large force of British and Indian soldiers from India, supported by warships, attacked and occupied Basra. They advanced successfully into the interior, and it is probable by this time British troops have encamped on the scene where Eve first tempted Adam and where many of the most interesting events in the early history of the human race occurred.

In making this movement the British are aiming to settle one of the great questions that lies at the root of the present world war.

In their quest for a larger field for their race the Germans have gained a tremendous influence in Turkey, and have many enterprises in Asiatic Turkey, including Mesopotamia region.

The Germans have built the Bagdad Railway which has been described as a railway leading to nowhere. Bagdad is now the chief city of Mesopotamia. If this railway were completed its natural terminus, would be Basra, which gives access to the Indian Ocean. But such a development would be a menace to British power in India.

In the meanwhile British subjects have long had important interests in Mesopotamia. Sir William Wilcock the British engineer who was formerly director of irrigation in Egypt, has constructed a system of dams on the Euphrates river that has already added 5,000,000 acres of cultivable land to Mesopotamia, and aims to do for that country what the Assouan dam has done for Egypt.

If the German ambition to control Turkey and her Asiatic territories were to be accomplished; it is evident that the British engineers and promoters would be driven out of Mesopotamia or the garden of Eden to express it more poetically. If the British schemes had been successful pefore the war, they would have connected Mesopotamia by railway with the Mediterranean and with Basra, making it independent of the German Bagdad Railway. Now, if the British win in the war, it is assured that the Germans will be turned out of Mesopotamia altogether and that they will lose the vast sums of money invested there.

◆

SERBIA

Area,, 18 782 square miles.
Population, 1910, 2,912,000

Serbia is a mountainous inland country divided from Austria-Hungary by the rivers Danube, Drina, and Save. One-tenth of the country is forest covered. More than four-fifths of the people are small farmers, the majority cultivating their own land. They are too independent to work in factories or even to enter domestic service. The women weave most of the garments for their families besides sharing in every kind of manuel labor.

PRODUCTS

Relative to its population Serbia possesses a greater number of sheep [3,800 000 in 1910] and swine [864,000] than any other country in Europe. The swine are fattened on the beech-mast and acorns of the forest. Corn is the principal grain crop and forms the staple diet of the country people. The normal annual yield exceeds 3,000,000 bushels, wheat 1,000,000. Flax, hemp, tobacco, and sugar beets are grown. Vineyards and orchards are extensive. Chees is made from the milk of sheep and goats. Cattle are bred chiefly for for export or draught purposes, and like the native horses, although strong are small in size.

COMMERCE

Serbia has no seaboard is farfrom export harbors, and is at the mercy of hostile tariffs. The export of swine is the principal branch of commerce. The chief manufacturing industries are those for which the country supplies the raw material, as meat packing, flour-milling, brewing, tanning and weaving. They are also iron foundries, potteries, and sugar and tobacco factories.

Cotton and woollen fabrics, salt, sugar, iron and machinery are imported Large quantities of prunes, grain, meat and hides, eggs and copper are exported chiefly to Austria-Hungary, Germany and Turkey.

Rather Irritating.

A business man has a lot to put up with in the neglect of his patrons to pay small accounts. We find, in the newspaper field, the same difficulty. Carrying a small account and rendering it from time to time is irritating, more especially when no notice of it is taken. It may be forgetfulness on the part of those who owe. However, it is unfair to those who have trusted you and sold goods close. Why ask them to use their profits in dunners for an honest debt?

Pay Your Dog Tax.

If you have dogs, prepare to hide them now. The assessor has been on the war path for sometime, and if he sees a frindly dog around the place, you may hear about it later. To deny ownership will not relieve you of responsibility for paying the ordinary dog tax which falls alike to the lot of anyone who either owns or harbors a dog on his premises. To send your dog to visit friends in the country for a few days till the assessor is through will do the owner no good. This is what some of our citizens are said to have done, but surely none are small enough to engage in such tactics. Those who can afford to keep dogs should be willing to pay the tax or give them to someone who is willing. The constable will be making a professional visit to some of the homes here in a few days, and the honorable thing to do is to meet him with a smile and hand over a dollar apiece for each dog in your possession.

It made her Tired.

Several days ago a couple of ladies were heard discussing the Red Cross movement and one of them was heard to remark that it made her tired. Everywhere she turned it was money for the Red Cross Society. The remark was unkind and uncalled for. It was no doubt made thoughtlessly. What does it mean to the women of Canada that our young men are giving up their lives. It means that the soldiers of the Kaiser are being held back. It means that our Canadian womanhood is being protected from the depraved and immoral soldiery who desecrated the sanctity of the homes of the women of Belgium. The boys who have enlisted are willing to give up their home and comforts and perhaps their lives that our homes, our mothers and our sisters may not be subjected to the brutalities and hardships that have been borne by the women wherever the enemy has gained a foothold. It's for our ease and comfort and world liberty these brave lads are going to fight and are fighting. It may make that particular woman tired, but it would be a sad blow to her dignity if she became the plaything of the German soldiery. This is what our boys are trying to save the country from. When you take into consideration what has been done for the Red Cross and Patriotic funds in this district we ought to be ashamed of ourselves. Plainly speaking we have done nothing. Surely the boys who were home over Easter, perhaps for the last time before they go away, will arouse us to some sense of our duty towards them and the Empire. Look it all over and ask yourself personally what have I done? Follow that up with What should I do.—Kincardine Reporter.

The Noble Sisterhood.

(J. E. Middleton in the Toronto News.)

Her cavalier, in boots and spurs,
Beside the Volga's stream,
Drank of the stirrup cup and said,
"This, dearest, is my dream,
That you shall be my only love
And deck our cottage wall.
So, fare ye well, sweet soul of mine
The Little Father calls."

And here a young Canadian,
All girded for the fight,
Speaks to a fair and lovely girl,'
Whose lips are deadly white
"Take cheer, my own, my gentle lass,
The months will flee away,
Though duty takes me to the wars,
My heart is thine for aye."

O cavalier in boots and spurs,
The Polish fields are red,
And many a gallant gentleman
The same good-bye has said.
Those tearful eyes of heaven's blue
Will see the Volga's tide,
But never find their cavalier,
For, ah, the world is wide!

And so, besides our lakes and rills,
Some one will wait in vain,
And seek to hide her loneliness,
Her sorrow and her pain.
But, ah, her head will still be high,
Her soldier boy was brave,
And memories of an endless love
Are deeper than the grave.

The War Does not Effect the Nursery Business

In spite of the war we are selling more nursery stock than ever before. We have room for another agent in this county, however, and applications should be sent in at once. A good man should earn from [illegible] to [illegible] per week right through the winter No delivering or collecting. Outfit free.

Thos. W Bowman Son & Co
LIMITED
RIDGEVILLE - ONTARIO

A FAMILY REMEDY FOR MANY YEARS

Used "Fruit-a-tives" With The Best of Results.

GEORGE McKAY Esq.

KIPPEN, ONT., June 17th. 1913.

"I have been using "Fruit-a-tives" as a family remedy for many years. They are the best medicine I have ever tried. "Fruit-a-tives" do me the most good—they never gripe and their action is pleasant.

"I have used them for Indigestion and Constipation with the best results, and I heartily recommend them to anyone similarly afflicted.

These troubles have left me completely and I give "Fruit-a-tives" full credit for all this. A nicer pill a man cannot take."

GEORGE McKAY.

The enormous demand for "Fruit-a-tives" is steadily increasing, due to the fact that this wonderful fruit medicine gives prompt relief in all cases of Indigestion, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Rheumatism, Chronic, Headaches, and Neuralgia, and all Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. Sold by all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The One Dish
That Agrees With
The Aged

Kellogg's
CORN FLAKES
Get the Original

Combnation Offers

You want good reading during the coming year You can't get a better paper for local news than the TELESCOPE and with it we offer the following at the prices shown The Telescope and

One new Subscription........................$1.75
Saturday Globe........................1.90
Family Herald........................1.9
Toronto World........................3.75
Farmer's Advocate........................2.40
Canadian Farm........................1.90
Weekly Sun........................1.90
Catholic Register........................1.80
Toronto Daily Globe........................3.90
Toronto Daily Mail & Empire........................3.90
Toronto Daily Star........................2.90
Toronto Daily News........................2.90
Montreal W. Witness........................1.90
London Catholic Record........................2.25
Canadian Baptist........................2.25
Presbyterian........................2.25
Westminster........................2.25
Ontario Churchman........................1.50
Church Life........................2.00
Farm & Dairy........................1.90
Weekly Mail & Empire........................1.90
Saturday Night........................3.50
London Advertiser........................3.90

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D.L.D.S. Dentist Successor to Dr. Coram. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work. Three doors east of postoffice Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month.

J.S.REED, Surgeon, dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne Sts., south of new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR. BROWN, Diseases of the Eye Ear, Nose & Throat Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month 2 to 6 p m.

W. A. HALL, B.A., M.D., C.M., Honor Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets.

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J G CARTER, Greenock P.O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope Office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Powers' Hotel. Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and sold: money to loan: also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire, insurance Company. — Phone ne 140, [illegible]

BRITISH AMERICAN BUSINESS COLLEGE

Leads in age, influence, and successful graduates. Specializes in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31sth. Write for our catalogue Address, T. Wauchope, Principal Younge and McGill Sts., Toronto.

You can Begin Any Day at the

NORTHERN Business College

Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three-story building and 34 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors produces the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal
D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photograhhs

Our photographs are more than good phothgraphs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser

Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES

If you want a stov buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." Non better. Aso a ful ine of Heating Stov at

H A HAVILL
Walkerton - -On

Easy rests th head that we r n

"King Hat"

King Hats are flexible and sel. -conforming, just where the hat touches the head.

ASK THE MAN WHO TAILS ONE THE POPULAR SHAPES $2.50

T. PYE SOLE AGENT

WALKERTON - - ONTARIO

Brant Township
Farms

I have, in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, 1 forty-six acre farm, 1 one hundred and thirty acre farm, 2 two hundred acre farms all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL. I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $700. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to see me if you want to buy at right prices

H. H. MILLER
HANOVER - - ONTARIO

TREES ! TREES !!

All kinds of Fruit and ornamental Trees, Evergreens, Roses, Shrubs, Climbers, etc. Everything in the nursery line. Send list of your wants for prices. Catalogue free.

Agents Wanted Everywhere

Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman. Port Elgin Ontario

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD, ONT.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY

For Winnipeg and Vancouver
leave Toronto 10.20 p m daily

Attractive Tours to
Pacific Coast Points

Particulars from C.P.R. Ticket Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

H. G. Hunter, - Town Agent.
N. Hiscox, - Station Agent.

A Columbia Grafonola completes the family circle.
Columbia Note the Notes
Columbia Note the Notes

BUT BE SURE IT IS A COLUMBIA, WITH THE EXCLUSIVE COLUMBIA FEATURE—THE TONE CONTROL LEAVES.
ON SALE AT

Concrete Fence Posts Last Forever

THEY never rot away in the ground. They stand the hardest knocks and never have to be replaced, for they are practically everlasting. They are easily and cheaply made and are the most satisfactory of all fence posts.

Concrete Drain Tile Cannot Decay

Concrete drains do not decay and are cheaper, because they do not crumble and stop up drains, hence they need no digging up or relaying.

Let us send you this free book, "What the Farmer can do with Concrete." It shows you how to make concrete fence-posts and will save you many dollars when doing other building 'round the farm.

Farmer's Information Bureau
Canada Cement Company Limited
524 Herald Building, Montreal

Start day Hour Earlier.

Following the example of Cleveland London has decided to go in for an extra hour of daylight during the summer months. The city council has ordered the preparation of a by-law to start and close business an hour earlier than at present. The project is being heartily endorsed by all sections of the community.

Death of John Redford.

Mr. John Redford passed away at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Redford at Mildmay on Good Friday at the early age of 28 years. He had been ill for several months. The funeral took place on Sunday morning to the Hanover cemetery. Rev. Mr. Barclay had charge of the obsequies. Besides his parents he leaves two brothers, James and Harry and seven sisters as follows:—Mrs. Lougheed of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Disney of Alberta, Mrs. Arthur Clark of Hanover, Mrs. Wm Rhiel of Walkerton, Mrs. Ed McKelvie of the south line and Mrs Herb Schenk.--Hanover Post.

LOVAT

Mr. R. Hegg of Port Elgin was the man to pass through the burg with the first auto this year.

Mr. Burrows of Walkerton made a business trip to the burg last week.

Miss Ella Teeple returned to Normal school at Stratford after spending the Easter holidays at her home here.

Cattle-buyers are busy buying in around the burg, prices running from 6 to 8 cents.

Mr. Jno. Wilson of Pinkerton made a business trip through the burg last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Parker have returned home from their honey-moon after visiting friends in Stratford, St. Mary's, Woodstock and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Clark have moved to Tara. Mr. Clark being a partner in the Tara Limited Mfgr. Co.

Culross Council.

FINANCE

David Schumacher, sheep killed by dogs	$8 00
Ga Beingessner, refund of Statute labor	1 00
Jos Murray, repairs for tile Moulds	1 00
Jos Murray, delivering tile at Formosa	2 00
Jos Whyteck, winter work on gravel road	4 00
T H Dorner, monkey wrench and axle grease	85
Municipal World, supplies	10 82
Thos P McDonald, fixing pitch-holes	1 00
Philip Kiffer, winter work on gravel road	10 00
Robt Colvin, winter work on gravel road	7 00
Jno D McKenzie, 3½ cords of wood for indigent	8 00
Fees re Hydro Electric Railway	2 00

Town Hall, Teeswater, April 7th

Council met today as per motion of adjournment of last meeting.

Members all present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and sustained.

Case — Donaldson — That Joseph Murray be appointed to operate the road grader for the north part of the Township and Philip Keifer for the south part of the Township the dividing line to be between the 7th and 8th concession They to be paid at the rate of two dollars and twenty five cents per day. The supervision of the grader to be under the care of Thos McPherson, and whichever party uses the grader last in the fall of the year to have the grader and pick plow put in some suitable shelter for the winter. —Carried.

Case—Donaldson—That by-law No 6 being a by-law appointing Poundkeepers and Fence Viewers be now read passed signed and sealed —Carried.

McPherson—Case—That by-law No. 5 being a by-law appointing Pathmasters for the several road divisions of the Township be now read, passed, signed and sealed.—Carried.

Case—Donaldson—That a clause be entered in the road list to the effect that the Pathmasters reserve a portion of time to have the stones raked off the road sometime after the road work has been completed, and if necessary to have the stones hauled off.—Carried.

Donaldson—McPherson — That this council pay for gravel used for statute labor purposes at the rate of ten cents per cubic yard, and any bill brought to this Council in loads it shall be reckoned at the rate of 2 yds for 3 loads.

Armstrong—Case - In amendment that we set the price of gravel at 8cts per yard for 1915 for the amendment. Armstrong Case, for the motion Donaldson, McPherson, Kuntz. — Motion Carried.

Case—McPherson — That the Clerk prepare an agreement for Jos Murray and Philip Keifer for operating the grader. And also for Jos Murray for making a certain amount of cement tile for the year 1915 and to notify the respective parties to sign said agreement before entering upon their duties.—Carried McPherson—Armstrong — That the finance report as just read be adopted and orders issued on the Treasurer for payment of the accounts. And that we do now adjourn to meet again on May 29th as a court of revision and appeal, and other business.—Carried.

CHAS BUTTON,
clerk.

Richard's QUICK NAPTHA THE WOMAN'S SOAP

Died in Teeswater.

John Colvin, for many years a veterinary surgeon at Teeswater, died at his home there on Tuesday morning of last week. He was ill from pneumonia for a short time, and having had heart trouble for some time past, his constitution was unable to resist the disease. He leaves a widow and a number of children.

Taking Advantage.

A Toronto departmental store is beating the P. O. Department out of thousands of dollars in postage by mailing their catalogues at various points where they are sent by freight and thus taking advantage of the 20 mile zone postal arrangement. A slight change in the postal law would circumvent this sharp scheme. No wonder the firm mentioned can contribute liberally to the war fund.

All Closed in 400 Years.

On Good Friday this year all bars and liquor stores were closed for the first time. The closed days are now Christmas, Good Friday, Labor Day, Sundays and election days. How long before the booze counters in Ontario will cease to do business every day in the year? It will take 400 hundred years at the rate of progress made by the Legislature of this province which has closed the bars on three days in four years.—Chesley Enterprise.

A Better Way.

The bar room is hard to defend, says the Guelph Mercury, and it mentions the case of a woman who stood before a magistrate trying to get her husband released on the fourth charge of drunkenness against him. The magistrate sympathized with the woman. "I am sorry", he said, "but I must lock up your husband." She did not seem one who would be a deep thinker but there was wisdom in her reply: "Your honor wouldn't it be better for me and the children if you locked up the liquor and let my husband go to work?"

New Local Option Law.

A drunken man can be arrested in any public place in a local option municipality under an amendment made at the last session of the Legislature which was prorogued this week. Under the law as it originally stood a man was immune from arrest in a local option hotel or restaurant but the minute he staggered out on the street he was liable to arrest by a police officer. In public places in towns and cities under local option it was customary for the proprietors, if they were not in sympathy with local option, to protect the man who was intoxicated. The exact wording of the amendment to section 141 of the Liquor License Act reads as follows:—Public place shall include any place, building or public conveyance to which the public habitually resort or to which the public generally are admitted either freely or upon payment of any charge or fee or by the purchase of tickets or otherwise.

The Tongue Twister.

Here is one equally as fearful as the song which tells how "Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers," or, perhaps just a trifle more so;—

"Connie's collecting comforts now for corporals:
Before the conquering khaki craze does charming Connie bow:
Cholera-belts and cuffs she sends,
She culls cocoa from her friends,
And the constant-coming curate cannot cuddle Connie now."

And then this one, though evidently built to fit a different tune, must be a tongue-teaser:—

Minnie's knitting mittens for our military men,
She's sitting knitting mittens to be sent away to them;
Minnie's knitting mittens ev'ry minute Minnie "gits",
And ev'ry minute Minnie knits, more mittens Minnie knits.
The mittens Minnie's knitting are minutely made, you see,
She knits a mit a bit by bit so very carefully;
And ev'ry mitten Minnie's knitting, Minnie knits to fit,
The mitts she knits and knits for "mix"
Are mitts that Minnie's knit.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & Co. Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists. 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Mr. Walter Widmeyer of Walkerton spent Sunday with his mother in town.

Mrs. N. Eckenswiller of Walkerton, is visiting friends in town.—Clifford Express.

Mrs. P. Gress and daughter of Walkerton, spent Sunday with her sister Mrs. O. Miller.—Clifford Express.

Ralph Cook, who has had the Rink leased during the past winter, has gone to Owen Sound and expects to take a position on the boats as soon as the navigation opens.—Mildmay Gazette.

Bought Riverdale Hotel.

Mr. Henry Mosack, of Formosa, a former proprietor of the King Edward Hotel, Teeswater, has bought the Riversdale Hotel, and will take possession May 1st.

Raised $5,000 in Mt. Forest.

A busy canvass, undertaken during the last few days by the home guard of Mount Forest, has resulted in a collection in this town of over $5,000 for the Red Cross, Belgian Relief and Patriotic Funds.

Wintered Well.

Stock has wintered well and is in good condition as a rule. Feed was plentiful although grain was high-priced. The majority of good farmers of the surrounding townships sell very little grain, as it is nearly all fed on the farms.

Wilfred Herringer, M. D. of Winnipeg has decided to go to the front, and has enlisted to join the third contingent. Wilfred is a son of the late Postmaster George Herringer of Mildmay. His many friends wish him success and a safe return after the war.—Mildmay Gazette.

The figures compiled by the County Clerk of Huron go to show that the population of that County has decreased to the extent of over sixteen thousand in less than twenty five years. Goderich and Wingham are the only two municipalities that have held their own in the past fifteen years.

In Palmerston on Saturday.

Mr J. Ranesbottom, of Walkerton, who is well known here, was in town on Saturday. While not completely recovered from a sudden attack of sickness, which occured a few weeks ago, he feels that he will be as good as ever before long. Mr. Ranesbottom was formerly canvasser for the I. O. F., but is now representing the Sun Insurance Co., and is doing a good business.—Palmerston Spectator.

How does It Read.

We have corrected our Mailing List up to the 10th day of April, 1915 Look at the label on your paper and see if we have given you credit for your payments. If not notify us. If your payer is paid in advance it should read: "Jan 16" If it is not paid we would ask you to pay it. The reason for this is that we owe money and want to pay it. Then the man whom we pay can pay the man he owes. It may be that some of these men owe you, so that when the coin gets moving you will come into your own. Don't put off this matter. We started out for a paid-in-advance subscription list and when we go after anything we generally get it. Help us in this matter. In fact

"DO IT NOW"

House on Fire.

On Friday evening quite an excitement was aroused when the news was spread that K. McLennan's house was on fire. The fire started from the chimney and had made considerable headway before it was noticed. Very soon all the neighbors of the village and vicinity were on the scene. For a time things looked rather serious, as the fire was spreading. After a hard fight, however, the fighters got it under control, but not before considerable damage was done to the house and contents. The fire was in the east end of the house, otherwise the place would have been burned to the ground, the wind was in their favor. You may talk about your "fire brigade" but the "old bucket brigade" did the work this time.—Glamis corr. in Lucknow Sentinel.

Paint Test No. 3

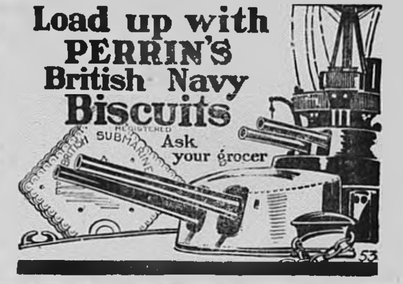
Roof Garden Paint Tests

The above illustration shows how the wearing qualities of Lowe Brothers "High Standard" paint are tested before it is even sold to us.

These tests have proven that this paint wears longer than ordinary paints—and that it leaves the surface in better condition for repainting when that becomes necessary.

On houses—it has been found to wear years longer than ordinary paint—think what this saves when your painting cost is figured per years of wear.

Ask for COMPARING COST pamphlets, free at our



Load up with PERRIN'S British Navy Biscuits
REGISTERED
Ask your grocer

LABATT'S LAGER
IS MILD, PURE, APPETIZING

Just the Beverage for the busy man:—rests the nerves and ensures sound sleep.

If not sold in your neighborhood, write

JOHN LABATT, LIMITED
LONDON - - CANADA

Special arrangements for direct shipment to private consumers.

Note the dressy appearance of these Penman Sweater Coats

They drape the figure as gracefully as a custom tailored garment because knit-to-form—knit with exacting care to fit the varying physical types of men, women and children.

Penmans Sweater Coats retain their marvelous and pleasing shapeliness—because made from the best selected wool. You know you need a sweater coat—there are scores of occasions when it is decidedly the vogue. Ask for a Penman.

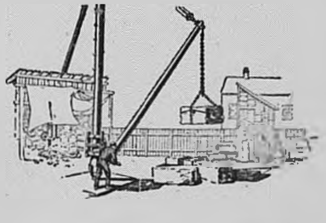
Look for the trademark.

Penmans Limited, Paris, Canada
Sweaters Underwear Hosiery

Penmans
Sweater Coats



It Multiplies Power.

The telephone, like the crane, multiplies power.

The telephone increases personal efficiency and enlarges the volume of business by extending the field of the merchant's activity.

If the modern business man had to travel every time it was necessary to have a personal talk with a customer or business associate, he would be in the position of a builder without a crane.

Are you using the telephone as you should—systematically applying it to the needs of your business?

The telephone, especially the long distance service, makes possible real economy, and with it a greater, not a lower, efficiency. A careful study of the subject will repay you.

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station."

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

Old Country News

THE ENGINEERS' TASK.

No branch of the British service has distinguished itself more in this war than have the Engineers.

At a recent point on the British front recently, writes a correspondent one of these companies of Engineers succeeded in digging a new trench, under a heavy rifle and gun fire, at a distance of only twenty-five yards from the German advanced trenches.

The feat was accomplished by night, but the Germans, employing their shells, were able to pour in an only too effective fire upon our plucky fellows. Some of the latter were on this occasion under fire for only the second time.

Yet these youngsters stuck it out and never flinched, though the cost was, relatively speaking, very heavy. They set out a party of about a hundred men; they brought back many wounded, and they lost their major, three other officers, a sergeant and some sappers.

"It was no sapping out," I am told by one of the men who actually participated in this heroic enterprise. "It was just trench digging right under fire. Major ---- was shot in the head two yards from me, and a bullet went through my spade.

"We had to crawl through the mud to get at the place where the trench was to be made, and we were shelled all the time. Sometimes we would stumble up to our waists in water in the holes made by the big German shells. But we did our bit."

When the men returned the next morning in a neighboring barn the sergeant-major, muddied like the rest, stepped forward, and, in a broken voice, addressed the men:

"I am going to say to you," he began, "what the major would have said had he been here. You have done well. The men in the trenches are better off than we, who have to dig under fire——"

But he could go no farther, for the tears were pouring down his face, and many of the men who had stood firm during the night were shaken at the spectacle.

FLOWERS FOR HEROIC NURSE

A pretty little story is told illustrating what noble and plucky work is being performed by the English Yeomanry Corps of Nurses, at present in France.

During an engagement a couple of days ago, in which the Belgian trenches were being constantly shelled, one of the nurses went backwards and forwards to the trenches helping to withdraw the wounded from the firing line. On one of these excursions a shell burst within twenty yards of her, killing three men and wounding several others.

In spite of the grave danger she went into the trench and ministered to the wounded men there. The officer in charge was so touched by her courageous action that, lacking any other means of recompensing her, he picked a few snowdrops which were growing on a little ridge in the trench. Making a little bouquet of them, he presented it to the nurse and thanked her.

HOW FOOD PRICES HAVE RISEN.

The average retail prices paid by the working classes for food in eighty of the principal towns now and a year ago are compared in the following table issued by the President of the Board of Trade:

	Last Year s. d.	Now s. d.
Bread, per 4-lb.	0 5½	0 7¾
Butter, per lb.	1 3¾	1 4½
Jam, per lb.	0 3	0 3½
Cheese, per lb.	0 8¾	0 10¾
Bacon (streaky), per lb.	0 11	1 0
Beef, English, per lb.	0 9¾	0 11
Beef, chilled or frozen, per lb.	0 7¼	0 8¾
Mutton, English, per lb.	0 10¼	0 11¼
Mutton, frozen, per lb.	0 6¾	0 8¾
Tea, per lb.	1 6	1 9¼
Sugar, granulated, per lb.	1 2	0 3¼

INOCULATION OF TROOPS.

Out of 606 cases of typhoid fever in the British forces in the field there were 50 deaths.

The War Office on Thursday week published the following table showing the distribution of the cases between the categories of uninoculated, fully inoculated, and partially protected:

	Cases	Deaths
Uninoculated	[illegible]	48
Fully inoculated within two years, two doses	111	1
Partially protected, one dose	136	1
Totals	606	50

HIGHER ALLOWANCE IN NAVY.

Increased weekly allowances for the children of sailors are to be paid by the Admiralty. The new rates are:

		Old rate
First child	5s	2½s
Second child	2s	2s
Third child	2s	1s
Fourth and subsequent children	1s	1s
Motherless children	3s	3s

NOTES.

Miss Melisina Mary Crofton, daughter of Mrs. Crofton, of Thornhill House, Dorset, has been killed while hunting with the Blackmore Vale foxhounds.

Mrs. Nanny Turner, the lodgekeeper on the Marquis of Cholmondeley's estate, Cheshire, held her 102nd birthday on Sunday week. Lady Cholmondeley, accompanied by her daughter, walked from the castle to the lodge to give their birthday greetings.

Lance-Corporal A. J. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Brown, of Smith street, Chapeltown, has been awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal for bravery and gallantry in the field.

D. S. Thornton, a pupil at King Edward VII. School, Sheffield, has won a mathematical demyship of £80 a year at Magdalen College, Oxford. F. Mastin, also a pupil of the same school, has won a natural scholarship of £80 a year at Oriel College, Oxford.

A lad named Walter Curley, 133, Attercliffe common, Sheffield, was killed on Sunday week as the result of an electric shock received while engaged in wiring operations at the rear of his house.

Mr. Albert Blackburn, agent to the Doncaster Conservative Association has resigned his appointment.

The death took place on Monday week, at the Pit Field Cottages, Mortomley, of Mr. Henry Gardener, aged 73. Within the last three weeks five residents of the district have passed away whose combined ages totalled [illegible] years.

The death has occurred of Mr. H. W. [illegible], the Liberal candidate for West Derbyshire, at Bexhill.

The death has occurred suddenly at New Mills of Mr. Elijah Hudson, aged 59, of the firm of Messrs. John Hudson & Sons, builders and contractors.

The Rev. R. L. B. Russell, curate in charge of St. Columba's Church, Scarboro', has resigned his curacy owing to ill health.

The Rev. Frank Meredyth Brooke has been appointed vicar of Bolsterstone in the place of the late Canon W. R. Wilson. The patron is Mr. T. H. Rimington-Wilson. Mr. Meredyth Brooke is curate in charge of Amington, Tamworth.

The Rev. Jas. Whittam, vicar of Sherburn, near Scarboro', was at York sent to prison for 9 months in the second division for obtaining money by fraud from money lenders. There were other indictments against the accused.

The Hon. Neil Primrose, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has appointed Mr. Guy Laduck to be his private secretary.

The eleventh victim of the [illegible] railway smash on 1 January is Mr. Samuel Lewis, of Chadwell Heath, who has died from shock.

A Blackpool corps of the Women's Volunteer Reserve has successfully launched over seventy recruits being enrolled.

Two brothers named Richard and Arthur Follows, of Ansley, Warwick, both in the 1st Coldstreams, are reported to have been killed in action side by side.

The honor of being the youngest sergeant in the British Army is now claimed on behalf of Sergeant James Fursey, of the Army Service Corps, who is just eighteen.

The funeral took place of Rhyl of the Misses Margaret and Annie Griffiths, aged respectively 71 and 75. They were sisters and died within three hours of each other.

Forty five persons were killed in the streets in the Metropolitan Police district in February, 1915, as compared with forty in 1914.

Drummer Kenney, Gordon Highlanders, who has received the Victoria Cross, is to receive on his return to Drogheda, where his father and mother are living, the freedom of the town.

A report presented to the Durham Football Association shows that 112 clubs have disbanded owing to members enlisting and that 5,252 members of clubs, or 72 per cent. have joined the colors.

Conferences are shortly to be held in London under the auspices of the Institute of Industry and Science of Great Britain, to discuss the position of British trade both during and after the war.

Considering that languages will be more necessary after the war, the London County Council purposes to provide special facilities in connection with evening institutes for the learning of modern languages.

The Board of Trade returns for February show that the value to imports amounted to £[illegible], an increase on 1914 of £3,215,164, and those of exports to £26,176,557, a decrease on 1914 of £15,084,860. In both cases the figures show very substantial reductions.

The Glasgow Corporation cleansing carters struck for a weekly increase of 2s.

No settlement has yet been reached with reference to demands made by Norfolk agricultural laborers for increased wages throughout the greater part of the county.

Hull Corporation Tramways Committee and Works Committee has decided to grant a war bonus of 2s a week to all employes earning less than 30s per week and 1s to all employes with wages over 30s.

The death has taken place at Goole of Mr. John Sanderson, aged 79, a member of the shipping [illegible] of the port.

The death has occurred at Sunderland, in his 71st year, of Mr. William Thackray, an ironmaster well known in the North of England.

The death has occurred from wounds in Belgium of Captain H. T. Watson, third son of the late Rev. Dr. John Watson (Ian Maclaren).

Mr. James Duffield, for many years a director of Cammell, Laird & Co., and manager of their Workington Works, who began life as a pit boy, has died at the age of 81.

The death has occurred of Mr. John Coke, of Liverpool road, Birkdale, who was well known throughout the country in coursing circles. In 1880 his dog Character won the Waterloo Cup.

Mr. James Chuter, of Epsom, who held the record of forty years' service in the Epsom Board of Guardians, has died aged 82. Mr. Chuter was a great huntsman, and had seen seventy Derbies run.

The death has occurred at his residence, Park square, Lancaster, of Mr. James Moore, J. P., for thirty years prominently identified with the co-operative movement in North Lancashire and for twenty years president of the Lancaster and Skerton Co-operative Society.

About 100 Birkenhead policemen recently tendered their resignations. Much dissatisfaction has been felt by the members of the force that no compensation has been given them for having worked on rest days since the outbreak of the war. The men who have resigned are those with about three years' service.

Houses are so scarce in Coventry that an advertisement in a local paper offers £1 to anyone who will find a small house in any district of a weekly rent from six to eight shillings. Some of the Coventry factories are inundated with orders in connection with the war, and this has brought outsiders into the city.

At a sale in Dorking market on behalf of the Prince of Wales' National Relief Fund a billy goat changed ownership forty-eight times and eventually realised £11 15s.

At the Glamorgan Assizes Sergeant W. Hooper, of the [illegible] Welsh Regiment, was sentenced to death by Mr. Justice Atkin for the murder of Private Enoch Dudley last Christmas Day. It was stated that when Dudley was being taken under escort to the drill hall Hooper ordered his side arms to be removed. High words were exchanged and Hooper then fired, killing Dudley and wounding a soldier called Gates. The jury put in a strong plea for mercy.

Mr. Jonathan Bond, jun., of the firm of Bond & Son, boatbuilders, Maidenhead, was drowned on Thursday last week while attempting to release a pontoon boat which had got fixed at an island at Bray reach.

An ancient assize custom was revived on Monday at the assize breakfast at York. It has been the custom for many years to present each of the judges with a bouquet, the modern form of that much older custom of presenting them with a bunch of herbs as a protection against jail fever. The Lady Mayoress was responsible for the judges receiving a charming old silver box filled with sweet herbs, inscribed with their names and "York, 1915."

Six hundred wounded soldiers and sailors, with about a hundred nurses visited the pantomime at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, on Tuesday week. Most of the men were convalescent, but a number were disabled and had to be brought in ambulances. Many were on crutches, and a few were on furlough, also convalescent, were brought from the University Hospital and the hospitals at Solihull and Harborne. The soldiers were served with cigarettes, chocolate and fruit, and, during the intervals sang the choruses of popular songs. The National Anthem was sung with special fervor, followed by cries of "Are we downhearted?" responded to with a tremendous roar of "No!"

VERY CHARMING.

A [illegible] made in slender and graceful lines, of [illegible] crepe and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] affair hangs loosely from the shoulders.

Peek-A-Boo Bonnet Has Plenty of "Peek"

Peek-a-boo! We can see right through the newest of the spring bonnets. "The 'illusion hat' they call it, perhaps it's because there is nothing illusive about it, but what does a milliner care for a name?

The illusion hat is a sample of tan, its "ingredients" being two yards of black tulle and two inches of millinery wire.

THE MAN AT THE BOTTOM.

We are at the parting of the ways. For years without number—for years that run into the centuries—have men have slaughtered each other on many fields thinking that they were on the fields of honor, when awful despotisms have ground men into the dust, the despotisms thinking themselves divine. For all these years there have been men on the land trying to see the light, trying to make mankind hear, hoping, but never realizing. They have been the pawns on the great battlefields, men taken out of the peasantries to be hurled against other men they did not know, and for no reason except that they could count. They may even have been developed into a high degree of mental or technical skill that they might the better support governments to make conquest. They have been on the bottom, upholding the whole [illegible] fabric and pressed into the earth by the weight of it. When the final history is written, the lot of the man on the land will be the saddest chapter.

But in the nineteenth century, the man at the bottom began really to be recognized politically. This recognition was of two kinds, the use that a [illegible] can make in its own interest of a highly efficient husbandry, and the desire to give the husbandman full opportunity and full justice. I hope that in these times the latter motive always prevails. It is the only course of safety.—Professor Liberty Hyde Bailey in Science.

DIDN'T TAKE THE HOLE.

But That Was Probably Because the Court Said They Shouldn't.

An [illegible] instance of legal sharp [illegible] is set forth in the annals of [illegible] [illegible]. It occurred a hundred [illegible] years ago, showing that lawyers [illegible] as adept at quibbling as [illegible] [illegible] are today.

A [illegible] of [illegible] potatoes hired [illegible] a piece of land, agreeing to pay for the use thereof with a certain proportion of the crop. He [illegible] potatoes and had an unusual [illegible] of [illegible]. Being without a storeroom, he obtained the consent of [illegible] landholder and deposited [illegible] of the potatoes in what farmers call a potato hole—that is, an excavation in the earth in which the potatoes are placed and covered with earth and straw in the form of a pyramid.

Shortly afterward he fell in arrears to [illegible] and one of his creditors seized the opportunity to attach the potato hole.

Upon this, [illegible] creditor bestirred himself [illegible] consulted a lawyer as to what could be done to secure his claim. The attorney was equal to the occasion. He secured the issuing of a [illegible] [illegible] which an attachment was served upon the potatoes in the potato hole. The documents specifically [illegible] forth that the potato hole should be left upon the land where it was found.

The warrant was promptly served, and when the first creditor appeared upon the scene he found the potato hole, but not the potatoes.—Case and Comment.

Penetrated His Disguise.

The last minstrel stopped at a back door and said to the housewife who greeted him:

"Give me something to eat, fair dame, and I will tickle your ears with a very tale of romance."

"But why not tell me the tale first?" the dame suggested.

"No, I must have the food and drink before I talk."

Thereupon the dame slammed the door with the tart retort:

"You're not a merry minstrel. You're an after dinner speaker."—New York Globe.

Military Reservists.

A foreign nation in time of war cannot compel its subjects, living at the time in another country, to return for military service. It can call upon them to return, but in the event of their refusing to do it would be helpless in the case. A foreign nation, for instance, could not forcibly take its subjects living in this country and force them to depart.—New York American.

A specimen of the Kauri pine in New Zealand, growing on Mercury Bay, has a trunk 24 feet in diameter and is said to be 4,000 years old.

For You-a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor?

It's a fact, as you know that [illegible] [illegible] assists pulverization—lengthens the [illegible] [illegible] washing—makes your land lighter [illegible] and increases the quantity and improves the quality of your crop.

Why not have us send you, today, free of charge, a very interesting booklet on this subject? Makes home drainage pay. Don't neglect anything that [illegible] bigger crops. Proper drainage [illegible] in your [illegible] the Government lends you money for the [illegible].

Write us today. [illegible]

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited

SWANSEA, ONTARIO

Canada's Great Showing At Panama-Pacific Ex.

Yankee Writer Goes Into Raptures Over the Magnificent Exhibit Made by the Dominion.

Canada has a magnificent exhibition pavilion at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco.

She has erected a superb building, one of the most imposing structures on the grounds, a building with double entrances, with broad stairs leading the way and golden lions on guard.

But beautiful as is the outside of the Canadian building, it is but the shell to the kernel that is on the inside, and that goes to make up Canada's complete exhibit in this exposition.

Canada has thrown down the gauntlet to all other nations, and has challenged them, as it were, to produce an exhibit more beautiful and royal in its contents than hers, more wide in its area and more wonderful and diverse in its varied industries and resources.

She has even come to the uttermost end of California to compete with the natives in fruit growing and in gold and silver mining, things that California has claimed to be supreme in, one in which her people went unchallenged until these live, wide awake and enterprising Canadians entered the lists. Canada bars no one in the general competition, and she welcomes men and women of all nations to vie with her in the production of the minerals of the earth and those other resources for which she is already famous.

Her exhibit at this exposition is as complete and beautiful as the hand of man can make it, and no set of Canadians in its making have been neglected. The miner, the farmer, the timber chopper, and the furrier have been given a fair representation by have their men and women workers in other fields of industry and endeavor.

Not one of their districts has been neglected, and the gold producing, the silver mining, the timber territory, the great farming region and all the areas of the vast Dominion will find themselves magnificently represented in this beautiful exhibit now ready in the Canadian building on the exposition grounds.

To cover an exhibit like this, wide in extent, wonder and area challenging the admiration of the keenest expert, is a hard one at best, and it is so diversified and far reaching that the writer, in looking at it, would consider it were best to begin telling about its wonders.

Perhaps Canada's boldest display is in her fruit, for here she brings her strawberries, her pears, her peaches, her apples and all her native fruits to compete with the great fruits of California. Here Canada beards California in her own den, as it were, and the display of fruit she brings is an admirable one. The blush of nature has not left it, and it looks very fresh, very inviting and very beautiful.

The agricultural resources of Canada are shown very beautifully in miniature in one corner of the main exhibit. The past and present of the Canadian country are shown in all their glory. On one side is the rough Canadian country of a few years ago with the buffalo, moose, elk, musk ox, antelope, wapiti and the other small game, like wild turkey and geese, prairie chickens, snipe and quail of the early days of Canada roaming the living wilds. From these the scene drawn in the background, where the [illegible] Canadian country is pictured in all its beauty, as it is today, great farm lands, [illegible] fences and [illegible] [illegible] with never ending fields of wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye and immense orchards of fruits and fruit bearing trees.

In the valley [illegible] where once roamed the wilder animals are now seen cattle feeding near beautiful homes. These wonderful scenes of transformation are shown in various ways. The skill of the taxidermist is in evidence in the making and in the placing of the various animals, while assisting in the production of the complete picture are transparencies that will be shown by day and by night.

After the fields and trees, there is [illegible] a wonderful panorama. It [illegible] in the shape of a city in which [illegible] elevators in which the grain is being stored. Then from the elevators the grain is shown pouring into ships which haul it over the great lakes and down to the Atlantic Ocean, where it is shipped to the European countries. The work of growing, harvesting and [illegible] this great body of grain in all its ramifications is shown in this building in a remarkably practical and lifelike way, and gives one an idea of the vast grain-producing resources and of the great Dominion.

The mineral exhibit varies from the [illegible] multiplication of the smaller specimens in small cases to the greater specimens that can be weighed not only in ounces and pounds but that can be ranged by hundredweights and tons.

Conspicuous [illegible] with the mineral exhibit is the view of the Cobalt silver mining district, the richest silver-producing country in all the world.

The first view of the Cobalt district shows that country as it was a few years ago when nothing but long stretches of desert land, rocks, crags, hills and mountains were in view. Now the city of Cobalt is shown fitted up with all the fine things of a modern city, which can be reached by regular trains instead of by stage coach and other ancient conveyances.

In the last ten years this camp of Cobalt has produced over 200,000,000 ounces of silver, more than one-half of which has come straight into the pockets of the investors in the mines of this city.

Canada's great iron industry will not be overlooked in this exhibit. Canada's output of iron last year was 264,[illegible] tons, but that was a dull year for her. She has brought specimens of [illegible] and in other forms, to this [illegible], if only to show that even in [illegible] she is not lacking.

Canada possesses a wealth in building and ornamental stones taken from quarries which reach over her Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and has a number of slabs of marble and serpentine distributed in various centers around the main court and surrounding the cases containing specimens of minerals, two large [illegible] have been set aside especially for these ornamental building stones and marbles. The backs of many of the cases are lined with many slabs of this ornamental marble, many of them rich in color and beautiful in grain, and on the shelves stand specimens in the form of cubes, having one side polished and the others cut or chiseled as in building stones. Among the specimens are all sorts of stones found on Canadian ground, including granite, [illegible], dolomite, serpentine, quartz and [illegible] sand stone, lime stone, moulding gypsum, roofing slate, cobalt [illegible] and [illegible] conglomerate.

Canadian in this exhibit will show the people of the world something about the wonderful coal fields of Canada. Five out of the nine provinces, as well as the Yukon, are now producing coal, and Canada has brought all sorts of specimens of coal ore to this exhibit but to show what she is doing in this line.

Asbestos, that wonderful production which defies the hottest fire, comes from a restricted portion of the eastern township of Quebec, Canada, and Canada produces eighty [illegible] per cent of the world's supply of this material. Canada last year turned out [illegible] tons of asbestos and hopes to beat that record this year. In this exhibit she will show the world just where asbestos comes from, just how it is used, and will give the people of all nations a chance to compete with her in this industry if they see fit.

On one side of the Canadian exhibit there are mountains, fields, lakes and trout streams in miniature. On the mountains and fields are set up specimens of the fur yielding animals of Canada, from the huge mountain lion, the caribou, the buffalo and the cinnamon bear down to the smaller fur bearing animals, like the fox, the otter, the mink and the beaver. There are some live specimens, but most of them have been set up in their life-like form by the taxidermists, and the whole produces a picture that is at once startling, life-like and wonderfully true to nature.

To this wonderful stream of Canadian forestry runs a stream of water from the surrounding mountains, in which the many colored brook trout and salmon of Canada disport themselves, challenging the admiration of the visitor and the wonder of the novice in Exposition display, who wonders how these beautiful specimens of the art of pisciculture ever got there.

Near them, and enjoying themselves in the running water, is a mother beaver and her little family of three. Sometimes from the water they dive into the nearby forest, put there to show Canada's resources in forestry and the wonderful trees from which she derives her pulp, that material from which comes the big rolls of paper used in this and in all other countries by the newspapers, the owners of which recognize Canadian paper as the best made for their special use. A great roll of white paper from a Canadian factory is placed in this exhibit just to call the attention of the world to the fact that Canada, in manufacturing paper for the special use of newspapers, is fast leading the world.

Canada, too, is now just becoming a competitor of all the nations in the manufacture of brick and tile, and she has many specimens of the handicraft on exhibition here.

In huge cases that set along the main court Canada has on display specimens of fish that are in that country, some large and some small, and in the background of these displays are beautiful pictures all made out of the grains which grow in Canada.

But the brightest and most beautiful pictures in this magnificent display are to be found in the Court of Royalty. In it, standing out in heroic size, are wonderful pictures of the late King Edward of England and his wife, the present King George of England and his wife; the late Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada, who died a little while ago in his ninety-second year; Sir Robert Borden, now Prime Minister of Canada; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, ex-Premier of Canada; the late Sir John A. Macdonald, former Premier of Canada; the Duke of Connaught, now Governor-General of Canada, and his wife.

The most striking physical features of Canada are the Rocky Mountains, the Laurentian range and the chain of immense fresh water lakes. A series of wonderful pictures of these great mountains and lakes are shown in the Canadian building, not only in the great panorama, but in transparencies which show all the beauties of the Canadian country.

In this great moving panorama are shown the great lakes as well as the great mountains.

In all its entirety, in fact the Canadian exhibit is so rich, so unique, so beautiful and so extraordinary that no writer can do it justice. If there were not another single exhibit on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition the wonders and beauties to be found in the Canadian structure would pay the visitor for his journey here, even though he came thousands of miles and from the very remotest corner of this great British Dominion.

It is a great show and exposition in itself, but it must be seen with one's own eyes to be appreciated, for no pen can fairly describe its beauty, its novelty, its greatness and the wonderful magnificence and vastness of its [illegible] ensemble.

RED FOR DANGER.

Some Queer Instances of Its Effects Upon Animals.

Confirmation of the theory of the bull's antipathy to red is never needed, although it came recently from North [illegible], N. J., in a rich way. The red [illegible] car of James E. Brighton, of Caldwell, supplied it.

The bull charged the car as it made a slow turn in a road. He broke one of his horns, and at the same time broke Brighton's radiator. The occupants of the car hit it, the [illegible] through [illegible]. Up came a black automobile and stopped. The bull only sniffed at it and kept on poking at the red car. The occupants were rescued with the aid of a collie dog, which lured the bull away.

A farmer near Princeton, N.J., not long ago sold a black bull that he declared was absolutely immune from red color anger. He frequently exhibited the bull under the test of having a red scarf waved before his eyes and rubbed back and forth under his nose. He explained that from the time of the birth of the bull he had experimented with the red scarf until both as calf and as grown up the animal had got so used to the color that it did not bother him in the least.

For several years there was a monkey in the New York Zoological Park with an ungovernable antipathy to red. In particular was his fury excited whenever a certain little five year old boy was brought to the monkey house by his nurse. The little boy lived near by and was a very frequent visitor. He was a very light haired little chap and generally wore a red fez.

The instant he entered the monkey house the monkey began to jump frantically all about the big cage, setting the other monkeys in a turmoil. He would chatter his teeth in rage and wind up by springing to the front bars and trying to shake them as he glared out at the little red hatted boy. The little chap happened to be a fearless little fellow and stood his ground with his nurse. The keeper finally had to request the nurse to move the boy away.

A curious experiment with the danger color was made by the dweller in an East Indian bungalow. He was told by a fakir that a dangerous species of snake seen in the vicinity was fascinated and at the same time afraid of red. The bungalow man had heard that if a hen's beak was placed on a chalk line she could not lift her head, but he had scoffed at the contention. But he listened to the fakir and finally, on the porch of his bungalow, painted a long, red, flame tongued line. The following morning he found no less than three snakes lying on his porch with their heads extended close to the red line. He became convinced the line stopped the snakes, but as he had never seen more than one snake around at a time before he painted out the line. It seemed more of a [illegible] than a [illegible].

Alienists have said that red has a decidedly irritating effect in many phases of dementia. Pass any other color before the eyes of a lunatic and he will exhibit no emotion. But when you flash red he is pretty apt to blink, frown and then nervously seek to seize and destroy or remove the cause of his irritation.

One case is reported of a demented man in a private institution tearing a red flannel shirt to shreds as soon as his keeper's back was turned. The shirt had been sent him as a protection against rheumatism. Another red shirt was treated the same way. Then a blue flannel garment was sent him. He wore it contentedly. In fact there was a tussle whenever it had to be removed for washing.

Railroads have long considered red the most prominent of all their signal colors and for that reason to it is assigned the most important of all signal duties, that of heralding danger.

Going It.

Old Lady (to grocer's boy)—Don't you know that it is very rude to whistle when dealing with a lady?

Boy—That's what the guv'nor told me to do, mum.

"Told you to whistle?"

"Yes'm. He said if we ever sold you anything we'd have to whistle for the money."—London Fun.

Switzerland normally sells $3,000,000 worth of cheese yearly to the United States.

As The Result

Of a Neglected Cold He Contracted

SEVERE BRONCHIAL TROUBLE.

Mr. W. T. Allen, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I feel that I would be doing you and your great remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, a great injustice if I did not write and let you know the wonderful results that I have obtained from it.

"Last spring I happened to contract a cold. Of course, this is a common occurrence, and I did not take any particular notice of it at the time. However, it did not break up as quickly as colds generally did with me, so after two weeks, and no sign of improvement, I began to get alarmed, and went to my local physician who informed me that I had contracted severe bronchial trouble as a result of neglecting my cold. He prescribed some medicine for me, which I took for about two weeks without any sign of improvement. I was getting pretty much discouraged by then, but one day a friend happened to be in to whom I was relating my trouble, and he advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, saying that he had obtained very beneficial results from its use in a similar case. I took his advice and procured several bottles from my druggist. After taking it, according to directions, for about two days, I noticed a decided improvement, and from that day on I began to get better, and in ten days I was in my usual health. I consider this an excellent showing for your remedy, and can highly recommend it to anyone as well as I can. I shall always put in a good word for it whenever the opportunity offers itself."

You can procure Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup from any druggist or dealer. Price 25c and 50c. The genuine is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Was Troubled With Nervous Prostration.

Many people although they know of nervous prostration do not know what the symptoms are. The principal ones are a feeling of fright when in crowded places, a dread of being alone, fear of being in a confined place, a horror of [illegible], a dread of things falling from above, fright at travelling on railroad trains, and distracted and restless, unrefreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams.

Mrs. George Lee, Victoria Harbor, Ont., writes: "I am writing to tell you of the experience I have had with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was so nervous I could not do my own work. I did not want to see any one, or would I go [illegible]. My nerves were bad for three years, and my heart was so bad it made me terrible [illegible]. I took three boxes of your pills and I never was better than I am now. I weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When Long Breaths Hurt Your Side Rub Soreness Away With "Nerviline"

Prompt Action Often Prevents Pleurisy or Pneumonia.

Do long breaths hurt you? Try it, and see. If you notice a wheeze or a catch in your side, then be sure trouble exists.

Proper action consists in a vigorous rubbing of the back, chest and sore side with "Nerviline." This wonderful liniment sinks into the tissues where the pain is seated—gives instant relief. That catch disappears, all sense of soreness goes, and you then know that Nerviline has probably saved you from pleurisy.

Just try Nerviline for chest tightness, coughs, aches and soreness—it's a wonderful liniment, and when kept in the home saves the family from lots of ills and suffering. A large bottle on hand makes the doctor's bill mighty small, and can be depended on as a reliable and mighty prompt cure for rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, sore muscles and enlarged joints.

Get the large 50c family size bottle; it is far more economical than the 25c trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or direct from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

FARM GARDEN

CLEANING AND GRADING SEED.

The 1913 Seed Branch inquiry into the condition of seed grain used in Canada showed that an average of 41 noxious and 138 common weed seeds were being seeded on each square rod of land in oats. Seed wheat and barley foul, and flax was about four times worse. Over 55 per cent. of the 2,065 samples of wheat, oats, barley and flax collected as being sown were reported cleaned with a fanning mill, but most of the samples showed that either the mills were not equipped with the proper sieves, or else they were not well operated. The remaining home-grown seed, almost 11 per cent., was being sown direct from the thresher, with no cleaning whatever. Small, broken and shrunken seed in the samples also indicated the failure in grading.

Cereal grains should be graded to remove from one-third to one-half of the total bulk, and most of the weed seeds will be removed with the screenings. Some of the weed seeds are difficult to separate, but most of them can be removed by a fanning mill. Any make of mill which has sufficient shake, angle or slope of sieves and wind supply may be provided with suitable sieves. The top sieves should be just coarse enough to let the grain run through and need sufficient slope to run coarse impurities over the tail of the mill. The lower screens should have openings of the size required for grading or removing weed seeds.

With wheat the grade for high-class seed is made over an 8-64-inch perforated zinc screen. The grade for oats is made over a screen, with slots 5-64 by [illegible] inch. Barley requires the same type, with slots larger, depending on the size of the seed. Wild buckwheat may be removed from wheat by a screen with triangular perforations, 9-64-inch or larger. Flax requires on top a woven wire sieve 3 x 16 inch mesh (3 spaces to the inch one way, and 16 the other), and a 1-12-inch perforated screen below.

If sieves or screens of the desired size and type cannot be had from the fanning mill manufacturer, the sheet material may be obtained through any reliable seed house and made up by a carpenter.

ON SAFE GROUND.

With a fraction of [illegible] [illegible] points, corn possibly [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], nevertheless, [illegible], is actually [illegible] in planning for a more abundant milk harvest than ever from his faithful, patient cows. The prudent [illegible] man has [illegible] nearly all points, such as seed selection, labor-saving implements, better stable, more alfalfa, a new silo, abundant water, and the best cultivation he can possibly give to the land [illegible].

On many dairy farms, however, one more point needs immediate attention before the feed owner can truthfully be said to be on really safe ground. [illegible] the abundant feed or the expensive feed purchased is given to a cow, or cows, whose dairy ability is [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. If dairy ability means ability of the cow to turn feed into good milk at low cost, is it not the [illegible] to make sure that each cow on the premises does possess that ability?

Where no cow testing has been practised a moderate estimate is that three out of twenty cows consume feed valued as high as the price received for the milk they yield. Dairy records [illegible] at detecting these boarder cows, show the dairyman which cows produce the most milk and fat, and which produce them the cheapest (for instance, [illegible] or 15 cents per 100 pounds of milk). So this man keeping dairy records is speedily on the home stretch towards the winning post inscribed "each cow pays a good profit." That is safe ground for the dairyman.

The row or drill method of planting corn is still commonly followed in Ontario and Quebec. The investigation conducted by the Seed Branch shows that 225 farmers were planting in drills at an average rate of 2.14 pecks of seed per acre and 250 planted in squares or hills at 1.17 pecks of seed per acre. The average results of 22 separate tests conducted throughout Ontario for a five-year period shows that the hill method gave one ton of green crop per acre more than the drills, and three-eighths of this ton was in the form of freshly-husked ears. A four-year average at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, shows two and three-quarter tons per acre in favor of the hill method. Hills should be three feet apart each way and contain three or four plants. Rows should be three feet apart and the plants nine inches apart in the row. Three and a half feet spacing might be preferable for large-growing varieties or weedy land. The hill method gives a much better opportunity for cultivating the land and controlling weeds, but the corn is rather more difficult to harvest than that which is grown in drills.

One bushel, 70 pounds, on the ear or 56 pounds of shelled corn, germinating 90 per cent., should be sufficient to plant five acres by the hill method. One acre will require 60 cents worth of seed at $3 per bushel. Seed corn of the same price planted at the average rate by the drill method will cost $1.60 per acre.

NOTES.

Give the colts the lightest of the seeding work. They are far more able to do harrowing than they are to take their places on the cultivator or disk. Where they are to be used on the cultivator do not put them on the tongue.

The first day in the fields allow the horses to stand for a few minutes at frequent intervals. Remember they are soft, have done little work through the winter, and there is a danger of overdoing them, especially if the day be hot with little breeze blowing.

Be careful in watering overwarm animals. Some will stand it, but many will not. It is good practice to give them a little water when coming in from work, and allow them more when going out again. This insures against their taking too much at once.

Give the colts that are going to help with the seeding this year for the first time exercise in harness as often as possible. Let them do the light team work around the farm from now until seeding begins. They will then be much more fit when the hard work comes.

Raise the collars off the horses' shoulders frequently, and with the hand rub down the shoulders well. This may be done when allowing the horses to stand for a breath of fresh air. It will cool the shoulder, remove the sweat and prevent, to a considerable extent, scalding.

The amount of silage which may be stored in a silo depends upon the depth, the diameter and the amount of water in the silage. A silo 24 feet deep will store nearly five times the amount of feed that one twelve feet deep will. Doubling the diameter increases the capacity four times. A silo thirty feet in diameter will hold more than nine times as much as one ten feet in diameter and at the same depth. The late Professor F. H. King, the authority for the above statements, worked out a table showing the capacity of silos of various sizes. This table shows that a silo 16 by 20 feet would hold 47 tons of silage, and it would require 3.5 acres of corn, producing 15 tons per acre, to fill it. A silo 16 by forty would hold seventy tons, and require 4.6 acres of corn to fill it; a silo fourteen by twenty-eight feet would hold eighty-three tons, and require 5.5 acres of corn to fill it. A cubic foot of silage in a silo one foot deep weighs 18.7 pounds. In a silo twenty feet deep, a cubic foot of silage, taking an average of the whole depth, will weigh 33.3 pounds. A deep silo will hold more in proportion than a shallow one and the silage will keep better. The height should be at least twice the diameter.

HOW ONO GOT THE NAME.

The father of a boy baby wished him to be christened Thomas. The mother favored the name of Robert. When they arrived at the church the matter was still undecided. The father informed the curate that the child's name was Thomas.

"Oh, no!" gasped the mother distressfully.

The curate, regarding the woman as the ruling spirit, promptly baptized the infant Ono.

The grave of Ono Titchener is to be seen in the churchyard of St. Giles' Camberwell.—London News.

The Worm Turned.

Coal Merchant—I say, Premium, I want to insure my coal yard against fire. What's the cost of a policy for £1,000? Insurance Agent—What coal is it? Same kind you sent me last? Merchant—Yes, it is. Agent—Oh, I wouldn't insure it, if I were you. It won't burn.—London Express.

Germany had 1,000 aeroplanes at the outbreak of war.

COUNT TEN! BAD COLD RELIEVED FIGURE THREE HOURS--COLD CURED

Never a Failure With Catarrhozone; It Cures Completely.

Don't sniffle and sneeze with a nasty cold. Kill it at once with "Catarrhozone." It's the surest thing on colds ever known; simply knocks them out in no time. The medicated vapor of CATARRHOZONE spreads through all parts of the breathing organs, and its beneficial action is felt instantly. Does not matter whether the cold is in the head, chest or lungs, Catarrhozone will reach it and cure it quickly.

Easy to use—you bet it is—not a single drug to take because you simply breathe in the most healing and soothing of piney vapors that come from the wonderful Catarrhozone Inhaler.

"I can cheerfully testify that Catarrhozone is simply a magical cure for colds," writes P. F. Clement, of Augusta. "For days last winter my head was completely filled up with cold. My eyes ran water. I sneezed and coughed constantly. I took many medicines. I was sick of the sight of them. Finally, I tried Catarrhozone. Its effect was magical. It soothed the inflamed membranes, stopped the sneezing, and cured in no time. I never met anything to kill a cold like Catarrhozone."

Get a complete $1.00 outfit; it does the work quick. Small size, 50c; trial size, 25c, at dealers everywhere.

The HouseKeeper

To give your silver a fine lustre after cleaning it make a strong alum water; skimming off what it does not dissolve; add some soap and bottle it. Rub the silver with a rag moistened with this after cleaning it.

To lengthen the life of a comb, wash it in soapy water before using it, and when it is dry rub it with a little olive oil.

To overcome the annoyance of the hands perspiring when doing fine sewing, bathe them with alum water.

To clean tinware, dampen a cloth, dip it in common soda and rub the ware briskly after which wipe dry.

To prevent flour from lumping easily, and to overcome the raw taste that sometimes clings to it when it is used for thick gravies, soups and sauces, bake it in an oven until it is thoroughly heated and dry.

To add breadcrumbs to scrambled eggs improves the dish and makes it go further.

To remove fresh ink stains from the hands moisten the phosphorous end of a match and rub the stain on the finger with it; or put a few drops of oxalic acid in the water used in washing off the stain.

Blankets should be washed through three waters, warm, not hot. The first should have strong, very strong, soapsuds; the second less soap, and the third just enough soap to make the water appear milky. They should then be wrung slightly, thrown over the line and then pulled straight. If they should not be dry when evening comes, fold them and put them in a wash-basket and hang again in the sun the following day, and the day thereafter, if necessary, until they are perfectly dry.

Doing Wonders For Rheumatism

WHAT PETER F. PATTERSON SAYS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Gaspe Co. Man Gives Advice to all Who Want to be Cured of Kidney Troubles.

Haldimand, Gaspe Co., Que., April 12—(Special)—"I have just opened the third box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and find they are almost too wonderful for good for the Kidneys and Rheumatism," so says Mr. Peter F. Patterson, a well known resident of this place.

"My troubles came through a cold and strain," Mr. Patterson continues, "and I suffered for many years. I had headaches, backache and rheumatism. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I had a bitter taste in my mouth in the morning and I perspired freely with the slightest exertion. I was often dizzy; I was troubled with heart flutterings; I was nervous and my skin itched and burned at night.

"After using Dodd's Kidney Pills I recommend them to everyone who wants to be cured."

Everyone of Mr. Patterson's ailments was a symptom of Kidney disease. That's why he found such prompt relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They only cure Kidney disease.

PANGGANGS OF MALAY.

Ruled by an Old Witch, They Are the Queerest People Known.

Ruled by a great enchantress and having no form of money, the Pang-gangs, a tribe in a mountainous jungle in the northern part of the Malay peninsula, is one of the queerest known to white men. The tribesmen are of a negroid type whose social organization is that of a simple form of communism and who are nomadic, wandering about from place to place in their dense jungles and forests.

Among them dwells a woman whose strange characteristics are strongly reminiscent of Haggard's famous "She." The woman is supposed to be a great enchantress. She is held in dread by the Panggangs. She lives alone in a bamboo hut, shaded by the leaves of the sacred ubang tree. Food is brought her daily by the oldest man or woman of the tribe.

The Panggangs are said to be a peaceable and honest people, and do not, among themselves, either fight or steal. They literally have no use for money for trading purposes, but if by chance they get money they bury it, so that they may use it in trading after death. After eating a supply of food, they do no work whatever until the supply is ended. They eat any wild creature.

These people do not seem to have any religion, but they have a queer belief in the transmigration of souls. In their country tigers are numerous, and they believe that sometimes their relatives, when they died become changed into tigers.—Argonaut.

DRS. SOPER & WHITE

SPECIALISTS

Piles, Eczema, Asthma, Catarrh, Pimples, Dyspepsia, Epilepsy, Rheumatism, Skin, Kidney, Blood, Nerve and Bladder Diseases.

Call or send history for free advice. Medicine furnished in tablet form. Hours—10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 6 p.m. Sundays—10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Consultation Free

DRS. SOPER & WHITE

25 Toronto St., Toronto, Ont.

When Writing Mention This Paper.

Oliver Goldsmith.

Among the anniversaries of November was that of the birth of Oliver Goldsmith. Few writers possess a more abiding place in the hearts and memories of the people than the author of the "Traveler," the "Deserted Village" and the "Vicar of Wakefield," and few have drawn so entirely from their own personal observations and experiences.

The "Deserted Village" is one of the most touching poems in any language, and the "Vicar of Wakefield" still retains its popularity in every library. In the field of history and biography he also made a reputation admired by the highest literary men of his time. Yet his personal experience was such as would suggest the least likelihood of acquiring fame.

He Left.

"I may have remained a trifle late, but her remarks were too pointed."

"What did she say, Ferdy?"

"Told me their lease was about to expire."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Russian railways have a mileage totalling 46,000.

SPRING REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

Raw, Damp Weather Starts the Pain, But the Trouble Lies in the Blood.

Spring weather is bad for rheumatic sufferers. The changes from mild to cold, the raw, damp winds start the aches and twinges, or in the more extreme cases, the tortures of the trouble going. But it must be borne in mind that it is not the weather that causes rheumatism. The trouble is rooted in the blood—the changeable weather merely starts the pains. The only way to reach the trouble and to cure it is through the blood. The poisonous rheumatic acids must be driven out. Liniments and rubbing may give temporary relief, but cannot possibly cure the trouble. The sufferer is only wasting time and money with this kind of treatment and all the time the trouble is becoming more deeply rooted—harder to cure. There is just one speedy cure for rheumatism—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly on the impure, acid-tainted blood. They purify and strengthen it and thus root out the cause of the rheumatism. Here is strong proof of the above statements. Mr. J. Routley, Sydney, Man., says: "I was so badly crippled with rheumatism in my hips and knees that I could hardly go about. I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I took steadily for a couple of months, by which time all traces of the trouble had disappeared. I can most strongly recommend the Pills to all rheumatic sufferers."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE POULTRY WORLD

SCALY LEGS.

Scaly leg is a disgrace to a poultry farmer, because it is curable with very little trouble when first observed. It parasite causing scaly leg is of the same family as the mange mites of horses, cattle, and other domestic animals, but the variety is [illegible]. Sarcoptes mutans is the correct name. Its size might be represented by a small dot. The manner of the mite's life is similar to that of their cousins which cause broken feather and [illegible] of horses in the stable at night, they cause itching and irritation and by inflicting many minute wounds provoke an escape of serum, which is their food and drink. Fowls rub and sometimes peck, and the rubbing off of the scales causes the mites to be distributed, as they can live in the dirt of the hen house and await their opportunity to fasten on to new hosts or previously clean birds. As the attack generally commences low down on the leg or between the toes, it is easy to see how the perch becomes the most frequent means of infection when a single member of the flock is affected.

Treatment: This is divided into three if the work is to be done well. First, to lift the scabby scales in order to get at the parasites; next to destroy them, and lastly to restore the skin. Any strong alkaline solution will swell up the scales as well as the normal cuticle. A strong solution of extract of soap answers very well, or the simple process in the case of leg mange in horses, namely, that of plastering on thickly a layer of soft soap. When this has opened the scales and skin generally, the patient can be held in warm up to the hocks, or higher, while the soap is washed out. There are many remedies which will kill the parasites. A pint of paraffin, half an ounce of soft soap, and half a pint of hot water can be made into an indifferent emulsion by dissolving the soap in the water when applied. Another remedy, sometimes referred to as "stink baths," is made by boiling together one ounce of sulphur, and one gallon of water. This is very effectual at the time, but is useless for a second application. It is a cheap remedy when a number of fowls need treatment and a second bath must be prepared. Any of the coal tar derivatives, sold under proprietary names, can be used at five per cent. strength in water. A second treatment at the end of four or five days is advisable lest any parasites should have escaped. After they have been destroyed, the legs should be anointed with vaseline to restore the normal functions of the skin, but in bad cases the legs never look well again. Sufficient that they cannot infect other birds.

VARIETY OF FEED.

Variety of feed is what fills the winter egg market. Corn three times a day, as a rule builds up fatty tissue, makes hens lazy and reduces profit.

"Animal food, ground bone and a generous supply of green stuff produce the best results of laying fowls," says J. G. Halpin, head of the poultry department of the University of Wisconsin.

The exercise so needful for poultry can be provided in winter by working their grain ration well into the litter of fresh straw that should be provided as a carpet on the feeding floor. A good variety of grain should be provided, some corn, wheat, oats and barley mixed together, or fed alternately, makes a satisfactory ration.

A grain ration for winter use that has given good results at the experiment station farm consists of two parts corn, two parts wheat, one part oats and one part barley.

It is recomended that the ground feed be placed in a small mash box or trough where the hen can have ready access to it. The following mixture of ground feeds is considered to be quite satisfactory: One hundred pounds bran, 100 pounds middlings, 100 pounds ground corn, 50 pounds malt sprouts, 50 pounds meal scraps, and suffient salt. During the fall and winter about 25 pounds of oil meal should be added to this mixture. When these feeds cannot be had, other of a like nature may be substituted, the main idea in all instances being a wide variety.

Buttermilk and odds and ends from the kitchen, and such green food as cabbage, alfalfa, silage, and turnips are great aids to egg production. Not only more eggs, but eggs rich in protein and high in vitality with firm shells are likely to result when proper thought is given to feeding systems.

FILLING THE EGG BASKET.

The Missouri college of agriculture gives the following prescription for hen-happiness and a full egg basket.

Allow each hen four square feet of floor space.

Provide on square foot of glass to every fifteen square feet of floor space.

Locate the windows on the south side and place the tops not quite half as high as the house is wide.

Ventilate by placing one square foot of floor space, or by making a flat front similar to the cupolas in barns. Be sure that there are no openings for drafts on the back, ends and roof.

Build a floor eight inches higher than the surrounding ground. Fill in four inches of coarse stone, then two inches of clay ad then two of dirt. This will make a dry floor.

Provide eight to ten inches of roosting space and one nest to every six hens.

Cover the floor with a foot of eighteen inches of straw. Feed the grain in the straw so as to encourage exercise.

EGG LAYERS' SUPPLIES.

Many times, chickens do not lay in winter because they are not supplied with some of the materials which go to make up the egg. The demands of the hen in her business of egg production are just as exacting as are those of the locomotive which carries us so swiftly from place to place. The fireman may make himself crazy shoveling coal and the engineer may keep the working parts polished to the highest degree and yet, unless water is supplied to the iron horse, he fails to work but stands an ineffective and useless bulk of parts. The example is very comparable with the hen. She may have it in her to produce a fine lot of winter eggs, but fails in this through lack of the owner to provide with suitable materials for making the eggs and keeping free from vermin while the producing process is going on. No hen, no matter how industrious can make a success of laying eggs and fighting lice at the same time. She may be good at both jobs but a division of labor demands that she do either one or the other.

One can raise all the good apples he wants to and unless barrels are supplied in which to ship them, they do not amount to much. The hen must be provided with a receptable in which to place the egg. It can scarcely be questioned that many hens are supplied with the proper foods to make eggs from, but this lack of lime in some form results in few or no eggs, or perhaps a few, unsaleable soft-shelled ones. The egg shell is quite largely composed of lime carbonate. When the old hen can have fresh access to range, she can usually find all this material she needs, but when shut up some must be supplied to her. The exact material used will vary with the location and the materials at hand. In some instances old plaster is put in the hen coop but the majority of men who expect their hens to give them some winter eggs are supplying the biddies with oyster shells in some form. This gives a serviceable material, yet cheap.

Charcoal is a general condiment for chickens. Some regard it as a medicine and while it may serve some medicinal functions, it seems to act as a toner. No matter how this works exactly, the truth remains that hens are more healthy and vigorously when supplied with this material than are those not so fortunate.

The hen house should be supplied with plenty of ordinary road dust. There is no henhouse so clean that the liklihood of vermin getting a foothold does not present itself during the winter. Those hens that are working the hardest to fill the egg basket are just the ones that the lice single out for the first attacks. The vitality has become somewhat lower than that of the lazy birds and they are more subject to lice and diseases. In the fall, the Cornell lice powder can be made and sprinkled onto the chickens from a can, through the bottom of which some small holes have been made. This will give the chickens a good start.

To make this powder mix one-fourth pint of crude carbolic acid with three-fourths of a pint of gasoline. Into this thoroughly stir two and one-half pounds of plaster of paris. This will harden, and lumps may be pulverized by forcing them through a fine mesh sieve. After drying, the mass is put into a bottle and tightly corked and will stay effective for a long time. If lice are present it will take good feed to feed them. A liberal application of this loose powder when the chickens are put into the coop in the fall will get the majority of them eradicated. Then by giving the layers a liberal supply of good dust to bask in through the warm part of the winter days, may many more vermin will be kept down. These laying-house accompaniments are inexpensive and may have a bearing upon the number of winter eggs that are produced.

FEEDING GREEN BONE.

No poultry farm is complete in its equipment without a bone mill, and a bone mill that is not kept constantly at work during the winter months is an idler about the place that is not being compelled to do full duty along the line of helping to produce more fresh-laid eggs.

How to feed the cut green bone to the best advantage may well be considered. We prefer to thorough mix it with dry bran and to place it in covered troughs, so that the poultry can help themselves and be debarred from scratching the product upon the floor and wasting it. When fed in this way, each one of the hen is more likely to get their individual portion than they will if the cut green bone is thrown to them. Under this condition the strongest and most active get the greatest portion and of the supply, and the weaker and less active are usually deprived of that kind of food which they most need to built up their constitution and assist them in a profitable egg production.

NOTES.

When getting new stock it is better to purchase a few good birds than more of ordinary quality.

Be sure that the hen house windows are clean and free from cobwebs, etc., so that the sun can stream in to warm and purify the interior.

Fix the drink dishes or fountains so that the fowls can get their beaks into the water, but cannot get their wattles, wet. Wet wattles freeze easily.

Nothing will do so much to make the flock feel well during the day as good, vigorous exercise in the morning scratching for cracked corn, wheat or oats in a deep, clean litter.

Male birds with large combs and wattles may be protected from the frost at night by putting them in barrels or boxes covered over with thin burlap or a bran sack.

If combs or wattles get frozen through carelessness of the care taker, who should protect them, they should be rubbed with snow until thawed out and then have carbolic vaseline rubbed in every day until they are in good shape again.

If a curtain is used around the roosts to keep the hens warm on cold nights, be sure that it is of loosely woven material which will let air in and out so that the air which the fowls breath does not become impure.

Be sure to keep an account this year and know how much it costs you to feed your hens and care for them and how much the hens pay you in return. You may be surprised to find that poultry is the most profitable adjunct on the farm.

Test of Learning.

"Do you know Mr. Drydust?" said Maud. "Yes," replied Mamie. "He is very learned, isn't he?" "What makes you think so?" "He can talk so long on such uninteresting subjects."—Exchange.

ALLOW ME TO PRESENT MY BEST FRIEND
ROYAL
YEAST CAKES
IN BUYING YEAST CAKES BE CAREFUL TO SPECIFY ROYAL YEAST CAKES DECLINE SUBSTITUTES.
E. W. GILLETT CO. LTD. TORONTO.
WINNIPEG. MONTREAL.
ROYAL YEAST CAKES
E.W.GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED TORONTO, ONT.

GIRL SAT STILL

When Fishing—And Now She's Fisherman's Heiress.

Miss Bertha Gretsch, of 42 Sidney place, Bensonhurst, N. Y., inherited half the estate of the late Jacob Hyman, about $25,000, simply because even as a little girl she knew how to sit still in a boat. This story of the odd reason for Miss Gretsch's good fortune was verified by Isaac W. Jacobson, executor of the estate.

Miss Gretsch when a child would sometimes go fishing in a boat with Mr. Hyman, and she would sit so still that she did not frighten away the fish.

Mr. Hyman, a retired Broadway jeweller, died at the Jewish Hospital on January 13. He was 73 years old. For many years he had made his home with Miss Gretsch's family, but she was the only one of eight children remembered in his will, the presumption being that the others were poor fishermen. The half of the estate not bequeathed to Miss Gretsch goes to sixteen first cousins. Miss Gretsch is now 23 years old.

CRATER LAKES.

Easter Island Has a Wonderful One and So Has Java.

Wonderful lakes are often found inside the craters of volcanoes. One of these can be seen upon Easter Island—the island which bears wonderful remains of an unknown ancient people. Inside a crater is a lake, near the borders of which lie several unfinished crowns composed of turfs, evidently destined for the huge figures on the shores of the island, but never completed. And on this lake float many waterfowl, one of which is said to be a goose unknown to science.

Another curious crater lake existed until recently within the extinct crater of a volcano in New Zealand. The water was heated to boiling point. But a short time ago a eruption of more than common violence tossed the whole lake into the air.

A most interesting crater lake can still be seen in Java in the volcano of Papandajan, and it is possible to enter the crater and gaze down on the scene below. Standing on its brim, one can see the vast seething mass of boiling mud. Every now and then a wave of mud heaves heavily along the sides of the chasm, only to fall back into the molten mass, and here and there columns of sulphur thrown out of the lake of mud gradually forming walls. It is indeed pleasant to escape from this dismal inclosure to breathe the free air once more.

BRUCE'S SPECIAL "BIG FOUR" FIELD ROOTS

BRUCE'S GIANT WHITE FEEDING BEET—The most valuable Field Root on the market, combining the rich qualities of the Sugar Beet with the long-keeping, large size, easy-harvesting and heavy-cropping qualities of the Mangel. ¼ lb. 14c, ½ lb. 19c, 1 lb. 35c.

BRUCE'S MAMMOTH INTERMEDIATE SMOOTH WHITE CARROT—The best of all field Carrots. ¼ lb. 24c, ½ lb. 45c, 1 lb. $1.00.

BRUCE'S GIANT YELLOW INTERMEDIATE MANGEL—A very close second to our Giant White Feeding Beet and equally easy to harvest. ¼ lb. 12c, ½ lb. 19c, 1 lb. 30c.

BRUCE'S NEW CENTURY SWEDE TURNIP—The best shipping variety, as well as the best for cooking, handsome shape, uniform growth, purple top. ¼ lb. 12c, ½ lb. 20c, 1 lb. 35c.

Prices are at Hamilton—Add for postage, ¼ lb. 5c, ½ lb. 10c, 1 lb. 15c. Each additional pound 10c.—Where there are Express Offices this is cheapest way to send all orders of 5 pounds and up.

FREE—Our handsomely illustrated 112-page catalogue of Vegetable, Farm and Flower Seeds, Plants, Bulbs, Poultry Supplies, Garden Implements, etc., for 1915. Send for it.

John A. Bruce & Co., Ltd., HAMILTON, ONTARIO
Established Sixty-five years.

Properly Rebuked.

Emma, queen mother of the Netherlands, is the subject of many stories in her own country. During the time when she acted as regent before the present Queen Wilhelmina came of age it is said that one morning Queen Emma was awakened by a peremptory knocking at her bedroom door.

"Who is there?" she asked.

A precociously dignified voice answered, "The Queen of Holland."

The queen mother quietly answered, "I am not dressed and therefore not able to receive her majesty, but if it is my little girl she may come in."—London Mirror.

Japanese Gardeners.

Artist gardeners in Japan earn large salaries. They are required to twist and direct young trees and vines until they assume the shapes of various animals.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES.

Teacher—Where do our most valuable furs come from, Willie?

Small Willie—From the fir tree.

* * * *

"Johnny," said the minister, "can you name the three graces?"

"Sure," replied the little fellow, "Breakfast, dinner and supper."

* * * *

Mamma—Howard, when you get to be the head of the family, what will you say to your children when they are naughty?

Small Howard—Oh, I'll do like papa does. I'll tell them how awfully good I was when I was a kid.

* * * *

One day there was fish for dinner and little Margie said, "Mamma, do you know what a shad reminds me of?"

"No, dear," was the reply.

"Well," said Margie, "it reminds me of a porcupine turned inside in."—Chicago News.

Bergamot oranges, which are cultivated solely for the oil obtained from their skins will grow successfully only in one small region in Calabria.

These Buildings are Painted with MARTIN-SENOUR PAINT
New Field Husbandry Building Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.
Barns at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

FARMERS

Consider Purity in Paint in Preference to Price.

You wouldn't pay the regular price for Sugar that analyzed 10% of sand. You wouldn't pay "all wool" prices for cotton-and-wool clothing. Why should you pay your good money for impure Paint, when you can get

MARTIN-SENOUR "100% PURE" PAINT

We guarantee Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint (except a few dark shades that cannot be prepared from pure Lead and Zinc alone) to be 100% pure White Lead, pure Oxide of Zinc, pure Linseed Oil, pure Colors and Turpentine Dryer; and to be entirely free from adulteration or substitution; and sold subject to chemical analysis.

Every experienced Painter knows that the above formula is right. It is the standard of the paint world.

You get absolute purity — extreme fineness — uniform quality—when you insist on "100% Pure" Paint.

SENOUR'S FLOOR PAINT The old reliable. RED SCHOOL HOUSE PAINT for the barn and sheds

MARTIN-SENOUR WAGON and IMPLEMENT PAINT for wagons, tools, etc.

We'll send you, free, "Farmer's Color Set" and our fine book, "Town and Country Homes", if you write for the name of our nearest dealer-agent.

MARTIN-SENOUR 100% PURE PAINT & VARNISHES

ADDRESS ALL ENQUIRIES TO
The MARTIN-SENOUR Co.
LIMITED
655 Drolet Street, Montreal.

75

Men's and Young Men's Blue Suits

Extra Special Values at $15.00, Sizes 33 to 46.

All the records in our clothing department are broken with the offering of this navy blue serge suit at $15.00. If you're a blue suit man, or if you would like to switch over to a stylish blue suit this Spring, don't fail to see this special line at $15.00. It stands out in the midst of all the good values we have this Spring, as one of the best values we've ever offered and this is a time when serges are really scarce but we had the offer of this line eight months ago and now consider it the best investment in clothing we've ever made.

The cloth is a soft finished, all-wool, English, Navy Blue Serge in splendid good weight. It will give the best of wear and not gloss. The dye is a deep rich shade of navy blue. These suits are stylishly cut and splendidly tailored and lined throughout. Look at navy serge suits wherever you like and then compare them with this big value at $15.00.

DRESS GOODS VALUES

That will not be Duplicated for Many Days.

Since these imported lines of dress goods came in we have seen samples of Fall dress materials shown by one of the largest Canadian Houses and these samples were easily 50 per cent higher in price than our present selling price. Let this be a hint as to what you may expect in goods a year from now.

A Big Shipment of French and British Dress Goods Arrived During the Last Ten Days.

New Roxanas, Cord de Chines, Armures, San Toys, Modena Cords, Whipcords, Gaberdines, Bedford Cords and Serges in the fine grades of all wool and silk and wool.

These are the correct cloths for the season and in the new shades and black.

Prices 50c, 65c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 & $1.50.

Fancy Suitings and Coatings in Tweed mixtures and checks that have the right texture and weight for tailored costumes and separate coats at 75c, $1.00 & $1.25.

BUY LINEN DAMASKS NOW.

A shipment of table linens and napkins bought much below regular prices, in stock for immediate selling.

Table Linens—Bleached pure white, satin finish, very pretty designs. 66 inches wide at 50c, 60, 75c. 72 inches wide at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50.

Table Napkins—20, 22 and 23 inches square. Beautiful new patterns and quality at $1.00, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00. $2.50 up to $4.50 a doz.

SCOTCH LINOLEUMS.

A big shipment—Imported direct from Scotland—Artistic block and floral designs—Handsome color combinations—4 yards wide at $1.75, $2.00 & 2.25 a running yard.

STEPHAN BROS

FORMOSA

Last Tuesday, Miss Florence Hauck daughter of Mr and Mrs Engelbert Hauck, age 2 years 11 months, ate about 40 pills she found on the cupboard about 10 o'clock and was dead by 12 o'clock, before the doctor came. The remains were interred here last Tuesday.

Christian Weiler is in poor health.

Constable J Armstrong, of Riversdale, was here on business last Friday

Some farmers around here have started the plow.

Reeve Filsinger, of Carrick, came here last Tuesday to have a look at our muddy roads.

Mr and Mrs Frank Heisz were in Walkerton last Saturday.

John Schneider, of Mildmay, was here on business last week.

MARRIED—On Monday, Alf. Weiler son of Geo Weiler, Mildmay, to Miss Minnie Schmidt daughter of Mr and Mrs Andrew Schmidt, of Carrick.

Alex Oberle and J H Schefter took in the Mildmay spring show last Wednesday.

Tony Dolsin lost his buggy horse last week.

F X Hoffele, of Carrick, who has been sick for three weeks is improving again.

Miss Reg Bildstein who went with Mrs Jos Flach to Buffalo about a month ago came back last week.

John Steffler son of Lewis, of Ambleside, has been in the Walkerton Hospital for a long time, was taken home last week. He is still in very poor health.

PINKERTON

Mr Melville Reid returned to Stratford Normal School on Tuesday,

Miss Cummins returned to Molesworth last week after visiting her parents Mr and Mrs Joe Murray.

Miss Jessie Murray, of Paisley, spent Wednesday at her home here.

Miss Alma Reid returned to Toronto this week.

Fortnightly prayer-service well begin in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. On the alternate Wednesday evenings Y. P. Guild will be held. This prayer service is inter-denominational.

Miss Maggie Colwell spent a few days at her home in Kincardine.

Miss Hattie Gale returned from Alma on Monday.

Miss Kathleen Pinkerton returned from Toronto this week.

RIVERSDALE

Mrs Symons has returned home from Toledo after spending the winter with her son there.

Miss F. Cunningham is spending the week at MacDonald's.

Mr. and Mrs. Hepburn have returned to their home in Chesley accompanied by Miss Hannah Symons.

The fish are welcome back to the bridge again. The boys are catching lots of them.

Miss V. Houle has returned to her home in Port Huron.

Mrs. L. Beninger of Grand Valley is visiting her former home A. Dietrichs.

Mr. and Mrs P. J. Beninger and babe of Grand Valley spent Easter with relatives here

Mr. D. J. Beninger of Dungannon spent Easter at his former home here.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

On Friday evening April 2nd. About 35 neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McNally of the 14 con., Greenock, gathered at their home to spend a pleasant evening with them. Before taking their departure for their new home near Sarnia.

After spending some time in social conversation Mr. J. G. Purdy was called to the chair, and gave a short address. Mr. T. H. Purdy was then called on and read an address and Mr. W. T. Stewart presented Mr. and Mrs. McNally with a beautiful leather suit case, to which both Mr. and Mrs. McNally responded with much feeling and appreciation. Some time was then spent in short speeches and social conversation. After which an excellent lunch was served by the ladies which all enjoyed very much.

The chairman then read the 91st Psalm and led in prayer after which all joined in singing, "God be with you till we meet again."

Mr. and Mrs. McNally and their excellent family carry with them not only the best wishes of those present, but of a host of other friends besides.

Friend after friend departs,
Who has not lost a friend,
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here an end.

But we are glad that we can look foward to the time when if true to our Lord and master Jesus Christ, we shall meet where partings never comes.

To Mr. and Mrs. John E. McNally and family.

Dear Friends,

Having learned of your intention of removing from our midst, we, your neighbors and friends, have come together this evening for the purpose of spending an hour with you. For many years you have lived with us, and as neighbors we have found you generous, kind and ever ready to lend a helping hand, in every time of need.

In the great moral questions that are ever before us you have always stood firm for the right.

In church work you have always been interested and have taken an active part.

In many ways you will be missed and our thoughts will often go out towards you, and we hope you may ever look back and remember the pleasant associations of this neighborhood.

We can assure you that our best wishes will go with you, and that you may find a home among people where pleasant associations may soon grow up, ever remembering that a good neighbor makes good neighbors.

And now we can only ask that the blessing of God may always attend you and that you may all rest under the shadow of his wing.

Please accept this suit case as a slight token, of our love just to remind you of the old friends of Greenock.

Signed on behalf of friends:—
Mrs J Metcalf, Mrs H Hettrick.
Mrs J G Purdy, Mrs W T Stewart.
Mrs McAbee, R Wright.
Thos H Purdy, Jonathan Metcalf.
W T Stewart, J G Purdy.

Child Poisoned By Pills.

A very sad case of accidental poisoning took place on Tuesday afternoon of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Engelbert Hauck, north of Formosa, the victim of which was their little daughter, Florence Rose, aged three years. The little tot, while playing about the house came across a box of pills that Mr. Hauck had been taking, and thinking that they were candies, the child ate all that remained in the box, about thirty. The child soon became very violently ill and the doctor was hurriedly summoned but before his arrival death had ensued. The parents and family are prostrated over the affair. She was a bright child and will be sorely missed. The funeral takes place this morning to the Formosa R. C. Cemetery. The sorrowing family have the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends. —Mildmay Gazette.

School Reports

S. S. No. 2, BRANT.

Sr IV.—A Milhausen 63, N Eckenswiller 62, T Plowright 43.

Jr IV.—M Humphent 79, G Ellis 72, G Grandsen 63, E Rapp 53.

Sr III.—E James 91, J McNally 68, C Misch 63 in 5 subjects.

Sr II.—F James 64 in 3 subjects.

Jr II—E Rapp 77, E Ellis 71, E Etsell 70, N Eckenswiller 62 A Wilhelm 30.

I—C James 87, G Ellis 78, H Ernest 65, P Misch absent.

Names in order of merit.

Sr Pr—J James, I Etsell.

Inter. Pr.—W Eckenswiller, G Ashley, I Ernest, B Misch absent.

S. S. No. 4, BRANT.

(Names in order of merit.)

Sr IV.—Sarah Siegner, Viola Traynor.

Jr IV.—Gertrude Blake, Victor Metcalfe.

Sr III. — Sybilla Schwandt, Eddie Tanner, Ruben Smith.

Jr III.—Graeme Kirstine, Eva Tanner, Ralph Metcalfe, Lola Tanner.

Sr II.—Laura Litt, Lillie Litt, Minnie Schwandt.

Jr II.—Ruth Krueger, Belva Tanner, Viola Lippert, Milton Fischer.

Primer B—Esther Schwandt, Allen Tanner, Oscar Tanner, Edith Smith.

Primer A—Grace Kirstine, Earl Litt.

P. Clarke,
teacher.

THE SAVOY CAFE

NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP

QUICK LUNCH

SPECIAL DINNER

Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.

BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS
WITH FRIED POTATOES
BREAD AND BUTTER
PIE
WITH TEA OR COFFEE.

25 cts.

"EDISON" PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson
Jeweller - - Walkerton

FOR ICE CREAM
GO TO
Erdman's PHONE No. 100

"Looking back I see I never saw before."

This is the exclamation of satisfied customers.

We have fitted successfully stubborn cases that others have failed in.

Satisfaction g[illegible]

Consultation [illegible]

C. A. Fox, Walkerton
Jeweller and Optician

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.
Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "
Cracked Wheat, Farnia
Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.
Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton — Ont

Special Bargains in 1915 Wall Paper

Before buying wall paper, call and have a look through my stock; it is the most complete ever offered to the public to select from. My prices are moderate and the quality of the paper I guarantee.

I have papers for all rooms—Parlor, Dining Room, Living Room, Hall, Den, Kitchen and Bath Room. Borders same price as side walls. All paper trimmed free of charge.

G. T. STEAD
TWO DOORS EAST OF POST OFFICE

Spring House-Cleaning Season

This is the time of the year the busy housewife starts in to renew and beautify the home, with new rugs, squares, runners, oilcloths and linoleums. We have the best variety it has ever been our good fortune to show, bought early before the big advance in prices and our customers will reap the benefit.

Beautiful hall runners at $2.00 to $10.00.

Small rugs and matts in all new colorings at 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $2.00 up to $5.00 each.

Union squares in neat patterns and good sizes at $5.00, $6.00 $6.50 and $7.00 each.

Small bed room rugs in Tapestry, Brussels and Velvet at $5.00, $7.50 $9.00 $10.00 and $12.00.

Floral and [illegible]iental designs in handsome squares in Tapestry, Brussels, Wilton, Velvet and Axminster. Prices from $10.00 to $40.00.

We have assortment of Curtain Muslins, Scrims, etc. 10c. to 50c. per yard, in white, cream, arab and fancy colorings.

New patterns in floor oilcloths and linoleums in all widths.

Lace, Scrim and Nett Curtains from 50c. to $7.50 per pair.

We will be pleased to show you these new Spring goods and ask you not to delay. Our assortment never was better and the prices are within reach of everyone.

McBurney & Co.

WESTERN UNIVERSITY, LONDON

Forward Movement

Greatly enlarged faculties in arts and medicine Vastly improved equipment, — library, laboratories, etc.

Seven new scholarships:
Record enrollment.
Inquiries solicited.

E. E. Braithwaite, M.A., Ph. D.
President.

THE
Merchants Bank OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,134

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

Special this Month

Business Courses

The Walkerton Business College is offering special rates for a three months' commercial course in the following subjects:— Penmanship, Spelling, Arithmetic, Commercial law, Introductory forms to single and double entry, Book-keeping and Typewriting. Now is the time for the young people of this vicinity to improve their education. for further information regarding this course, apply to

P. J. MOLONEY
Principal Walkerton

Walkerton Markets

Hay	per ton	$16.00 to.......	$17.00
Oats	" bsh.	55 ".......	60
Wheat	" "	1.30 to......	1 30
Barley	" "	60 to.......	65
Potatoes	" bag	40 ".......	40
Butter	" lb.	30 ".......	28
Eggs	" doz.	18 ".......	18
Chicken	" lb.	12 "......	14
Ducks	" "	12 "......	14
Turkeys	" "	15 "......	16

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

Grand Display

HAVE YOU ever seen such wonderful Smart Blouses, such wonderful Silks, such wonderful Dress Goods, such wonderful Wash Goods, at such wonderful PRICES?

Dress Goods.

Values in dress goods—Beautiful dress crepes, rice cloth, natural shantung silk, pailette silks, wash goods, prints, ginghams, galateas, apron ginghams, linen suitings, etc.

Spring Goods.

New shipments of Spring Goods fast arriving.

Neckwear.

Modish new Neckwear, you are sure to like.

Curtains.

New Curtains and Drapery materials.

Linoleums and Oilcloths.

New patterns in floor oilcloths in all widths. New Linoleums.

J. H. Appel

Produce Wanted Phone 53

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

[illegible]

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 22nd 1915—8 PAGES

Formaldehyde or Formalin for Grain Smut—

The Government warns you against using "cheap" or weak" formaldehyde in the treatment of grain to prevent smut.

"Beaver Brand" is guaranteed to be full Government standard—40 per cent—and you will be sure of definite results.

50 Cents Pound.

Full directions on label for grain smut, potato scab and disinfecting.

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks — Phone 35 — C. P. R. Ticket Agency

Spring Millinery

We are showing all the latest and popular styles in Spring Millinery creations. Charming effects in small, medium and large hats. Copies of imported originals and American creations.

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton and vicinity to call and inspect this showing of latest models in Spring Millinery.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY

The Rife Block — Walkerton

Sufferers from Rheumatism

will be delighted with

"Rexall" RHEUMATIC Tablets

50c. a box only at

SIEVERIGHT'S

The REXALL Store

MEN'S FURNISHINGS

THE new Spring Furnishings are here. New Cheney Cravats, the new tie with some of the cleverest color combination and designs you ever saw.

New Spring shirts, collars, gloves. See the new Arrow collar, Norman, in ¼ sizes.

Our Spring hats lead in fashions.

G.T. ROURKE

Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store

Walkerton, - Ont.

JAS. TOLTON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

C. P. R. and Steamship office at Hunter's.

"Royal Purple" calf meal and other preparations at Hunter's.

Mr. W. H. Adams of Toronto, was a visitor here on Tuesday.

Mr. A. Hutchison left for his home in Mount Forest on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Truax were visitors in St. Catharines this week.

Capt. G. H. D. Martyn of Guelph spent Sunday with Mrs. Martyn.

Pte. Fred Jewell of the third contingent at Guelph spent Sunday here.

Mrs. Jas. Whitehead and Miss Helene returned from Toronto on Monday.

O'Malley's homemade bread is the best. Try it, made from Fleischman's yeast.

Mrs. (Dr.) Coram and children of Toronto spent Sunday at the Queen's Hotel.

Mrs. W. J. Ross and child of Forest are visiting at the home of Mr. R. H. McKay's.

Miss Vera Hildred of Berviels a guest at the home of her sister Mrs. A. J. Wesley.

If you want good bread, buy O'Malley's homemade loaf, made from Fleischman's yeast.

Bender Bros. & Schmon are supplying the village of Formosa with fresh meat during the summer months.

Pte. Wm. Winters of the third contingent in training at Guelph, spent Sunday with his wife and children here.

Mr. Thos. Lamb of Queen's University, Kingston, arrived here on Monday and will spend the summer with his parents in Brant.

Mr. McCoy, of Toronto, who was showing war pictures at the Red Star on Saturday rendered a solo very acceptably in Knox church on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Watt of Toronto (nee Miss Tillie Ayers) daughter of the late Geo. Ayers formerly of Walkerton, attended the funeral of her grandmother, the late Mrs. E. Hickling on Wednesday last.

First Car Ordered.

The first car of oil to be used in oiling the streets was ordered by the town council last week. It will probably be three weeks before the liquid is placed on the roads.

High School Baseball Club.

The organization meeting of the High School baseball club was held on Friday afternoon, the following officers being elected:—

Hon Pres.	Mr. Jos. Morgan
President	Jno. W. Rowland
Secretary	Oscar Schwindt
Mgr. and Treas.	F. M. Wilson

There is material in the school this year for an excellent team and the boys are looking forward to a successful season. They are now ready for challenges from any local teams.

This is "clean-up" time.

Eat O'Malley's homemade bread.

See McBurney's spring suits for boys.

T. E. Attwood, issuer of marriage licenses.

If you need floor rugs see our stock. Stephan Bros.

Saturday of next week is the first day of trout fishing.

The newest Dress Goods and Silks at Stephan Bros.

See McBurney's window for special prices on men's hats.

Buy Scotch Linoleum. It wears best.—Stephan Bros.

Ladies spring suits and coats, special prices at McBurney's.

Try O'Malley's homemade bread, made from Fleischman's yeast.

Two big bargains in Ladies suits at $7.95 and $9.95.—Stephan Bros.

The Liberal Convention will be held in Formosa on Tuesday May 4th.

Our Men's navy Serge Suit at $15.00 can't be beaten.—Stephan Bros.

Miss Evelyn Heffernan of London is visiting her mother, Mrs. P. Heffernan.

Miss Stella Jasper spent Sunday with her cousin Miss J. Jasper in Teeswater.

Mr. Guy Henderson has secured a position as stone-cutter at Lippert's marble works.

The South Bruce Conservatives are holding their convention in Formosa on April 29th.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Powers of Peterboro spent Thursday last with Mr. P. J. Moloney.

Mr. Jos Anstadt of Chepstow has accepted a position at the R. Truax & Son factory.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierson and son Charlie were visitors at the home of Mr. P. Todd this week.

Lace and Scrim Curtains and Curtain Nets in great variety and best prices.—Stephan Bros.

Several towns and villages have fixed a "clean up" day this spring. How about Walkerton?

The Port Elgin Celebration committee are making preparations for a big day there on July 1st.

Mr. Wm Ferguson left on Wednesday last for the States and will spend some weeks in the Adirondack Mountains.

Miss M. V. Adams of Hanover is among the nurses selected by the Canadian Red Cross Society for service at the front.

Mr. Neil McDonald of Rife's staff is the proud possessor of an excellent driving horse and bike buggy which he recently purchased in Tiverton.

Mr. Albert Melhiliaus returned from Queens University, Kingston, this week. Albert will spend a few days with his parents and will then go west, where he will spend the summer.

Flat to Rent.

Any time after the 1st of May a 5 room flat with all conveniences, apply at the Telescope or to C. Patrick.

Purchased New Cars.

Mr. J. H. Vogt and Mr. N. C. McKay have purchased new Fords from Lelseter & Kalbfleisch and Mr. O. E. Klein has purchased a 1915 model Studebaker.

Purchased Drilling Machine.

Messrs Denny Bros. of Walkerton have purchased a new drilling machine from the Listowel Drilling Co'y. This machine which is of the latest type arrived here last week.

Three Months in Gaol.

Wm King of Wiarton was given three months in gaol by Magistrate B. B. Miller, for annoying a young lady of that place.

Building Residence.

Mr. Alex Haas has commenced the foundation for a new residence on his vacant lot on Jackson st., opposite the town hall. When completed this will be a very desirable property and will no doubt bring a good rental.

Change in Hour.

After Sunday next and commencing on the first Sabbath in May, the several Sunday schools in town will change the hour of meeting from 2.45 p. m. to 9.45 a. m. This change is made each year during the summer months and continue until the first Sunday in September.

Moving to Farm.

Mr. Jos. H. Brick, formerly proprietor of the Walker House has decided to leave Walkerton and will shortly move with his family to his farm near Clinton. Mr. Brick has been a highly esteemed citizen and Walkertonians will be sorry to learn of his intended departure.

Wool Wanted!

S. A. Rife & Co are prepared to buy any quantity of wool.

For Sale.

An iron bedstead and springs. Apply to Mr. A. Bethel, over the Broom Factory.

Wanted!

Girl for general housework to go to Mount Forest. Family of two. Apply to Mrs. McNamara, Walkerton.

Flat to Rent

A six room flat, very convenient, above Dr. Reed's Dentistry. All conveniences, either furnished or not. Apply at Telescope or to C. Patrick.

Dental Notice

As in previous years my office will be closed Saturday afternoons during the summer months, commencing 1st. Saturday in May.—Dr W. B. Halladay.

Left for Peterboro.

Miss Afra Schumacher daughter of Mr. J. J. Schumacher, left last week for Peterboro where she has accepted a position as teacher in the Collegiate Institute.

Purchasing Surplices.

The management of the Knox Choir have decided to purchase surplices for the members of the choir, and the order for the gowns was placed this week with a Toronto firm.

Sold Farm.

Mr. Wm. Lambertus of Greenock has sold his 100 acre farm to Mr. Jas. O'Connor of Walkerton. Mr. Lambertus intends to reside on the farm until fall and then go west.

Ill With Pneumonia.

Mrs. R. H. McKay has been seriously ill during the past few days, suffering from pneumonia. Her condition was at one time serious, but we are pleased to report that she is now improving and apparently out of danger.

Liberal Convention.

The Liberal Convention of South Bruce will be held in the stone school house in the village of Formosa on Tuesday afternoon May 4th, commencing at 2 p. m.. The meeting will be addressed by Messrs Wm. Jermyn of Welland and Fred Pardee of Sarnia.

Fined for Shooting Pike.

Several men were recently fined for shooting pike in the streams in Greenock. One man who had secured half a bag of these fish in this unlawful manner paid $12 into the township treasury for his sport. Provincial constable Armstrong laid the informations.

Last Meeting of Commissioners.

The license commissioners of South Bruce will meet at the Queen's Hotel today to grant licenses for the coming year and transact other business. This will be the last meeting of the local commissioners as the liquor traffic regulations will in future be enforced by the Provincial Board.

Voted Deacons's Orders.

During the Evangelical Conference last week, A. T. Nash of Hespeler and G. L. Gross of Mildmay were voted elder's orders and ordained on Sunday. Edward Schroeder, Winnipeg; L. H. Pletsch, Walkerton, and W. H. Wagner, Rockinham, were voted deacons orders. The latter two were ordained on Sunday.

Auction Sale.

An auction sale of a large quantity of household furniture will be held at the residence of Miss M. Gokey. Colborne st. opposite the Lutheran church on Saturday morning next, commencing at ten o'clock. As the proprietress is leaving town everything must be sold. See bills for particulars W. H. Brocklebank, Auctioneer.

Lecture well Attended.

The lecture on Germany and the war given by Prof. Reithdorf German Professor of Woodstock College, in the town hall on Monday evening was well attended. Prof. Reithdorf's discourse was listened to with great interest. The proceeds of the silver collection amounted to $12.50.

Northern Baseball League?

The executive of the newly-formed Owen Sound Amateur Athletic Association is boosting the idea of a northern baseball league, and the branch of the executive devoting its energies to baseball hopes to be instrumental in interesting a number of the towns in this section of the province in some such scheme. The proposed towns include Owen Sound, Chesley, Wiarton, Hanover, Barrie, Collingwood, Meaford Palmerston, Walkerton, Harriston, Mount Forest, Kincardine, Listowel, Clifford and others.

BORN

MITCHELL—In Brant on Sunday April 11th, to Mr. and Mrs. B. Mitchell, (nee Miss Nettie Whitehead,) a daughter.

COOPER—In Walkerton, on Monday, April 19th, to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cooper, nee Miss Lizzie Oelbe) a daughter.

MULLIN—In Walkerton on Monday, April 19th, to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mullin, a daughter.

Baseball Meeting.

The annual organization meeting of the Walkerton Baseball Club will be held in the council chamber tonight, (Thursday) at eight o'clock. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

Going with Third Contingent.

Another Walkerton young man has enlisted for active service in the third Canadian contingent in the person of Ernie Cartwright, who has been cobbler at Mr. J. Ramsey's shoe store for the past few months. Ernie leaves on Monday for Guelph and his place here will be taken by Fred Sowell of Chesley.

Moved One Door East

The Savoy Cafe has changed places of business with Mr. Fred Benninger, barber and moved one door east last week, while Mr. Henninger moved to the stand vacated by the Cafe. The proprietors of the Cafe have now a better equipped stand and have better facilities for attending to the wants of their many patrons.

I. O. O. F. Church Parade

The local lodge of Odd Fellows will hold their annual church parade on Sunday morning next, April 25th, to the Methodist church where they will attend divine service. All Odd Fellows in Walkerton whether members of Saugeen Lodge or not are urged to meet at the lodge rooms at 10.30. A good attendance of brethren is requested.

Keep off the Sidewalks.

Now that spring is here, pedestrians are voicing their old grievance that of boys riding bicycles on the cement sidewalks. This is a practice which annually results in police court cases and as the authorities are determined to stop the boys from acquiring the habit this spring, the guilty parties should take heed and restrain from breaking the town bylaw. Otherwise they will sooner or later be served with a summons for their transgressions.

Cannot Publish News.

A circular has been issued to all newspapers by the Dominion government warning them to refrain from publishing any news with regard to the movements of troops in Canada. This is a precautionary measure to prevent facts about Canada's army falling into the hands of the enemy. The penalty for an infringement of this law, is a fine of $5000, or a term of one year in prison for the writer. Our readers will therefore understand the absence of some military news which would otherwise have been published.

Evangelical Conference.

The annual Canada Conference of the Evangelical Association has been in progress in Milverton all this week. Following are the ministers who will occupy the pulpits in this district for the ensuing year:—L. G. Litt, presiding elder; Bridgeport, S. R. Knechtel; Chesley, S. M. Hauch; Crediton, E. D. Becker; Dashwood, J. H. Grenzebach; Elmira, F. B. Meyer; Elmwood, Andrew Pletsch; Hanover, A. W. Sauer; Listowel, H. H. Leibold; Maitland, Henry Ruppel; Mildmay, J. S. Born; Normanby, W. M. Sippell; Parry Sound, to be supplied; Port Elgin, E. M. Gischler; St. Jacobs, M. L. Wing; Stratford, W. J. Yaeger; Walkerton, L. H. Pletsch; Waterloo, Emil Bonn; Wallace, D. H. Brand; Zurich, G. F. Brown.

Took Oath of Allegiance.

Rev. Mosig, pastor of the Lutheran church, has since the war began been accused of being a German sympathizer and on several occasions has been charged with making decidedly unpatriotic utterances in his pulpit. Strength was added to these accusations when he on being asked to announce the lecture of Prof. Reithdorf to his congregation, refused to do so and it was said called the lecturer a traitor. This led to an unpleasant situation and when approached by interested parties, Mr. Mosig denied having called Prof. Reithdorf a traitor, and claimed that he simply said he was not true to his country. Being anxious to clear the air and make things right, the Lutheran minister went to Crown Attorney Dixon's office on Wednesday and took the oath of allegiance.

One Hour in Custody.

The Dr. Hughes referred to in the following, which appeared in the Toronto Star on Tuesday, is well known in Walkerton.

"One hour's confinement in the custody of the sheriff was the unusual sentence imposed by Mr. Justice Clute in the Criminal Assizes upon Dr. F. G. Hughes of Edmonton one of the directors of the defunct Union Life Insurance who was found guilty of conspiracy in connection with the affairs of the company at the last Assize Court. Dr. Hughes visibly moved, served his sentence sitting with Constable John Brown near the prisoner's deck in the courtroom. His counsel J. H. Hancock remained with him. As soon as the sixty minutes were up, Sheriff Mowat left the bench, walked across the courtroom, and shook hands with the prisoner. Dr. Hughes was free He shook hands with the court officials and left the room.

Left For Tobermory

Three more local men have left to do guard duty at Tobermory, viz: Percy Jenkins, Al Wilton and Mr. Etherington. These men are taking the places of Wiarton guards who secured their release to take positions on the boats.

An Early Election.

Every indication points to an early Dominion election. The Conservative Associations throughout the country are holding conventions and the Liberals to be prepared are following suit. Although June 14th has been mentioned as the date of voting, no definite announcement has yet been made by the Government.

Destroying Property.

The Telescope received a letter last week from a lady in the village of Formosa in which she complained bitterly of the treatment accorded her by parties who apparently hold a spite towards her. The woman in question has been a sufferer from the depredations of these parties for some time and among other things which they have recently done was to destroy a blue clematis vine of thirty year's growth, on her property. This is only one instance of many in which they have been guilty of wanton destruction. Surely this should not be tolerated in such a community as this. The police have been informed and should any further damage be done, informations will be laid against the guilty ones who are known.

Daughters of the Empire.

At the regular meeting of the Walkerton chapter held at the armory, April 17th., the treasurer reported receipt of $100 from the ladies aid tea room, making a total of $228 contributed by the young ladies of the tea room, to whom a vote of thanks was tendered. The Patriotic Service committee reported a shipment of 167 pairs of socks and 20 shirts making over 600 pairs of socks sent by the chapter. The hospital supplies committee reported a case of surgical dressing ready for shipment, the superintendant of the hospital and her staff having very kindly sterilized these. It was decided to institute an honour roll of the men who have gone from Walkerton and the vicinity to the front, of which particulars will be given later.

A Dangerous Practice.

Early Monday evening boys passing along Jackson st., threw stones at and broke the glass of a lantern which had been placed on the road to warn those driving along the street of an excavation for an extension to the sewage system. Had it been a dark night an accident would likely have resulted, but the lantern was shortly afterwards replaced before anything serious occurred. The seriousness of such an offence cannot be too strongly impressed upon the minds of these young scallawags for should an accident occur, after these lights had been extinguished in this manner, the town would be liable for any damages sustained by horses or motors going into the excavations. In cases such as this, the boys who are responsible for the wanton destruction are liable to be sentenced to serve a prison term if they fall into the hands of the law.

How About Daylight Saving?

The people of America are now beginning to realize the absurdity of lying in bed in the summer months during the hours of daylight in the morning and then seeking recreation and continuing to prowl about at night in the hours of darkness, and as a consequence, what are termed "Daylight Saving" bylaws are being passed in numerous towns and cities both in Canada and the States, but more particularly in this country. These bylaws provide for the moving forward one hour of the hands of all clocks in the municipality. This starts work and business life in the town or city one hour earlier in the morning and gives an additional hour of daylight in the evening in which the youth and beauty employed in offices and stores can seek recreation or participate in athletic sports, the bowlers can play upon the green or in the case of the proud householder, can be devoted to the garden or lawn or to beating carpets, etc., for wity. These are only a few of the advantages to be derived from the adoption of such a measure. Daylight Saving bylaws were put into effect in several towns and cities last year and everywhere it was proclaimed a great success and is being put in force again this year. Other towns are now following suit and Daylight Saving is being adopted in many municipalities in Ontario this summer. Why should this measure not be put into effect in Walkerton? Let someone commence a movement and take the matter up with the town council.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Cousins desire to express their thanks to their friends and neighbors for the many kindness shown them during their recent bereavement caused by the death of Mrs. Cousins' mother, the late Mrs. E. Hickling, which took place at their home on April 12th.

Cracked Eggs.

Cracked eggs for sale at the Walkerton Egg & Dairy.

Good Crop Needed in 1915.

If ever there was a year in the history of Canada when a good crop was needed, that year is 1915. The Spring has opened without any marked improvement in business, and it is useless to expect any great change while the war lasts. Industrial life in the cities and towns will be more or less quiet and the one thing which will help out will be good crops. It is said that the conditions are favorable in the West and may they keep that way, and here is the same wish for Ontario.

By-laws Carried.

As was expected, the two money by-laws which were voted on by the ratepayers of Walkerton on Friday last were carried by large majorities. Five votes were recorded against the bridge money by-law, and ten against the waterworks by-law. The vote polled was a decidedly light one, a good number of the ratepayers being sure the measures would carry, considered it unnecessary to poll their votes.

The vote by polls was as follows:—

BRIDGE BY-LAW

WARD	FOR	AGAINST
East	55	1
Centre	71	2
West	57	0
South	18	2
Total	205	5

WATERWORKS BY-LAW

WARD	FOR	AGAIN
East	48	4
Centre	73	3
West	55	1
South	18	2
Total	194	10

Provincial License Board

A Provincial Board of License Commissioners has been formed to take over the administration of the license liquor laws, the members being, J. D. Flavelle of Lindsay, W. S. Dingman of Stratford, Fred Dane, Toronto and George Smith, Haileybury. As a result of the appointment of the commission, the local license commissioners and License Inspector Jos. White will lose their positions. The new commission will have wide powers and will be able to cancel or grant a license at any time, fix the hours during which liquor may be sold in taverns and shops throughout the province, etc. The commission will start its duties on May 1st. A proclamation has been issued bringing the new act into force forthwith. The local boards which have hitherto controlled the administration of the liquor license laws will thus complete their work with the issuing of licenses for the coming year, which starts May 1st, after which the new board will take over the administration of the law. The last meeting of the local board will be held today. (Thursday) at the Queen's Hotel. How the provincial commission will enforce the liquor laws in the rural districts, remains to be seen, but it is expected that inspectors will be appointed in certain districts, who will have a field of operations of one or perhaps two counties. Since his appointment Inspector White has enforced the law in his district and has proven himself to be a very able inspector. If an inspector is to be selected to control Bruce or both Grey and Bruce counties, we hope the provincial body will see fit to give him the appointment.

Cleared $115.

The Walkerton Amateur Dramatic Club, more than upheld their good reputation at the opera house on Friday evening when they presented the three-act comedy, "A Pair of Spectacles." The comedy was one full of amusing situations and was thoroughly enjoyed throughout by the large audience. Each and every player took his or her part in a very creditable manner, but the honours of the evening go to Mr. G. E. Clarke of the Bank of Commerce staff, who is an artist on the stage and who filled his role in a manner which would have done credit to any professional actor. The attendance was good, the total proceeds amounting to $161.50 of which the Ladies' Hospital Aid, under the auspices of whom the play was given, cleared $115.55. Following was the cast of characters:—

Mr. Benjamin Goldfinch ....Mr. G. E. Clarke

Uncle Gregory (his brother).... ....Mr. W. H. McBurney

Percy, (his son)............... .... Mr. A. Hutchinson

Dick, (his nephew) ....Mrs. L. A. Nairn

Lorimer, (his friend)........... .... Mr. A. G. Smith

Bartholomew (his shoemaker)... ....Mr. H. McCallum

Joyce, (his butler)........... ... .Mr. J. Stephenson

Another Shoemaker, ... Mr. J. Erdman

Mrs. Goldfinch, (his wife), ...Miss Margaret McGregor

Lucy Lorimer, (Lorimer's daughter) Miss Marion Robertson

Charlotte, (a parlor maid)...... .... Miss Florence Vogt

A GIFT OF A SOUL

"Oh, there always are. It is between Monaco and Vintimille that smuggling is most generally carried on. There is not a week in which some smuggler is not caught. And for the past four days we have been watching a vessel which is waiting the chance to escape us. But the scoundrels will pay for the sleepless nights they have made us pass, and if they make any resistance they will be answered with musket-shots. Good-night, gentlemen. Do not remain here. The place is a bad one."

He raised his hand in a military salute to his kepi, and then disappeared among the bushes which served him for his post of observation.

Pierre Laurier and Davidoff resumed their walk, turning their steps toward the town.

"I envy the adventurous lot of the men who are the object of the threats of this fine soldier. They are sailing on the water at this moment, vigilant and circumspect, ready for business or for battle. Their affair finished, they depart on a new expedition to brave unknown dangers. They have no thought but for their hard and uncertain occupation. I should like to be in their place."

"So! Count Woreseff, whom I shall accompany in his yacht, leaves Villefranche the day after to-morrow. He is going to Egypt; we touch at Alexandria, sail up the Nile as far as the second cataract, visit Thebes, the desert, and the Pyramids. It is an expedition that will take two months, with the planks of a magnificent vessel under foot and the splendors of an eastern sky overhead. You know how happy the Count would be to take you with him. You would be occupied; you would hunt. And above all, you would forget."

"No, I should be too tranquil, too much spoiled, too happy, in your company. I should have to have none of those dangers that absorb all one's faculties. I should have no crushing hardships to endure. Everything around me would savor too much of civilization. What I need is to lead the life of a savage. If you could promise to have me captured by the Touaregs, who should take me a prisoner to Timbuctoo, I would follow you. In my case that would be a salvation."

"I can promise you no such adventures," replied Davidoff, laughing. "I must therefore abandon you to your fate."

They had stopped before a beautiful villa, painted rose color, whose windows shone in the moonlight through the thick foliage.

"It is settled—you will go in," said the doctor. "Good-by, then, for I do not know if I shall see you to-morrow—and good fortune attend you."

They shook hands, and while the Russian quietly took his way toward the city the artist crossed the garden and rang the door bell. A lackey opened the door for him and led him into a vestibule resembling a Moorish patio, with a basin in the middle, on the blue bosom of which floated cyprians with scales of gold. Around the columns which adorned this court roses twined. At the further end a white marble staircase led to the first storey.

"Is Madame at home?" asked Pierre Laurier.

"She is in the little salon," responded the domestic.

The young man pushed the door open and softly entered.

On a large sofa, reclining among silken cushions, Clemence Villa was turning over the leaves of a book. She raised her head, stretched out her arms, and then remained motionless.

Pierre approached her, and bending over her delicately modeled face kissed her on the eyes.

"How late you are!" said the actress, with a tranquil indifference that formed a contrast to the reproach conveyed in her words.

"Prince Patrizzi's dinner lasted longer than I had supposed it would," he answered.

"Did you enjoy yourself?"

"Less than if you had been with us."

"I have a horror of Patrizzi."

"Why?"

"I feel that he hates me."

"Why, he does not hate you; but he loves me."

"Well, can he not love you without hating me?"

"He would like you if you did not make me unhappy."

"Ah, the old story!"

The young woman snapped her fingers, threw her book to the further end of the salon, and with a gesture of displeasure turned over on the sofa, with her face toward the wall.

"Come, Clemence, let us be at peace," said the artist, "let us talk of something else."

The actress, however, her face buried among the cushions, replied in a sharp voice, without turning around:

"Your Patrizzi has been making advances to me, as you already know, and it is because I would have nothing to say to him that he dislikes me."

The countenance of Laurier was contracted with pain, and he asked ironically:

"And why did you make so unflattering an exception in his case?"

Clemence Villa sprang to her feet at a bound, and red with anger, her eyes sparkling her brow contracted in a frown, pointed to the door with a trembling hand, saying:

"My dear fellow, if you have come here to treat me with insolence, you can take yourself off again."

"Oh, I know how little you care for me; you have never allowed me to remain in ignorance on this point," said the painter with a despondent gesture. "Then why do you not leave me? If you were good-tempered, even, I could understand your obstinacy on that point. But you divide your time between abusing me to your friends and insulting me here. And all because I will not yield to your caprices, and shut myself up. What an enchanting prospect! In short, you are an ingrate. I was very fond of you—oh, you know it very well! For before you became crazy, you were an agreeable and charming fellow. But the fact is that, for the past three months, you have completely lost your head, so, good-night. As for me, I don't know how to take care of mad people; go to a lunatic asylum."

She leaned against the chimney-piece as she spoke, and, set off by her loose robe of ruby-colored plush, her dark skin gleamed like ivory. Her small head covered with curls, set on a rather long neck, was of an exquisite grace, and her bosom, enclosed, like a jewel in its setting, in costly Malines lace, heaved with her haughty anger.

"Forgive me," he said. "I am unhappy, because I love you, and I am jealous."

She looked at him sternly and in a cutting voice said:

"So much the worse. Because I am no more disposed to put up with your jealousy than with your brutality. For some time past I have had to make an effort not to tell you so. But I have had enough of it now. It is over! You may spare yourself the trouble of returning."

The artist grew a shade paler.

"You are dismissing me?" he said.

"Yes, I am dismissing you."

He remained silent for an instant, as if he hesitated to put his thought into words. Then in a low voice, as if he feared to provoke the answer he foresaw he should receive—

"Do you love another, then?" he asked.

"What does that matter to you? I love you no longer; that is all it concerns you to know."

A flush mounted to the face of the young man; his hands trembled, and he bit the ends of his mustache, but affecting a smiling indifference,—

"Tell me, at least," he said, "if you have given me a worthy successor. One must have a little pride."

"Make yourself easy on that score," interrupted Clemence sharply; "I shall lose nothing by the change. He is young, he is rich, he is handsome. And then he has interested me for a long past. Besides, you know him, he is a friend of yours."

And while the artist, thunderstruck at such audacity, asked himself whether he was dreaming or awake, the young woman continued, with relentless cruelty and dropping her words one by one like drops of poison:

"You have just left him; you dined together this evening."

"Davidoff?" exclaimed Pierre.

"Imbecile!" sneered Clemence. "That Russian cynic who despises women and who would rule them with the knout! Do you think me so stupid? No, the man who has captivated my fancy is a charming fellow, gentle, melancholy, rather delicate in health, but who believes in love and surrenders himself to it without reserve."

Pierre started to his feet at these words, and seizing the actress by the wrists, forced her to listen to him, notwithstanding her resistance. Their faces were close together, their glances met for an instant. They remained thus for a few moments, breathing hatred and rage. At last the painter said in a trembling voice:

"You mean Jacques de Vignes."

"I do."

"Do you know that his lungs are seriously affected?"

"Even so; he pleases me. I will nurse him. A disinterested affection has always had a charm for me."

"It is in order to torture me that you have invented this story. Confess that there is not a word of truth in all you have said."

"You shall see whether there is or not."

"Clemence, take care."

The young woman's eyes flashed with anger. She turned to ring the bell but in her haste her feet caught in the folds of her gown. Pierre was just in time to seize her arm and prevent her from falling.

"You threaten me in my own house?" she cried. "Well, then, I certainly shall accept him. Yes, I shall accept him; and it will be all your fault."

The painter, with a gesture of disgust, pushed her from him so abruptly that she fell backward on the sofa. He took his hat and in a choking voice, said:

"Infamous creature! I had rather die now than return to you. I shall never see you again!"

He pushed the door violently open with his clenched hand, as if to vent on inert matter the anger he could not vent on the woman who had called it forth, and with rapid steps went out into the garden. He heard the electric bell ring behind him under the quick pressure of an angry touch, the steps of the servant sounding on the pavement of the vestibule, and the sharp tones of Clemence issuing her orders. He did not stay to hear further. He felt in a rage that gave him a desire to kill some one. He had left Clemence lest he should be tempted to strike her. But here under the starry sky, his brow fanned by the cool seabreeze laden with the perfume of the orange blossoms, he began to feel a bitter sense of shame. Was it possible that for this woman's sake he had during the past year committed all the miserable follies that now came thronging to his memory? After spending all his fortune in order to supply the extravagance of Clemence, he had borrowed for the same purpose from his friends. His genius dissipated by a life of pleasure, had produced no fruit, and he had spent whole days in his studio dreaming of pictures which he had never had the courage to undertake. And all for this jade who had deceived him. It was in truth too stupid; she was right to despise him fully, for it was an undeserved piece of good fortune for him that she had taken it into her head to dismiss him.

He felt himself, at this moment, once more master of his destiny. He was delivered from the ghoul who had sapped his mental strength at the same time that she had tortured his heart. He was himself again, and he was determined to prove by his works that he was not, as people had begun to say, a wreck.

"Yes, she shall see what I am capable of, now that I am free from her," he cried. "Before a month is past she shall wish me back from vanity if not from love!"

While these thoughts were passing through his mind he was walking along the seashore on the road that led to Vintimille. In his emotion he had walked a great distance without being aware of it. The lights of Monaco had disappeared in the distance, and he found himself alone at the foot of a rugged cliff. At his feet stretched the rocky shore, on which the waves broke with a monotonous sound. Occasionally a stray cloud passing across the sky blotted out the light, plunging everything into darkness. Pierre sat down on a sandy hillock by the roadside, and lulled by the profound peace surrounding him, he fell into a revery.

He had now become calmer: his anger had abated, and he tried to form a clear idea of the situation. He had made excellent resolutions, but would he have sufficient strength of will to carry them out? He knew how little confidence he could place on his force of character. A dozen times already he had sworn never again to see the woman who had wrecked his life, and each time he had returned to her, weaker than the last, and as a consequence was more ill-treated than before. But he had borne everything in order to obtain a caress from her. Strange madness, which, reducing him to this state of bondage, left him sense enough to form a correct judgment of the woman who held him in thrall, but not enough courage to withdraw from her evil dominion.

"After declaring so violently that I would never see her again," he said to himself, "can it be possible that I should be weak enough to present myself before her to-morrow? No," he cried aloud in the silence of the night. But, as if to put his resolution to the test, the face of Clemence with its brilliant and seductive eyes appeared before him. He could see it distinctly, smiling with a defiant air, and it seemed to him he could hear from her lips the words he had heard so often:

"You leave me; you have not the strength to do so. I might dismiss you and you would come back to me again, like a beaten dog, faithful to its master. Do you think you could live without me? Am I not necessary to your existence? Without me, the world for you is a void where you can find only ennui, disgust, weariness and regrets. Come back to me, then! Pretend no silly pride. I send you away to-day, but I expect you back to-morrow. These are the quarrels of lovers, who fall out, and then kiss each other all the more passionately for their momentary anger."

The temptress evoked by his feverish imagination smiled at him, and with her white arm beckoned him on. He could see her distinctly, with the light falling upon her in her room. His heart beat to suffocation, and with a sigh he rose to his feet to go and rejoin her.

A cool breeze blowing across his forehead recalled him from his dream, and he found himself once more at the foot of the cliff, the sea stretching before him, far away from the town, and the image of the woman who had so completely subjugated him, vanished in the moonlight. He trembled to find himself so completely in her power. If he had been in front of her villa instead of on the sea-shore, in an instant more, without giving himself time for reflection, he would have been at her feet. A paroxysm of rage seized him. She spoke truly, then: the apparition of a moment since had dared him to break his chain. What should he do then, so that he might never again fall into the power of this fatal woman? Would space suffice to separate him from her? How could he say that in some moment of madness he would not again return to her? Calm as he was now, completely in possession of his senses, strong in the hatred which had revived within him, he did not dare to question himself lest he should be obliged to confess that there was no power strong enough to keep him away from her.

A feeling of despair and profound discouragement came over him. Yet he comprehended all the unworthiness of his life, all the baseness of his conduct, all the ignominy of his complaisance. She deceived him and he knew it, yet he had not sufficient pride to resolve to see her no more. And what anguish, what regrets did this existence contain, that would become more miserable, the weaker he showed himself to be! And what would be the end of it? An unworthy death in some jealous transport, a senseless and degrading suicide, that would drag his name into the newspapers, inflicting suffering on the few friends who should still remain to him. Would it not be better to end everything at once, here, under the deep blue sky, the sea stretching before him, while he was still worthy to cause sincere tears to flow?

He remained wrapped in meditation, bathed in the tranquil light of the moon, surrounded by fragrant odors. And little by little his thoughts were turned away from the woman who was his evil genius.

A peaceful and smiling dwelling, hidden among trees, now appeared before his mind. It was that in which his friend Jacques de Vignes lived, with his mother and sister. Life would have smiled upon them had not illness, alarming and rapid in its progress, attacked the handsome and once robust young man so ardently attached to life. What did they lack in order to be happy? Health, for the son and brother so passionately loved, health only. But irony of fate, each day Jacques grew more sad, more weak, more bent, as if to draw nearer to the earth which must soon hide him from view. And he was in despair about it, while Pierre would so gladly have given up his life at this moment when, overwhelmed with vexations, he reckoned it of so little worth. If he had been able to make a compact with his friend, and to cede him his own superabundance of strength, would not this be sufficient health for the sad and suffering young man whom he loved so tenderly?

At this moment the story of Dr. Davidoff came back to his mind, and a bitter smile crossed his lips. If this strange resurrection of which the doctor had told were possible, if the spell could be made to work, and if it were granted to him to make his soul pass, miserable and tortured as he was, into the languishing body of his friend, in whom the force to live was so completely wanting, would it not be a blessed miracle?

He bowed down his head with sudden grief. He said to himself: "She told me she loved him. If I were to become he, I should then be beloved by her! I should enjoy her beauty and her grace. For me should be all her smiles and all her kisses." He trembled. It was so long since there had been tenderness in the caresses of her he still adored. He felt this new, without illusion or self-deceit, and yet he could not resolve to leave her.

(To be Continued.)

"Griddles is a queer gink." "What's the latest manifestation?" "Why, he sent a $2 long-distance telephone call to save an hour's time, and then he squabbled two hours over paying the cent stamp tax on it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Danger Signals Warn You of Approaching Paralysis

Slowly and Surely Exhaustion Goes on Until Collapse of the Nerves is the Natural Result.

You may be restless, nervous, irritable and sleepless, but you think there is nothing to be alarmed at. You have no appetite, digestion is impaired, and there is weakness and irregularity of other bodily organs. You feel tired in body and mind, and find that you lack the energy to attend to the daily task.

MRS. ALLAN.

You may not realize that these are the symptoms of nervous prostration and the danger signals which warn you that some form of paralysis is the next step of development.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most successful restorative for the nerves that has ever been offered to the public. This has been proven in many thousands of cases similar to the one described in this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D., 3, Hornby, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs [illegible] and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

AGRICULTURAL BULLETINS.

So great has been the demand for bulletins, pamphlets, reports and reviews upon the publications branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa [illegible] that it has been found impossible to comply with all the applications as promptly as could be desired. Of some of the bulletins the supply has been exhausted and [illegible] for reprinting, while of others the quantity asked for individually has been such that instant compliance would mean many applicants might have to go without. This occasioned extra correspondence and consequent delay. The situation is, of course, satisfactory as indicating the success of the campaign, and the widespread interest created, but the inability to respond on the instant with the multitude of applications is greatly regretted. At the same time it is apparent that the size of the [illegible] could have been foreseen. As fast as possible the requests will be attended to, but in the meantime there will have to be reprinting and [illegible]. In such circumstances patience appears to be a desirable and necessary quality.

Facts for Health Seekers To Ponder Over

[illegible] Hamilton's Pills [illegible] Dr. Hamilton's Pills [illegible]

ANTHEM TITLES

[illegible]

"BILLY" SUNDAY'S WORK

(The Presbyterian)

[illegible]

AN EXCELLENT REMEDY FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. [illegible], Audley, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past twelve months and have found them an excellent medicine for my little girl." Thousands of other mothers say the same thing—that, once a mother has used the Tablets she wants nothing else. [illegible] The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WAR TIME AND TANGO

(Philadelphia Record)

[illegible] A nation [illegible] in which almost every family has been bereaved, may very well proscribe the wilder manifestations of mirth and the gayer forms of dissipation.

ARE YOU!

(Brantford Expositor)

Dear Reader: Are you ready to follow the lead of King George and Lord Kitchener, and "swear off" until after the war?

CORRUGATED IRON

Galvanized, Rust Proof
Made from very finest sheets, absolutely free from defects.

Each sheet is pressed, not rolled, corrugations therefore fit accurately without waste. Any desired size or gauge, straight or curved.

LOW PRICES—PROMPT SHIPMENT

Metallic Roofing Co., Limited
Manufacturers
TORONTO & WINNIPEG

Immune.

A mounted policeman riding through Central Park came upon some little girls picking handfuls of flowers.

"Hurry up," he heard them say. "Teacher is liable to catch up any minute."

Dismounting from his horse, he grasped one child by the arm.

"Stop it!" he thundered. "You know it's against the law to pick the park flowers! Why, I could arrest you for this, and I'm not at all sure that I won't go ahead and do my duty!"

The small girl wriggled from his grasp. "Oh, stop your fussing, and go along!" she said contemptuously as she watched a tall woman hurrying along the path. "You can't pinch us. Why, we're pinched already. We all come from the reform school."—Everybody's.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

WEIGHT OF AIR.

One Cubic Foot of Atmosphere Weighs More Than an Ounce.

The common belief that air weighs nothing or almost nothing, a belief which has given rise to the simile, "light as air," needs correction.

A toy balloon filled with a cubic foot of air weighs 564 grains more than the same balloon collapsed. This shows that the weight of a cubic foot of air is 564 grains, which is a good deal more than an ounce. Accordingly a small room (15 by 15 by 10) containing 2,250 cubic feet of air would weigh 2,900 ounces, or 181.7 pounds avoirdupois, as much as a large man. Could you lift a room full of air?

The air in an automobile tire under pressure of 150 pounds a square inch weighs proportionately ten times as much, while air under the pressure of fifty atmospheres weighs fifty times as much as an equal volume of ordinary air. When air is liquefied its volume is reduced to one sixteen-hundredth part, so that the liquid is 1,600 times as heavy as common air, or about as heavy as water.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

ENGINES

MARINE:—

[illegible]

STATIONARY:—

[illegible] Send for complete list, also catalogue of new ones.

GUARANTEE MOTOR CO.
HAMILTON, ONTARIO

THE OLD MAID.

(Buffalo News)

[illegible]

The [illegible] of beloved memory [illegible] And for no reward other than grateful remembrance.

Old maid!

There is no irreverence in the term. If there were, men would never utter it.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

Safest of Vaults.

The bank vault in the new offices of J. P. Morgan, at Broad and Wall streets, New York, is the largest in the world, and, it is said, the most secure. It represents an expenditure of $200,000, and the door alone, which was made of Harveyized armor steel, cost $75,000. The vestibule of the door is 11 feet 6 inches in diameter, and the door itself 9 feet in diameter, with a thickness of 45½ inches. It is controlled by two 3-inch bolts, which in turn are controlled by two combination locks, and these by a time lock. The door swings on a crane hinge with heavy-pressure mechanisms to force it to its seat and to make the joint tight. This prevents the introduction of any explosive of a liquid nature. The plates are made of the full thickness, and are not held together by screws or bolts, but are dovetailed on the inner edges. After being fitted tightly together wedges are driven on the inside to hold the plates solidly in their place. The door and vestibule attached to it weigh 120 tons. Despite its enormous size, the door has been so accurately constructed that when closed it will make an air-tight and water-tight joint.

OWN YOUR HOME

(Montreal Evening News)

The man and woman who have begun saving for a home are laying the securest foundation of a successful life.

THE JITNEY BUS.

Live Subject Treated by a Disgruntled Patron.

A San Francisco paper printed this beautiful and touching poem:

It was raining
And it was late
And a jitney bus
Came along
And I got in
And some more got in
And it was full,
But then went right on
Picking 'em up
Till there were four
On the running boards,
And a tall man
With whiskers
On my side
Put his head in
And the rain
Dripped from his beard
Into my lap
And he said:
"I've been going about
For years
In crowded cars
And I'm thankful
To the man
Who started
These jitney buses."
And just then
We stopped
In a hurry
And he did a pivot
On the running board
And very nearly
Tore his head off
In the framework
On the top,
And we started again
And he said:
"There ought to be a law
To make a street
Car company
Give everybody
Seats."
And he put his head in
And dripped water
All over me
Again
And said:
"Would you mind
Reaching out
And taking hold
Of the sleeve
Of my coat?
I can't hold on Any longer."
And I did,
And we got off
At the same corner
And he kept me standing
In the rain
While he roasted the Street-car company.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

DEATH HOOK OF THE AIR.

Bomb Device Evolved by an American to Destroy Dirigibles.

The horrors of the Zeppelin dirigibles seem now to have encountered an invention that will put them out of action and end their apparently irresistible bomb dropping. It is an American invention, that of Joseph A. Steinmetz, president of he Aero Club of Philadelphia. It is a destroyer of aircraft, said to be farther reaching than any bomb dropping device or aerial gun invented. It bears the same relation that the torpedo destroyer does to a navy.

An aeroplane cannot carry the amount of explosive that a dirigible can, but it is faster and the Steinmetz device is to destroy dirigibles as well as other aeroplanes, for it is to be mounted on the swiftest of planes. It is a bomb with contact devices, hooks springing out on all sides.

It is let down by a slender wire from the aeroplane, which swiftly mounts above the slower dirigible. When the latter comes in contact with the wire this draws up until the hooks of the bombs, like the tentacles of a spider, become attached, and the explosion follows. The apparatus is simple and is characterized as one of the most terrible of death dealing devices.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

Metals at Absolute Zero.

Prof. Olen has recently published some interesting observations on the behaviour of metals at the absolute zero of temperature. The infinite electrical conductivity of metals at absolute zero, which has been rendered very probable by the work of Kamerlingh Onnes, is explained if we assume that the distribution of molecules at the lowest temperature is perfectly regular, so that the displacement of electrons along certain lines encounters no resistance. By increasing the temperature the molecules are set in a state of thermal agitation and the free path of the electrons is reduced; whence the electric conductivity is reduced also. It appears probable that temperature evaporation affects only the mean free path and not the number of electrons nor their mean velocity.

A GOOD FASHION.

(Buffalo News)

A fashion note says "Men's trousers are to be made with full pockets," which is sufficient foundation for a better pun than usually creeps into the newspapers.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT myself as well as prescribed it in my practice where a liniment was required, and have never failed to get the desired effect.

C. A. KING, M. D.

NO SQUEALER.

(Detroit Free Press)

Johnson may have lived like a dog, but he died like a man. His most bitter hater, white or black, can do him that honor. There have been champions of the Caucasian race who saw their laurels swiped from them with less commendable [illegible].

And he took his defeat man-fashion. There was no whimper, no excuse, no plea that he was drugged. "I was beaten by a better man," was his only comment. It is the fitting farewell of a champion to his honors.

CARE FOR YOUR HAIR

By Frequent Shampoos with Cuticura Soap. Trial Free.

Precede shampoos by touches of Cuticura Ointment if needed to spots of dandruff, itching and irritation of the scalp. Nothing better for the complexion, hair, hands or skin than these fragrant supercreamy emollients. Also as substitutes for expensive toilet preparations.

Sample Each Free by Mail

With 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston, U.S.A. Sold throughout the world.

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Apply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.

BARBER SHOP—TWO CHAIRS—POOL room, three tables, books, will show [illegible] two hundred month, best town [illegible] Ontario, thousand cash, five hundred time. J. H. [illegible], [illegible], Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE.

$12,000 ONE HUNDRED ACRES grain and stock farm between Burlington and Appleby. Solid brick house, two bank barns, splendid water, clay loam. Owner will take house part exchange and leave $6,000 mortgage. Send your requirements. Have large list of farms in Ontario and Western Provinces on easy terms. Apply, J. R. La France, 209 Clyde Block, Hamilton, Ont.

TWO ADJOINING SECTIONS—SAS[illegible] miles from elevator; beautiful creek; for quick sale at [illegible] value. R. B. Harrison, Owen Sound, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE—IN COUNTIES of Victoria, Peterboro and Haliburton. Fenelon [illegible] Train and Crowe, [illegible].

104 ACRES — AT ENNISKILLEN — choicest level land, clay loam; in high state of cultivation; ten acres fine orchard; eleven-roomed brick house; barn, 85 x 40; stone stable, cement floor, litter carrier; driving sheds, pig pens, hen houses; well watered; well fenced; fall plowing all done; price, eight thousand, with reasonable cash payment. R. J. Ashton, 126 Simcoe street, Toronto.

MANITOBA IMPROVED FARMS—A full section on half crop payments, fully equipped with stock, implements, seed and feed, close to market and school; good water; small cash payment to good man; also two good half sections, improved and fully equipped on same terms. We specialize in this class of farms and handle real bargains only. Wilkinson Land Co., 101 Carlton Bldg., Winnipeg, Man.

GENTLEMEN'S FARM—31 ACRES; 14 room house; basement barn, will accomodate twenty head cattle; large drive shed; granary; hen house; land gently rolling and sloping to south; two wells; good spring; 75 apple trees; forty plums; quanty peaches; pears; grapes; fine maple grove; few implements; price $7,500; $1,500 down; balance easy terms. Lewis, 530 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

3 ACRES—MOST SUITABLE TO ANYone in the chicken business; large brick dwelling and good outbuildings. 1½ acres; large, well-built, solid brick dwelling; good barn, and land of the best; some fruit. Apply, C. F. Saunders, Burford, Ont.

FOR SALE—FOUR FIRST-CLASS IMproved quarter sections in famous Jack Fish Lake Summer Resort and farming district. Few hundred cash will handle. Write owner. Terms to suit purchaser. F. W. Tobey, Meota, Sask.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SEED CORN

Prize-winning Wisconsin No. 7; the best for the [illegible]. George R. West & Sons, Northwood, R. R. No. 1.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Earn lots of pocket money working for us. Send no money, just Your Name and Address and we will send you full particulars free.

ECLIPSE SPECIALTY CO.,
52 Jackson Block, Edmonton, Alta.

Shoes in Olden Days.

Early Britons wore shoes of raw cowhide with their hairy surface outward. The Anglo-Saxons showed an advance, for they were black and laced by a leather thong. Then came what might almost be termed the bag shoe of the Merovingian period, tied around the ankle, a similar easy sort of covering obtaining in Germany, and so by gradual stages from the [illegible] shoe to the poulaine shoes, a queer early German specimen, the band round the ankle being of engraved brass.—London Spectator.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 8, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Odd Effects of Hydrochloric Acid

Some very singular and unexplained effects of hydrochloric acid upon silica are brought out in M. Armand Gautier's paper recently read before the Academie des Sciences. In his recent experiments on this subject Gautier finds that the effect of the acid varies widely according to the form of the silica. In the shape of rock crystal the acid attacks it but slightly. Some action can be detected when the crystal is cut parallel to the axis, but it is practically nothing upon the surface when cut across the axis. The reason for this difference is unknown as yet.

Sore Corns Go!

Absolutely Painless

No cutting, no plasters or pads to press the sore spot. PUTNAM'S EXTRACTOR makes the corn go without pain. Takes out the sting overnight. Never fails—leaves no scar. Get a 25c bottle of PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR to-day.

Why We Oppose Pockets fo Women.

1. Because pockets are not a n ural right.

2. Because the great majority of men did not want pockets. If th did, they would have them.

3. Because whenever women have had pockets they have not used the

4. Because women are expected carry enough things as it is with the additional burden of pockets.

5. Because it would make dissen between husband and wife as whose pockets were to be filled,

6. Because it would destroy chivalry toward woman if he did have to carry all her things in pockets.

7. Because men are men and women are women. We must not fly in the face of nature.

8. Because pockets have been used by men to carry tobacco, pipes, whiskey flasks, chewing-gum and compromising letters. We see no reason to suppose that women would use them more wisely.—New York Tribune.

THE PERFECT MAN.

(Detroit Free Press)

[illegible] for what they carry in their heads.

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1915.

TO OUR LIBERAL FRIENDS.

The Tory Government is hovering between two opinions. It is afraid to delay the general election until next year, because it knows that if the war was over it would be beaten on its record of extravagance and mismanagement, and it is afraid to take the plunge now while the people are shocked at the contract scandal revelations. Its only chance it imagines is to flaunt the flag once more and have a khaki election, hoping to carry the people off their feet with their drums beating and their flags flying. Whatever the Tories may do at present they will be forced to the country some day [illegible] and the Liberal party should [illegible] to meet them before the people. We have the boot scandal, the drug scandal, the horse scandal, the binocular scandal, etc., with the middleman running all through them. We have the increased taxation, called war taxes, although we are borrowing the money from Britain to carry on our share of the war, none of which will have to be paid back after the war is over. Then we have the slap in the face of the old country by the reduction of the British preference. In fact the increased taxes are to meet the extravagant outlay of the Government. Here is a record that ought to open the eyes of the electors, taken from the public accounts of 1914, the Government's own figures. As to taxation under the Laurier Government the figures show that in 1908-09 the taxation amounted to $[illegible], in 1909-10, $[illegible],409,000, and in 1910-11, the last year of Liberal rule, the taxation amounted to $89,825,000. Under the Borden Government in 1911-12, the taxation of the people rose to $10[illegible],847,000, in 1912-13 to $1[illegible],002,000, and in 1913-14 it was $127,478,000.

Now let us take the ordinary expenditures under the two Governments. Under Laurier in 1908-09, the expenditure was $84,064,000; in 1909-10, $79,411,000, and in 1910-11, $87,774,000. When Borden came into power in 1911-12, the expenditure jumped up to $98,161,000, in 1912-13 to $112,059,060, and in 1913-14, $127,384,000. Comment is unnecessary.

THE SERBIAN HORRORS.

G. M. Trevelyan, member of the committee of the Serbian relief fund, 23 Berners street, London, has recently returned from a tour of investigation of Serbia, and he writes to the Contemporary Review, telling of some of the horrors he came across while on his pilgrimage. He says that the ravaged regions of northwest Serbia were, in July last, among the richest agricultural districts in Europe, and are still among the most beautiful. They are strikingly like Devon. A better, happier state of society does not exist in Europe, least of all in oligarchic Hungary, whence have come the hordes who have sacked these farms and murdered so many of their inmates. Every house that the enemy entered has been sacked, and near Shabatz the great majority of the houses had been not only gutted, but unroofed and destroyed. Shabatz was probably for its size the richest town in Serbia, but of two thousand houses five hundred are burnt to the ground and all the rest gutted; not a room was left unsacked.

The town of Lesnitsa has been completely destroyed [illegible]. It was in the district of [illegible] that the atrocities took place in August at the hands of Magyar troops. The Serbian Government memorandum on these atrocities, and the report of the commission on which sat Dr. Arbis Van Tienhoven, of The Hague, and M. Jules Schmidt, of Switzerland, have already been given to the world. The inhabitants of Shabatz town and district remained in their homes during the first invasion in August, supposing the Austrians to be a civilized people. The invaders, it is calculated, murdered more than two thousand civilians, and carried off two thousand more. The prefect showed Mr. Trevelyan a list of the names, ages and fate of one thousand persons murdered, ascertained on the oath of their neighbors and on the evidence of the identified corpses. Of these he copied out sixty as examples. Here are given a few examples from [illegible] village, where [illegible] bodies were found.

Glisha Maksimovitch, age 72, eyes gouged out; killed.

Stanika Gajitch, woman, age 7[illegible], stabbed many times, killed.

Two girls named Zagorka, aged [illegible] and 10, and their brother, Borisa Zagorka, age [illegible], killed.

Gavra Rakitch, age 85; burnt alive.

At Prnjavor a large number of mothers, with their children aged from three days and upwards, were shut up in their houses and burnt alive. He has their names. Vojislav Koulezitch, aged eight months, was thrown into the flames after his father and mother had been killed. The ways in which a number of women and girls met their deaths in Nedeljen village are too horrible to be printed. After this experience in August it was natural that in October and November, during the later and more extensive Austrian invasion, the whole population fled in good time. Hence the refugee and repatriation problems in Serbia today are entirely due to the Austro-Hungarian atrocities in August.

We hold up our hands in horror at the atrocities committed by the Germans in Belgium. But they pale into insignificance compared with the deeds done by the Magyars in Serbia. The Germans have shot and maimed hundreds of Belgians and committed many wanton atrocities, if all stories be true. But these well authenticated stories of Serbian horrors cry to high heaven for vengeance. It is devil's work, not man's.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Prin. Eitel preferred to be interned rather than interred.

◆

Keir Hardie is about as popular in Britain to-day as [illegible].

◆

Toronto's Mayor is forbidding men to enlist for the front. He is a good old Tory, too.

◆

The Government bought soldiers' "housewives" for 57½ cents a set, when they could have been bought for [illegible] cents a set.

◆

Valcartier farmers complain that they were dispossessed of their farms against their will and not properly remunerated for their loss.

◆

Charles E. [illegible], the man who made so much money as a go-between in the boot contracts, was put on the patronage list privately, whatever that may mean.

◆

The Dominion Government has added [illegible] thousand persons to the Civil [illegible]. No wonder the country is hard up.

◆

Col. James McBain bought the Valcartier camp ground for the Government for the sum of $250,250, for which he received a commission of $12,000. This may be why we are paying war taxes.

◆

Major-General Sam Hughes evoked in a rare sense the admiration and confidence of the people of Canada.—London Free Press.

Yes. They admire his nerve for thinking better men than himself.

◆

The revelations keep pouring in. The latest is that the Deputy Speaker's sister has been supplying thousands of dollars' worth of drugs to the Militia Department without tender. She raised her prices, too.

◆

The "Made-in-Canada" propaganda is in line with the increase of the tariff. But if the people are to buy nothing but made-in-Canada goods, where will the revenue come from? The increased taxation will bring none, if no foreign goods are bought.

◆

A progressive business man in Ottawa remarked the other day "I helped to put Laurier in and I voted to put him out again, and," he added, "I would vote to put the present group out." This statement is from the Ottawa Citizen, which is situated close to the scandal factory.

◆

The Buffalo News is sarcastic over the decision of the commander of the Eitel to stay in safe waters. It says:

"I have decided not to deliver crew and ship to fruitless and certain destruction," Commander Thierichens' message to the Government is well spoken. In another man it might have been mistaken for a desire to evade danger. Commander Thierichens' record for dash and daring dispels the [illegible] suggestion.

◆

The Kingston Whig protests against what it calls extravagance in salary of the Provincial Hydro-Electric Commission. It says:

Two of the commissioners are always under salary, Sir Adam Beck and Hon. Mr. Lucas. [illegible] of the commission at a salary of $[illegible] per annum. The other is Attorney-General at a [illegible] of $[illegible]. With the addition provided under the Hydro [illegible] Sir Adam will have $12,000 a year and Mr. Lucas $10,000, [illegible] more than the Premier of Ontario receives, and [illegible] the other $[illegible] more.

And the municipalities pay the [illegible] salaries.

◆

The graft scandals smell all over Canada. The Vancouver Saturday Sunset says:

As the investigation into army graft continues, one seems to [illegible] manufacturers [illegible] sink in the [illegible]. The man who [illegible] boots to the soldiers who are fighting for the freedom of humankind against Prussian aggression and brutality is not worthy of the name of man. He is a filthy profiteer, a traitor to his country and to his fellowmen. To call him a criminal is an insult to the murderer or thief, whose motives, at least, are less reprehensible than those of [illegible] traitors.

If You Wish to Be Well You Must Keep the Bowels Regular.

If the bowels do not move regularly they will, sooner or later, become constipated, and constipation is productive of more ill health than almost any other trouble.

The sole cause of constipation is an inactive liver, and unless the liver is kept active you may rest assured that headaches, jaundice, heartburn, piles, floating specks before the eyes, a feeling as if you were going to faint, or catarrh of the stomach will follow the wrong action of this, one of the most important organs of the body.

Keep the liver active and working properly by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills.

Mrs. Elijah A. Ayer, Fawcett Hill, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with constipation for many years, and about [illegible] to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, as they [illegible]. I got a vial and took them, and by the time I had taken three vials I was cured. I always keep them on hand, and when I need a mild laxative I take one."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE Changeling

"Why, no," answered Mag, beginning to grow a little mystified. "The dead have nothing to do with it. You tried to put on me when I was a baby and that's what makes you crazy. Isn't it so? Grandma thought it was, when I told her how you talked last night."

There was a heavy load lifted from Hagar's heart, and she answered calmly, but somewhat indignantly, "So you told. I thought I could trust you, Maggie."

Instantly the tears came to Maggie's eyes, and, coloring crimson, she said: "I didn't mean to tell, indeed I didn't, but I forgot all about your charge. Forgive me, Hagar," she sinking on the floor she looked up in Hagar's face so pleadingly that the old woman was softened, and answered, gently: "You are like the [illegible] of your sex, Margaret. No woman but Hagar Warren ever kept a secret, and it's killing her, you see."

"Don't keep it then," said Mag. "Tell it to me. Confess that you tried to poison me because you envied grandma," and the girl very looked with an anxious expression into the dark, wild orbs of Hagar, who replied: "Envy was at the bottom of it all, but I never tried to harm you, Margaret, in any way. I only thought to do you good. You have not guessed it. You cannot, and you must not try."

"Tell it to me, then. I want to know it so badly," persisted Mag, her curiosity each moment increasing.

"Maggie Miller," said old Hagar, and the knitting dropped from her fingers, which moved slowly on till they reached and touched the little snow-flake of a hand resting on her knee, "Maggie Miller, if you knew that the telling of that secret would make you perfectly wretched, would you wish to hear it?"

For a moment Mag was silent, and then, half laughingly she replied, "I'd risk it, Hagar, for I never wanted to know anything half so bad in all my life. Tell it to me, won't you?"

Very beautiful looked Maggie Miller then. Her straw hat sat jauntily on one side of her head. Her glossy hair combed smoothly back, her soft lustrous eyes shining with eager curiosity, and her cheeks flushed with excitement. Very, very beautiful she seemed to the old woman, who in her intense longing to take the bright creature to her bosom was for an instant sorely tempted.

"Margaret!" she began, and at the sound of her voice the young girl shuddered involuntarily. "Margaret!" she said again, but ere another word was uttered the autumn wind, which for the last half hour had been rising rapidly, came roaring down the wide mouthed chimney, and the heavy fireboard fell upon the floor with a tremendous crash, nearly crushing old Hagar's feet, and driving for a time all thoughts of the secret from Maggie's mind. "Served me right," murmured Hagar, as Maggie left the room for water with which to bathe the swollen feet. "Served me right, and if ever I'm tempted to tell her again may every bone in my body be smashed!"

The feet were carefully bathed by Maggie's own hands, tenderly bandaged up, and then with a redoubled zeal, she returned to the attack, pressing old Hagar so hard that the large drops of perspiration gathered thickly about her forehead and lips, which were white as ashes. Wearied at last, Mag gave it up for the time being, but her curiosity was thoroughly aroused, and for many days she persisted in her importunity, until at last, in self-defense, old Hagar, when she saw her coming, would steal away to the low roofed chamber and hiding behind a pile of rubbish, would listen breathlessly, while Margaret hunted for her in vain. Then when she was gone, she would crawl out from her hiding place covered with cobwebs and dust, and mutter to herself, "I never expected it, and it's more than I can bear. Why will she torment me so, when a knowledge of the secret would drive her mad!"

Yes, however, Maggie Miller did not know. Blessed with an uncommon degree of curiosity, which increased each time she saw old Hagar, she resolved to solve the mystery which she felt sure was connected with herself, though in what manner she could not guess. "But I will know," she would say to herself when returning from a fruitless quizzing of old Hagar, whose hiding place she had at last discovered. "I will know what it is about me. I shall never be quite happy till I do."

Ah, Maggie, Maggie, be happy while you can, and leave the secret alone. It will come to you soon enough, soon enough!

CHAPTER V.

Very rapidly the winter passed away, and one spring day early in March, Mag went down to the cottage with the news that Madam Conway was [illegible] immediately" [illegible] where she had business which would probably detain her until fall.

"Oh, won't I have fun in her absence!" she cried. "I'll [illegible] [illegible] in the neighborhood. [illegible] kept Theo and me cooped up like two wild animals, but now I'm going to [illegible] the world. I don't mean to study a bit, and instead of visiting you twice a day, I shall come at least three times."

"The Lord help me!" ejaculated old Hagar, who, much as she loved Maggie, was beginning to dread her daily visits.

"Why, do you want [illegible]?" asked Maggie, laughingly. "Are you tired of me, Hagar? Don't you like me any more?"

"Like you, Maggie Miller! like you!" repeated old Hagar, and in the tones of her voice there was a world of tenderness and love. "There's nothing on earth I love as I do you, but you worry me to death sometimes."

"Oh, yes, I know," answered Mag, "but I'm not going to tease you awhile. I shall have so much else to do when grandma is gone that I shall forget it. I wish she wasn't so proud," she continued after a moment. "I wish she'd let Theo and me see a little more of the world than she does. I wonder how she ever expects us to get married, if she mewleds(?) [illegible] us here in the woods like two young savages. Why, as true as you live, Hagar, I have never been anywhere in my life, except to church Sundays, once to Douglass' store, in Worcester, once to Patty Thompson's funeral, and once to Methodist camp-meeting, and I never spoke to more than a dozen men besides the minister and the schoolboys. It's too bad!" and Maggie's cheeks quite becomingly at the injustice done her by her grandmother in keeping her thus secluded. "Then I don't care," she said. "She is proud for what I am, and she's not wish to know the Yankees, as grandma calls the folks in this country; but I'm glad I am a Yankee. I wouldn't live in England for anything."

"You mustn't say Grandmother [illegible] with her," said Hagar, who in a [illegible] sympathized with Maggie in her feeling thus isolated.

"[illegible]," answered Mag. "It will be time enough two years hence, when I'm eighteen and Theo twenty. Then I believe she intends taking us to London, where we can show off our accomplishments, and practice that wonderful courtesy which Mrs. Jeffrey [illegible] taught us. I suppose the Queen will be astonished at our qualifications, and with a merry laugh, as the thought of the appearance she should make at the Court of St. James, Mag leaped on Gritty's back and bounded away, while Hagar looked wistfully after her, saying as she wiped the tears from her eyes, "Heaven bless the girl! She mustn't sit on the throne of England, nor Mag, and Victoria wouldn't disgrace herself at all by [illegible] her [illegible] [illegible] even if she is a child of Hagar Warren."

As Maggie had said, Madam Conway was going to England. At first she thought of taking the young ladies with her, but, thinking they were hardly old enough yet to be removed from her [illegible], she decided to leave them under the supervision of Mrs. Jeffrey, whose niece she promised to bring with her on her return to America. Upon her departure she bade Theo and Mag a most affectionate adieu, adding:

"Be good girls while I am away, keep in the house, mind Mrs. Jeffrey, [illegible]."

This last injunction came rather late, from the old lady, to whom the idea of their falling in love was quite as preposterous as to them.

"Fall in love," repeated Maggie, [illegible], while [illegible] was driving slowly home. "What could grandma mean? I wonder who there is for us to love, unless it be John the coachman, or Bill, the gardener. I must wish we could get in love, though, just to see how it would seem, don't you?" she continued.

"Not with anybody here," answered Theo, her nose slightly elevated at the [illegible] of people whom she had been educated to despise.

"[illegible] not here as well as elsewhere," said Maggie. "I don't see any difference. The grandma needn't be troubled, for such things as uncles hardly ever come near our house. I think [illegible], though," she continued, "but we don't know anybody, either male or female. Let's go down to Worcester some day and get acquainted. Don't you remember the two handsome young men whom we saw three years ago in Douglass' store, and how they winked at each other when grandma [illegible] down their goods, and said she'd [illegible] [illegible] anything in this [illegible] [illegible] of the salver?"

On most subjects Theo's memory was treacherous, but she remembered perfectly well the two young men, particularly the taller one, who had given her a remnant of blue ribbon which he said was just the color of her eyes. Still the idea of going to Worcester did not strike her favorably. "She thought Worcester would come to them," she said, "but she would not dare to go there. Their grandmother would not like it and Mrs. Jeffrey would not [illegible] [illegible] even if they wished."

"[illegible] ma," said Maggie. "I won't mind her much. I'm going to have a real good time, doing just as I please, and if you are wise, you will do the same."

"I suppose I shall do what you [illegible]. I always do," answered Theo, [illegible], and thus the conversation ceased.

Arrived at home they found dinner awaiting them, and Maggie, when seated, suggested to Mrs. Jeffrey that [illegible] two weeks just long enough for them to get rested and visit the neighborhood. But this Mrs. Jeffrey refused to do.

"[illegible] had [illegible] to keep them [illegible]," she said, and sternly she [illegible] at the same time she [illegible] in the school room on the morrow. Theo, [illegible] looked at Maggie, but her tongue [illegible] [illegible], and when next morning [illegible] repaired to the school room, she was surprised at hearing from Mrs. Jeffrey that every book had disappeared from the desk where they were usually kept, and though the room was searched at long, [illegible] [illegible] lady [illegible] might, not Theo [illegible] [illegible] found.

"[illegible] has hidden them, I know," said Theo as soon as the mischievous [illegible].

"Margaret wouldn't do such a thing, [illegible]," answered Mrs. Jeffrey, her face and manner indicating a little doubt, nevertheless, as to the truth of her assertions.

But Maggie had hidden them, and no amount of coaxing could persuade her to bring them back. "You promised me a vacation when I asked for it," she said, "and I am going to have it, perforce," and playfully catching up the little dame, she stood in the very center of the room she carried her out upon the [illegible], and seating her in a large [illegible] chair, bade her rest, and comfort [illegible] as long as she liked.

Mrs. Jeffrey knew perfectly well that Maggie in reality was mistress of the house, that whatever she did Madam Conway would ultimately sanction, and as a rest was to be secured, she yielded with a good grace, dividing her time between [illegible] and dreaming, while Theo lounged upon the sofa and devoured some musty old novels which Maggie, in her [illegible], had [illegible].

Meanwhile, Maggie kept her promise of visiting the neighbors, and almost every family had something to say in praise of the merry light-hearted girl, of whom they had heretofore known but little. Her favorite recreation, however, was riding on horseback, and almost every day she galloped through the woods and over the fields, usually terminating her ride with a call upon old Hagar, whom she still continued to tease unmercifully for the secret, and who was glad when at last an incident occurred which for a time drove all thoughts of the secret from Maggie's mind.

CHAPTER VI.

One afternoon toward the middle of April, when Maggie, as usual, was flying through the woods, she paused for a moment beneath the shadow of a sycamore, while Gritty drank from a small running brook. The pony having quenched his thirst, she gathered up her reins for a fresh gallop, when her ear caught the sound of another horse's hoofs; and looking back, she saw approaching her at a rapid rate a gentleman whom she knew to be a stranger. Not caring to be overtaken, she chirruped to the spirited Gritty, who, bounding over the velvety turf, left the unknown rider far in the rear.

"Who can she be?" thought the young man, admiring the utter fearlessness with which she rode, then, feeling a little piqued as he saw how the distance between them was increasing, he exclaimed, "I'll see who she is, be she witch, I'll overtake her!" and, whistling to his own fleet animal, he too dashed on at a fearful rate.

"Trying to catch me, are you?" thought Maggie. "I'd laugh to see you do it," and entering at once into the spirit of the race she rode on for a time with headlong speed. Then, by the way of tantalizing her pursuer, she paused for a moment until he had almost reached her, when, at a sensible whistle, Gritty sprang forward, while Maggie's mocking laugh was borne back to the discomfited young man, whose interest in the daring girl increased every moment. It was a long, hard chase she led him, over hills, across the plains, and through the grassy valley, until she stopped at last within a hundred yards of the deep, narrow gorge, through which the millstream ran.

"I have you now," thought the stranger, who knew by the dull, roaring sound of the water that a chasm lay between him and the opposite bank.

But Maggie had not yet half displayed her daring feats of horsemanship, and when he came so near that her waving locks and handsome dark eyes were plainly discernible, she said to herself: "He rides tolerably well. I'll see how good he is at a leap," and seating herself more firmly in the saddle, she patted Gritty upon the neck. The well-trained animal understood the signal, and rearing high in the air was fast nearing the bank, when the young man, suspecting her design, shouted out: "Stop, lady, stop! it's madness to attempt it!"

"Follow me if you can!" was Maggie's defiant answer, and the next moment [illegible] in midair over the dark abyss.

Involuntarily the young man closed his eyes, while his ear listened anxiously for the cry which would come next. But Maggie knew full well what she was doing. She had leaped that narrow [illegible] often, and now, when [illegible] [illegible] on the opposite bank, caressing the noble animal which had borne her safely there.

"It shall never be said that Henry Warner was beaten by a schoolgirl," muttered the stranger. "If she can clear that, I can, too, rider as I am," and burying his spurs deep in the sides of his horse he pressed on, while Maggie held her breath in fear, for she knew that without practice no one could do what she had done.

There was a partially successful plunge—a fierce struggle on the slippery bank where the animal had caught a few feet from the top, then [illegible] [illegible] panting on terra firma, while a piercing shriek broke the air. [illegible] of the steed, and Maggie's cheeks blanched to a marble hue. The rider, either from dizziness or fear, had fallen at the moment the horse first struck the bank, and from the [illegible] [illegible] rose [illegible] [illegible] first.

"[illegible] dead—he's dead!" cried Maggie. "'Twas my own foolishness which killed him," and springing from Gritty's back she gathered up her long riding skirt and glided swiftly down the rock until she came to a wide [illegible] path, where the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and still his white face upturned to the sunlight, which came stealing down through the overhanging leaves. In an instant she was at his side, and his head was resting on her lap, while her trembling fingers parted back from his pale face the damp locks of curling hair.

"The fall alone would not kill him," she said, as her eye measured the distance, and then she looked anxiously round for water with which to bathe his face.

But water there was none, save in the stream below, whose murmuring flow fell mockingly on her ears, for it seemed to her she could not reach it. But Maggie Miller was equal to any emergency, and venturing out to the very verge of the rock she poised herself on one foot and looked down the dizzy height, to see if it were possible to descend.

"I can do it, at least," she said, and glancing at the pale face of the stranger, unhesitatingly [illegible] to descend(?) it.

The descent was less difficult than she had anticipated, and in an incredibly short space of time she was dipping her tasteful velvet cap in the brook whose sparkling foam had never before been disturbed by the touch of a hand as soft and fair as hers. To ascend was not so easy a matter, but, chamois-like, Maggie's feet trod safely the dangerous path, and she soon knelt by the unconscious man, bathing his forehead in the clear, cold water, until he showed signs of returning life. His lips moved slowly at last, as if he would speak, and Maggie, bending low to catch the faintest sound, heard him utter the name of "Rose." In Maggie's bosom there was no feeling for the stranger, save that of pity, and yet that one word, "Rose," thrilled her with a strange, undefinable emotion, awakening at once a yearning desire to know something of her who bore that beautiful name, and who, to the young man, was undoubtedly the one in all the world most dear.

(To be continued.)

That Explained It.

"I say, I have just come from my landlord's and—would you believe it?—I had the greatest difficulty in the world to get him to accept a little money from me."

"Nonsense! And why, pray?"

"Well, because he wanted a lot!"—Liverpool Mercury.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson IV., April 25, 1915.

David and Goliath.—I. Samuel 17: 1-54. Print 17: 38-51.

Commentary.—I. Goliath's challenge and David's acceptance (vs. 1-37). 1-11. The armies of the Philistines and of the Israelites were facing each other in a narrow part of the valley of Elah. The crests of the hills are about a mile apart and five or six hundred feet high. One army occupied the highland on the north, and the other the highland on the south. For one army to leave its place of defence and descend into the plain and ascend the hill on the other side would be to give the other army an advantage and invite defeat. Each army waited thus day after day hoping that the other would leave its place of security, but neither would do so. At last the Philistines challenged the Israelites to decide the struggle by single combat. They named Goliath as their champion, who offered to fight any one of Israel. It was probable that he was the remnant of the Anakim, nearly all of whom Joshua destroyed, which remnant became identified with the Philistines. Goliath was from eight to ten feet in height. The cubit is the length of the forearm from the tip of the middle finger to the point of the elbow, hence varies so much that the cubit is said to be from sixteen to twenty-one inches. He wore metallic armor weighing from ninety to one hundred and fifty pounds, and his spear weighed from twelve to eighteen pounds. He had a man to carry his shield before him to protect him.

12-37. David's three eldest brothers were in Saul's army and Jesse sent him from Bethlehem to the valley of Elah with food for them. When he saw Goliath's defiance of Israel and the true God, his courage arose and he declared that he was willing to meet the giant. His eldest brother would have David be quiet, but word came to Saul of David's offer and he sent for him. Saul doubted the ability of the youth to fight successfully against the experienced giant, but when David related his combat with a lion and a bear and expressed his faith in God, he consented to let him act as the champion of Israel.

II. David's armor (vs. 38-40). 38. Saul armed David with his armor—"Saul clad David with his apparel."—R.V. It seemed to Saul that David [illegible] be properly clothed and protected if he was going into battle with such a powerful adversary as Goliath. a helmet of brass—In ancient warfare the vital parts of the body, and in many instances the entire body, were protected with armor that would resist the strokes of the sword or spear. coat of mail—A garment consisting of small, overlapping sheets of metal to cover the upper part of the body. 39. girded his sword—The sword was worn suspended from a belt. assayed—Attempted. have not proved them—David had had no experience in the use of such weapons as these, hence he distrusted his ability to use them successfully. 40. staff—The shepherd's crook. chose him five smooth stones—Smooth stones would pass more easily through the air than rough, and would be more likely to hit the mark. out of the brook—Through the centre of the valley ran a brook in the ravine, and there was an abundance of pebbles in the bed of the stream. scrip—A skin bag for carrying his belongings.

III. Goliath's boast (vs. 41-44). 41. The man that bare the shield—Goliath, mighty in physical strength and clad with weighty metallic armor, advanced toward David accompanied by his shield-bearer. David was alone, a youth and with no weapon of defense. 42. Disdained him—Goliath felt insulted when an unarmored youth presented himself for combat against him. A youth—He may have been from 20 to 25 years of age. Ruddy—Auburn-haired. 43. Am I a dog—It was customary for combatants before engaging in a fight to hurl abusive remarks at each other. Goliath's speech was [illegible], but David's was full of [illegible] trust in the God of Israel. The giant considered the staff a fit instrument with which to punish that despised animal, the dog. Cursed David by his gods. The gods of the Philistines were Dagon, Baal and Ashtoreth. Goliath called down upon David the curses of these gods. 44. I will give thy flesh, etc.—The giant believed he could easily vanquish his adversary. He had no regard for God, in whose name David trusted. He was boastful, and it was only a few minutes until his boasting was shown to be in vain.

IV. David's victory (vs. 45-54). 45. Then said David—It was not simply a contest of man with man, but of the true God with false gods. David expressed his firm reliance upon his God. 46. The Lord will deliver thee into mine hand—Goliath boasted in [illegible], but David depended upon Jehovah. That all the earth may know—David was not considering his own exaltation from the expected victory, but had the honor of God in view. 47. The battle is the Lord's—From a human standpoint the advantage was entirely in Goliath's favor. His helmet of brass, his coat of mail, greaves and shield promised complete protection from any missile his youthful antagonist could hurl, but David looked higher than the natural. He believed God would interpose in his behalf. 48. David hasted—He was eager to meet and defeat the foe of God and Israel. 49. Smote the Philistine in his forehead—The stone either struck an unprotected spot or pierced the giant's helmet. Some suppose that Goliath raised his head either in taking aim [illegible] or in laughing in disdain at his antagonist, and thus exposed his forehead to the missile. David did his best in slinging the stone and trusting God, and God gave the victory. 50. No sword in the hand of David—There was given him a sword when Saul put his armor upon him, but he had laid it aside for the weapon with which he was familiar, and which proved to be the one weapon with which he could successfully meet his great opponent. 51. Philistines . . . fled—According to the arrangement previously made they were defeated, for Goliath, their champion, had been slain by the champion of the Israelites.

Questions.—What positions did the armies of Israel and the Philistines occupy in the opening of the lesson? What plan was offered for deciding who should be the victor? Describe Goliath and his armor. How long did Goliath defy Israel? Describe the coming of David to the camp of Israel. What offer did he make? What equipment did he have? What was the outcome of the combat? Why did David undertake the contest with Goliath?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—Faith demonstrated.

I. For the exaltation of divine power.

II. For the deliverance of Israel.

I. For the exaltation of divine power. Faith here stands alone in the person of David. Abject terror reigned throughout the entire army of Israel. The Philistines proposed to make the issue depend on a single combat between their champion and an Israelite warrior whom they might appoint to meet him. The impotence of Saul and his army without God was thereby clearly and conclusively demonstrated. It was after that humiliating demonstration that the Lord brought into the field his own champion. During his retirement David received that divine preparation which should fit him for great achievements, especially the overthrow of the adversaries of Israel. To him it was an abhorrent strength against God. With all the sincerity of gladness and force of conviction he was not afraid to let it be known that he differed from others. Faith in God gave him at once the true point of view. He felt that the cause of the armies of Israel was the cause of the living God and that the Philistines were arrayed therefore against the power of God. That the power of God is adequate to any human need was the basis of David's reasoning. The proud challenge of Goliath fully justified David's burning indignation and patriotic zeal. There was cause to act and cause to speak when God's honor was outraged. In David's sense of Goliath's sin increased in proportion as his faith in God expanded. While Israel thought of Goliath's strength, David thought of God's power. He had been living in communion with God, storing up spiritual strength, which he exhibited under circumstances which appalled the hearts of other men. There was settled within his soul a deep and holy confidence in the existence and absolute rule of the divine Being. His jealousy for the honor of the God of Israel was equal to his confidence in his ability to save. His one desire was to take away the reproach from Israel and to let all the world know that there was a God in Israel.

II. For the deliverance of Israel. Before David well knew to what he had committed himself, he found himself pledged to a deadly conflict with Goliath, the champion of idolaters. David felt the immeasurable difference between material force and moral force, between man at his broadest and God using his feeblest instrument. When the moment came for the conflict, David did not hesitate. He declared his faith to the giant that "the Lord saveth not with sword and spear." The issue proved that the Philistines laid the foundation of their own defeat when they deprived Israel of swords and spears and compelled them to try other means for the accomplishment of their deliverance. David's determination to fight only with the weapons with which he was familiar was a stroke of military genius, though his confidence rested mainly in the immutability of God, the divine worker. He who defied the armies of Israel had to reckon with the God of those armies. David was specially prepared, providentially led and inwardly impelled to the conflict. He felt the seriousness of the crisis, notwithstanding his bravery. He conquered the temptation to share in the general cowardice of the army before he conquered Goliath. Instead of being overcome by the rage of Eliab, David went on his course with the same glowing enthusiasm as before. A marvellous exhibition was given that day in the valley of Elah that those who are gentlest under provocation are strongest in the fight, and that meekness is really an attribute of might. In David simplicity and strength of heart appear throughout together with meekness, modesty, agility, courage, humility and confidence. Though the Spirit of the Lord had departed from Saul, he could recognize the workings of that Spirit and bid Godspeed to another in an exploit foreign to himself. Goliath, representing mere human force, appeared with sword and shield, helmet and spear. David, representing faith, appeared with simple sling and stone, but in God's strength and in his name. The vaunting of the Philistines were silenced by the son of Jesse. David gained three victories in quick succession: first, over the spirit of anger in Eliab, second, over the cowardice of unbelief in Israel, and, third, over the proud blasphemer, Goliath. David's victories were victories for all Israel.

T. R. A.

THE WEAK SPOT IN THE BACK.

When the kidneys get ill the back gives out.

But the back is not to blame.

The ache comes from the kidneys, which lie under the small of the back.

Therefore, dull pain in the back, or sharp, quick twinges, are warnings of sick kidneys—warnings of kidney trouble.

Plasters and liniments will not cure a bad back, for they cannot reach the kidneys which cause it.

Doan's Kidney Pills reach the kidneys themselves. They are a special kidney and bladder medicine. They heal the diseased surface of kidneys and bladder, and help them to act freely and naturally.

Mrs. Chester Romain, Fort Coulonge, Que., writes: "I had been troubled with sore back for over four years, and could get nothing to do me any good until I heard of your Doan's Kidney Pills. I got three boxes, and took them and now I am completely cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Out of the Mouths of Babes.

Mamma—Why do you ask that, my dear?

Little Lola—Well, I am afraid she won't 'cause she can't bend her knees to say her prayers.

Margie, aged 6, wanted a milkmaid's costume for her cousin's party.

"But, dear," said her mother, "such a costume would hardly be appropriate for a little girl like you."

"Oh, yes, it would, mamma," protested Margie. "I can pretend I'm a condensed milkmaid."—Chicago News.

Anxious to Please.

"You [illegible] are expected to do a kind act every day?"

"Yes," replied the Boy Scout.

"How about to-day?"

"Well, the teacher has been having a little trouble with me. Don't you think I might stay away from school and give her a rest?"

CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

Brooms, Brushes and Twines, Etc

Mr. C. Patrick has on hand a large quantity of Brooms, Brushes, Baskets, Twines, and etc. in fact all the stock carried at the Walkerton Broom Works which will be sold at a sacrifice in order to get it out of the house, as he is anxious to get the house in shape for to rent as soon as possible. Ring up the Telescope at any time for any of these lines.

C. PATRICK

Telescope Office Walkerton

Taste the Difference

USE PURITY FLOUR for one baking and every member of the family will taste the difference. Your Bread will be richer and finer flavored and your buns, rolls, cakes and pies will be pronounced delicious. The Grocer is authorized to refund your money if PURITY does not give you absolute satisfaction.

PURITY FLOUR

"MORE BREAD and BETTER BREAD" and BETTER PASTRY too

Read This!

Give the Boy or Girl a Chance of a few Months at

The Walkerton Business College

IT IS THE BEST. NONE BETTER.

ARE YOU determined to make a success in life? If so don't fail to take advantage of the Low Rates for the next

30 DAYS — 30 DAYS — 30 DAYS — 30 DAYS

Offers unexcelled advantage in Commercial and Shorthand.

Learn while you earn. Prepare yourself for future opportunities, which are sure to come after the Great War by taking up our Home Course for those who are unable to attend Day School; BY MAIL. Circulars Free.

ENTER ANY TIME! WHY NOT NOW?

College open the year round.

P.J.MOLONEY PHONE 173 Principal

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published
every Thursday morning at
Walkerton. Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in vance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY,
Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

THE KAISER'S PEACE TERMS.

In speculating about the terms of peace, those who like to indulge in the pastime can fall back on the precedent set by no less a personage than the Kaiser himself: Talking in the park of the castle of Niebowo in Russian Poland, more than two months ago, this reincarnation of Attila, addressing his modern Huns, declared for himself and his nations that, "we must neither overestimate our enemy nor underestimate our own strength. God is only with the armies of believers. The troops of our enemies have not the promise; they know not for what they are fighting or for what they are allowing themselves to be killed. The terms of peace will be dictated by me with the help of my soldier's bayonet's points." The Allies have had this fair warning and they also have had very clear intimation of what in that event the term of peace will be. The Kaiser will have no hesitation in extending the bounds of the German Empire for to the victors belong the spoils

THE WESTREN BATTLE LINE

There is some vigorous fighting going on in the western field of opoerations. There does not seem to be much doing in Belgium, but towards Metz the French are pushing their attacks vigorously. There was a rumor that the Germans had withdrawn troops from the west to help the sorely beset Austrians in the east, and the French attack is probably to hold the German forces now on the line and prevent them relieving the Austrians. The French attack has been in the regions of Woevre plain which lies between the Meuse and Moselle rivers. Ever since last fall the Germans have held a position at St. Mihiel, and all efforts of the French have failed to dislodge them. Now the French have attacked and captured Les Eparges which dominates the Woevre plain. Between this point and Metz is about twenty-five miles. Les Eparges was desperately defended, and violent attempts have been made to retake it from the French, but the French appear to dominate the situation. And yet there is no general advance and no sympton of any, and it seems probable that the Allies will for some time to come simply keep nibbling away at the German line with no decisive action but with a steady, if small advance. The reports from Neuve Chapelle indicate that the British success there was a very costly one to them as well as to the enemy.

WILL ITALY FIGHT

This is the question which Germany and Austria would like to have answered, and to have it answered in the negative; and certain of the Italian statemen also appear to be strongly of the opinion that for the present at least, neutrality is best; but the people are not so disposed, and the situation has been growing very tense during the past few days. Prince Von Buelow has left Rome; it is rumored that Germany has forbidden all exports to Italy, and she has stopped all empty homeward bound Italian freight cars at the frontier; German families are crowding from Italy into Switzerland; Italian troops are moving towards the Austrian frontier, and altogether it looks as though Italy intended to enter the fray. Some of the Italian leaders who favor war are arranging for monster demonstrations in different parts of the country to force the hand of the Government, and certain of the newspapers declare that there is a popular movement which threatens the throne itself if Italy should remain neutral. Prof. Mussolini a Socialist leader, explains the matter in this way: "If the monarchy is unable to make national war, the monarchy will cease to exist." It may be that King Victor's private fortune is at stakes as has been hinted, but on the other hand, his throne also would appear to be involved in his decision. It looks just now as though Italy would shortly solve all doubts by an invasion of the territory of her ancient Austrian foe. If she delays much longer it is just possible that Austria will have concluded a separate peace with the Allies, and, this, of course, will put an end to any possibility of Italy securing the territory which she so much covets in the Trentino. Italy would also like to be on hand when Turkey is redistributed, and this also will probably hasten her entry into the conflict.

Bruce County Council is apparently shipping its donations to Toronto, to be forwarded from there. Following is the item from the Globe: "Bruce County Council has just Paid $117.50 being its quarterly instalment to the Belgian Relief Fund of the Toronto Board of Trade."

Terribly Effective.

The loss of British officers since the outbreak of war has been far greater in proportion than that of the rank and file. The German method of paying a bonus to every sharpshooter who can show that he has killed an officer of the allied armies has proved terribly effective.

New Time Table.

Both the C. P. R. and Grand Trunk are now preparing new time tables to be issued about the middle of May, which will probably include the replacing of several trains cut off last Fall. It is to be hoped that the change will favorably effect the local schedule, which at the present is anything but satisfactory.

An Adult will do.

By a new amendment, children under fifteen years of age will in future be granted admission to moving picture theatres if accompanied by an adult, the law being shifted back to the position it held for several years. The recent requirement providing for the sponsorship of a guardian or a member from the child's household, when admission was sought, has been cancelled because of its unworkable nature and children will now be admitted if accompanied by a responsible man or woman.

Substitute for Gasoline.

After a decade of experimenting, a Hull, Que., scientist claims he has found a substitute for gasoline and a test before several officials of the Public Works Department recently, two tablespoonful of the liquid, mixed with two quarts of water, provided sufficient to run a 2½ horsepower engine for an hour and a half without stoppage. The discoverer, who is, Mr. Gideon Charboneau, of Hull, claims he will be able to manufacture the liquid which he calls "charbo-oil," in any quantity at four cents per gallon. The liquid does not give off any smoke, and the inventor asserts it will revolutionize the automobile and other industries. The hydro-electric will have a real competitor. In many cases the gasoline engines will not be discarded as was about to be done because gasoline was getting smokier and dearer.

Fire Water Turned Indian's Head.

Joe Elliot is "big Injun" at Cape Crocker, he sits at the council board and looks wise, but like lots of other human beings Joe likes fire-water and it always goes to his head, and for being drunk on the reserve he is now in the cooler in the town hall and will probably spend thirty days in jail. According to his story he was given the liquor by some boys on the reserve. But getting drunk was the least of his offence. According to reports he seriously abused his wife, kicked his wife and she is dangerously ill in bed. All the evidence is not yet in as she cannot come to town but her evidence will probably be taken at the reserve by the agent, and if it is damaging against Elliot as reported he will likely be given a lesson he will remember a few days. If the evidence agrees with the report he should be given time enough in Walkerton to teach him that he cannot pound his wife whether he is drunk or sober. But where did the liquor come from, this is what the authorities would like to know?—Wiarton Canadian Echo.

Case Dismissed.

Ignatz Diemert was brought before Magistrates Brink, Tolton and Richardson on Friday on a charge of being drunk in this local option Municipality on the sixth of March. Otto Klein acted for the prosecution. Who is meant by the "prosecution" we are unable to find out. Arch. McNabb was Diemert's lawyer. Three local men were called as witnesses for the prosecution and the reason for calling these men in this capacity is a mystery as each one swore positively that that they had not seen Mr. Diemert on the day mentioned. Inspector White of Walkerton was also brought over to make the statement that no liquor licenses were issued in the village of Teeswater. This startling bit of information added greatly to the interest of the proceedings. Mr. Diemert was also called by the prosecution and swore that he had not a drink of liquor of any kind on the 6th of March. No evidence was submitted by the defence, as a matter of fact the three witnesses which had already given evidence were better witnesses for Mr. Diemert than for his opponents. The case was dismissed by the magistrates without hesitation.—Teeswater News.

Same Here.

A man residing here visited a neighboring town and attempted a "deliberate steal," and got caught in the act. To save the good name of the family, we refrain from publishing the news item, but in future persons who get before footlights can look for publicity. This "local influence" that is continually appealing to keep their names out of print, have been shown too much consideration by the press. —Ripley Express.

Ripley is Hit.

In the casualty list sent out from Ottawa on Friday appears the name of Private Ernie Parsons, of Ripley who enlisted at Chesley, and went to the front with the First Contingent. Ernie Parsons made his home with Alex McMurchy of this village, and went to Chesley over a year ago to work in a furniture factory. Ernie was wounded in a village in the north of France, by the bursting of a shrapnel, and is now in a hospital in that locality. He was not on the firing line when wounded. A great many persons were surprised when they learned that Parsons had been accepted as a soldier. He is a delicate looking chap, and is not out of his teens, and gave up farm work to learn a trade. He came originally from London England.—Ripley Express.

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Cured Both Stomach Trouble and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., JUNE 20th. 1913.

"I really believe that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives". Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old Stomach Trouble and distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Sometime ago, I got a box of "Fruit-a-tives" and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, "I am taking Fruit-a-tives". He said, "Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can".

MRS. H. [illegible] WILLIAMS.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Combnation Offers

You want good reading during the coming year You can't get a better paper for local news than the TELESCOPE and with it we offer the following at the prices shown The Telescope and

One new Subscription	$1.75
Saturday Globe	1.9
Family Herald	1.90
Toronto World	3.75
Farmer's Advocate	2.40
Canadian Farm	1.90
Weekly Sun	1.90
Catholic Register	1.90
Toronto Daily Globe	3.90
Toronto Daily Mail & Empire	3.90
Toronto Daily Star	2.90
Toronto Daily News	2.90
Montreal W. Witness	1.90
London Catholic Record	2.25
Canadian Baptist	2.25
Presbyterian	2.25
Westminster	2.25
Ontario Churchman	1.50
Church Life	2.00
Farm & Dairy	1.90
Weekly Mail & Empire	1.90
Saturday Night	3.50
London Advertiser	3.90

COME IN AND HEAR

the new

Columbia Records

which we have just received

Among the songs and dances that are now peular in centres such as Montreal' Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, New York and Chicago, are:

Mary Pickford's offical song, entitled:

A1701	Sweetheart of Mine I'm Not Ashamed of You, Mollie	.85

As well as these

A1686	Somewhere a voice is Calling Whispering Hope	$1.00
A5649	Handel's Largo, by Casals Melody in F, by Casals	$1.50

The wOrld's greatest Cellist

A1694	She used to be the Slowest Girl in Town Wrap Me in a Bundle	.85
A1696	Cows May Come, Cows May Go, But the Bull Goes on Forever	.85
A5614	A Perfect Day Suzi	$1.25
A5647	Back to the Carolina You Love Polka Populaire	$1.25

The most up-to-date stock of Grafonolas and Records for miles around is to be seen and heard at

C. A. FOX.

Walkerton, Ont.

Agents wanted were not actively represented. Apply Music Supply Co., Toronto

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D. L. DS Dentist Successor to Dr Coram. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work. Three doors east of postoffice. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month.

J.S.REED, Surgeon, dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne St., south of new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR. BROWN, Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month 2 to 6 p m.

W. A. HALL, B.A., M.D., C.M., Honor Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J G CARTER, Greenock P O, or arrangements can be made at the Telescope Office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Lowers' Hotel. Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and sold: money to loan; also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire, Insurance Company. — Phone 140, ring 2 & 1.

BRITISH AMERICAN BUSINESS COLLEGE

Leads in age, influence, and successful graduates. Specializes in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31th. Write for our catalogue Address, T. Wauchope, Principal Yonge and McGill Sts., Toronto.

You can Begin Any Day at the

NORTHERN Business College

Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three-story building and 34 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors produce the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal
D. G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photograhhs

Our photographs are more than good photographs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser

Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES

If you want a stov buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." Non better. Aso a ful ine of Heating Stov at

H A HAVILL
Walkerton - - On

Easy rests th head that wears the

"King Hat"

King Hats are flexible and self-conforming, just where the hat touches the head.

ASK THE MAN WHO WEARS ONE
THE POPULAR SHAPES $2.50

T. PYE SOLE AGENT
WALKERTON - - ONTARIO

Brant Township
Farms

I have, in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, 1 forty-six acre farm, 1 one hundred and thirty acre farm, 2 two hundred acre farms all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL. I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $7000. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to see me if you want to buy at right prices

H. H. MILLER
HANOVER - - ONTARIO

TREES! TREES!!

All kinds of Fruit and Ornamental Trees, Evergreens, Roses, Shrubs, Climbers, etc. Everything in the nursery line. Send list of your wants for prices. Catalogue free.

Agents Wanted Everywhere

Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman Port Elgin, Ontario

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD, ONT.

Ontario's Best Practical Training School We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

For Winnipeg and Vancouver

leave Toronto 10.20 p m daily

Attractive Tours to
Pacific Coast Points

Particulars from C.P.R. Ticket Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

H. G. Hunter, - Town Agent.
N. Bicon, - Station Agent.

Large Doors--Easy Firing

Look at these roomy Double Feed Doors. You can use a big shovel—there is no danger of hitting the sides and spilling coal all over the floor. These doors will admit a big chunk of wood too. The Sunshine Furnace is easy to operate.

Ask our agent to explain its many advantages, or write our nearest branch for booklet.

McClary's
Sunshine Furnace

London Toronto Montreal Winnipeg Vancouver St. John, N.B.
Hamilton Calgary Saskatoon Edmonton 331

Build a Better Silo and Save Money

BUILD the kind that will keep your ensilage always at its best. Build the kind of silo that does not have to be repaired or painted every other year. Your dairy herd will show its appreciation in the additional quantity of milk it gives. The best silo, by keeping ensilage perfect, increases output and soon pays for itself.

A Concrete Silo

is the dairyman's surest dividend payer. It keeps ensilage in just the right condition and does not permit it to dry out or get mouldy. A concrete silo cannot leak, rot, rust or dry out. It has no hoops to replace. Requires no paint and needs no repairs during an ordinary lifetime.

Send to-day for this free book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It tells how to build a concrete silo and many other things on the farm that will save you many dollars.

Farmers' Information Bureau
Canada Cement Company Limited
519 Herald Building, Montreal

The dust is flying on our streets the autos are buzzing, the hens are laying diligently, and there are many other signs that spring is here.

W H Bellinger who formerly owned the American Hotel at Neustadt has Purchased the Queen's hotel at Elmwood from Wm. Le fes.

Fall wheat is said to have wintered well, and is picking nicely with the advent of warmer weather. A good spring is predicted, groundhogs having been seen as early as March 17th.

The marriage of Mr. Frank Rumig of Carrick to Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Voigt, of Brant, took place at Walkerton on Wednesday of last week, Rev. H. R. Monig officiating. The young couple will take up residence in Brant where Mr. Rumig has purchased a 100 acre farm.

Fight Films Barred.

Moving picture scenes of the Johnson-Willard fight at Havana will not be viewed by Ontario audiences, the Ontario Board of Censors having reached the decision that it would be unwise to depart from precedent by allowing the exhibition of fight scenes, and are thus fortifying themselves against all applications.

Fined $10

A local citizen was fined $10 by the post office authorities for using a previously used stamp on a letter posted at this office. We understand that evidence has been furnished it was simply a mistake, and not an intentional violation of the law, and it is probable that the post office department may refund a portion of the fine.—Mildmay Gazette.

Clerk of Amabel Dead.

Mr. R H. Murray, the veteran clerk of Amabel passed away on Tuesday afternoon, April 6th at his home in Allenford, aged 74 years 7 months. The funeral service was held at his late residence on Thursday at one o'clock and interment was made in Zion cemetery. It was his request that the pallbearers be the reeve and exreeves of the Township. He was probably the oldest clerk in Ontario so far as length of service was concerned. He was a man of vivacious disposition although he had borne much trouble. For many years he covered this district on behalf of the London Mutual Fire Insurance Company and was well known.—Lions Head. Peninsular News.

Funny Things Owing to War.

The present Ontario Government has done some funny thing "owing to the war." Early last fall the secretaries of agricultural societies were notified that owing to the war the government were not going to be able to supply expert judges for the fall fairs. What difference could it make to the government when they charged the cost of the judges to the societies employing them? The secretaries were at the same time notified that owing to the war the government grants to the societies would hereafter be cut down to half. How could the war effect the government revenues when it increased the prices of nearly everything the farmer had to sell? The thing was so fishy that the government has, however, had to crawl down and both the judges and grants are to be continued as usual. It might also be intimated that owing to the war the government has decided to steer a zig-zag course on the liquor question. This, no doubt, is to avoid the shots from the submarines.

PINKERTON

The farmers here are commencing work on the land. A few more warm days will see seeding operations in full swing.

Miss Jennie Pinkerton entertained a few of her friends at a birthday party on Saturday evening.

Miss Margaret Garvey visited her cousin Miss Mary Donnely on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Herb Fiddis of Elmwood visited in the village on Sunday.

Miss Ida Rumney is spending a week with her sister Mrs. J. Metcalfe on the 14 con.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & Co. Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The War Does not Effect the Nursery Business

[illegible]

Thos. W Bowman Son & Co
LIMITED
RIDGEVILLE . ONTARIO

Richard's
QUICK NAPTHA
THE
WOMAN'S SOAP

In three weeks it cost the Commercial hotel at Hensall $140 for selling liquor without a license.

Messrs. Rowland, McKerracher, Oberle and Vogt, of Walkerton, were in town on Tuesday Mildmay Gazette.

A Chicago women has been fined $50 because she told a judge to "go to the devil." When will women learn that they cannot talk to judges like they talk to their own husbands? Collingwood Bulletin.

The Ontario Legislature has raised the license fee on deer and moose and shortened the hare season. Three dollars is now the license fee for deer and seven for moose. The hare hunting season is shortened to one month—from Oct. 15 to Nov. 15.

Miss Neelin to The Front.

Eight nurses from Western Ontario have been instructed to report immediately to Ottawa for services overseas with the Army Medical Corps. Among the list is Miss Edith F. Neelin of Seaforth, former Lady Superintendent at the Kincardine General Hospital.—Kincardine Review.

Don't Grumble.

Don't grumble about paying the war tax on letters. The money is not going to defray the cost of Canada's participation in the war, but there are other things. For instance your little contribution might help to pay part of the cost of one of those old rattle-bone nags that was dumped off on the government buyers.

A Train of Misfortunes.

For a persistent train of misfortune few men, probably, have ever experienced anything compared to that which has pursued Mr. R McKee of the 4th line, Artemesia. Early in the winter he lost a valuable horse. Later his wife—his second wife, by the way—died, leaving an infant. The babe, on the death of its mother, was taken charge of by Mr. McKee's sister, (Mrs. Jerry Thompson of Collingwood. It was taken ill and last week Mr. McKee drove down to see it. While there Mr Thompson's barn was burned and Mr. McKee's span of horses along with it But an inexorable fate was not yet satisfied. The babe died while he was there and the remains were brought home and interred in Flesherton cemetery on Saturday. Surely if ever a human being was entitled to human sympathy it is Mr. McKee, and he is receiving it in large measure.—Flesherton Advance.

Arbour Day in Canada.

In Canadian schools it has been the custom for years to observe Arbour Day in a greater or less degree. This custom should receive increased attention from educational bodies and the general public, for the country has a great need for the planting of more trees and shrubs, both in school and residential grounds. Canada is so dependent upon her forests that any measures which may be taken to extend the knowledge of the pupils respecting trees and the need for their protection will serve a useful purpose. In each of the provinces, with the exception of British Columbia, provision is made for the celebration of Arbour Day. In most provinces it is a public school celebration only, the regulations requiring its observance by the planting of trees and shrubs in school grounds. It should be made a public holiday, instead of being confined to the schools, and the scope of its observance should include the annual clean-up, particularly as it is usually celebrated early in May. In this way, more general interest would be aroused in the work, and greater results secured, from an arboreal as well as an artistic and sanitary standpoint.

To Stop Bank "Kiting."

The banks in Toronto have united in inaugurating a campaign to afford themselves and their customers better protection against dishonest business tactics and sharp practices. Starting last week the various commenced a systematic protest of all cheques of over $25 that were dishonored when presented for payment, and it is announced that immediate legal steps will be taken by them to force the issuers of the worthless cheques to meet their obligations at once. Some idea of the magnitude of the present system of "kiting," and of the far reaching effects of the new campaign, may be realized when it is known that the bankers estimate the amount of "kites" carried by the banks daily will easily total over the hundred thousand dollar mark. While the amendment refers only to the Toronto branches, in reality it covers the whole Dominion, as far as Toronto business men are concerned, for it has been the custom of all country branches to protest any cheques sent them by the Toronto banks which were not honored. Under the new rule, the cheque upon reaching the bank on which it is drawn will be immediately protested, both the issuer and the depositor will be notified at once and the bank will take immediate legal steps to collect the value of the cheque and the issuer must pay all costs incurred, the banks being determined to protect the depositor in every possible manner.

Harriston Fair will not be held this year.

People take newspapers nowadays, read them and then throw them away. They never think what a source of pleasure and profit—or reminiscence and thought, a file or even a few numbers of such a paper would be to them twenty or thirty years afterwards. Pay for your papers and then keep them especially the local papers.

Spring is here, and everyone feels happy. It does not matter so much now whether the woodpile is big or small, we can get along anyway. the hens cackle and down goes the price of eggs, the milkman will soon be saying milk is now a cent cheaper, off go the rubbers, overshoes and all superfluous clothing. The times may be hard but we can get along in the good old summer time.

Keep off the Street.

There is no doubt but that a large per cent. of degradation and disgrace, springs from the habit of night prowling, corner loafing and kindred acts by both sexes in city town and hamlet all over this broad country. Any person who keeps his or her eyes open knows this. Hundreds of boys and girls are out at night and we all know that many influences for evil and none for good surround them continually.

Can't Tell the Truth

Thos. Egan who has been posing as an "Irish Tenor," sang in Massey Hall last week. The papers do not go crazy over Thomas. The Mail and Empire says Toronto has several tenors who could have done better than Egan. It is refreshing to read a real criticism Nowadays the papers say singers do well when they sing rotten. However a country newspaper wouldn't dare tell the truth about singers.—Kincardine Review.

To Manufacture Traps.

Mr. George Redford of Elmwood has invented a trap which is patented and styled "The Redford Humane Trap." It is designed to kill all animals instantly and is consequently more humane than allowing animals to suffer a lingering death by the old fashioned traps which have hitherto been in use. We understand that these traps will be manufactured by the Fisher Machinery Co. of Hanover. We personally saw the trap this week and it looked good to us.—Hanover Post.

"Gott Strafe England."

The enemy's embittered hatred of the British lion and her whelps is manifested by a brooch with the words "Gott strafe England" (God punish England, across the centre, one of which the Canadian Pacific Railway secured as a reminder of the restless nature of the foe with which we are now in conflict. The brooch is in colors, the two top sections showing the Austro-Hungarian flag colors, and the two bottom the Turkish and German. Millions of these brooches are now being worn in the Central European and Turkish Empires, and even the postal letters in these countries are stamped with a similar inscription.

BRANT COUNCIL

April 5th, 1915

The Municipal Council of the Township of Brant met at the Township Hall on Monday the 5th day of April, members all present, minutes of last meeting read and declared correct.

Rowand - Manto - That petitions having been presented requesting to have lots 10 to 14 inclusive, con. A, changed from polling subdivision No. 1 to polling subdivision No. 4, and to have lots 20 and 21, con. 8 and 9, and lots 19, 20 and 21, con. 10 and 11, changed from polling sub-division No. 6 to polling subdivision No. 7, the prayer of the petitioners be granted and that the Clerk prepare a by-law confirming this resolution.—Carried.

Rowand—Willoughby—That By-law No. 70, A.D. 1915, be altered by appointing the following named persons as pathmasters instead of those who are unable to act: Harry Chrispin, Fred Harnock, Jas. Cahoon, Wm. Norton, Thos. Carder, Fred Engel.—Carried.

Findlay — Willoughby — That this Council grant Mrs. Henry Richardson the sum of $10 as assistance in destitution on recommendation of Dr. Murray of Cargill.—Carried.

Willoughby — Findlay — That this Council purchase a road grader and also two road drags for use in township and the Reeve and Councillor Rowand be empowered to purchase same.—Carried.

Rowand—Manto—That the Reeve and Clerk issue orders on the Treasurer for all accounts passed at this meeting, viz. as follows ;—Carried.

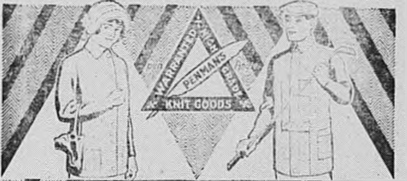
E. Myles, table for Tp. hall	$ 1 25
John Pohlman, filling washout culvert lot 19 con 8	1 75
John Foster, cedar posts	26 25
W. J. Richardson, repairing railing on bridge, opp lot 19 con. 2, S.D.R.	50
Wm. Hastie, Treas. Bentinck, Tp., townline work	3 75
W. G. McCallum, services rendered, overhead b'dg Hanover	9 00
Mrs. Henry Richardson, relief of destitution	10 00
Wm. McConkey, 40 yds of gravel	4 00
R. S. Nesbitt, council meeting	2 70
D. Willoughby "	3 30
W. A. Rowand "	3 85
Mano Monto "	2 80
J. W. Findlay "	2 65

Willoughby — Findlay — That this council do now adjourn to meet on Tuesday, the 25th day of May, as a Court of Revision and other general business. Court of revision commencing at 1 o'clock, p.m.

M. A. McCALLUM,
Clerk

You'll do a lot of guessing before you strike anything as good as -
PERRIN'S
British
Navy
Biscuits
At your grocers
54

LABATT'S LAGER
IS MILD, PURE, APPETIZING
Just the Beverage for the busy man—rests the nerves and ensures sound sleep.
If not sold in your neighborhood, write
JOHN LABATT, LIMITED
LONDON - - CANADA
Special arrangements for direct shipment to private consumers.
12



Note the dressy appearance of these Penman Sweater Coats

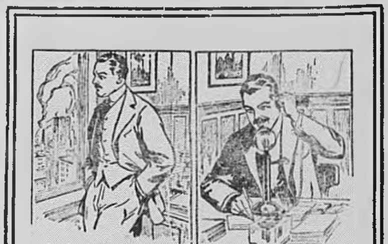
They drape the figure as gracefully as a custom tailored garment because knit-to-form—knit with exacting care to fit the varying physical types of men, women and children.

Penmans Sweater Coats retain their graceful and pleasing shapeliness—because made from the best selected wool. You know you need a sweater coat—there are scores of occasions when it is decidedly the vogue. Ask for a Penman.

Look for the trademark.

Penmans Limited, Paris, Canada
Sweaters Underwear Hosiery

Penmans
Sweater Coats



Don't Wait For Business-Work For It!

Working, not waiting, will make your business prosper.

It is often a long, weary road to business success, and the goal is seldom reached by waiting for opportunity to come to you!

Perhaps you have a plan in mind for promoting business. Why not turn to your Long Distance Telephone and test out the possibilities of your plan? Your personal appeal will go far towards making it a success.

Put the power of your personality into your efforts! It costs little to find out by Long Distance Telephone how you can get more business—the telephone may give you just the help you need to pull prosperity your way!

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station"

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

Old Country News

SPEEDY RELIEF WORK.

Lying in the wards of the London hospital are men who were wounded at the end of last week. Some of them were in their beds at the hospital within 45 hours of receiving their wounds.

Here is the time-table of one of the men: He was wounded at Neuve Chapelle at 2.30 on the morning of Friday on his way to the trenches. A shell exploded almost in his face and he was struck in the head. He lay an hour where he fell, "shrapnel flying all over me all the time," picked himself up and was assisted to the field dressing station at 3.45 a.m.

Thence he was taken by motor-ambulance to Estaires Hospital, arriving there at 5 a.m. His wound was again attended to, and in another motor-ambulance he went to the hospital at Merville. He rested there a few hours and left in a hospital train at 7 p.m. for Boulogne, arriving there at 9 p.m.

He was taken to the hospital boat at once, was asleep when it sailed, and arrived at Southampton on Saturday at 2 p.m. Then the train to London at 7 p.m. Waterloo at 9 p.m.—and to his bed at the London Hospital at midnight, 45½ hours after he was wounded.

"Is he doing well?"

"Very well," answered the nurse, "for such a severe wound."

The patient, a handsome, dark-eyed fellow, turned his heavily bandaged head. He wanted to give his testimonial to the British War Office and the British public. "It's marvellous what we get. The men want for nothing. Food—and splendid food, too—in abundance, and all sorts of gifts and extras."

Another patient at the London Hospital is an "accidental" casualty. This was his time-table:

Wounded, Saturday 11 a.m.
Boulogne, Saturday 9 p.m.
Sailed, Monday afternoon.
Dover, Monday 7.30 p.m.
London, Monday 9.30 p.m.
London Hospital, Monday before midnight.

DEATH RATE LEAPS.

The return of population statistics of England in 1914 apparently shows the result of the war. A comparison with the figures for 1913 shows the following:

	July-Sept.	Oct.-Dec.
Deaths 1914	113,545	130,882
Deaths 1913	113,155	123,281

The marriages for the whole year increased from 303,026 to 316,27[illegible], but the increase in marriages seems to date back to the summer of 1913, and is more probably attributable to the trade "boom" of two years ago.

Despite the heavy mortality of the last quarter of last year, it is still less than that of the first quarter of the year, the period when the weather is most fatal to the aged.

Once again the birth rate has fallen. Last year it was 23.77 per 1,000 against 23.87 in 1913, 23.89 in 1912, 24.80 in 1910, and 26.66 in [illegible]. Last year's net addition to population was only 362,014, against 376,451 in 1913.

DEARER FOOD.

There was a further slight rise—about 2 per cent.—in the retail prices of food in the United Kingdom during February (says the Board of Trade Labor Gazette). The two articles which showed the greatest advance were flour, with a rise of about 8 per cent. on the average, and bread, with a rise of about 7 per cent.

Decreases were shown by bacon, butter, and eggs. In the case of bacon and of butter the reductions were only about 1 or 2 per cent., but in the case of eggs—where the reduction is, of course, largely seasonal—it amounted to nearly 10 per cent. On the whole the reductions in articles other than bread and flour approximately balanced the advances, so that the whole advance in February may be put down to those two articles.

A TRIBUTE TO OUR TROOPS.

Canon Hicks, of Lincoln, has recently returned from a visit to the Y.M.C.A. camps in France for the British troops, and can now claim that he has taken part in services connected with two hundred camps. "I have been greatly struck," he says, after this experience "with the magnificent self-sacrifice on the part of many of these men who have gone to the front. I appeal to my hearers," he added, "to be true to their highest manhood in the midst of the new spheres and temptations that beset them. As chaplain to Territorial and Yeomanry camps I am glad to bear testimony to the high-toned character of the men at the front."

SOLDIER'S SENSE OF HUMOR.

A story is told of a lady who visited the base hospital, and her first inquiry, "Are you better?" was addressed to a young resident doctor, who genially replied:

"Thank you, I have nothing the matter with me."

"Oh," said the lady, rather mystified. Then turning to a patient near, she sweetly said:

"Have you anything the matter with you?"

"No, no, ma'am," was the reply. "Nothing at all. I am simply here to make up the number!"

NOTES

The need of an isolation hospital in the Malton district of Yorkshire was strongly urged at the meeting of the Malton Cottage Hospital.

Mr. Douglas Twigg, son of Mr. J. T. Twigg, of Rotherham, has been appointed solicitor in the Town Clerk's Department of the City of York.

During the past month there were 57 births and 29 deaths in Rotherham Rural District, giving a birth rate of 35.2, and a death rate of 10.5 per 1,000 per annum.

The funeral took place at Scarboro' of Mr. William Drawbridge, the oldest practising solicitor in the town.

At the meeting of the Bradford Board of Guardians the chairman stated that there was not a single able-bodied pauper in the workhouse.

Ten thousand troops with a dozen bands took part in a great recruiting march through Hull, which was bedecked with flags and had recruiting messages on every lamp post and tramway standard.

Haddon Hall will be open to the public during the summer. Last year the historic mansion had to be strictly guarded on account of the suffragettes.

The funeral took place at Wirksworth of Mrs. H. Spencer, 67, who died suddenly shortly after hearing that the regiment to which her son is attached had been sent to the trenches.

The Rev. J. Fenwick has accepted a unanimous invitation to remain in the New Mills circuit another year. Mr. W. Whitehead has been re-elected circuit steward, and Mr. T. Beard circuit secretary.

The Royal Humane Society has granted a certificate and a reward of £4 to Mr. W. Winter, of 10 Goodall street, Derby, now a relief signalman at Wirksworth, for saving the life of Willie Cope, aged 7, from drowning at Cromford on 6th January.

At a summons at Willesden for refusing to pay his taxicab fare it was stated that he stayed two days in the cab. The meter registered £3 11s. and he was ordered to pay the sum and costs.

At Leeds, Samuel Willie Silverdale—a farmer, of Cawthorne, Barnsley, indicted for the murder of Amy Newton, a married woman, whom he was alleged to have shot, was found Not Guilty and discharged. The jury took the view that the gun was fired accidentally.

Joseph Wilson, aged 30, of 191 Wentworth street, and Edward Willcock, alias Charles Shenton, aged 27, were each sentenced at Sheffield to 12 days with hard labor for a savage and brutal assault on Police Constable Miles Walker, on Holmirea road on Sunday.

At Leeds Assizes Thomas Phillips, 77, formerly assistant manager at the Brodsworth Colliery, Doncaster, was charged with wilful murder of his wife, Theresa Jane Phillips, at Doncaster, on 30th December last. He was found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to ten years' penal servitude.

James Hetherington Pearson, a Lancashire police constable and now a sergeant in the 10th Loyal North Lancashire Regiment, was charged with manslaughter at Eastbourne and remanded. It was stated that Pearson, while riding a motor-cycle, knocked down and killed a barmaid, named Lily Robb.

Moxley Council has decided to increase the wages of stokers at the destructor to 7d an hour, equivalent to [illegible] a day.

The employees of the Scunthorpe Co-operative Wholesale Society have sent in a schedule demanding an increase in wages.

The Dean and Chapter of Rochester have presented the Rev. John Taillour David, now deputizing for the Archdeacon of [illegible], in Wales, on duty at the front, to the vicarage of Stroud, Kent.

Lord Savile has presented the living of Walesby, rendered vacant by the death of the Rev. C. R. Corten, who had been Vicar for about 25 years, to the Rev. W. Pullen, who has acted as curate in the parish for the last nine years.

The Archbishop of York has licensed the following: The Rev. T. [illegible] to the curacy of Tadcaster; Rev. W. H. Milner, to the curacy of Drypool, Hull; Rev. T. H. Pullen, to the curacy of Hemsworth; and the Rev. A. H. Wellington, to the curacy of South Kirkby.

Fourteen thousand Northumbrian miners are serving with the colors.

At the age of 90, Mr. Luke Langley, of Little Charr, Kent, has undertaken the duties of a special constable.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kirk, of 62 Trafford street, Southorpe, have six soldier sons serving King and country.

A hen belonging to Mr. W. J. Lillyman, of Kettering, recently laid two eggs weighing 3 oz. 11 drms and 3 oz. respectively.

The Royal Naval and Military Tournament, it is reported, will not take place this summer, as there are no troops available.

While in a tobacconist's shop at Hanley, Staffs, Mr. William Heath, a member of the Staffordshire Football Association, fell down dead.

An Austrian banner, at [illegible] of a sale at London of war trophies brought by Prince Alexis of Serbia from Serbian battlefields, was sold for [illegible].

It is announced that 1,220 players, club officials, and referees connected with the Northumberland Football Association, have joined the colors.

At a recruiting meeting held at the Empress Theatre, [illegible] 30 men [illegible] marched on to the stage when an appeal was made [illegible].

Nine of the 12 new chaplains recommended by Sir John French [illegible] for special service, belong to the Church of England. Of these six are officers in the Church Lads' Brigade.

After celebrating his golden wedding Mr. Thomas Russell, of Rokerstaffe, near Ormskirk, Lancashire, died after a sudden illness. He was in his [illegible] year, and had been a colliery worker for nearly sixty years.

The treasurer of the Patricroft [illegible], Mr. William [illegible], has died at Harrogate.

News has been received at Alnwick [illegible] 19th year has been killed at the front.

The death has occurred at Edinburgh of Mr. R. T. Swinburn, of Newcastle, chief accountant of the North-Eastern Railway.

Miss Nellie [illegible], the well-known Scottish international hockey player, has died of fever in Serbia, where she had gone as a volunteer nurse.

The death has occurred at Hull of Ald. Henry Feetham, [illegible], and head of a firm with branches in London and [illegible].

The death has occurred at his residence, Hamilton road, Lincoln, of Mr. Tom Fuller, manager of the Lincoln Corporation Gas Works. Mr. Fuller was 57 years of age.

The death has taken place at the [illegible] Infirmary of the Rev. D. W. Evans, vicar of Llandinam, near Denbigh, [illegible].

The death has taken place at Southport of Mr. Henry P. Dawes, a well known commercial traveller in Lancashire and Yorkshire. [illegible]

Mr. [illegible], whose death has occurred at [illegible], at the age of 78, was formerly a well-known township owner in Liverpool, retiring from the local association with G. Shepherd & Co. fourteen years ago, when the concern was amalgamated with the [illegible]. The company subsequently engaged in the [illegible] trade.

A [illegible] which is said to be unknown in British lakes and rivers, although common in Germany and other parts of Europe, has been caught in the Thames near Hampton Court, by a small boy fishing with a stick and a string to catch smelts.

Mr. Luke Langley, who is 90 years of age, has been returned unopposed as a member of the West Ashford Board of Guardians. He claims to be the oldest acting special constable in the country, and it is interesting to recall that he served as a special constable nearly 70 years ago.

The appointment of Mr. Llewelyn Williams, M.P., to be Recorder of Cardiff will cause a by-election in the [illegible] which he has sat since 1906. Mr. Williams is deeply interested in all Welsh subjects and is the author of several essays on Welsh history. [illegible] not an Englishman, but a [illegible] centurion, [illegible] in Cappadocia.

Drogheda Corporation conferred the freedom of their city upon Drummer Kenny, Gordon Highlanders, in recognition of his bravery at the front which gained him the V.C. It was described as the highest honor they could pay him. Other freemen are Butt, Parnell, Mr. Dillon, and Mr. Redmond.

The name of Dr. Kuno Meyer, late Professor of Gaelic at Liverpool University, has been expunged from the roll of freemen of Dublin.

By an explosion through a light coming in contact with vapor from a vat containing several thousand gallons of whiskey in Dublin, a man named George Ryan was killed and another man seriously injured.

Fourth of June celebrations at Eton School are to be curtailed. The Eton and Harrow match has been abandoned, and it is doubtful if Eton will play Winchester.

The Glasgow Corporation have decided to give their art galleries at Kelvingrove to the military authorities for use as a hospital for wounded soldiers. The galleries will accommodate 500 beds. The pictures are to be transferred immediately, and the building, which cost nearly £250,000, is to be closed.

The holograph will of the late Sir James Donaldson, principal of St. Andrews University, has been lodged in Edinburgh. He bequeathed all his books, manuscripts, papers, and letters of Lady Rosebery and Lord Rosebery in his possession to be handed over to Lord Rosebery. He also leaves a fund to be established in the university to be called the Lady Donaldson Fund, to aid students who have been attacked by illness during their attendance at the University.

Walter Milner, a postman, and Thomas Pearson, a jeweller, of Holderness road, Hull, were committed to York Assizes, Milner charged with stealing 18 cases sent through the post and Pearson with receiving them. It was said that Milner had made a complete confession of the theft of a large quantity of jewelry, including 21 watches, 37 rings, and other articles. The method seemed to be for him to take them from the sorting table in the post office.

A member of a Rotherham family, Mr. Douglas S. Twigg, has been appointed assistant solicitor to the York Corporation. He has held a similar position at [illegible] since 1910.

Lady Mabel Smith has been appointed a member of the West Riding Higher Education and Elementary Education subcommittees.

Mr. E. Walker has been appointed president of the Birstwith Liberal Club and Mr. C. A. Bancroft treasurer.

The Rev. L. W. Kessley, rector of [illegible], has been appointed an honorary canon of Southwell Cathedral, in succession to the late Canon Atkinson.

The living of Walesby, near Retford, rendered vacant by the death of the Rev. C. R. Cotter, has been presented by Lord Savile to the Rev. William Pullen, headmaster of the Tuxford Grammar School, who has acted as curate in the parish for the past nine years.

The Rev. C. H. Matthews, of the Baptist Tabernacle, [illegible], has been appointed to undertake special educational work in connection with the Baptist Missionary Society, for Serampore College, Bengal.

An application for an advance of 5s a week for constables and 7s a week for inspectors and sergeants has been made on behalf of the Northumberland county constabulary on account of the high cost of living.

A conference between the master dyers and men on Tyneside has resulted in the settlement of the question of an advance in wages due to the increased food prices. The employers have conceded an advance of 12½ per cent. [illegible] an hour on ordinary time and 2d night work.

Mr. Herbert Stanley, secretary to the High Commissioner, has been appointed Resident Commissioner for the Imperial Government in Southern and Northern Rhodesia.

Dr. John R. Giles, medical officer to the South Shields Union, has been appointed medical superintendent of the Salford Union Infirmary.

It has been decided that upon the occasion of the [illegible] birthday of Princess Mary, Her Royal Highness shall be permitted to have a small [illegible] part of Buckingham Palace [illegible]. Princess Mary, the Prince of Wales, and Prince Albert [illegible] in order to be present.

Two members of the crew of the [illegible] trawler, [illegible], were rescued owing to an accident to the vessel.

One effect of the war has been to reduce the number of London's homeless poor found sleeping upon the Embankment and in other public places.

It has just been discovered that John Hunter, a laborer, of [illegible], near Chertsey, who died in a workhouse infirmary and was given a pauper funeral, possessed property worth [illegible].

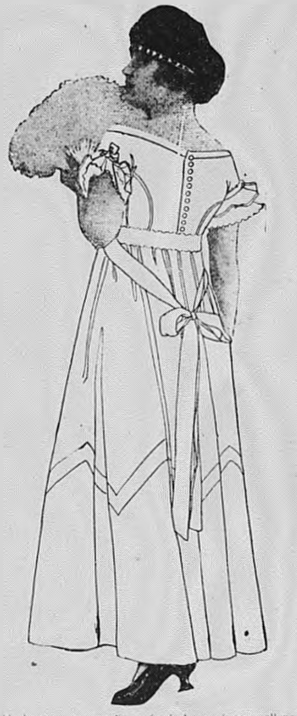
Mr. Austen Chamberlain has granted the use of Highbury, the residence of his late father, as a military hospital, and it will be equipped and staffed at once. Room will be found for over 100 beds.

[illegible]

The death has occurred at [illegible], Surrey, of [illegible] of the late Earl Roberts.

"BETTY BROWN'S" WARDROBE.

She Describes Her Newest Dance Frock



I am told about my newest dance frock. I wore it to a college hop the other night and everybody admired it. It is made of flowered pussy willow taffeta. It is full and has the picture-dress effect. The buttons and embroidery of blue velvet. It is simple and inexpensive to make.—Betty Brown.

Lord Clanmorris, a peer in the peerage of Ireland and a baronet of Great Britain, has died at his residence, Crossways, Oxford, at the age of 75.

Mr. G. P. Moore, of Cirencester, a well-known auctioneer in the west of England, died suddenly while conducting a farm sale at Kingscote, near Tetbury. He was sixty eight.

The death has occurred of the Rev. J. H. Freake-Van, 51, Vicar of Swimbridge, near Barnstaple, and for many years Vicar of Radbourne, Derby.

A patrol of women police was officially inaugurated at Brighton on Wednesday week. The chief constable said that the policewomen would not usurp the assistance of the police at all times, and the town clerk said that the new movement promised to be most useful. The women police wear a uniform of dark blue serge, their hats are similar to ladies' riding hats.

Rather more Essex red wheat is being cultivated this year than ever before. Mr. Joseph Smith, a very large farmer, of Windpits, Braintree, has made what is believed to be a record in sowing wheat [illegible] thousand acres in Essex [illegible] wheat.

A [illegible] in the form of migrant wood-pigeons took place over a considerable area of East Norfolk in connection with the Stalham Farmers' Club. A general invitation was given to "guns" to join in the attack. These wood-pigeons come from Northern Europe in [illegible] every autumn and during the winter and early spring play havoc with the farmers' crops. [illegible] the importance of thinning them out is recognized.

A verdict of accidental death was returned on Thursday at the inquest into the death of Private David Woods, stationed at Fort Bovisand, near Plymouth. His friend, Private Laird, [illegible] cartridge in the rifle [illegible] through Woods' [illegible]. The cartridge proved to be a live one [illegible] killing him instantly.

Military authorities in Swansea have prohibited the wearing of khaki in uniform in public houses, except between the hours of 12 noon and 2 p.m. The order applies to [illegible] area, embraces all Swansea and includes Aberavon, Briton Ferry, Mumbles and Gower.

The Warwickshire hounds met last Friday at Northend, and the [illegible] of the dogs drowned. Two of them died almost immediately, and it is said [illegible] having been [illegible].

The Royal National Lifeboat Institution have voted £50 to the widow and children of Mr. C. J. Haywood, who lost his life when the Worthing lifeboat capsized on February 17. They also conveyed the thanks of their committee, inscribed on vellum, to the coxswain of the boat, Mr. H. Marshall, for the gallant manner in which he handled the lifeboat in the severe weather conditions which prevailed when the accident occurred.

Basting.

[illegible] in the sewing classes. [illegible] the cut used, is basted, but for the beginner it is the only way to make the sewing satisfactory.

In even basting the stitches are about the same length, and do not draw. [illegible] If the pieces to be basted are large, place materials on a table to keep them even. If small they may be basted over the [illegible].

Deep Doings.

"What's ailing Mr. Trout?
He suffers from sunstroke.
Can't! Whoever heard of a fish with a sunstroke?"

Well, you see, it was a [illegible] that lumped into him.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Russ Peasants' Odd Figuring

This is not a meaningless, freaky [illegible] of a puzzle. But it is a puzzle. It is the method by which Russian peasants multiply, and as yet the boasted mental superiority of America cannot solve the simple riddle of the play.

Suppose you want to multiply two numbers together. Divide one of the numbers by 2, ignoring the fractions. Continue the process until the original column reaches one. Then double the other number and continue the process until it equals in lines the first column. Then wherever a number is even in the first column strike it out, together with its corresponding number in the second column. Add the second column, and, lo, the answer! Now, why does it do it? There seems to be no reason for it, but what is it? Can you work it out?

It is infallible. It has never been known to fail. But what principle of mathematics is behind it all? Perhaps it is some queer freak of numbers, some one says, but such things are not to be treated aside with such scientific fire. Mathematics is not built upon so lax a system. There is some rule behind it all.

Take the simple multiple 12 by 10. The answer is 120. Try it the Russian way. Place 12 in the first column and 10 in the second. Divide 12 by 2 and multiply 10 by 2 and place the respective answers beneath the ones from which they were derived. It will stand 6 and 20. Dividing 6 by 2 equals 3 and multiplying 20 by 2 equals 40. Continuing, 3 divided by 2 and throwing away all fractions will be 1, while 40 multiplied by 2 will be 80. Now strike out all the numbers in the first column which are even and with it their parallels in the second column (12 and 6) and 10 and 20 go out, leaving the last two parallel results, ignoring the first column and adding the numbers in the second, the answer will be the result of 40 and 80, or 120.

The questions are: Who ever worked it out? How did he start?

Now try working the problem by putting 10 in the first column and subjecting it to the dividing and 12 to the multiplying. It will result like this, 10 and 12 will become 5 and 24 which will in turn be changed to 2 and 48 and finally into 1 and 96. Then striking out the number 10 and 2, with their corresponding numbers 12 and 48, leaving the second column figures 24 and 96 to be added, this becomes 120.

There is no escaping it. No matter how large the score, it comes out right with distressing surety. Take the odd numbers. Perhaps there is something in the scheme that applies to even numbers. Take 25 and 15. Going right down the column they become 12 and 30, then 6 and 60, then 3 and 120, then 1 and 240; 12 and 6 go out, taking with them 30 and 60. Add 15, 120 and 240, answer, 375. Multiply 25 by 15 according to our methods. Correct—375.

Now, why is it that the even numbers must be eliminated on the right side when they do not count at all in the addition?

It is plain to be seen that all the numbers in the second column will be even, but by what freak of calculation are those corresponding to the even numbers in the first column of no consequence when the correct sum is to be obtained?

Where no even number results in the first column, as in 15 x 13, there is no cancellation; 15 and 13 in the process become 7 and 26, then 3 and 52 and finally 1 and 104. Adding 13, 26, 52 and 104 equals 195, the correct sum. There can be no multiplication in figure, which will divide down to a place where there are no odd numbers, for the final number must always of necessity be 1. In the case 16 x 4, 16 divides itself into 8, 4, 2 and 1 successively, while 4 becomes 8, 16, 32 and 64. All of the pairs are crossed out, with the exception of 1 and 64. In that case the addition of the second column will be 64.

Despite the puzzling nature of this formula, there is some mathematical principle by which it can be explained. There is some rule awaiting the fertile minds of the workers by which this "dummy" can be demonstrated to be simplicity itself.

Another quizzer. Why must fractions be discarded? How is it that the result will be true when several units are cast aside? For example consider the number 47. Dividing by 2 the result will be 23. One whole unit is thrown away. Twenty-three becomes by the same process 11, another unit discarded. Eleven resolves itself into 5, making the third unit passed by. The next step results in 2 and then 1, but why is it that these three units count for nothing?

The mere fact that the explanation is near, that the whole thing is simple if the key can be found, is one that cannot help but draw attention to this novel means of adding.—Philadelphia News American.

HAD A BAD COLD
WITH PROLONGED COUGHING.
TRIED NEARLY EVERYTHING
FINALLY
DR. WOOD'S
NORWAY PINE SYRUP
CURED HIM.

Mr. Wallace H. Graves, Vancouver, B.C., writes: "During a cold spell late about the middle of last October (1913) I caught a cold which got worse in spite of all treatments. I could not get rid of it until November 22nd, a friend said 'Why not try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup?' Really, I had no faith in it at the time as I had tried nearly every other remedy I had heard of, but I thought I would give it a fair chance. I purchased a 25 cent bottle, and to my surprise I was feeling a little better. [illegible] I carried the bottle in my pocket, [illegible] complete cure. I can most heartily recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to anyone suffering from a cold, as it proves a most marvellous [illegible], and I never intend being without it at all times."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get what you ask for. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25 and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Meditation.

In meditation we are free. We can consider one side and then the other without embarrassment. If we change our opinion because the weight of evidence has shifted there is no one to crow over us and make us ashamed. If we recognize that we have been mistaken in our meditations there is no one to say, "I told you so." We quietly make the necessary adjustments to ever changing reality and go on with our business of thinking. We are not required to reach any predetermined conclusions. We have no nervous anxiety to catch any particular train of thought, as we are traveling on our own feet and are willing to put up wherever the night finds us. Hence it is that, while discussions go on with great vigor and few are convinced except of the righteousness of their own cause, meditation often brings unexpected results. When we meditate we sometimes change our mind. This is a beneficent achievement, for it renders it unnecessary for us to spend all our strength in attempting to change the order of the universe and the whole direction of human progress in order to get a sense of the fitness of things.—S. M. Crothers in Atlantic Monthly.

UNDERGROUND POSTMEN.

Parliament recently gave permission to the postoffice authorities to construct a miniature underground tube railway for the purpose of conveying letters and parcels across London to halt the [illegible]. In the tubes, nine feet in diameter, [illegible] electrically-propelled trucks will run and parcels and mail bags will be conveyed on them. The first postal tube is to be constructed between Paddington and the District Postoffice at Whitechapel.

Driven by electric current, controlled by switches at intermediate stations, the mail trains will need no drivers. The mail bottle through the tubes at about twenty miles an hour carrying the mails from point to point to halt the loss that motor vans threading their way through traffic in the streets above would take.

A Possible Explanation.

"I can't understand," said the librarian, "why it is that so few women come here. We have a beautiful and comfortable reading room, and I should think the ladies would like to come in, not only to read, but to rest."

"Yes," replied the trustee, "but I notice that you have at the entrance a big placard which says, 'No Talking.'"

War News
Affected Her.

Many people who have been reading the terrible war news from day to day, especially those who have relatives at [illegible] of war, have become so nervous that it is impossible for them to sleep.

The nerves have become unstrung and the heart perhaps affected.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will build up the unstrung nervous system and strengthen the weak heart.

Miss Hilda Dennis, Morristown, Ont., writes: "In August, 1914, I was out of school for my health. I was visiting friends in London, and heard of the war. It made me so nervous that I could not sleep, but after using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I improved greatly, and could take my school again. I have recommended them to many of my friends."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Chats With the Doctor

BY A PHYSICIAN

MILK, ITS USE AND ABUSE.

It is a remarkable and interesting fact that Nature supplies only a single article purely as food, that is milk. Everything else, for other animals, consumed for nourishment is placed here for some other purpose in the first instance, and not to be devoured by creatures who seek their prey, animal or vegetable, or other creature living on [illegible] from themselves.

[illegible] still further struck by the [illegible] to all the [illegible] of man [illegible] Nature [illegible] milk [illegible] that is required for [illegible] the body of the animal [illegible]. There is no substitute that will take its place, or even nearly approach that kind. If the supply fail for the young infant, we have to invoke the aid of a large number of other substances in combination, and very commonly the result leaves a great deal to be desired.

PURITY ESSENTIAL.

As milk is a perfect food, and it placed before us as such by Mother Nature, so we should always take special heed not to tamper with her in any way, but always endeavour to maintain it in its original perfect purity. I am afraid that purity is not always, or even frequently, borne in mind by dealers, who [illegible] it, or do some [illegible]. There is often a [illegible]. For if you feel milk you certainly are [illegible] it longer without [illegible] than if you had left it [illegible]. But the price of [illegible] and has always to be [illegible] a matter of fact very frequently far too high a price to be paid at all by the infant or the invalid.

PASTEURISATION.

Perhaps or even the milder process known as pasteurisation, which consists in exposing for some hours to a high temperature under the boiling point, effects [illegible] and other changes in the milk, which render that far less digestible than it is naturally. That is a [illegible] thing for the young child, or even for the adults, whose digestive powers are weak. Hence, when either of these fall in question, every effort should be made to give milk not artificially treated or in any way changed from the condition in which Nature has provided it for us.

CLEANLINESS IN ALL THINGS.

Cleanliness is said to rank next to godliness, and, if that were anywhere literally true, it surely would be so in the handling of the cow's milk, which is such a necessary article of diet for each and all of us. Perfect people are said to be [illegible] at least I imagine so, but it has never fallen to my lot to meet them [illegible]. And in the same way anybody who was not a very long [illegible] this perfect food of ours, milk is extremely [illegible] by [illegible] dirty [illegible] or [illegible]. Then it [illegible] the vehicle of disease. [illegible] I have known it convey [illegible] which someone suffering, or who had recently suffered from that malady, had milked the cow or handled the milk [illegible].

TYPHOID FEVER.

[illegible] typhoid fever, about which so much has lately been said in reference to the armies in the field, is [illegible] spread by infected milk—that is [illegible] containing some of the drinking water which has become infected by the discharge from patients. The almost invariable source of typhoid [illegible] happily far less common in England than they were [illegible] the latter.

We need not go more than mention [illegible], diphtheria, smallpox, measles, cholera, etc., as in the same category of maladies easily diffused to a large number of people by any infraction of the principle of absolute cleanliness in the milk supply. It is sufficient to repeat that no pains, individual or collective, can be too great to ensure purity. It ought to be almost a hanging matter to milk a cow with dirty hands, or to wash out a milk pail with dirty water.

THE BABY.

For every species the natural article is best wherever that is procurable, and other things are equal. Cow's milk is not a complete and all-round substitute for human milk, though it commonly has to stand in its stead, and is easily the best procurable. But only mother almost [illegible] as the [illegible] to be physically sound and healthy during the lactation period, ordinarily, to nurse her baby through ten months, perhaps a year. After that [illegible] Eastern [illegible] women [illegible] and I once encountered [illegible] who was actually suckling three—a young baby of six months, an older of three years, a still older boy of four. [illegible] carried to [illegible] and that [illegible] was too much of a good thing.

[illegible] mother's health fails [illegible] there is resort to artificial feeding during the first few months of an infant's life. Then the cow's milk has to be diluted with water, which should always be taken from the purest source, and well boiled as well as filtered. One part milk to two water for the first three months, then equal parts of each, at six months [illegible] and not before, the undiluted milk.

THE ABUSE OF MILK.

Many [illegible] people entertain the idea that milk being a highly nutritious article [illegible] they drink the better. And sometimes they thus consume what really does them a great deal of harm.

It is not every adult who really can digest milk easily, though the majority of us can do so in moderation. With some it profoundly disagrees, even in small quantities. And it cannot be too emphatically [illegible] that it is not what we swallow, but what we are really digesting which has been swallowed that actually nourishes.

When milk is taken in quantity and not digested, it sets up constipation, and habitual constipation may be described with fair accuracy as the root of almost all disease [illegible]. Many persons who have the better health than they might have if they did not consume [illegible] with their [illegible] organs will [illegible].

BUTTERMILK—SOUR MILK.

I suppose there are many thousands of gallons of milk are thrown away because it is sour, or tends to become so. I have heard of terrible waste of perfectly sound milk at large hospitals. The [illegible] pour it down the sink at night because they say it will be sour by morning. That is absolutely almost wicked waste. Sour milk is good [illegible] food for persons who is not [illegible] in [illegible]. And buttermilk, as is [illegible] known, are greatly recommended in the treatment of [illegible].

Directly we swallow fresh milk it is curdled by the gastric juice—the first stage of digestion. Sour milk is only milk which has undergone this first and necessary stage before being swallowed, for some persons would have learnt not to drink the milk at all until it is sour.

The Sport of Kings.

In very early times some kings, having made war, went forth in person to fight the battles themselves supposing there was no other way.

But they had not proceeded far till they were swept aside by a great multitude rushing to the front.

"Who are you?" asked the kings, in no small curiosity.

"We? Why, we're the precious fools who are always ready to make somebody else's quarrel our own—patriots, in short!" replied the multitude.

"Precious, indeed!" chuckled the kings and risked their skins no more.—New York Post.

TONSILITIS, SORE THROAT, CHEST COLDS, CAN BE CURED OVER NIGHT

They Vanish Quickly if Nerviline is Well Rubbed in.

When the throat tickles, when it hurts to draw a long breath, when you feel as if a knife were stuck in your side, it's time to draw out the congestion that will soon become pneumonia.

An ordinary cough syrup has no chance at all—you require a powerful, penetrating liniment.

Nothing is known that possesses more merit in such cases than Nerviline.

Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.

The warm, soothing effect of Nerviline will be apparent in five minutes.

Nothing like it for quick relief—takes soreness out of the throat in one rubbing—breaks up the chest cold, draws out the inflammation, stops the cough quickly.

Rub it on for rheumatism—it destroys the pain—drives it right away. Try it for stiff muscles—it works miracles in just such cases.

Give Nerviline a chance on your neuralgia, prove it out for lumbago, see what it can do for sciatica.

No pain-relieving remedy compares in power to cure with Nerviline. Largest sale in Canada of any liniment for nearly forty years. The reason is plain, It satisfies every time.

The large 50-cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25-cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

FAT AND LEAN.

In the busy world of dairying even a few meagre calculations show great differences, whether in cows, their owners, the land, the bank deposits or the test of fat, etc.; fat and lean are mixed, good results and poor, even on adjoining farms, even in two stalls in the one stable. One owner gets perhaps 200 pounds of milk from each lean, hungry acre; a neighbor, with better methods, produce the fat total of seventeen hundred pounds of milk per acre, keeping 16 good cows on a well-tilled eighty-acre farm. One milk producer with poor grade cows, never averages of less than three thousand pounds of milk per cow; another producer, who is a real dairyman, revels in the knowledge of each of his sixteen cows giving over eight thousand pounds of milk that will test fairly rich in fat.

Then when it comes to feeding for profit, not simply for existence, we find one man with a hundred pounds of milk costing him only 59 cents for feed but a neighbor has to admit the impeachment of milk costing him per hundred at least 99 cents, perhaps over a dollar. So one will make the fat profit above feed of over thirty dollars per cow, while his neighbor is down to the lean margin of only three dollars. Why do such amazing differences occur? Primarily because dairymen has not studied each cow individually. Dairy records alone can shed light on these problems.

In one dairy record centre maintained by the dairy division, Ottawa, in 1914 there were such surprising contrasts in yields of milk and fat that they have command the attention of every progressive dairyman.

The best cow in one herd gave only 4,158 pounds of milk and only 155 pounds of fat; the average of the whole herd was only 3,772 pounds of milk and 136 pounds of fat. In a herd near by the poorest yield of any one cow was 5,658 pounds of milk and 278 pounds of fat; the herd average was 7,255 pounds of milk and 312 pounds of fat.

There were several individual yields of over eight thousand pounds of milk, while one good grade cow gave 14,409 pounds of milk and 562 pounds of fat.

Coming to the cost of feed, plenty of herds had an average cost per cow of from forty to fifty-five dollars; even at these high figures the profit above the cost of feed ran up to forty-six and fifty dollars as the herd average.

Such results are full of encouragement for the owners, and augur well for the future of cow testing in the Maritime Provinces. Other dairymen may well strive to emulate these records of fifty and sixty-five dollars clear profit above the cost of feed as made by good individual cows. This sensible method of determining the respectible merit of each cow as a profit maker lays a solid foundation for building up a singularly interesting herd from a modern business standpoint.

TREATMENT OF SMUT.

Commissioner Clark, writing in the Agricultural War Book on "Treatment for Smut Prevention" says that in Eastern Canada there is considerable smut in the grain crops each year, but that it has not been sufficiently prevalent to make treatment for its prevention general. The losses, however, are much greater than is commonly realized, and the value of the crop could be considerably increased if treatment for smut prevention were more generally practiced. Over half the samples of fall wheat collected in Ontario contain smut, and it is also very common in the spring crops, especially oats. Reports on the samples treated indicate that formalin, one pound in forty gallons of water, is much more popular than bluestone as a preventative.

EXPERIMENTS IN WEED ERADICATION.

During the past three years (1912-13-14) the Department of Botany of the Ontario Agricultural College, in connection with the work of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union, carried on co-operative experiments in the eradication of weeds. Some forty-five farmers co-operated in this work. The weeds experimented with were perennial sow thistle, twitch grass, bladder campion, wild mustard and ox-eye daisy. Some very interesting and valuable results were obtained. Those who took part in these experiments profited by the experience. In nearly every instance they cleaned the field experimented with, and demonstrated to their own satisfaction the effectiveness of the methods tried, and at the same time the results furnish practical information to others. Some of the practical information gained from these co-operative weed experiments.

1. That good cultivation, followed tails of "the way somebody blundered by rape sewn in drills, provides a means of eradicating both perennial sow thistle and twitch grass.

2. That rape is a more satisfactory crop to use in the destruction of twitch grass than buckwheat.

3. That rape gives much better results in the eradication of twitch grass and perennial sow thistle when sown in drills and cultivated, than it does when sown broadcast.

4. That thorough, deep cultivation in fall and spring, followed by a well cared for hoed crop, will destroy bladder campion.

5. That mustard may be prevented from seeding in oats, wheat and barley by spraying with a twenty per cent. solution of iron sulphate.

These co-operative weed experiments will be continued this year. The weeds to be experimented with are perennial sow thistle, twitch grass, bladder campion or cow bell, wild mustard and ox-eye daisy. All who have any of these weeds on their farms are invited to write to the Director of Co-operative Experiments in Weed Eradication, O. A. C., Guelph, Ontario, who will gladly furnish information concerning this experimental work.

SMUTS AND RUSTS OF GRAIN CROPS

It is estimated that the losses sustained from smuts in Ontario grain crops amount to $2,720,000 annually, about two-thirds of which occur in oats, wheat being the next greatest sufferer. To cope with this danger, Bulletin 229, entitled "Smuts and Rusts of Grain Crops," prepared by J. E. Howitt and R. E. Stone, has been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, for free distribution to those who may apply for it. This very practical bulletin goes fully into the cause and cure of smuts and rusts, and gives a number of ways of treating seed grain in order to avoid or lessen injury to grain crops from these causes. Practical farmers will hail it as a valuable adviser regarding relief from these two common grain troubles.

◆

EFFERVESCENT DRINKS.

They Allay Thirst Quickly, but the Effect is Not Lasting.

The reason why we like effervescent drinks is that the slightest stinging or pricking of the palate that follows on drinking liquids charged with carbonic acid gas produces immediately an increased flow of saliva and thus diminishes for the moment the sensation of thirst.

But the relief they bring is only temporary and is followed by a reaction in which the thirst is actually increased. The salivary glands are no more susceptible to perpetual stimulation than any other, and after each period of excitement one of depression supervenes. Young soldiers on route marches quickly come to understand this and to discover that the more water they drink the more thirsty they get and that it is best, therefore, to limit the quantity of liquid swallowed. Moreover, the saliva contains matters of great importance for the digestion of food particularly of starchy foods, and if it all be washed down the throat into the bowels as soon as it is secreted a great part of its usefulness is lost.

It would therefore seem that a less wasteful way, physiologically, of promoting the flow of saliva might be adopted with profit. The consumption of fruit containing subacid juices is about the most excellent way.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

◆

A leader of men is one who seems which way a crowd is going in time to get in ahead of it.—Atchison Globe.

Dreams are but interludes which fancy makes.—Dryden.

For You—a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor? It's a fact. Do you know that proper, inexpensive tile drainage assists pulverization—lengthens the season—prevents surface washing—makes your land lighter to work—prevents drought and increases the quantity and improves the quality of your crops?

Why not have us send you, today, free of charge, a very interesting booklet on this subject? Much to learn—nothing to pay. Don't neglect anything that will help you grow better, bigger crops. Proper drainage means as much as two dollars in your bank account for every one that goes there now, and the Government lends you money for the Tile if desired.

Write us today. Mention this paper. Your book is waiting.

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited
SWANSEA, ONTARIO

THE POULTRY WORLD

CARE OF BROODER CHICKS.

No brooder is self-regulating like a hen. It cannot call the chicks to where the heat is, or tell them if the heat is too great, or too little. This is a man's regulation, and the nearer the person operating the brooder comes to the proper mark in heat regulation the better the results will be. Attention must be paid to the operating of the brooder. No brooder yet made could be depended upon to regulate itself to all requirements that must be put to a brooder from time to time, and it is here that man must step in and supply the needed brains. If they are used with good judgment, success can be attained with high-grade modern brooder.

The greatest care must be used during the first 10 days. It is during this time that the chick is weakest and needs the most attention. A chill during that time means, if not a large death rate, a setback in growth that cannot be overcome. Overheating is harmful, more so during the late spring than earlier. Of the two evils, too much heat is better than too little. In a measure the chicks to some extent can get away from the heat, but when not enough is supplied, and the chicks can in no way find it for any length of time, it means a chilled chick and as a rule that means a dead one, or one that has received a setback that will take some time to recover.

So a good plan is always to be on the brooder, especially first 10 days. About 90 degrees is a safe figure if it can be held at that degree during the entire night. Ninety degrees is the ideal temperature for the first 10 days, if it can with our high-grade. Can it? Even with our high-grade brooders, especially the outdoor styles, on cold nights there is a tendency for the heat to drop several degrees, and in many cases, while the self-regulating dampers may close, the flame is not powerful enough to again place the heat at 90 degrees. So the operator may find a drop of from 3 to 10 degrees from 10 p.m. until the next morning. If this happens during the first 10 days of the chick's life something is going to happen. So, to be on the safe side, it is best to have the brooder heat at 95 to 100 degrees at night, especially nights the operator feels sure will be cold ones, in order that the chicks may be comfortable. It is far better to err on the side of overheat at this time of the year than too little and the chances from day to night are great at this season of the year.

In feeding the essentials are feed little and often, and avoid early feeding and overfeeding, especially the first ten days. Most all the ills and ailments are caused by some mismanagement, heat or lack of it, feed, etc., during the first ten days. A little rolled oats can be fed after the chicks are 48 to 50 hours old. The second day's feed can consist of dry bran placed in boxes where they can obtain it when wished, rolled and a small amount of clean chick grain. For the first ten days the chicks do not require much or heavy feeding, but should have comfortable quarters. Plenty of fresh water, fine charcoal and grit are essentials that go towards success.

MORE POULTRY NEEDED.

Canada is short fifty hundred thousand hens averaging one hundred eggs per year. Canada in 1914 imported two hundred thousand dollars' worth more poultry than she exported and imported eggs to the enormous amount in value of $2,-[illegible] in excess of her shipments abroad. These are the somewhat surprising, if not alarming, statements made by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, from which also emanates the important announcement that Britain took from Belgium, France, Russia, Germany and Austria-Hungary in the available months of 1914, three million dollars' worth of poultry and 191,-[illegible] dozen, or sixteen hundred and thirty-two million eggs—sufficient to give two million two hundred and thirty-five thousand six hundred and sixteen people two eggs apiece for every day in the year. Such facts must surely convey a world of meaning to poultry breeders in Canada. These facts are further emphasized by the statement that the average egg yield per hen in this country is but 80 per year, which we are further assured by experts could, by careful selection, feeding and housing be increased to 150 eggs per hen per year.

NOTES.

Poultry on the farm is the right thing in the right place. It is not necessary to rush the business to the exclusion of all other branches any more than it is reasonable to neglect this department altogether. A happy medium should be struck. The stock, if good, already on hand should be culled down to productiveness and then bettered by the infusion of new blood. Poultry on the farm is a source of profit when managed right.

With the advanced knowledge in all lines of poultry the beginner has many more chances of success than the beginner of some years ago. In those days incubators, brooders and the knowledge of feeds, and feedings were in a crude state compared with the new and tried up-to-date methods.

Always remember that the standard-bred fowl is just as good a utility fowl as any other, if coming from a progressive breeder who sees that utility is always foremost in his flock. The egg-producing powers of any flock lie wholly with the breeder. Egg production is purely a matter of good breeding. But the aid of the trap nest, and the size of comb, color of eye or carriage of tail, cannot make a 200 egger out of a scrub unless bred for it.

A few weeks are yet left to plant the shade trees in the poultry runs. The importance of shade during the summer months is never fully realized by any except the poultry breeder of some years' experience. It is a big factor toward success in poultry, and the sooner the trees are started the quicker the fowls and their owner will enjoy their fruits.

The beginner in many cases makes the mistake in ordering the eggs for hatching day-old chicks, or stock too late. It takes time to deliver, and as a rule there are orders ahead which must be served in turn. Order now, that there will be as little delay as possible.

It takes time to educate the public, but the day is coming when, through the press lectures by poultry experts, etc., the people will find that there is much difference in the very cheap stock and that of a fair price. That there is a difference in chickens, and in the long run it pays to purchase the best in standard-bred poultry. Scrubs won't do. They have never accomplished anything in the long run, and never will.

◆

BABIES IN ASHANTI.

They Go Through a Trying Ordeal in Getting a Name.

When children are born in Ashanti they are at once rubbed all over with a mixture of oil and red ochre, this being repeated every two days. Their mouths were washed with a fiery concoction in which red pepper is the main ingredient, and a crier goes through the town proclaiming the new arrival and claiming for it a name and a place among the living.

Some one else in a distant part of the village acknowledges the fact and promises, on the part of the people, that the newborn babe shall be received into the community. The townspeople then assemble in the streets, and the baby is brought out and exposed to view.

Next a basin of water is provided, and the head man, or chief of the town, sprinkles water upon it, leaving it a name and invoking a blessing upon it, such as, for instance, that it may have health, grow up to manhood or womanhood, have a numerous progeny and possess riches.

Most of those present follow the example of the head men, and the poor child is thoroughly drenched before the ceremony is ended. Everyone who participates in the ceremony pledges himself to be a friend to the child.—London Standard.

◆

MEMORY KEPT GREEN.

It is not often in these days that we find any real humor in the interrupters of political meetings. There are exceptions however. "A man is soon forgotten after he's dead," said a speaker one evening. "Not if you marry his widow, guv'nor," cried a voice from the crowd.

That cause is strong which has not a multitude, but one strong man behind it.—Lowell.

SPRING BLOOD IS WATERY BLOOD

How to Get New Health and New Strength at This Season.

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in overheated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the school—taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions; while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed. Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. That is all that a purgative does. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills do not only banish spring weakness, but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism and other diseases due to bad blood. In proof of this, Mrs. D. E. Hughes, Hazenmore, Sask., says: "About a year ago I was badly run down, my nerves were all unstrung, and I could not go up stairs without stepping to rest. As I was a long ways from a doctor I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in the course of a few days I felt like a new person. As an all round restorative I can heartily recommend this medicine."

If you are ailing this spring you cannot afford, in your own interest, to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

◆

BETTY BROWN'S DANCE FROCK

Did you ever expect to see Betty Brown in such a flimsy, whimsy dress as this? All the girls are wearing them and I simply had to have a transparent dancing frock.

It's made of heliotrope striped voile and light tan daphne silk embroidered with gold thread is used in the bodice. The band around the bottom of the skirt is purple voile and ribbon of the same soft shade make the collar and girdle.—Betty Brown.

◆

It All Came From Strain and Cold

But G. K. MacDonald Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Nova Scotia Man, After Fifteen Years Suffering, Found a Cure Through Reading an Advertisement.

Harrigan Cove, Halifax Co., N. S., April 18.—(Special).—After suffering for fifteen years from lame back and kidney trouble Mr. George K. MacDonald a well known resident of this place is telling his neighbors of the great benefit he has received from using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started from a strain and a cold," Mr. Macdonald states. "I was troubled with stiffness of the joints and cramps in the muscles. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My back ached and I suffered form rheumatism, when reading an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am only too pleased to say that the treatment was successful. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good."

Mr. MacDonald's symptoms show that he was troubled with kidney disease. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

◆

THE INVINCIBLE CHAMPION.

(Detroit Free Press)

The real heavyweight champion of this world is Youth, and he is an unbeaten champion. Once more he has won his fight.

Willard is only his alias, which he will discard some day for another name, for Willard's time will come to deliver his honors to his successor as Sullivan's time came and Jefferies' time came.

◆

You never can tell. A groundless rumor sometimes covers the most ground.

The HouseKeeper

Put a little saltpetre in the water you use for your bouquets and the flowers will last for a fortnight.

Cream of tartar rubbed on soiled white gloves cleans them.

When rinsing ecru curtains, stir a little yellow ocher into the water and they will be of just the right color.

Keep flowers fresh by putting a pinch of soda in the water.

To restore gold lace that has become tarnished, brush well with powdered alum.

To save yourselves steps (going back and forth to the stove) and economize on heat, buy a square of soapstone and use it for an iron stand on ironing day. The irons will retain their heat twice as long as when placed upon other materials.

To clean an unpainted kitchen table, scrub it first with hot water and soda, then sprinkle silver sand over it and finish scrubbing it. Rinse this off, first with hot and then with cold water.

To remove inkspots from any kind of linen, soak the spots for several days in turpentine and then in water, strongly soapy three or four times, if necessary. The treatment is said to be infallible.

Paste soft blotting paper on the bottom of flower bowls and they will not mar polished surfaces.

To clean white satin slippers, take a little alcohol and drop three or four drops of lemon juice in it, then apply it to the slippers with a piece of soft white cloth or linen.

To keep brooms in proper shape, souse them down in the suds, after boiling the clothes on wash day, bending them into shape as you do this; then rinse, shake well and stand to dry upside down.

To clean a violin, wash it very carefully with soap and water, seeing to it that not a drop runs inside, or dip a piece of soft silk in paraffin oil and rub the violin with it. The interior of the violin should be cleaned with dry rice.

◆

CARDINAL FACTS

This is Canada's war.

What will the harvest be?

Increase of knowledge means increase of production.

The first essential for the highest yield is good seed.

Not only grain growers, but breeders and all producers are making history at this juncture.

Value of the crop is increased if treated for smut prevention.

Failure to secure suitable varieties is a frequent cause of poor ensilage.

All grain intended for seed should be cleaned and graded, in order to retain only the strong kernels.

Farmers who have separate houses for their laborers have no difficulty in securing help.

Good labor is worthy employment in winter as well as in spring, summer and autumn.

If labor is scarce now, it will not be more plentiful in another year, so it is wise to encourage present help.

A bureau of employment could find useful work in every town of size.

Austria has decreed that every acre must be utilized for production. Wasting land is the worst form of extravagance.

Live stock is the foundation of permanently successful farming to-day, as it has always been.

The farmer who conserves his best stock for breeding will profit greatly in the future.

When manure is piled and allowed to heat, the vitality of most of the seeds is destroyed; but when drawn to the field from the stable, or not left long enough in the pile to become well rotted, manure is one of the most important means of seed dispersal.

Canada is many times larger in area than Belgium, but in population there is not a great deal of difference, that is, considering Belgium before the war. Britain is the protector of small states. The greater the area and variety of area, the more protection is needed when emergency arises.

◆

AVERAGE VALUES OF ONTARIO CROPS.

The figures in the following table are obtained or deduced from the Census and Statistics Monthly for December, 1914, and January, 1915. Profits per acre for 1914 will vary with the cost of production, yield and market price.

Average yields and values per acre of field crops for Ontario in 1914:

Crops.	Ave. yield per acre bus.	Ave. value per acre.
Fall wheat	21.51	$23.23
Spring wheat	18.80	20.12
Oats	35.09	17.15
Barley	30.34	19.42
Corn (husking)	56.11	38.71
Flax	15.76	26.79
Rye	17.19	14.61
Peas	16.09	21.12
Beans	18.09	10.32
Buckwheat	25.40	16.38
Mixed grains	36.66	23.09
Potatoes	167.35	78.65
Turnips and other roots	430.31	90.36
	tons.
Hay and clover	1.11	17.00
Fodder corn	11.95	51.68
Sugar beets	9.06	54.99
Alfalfa	2.26	33.92

These figures are interesting in considering increased production for 1915. The cost of production includes the cost of preparation, seed, seeding, cultivation of crop, harvesting, threshing, wear and tear of implements and rental value of land. Preparation includes the cost of applying manure (if any; the value of the manure is counted as offset by the bye-products, straw, fibre, stalks.

Figures are not available for the profits per acre of the heavier-yielding crops, and potatoes, roots, etc., but their high values should not lead the farmer to overlook their increased cost of production.

◆

THE OTHER FELLOW'S PLACE.

(Atlanta Constitution)

The fault with most American slogans, and "Back to the farm" is one of them, is that they are too sweeping, too indiscriminate. It is better to pick your man to go back to the farm, to acquaint him with what he must expect, and to train him for his job. Just as it would be merciful if we could place an embargo on the country people who flock to the cities. The idea that is prevalent, that any American can go out on a plot of ground and dig out a livelihood, is a fallacy. Just as big and more cruel a fallacy is the delusion of the countryman that he can, by some mysterious magic, succeed quickly in the city without previous experience.

READ THE LABEL

FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE CONSUMER THE INGREDIENTS ARE PLAINLY PRINTED ON THE LABEL. IT IS THE ONLY WELL-KNOWN MEDIUM-PRICED BAKING POWDER MADE IN CANADA THAT DOES NOT CONTAIN ALUM AND WHICH HAS ALL THE INGREDIENTS PLAINLY STATED ON THE LABEL.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER
CONTAINS NO ALUM

ALUM IS SOMETIMES REFERRED TO AS SULPHATE OF ALUMINA OR SODIC ALUMINIC SULPHATE. THE PUBLIC SHOULD NOT BE MISLED BY THESE TECHNICAL NAMES.

E. W. GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED
WINNIPEG TORONTO, ONT. MONTREAL

EXPERIMENTS WITH FARM CROPS

The members of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union are pleased to state that for 1915 they are prepared to circulate into every Township of Ontario material of high quality for experiments with Grain, Fodder, Crops, Roots, Grasses, Clovers and Alfalfas, as follows:

No. 1—Testing two varieties of Oats—2 plots.

No. 2a—Testing O.A.C. No. 21 Barley and Emmer—2 plots.

No. 2b—Testing two varieties of two-round Barley—2 plots.

No. 3—Testing two varieties of Hulless Barley—2 plots.

No. 4—Testing two varieties of Spring Wheat—2 plots.

No. 5—Testing two varieties of Buckwheat—2 plots.

No. 6—Testing two varieties of Field Peas—2 plots.

No. 7—Testing two varieties of Spring Rye—2 plots.

No. 8—Testing two varieties of Soy, Soja, or Japanese Beans—2 plots.

No. 9—Testing three varieties of Husking Corn—3 plots.

No. 10—Testing three varieties of Mangels—3 plots.

No. 11—Testing two varieties of Sugar Beets for feeding purposes—2 plots.

No. 12—Testing three varieties of Swedish Turnips—3 plots.

No. 13—Testing two varieties of Fall Turnips—2 plots.

14—Testing two varieties of Carrots—2 plots.

No. 15—Testing three varieties of Fodder and Silage Corn—3 plots.

No. 16—Testing three varieties of Millet—3 plots.

No. 17—Testing two varieties of Sorghum—2 plots.

No. 18—Testing Grass Peas and two varieties of Vetches—3 plots.

No. 19—Testing Rape, Kale and Field Cabbage—3 plots.

No. 20—Testing three varieties of Clover—3 plots.

No. 21—Testing two varieties of Alfalfa—2 plots.

No. 22—Testing four varieties of Grasses—4 plots.

No. 23—Testing three varieties of Field Beans—3 plots.

No. 24—Testing two varieties of Sweet Corn—2 plots.

No. 29—Testing three grain mixtures for Grain production—3 plots.

No. 30—Testing three grain mixtures for Fodder production—3 plots.

Any person in Ontario may choose any one of the experiments for 1915 and apply for the same. The material will be furnished in the order in which the applications are received, while the supply lasts. Each applicant should make a second choice, as the material for the experiment selected as first choice might be exhausted before his application is received. All material will be furnished free of charge to each applicant, and the produce will, of course, become the property of the person who conducts the experiment. Each person applying for an experiment should write his name and address very carefully, and should give the name of the county in which he lives.—C. A. Zavitz, Director Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, March, 1915.

◆

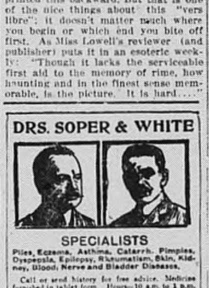
FUTURIST POETRY

"Poetry for Poetry's Sake" is the title of a book review in one of the literary periodicals. The book is "Sword Blades and Poppy Seed," by Miss Amy Lowell, and contains bobtail verses not worse and certainly not better than most of the semi-rhythmic chunks of language issued nowadays from time to time under the poetic license called "vers libre." Here is a sample—"A London Thoroughfare at 2 a.m.":

It has white lamps,
It is too bright.
She cannot light the city
Through the plum-colored night.
Clear and round,
The moon cuts
Opposite my window
A river leading nowhere;
Slow-moving,
With the silver barred street in the midst.
The city is squalid and sinister,
Night walkers pass along the sidewalks,
Tramps doze on the window ledges.
Between them I hear the shuffling of feet.
And then another
One,
Cans go down it
Barred with silver and black—
Like a slow-moving river
And lies
Cold, white lamps—
It shines in the glare of lamps.
They have watered the street.

Oh, shucks! The linotyper went and printed this backward. But that is one of the nice things about this "vers libre": it doesn't matter much where you begin or which end you bite off first. As Miss Lowell's reviewer (and publisher) puts it in an esoteric weekly: "Though it lacks the serviceable first aid to the memory of rime, how haunting and in the finest sense memorable, is the picture. It is hard...."

Yes, brother, it is even tough. But wouldn't a real live poet like Walt Whitman have chuckled at the pale echoes we have nowadays of his old full-bodied work?—Collier's.



DRS. SOPER & WHITE

SPECIALISTS

Piles, Eczema, Asthma, Catarrh, Pimples, Dyspepsia, Epilepsy, Rheumatism, Skin, Kidney, Blood, Nerve and Bladder Diseases.

Call or send history for free advice. Medicine furnished in tablet form. Hours—10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 6 p.m. Sundays—10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Consultation Free

DRS. SOPER & WHITE
25 Toronto St., Toronto, Ont.

When Writing Mention This Paper.

◆

PLANT INTELLIGENCE.

Maurice Maeterlinck Justifies Belief in Their Wisdom.

Gather, if you will, from the side of the path, in the very first tuft that you see, a blade of any grass, and you will find a work a little independent, untiring, unexpected intelligence. Here are two poor little creeping plants that you have seen a thousand times on your walks, for they are found everywhere, even in the tiniest crannies into which a bit of dust has been blown. They are two varieties of wild lucern, two bad weeds in the most modest sense of the word

One bears a red blossom, the other a yellow crest the size of a pea. When you see them among other plants, you would hardly think that they, long before the illustrious geometrician and physician of Syracuse had discovered and tried to apply not to the raising of liquids, but to aviation, the astonishing properties of the power of Archimedes. They place their seeds in light spiral envelopes, with three of four turns admirably constructed, when figuring upon their falling and being picked up by the wind, to be whirled a long distance in the air.

One of these, the yellow one, has even improved upon the apparatus of the red one, by furnishing the edges of the spiral with a double row of points, with the plain intention of attaching itself to any passer-by, by the clothing of humans, or the hair and wool of animals. It is clear that it goes to enjoy the advantages of the aeronaut—that is, to scatter its seeds by aid of the sheep, rabbits, etc., thus going even further than those taken up by the air.

The most touching part of all this great effort is that it is useless. The poor red and yellow lucerns have deceived themselves. Their remarkable power will do them no good. They canot act unless they fall from a certain distance, from the height of a tall tree; but dropping amid the grass, they fail to germinate. Here we have a curious instance of the errors, disappointments, experiments and little mishaps, occurring so often in nature, for we need study very little to know that nature never makes a mistake.

It is not only in the seed, or the blossom, but in the whole plant, twigs, leaves, roots, that we may find, if we will turn our attention to their humble work for a while, real traces of calculating and lively intelligence.

Just recollect the magnificent efforts towards the light of those branches turned the other way, or the ingenious and courageous efforts made by trees when in danger.

Among the plants which offer the most striking proofs of initiative, plants which we can really call animated or sensitive claim the right to a detailed study. Other plants, capable of spontaneous movements, are less well known, notably the hedysarum gyrans, or waving fenugreek, which moves in a most surprising manner.

This little plant, originating in Bengal, but often cultivated in our gardens, does a kind of perpetual complicated dance in honor of light.—Maurice Maeterlinck.

◆

DON'T WASTE TIME.

Many Men Have Accomplished Wonders in Their Spare Moments.

Great men are economical in their use of time. They not only work hard for hours together, but they also save the spare minutes which most persons waste in profitless employment.

As the distinguished naturalist Cuvier rode from place to place he read and thought, and the results of his saving these odd quarter hours are seen in his books.

Napoleon, as he hurried over Europe in his camp carriage, was busy in planning for the government of conquered countries and in contriving new conquests.

Elihu Burritt learned no less than eighteen languages and twenty-one dialects by the economical use of time. While he worked fourteen hours a day at his trade of a blacksmith he found a few minutes each morning and evening to study Latin or French.

His Greek grammar would fit into the crown of his straw hat, and as he stood at his furnace, waiting for the fusing of the metal, he would catch it up and commit to memory a part of a Greek verb.

Sir William Jones, the Oriental scholar and a judge in the supreme court of India, had so well improved his time that before he reached the age of twenty one he knew Greek, Latin, several modern languages and had studied the Arabic and the Persian. His use of the spare minutes made him both learned and famous.

John Wesley said: "Never be unemployed; never be triflingly employed; never while away time."

So Goethe, the great German poet and thinker, said:

"Do not wait for extraordinary opportunities, but make use of common situations."

Be careful of the minutes, and the hours will take care of themselves.

◆

TAKING THE CURE.

(Pittsburg Gazette-Times)

Foreigners should not get the idea that all these ships they see in American harbors belong to Uncle Sam. They are merely taking the rest cure during the war.

A Stirring Bargain

Women's Attractive Spring Suits Designed to Sell at $13.50 & $22.50 for $7.95 & $9.95.

They are tailored suits so much in demand always. The coats are smart, jaunty little models, prettily trimmed, satin lined and finished to perfection. The skirts are plain tailored styles and of moderate width. The material is navy serge of excellent quality.

WOMEN'S WHITE BLOUSES.

There are very many pretty models in these women's smart spring waists. The styles are very new, very becoming. The waists are well made and prettily trimmed.

Prices $1.25, $1,50 to $3.50.

MOREEN & SATIN PETTICOATS.

In deep knife pleated flounce or narrow pleated frill: Splendid materials and excellent fitting skirts. Shades are Cerise, Irish Brown, Belgian Blue and Black.

Prices from $1.00 to $3.00.

NEW SPRING SILKS AND DRESS GOODS.

When you want dress goods don't overlook the fact that right here is gathered a stock of dress fabrics (which we have imported direct) that for newness, variety and values is unbeatable.

R-U-G-S A Big Display of Artistic Floor Rugs.

Wiltons, Velvets, Brussels, Tapestry, Union and Brussels Hemp.

These come in very pretty shades and patterns and are the very best and choicest stocks we've ever shown in these lines. Sizes 2½ x 3—2½ x 3—3 x 3—3 x 3½—3½ x 4—3½ x 4½.

Prices $4.50, $5.50, $6 50, $7.50 up to $27.50, in the best quality and largest size.

SCOTCH LINOLEUMS.

Imported by us direct from Glasgow, Scotland, and consequently very special values. 4 yards wide. Patterns floral and inlaid block effects. Extra heavy qualities at $1.75, $2, $2.25 and 2.50 a yard.

LACE CURTAINS.

Beautiful designs in fine filmy net and plain scrim with handsome medallion insertion border. They come in shades of Ivory, Cream, Arabe and White. 2½, 3 and 3½ yards long, to suit every window and every individual taste. Prices $1, $1.50, $2, to $7.50 a pair.

Curtain Nets, Nets, Scrims and Madras.

All the window hanging materials are here in wonderful variety of design, colorings and quality. 20c, 25c, 35c, 50c to 90c a yard.

STEPHAN BROS

FORMOSA

Mrs Martin Meyer of Mildmay visited relatives here on Thursday of last week.

The automobiles started to come to town on Thursday, John Kormans' being the first one,

Mrs. Joe Hauck went to Berlin on Wednesday to attend the funeral of her brother in-law Gregory Hergott.

Butcher G. Bruder of Walkerton started to supply our town with meat last week.

Mr. George Farbenkopf formerly of Culross, who went to the north-west two years ago, visited relatives here these past two weeks.

Alex Kropp ex-stage-driver here, is now one of Wellers teamsters.

The farmers around here are busy with their seeding now.

Mr. J J Fedy is back from Mt. Clemens, Mich. where he went for the good of his health.

Married this week, Tuesday, Pete Martin of Carrick to Miss Sophia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rittinger of Culross.

Alpin Hergott of Berlin who was home for some time, left for that city last week.

Joe. Graf of Berlin returned home last week.

The Teeswater butter factory started to collect cream on Monday of last week.

Weller's saw-mill started on Monday

Mr Hank Irwin of Walkerton was in town on Tuesday afternoon and bought four good horses.—Mildmay Gazette.

THE SAVOY CAFE

NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP

QUICK LUNCH

SPECIAL DINNER

Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.

BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS
WITH FRIED POTATOES
BREAD AND BUTTER
PIE
WITH TEA OR COFFEE.

25 cts.

First Monument Commemorating War

The first monument commemorating the war has been erected at the point where Gen. von Kluck's advance was stopped between Barcy and Meaux, 22 miles east of Paris. It consists of a truncated pyramid set on a cement platform and is inscribed: "To the memory of soldiers belonging to the army of Paris who died for their country on the battlefield of the Ourcq in September, 1914. The monument is the work of an engineer territorials.

War Stamps A Nuisance.

The war stamp tax is one of the biggest nuisances a government could inflict on the people and the revenue to be derived therefrom will by no means atone for the great annoyance caused. A big portion of the mail matter on the first day of the tax was minus the war stamp and went direct to the dead letter office. Imagine how aggravating this will be. It is petty legislation such as this and the big graft exposals at Ottawa that go a long way towards turning sentiment against a government and should an election be brought on at such a critical time as the present it shouldn't surprise the government were they turned out of power.

COMMUNICATION

The following letter was received at this office this week from Mr. A. D. McKinnon formerly of Greenock.

Editor Telescope,

Dear Editor:

I don't remember ever receiving a bill from you for the paper, but referring to the label I find that we are [illegible] years three or four years. It is a standing joke about country editors living on hot air but you must have something more substancial behind you or you would have sent out your statement with "Please remit" long before this.

It is almost twenty years since we left Bruce but we enjoy the Telescope about as much as ever. We notice though in reading the local happenings that the old familiar names are becoming more and more scarce.

Enclosed find draft for $10.00 which will at least pay postage for another while.

Respectfully yours,
A. D. McKinnon,

Going to Valcartier.

Valcartier camp grounds is again to be used for the training of Canadian contingents as spring opens. The area of the land there and the extensive accommodation afford better facilities for both manoeuvring and shooting practise than at any of the district camps.

Daylight Saving.

The daylight saving movement seems to be gaining ground. Cleveland, O. and Regina, Sask., are two cities in which the business and work day is started an hour earlier in summer than in winter, and of course adds an hour earlier, allowing people longer evenings. London, Ont. has also decided to adopt the plan, and the city council has ordered the preparation of a by-law establishing the new order. what's the matter with Paisley and every other Bruce county town and village getting into this line of progress? — Paisley Advocate.

Dr. de Van's Female Pills

A reliable French regulator; never fails. These pills are exceedingly powerful in regulating the generative portion of the female system. Refuse all cheap imitations. Dr. de Van's are sold at $5 a box, or three for $10. Mailed to any address. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

BUSINESS AND SHORTHAND

Subjects taught by expert instructors at the Westervelt School

Y. M. C. A. Bldg.
LONDON, ONT.

Students assisted to positions. College in session from Sept. 2nd. Catalogue free. Enter any time.

J. W. Westervelt, Principal — J. W. Westervelt Jr., Chartered Accountant, Vice-Principal

"You'll find it's so."

Labatt's London Lager

Now Perfected — Best Buyable

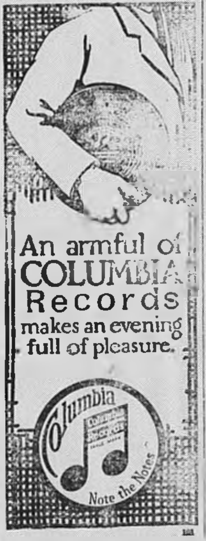
TRY IT

JOHN LABATT LIMITED 28
LONDON ONTARIO



An armful of COLUMBIA Records makes an evening full of pleasure.

"EDISON" PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson
Jeweller Walkerton

FOR ICE CREAM GO TO Erdman's

[illegible]

C. A. Fox. Walkerton
Jeweller and Optician

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.
Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "
Cracked Wheat, Farnia Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.
Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton Ont

Special Bargains in 1915 Wall Paper

Before buying wall paper, call and take a look through my stock; it is the most complete ever offered to the public to select from. My prices are moderate and the quality of the paper I guarantee.

I have papers for all rooms—Parlor, Dining Room, Living Room, Hall, Den, Kitchen and Bath Room. Borders same price as side walls. All paper trimmed free of charge.

G. T. STEAD
TWO DOORS EAST OF POST OFFICE

Boys Spring Suits Hats and Caps

[illegible] a specialty of boys [illegible] the same [illegible] style, cut and [illegible]

[illegible] Norfolk sack suits, sizes 22 [illegible] $8.00.

[illegible] suits in D. B. Sack and [illegible] at $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, [illegible]

Special Selling Mens and Young Mens Hats

[illegible] stock the most complete [illegible] young mens spring hats in [illegible] green, chocolate, reseda, [illegible] in hat bands, the [illegible] prices, any you choose [illegible] $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, [illegible]

[illegible] we can please you [illegible] the low prices we secured by [illegible]

[illegible] Shirts, Ties, Collars and [illegible] mens furnishings, [illegible] the value we show.

[illegible] & Co.

[illegible]

Forward Movement

[illegible]

[illegible] PRINCIPAL

THE
Merchants Bank OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,218,134

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

[illegible] ACCOUNTS of [illegible] SAVINGS BANK are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and [illegible] of May and Nov [illegible] as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

Special this Month

[illegible]

P. J. MALONEY
Principal Walkerton

Walkerton Markets

[illegible]	per	ton	$16.00 to	......	$17.00
[illegible]	"	[illegible]	[illegible]	......	60
Wheat	"	"	1.30 to	......	1 30
Barley	"	"	[illegible] to	......	65
Potatoes	"	bag	[illegible] "	......	90
Butter	"	lb.	25 "	......	28
Eggs	"	doz.	18 "	......	19
Chicken	"	lb.	12 "	......	14
Ducks	"	"	12 "	......	14
[illegible]	"	"	15 "	......	16

THE PEOPLE'S STORE

Grand Display

HAVE YOU ever seen such wonderful Smart Blouses, such wonderful Silks, such wonderful Dress Goods, such wonderful Wash Goods at such wonderful PRICES?

Dress Goods.

[illegible] etc.

Spring Goods.

New shipments of Spring Goods [illegible]

Neckwear.

Handsome Neckwear, you are sure to like.

Curtains.

New Curtains and [illegible] materials.

Linoleums and Oilcloths.

New patterns in floor oilcloths in all widths. New Linoleums.

J. H. Appel

Produce Wanted Phone 53

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

VOL XXXIV—No 17

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 29th 1915—8 PAGES

"NYAL'S"

Hypophosphites With Creosote.

A combination of all the medicinal and nutritive elements of fine Norway Cod Liver Oil—without the nauseating grease — with malt, hypophosphites and creosote.

For a lingering cough, chronic bronchitis and asthmatic condition and as a general tonic—you will find this preparation good.

—Get a Bottle today at—

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

Spring Millinery

We are showing all the latest and popular styles in Spring Millinery creations. Charming effects in small, medium and large hats. Copies of imported originals and American creations.

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton and vicinity to call and inspect this showing of latest models in Spring Millinery.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY

The Rife Block — Walkerton

Harmony Rose

and

Harmony Violet

Glycerine

Soap

15cts a cake

or

2 for 25c.

A Most Delightful Soap

SIEVERIGHT'S

The Rexall Store

MEN'S FURNISHINGS

THE new Spring Furnishings are here. New Cheney Cravats, the new tie with some of the cleverest color combination and designs you ever saw.

New Spring shirts, collars, gloves. See the new Arrow collar, Norman, in ¼ sizes.

Our Spring hats lead in fashions.

G.T.ROURKE

Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store

Walkerton, - Ont.

JAS. TOLTON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

BOYER-VINCENT STOCK COMPANY

at the

Opera House,

Walkerton,

Two Nights

April 30th & May 1st.

Friday, April 30th, "THE WHIRLPOOL"

Saturday Night, May 1st, "A HIDDEN CRIME"

Saturday Afternoon Matinee at 2.30 o'clock, the great book play, "ST. ELMO"

Reserved seat sale at McCrum's. Prices 35c & 50c.

Matinee prices, 10c & 20c.

A positively guaranteed attraction. Vaudeville between acts.

Play begins at 8.15 sharp.

Fresh Fish today at I. McIlwain's.

Saturday is the first day of trout-fishing.

T. E. Attwood, issuer of marriage licenses.

"Star" brand summer shirts at McBurney's

Stylish oxfords and pumps at Ramsey's Shoe Store

Ladies and Misses raincoats $4.00 to $15.00 at McBurney's.

Mrs. T. E. Attwood was a visitor in Toronto this week.

Fresh Fish every Tuesday and Friday at I. McIlwain's

The Newest shapes in men's straw hats.—Stephan Bros.

Newest shapes in straw hats and Panamas at McBurney's.

Miss Gertrude Eckel spent Sunday with friends in Hanover.

Mr. Ernie Watson of Kincardine, is visiting at Mr. Jos. Lindsay's.

Miss Rowland of Toronto is a guest at the home of Mrs. C. Clark.

Electric and hand vacum cleaners to rent, by the day.—H. A. Havill

Miss Minnetta Davidson of Hanover was a visitor here on Saturday.

Mr. Joe Cain of Durham was a visitor at his home here on Tuesday.

Mrs. Wm. Spitzig of Meaford is visiting her mother, Mrs. Huck.

Buy an electric iron for hot weather use, we sell them.—H. A. Havill.

Private Albert Earwaker of Guelph, spent a few days of last week here.

Cushionette shoes need no breaking in, sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

If you need floor rugs see our special imported qualities.—Stephan Bros.

Saturday night, in the Opera House, the great drama, the Hidden Crime.

Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson of Teeswater spent Sunday at Mr. A. Campbell's.

Miss Elizabeth Anstedt of Chepstow is visiting her brother here this week.

Royal on your shoes means quality in shoes, sold at Ramseys shoe store.

High class vaudeville between acts in Matinee as well as at regular plays.

Remember that special matinee. Great book play, St. Elmo, Saturday at 2.30.

Men's & Women's special quality Raincoats, $5., $6., $8. and $10.—Stephan Bros.

Women's sand cloth top bal, new toe, all sizes in stock. — Ramsey the Shoeman.

Private Frank Zettle of the 34th at Guelph was a visitor at his home here this week.

Misses Bertha Schwindt and Annie Bennie spent Sunday at Mr. Motec's in Hanover.

Do not forget the dates of the Boyer Vincent Stock Co. Fri. Apr. 30th., Sat. May 1st.

The South Bruce Liberal Convention will be held in Formosa on Tuesday next, May 4th.

Mrs. Obrecht returned on Friday from Wiarton where she spent the winter months.

For tired, burning feet try a pair of Dr. Reed's cushion shoes sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Mr. Ernie Cartwright left on Monday for Guelph, where he joined the 34th, battalion.

Private Joe Wallace of the third contingent at Guelph, spent Sunday at his home here.

Mr. Elliott Dixon who has been attending Toronto University, returned home on Monday.

Watson's—The right kind of underwear for women and children. Stephan Bros., Agents.

Mrs. O'Gorman returned on Monday from Winnipeg, where she has spent the past few months.

Women $3.50 and $4.00 tan shoes, clearing at $2.19, on the bargain table. Ramsey the Shoeman.

Mr. Art Robertson who has been attending S.P.S., Toronto, returned to his home here on Tuesday.

Rain coats in the latest styles Balmacaan and Raglan cut $5.00 to $14.00 —G. T. Rourke mens wear.

Holeproof Hosiery for Men, Women & Children. 6 pairs guaranteed to wear 6 months.—Stephan Bros.

Save work, house cleaning, by using Vacum cleaner, no carpets to take up, no dust, try ours.—H. A. Havill.

Private Geo Himmelspach a member of the 34th, battalion at Guelph renewed acquaintances here on Sunday.

Miss Ella Beattie was in Watford this week visiting her father who was suffering from a severe attack of La Grippe.

About sixty members of the local lodge of Odd Fellows attended divine service in the Methodist church on Sunday morning.

Messrs Ed. and Walt. Eidt of the Wireless station guard at Tobermory, spent the past few days at their home here and return to their duties Friday.

A carryall load of youth and beauty of Mildmay spent Thursday evening at the roller rink and on Friday evening a score of young people were in attendance.

The Bruce Presbyterial meets in Chesley on Thursday of this week. Afternoon and evening sessions will be held. A number of members of Knox church are in attendance.

One of the joys of motoring was experienced by a party of Walkerton young people on Thursday evening last, when their car broke down about five miles out and they were obliged to "hoof it" home.

Rev. Thos. Wilson is in London this week attending the meeting of the Synod of Hamilton and London which has been in progress in St. James church of that city during the past three days.

Flat to Rent.

Any time after the 1st of May a 5 room flat with all conveniences apply at the Telescope or to C. Patrick.

Big Bargains.

In electric irons, toasters, grills, etc. Special two weeks' sale at Walkerton Electric Light & Power Coy's office.

Tannery being Rased

Mr. Thos. Pellow has been engaged in tearing down the old tannery at the corner of Younge and Durham Sts, one of the town's old land marks, and we have been informed, will build a residence there.

Cracked Eggs.

Cracked eggs for sale at the Walkerton Egg & Dairy.

Women's Institute.

The annual meeting of the Walkerton Women's Institute will be held at Mr. Wm. Morgan's on Thursday, May 6th.

Just Arrived.

A car of seed corn has just arrived from Essex, and can be had either on or off the cob in any variety at Smith and McConnell's.

Bought Overland Car

R. Truax & Son have disposed of their Studebaker car and have purchased a 1915 model Overland. The car was delivered to them on Monday by Mr. J. Hartman of Clifford.

A Big Pike.

Whit Van Horne has had the honor of landing the biggest fish from this part of the Saugeen so far this season, he having on Friday last, caught a pike, weighing 7½ pounds and measuring 32 inches.

Indian Sentenced to Lashes

Joe Elliot, the Cape Crocker Indian who was brought here recently on a charge of assaulting his wife, appeared before Judge Klein on Monday and was sentenced to five months imprisonment with lashes.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement was announced from the R. C. pulpit on Sunday last, of Miss M. Kiefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiefer of Formosa, to Mr. Jno. McAuley of the Bell Telephone staff, Walkerton, the marriage to take place on May 10th.

A Large Membership

Messrs. W. H. McBurney and C. S. Stephan are canvassing the town for members of the bowling club for the coming season. They are meeting with great success and this year's membership will be considerably in advance of that of last year.

Meeting of Liberals.

A meeting of the Liberals of Walkerton will be held in the Telescope office tonight (Thursday, April 29th), at eight o'clock, for the purpose of selecting delegates from the several polling divisions to attend the convention which will be held in Formosa on Tuesday, May 4th.

Lawn Mowers Sharpened.

Those wanting their lawn mowers, scissors, knives, or cutlery of any kind sharpened will do well to call on Lawrence Batte, station road, opposite House of Refuge, Walkerton, he having installed a machine made especially for sharpening lawnmowers. Work guaranteed, and prices reasonable.

Death of Infant.

Mr and Mrs. Wm Koellar have the sympathy of their many friends in their bereavement, caused by the death of their infant daughter, Melba Jane, which took place on Wednesday last after a week's illness, at the age of eight months. The remains were interred in the Walkerton cemetery on Friday.

Conservative Convention.

The Conservative convention for this riding is being held at Formosa today (Thursday). Many names have been mentioned as possible candidates to oppose R. E. Truax the Liberal M.P. but the two most prominently mentioned as possible nominees are: — John Joynt of Lucknow and John Purvis of Holyrood.

Defeated in Hanover

A local youthful basketball team comprised of B. Rogers, A. Scanlon, G. Hass, A. Hehn and E. Reichenbach, journeyed to Hanover on Monday evening to try conclusions with the junior Y.M.C.A. team of that town. Owing to lack of practice they were defeated, the score being 20-14 in favor of Hanover.

All Licenses Renewed.

The last meeting of the License Commissioners for this district was held at the Queen's Hotel on Thursday last. Besides the transference of the Elmwood license to Mr. Dillinger, the only business done was the granting of licenses for the year all the hotels which had licenses last year, being granted renewals.

Received Acknowledgement.

The young ladies of the Soldiers Aid Tea Room have received an acknowledgement through K. M. Taylor, Secty, Red Cross, of $50 forwarded to endow a bed in the Duchess of Connaughts Can. Red Cross Hospital Clivedon, the table to bear the inscription "Donated by the Young Ladies of the Soldiers Aid Tea Room, Walkerton, Ont.

To Build New Bridge

The bridge over the roadway at the Walkerton Flour Mill has lapsed into such a state of decay that it threatened to collapse and a gang of men are now engaged in making preparations for the erection of a new bridge. The new structure which will replace the old one which has been annually repaired for the past twenty years will be cement with steel top and will cost in the neighborhood of $2000.00.

Overcoat Lost.

On Monday, April 26th, between Todd's schoolhouse and C. Voelzing's on 6th concession, Brant. Finder please leave at Telescope office.

War Pictures at Red Star.

"Canada in Peace and War" in three parts will be the program at the Red Star on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. These are not slides, but moving pictures of Canada's troops in training at Toronto and at Salisbury Plains. Admission 10c.

Died in Formosa.

A very sudden death occurred in Formosa on Thursday last when Mrs. Julius Knoll took a paralytic stroke and died a few hours later. The deceased was in her usual good health and was working in the garden when she was suddenly stricken. She was 50 years of age. The funeral took place to the Formosa cemetery on Friday morning.

Special at Red Star.

Friday of next week will be a special night at the Red Star Theatre. In an endeavor to raise sufficient money to open the season, the lacrosse club have engaged the theatre for the evening and are putting on four special films. Further announcement will be made next week. Admission 25c. Buy a ticket when asked and in this manner help sport in Walkerton.

Liberals Attention!

Bills have been posted this week announcing the Liberal Convention for South Bruce, which will be held on Tuesday next, May 4th, commencing at two p.m., in the stone school house, Formosa. The speakers of the afternoon will be Messrs F. Pardee M. P., Sarnia, W. German M. P., Welland. Come and here these speakers discuss the questions of the day.

Enlisted as Veterinary Surgeon.

Dr. Gerald Hanmore, veterinary surgeon of Cargill, has volunteered as a veterinary surgeon in the Canadian army and left this week for Halifax. Dr. Hanmore's practice in Cargill will, during his absence, be conducted by Dr. H. M. Younghusband V. S., of Ottawa, who will carry on the business at the same stand and continue to give his patrons the same excellent service, day and night.

Presented with Silver Cake Dish.

A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brick, met at the home of Mr. J. J. Schumacher on Thursday evening to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Brick who left this week for Londesborough, near Clinton, where they will in future reside. Mr. and Mrs. Brick were presented with a beautiful silver cake dish as a token of the esteem in which they were held by their many friends in Walkerton.

Entering Junior Team.

At a meeting of the executive of the lacrosse club held on Monday evening it was decided to enter a Junior team only in the O.A.L.A. An intermediate team is out of the question as there is not sufficient material and as to a juvenile team as in the series, Walkerton was grouped with Mount Forest, this is also out of the question as the club could not secure sufficient funds for the trip to Mount Forest.

C.O.F Notes.

At the regular meeting of Court Bruce 56, C.O.F. held on Tuesday evening, Messrs A. Royce and Lou Anderson were appointed delegates to attend the meeting of the High Court which will this year be held in St. Catherines on June 15th. Mr. M. Hudson was appointed as substitute. Mr. Geo Faust was appointed Chief Ranger to take the place of Mr. Critchison for the balance of the year

Still at It.

The people of Walkerton are still at their old tactics, that of muzzling the press when they get into trouble which is liable to give them unwelcome free publicity. This week we have been requested and prevailed upon, to leave unpublished no less than fiveitems, any one of which would make good reading matter and be considered good news items, by any outside those interested. Our readers will understand from this that running a newspaper is not all pleasure, particularly on a slack week.

Killed in France.

The following was clipped from the Canadian Casualty list which appeared in Monday's dailies, Major Norsworthy who was killed in the battle of Langemark being a nephew of Mrs. (Rev.) J. H. Watts of Walkerton.

"Major Edward C. Norsworthy, killed was born at Ingersoll, Ont. in 1879. He was manager of the Montreal branch of the Dominion Securities Corporation. Just before leaving for the front he was offered a position with Sir Max Aitkens, the official eyewitness for the Canadian forces but preferred the fighting service."

DIED

STEFFLER—In Carrick on Thursday, April 22nd, Mrs. Anthony Steffler, aged 57 years. The funeral took place to the Formosa cemetery on Saturday.

30 Days for Vagrancy.

Jack Johnston a knight of the road hailing from Ripley vicinity was taken into custody by Chief Ferguson on Wednesday night last on a charge of vagrancy and was taken before Magistrate Tolton. Johnston was sentenced to 30 days and will be a boarder a castle McKechnie until the weather becomes warmer and sleeping in the open will be more comfortable for the "Weary Willies."

Missionary Here.

Rev. F. H. Russell, missionary of the Presbyterian church in India, who is in Canada on furlough, was a guest of Rev. Thos. Wilson at the manse this week. Rev. Russell, who is well known here, having spent a previous furlough, some years ago, in Walkerton, spoke in the pulpit of Knox church on Sunday morning and evening and gave very interesting discourses on his work at Russelpoura, India. Mrs. Russell is at present in Ireland with her children, who are being educated in that country, and will visit here before she returns to India with Mr. Russell at the end of his furlough.

Pinkerton Hotel Licensed.

The license commissioners of Centre Bruce have granted a license for this year to Mr. Adam Knox, proprietor of the Pinkerton hotel. It will be remembered that last year Mr. Knox presented a petition to the commissioners asking for a renewal of the license, but was refused owing to some irregularities of the petition but this year the petition measured up to the requirements of the law and the commissioners had no other course but to grant the license. The granting of this license is against the wishes of the best thinking people of the district and it now remains for the temperance people to petition the provincial commissioners to have the license cancelled.

Water Problem Solved.

Although the new arterian well at the pumping station gave forth a strong and continuous flow of water there were a great many doubting Thomases, who feared the supply was not permanent and claimed that once pumping started it would soon give out. These fears and doubts, however, have been removed and the well has measured up to the expectations of both the contractors and the town council. Pumping was started at the new well last week and for eighteen hours a steady stream was poured into the reservoir, until it was filled to the brim. The pump was then stopped to discern what effect it had had on the flow and in five minutes the water was again pouring over the piping to the well. It surely appears as if the town council had at last solved the vexatious problem of the town's water supply for all time.

In the Thick of the Fray.

The First Canadian Contingent is now in the thick of the fray in Northern France. The casualty lists received by the Canadian Government at Ottawa, up until Saturday were light, but that day was a disastrous one for the Canadians, the casualty list issued Sunday after a day's desperate fighting, included eighty-six officers and more than one thousand men killed and wounded. The terrible battle is still in progress and the Canadian casualty list is being added to daily. The names of the privates killed and wounded have not yet been published, but no doubt the names of some of Bruce's sons will appear. Among the wounded officers is Lieut. Pick of Mount Forest. All over the Dominion great anxiety is felt by persons who have relatives and friends in the Canadian division. The gaps in the Canadian ranks will be filled from the men stationed in England as reinforcements.

A Bad Accident.

An accident which was attended by serious results and which might easily have resulted fatally occurred in the west ward on Saturday afternoon. A number of men were engaged in raising the house of Mr. Bester, and when jacked up full heighth, without a moments warning the jacks slipped from under the building and it dropped to the ground. Mr. Bester and Mr. Zettle who were assisting in the operations were caught beneath the building and were pinned there by the heavy timbers. Although the other men employed on the job worked frantically it was fully an hour before they were extricated. It was seen that both were seriously injured and a doctor was immediately summoned who on examination found that Mr Bester suffered a broken leg, and Mr. Zettle a broken leg, and arm, and it is also feared that the latter was hurt internally. Last reports state that both men are recovering and no serious results are anticipated

---

CARD OF THANKS

The ladies of the Soldier's Aid Tea Room wish to thank those of the town and country who so generously assisted them in making the tea room the success it has proved. All empty jars not called for were left at Goode & McKay's.

90 in the Shade.

The months of March and April of this year will go down on record as having been the two driest spring months we have had for many years, with practically no rainfall. This dry spell has resulted in exceedingly warm weather, the temperature at mid-day, for the past week being in the neighborhood of 80 in the shade. Sunday was the most humid day so far the temperature reaching 90 degrees in the shade. Although the present weather is excellent growing weather for most grains, rain is needed and needed badly for other products of the soil.

High School Defeated.

The High School baseball team was defeated by a "Scrub" team in their first game at the exhibition grounds on Saturday afternoon by a score of 11-5. The teams lined up:—

High School		Scrubs
M. Wilson	p	H. Wettlaufer
J. Rennie	c	W Russel
J. Rowland	s s	H. Oberle
O. Schwindt	1 b	F. Smith
W. McFarlane	2 b	H. Henderson
V. McKechnie	3 b	R. Oberle
A. Scanlon	l f	O. Schefter
C. Hugill	c f	C. Oberle
J. Hickling	r f	W. Smith

Umpires: H. Runstadtler and H. Obrecht.

Baseball Club Organized.

The Walkerton Baseball Club held their organization meeting in the council chamber on Thursday evening last, the following officers being elected:—Hon. Pres., R. E. Truax, President, Lou Anderson, Vice Pres., P. J. Murray, Secretary—Treasurer A. M. LaFrance, Managing Committee, H. Runstadtler, J. Richardson, G. Henderson. There is material for a good team in Walkerton this season. The Walkerton club is cooperating with other clubs in this part in an endeavor to form a Northern Baseball League which will include all teams in this section of Ontario. The London Free Press publishers have put up a cup which will be competed for by the clubs and it appears that the success efforts to form this league is now assured. Walkerton's 1915 team should make a good bid for the championship.

Canadians Defeat Germans.

Bravo Canadian! All honor to the sons of Canada in khaki who were the first to answer the call of king and country and went to fight the battles of the empire in France and Belgium in the first contingent. They have been put to the test and have upheld the honor of this fair land on the battlefield. They bore the brunt of the furious German attack at Langemark, on Saturday, were forced to retire, abandoning several guns, but rallied, and after desperate fighting repulsed the Germans and recaptured their guns. That the Canadians did well is indicated by a telegram sent by Sir John French to Gen. Alderson, commander of the Canadian division: "I wish to express to you and the Canadian troops my admiration of the gallant stand and fight they have made. They have performed a most brilliant and valuable service. Last night and again this morning, I reported their splendid behavior to the Secretary of State for War, and I have a reply from him saying how highly their gallantry and determination in a difficult position are appreciated in England. (Signed) French." The Canadians covered themselves with glory, but their victory was dearly bought and the actual number of killed and wounded will probably not be known for some days.

Death of Peter Todd.

Another of Walkerton's prominent citizens passed away during the past week in the person of Mr. Peter Todd who has been Walkerton's assessor for the past five years, having died at his home on Scott street in the early hour of Saturday morning after a lengthy illness at the age of 69 years, 1 month and 3 days. The deceased was born in Puslinch tp. and came to Walkerton forty-three years ago, since which time he has been a resident of this town. He was married in Guelph in 1873 and besides his wife is survived by two sons, Allan and Roy of Saskatoon, and three daughters, Mrs. Pearson, Mrs. Fahey, and Miss Jean of Toronto. All of the above attended the funeral with the exception of Allan who was unable to be present. The remains were interred in the Walkerton cemetery on Monday afternoon, the remains being accompanied to their last resting place by a large concourse of vehicles in which were a large number of the town's most prominent citizens who paid their last tribute to the deceased who had always been a public spirited citizen and had gained the respect of all who made his acquaintance. Mrs. Todd and family have the sympathy of a host of friends in their bereavement. Among those who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Fraser of Detroit and Miss M. Todd of Guelph, sisters of the deceased; Mr. Martin Todd of Galt a nephew; Messrs. Sam, Jack and David Allen of Guelph, brothers-in-law; Mrs. Col. Mutrie of Rockwood, sister-in-law and Mr. Pearson and Mr. Fahey, of Toronto, sons-in-law.

A GIFT OF A SOUL

In the silence of the night, surrounded by the rocks, before him the immensity of the sky and sea, he gathered together all the strength of his will for a supreme invocation. He called to his aid all the invisible powers. "If they exist as has been affirmed," he said to himself, "around us, in the air; if, impalpable as the air, mysterious beings surround us, let them reveal themselves to me by some sign which I can comprehend, and I shall be ready to obey them. I deliver myself up to them in self-sacrifice. A being of flesh and blood, I shall enter the realm of the spiritual and I shall leave existence with delight so that I be no longer myself, and, as a consequence, be in pain no longer, no longer groan and sigh. Let them speak to me in the whisper of the breeze, the murmur of the waves, the rustling of the leaves, and to reach them I will pass through the gate of death."

As he finished this incantation he shuddered, terrified at the solitude in which he found himself. He looked fearfully around him. The cliff, the sea, the sky were silent and solitary. Suddenly the moon showed herself between the clouds, and in the luminous space it seemed to Pierre that white spectres passed. He looked down at the expanse of waters before him, and will-o'-the-wisps appeared among the rocks on the shore. Hither and thither they passed, brilliant and light, vanishing and reappearing ceaselessly, like the souls of shipwrecked mariners haunting the breakers on which the bodies they had inhabited had perished.

Fascinated, Pierre was unable to take his eyes from these vaporous phantoms, these wandering lights, and a species of torpor took possession of him. Murmuring sounds filled his ears. At first confused, they gradually resolved themselves into these words, like a chant: "Come with us, where suffering no longer exists. Die in order to live again, reincarnated in a being of your choice. Come with us!"

Pierre made an effort to rid himself of this hallucination, but without success. He felt himself deprived of force, incapable of making a movement as if he were in a state of catalepsy. His gaze penetrated the depths of the sky, and supernatural accents vibrated in his ears. He thought to himself: "The revelation I demanded has been made. Spirits have manifested themselves to me. I believe in them, I will obey them—but let them cease to possess me."

As if he had pronounced a magic formula the vision disappeared, the chant ceased. He rose and walked along the deserted shore, and he might have thought that he had been dreaming. But he did not think so. He hoped the vision might be real: he saw in it the delightful end of all his ills.

Ascending to the summit of the cliffs, he stood there, took out his pocket-book, and wrote these words on a card:

"My dear Jacques, I am of no use to others and I am hurtful to myself. I wish to end this. I am going to try the experiment which Davidoff described to us. You are the being I love most on earth. I make you a present of my soul. Live happy through me, and for me."

He signed the card with his name, and taking his hat passed the folded paper between the felt and the silk band. He tranquilly divested himself of his overcoat and placed it at the side of the path together with his hat; then with quick steps went down again toward the sea. The coast curved at this point, forming a little bay, where the waves died away with a gentle murmur. A path, running up the side of the cliff, led to a little fishing village. The attention of Pierre was attracted by a barque coming slowly toward him, propelled by the breeze that swelled out its low sail. It seemed to be empty; but when it reached the strand sailors made their appearance everywhere. At the same time men sallied from behind the rock, and entering the water went toward the boat. Bales and casks encumbered the stern of the vessel.

The painter, interested, notwithstanding his depression, guessed that these were the smugglers of whom the custom-house officer had spoken. He sought this later with his glance among the brushwood behind which he had hidden himself. He had doubtless quitted his post, for there was no sign of movement on the cliff. The men from the rocks had joined those on board the boat, which they had already begun to unload, when a whistle from the summit of the cliff interrupted the operation. The men ran along the beach. The sailors hastened to put out to sea. At the same moment a shot was heard in the silence, and a red flame lighted up the rocks. It was the custom-house officer who thus made known his presence. At another point near by another shot was heard, and shadowy forms ran up the side of the rock. The men climbed up the path with their bales, the smugglers pushed their boat out into deep water. During this manoeuvre a sailor fell overboard. Signals were heard. It was the custom-house officers assembling. The boat reached the open sea, and the swimmer, left behind, cried out with all the strength of his lungs. His movements gradually became wilder and his voice more feeble. Pierre felt touched by the heartrending accents of this fellow creature. A moment before he had thought only of dying, now he wished to save life. He hurried toward the beach, leaping from rock to rock, narrowly missing several shots as he ran, reached the water, and throwing himself into the sea swam vigorously toward the drowning man. A few hundred yards away the boat had stopped. The smugglers had disappeared in the brush-wood at the summit of the cliff, and on the sea, polished as a mirror, the moon cast her cold and tranquil light.

CHAPTER II

Near the seashore, on the charming road that leads from Monaco to Nice, between Eze and Villefranche, but nearer to the latter, in a little bay formed by an abrupt fissure of the cliff, stands a villa painted in red and white, its terrace covered with oranges and mimosa, stretching down into the water. Fir trees, with red trunks and large branches, juniper trees with their blue-green foliage, black thuyas, grow together on the side of the hill, among fragments of rock. In the midst of briars, framing in with wild vegetation this tranquil valley, isolated and silent. A little harbor, protected by a natural jetty of reefs, against which the waves break in clouds of spray, contains two pleasure boats, motionless in the calm and transparent waters, to watch the marine plants at the bottom give an emerald-green tinge. The red earth absorbs the rays of the sun and heats the atmosphere of this sheltered spot, where all day the temperature of a hothouse reigns. In the evening the air is exhilarating and laden with the exquisite odor exhaled by trees whose leaves never fall, of flowers that renew themselves ceaselessly. Little fishing boats, plying between Beaulieu and Monaco, sail across the open sea and give an air of life to the horizon as they slowly pass. The noise of the railroad that runs behind the villa is the only sound that disturbs the silence of this peaceful spot. Here it was that, two months before, Madame de Vignes came to establish herself with her son and daughter, far from the agitation of the Parisian world, in the sweet and salubrious repose of this enchanting country.

Left a widow at thirty, after a married life made stormy by a dissipated husband, Madame de Vignes had consecrated herself with exalted intelligence and profound wisdom to the education of her children. Jacques, a tall and handsome boy, of an impassioned soul and enthusiastic nature, in spite of prudent counsels daily received, soon gave signs of having inherited his father's faults. His sister Juliette, four years younger than he, had, by a happy contrast, inherited all her mother's virtues, wisdom, so that if the one was a source of grave anxiety to the mother, the other seemed made to console her for it. With these two, so different from each other, Madame de Vignes, up to the age of forty, lived a comparatively tranquil life. Jacques, extremely intelligent and tolerably industrious, had finished his studies with brilliant success. His health, delicate during his childhood, had become stronger as he grew up, and when he attained his majority, he was, with his tall stature, his long blonde moustache, and his blue eyes, one of the most charming young men one could see. He made no delay in abusing these advantages.

Put in possession of his father's fortune, he had freed himself from domestic restraints by installing himself in a handsome bachelor's apartment, and began to lead a gay life. He remembered, however, from time to time to ask an invitation to dinner from his mother. On these occasions he was often accompanied by one of the companions of his childhood, Pierre Laurier. On such evenings it was a festival at the villa, and Juliette lavished her tenderest attentions on her brother's friend, who, she imagined, rightly or wrongly, had no influence in bringing about these returns of the prodigal son. The evening passed joyously, thanks to the original turn of mind of the painter.

And while these hours fled all too rapidly, the young girl, for Mademoiselle de Vignes was at this time only fourteen, was ecstatically happy in the society of the two young men.

Pierre Laurier with his intelligent and mobile countenance, his piercing eyes, his sarcastic mouth, and thoughtful brow, had for a long time inspired her with fear. But she had soon discovered that his strange moods were only the consequence of his artistic preoccupations, and that his mocking accents served to mask the confiding goodness of his heart. In the midst of his fantastic discourse she could very well discern his love for his art, to which he was devotedly attached, and in his passionate sallies she saw flash forth a love for the true and the beautiful. She divined, with singular penetration, that the painter made every possible effort to restrain Jacques in his dissipated life, and that the influence he exercised over him could not but prove favorable. This had made her like him all the more. And then his manner toward this child was like that of a brother. For her he softened the expression of his skepticism, and became innocent and playful to adapt himself to her.

In this he showed want of penetration, for Juliette, whose reasoning powers had been early developed, was quite capable of comprehending him. But Pierre persisted in seeing in her only a little girl, and it was always with astonishment that he heard her, when she allowed herself to be drawn into the conversation, put forth in a few timid phrases judgment extraordinarily just. He did not give her credit for them indeed, he said to himself. "This little girl is surprising; she remembers what she hears and brings it in in the right place. In every woman there is something of the ape, to imitate, and of the parrot, to repeat!"

If Juliette, however, had, where art was concerned, a precious faculty of assimilating the knowledge of others, she was altogether herself in the tender effusiveness of the thanks she bestowed on Laurier for his protecting care of her brother. Here she neither imitated nor repeated. It was the very heart of the child that spoke, and the painter, however absorbed he might be by preoccupations of which Mlle. de Vignes was singularly ignorant, could not avoid being struck by her emotion and her gratitude.

A little incident, of which he caught the true significance, had just occurred, however, which completely opened his eyes. He had been in the habit of bringing this child, whom he had known since her infancy, a present on St. Juliette's day. When she was a child these presents had been dolls, extraordinarily attired in magnificent robes, made according to the taste and after the suggestions of the painter, as if they had been meant to pose for one of his pictures. Each time he came to partake of the family dinner, carrying in his arms his annual gift, there were exclamations of surprise and cries of joy. Laurier would take the child by the shoulders, imprint a sounding kiss upon each check, and say in his sarcastic accents

"This doll is beautiful, is it not? She is a Venetian—of the time of Titian!"

Then he would begin to chat with Mme. de Vignes and Jacques, without taking any further heed of the little girl lost in ecstatic contemplation of the porcelain patrician dressed in silk and gold. When Juliette was fourteen, however, dolls, he began to think, were now out of place, and he set about finding a more sensible gift. He selected a little work-box of the eighteenth century, garnished with beautiful implements in silver gilt, of exquisite design, and, according to his habit, arrived with it at the dinner hour. On this particular evening only Jacques was in the salon. The two friends shook hands, and Laurier asking where Juliette was.—

"My mother is dressing her," answered Jacques. "It is an important affair—her first long dress. Our friends have wished to celebrate the occasion. So, what do you think! Her hair also had to be arranged differently. It would not do, as formerly, to wear one's hair hanging loose over one's shoulders—a chignon was a necessity!"

He was still laughing when the door opened, and instead of the little girl Laurier expected to see, a young girl, a little timid, a little awkward, altogether changed, but charming, entered the room. She did not run to the painter as usual with girlish curiosity. She extended to him her hand gracefully, and paused, silent and embarrassed, before the young men. Pierre observed her with a smile.

"You look very well so, Juliette," he said. "If I might be allowed to make a slight criticism, I would say that I disapprove of the little curls over the forehead. You have a very beautifully shaped face, and the hair well set. Put them back then, unceremoniously. It looks younger, and I am sure it will be very becoming to you."

Then, taking from his pocket the present he had bought—

"See," he said, "this is a useful article. I, also, treat you like a grown-up person today."

"Oh, how pretty!" she cried, her eyes sparkling with joy. "Look, Jacques!"

"This is an object of art, my child. This painter has committed an extravagance. You should give him a kiss, at least."

This had been her habit. For many years past Pierre had kissed Juliette on this day, and yet they remained, for an instant, facing each other in embarrassment. Was it the long dress or the new mode of arranging her hair that caused them both this embarrassment? Or was it rather this sudden blooming of the child into the young girl like a rosebud opening in the sunshine? Be that as it may, the painter did not now feel, as on former occasions, the spontaneous impulse to give a fraternal kiss to Juliette.

It was necessary for Jacques, who observed them with some surprise, to say:

"Well, what's the matter? Don't you know each other any longer?"

Then Mlle. de Vignes took a step forward, Pierre took two, and they found themselves in each other's arms. The young man bent his face down toward that of his little friend. She raised herself slightly on the tips of her toes, and, with strange emotion Laurier saw that she trembled and turned pale at his kiss. All the evening he remained preoccupied, speaking rarely, as if absorbed by some secret displeasure.

From that day on, in his intercourse with Juliette, he showed himself more circumspect, weighing every word he said. At the same time his gaze returned continually to the young girl, whom a week before he had treated like a baby. And he could not but confess that a rapid transformation had taken place in her. Her figure had acquired a healthy roundness, her complexion a [illegible] brilliance. Her movements had lost the vivacity of childhood and were more restrained than charming. The commonplace chrysalis had opened, and a brilliant butterfly, which irresistibly attracted the attention, had emerged from it. This metamorphosis produced in the mind of Pierre an agitation which he found difficulty in mastering.

He began to dream of things altogether different from those which up till now had occupied his thoughts. Artistic triumphs, the free existence suited to them, the stimulus given to thought by variety of sensation, all that had constituted the programme of his life, in the past, was now regarded by him as ridiculous and contemptible. He thought now that the tranquility of domestic life, the peace of the heart, the even course of days well employed might contribute as surely as these to the achievement of great works, and that there was more probability of inspiration in regularity of labor than in spasmodic efforts. Marriage seemed to him like a fresh source at which to acquire new vigor. He began to think of settling down, of giving proof of wisdom, and he allowed himself to regard Mlle. de Vignes with a tenderness which had nothing in common with the feeling he had entertained for her in other days.

No one perceived this, but Juliette herself. Neither her mother, too much occupied with the dissipation in which Jacques lived, nor Jacques, too much engaged with his own pleasures, suspected for an instant what was passing in the mind of the painter. Juliette, at first astonished at this rapid change in the sentiments of her friend, then happy in thinking herself loved by one whom she regarded as a superior being, was soon destined to experience the bitterness of disappointment. The flame thus kindled, which had promised to burn with ardor, was suddenly extinguished. Pierre, who of late had been a frequent visitor at the house of Mme. de Vignes, now came only occasionally, as before. And all the flattering hopes, cherished in secret by the young girl, vanished like a dream.

She did not easily resign herself to this change, however, but determined to discover, if possible, the cause of it. One evening, when Jacques came to the house alone to spend a few moments with his mother, Juliette hazarded an expression of surprise at their no longer seeing Pierre Laurier.

"Is he not now in Paris?" she asked.

"He is," responded Jacques, "but he scarcely ever leaves his studio. He has a fever for work."

The young girl breathed again. Work was a rival she did not fear.

"And what is he painting," she asked.

"A portrait."

(To be Continued.)

His Desire.

"Where did you last work and how long?" demanded the colonel. "Did you quit of your own accord or were you discharged, and —"

"Laugy huh, boss!" sourly returned Brother Bogus, "I isn't pubposin' marriage to yo'; I's axin' for a job."—Puck.

JUST SUITS MY NEEDS BUILDING UP THE SYSTEM

This is the Way Thousands of Women Are Speaking of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"I want to state that I have never taken anything to do me so much good as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food," writes Mrs. Edson Brock, Trenholmville, Que., "and I am never without it in the house. I was so nervous I could not sleep, but now I sleep soundly at nights and wake up feeling refreshed and ready for the day's work. I used the Nerve Food for months and found that it just suits my needs, and has built up the system wonderfully. I know it is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that has brought about the great change in my condition, and am thankful for it.

"My husband was a great sufferer from itching piles and has been entirely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment."

We are constantly receiving letters like this in regard to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Everywhere it is being used because of its great restorative and reconstructive influence on the nervous system. Men and women who are run down in health, tired, nervous and discouraged, find in this great Food Cure the means of nourishing the exhausted system back to health and vigor.

Headaches, indigestion, sleeplessness, nervous irritability, lack of energy and vigor—all tell of nervous exhaustion, and indicate the need of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Instead of affording mere temporary relief by stimulating the nerves, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food builds up the system by supplying the ingredients from which Nature forms new rich blood and revitalizes the wasted nervous system. Put Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to the test when you are feeling tired out and discouraged, fill the body with new rich blood and new nerve force, and you will realize again the joy of good health. 50 cents a box, six for $2.50; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Clearing for Action.

When a warship is cleared for action not only is everything moveable on the decks removed or made secure, but every article made of wood is, as far as practicable, thrown overboard. Sofas, tables, chairs, pianos, all the furnishing of officers' quarters, in fact, are hurriedly put over the side by the bluejackets, and in a few minutes as much as £1,000 worth of stuff is floating round the Dreadnought. At the moment that a warship is preparing to fire not a single soul is to be seen on the decks. All the sailors are below working the guns and getting the ammunition ready.—London Answers.

Barn Roofing

Fire, Lightning Rust and Storm Proof

Durable and Ornamental

Let us know the size of any roof you are thinking of covering and we will make you an interesting offer.

Metallic Roofing Co.
Limited
MANUFACTURERS
TORONTO and WINNIPEG

FIFTY YEARS.

(Philadelphia Record)

It would be impossible to name any 50 years of greater changes in the world than the half century that has elapsed since the death of Abraham Lincoln. [illegible] on the history of the [illegible] Church in 1862 [illegible] that the [illegible] of the dissolution of the American Union [illegible] several [illegible] in advance. Froude published the first volume of a treatise to prove the [illegible] of the [illegible] to the American, but the second volume was never issued, events here made it absurd. But who could have anticipated 50 years ago that the wounds of war, on the face of nature and in the heart of man, would heal so fast? Who could have anticipated the rise of the German Empire, and the present [illegible]? It is difficult to measure moral progress, but there are [illegible] for [illegible] that the world's moral [illegible] in material things. If [illegible] "Fifty years of Europe were worth a cycle of Cathay," the last 50 years would pre-eminently be that period.

A WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO WOMEN

If you are troubled with weak, tired feelings, headache, backache, bearing down sensations, bladder weakness, constipation, catarrhal conditions, pain in the sides regularly or irregularly, bloating or unnatural enlargements, sense of falling or misplacement of internal organs, nervousness, desire to cry, palpitation, hot flashes, dark rings under the eyes, or a loss of interest in life, I invite you to write and ask for my simple method of home treatment with ten days' trial entirely free and postpaid, also references to Canadian ladies who gladly tell how they have regained health, strength, and happiness by this method. Write to-day. Address: Mrs. M. Summers, Box 8, Windsor, Ont.

An Unknown Hero.

A group of patriotic and very enthusiastic boys was assembled around a hoarding outside a well-known London hospital. A passer-by was asked by one of them: "Please, sir, can you tell us which general it is who is in this hospital."

"General!" replied the man. "I don't know of any general in this hospital."

"Well, you sir look for yourself!" cried all the boys together. The man fixed his gaze on the hoarding and read, "General Lying-in Hospital."

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

It's a Good Letter, After All.

Some one has advanced the opinion that the letter "e" is the most unfortunate letter in the English alphabet because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger and in hell all the time. For some reason he overlooked the fortunes of the letter, so we call his attention to the fact "e" is never in war and always in peace. It is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life and no heaven. It is the centre of honesty, makes love perfect and without it there could be no editors, devils or news.—Fourth Estate.

A cupful of vinegar added to the water in which colored clothes are washed will often prevent color running.

The Ice Jewels.

The fairies were out in the storm last night
For yesterday's barren trees
Now fill the valley with glittering light
As they toss in the morning breeze.
So hurry and let us explore
Where the paths of the woodland run—
Where the jeweled branches a-sparkling o'er
At the touch of the morning sun!

And who are the fairies, you bid me tell,
That have done this wonderful thing?
Why the woodland fairies we know so well
In summer and fall and spring.
And how can the summer days
Endure in a wintry storm?
Oh, the fairies are wise in all their ways,
And, of course, know how to keep warm!

For weeks ago when the cold winds drove
The flowers to their winter naps,
From the milkweed silk the fairies wove
The warmest of their wraps.
On a moonlit autumn night,
In a circle under a tree,
They made them garments more soft and white
Than ever we mortals see.
The warmest of their wraps.
On a moonlit autumn night,
In a circle under a tree,
They made them garments more soft and white!
Than ever we mortals see.

And so last night—in the cold and the rain—
As dry and warm as you please,
To make the woodland pretty again
They hung the ice on the trees.
For the fairies never shirk,
But whether with ice and snow
Or flowers and leaves, they're always at work.
And aren't you glad it's so?
—St. Nicholas.

In Tropical Countries Liver Chill Very Common

In northern latitudes also the liver is a very touchy organ and requires careful watching. The concentrated vegetable juices in Dr. Hamilton's Pills act directly upon the liver and stimulate its action to a normal basis. The blood is purified, the skin grows clear, headaches disappear and robust health is firmly established. No medicine for the stomach, liver or kidneys can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. box at all dealers.

Differences in Fuel.

Fuel commences to burn when it has reached what is called the ignitation point which varies greatly with the different kinds of fuel. Coal gas does not burn below a [illegible] of iron, and carbon, such as charcoal, has a still higher igniting point. A piece of iron heated dull red will not ignite a gas jet, but if the iron is heated till it approaches orange color it will lit the gas. The igniting temperature of coal burned in locomotive fire boxes is about 1,700 degrees Fahrenheit. Fire box temperature is about 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit.

Immunity of Children.

Professor Armbruster asserts that the reason very young children are relatively immune to infectious diseases is that their hearts beat so much more rapidly than those of older persons that the blood flows swiftly through the arteries, and this swiftness of flow makes it difficult for micro-organisms to gain a foothold in the blood stream. —New York World.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

Safety Lights.

The use of matches and candles, etc., by repair men in making alterations or repairs in buildings is a dangerous practice. Numerous fires have been started by their use, and one of the most serious of recent fire losses is charged to the use of a candle to supply light while changing a gas meter. The gas pipe was broken, the gas caught fire from the lighted candle, and caused a loss to property of over $[illegible]. For work of the above nature, the use of the storage battery electric lamp is strongly advocated. It is portable, the light is ample, and it is safe even amidst dangerous gases.

NOT ALL BAD

(Montreal Mail)

A Turk fighting with the Canadians, has died of wounds. A national character which can produce a liberty-loving hero like this must have something in it, after all.

For You—a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor? It's a fact. Do you know that proper, inexpensive tile drainage assists pulverization—lengthens the season—prevents surface washing—makes your land lighter to work—prevents drought and increases the quantity and improves the quality of your crops?

Why not have us send you, today, free of charge, a very interesting booklet on this subject? Much to learn—nothing to pay. Don't neglect anything that will make your farm better, larger crops. Proper drainage means so much extra dollars in your bank account for every one that goes there now, and the Government lends you money for the Tile if desired.

Write us today. Mention this paper. Your book is waiting.

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited
SWANSEA, ONTARIO

REVERSIBLE SENTENCES.

Read Backward or Forward They Tell Same Story.

Scandalous society and life make gossips frantic. This reads backwards, Frantic gossips make life and society scandalous. Apply the same rule to the others given below:

Solomon had vast treasures—silver and gold, things precious. Happy and rich and wise was he. Faithful served he God.

She sits lamenting sadly, often too much alone.

Dear Harry—Devotedly yours remain I. Have you forgotten twenty dollars check? Reply immediately, please, and hand to yours, Grace Darling.

Man is noble and generous often, but sometimes vain and cowardly.

Carefully boiled eggs are good and palatable.

Love is heaven, and heaven is love, youth says. All beware, says age. Trying is poverty and flirting is love.

Exercise take; excess beware.

Rise early and breath free air.

Eat slowly; trouble drive away.

Feet warmish keep; blend work with play.

Adieu, darling! Time flies fast; sails are set, boats are ready. Farewell!

Matter and mind are mysteries. Never mind. What is matter. Matter is—never mind. What is mind? Mind is—never matter.

Honesty and truth are good and admirable qualities, as sympathy and love are endearing traits.

Politics and religion avoid arguing in. Here is good and sound advice.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

To be Expected.

"I've been reading Shakespeare. Hadn't poor Hamlet a dog's life?"

"Well, wasn't he a Great Dane?"—Baltimore American.

ITCHING ECZEMA SPREAD OVER WRIST

Would Burn. Suffered Great Pain. Grandchild Also Afflicted. Used Cuticura. Now Perfectly Well.

Poulamon, N. B.—"I had eczema on my right wrist for over a year. It broke out like a rash. It would itch and burn and I had to scratch. The skin was broken and the blood came through. Sometimes it spread all over my hands and I suffered great pain when I put them in water. I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they gave me quick relief, healing my wrist and hand in a few months.

"My grandchild was also afflicted with that trouble. He had it on his head, face and hands. We began to treat him with Cuticura Soap and Ointment and he began to improve. So we continued the treatment for a few months and he is perfectly well." (Signed) Mrs. Joseph Fougere, May 28, '14.

Sample Each Free by Mail

With 32-p. Skin Book on request. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A." Sold throughout the world.

When Iron Doesn't Rust.

Iron which is actually in service in buildings and similar structures, it is found, often behaves in a rather unexpected manner as regards its tendency toward corrosion, writes L. C. Wilson in the Engineering Magazine. Those parts immersed in a few inches of water may corrode with great rapidity, while other parts placed a considerable distance under the surface will remain in practically perfect shape almost indefinitely. Similar conditions are found in parts buried in the ground. The explanation is to be found in the fact that both water and oxygen are necessary to produce corrosion. If, therefore, iron parts are immersed in water or buried in the ground to a depth greater than that to which oxygen can penetrate, they will be preserved because the conditions for corrosion have not been attained.

A little observation will show that "busy" iron, as it has been termed, does not rust as readily as that which is not in service. Perhaps steel rails are the commonest example of this and it is well known that little or no corrosion is seen in lines on which the traffic is fast and heavy.

Had ship's anchor fall on my knee and leg, and knee swelled up and for six days I could not move it or get help. I then started to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and two bottles cured me.

PROSPER FERGUSON.

Uses of Silver.

The largest single use for silver, outside of the manufacture of silver plated war, is estimated to be in the manufacture of photographic plates, films and paper. The manufacture of films for moving picture use has now become an enormous business, and it is probable that in the future this will bring the largest consumption of silver. The silver is used in photography for making the light sensitive emulsion and is principally the bromide of silver.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

Easy to Cool Water.

Water in moderate quantities may be cooled to icy temperature in a very simple manner. Secure a test tube such as is generally used by chemists, and half fill it with nitrate of ammonia salts, fill up with water, cork tightly, shake till the salt is dissolved. Be careful to wipe the outside of the tube dry in order that all trace of the nitrate may be removed. Place this tube in a glass of water and stir as you would with a spoon. The water is rapidly chilled. The nitrate of ammonia salts can be bought of any chemist.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

The Gentle Exterior.

"What I admire," said the statesman, "is the hand of iron in the glove of velvet."

"Yes, indeed," replied Miss Cayenne. "It is much more unusual than the head of bone in the hat of silk."—Washington Star.

THE PARENTS AT FAULT.

(Rochester Herald)

The boy or girl—especially the girl—who goes out upon the streets at night to take his or her initial steps in a vicious life, does it usually because there is lack of parental authority at home. By holding parents responsible for the delinquency of their offspring, much of this delinquency would be prevented.

THE EDITOR, HE KNOWS.

(Guelph Mercury)

The London Advertiser asks the rather pointed query, "Have you interred your winter coat yet," which is equivalent to inquiring, "Have you a new pair of pants?"

ISSUE NO. 17, 1915

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCATION and character to train for nurses. Apply to Welland Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.

BARBER SHOP—TWO CHAIRS—POOL room, three tables; books will show average two hundred month; best town western Ontario; thousand cash; five hundred time. J. H. Duncan, Hanover, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE.

BALLURE; McNISH HOMESTEAD; 200 acres, Elgin County; rich clay loam soil underdrained, well fenced; 25 acres beech and maple; original growth; 5 acres orchard; two storey frame house, seven bedrooms, parlor, sitting and dining room, kitchen and summer kitchen, two cellars; hard and soft water at house; bank barn 50 x 75; drive barn; shed; hen-house; five miles west of St. Thomas on Talbot Road; R. R. No. 1; telephone. Price $15,000; about one-third cash. Has been in present family 61 years. Write owners or John A. Mosely, P. O. Box 432, London, Ont.

$12,000 ONE HUNDRED ACRES grain and stock farm between Burlington and Appleby. Solid brick house, two bank barns, splendid water, clay loam. Owner will take house part exchange and leave $6,000 mortgage. Send your requirements. Have large list of farms in Ontario and Western Provinces on easy terms. Apply J. D. La France, 20 Clyde Block, Hamilton, Ont.

TWO ADJOINING SECTIONS—SASKATCHEWAN—five miles from elevator; beautiful creek; for quick sale at assessed value. H. H. Harrison, Owen Sound, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE—IN COUNTIES of Victoria, Peterboro and Haliburton; $500 up. Train and Crews, Kinmount, Ont.

3 ACRES—MOST SUITABLE TO ANYone in the chicken business; large brick dwelling and good outbuildings, 1½ acres; large, well-built, solid brick dwelling; good barn, and land of the best; some fruit. Apply, C. F. Saunders, Burford, Ont.

GEOGRAPHICAL PUZZLES.

Where Were Ultima Thule and the Lost Atlantis Located?

A most puzzling geographical mystery has come down from ancient times. This is the old question as to the identity of Ultima Thule. It was about 400 B. C., that Pytheas, a citizen of Masella, sailed on his famous voyage. He discovered Albion and then continued farther north until he reached a spot which he named Ultima Thule. What this country was has never been determined. It may have been Shetland, Norway or Iceland.

Another ancient puzzle is that of Atlantis. It is commonly believed nowadays that this vanished continent did once actually lie beyond the pillars of Hercules, and there are theories unending concerning it. Some regard the Canary Islands as fragmentary remains of it, others think that the supposedly lost land was really America; but, in considering these speculations, it is well to bear in mind the fact that the first mention of the country was made by Plato, and many scholars are sure that the philosopher merely indulged in an imaginative flight. The solitary evidence that Atlantis ever existed is his reference to it.—Chicago Herald.

SICKLY CHILDREN PROMPTLY CURED

Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine for little ones. They regulate the bowels and stomach and promptly cure constipation, indigestion, colds and simple fevers, expel worms, cure colic, and give baby health and happiness. Concerning them, Mrs. Fred. VanGorder, Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my four children and find they always give perfect satisfaction." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SUMMER'S COMING!

(Detroit Free Press)

Pretty soon now the picnic baskets will be brought down from the attic, and the streets will be filled with happy-faced throngs intent on getting away for the day to inviting spots where the dreary cares of city routine are forgotten and nobody gives a hang for the petty things that have perforce filled the mind for the last six months.

The weather man doesn't know it yet but spring is with us and summer is just around the corner. Even the skies cannot forever be clouded. Sooner or later these bone-searching winds must give way to balmy air and invigorating sunshine and we'll all be happy.

Summer is the only season of true joy. Winter is a make-believe, a time for deluding one's self into thinking one is alive while one is really but hibernating. Wake up; summer's coming.

Corns Drop Out

Instant Relief

Paint on PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR to-night, and corns feel better in the morning. Magical the way "PUTNAM'S" eases the pain, destroys the roots, kills a corn for all time. No pain. Cure guaranteed. Get a 25c bottle of "PUTNAM'S EXTRACTOR" to-day.

His Last Look.

A church in the north of Scotland requiring a pastor had a beadle who took an active interest in all that concerned the church. One of the candidates after the last service for the day was over stepped into the vestry to put off his gown. He thought he would have a look at the church and, meeting the worthy beadle putting things to rights, said:

"I was just taking a look at the church."

"Aye, tak' a guid look at it," said the beadle, "for it's no likely ye'll ever see't again."—Dundee Advertiser.

"When I was a boy," said Mr. Waterstock, "I wanted to go to sea and be a pirate." "And you changed your mind," replied Miss Cayenne, "to the extent of deciding to remain on land."—Washington Star.

PILES.

You will find relief in Zam-Buk! It eases the burning, stinging pain, stops bleeding and brings ease. Perseverance, with Zam-Buk, means cure. Why not prove this? All Druggists and Stores.—

Zam-Buk

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, APRIL 29, 1915.

IRELAND IN THE WAR.

Other things than the map of Europe will be changed after this war is over. Many things will never be the same again. The war is bound to make a change in the status of India in the Empire. The woman question and Mrs. Pankhurst will have a different meaning after the war. And for Ireland a great change is produced. She was on the verge of civil war just before the outbreak of this war and the question of Home Rule was the cause. Now there is something like a United Ireland. Sir Edward Carson would be a bold man were he to again [illegible] the same old trouble in Ulster at the close of the war. "Ireland is a unit in the war," said Mr. P. A. O'Farrell, a prominent Irish-American journalist, now in Montreal, having just arrived from Great Britain. "She is heart and soul with the Empire and the Allies in the fateful world struggle for the overthrow of Prussian militarism and mad ambition. Nuns, priests, and children who were the victims of the awful cruelties and infamies committed by the Germans in Belgium have found shelter in Ireland, and the tales they tell have raised the hot blood of the Irish people to madness. Belgium, Louvain and Rheims are names that will brand Prussia and the Kaiser forever with infamy!" Prior to the war, said Mr. O'Farrell, the Kaiser had Ireland honeycombed with spies and secret service agents, whose whole mission was to create civil war in Ulster and a great labor war in Dublin. These spies were in the working men's clubs, and in the hunting fields, and in Dublin Castle itself, while in the shipyards of Belfast they were nourishing religious and class hatred. The Emperor of Germany fondly believed that Ireland would be a broken reed from which England would get no more help in the hour of need.

But Mr. O'Farrell is not the only one to speak of the loyalty and unity of Ireland. In an eloquent speech delivered at Manchester by John Redmond, he said:

The circumstances of Ireland, it must be remembered, were peculiar. For more than half a century the flower of her manhood had been fleeing from her shores to distant lands. Every part of Ireland had suffered equally. The emigration from Ulster had been if anything greater than the emigration from the other provinces. In the last sixty years over four millions of people had emigrated from Ireland. Since the year 1900 over half a million had emigrated, and two-thirds of the people who had gone had been young men of military age. Happily, for all of us, the drain of emigration had now been arrested. Last year, 1914, was the first year since the great famine, when the population of Ireland actually increased.

Up to February 15 there were Irishmen from Ireland with the colors to the number of 85,761. Recruiting was going on at the present moment at the rate of about 1,000 a month. From December 15 to January 15 there were 3,858 recruits; from January 17 to February 15 there were 4,0[illegible] recruits. It had been stated that at the Grafton street recruiting office in Dublin they were now getting over [illegible] as many recruits as they got in August and September, and that the men were coming in from all parts of the city and county of Dublin. They were so-called Unionists, so-called Nationalists, and it was interesting to note so-called Sinn Feiners. All young men now seemed to be imbued with the new idea in their duty and responsibilities. There were with the colors on February 15, 25,120 men who had been actually enrolled and equipped and drilled members of the Irish National Volunteers, whereas there were 22,5[illegible] Ulster Volunteers with the colors. Ireland had sent from Irish soil over 100,000 men to the colors. What about the Irish race in Great Britain and throughout the world? Some figures were recently published which showed that 115,000 recruits of Irish birth or descent had gone from Great Britain since the beginning of the war and after making careful inquiries he was convinced that these figures erred on the side of modesty. It was no exaggeration to say that at this moment the Irish race had with the colors at least a quarter of a million men. At least 12,000 Irish recruits had come out of Manchester.

◆

EDITORIAL NOTES

Money makes the mare go in the [illegible].

◆

"As a soldier I have no politics—Lord Kitchener.

◆

Wait a minute. Have the soldiers asked for a vote?

◆

Three hours drill were enough to make a horse laugh.

◆

Very likely [illegible] Mr. Garland and Mr. [illegible] will be thrown to the wolves.

◆

Those German captains interned at Newport News can [illegible] their troubles to each other.

◆

We notice that Von Hindenburg is not doing much these days, and the Crown Prince has even quit talking for publication.

◆

Up to date there has been only one Sir Robert L. Borden in Canadian politics. Toronto Mail and Empire. One is enough.

◆

[illegible] to pay for the Government. [illegible] Dominion Government must [illegible].

◆

There are several seditious pro-German newspapers published in the Canadian Northwest trying to corrupt the people, but the Minister of Justice winks the other eye.

◆

The Imperial Government calls in Sir Arthur Balfour, Mr. Chamberlain and other Tories to confer with it about the war. The Dominion Government won't even consult Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

◆

"The personal virtue that keeps every Laurier hand clean can be taken for granted. Such virtue is not worthy of mention unless to that virtue be added the public vigilance that can keep other people's hands empty—of all dishonest gain."—Toronto Telegram.

But Sir Robert Borden failed to keep other people's hands empty.

◆

Says the Toronto Saturday Night: "If General Sam had attended to his business in place of running around making a fool of himself and a fool of the country, all this would not have happened. Members of General Hughes' staff were warned time and again that the boots being produced were not of a proper character."

◆

The Financial Post of Canada makes the startling statement that "In one case alone a Canadian manufacturer paid a go-between broker over $73,000 before he was able to get an order for food in urgent demand. This amount was added to the cost to the Government." Sir Wilfrid said that the fringe of the grafting had only been touched.

◆

The following is from a Russian source in the Eastern war zone:

Prisoners declare that three members of the city parliament of Oseff were publicly disgraced yesterday and their property confiscated, themselves being driven beyond the military limits of Oseff. They were convicted of charging an exorbitant price for food supplies to the local garrison. The food was found to be worthless.

Will the Dominion Government deal with the grafters as the Russian Government is dealing with the grafters over there?

◆

Charges are being brought by the Government against Hon. Mr. Oliver and others, with a view to minimize the scandals that have not been brought to light by the investigations at Ottawa. These charges are all old and have been answered time and time again. As Hon. Mr. Rogers said these charges are being brought so as to give the Liberals a "dose of their own medicine." The Tories are worried over the recent disclosures, and the charges they are now making are made for the purpose of drawing public attention from their iniquities.

◆

Mr. Alfred Minister, of Toronto, said before the Boot Investigation Committee:

"I then picked up a boot and said to Colonel Brown that I would not make such boots as these at any price, as I would hate to think that any man had suffered or maybe lost his life through wearing a pair of boots made by me, and that these men were risking their lives for us and should have the best shoes that could be made. I was disgusted and angry clear through at the indifference shown as to whether the men were properly shod, as I consider this one of the most important items in a soldier's outfit."

Yet General Hughes kept on handing out such boots to the soldiers. Who is the man that should be hanged?

The United States Court at Indianapolis has shown the Canadian Government how it should deal with grafters. A number of Terre Haute people came up the other day for sentence on charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States Government. The penalties were made severe. The Mayor of Terre Haute was condemned to six years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $2,000. One judge was sentenced to five years and another to three years in a penitentiary. A sheriff was condemned to five years' incarceration. The chief of police got one year as his punishment. A number of municipal officials were given various terms from five years to one year. Some of those fellows mixed up in the horse and other deals should also come up for sentence some of these days.

Peeling or Paring.

Do you peel or pare a potato? There is authority for the contention that raw potatoes are pared, while potatoes boiled with their jackets on are peeled. It is a fine distinction, but logical. You pare a thing by taking a knife and removing its outer integument together with some of the substance of the thing itself. But to peel a boiled potato is a sort of surgery [illegible] the already loosened integument itself and simply strip it off. It's hard to put it into words, but you see how it is, don't you?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BAD BLOOD

Is The Cause of Boils and Pimples.

When boils or pimples start to break out on your face or body you may rest assured that the blood is in an impure state, and that before you can get rid of them it will be necessary for you to purify it by using a good medicine that will drive all the impurities out of the system.

Burdock Blood Bitters is a blood purifying remedy. One that has been on the market for the past forty years. One that is known from one end of the country to the other as the best blood purifier in existence. It cures boils, pimples and all other diseases arising from bad blood.

BOILS CURED.

Mr. Andrew E. Collier, River Glade, N.B., was troubled with boils for years, in fact, did not know what it was to be rid of them until he used Burdock Blood Bitters. It cured him.

PIMPLES CURED.

Mr. Otto Rose, Yarker, Ont., had his face and neck break out with pimples. He tried several kinds of medicine with out success. Two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters banished them.

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE Changeling

"Rose," he said again, "is it you?" and his eyes, which opened slowly, scanned with an eager, questioning look the face of Maggie, who, open-hearted and impulsive as usual, answered, somewhat sadly: "I am nobody but Maggie Miller. I am not Rose, though I wish I was, if you would like to see her."

The tones of her voice recalled the stranger's wandering mind, and he answered: "Your voice is like Rose's, but I would rather see you, Maggie Miller. I like your fearlessness so unlike most of your sex. Rose is far more gentle, more feminine than you, and if her very life depended upon it she would never dare leap that gorge."

The young man intended no reproof; but Maggie took his words as such, and for the first time in her life began to think that possibly her manner was not always as womanly as might be. At all events she was not like the gentle Rose, whom she instantly invested with every possible grace and beauty, wishing that she herself was like her, instead of the wild mad-cap she was. Then, thinking her conduct required some apology, she answered, as none save one as fresh and ingenuous as Maggie Miller would have answered: "I don't know any better than to behave as I do. I've always lived in the woods—have never been to school a day in my life—never been anywhere except to camp-meeting, and once to Douglas' store in Worcester!"

This was entirely a new phase of character to the man of the world, who laughed aloud, and at the mention of Douglas' store started so quickly that a spasm of pain distorted his features, causing Maggie to ask if he were badly hurt.

"Nothing but a broken leg," he answered; and Maggie, to whose mind broken bones conveyed a world of pain and suffering, replied: "Oh, I am so sorry for you, and it's my fault, too. Will you forgive me?" and her little chubby hands clasped his so pleadingly that, raising himself upon his elbow, so as to obtain a better view of her bright face, he answered: "I'd willingly break a hundred bones for the sake of meeting a girl like you, Maggie Miller."

Maggie was unused to flattery, save as it came from her grandmother, Theo or old Hagar, and now, paying no heed to his remark, she said: "Can you stay here alone while I go for help? Our house is not far away."

"I'd rather you would remain with me," he replied; "but as you cannot do both, I suppose you must go."

"I shan't be gone long," said Maggie, "and I'll send old Hagar to keep you company." So saying, she climbed the bank, and, mounting Gritty, who stood quietly awaiting her, she seized the other horse by the bridle and rode swiftly away, leaving the young man to meditate upon the novel situation in which he had so suddenly been placed.

"Ain't I in a pretty predicament?" said he, as he tried in vain to move his swollen limb, which was broken in two places, but which, being partially benumbed, did not now pain him much. "But it serves me right for chasing a harum-scarum thing, when I ought to have been attending my own business and collecting bills for Douglas & Co. And she says she's been there, too. I wonder who she is, the handsome sprite? I believe I made her half jealous talking of my golden-haired Rose; but she is far more beautiful than Rose, more beautiful than any one I ever saw. I wish she'd come back again," and shutting his eyes he tried to recall the bright, animated face which had so lately bent anxiously above him. "She tarries long," he said at last, beginning to grow uneasy. "I wonder how far it is, and where the deuce can this old Hagar be of whom she spoke."

"Close by," answered a shrill voice; and looking up he saw before him the bent form of Hagar Warren, at whose door Maggie had paused for a moment while she told of the accident and urged of Hagar to hasten.

Accordingly, equipped with a blanket and pillow, a brandy bottle and the camphor, old Hagar had come, but when she offered the latter for the young man's acceptance he pushed it from him, saying "Camphor was his detestation, but he shouldn't object particularly to smelling of the other bottle!"

"No, you don't," said Hagar, who thought him in not quite so deplorable a condition as she had expected to find him. "My creed is never to give young folks brandy except in cases of emergency." So saying, she made him more comfortable by placing a pillow beneath his head, and then, thinking possibly that this, to herself, was "a case of emergency," she withdrew to a little distance, and sitting down upon the gnarled root of an upturned tree, drank a swallow of the old cognac, while the young man, maimed and disabled, looked wistfully at her!

Not that he cared for the brandy, of which he seldom tasted, but he needed something to relieve the deathlike faintness which occasionally came over him, and which old Hagar, looking only at his mischievous eyes, failed to observe. Only those who knew Henry Warner intimately gave him credit for the many admirable qualities he really possessed, so full was he of fun! It was in all merry eyes, and about his quizzically-shaped mouth, that the principal difficulty lay; and many persons, seeing him for the first time, fancied that in some way he was making sport of them. This was old Hagar's impression as she sat there in dignified silence, rather enjoying, than otherwise, the occasional groans which came from his white lips. There were intervals when he was comparatively free from pain, and these he improved by questioning her with regard to Maggie, asking who she was and where she lived.

"She is Maggie Miller, and she lives in a house," answered the old woman, rather pettishly.

"Ah, indeed, sharpish, are you," said the young man, attempting to turn himself a little, the better to see his companion. "Confound that leg!" he continued, as a fierce twinge gave him warning not to try such experiments. "I know her name is Maggie Miller, and I suppose she lived in a house. But who is she, anyway, and what is she?"

"If you mean is she anybody, I can answer that question quick," returned Hagar. "She calls Madam Conway her grandmother, and Madam Conway came from one of the best families in England that's who she is. And as to what she is—she's the finest, handsomest girl in America; and as long as old Hagar Warren lives, no city chap with strapped down pantaloons and sneering mouth is going to fool with her, either!"

"Confound my mouth! It's always getting me into trouble," thought the stranger, trying in vain to smooth down the muscles of that offending organ, which, in spite of him, would curve with what Hagar called a sneer, and from which there finally broke a merry laugh, oddly at variance with the suffering expression of his face.

"Your leg don't hurt you much, [illegible]," muttered Hagar, and the young man answered: "It does almost murder me, but when a laugh is in a fellow he can't help letting it out, can he? But where the plague can that witch of a—I beg your pardon, Mrs. Hagar," he added, hastily, as he saw the frown settling on the old woman's face. "I mean to say where can Miss Miller be? I shall faint unless she comes soon, or you give me a taste of the brandy."

This time there was something in the tone of his voice which prompted Hagar to draw near, and she was about to offer him the brandy when Maggie appeared, together with three men, bearing a litter or small bed. The sight of her produced a much better effect upon him than Hagar's brandy would have done, and motioning the old woman aside, he declared himself ready to be removed.

"Now, John, do be careful and not hurt him much," cried Maggie, as she saw how pale and faint he was, while even Hagar forgot the curled lip, which the young man bit until the blood started through, so intense was his agony when lifted upon the litter. "The camphor, Hagar, the camphor," said Maggie, and the stranger did not push it aside when her hand poured it on his head, but the laughing eyes, now dim with pain, smiled gratefully upon her, and the quivering lips once murmured as she walked beside him: "Heaven bless you, Maggie Miller!"

Arrived at Hagar's cottage, the old woman suggested that he be carried in there, saying as she met Maggie's questioning glance: "I can take care of him better than any one else."

The pain by this time was intolerable, and scarcely knowing what he said, the stranger whispered: "Yes, yes, leave me here."

[illegible] a moment the bearers paused, while Maggie, bending over the wounded man, said softly: "Can't you bear it a little longer until our house is reached? You'll be more comfortable there. Grandma has gone to England, and I'll take care of you myself."

This last was perfectly in accordance with Maggie's frank, impulsive character, and it had the desired effect. Henry Warner would have borne almost death itself for the sake of being nursed by the young girl beside him, and he signified his willingness to proceed, while at the same time his hand involuntarily grasped that of Maggie, as if in the touch of her [illegible] fingers there were a soothing power to soothe his pain. In the meantime a hurried consultation had been held between Mrs. Jeffrey and Theo as to the room suitable for the stranger to be placed in.

"It is not likely he is much," said Theo, "and if grandma were here, I presume she would assign to him the chamber over the kitchen. The wall is low on one side, I know, but I dare say he is not accustomed to anything better."

Accordingly several articles of stray lumber were removed from the chamber, which the ladies arranged with care, and which, when completed, presented quite a respectable appearance. But Maggie had no idea of putting her guest, as she considered him, in the kitchen chamber, and when, as the party entered the house, Mrs. Jeffrey, from the landing, called out "This way," Maggie [illegible]. She waved her aside and led the way to a large, airy room off the parlor, where, in a [illegible] bedstead, surrounded on all sides by heavy damask curtains, they laid the weary stranger. The village surgeon arriving soon after, the fractured bones were set, and then, as perfect quiet seemed necessary, the room was vacated by all save Maggie, who glided noiselessly around the apartment, while the eyes of the sick man followed her with eager admiring glances, [illegible] to him in her new capacity of nurse.

Henry Warner, as the stranger was called, was the junior partner of the firm of Douglas & Co., Worcester, and had come to visit the [illegible] neighborhood for the collection of several bills which for a long time had been due. He had left the cars at the depot, and hiring a livery horse was taking the shortest route from the east side of the town to the west, when he came accidentally upon Maggie Miller, and, as we have seen, brought his ride to a sudden close. All this he told her on the morning following the accident, retaining until the last the name of the firm of which he was a member.

"And you were once there at our store," he said. "How long ago?"

"Five years," answered Maggie, "when I was eleven and Theo thirteen"; then, looking earnestly at him, she exclaimed: "And you are the very one, the clerk with the saucy eyes whom grandma disliked so much because she thought he made fun of her, but we didn't think so, Theo and I," she added, hastily, as she saw the curious expression on Henry's mouth and fancied he might be displeased. "We liked them very much and knew they must of course be annoyed with grandma's English whims."

For a moment the saucy eyes studied intently the fair, girlish face of Maggie Miller, then slowly closed, while a train of thought something like the following passed through the young man's mind: "A woman and yet a perfect child, innocent and unsuspecting as little Rose herself. In one respect they are alike, knowing no evil and expecting none, and if I, Henry Warner, do aught by thought or deed to injure this young girl, may I never again look on the light of day or breathe the air of heaven."

The vow had passed his lips. Henry Warner never broke his word, and henceforth Maggie Miller was as safe with him as if she had been an only and well-beloved sister. Thinking him to be asleep, Maggie started to leave the room, but he called her back, saying: "Don't go. Stay with me, won't you?"

"Certainly," she answered, drawing a chair to the bedside. "I supposed you were sleeping."

"I was not," he replied. "I was thinking of you and of Rose. Your voices are much alike. I thought of it yesterday when I lay upon the rock."

"Who is Rose?" trembled on Maggie's lips, while at the sound of that name she was conscious of the same undefinable emotion she had once experienced. But the question was not asked. "If she were his sister he would tell me," she thought, "and if she is not his sister——"

She did not finish the sentence, neither did she understand that if Rose to him was something dearer than a sister, she, Maggie Miller, did not care to know it.

"Is she beautiful as her name, this Rose?" she asked at last.

"She is beautiful, but not so beautiful as you. There are few who are," answered Henry; and his eyes fixed themselves upon Maggie, to see how she would bear the compliment.

But she scarcely heeded it, so intent was she upon knowing something more of the mysterious Rose. "She is beautiful, you say. Will you tell me how she looks?" she continued, and Henry Warner answered: "She is a frail, delicate little creature, almost dwarfish in size, but perfect in form and feature."

Involuntarily Maggie shrunk back in her chair, wishing her own queenly form had been a very trifle shorter, while Mr. Warner continued, "She has a sweet, angel face, Maggie, with eyes of lustrous blue, and curls of golden hair."

"You must love her very dearly," said Maggie, the tone of her voice indicating a partial dread of what the answer might be.

"I do indeed love her," was Mr. Warner's reply, "love her better than all the world beside. And she has made me what I am; but for her, I should have been a worthless, dissipated fellow. It's my natural disposition; but Rose has saved me, and I almost worship her for it. She is my good angel, my darling, my——"

Here he paused abruptly, and leaning back upon his pillows rather enjoyed than otherwise the look of disappointment plainly visible on Maggie's face. She had fully expected to learn who Rose was; but this knowledge he purposely kept from her. It did not need a very close observer of human nature to read at a glance the ingenuous Maggie, whose speaking face betrayed all she felt. She was unused to the world. He was the first young gentleman whose acquaintance she had ever made, and he knew that she already felt for him a deeper interest than she thought. To increase this interest was his object and this he would do by withholding from her for a time a knowledge of the relation existing between him and the Rose of whom he had talked so much. The ruse was successful, for during the remainder of the day, thoughts of the golden-haired Rose were running through Maggie's mind, and it was late that night ere she could compose herself to sleep, so absorbed was she in wondering what Rose was to Henry Warner. Not that she cared particularly, she tried to persuade herself; but she would like to be at ease upon that subject.

To Theo she had communicated the fact that their guest was a partner of Douglas & Co., and this tended greatly to raise the young man in the estimation of a young lady like Theo Miller. Next to rank and station money was with her the one thing necessary to make a person somebody. Douglas, she had heard, was an immensely wealthy man; possibly the junior partner was wealthy, too, and if so, the parlor chamber, to which she had at first objected, was none too good for his aristocratic bones. She would go herself and see him in the evening.

Accordingly, on the morning of the second day she went with Maggie to the sick room, speaking to the stranger for the first time; but keeping till a respectful distance until she should know something definite concerning him.

"We have met before, it seems," he said, after the first interchange of greetings was over, "but I did not think our acquaintance would be renewed in this manner."

No answer from Theo, who, like many others, had taken a dislike to his mouth, and felt puzzled to know whether he intended ridiculing her or not.

"I have a distinct recollection of your grandmother," he continued, "and now I think of it I believe Douglas has once or twice mentioned the elder of the two girls. This must be you?" and he looked at Theo, whose face brightened perceptibly.

"Douglas," she repeated. "He is the owner of the store, and the one I saw, with black eyes and black hair, was only a clerk."

"The veritable man himself," cried Mr. Warner. "George Douglas, the elder partner of the firm, said by some to be worth two hundred thousand dollars, and only 28 years old, and the best fellow in the world, except that he pretends to dislike women."

By this time Theo's proud eyes shone with delight, and when, after a still further conversation, Mr. Warner expressed a wish to write to his partner, she brought her own rosewood writing desk for him to use, and then, seating herself by the window, waited until the letter was written.

"What shall I say for you, Miss Theo?" he asked, near the close; and, coloring slightly, she answered: "Invite him to come out and see you."

"Oh, that will be grand!" cried Maggie, who was far more enthusiastic, though not more anxious than her sister.

Of her, Henry Warner did not ask any message. He would not have written it had she sent one, and folding the letter, after adding Theo's invitation, he laid it aside.

"I must write to Rose next," he said. "It's a whole week since I have written, and she has never been so long without hearing from me."

Instantly there came a shadow over Maggie's face, while Theo, less scrupulous, asked: "Who is Rose?"

"A very dear friend of mine," said Henry, and, as Mrs. Jeffrey just then sent for Theo, Maggie was left with him alone.

"Wait one moment," she said as she [illegible] the letter [illegible] gilt-edged paper. It is more worthy of Rose I fancy, than the plainer kind."

"Thank you," he said. "I will tell her of your suggestion."

(To be Continued.)

◆

The man who minds his own business isn't so apt to have other people doing it for him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON V.

May 2, 1915. Saul Tries to Kill David. 1 Sam. 1:9 1-24. Print 19: 1-12.

Commentary.—I. Jonathan's care for David (vs. 1-7). 1. That they should kill David—It was in one of his insane fits of jealousy that Saul gave this murderous order. David continued to play on the harp before him to quiet him, but his efforts were not always successful. The records do not show that there was any fresh cause for Saul's anger. 2. Jonathan told David—David had a warm friend in the king's court in the person of Jonathan, whose soul was knit with the soul of David (ch. 18. 1.). The two had made a covenant of friendship and Jonathan showed himself a true friend to David as long as he lived. He took the part of David rather than that of his insanely jealous father. Abide thyself—Since Saul had given orders to his servants as well as to Jonathan to take David's life, it was very necessary that David take the best possible precautions to protect himself. 3. In the field where thou art—Jonathan was standing between his father and David. It would seem that he wished David to know exactly what Saul's mind was regarding him, therefore he requested him to hide in such a place that he could quickly report to him what Saul said. I will commune with my father of thee—Jonathan was willing to draw out his father in conversation and to plead for his friend.

4. Jonathan spoke good of David—Had Jonathan simply advised David to flee without endeavoring to bring Saul to a better mind, he would have acted to the prejudice of his father's interests, by depriving him of the best support of his kingdom.—Cam. Bib. What follows reveals the wisdom of Jonathan and his sense of justice. Let not the king sin against ... David—The course Saul was taking with reference to David was most unjust, and Jonathan was ready both to recognize respectfully his father's kingship and to point out the wickedness of his actions toward David. This meant much, since Saul was the father and was also king. Hath not sinned against thee—David had constantly worked for the interests of the nation and in doing so had worked for the best interests of the king. To thee-ward—Toward thee. 5. Put his life in his hand—David risked his life, as he went out against Goliath. He did it out of devotion to his country and his God. He did what no man in all the army of Israel was willing to do. The Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel—David went forth in the name of the Lord against the Philistines champion and the Lord gave Israel the victory as a result. Jonathan devoutly ascribed to God the honor for it. Didst rejoice—It was well for Saul to be reminded of what had been done and of how he had felt about the work David did. Innocent blood—In taking the life of David he would be shedding innocent blood.

6. Saul harkened—The plea of Jonathan was effectual. He had appealed to reason, to justice and to experience. Jonathan was a noble man and deserved to be heard. As the Lord liveth—A form of expression used to render a statement emphatic. He shall not be slain—Thus quickly was Saul's mind changed, but it was not permanently fixed. This shows his impulsiveness, which no doubt became greater on account of his malady. 7. Showed him all those things—David's relief must have been very great when he learned of Saul's changed attitude toward him; yet he must have realized that his attitude might change as suddenly again. He was in his presence, as in times past. He was Israel's great military leader, yet he employed his skill in music for Saul's sake.

II. David's escape from Saul (vs. 8-17). 8. There was war again—The Philistines had not been permanently subdued. David went out—His success in this campaign was great. He performed a most important service for Saul and his kingdom. 9. Evil spirit from the Lord was upon Saul—The Holy Spirit had been withdrawn from Saul because of his disobedience to God's commands, and the Lord permitted an evil spirit to take possession of him at times. The spirit of jealousy returned and he was beside himself. As he sat, etc. Saul, as usual, had his spear in his hand, and David was playing upon his harp in an effort to soothe the enraged king. 10. Saul sought to smite David—No promise that he had made was remembered when this new fit of anger gained control of the king. Escaped that night—Fled from the king's presence and first sought refuge in his own house. To some it seemed strange that David did not affect his escape altogether from Saul after his former attempt to smite him (ch. 18: 11); but doubtless David regarded Saul's former attack as an outburst of his madness, not flowing from any deep-seated design against his life. But now, after the startling revelations which Jonathan had made to him of Saul's deadly purpose, he feels that his life is no longer safe in the royal court.—Whedon.

11. Saul messengers unto David's house—At this time Saul's purpose seems to have been firm to cause the death of David. As David had at first fled to his house, Saul hoped to have him caught there. He expected his men would guard the house to prevent David's escape. They were to take him in the morning while he was not suspecting an attack and not on his guard. Michal David's wife—She was Saul's daughter. She warned David against her father's efforts to slay him. She doubtless knew Saul's disposition better than David did. "Psalm 59 is referred to by its title to the present occasion. If this is correct, the psalm supplements the history, showing that David was in danger, not from Saul only, but from ruffians among Saul's followers who prowled about the streets of Gibeah threatening his life."—Cam. Bib. 12. Through a window—The spies entered from Jericho through a window (Josh. 2. 15), and Paul once made his escape from his enemies by being let down from a window. If David's house was on the city wall the escape was not difficult, for the guard would likely be watching at the door of his house. 12-17. Michal took an image she had in the house and put it in David's bed and with a goat's hair pillow made a representation of a man. She did this to deceive Saul's men and give David time to make good his escape. She also employed falsehood to explain to her father her course in allowing David to escape. We can not approve of her deception and falsehood.

III. Saul prophesying (vs. 18-24). David fled to Ramah, the home of Samuel, and told Samuel what Saul had done. He remained with Samuel in the school of the prophets. Saul heard of it and sent men to take David, and as they came near the school of the prophets, they began to prophesy. Saul sent the second time and the third time with the same results, then he went himself and as he drew near he also began to prophesy. God would call Saul's attention to his wicked course.

QUESTIONS.—Who was Jonathan? What was his attitude toward David? How did Jonathan bring his father to feel friendly toward David? What success did David have in his war with the Philistines? What attempt did Saul make to slay David? How did David escape? Who was Michal? Where did David go from Gibeah? With whom did he live? What came to those whom Saul sent to take David?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—Attempted violence.

I. Disclosed Saul's secret plot.

II. Defeated by divine intervention.

I. Disclosed Saul's secret plot. In tracing Saul in his progress to final ruin and David in his accession to the throne we have here brought out the aroused hostility of Saul on the one side and the services of Jonathan's friendship on the other. Father and son were at cross purposes concerning the life of one who in the providence of God was to supplant them both. In the progress of the conflict between cruelty and friendship there was a revelation of the individual characteristics of the two men and the principles which actuated them. The ruling passion of Saul's inner life became his acknowledged master, so that murder in intent became murder avowed. He raised in Jonathan's mind the conflict between worldly, personal interests, and his fidelity of friendship. It was a deep grief to Jonathan to witness the downfall of his father in character, but to be called upon to be partaker of his sin was beyond all else. In yearning desire to save his father from continued crime and in fervent hope to spare the life of God's chosen one, Jonathan conversed in a kindly manner with his father, citing David's heroism in behalf of Israel and God's evident approval of him. He recalled Saul's own admiration for David, then asked if he could inflict death upon him. Jonathan's prudent and persuasive intercession softened the king's obduracy, so that he made a most solemn profession of reconciliation and David "was in his presence as in times past." The change wrought was but superficial, for Saul's nature was alienated from God.

II. Defeated by divine intervention. The path marked out for David was dark and dangerous, but God watched over, led and defended him. Things permitted were to test, strengthen and perfect his character, however strange such providence may have seemed to David. Though Saul had made him his son-in-law it was in the exercise of his low cunning that Michal might become a snare to him. In this he was also defeated. Michal's quick wit devised the means of escape for David, deceived the messengers of Saul and invented a ready story to disarm her father's wrath. Her fear of her father was greater than her love for truth. Her love for her husband was greater than her hatred for sin. David sought Samuel whose home was the centre of spiritual influence. Life at Saul's court was out of accord with his most cherished aspirations. He was conscious of being misunderstood and misrepresented. The earlier days of quiet service and holy communion with God were but sweet memories, bringing the bitter realities of daily life into stronger relief. What wonder that with bounding heart and rapid flight he sought consolation, counsel and rest with the honored man who once anointed him to some unexplained service. While battles were being fought and the kingdom was troubled with the unsatisfactory condition of the court, Samuel was quietly gathering around himself a band of men who were becoming a power to influence the national life in days to come. Saul's wicked desperation was great when he sent to Naioth to capture David. It reached its highest pitch when, after three attempts to take him, he ventured to go himself to the abode of Samuel. It was after long separation that Saul thus drew near to the revered man of God and the company of prophets, the only occasion on which Samuel, David and Saul were present at the same time and place. To protect David from Saul's messengers were restrained from carrying out position to Saul's designs, the messengers weer restrained from carrying out their orders. The divine power, was exercised, first upon Saul's men and then upon himself. As each band saw the venerated Samuel stand at the head of the prophets, they feared to do violence to one under such august protection. Hitherto Saul appeared to be fighting solely against David, but when the spirit of prophecy came upon his messengers and rendered them helpless, it was obvious that he was fighting against God. Such knowledge added to his mental confusion, though not sufficiently to subdue his wild passion. His bodily manifestations were not marks of grace, but indicated a moral state at variance with the Spirit of God. The experience served to change a persecuting monarch into a harmless enthusiast. T. R. A.

◆

A fool and his money are soon parted, and all the fools are not dead yet.

Whistle, and I'll come to you, my lad.—Burns.

The Old Fashioned Purging and Griping Action of Pills

Is Now Done Away With.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all waste and effete matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract.

They do this by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood, and thus causing constipation, jaundice, catarrh of the stomach and similar troubles.

Mrs. I. M. Ratchford, Peterboro, Ont., writes: "Having been troubled for years with constipation, and trying many different remedies which did me no good whatever, I was asked to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I have found them most beneficial, for they are indeed splendid pills, and I can gladly recommend them to all people who suffer from constipation."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY, MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

Brooms, Brushes and Twines, Etc

Mr. C. Patrick has on hand a large quantity of Brooms, Brushes, Baskets, Twines, and etc. in fact all the stock carried at the Walkerton Broom Works which will be sold at a sacrifice in order to get it out of the house, as he is anxious to get the house in shape for to rent as soon as possible. Ring up the Telescope at any time for any of these lines.

C. PATRICK
Telescope Office Walkerton

READY TO SERVE

There's no fuss or bother about getting a meal, with Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes in the house.

Always ready to serve, fresh, tasty and nutritious.

Sold by all Grocers at 10c the package. Look for this signature.

80

Kellogg's

CORN FLAKES

The Soul of Music Is Revealed in

Columbia Records

No man or woman can be said to have known the soul of music who has been denied the privilege of hearing the new Columbia Grafonola play Columbia Records.

No matter what ones mood or fancy conjures up, there is a musical selection on a Columbia Record which enables the listener to revel in its delights.

If it is to dance, there are a thousand tunes to start ones feet moving.

If one feels more sober, there are hundreds of ballads to stir the imagination.

If the taste runs to Grand Opera, the most famous artists of the opera stage are willing to charm you.

If it is to laugh, there are hundreds of songs and selections to provoke mirth.

Why not go and investigate the Columbia Grafonolas and Records at the dealer whose name is mentioned below:

C. A. FOX,

Walkerton, - - Ontario.

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply Music Supply Co., Toronto.

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published every Thursday morning at Walkerton, Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in vance, Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY, Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

LOOKING FOR METHODIST VOTE

There has been a suspicion for some time that under the Premiership of Mr. Hearst the Conservative party in Ontario was making a decided bid for the support of the Methodist church which is well known for its advocacy of temperance reform.

One of the Government's moves evidently is very plain in the appointment to the new Central License Commission; Four Methodists out of five are appointees. All the members, Messrs. Flavelle, Dingham, Ayearst, and Dane are Methodists, while Mr. Smith of Haileybury is a Roman Catholic.

That the Conservatives, however, are hardly succeeding in their attempt to control the Methodist church vote is shown by the comment of the Christian Guardian the organ of the Methodist in Canada. Although it comments favorably on the actual choice of commissioners, it is outspoken in its opposition to the general temperance policy of the Conservative party and of Mr. Hearst.

The Guardian openly expresses its disappointment with Mr. Hearst. "The fact" it said, "that the Premier was an active Methodist and was known to be opposed to the traffic in intoxicants, seemed to warrant the expectation that some radical steps would be taken towards minimizing the evils of the traffic. Under these circumstances we may be pardoned if we fully expected that something would be done and we may be excused if we voice our bitter disappointment at the Governments inaction. If the Government had had to deal with an Opposition which was opposed to such legislation there might have been a little more excuse but in this case the leader of the opposition had pledged himself and his party to support the Government in curtailing the evils of the traffic so that the whole blame for the inactivity must rest upon the Government.

ROUMANIA

Area..........50,720 square miles
Population, 1912........7,248,000

Rumania extends from the shores of the Black Sea westward to the Transylvanian mountains, which divide it from Hungary. The Danube divides it from Bulgaria to the south and to the north and east is the Russian Empire.

The Rumanians are proud of their race and country, and look forward to the day that will unite them to their kinsmen in Transylvania (Hungary) and in Bessarabia (Russia.) The agricultural classes are hardy, frugal and inured to toil, but very superstitious. Their staple diet consists of vegetables and corn meal porridge. Beef, mutton and pork, are rarely eaten, but veal is commonly used.

Products

In 1900, Rumania ranked third after the United States and Russia among the grain growing countries of the word. Since then its relative importance has been lessened by the development or wheat growing in Canada and Argentine. Corn is the next most important cereal. Beans potatoes, beets and tobacco are grown. Rumania is also a wine producing country, and on the uplands fruit-growing is general. Cattle sheep and swine raising are the most important branches of the live-stock industry. Cheese is made from ewe's milk.

The petroleum deposits are among the most important in the world The American Standard Oil is largely interested. The output in 1909 was 1,300,000 metric tons. Many valuable minerals occur, and salt, lignite and brown coal are largely worked. Lumbering is important although the forests have been recklessly exploited. The manufactures which employ native raw materials, are few and unimportant.

Commerce

Commerce depends largely on the grain harvest and fluctuates accordingly. The principal imports are metals, machinery, and textiles, silk, wool, hair, and hides. The imports come chiefly from Germany, Austria Hungary, Great Britain and France

Grain and timber are by far the most imortant exports, Lumber is exported to Turkey and Bulgaria; casks, planks, and petroleum drums go chiefly to Austria and Russia. The remaining exports consist of live-stock, fruit and vegetables. The exports go chiefly to Belgium Great Britain, and Italy. Swine and pork are largely exported to Russia and Austria Hungary.

Extra Hour For Sport.

On the suggestion of Mayor Barnsdale, the Stratford city council has instructed the industrial committee to sound the feeling of manufactures and other employers toward a daylight saving plan, whereby the hour for starting and quitting work would be earlier permitting longer evenings for the enjoyment of parks and sports.

Doing Good Work.

The Carrick Council has introduced a new order of things this spring by starting the grader to work as soon as the roads were dry enough to start upon. The first piece of grading was in the Otter Creek division, and those who have seen the road since are quite enthusiastic over the excellent results obtained. The work was done under the supervision of Pathmaster J. W. Smith, and is worthy of emulation by other pathmasters in Carrick. — Mildmay Gazette.

War Graft Must go.

The revelations at Ottawa in connection with the purchase of army supplies call for drastic action on the part of Sir Robert Borden and his government and the Conservative party. They must dissociate themselves with any wrong doing, with any attempt to take advantage of the country or of our soldiers in the field. They cannot stand for graft, for unfair profit, or for worthless or inferior goods. If members of parliament did wrong, they must take the consequences; if officials were parties to fraud or were lax in duty, they must be dismissed and punished if within the power of the law, and wherever contractors acted unfair or took undue profit they must make restitution. In other words, the department of justice must be put in operation in the most vigorous way, and more than anyone else the cabinet must be held to strict accountability. The Conservative party as a party must clear itself before the country. They have an active opposition in front of them, and the people will await an immediate statement and the action that must follow. The system of purchases by way of a patronage list, no matter how long in use, must now be wiped out forever. There must be open competition, and every contractor must be compelled to put in a declaration as to his good faith in every respect in filling any and every contract. War graft of every kind must go, and The World believes the Conservatives have the opportunity and the duty of saying so now — Toronto World, Conservative.

Beautiful spring weather during the past week has favored the commencing of seeding which is now well under way The land and roads dried up rapidly with some night frost and bright days.

The business men of Paisley met on Thursday evening to discuss early closing for the summer. The outcome of the conference is that there will be no early closing regulation, except that a majority of business places will take a half holiday on Thursday afternoon and evening during the months of May June, July and August. Paisley Advocate.

What They Brought.

An Orangeville society woman announced a "white elephant" party. Every guest was to bring something that she could not find any use for and that was yet too good to throw away. The party would of been a success but for the unlooked for development which broke it up. Eleven of the nineteen women brought their husbands.

Get into The Garden

On the authority of W. T. Macoun, of the dominion Experimental Farm, on 1,000 square ft. any one can grow $25 worth of vegetables, enough for consumption and storing for a family at an expenditure of not more than $2 and $3 for seeds, That's something for the city man with a small garden or his lot to ponder over. If the season's vegetables can be secured for a couple of dollars and a little labor isn't it a profitable investment and one worth taking up— especially at a period when a large portion of the men of the Empire are at war and it devolves as a bounden duty upon those who stay at home to provide food for the warriors? Patriotism as well as economic common sense are involved in the cultivation of the garden plot.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Hundreds of People Have Found "Fruit-a-tives" Their Only Help

READ THIS LETTER

Superintendent of Sunday School in Toronto Tells How He Cured Himself of Chronic Rheumatism After Suffering for Years.

55 DOVERCOURT ROAD, Oct., 1st. 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure affected by your remedy "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered from Rheumatism, especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for 18 months now, and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months".

R. A. WAUGH

Rheumatism is no longer the dreaded disease it once was. Rheumatism is no longer one of the "incurable diseases". "Fruit-a-tives" has proved its marvellous powers over Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago—in fact, over all such diseases which arise from some derangement of stomach, bowels, kidneys or skin.

"Fruit a tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Here's a Knife-Sharpener and Towel Dryer combined in one—both are necessary in the kitchen. Not necessary to a range, but they indicate the consideration and thought that has been given to the details of the Pandora. Important features have been given proportionately great care and study.

Have the Pandora's many features explained to you before you buy your range.

The accuracy of the McClary thermometer makes good baking a certainty—also adds a bit of satisfaction to the work.

McClary's Pandora Range

Pandora Ranges are sold everywhere by good dealers who back up our guarantee on this splendid range—McClary's

London Toronto Montreal Winnipeg Vancouver St. John Hamilton Calgary Saskatoon Edmonton

Combnation Offers

You want good reading during the coming year You can't get a better paper for local news than the TELESCOPE and with it we offer the following at the prices shown The Telescope and

One new Subscription	$1.75
Saturday Globe	1.9
Family Herald	1.90
Toronto World	3.75
Farmer's Advocate	2.40
Canadian Farm	1.90
Weekly Sun	1.90
Catholic Register	1.90
Toronto Daily Globe	3.90
Toronto Daily Mail & Empire	3.90
Toronto Daily Star	2.90
Toronto Daily News	2.90
Montreal W. Witness	1.90
London Catholic Record	2.25
Canadian Baptist	2.25
Presbyterian	2.25
Westminster	2.25
Ontario Churchman	4.50
Church Life	2.00
Farm & Dairy	1.90
Weekly Mail & Empire	1.90
Saturday Night	3.50
London Advertiser	3.90

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, L.D.S., Dentist. Successor to Dr. Corrain. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work. Three doors east of post office. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday [illegible] of each month.

J.S. REED, Surgeon Dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne St., [illegible] new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR. BROWN, Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the [illegible] Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday of each month 2 to 4 p.m.

W. A. HALL, B.A., M.B., L.M., Honor Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets.

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J G CARTER, Greenock P.O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Powers' Hotel. Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and sold: money to loan: agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire, Insurance Company — Phone no 140, ring 2 & 1.

BRITISH AMERICAN BUSINESS COLLEGE

Leads in age, influence, and successful graduates. Specialists in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31sth. Write for free catalogue Address, T. W[illegible], Principal Younge and McGill Sts., Toronto.

You can Begin Any Day at the

Northern Business College

Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three story building and 34 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors produce the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal
D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photographs

Our photographs are more than good photographs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser

Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES

If you want a stove buy a "HAPPY" THOUGHT. None better. Also a full line of Heating Stove at

H A HAVILL
Walkerton - - Ont.

TREES ! TREES !!

All kinds of Fruit and ornamental Trees, Evergreens, Roses, Shrubs, Climbers, etc. Everything in the nursery line. Send list of your wants for prices. Catalogue free.

Agents Wanted Everywhere

Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman Port Elgin, Ont.

Easy rests the head that wears a

"King Hat"

King Hats are flexible and [illegible] conforming, just where the hat touches the head.

ASK THE MAN WHO FAILS [illegible] THE POPULAR SHAPES $2 to [illegible]

T. PYE SOLE AGENT
WALKERTON - - ONTARIO

Brant Township Farms

I have in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, forty-six acre farm, one hundred and thirty acre farm, a two hundred acre farm all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL. I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $5000. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to me if you want to buy at right prices.

H. H. MILLER
HANOVER - - ONTARIO

The War Does not Effect the Nursery Business

[illegible]

Thos. W. Bowman Son & Co
LIMITED
RIDGEVILLE - ONTARIO

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.
Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "
Cracked Wheat, Farina Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.
Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton Ont

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD. ONT.

Ontario's best Practical Training School We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates succeed and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

CANADIAN PACIFIC Ry

For Winnipeg and Vancouver
leave Toronto 10 20 p m daily

Attractive Tours to
Pacific Coast Points

Particulars from C.P.R. Ticket Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, D. P. A., Toronto.

H. G. Hunter, - Town Agent.
N. Hisent, - Station Agent.

LABATT'S LAGER
IS MILD, PURE, APPETIZING
Just the Beverage for the busy man:—rests the nerves and ensures sound sleep.
If not sold in your neighborhood, write
JOHN LABATT, LIMITED
LONDON - - CANADA
☞ Special arrangements for direct shipment to private consumers.
52

Note the dressy appearance of these Penman Sweater Coats

They drape the figure as gracefully as a custom tailored garment because knit-to-form —knit with exacting care to fit the varying physical types of men, women and children.

Penmans Sweater Coats retain their marvelous and pleasing shapeliness—because made from the best selected wool. You know you need a sweater coat—there are scores of occasions when it is decidedly the vogue. Ask for a Penman.

Look for the trademark.

Penmans Limited, Paris, Canada
Sweaters Underwear Hosiery
95

Penmans Sweater Coats

Mr. H. Rife, of Walkerton, was a visitor in town a few days last week.—Wiarton Record.

Messrs. Robt. Irwin and Thomas E Morgan purchased a carload of horses last week. They were all delivered at Walkerton on Monday.—Ripley Express.

A farmer in Essex recently sold beans off 18 acres at $3 per bushel which amounted to $1000. His five acres of tobacco also brought him $220 per acre or $1100, so $2100 from 23 acres proves that farming pays, and in this year of disheartening results in business it is enough to turn many back to the soil.

A Good Show.

The Boyer-Vincent Stock Company played here last Wednesday and Thursday evening and were given good houses. "The Whirlpool" was the most popular presentation. The company appeared here under the auspices of the Hockey Club, who have made arrangements for a return engagement next fall. The company are assured of a big business.—Ripley Express.

Cheap Food.

Citizens of Ripley are going to live high for the next few weeks, and it looks as if the high cost of living has at last been solved, by the abundance of cheap food that will be secured when the season opens for sucker fishing. In a few days you can have all the fish you can carry home by visiting the small streams in this neighborhood. It will be a rather hard knock on local butchers, as there will be a big demand for this wholesome but cheap food.—Express.

Elliott Got 30 Days.

Joe Elliott, of Cape Croker, whose wife beating we noticed last week, was sent to Walkerton for 30 days for being drunk on the reserve, and while there he will be charged with cruelty to his wife. As she is still very ill and possibly may not recover Joe may thank his lucky stars if he gets off with lashes, and if ever a man deserved the lash it is this red man from the Cape. Joe swore that he got the liquor from Wilfred Lamorandiere and Wellington Pendonquot on the Cape, but the Indians on Saturday swore that they bought a bottle from Elliott, each were fined $50 and costs for the offence. There is no sympathy for Elliott in this district and he will deserve all he gets.—Wiarton Canadian.

Refund on Unused Tickets.

Hereafter the travelling public who do not use railway tickets or portions of tickets will be able to get back their money from the railway companies without having to wait from two or three months to a year for it. The Railway Commission issued an order to-day compelling Canadian Railway companies to pay the refund on all tickets within thirty days from the time of application in case of where one line only is effected, and within sixty days when in to lines are affected. The order was granted after the board had heard arguments from counsel for the companies as to why there should not be prompt payment. Chairman Drayton during the course of the discussion declared that he had waited for two years, and was still waiting for a refund from the C.P.R. on a return half of a ticket between Toronto and Ottawa. He was promised that his two-year-old application would now be looked after.

Robberies in Wingham.

Wingham has been visited lately by an epidemic of robbery and stealing. Some little time ago the office of the Wm. Davies Co. on Edward street was entered at night and a considerable sum of money was taken. On Thursday night the ticket office at the G.T.R. station was entered between six and seven o'clock when all the employees were at tea. The drawer containing the money was broken open and when Operator Kaiser returned after supper the money was gone. Carson & Fyke's fancy goods store was entered the evening previous through the back door and a quantity of goods stolen. The robbers continued in their work and some time during Saturday night or early Sunday morning, Geo. Mason & Son's book, stationery and fancy goods store and H. E. Isard & Co's. dry goods store were broken into, the robbers having gained an entrance to both places through the back doors. From the Izard store there does not appear to have been anything taken while from the Mason store some $10 in cash was taken as well as a few articles. The police have been at work on the various cases, but as yet have not been able to locate the guilty. It is to be hoped that parties who are guilty of this kind of work are found out and given proper punishment.—Wingham Times.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & Co. Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Bought Ford Car.

Mr. David Harper, a prosperous farmer of the 4th concession, this week became the proud possessor of a 1915 Ford touring car, purchased from Liesemer & Kalbfleisch. Mr Harper believes in taking a little enjoyment out of life as he goes along.—Mildmay Gazette.

Avoid Giving Offence.

Our correspondents are requested not to send in items which cause pain or annoyance to anyone. Sometimes a seemingly inoffensive article has a hidden meaning which escapes the attention of editor and is resented by some reader. We try to avoid this by careful editing but occasionally an ofence slips through. Again we urge our correspondents not to write such paragraphs. when in doubt, leave it out.

April Wedding.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the Sacred Heart church here on Tuesday morning, when Miss Emma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Berberick, was united in marriage to Mr William Steffler, of Formosa. Rev C. W. Brohmann was the clergyman. Miss Steffler sister of the groom acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Gregor Berberich performed the duties of best man. After a short honeymoon the happy couple will take up residence near Formosa.—Mildmay Gazette.

First Hero Welcomed Home.

The people of Forest and district turned out en masse on Monday in a "welcome home" to Private Harry Jennings of the Princess Patricias, who was invalided to his home here after being severely wounded in the fighting in France. Forty automobiles were in a huge procession, which wound up at the town hall, where Jennings was presented with a handsome gold watch and an address of appreciation in behalf of the citizens of the town. Mayor Baillie presided.

Division Court.

Judge Klein held Division Court here on Tuesday but, as is usual now on "court day", the docket was short and the cases of no great interest or importance. A case which occupied the court for some time was that of the Formosa Brewery Co. vs J. C. Clark, one time proprietor of the Royal hotel, Lucknow. The Co. sued for the value of beer barrels and bottle crates which they claim were not returned by Clark at the time the hotel was burned out nor since. The difference appeared to be as to the number of barrels and crates that were not returned and as to who was responsible. After hearing the evidence—two witnesses for the Co. and Mr. Clark for himself, the Judge said he would reserve his judgment. Mr. Malcomson acted for the Company.—Lucknow Sentinel.

Homeseekers Excursion to Western Can

Particular attention is directed to the remarkably low round trip fares in connection with Homeseekers Excursion to Western Canada via Canadian Pacific Railway. Tickets are on sale each Tuesday until Oct. 26, inclusive and are good to return within two months from date of sale. The C. P. R. offers the finest possible equipment and fastest train service via one of the most scenic routes in the world. It is the only line operating through standard and tourist sleeping cars, also dining cars to Winnipeg and Vancouver. All equipment is owned and operated by the C. P. R. affording the highest form of efficiency. If such a trip is under consideration apply to any C. P. R. agent for full particulars or write M. G. Murphy D. P. A. Toronto.

Have Offered a Trophy.

The following from the London Free Press of Wednesday will be of absorbing interest to the baseball fans, not only of this town but of this section of the province as well. Ever willing to provide assistance to sporting organizations, which stand for something in the various pastimes in season. The London Free Press yesterday notified Secretary Robert Pollock, of the Owen Sound Amateur Athletic Association, that a beautiful silver trophy would be donated in the event that the Northern Baseball League materializes with a widening scope. It was announced yesterday in The Free Press that a movement is on foot to organize a baseball league starting the season with at least four groups, incorporated for the first year with four or more clubs in each district, and the belief that such an organization would undoubtedly prosper, prompted the big Western Ontario daily to provide the many clubs with a trophy to fight for, emblematic of the N.B.L. championship. The trophy will become the property of the club winning it three times, not necessarily in consecutive years. This is not the first year that such an organization was talked of, and each attempt failed for the lack of co-operation among the various districts, which have enjoyed baseball among themselves, but with no scope other than winning the title of little groups of teams. This undertaking started by the Owen Sound A.A.A., will enable the winners of the various districts to meet in play-offs until a final series is arranged for the N.B.L. championship similar to hockey competition in the northern league, also an organization which was assisted by the Free Press. Clubs are requested to take the initiative by corresponding either with W. H. Rhodes, sporting editor of The Free Press, or with Mr. Pollock, of Owen Sound A.A.A. Many leagues are forming at the point of lining up clubs for the coming season at the present time, and therefore it is expedient that good intentions are assisted by early communication.

Purvis is Likely Candidate.

South Bruce Conservatives will meet in convention at Formosa on Thursday, April 29th at 2.30 p. m. to select a candidate for the next Dominion Election. The name most prominently mentioned to oppose R. E. Truax who is likely to be renominated by the Liberals is John Purvis an auctioneer at Holyrood in Kinloss township. Others mentioned in connection with the nomination are Dr. Hicks of Chesley, Dr. Doering of Mildmay, Dr. Fowler of Teeswater, John Rowland of Walkerton, and Reeve Joynt of Lucknow.—Chesley Enterprise.

Just Waiting for Weather.

The Bowman Bowling Cup is the most sought after trophy in this district, and the team holding it is almost sure of a game every day. Last summer considerable interest was in evidence in this event. Twenty-eight clubs are elegible to play for the cup. Wright of Owen Sound was the first winner, and since then the trophy has changed as follows: - Wheeler, Southampton; Wright, Owen Sound; McLaughlin, Chesley; Batchellor, Owen Sound; Symons, Wiarton; Veitch Port Elgin; Bruce, Kincardine; Black, Paisley, and the present holders, Brock McAulay, Southampton. Challenges are already coming in to the Southampton club for 1915.—Southampton Beacon.

Caused Spring Feeling.

The action of the members of the Perth county council in attempting to knock off $,000 from the grant voted on in December 1914, when a by-law No. 481 was carried, donating to the Canadian Patriotic Fund one mill on the dollar has caused a great deal of strong feeling amongst friends of the Patriotic Fund and amongst citizens in Stratford and Perth in general. So strong is the feeling that the Stratford and Perth county branch of the Patriotic Aid intend to bring action against the county council to force them to pay the back payments according to the bylaw and adding as party defendants each member of the council who voted to reduce the amount and thus negative the effect of the bylaw.

Locusts in Eastern Canada.

Few people who have not experienced a plague of locusts can appreciate how terribly destructive the pest can be. In Circular No. 5, of the Entomological Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture, Mr. Arthur Gibson, Chief Assistant Entomologist, tells something about locusts or "grasshoppers" that every tiller of the soil should know. He states that for the past three years the pest has been extremely destructive in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. In one district of Lanark County alone an estimated loss of $8,000 was caused representing 75 per cent of the crops. In a number of instances fields of oats and barley were cut green to save for feed, while in other cases in the province of Quebec farms have been abandoned owing to the prevalence of locusts. The insects are most impartial in their attention, attacking all kinds of grain and vegetables. After describing the different species which are liable to invest any part of Canada, Mr. Gibson suggests as an efficacious poison a bran mash that has been well tried, consisting of

Bran........................	20 pounds
Paris green of white arsenic	1 pound
Molasses	2 quarts
Oranges and lemons.......	3 fruits
Water	3½ gallons

It is said that the oranges and lemons make the bait more attractive and hence lead to the undoing of the locust. Experiments made with this mixture, which can be concocted at small cost, have proved most successful, in one case no fewer than from 900 to 1,200 dead locusts being counted to the square yard. Besides illustrating the efficiency of the poison this statement also proves the alarming and overwhelming nature of the creatures. As every farmer should be prepared to protect his crops against the pest he should see to it that as soon as possible he becomes possessed of this invaluable circular, and this he can do by applying to the Publications Branch Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

WESTERN UNIVERSITY, LONDON.

Forward Movement

Greatly enlarged faculties in arts and medicine Vastly improved equipment, — library, laboratories, etc.

Seven new scholarships:
Record enrollment.
Inquiries solicited.

E. E. Braithwaite, M.A., Ph. D.
President.

Special this Month

Business Courses

The Walkerton Business College is offering special rates for a three months' commercial course in the following subjects:— Penmanship, Spelling, Arithmetic, Commercial law, Introductory forms to single and double entry, Book-keeping and Typewriting. Now is the time for the young people of this vicinity to improve their education. For further information regarding this course, apply to

P. J. MOLONEY
Principal Walkerton

Get a Line on—
PERRIN'S
British Navy
Biscuits
REGISTERED
At your grocers
52

One baking tells the tale.
Use PURITY FLOUR once and you'll always use it.

PURITY FLOUR
MAKES
"More Bread and Better Bread" and—Better Pastry too.

Buy a sack of PURITY. Your money will be returned if it does not prove entirely satisfactory.

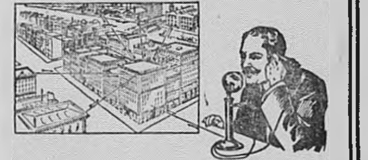
In the Dairy

Use Panshine to thoroughly clean and shine all the cans, pails, shelves, etc. Leaves everything sweet-smelling and sanitary. Cleanliness pays—especially in the dairy. Use

PANSHINE

It's a pure, white, clean powder—doesn't scratch—can't harm the hands—odorless.

Sold in Large Sifter Top Tins 10c. At all Grocers.



Widen Your Influence!

Your telephone connects you intimately with the varied interests of the community in which you live. You are in touch with all phases of the life of your town. Though you seldom go far from your own office, yet your influence is a factor.

Through your telephone you can widen your influence, you can extend the scope of your business. The long distance lines bring distant communities within reach of your voice, your personality, in the most inexpensive way.

By careful planning and systematic application, you can also keep in touch with distant customers, wholesalers, manufacturers, that all the advantages of personal intercourse are secured through the telephone.

Why not make a study of long distance telephone service as related to the special needs of your business. It will pay you, and we will gladly give you any information in our power.

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station."

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

Old Country News

ODD EFFECT OF THE WAR.

London Cable—Some remarkable effects have accrued from this war, but all that we have ever heard of pale before the story told by a surveyor of taxes in London. He says: "Numbers of people seem to be seizing the opportunity of displaying their patriotism by paying their income tax as early as possible." Perhaps some people will sneer, but let the surveyor tell his own story:

We made an appeal for early payment, but it scarcely seems to have been necessary. Never before has there been so little trouble in the collection of the tax. In this district the books are in many instances made up to the end of March, but, despite this, we have had numbers of cases where individuals and firms have voluntarily made large payments on account during January and February. Day after day people come to the office and say, "Let me know what I am liable for and you can have the amount at once." So far as the city is concerned, there seems to be a general desire on the part of all classes to meet this obligation at the first moment possible, and in many instances the payment has been described to us as a pleasure as well as a duty. The "silver bullet" theory seems undoubtedly to have made great headway — at all events our duties have never been before so pleasantly light."

TEACHING BLIND SOLDIERS.

London Cable——(Correspondence of the Associated Press)— There are already fifty blind soldiers, including three officers at the home of Otto Kahn, the American banker, at Regents' Park, St. Dunstan's. Mr. Kahn turned his residence over to the Red Cross Society some time ago for the use of soldiers who had lost their eyes.

The Kahn estate includes about fifteen acres of grounds, with various small buildings, which will be used for training-rooms and work shops. There is also a small lake on which the blind men will be allowed to row.

The sightless soldiers will receive preliminary instruction in carpentry, boot repairing, mat making, basket weaving, telephone operating, massage, poultry farming and market gardening, an effort being made to find for each man the occupation to which he is best adapted. The cost of running the institution will be met by the Red Cross, the National Institute for the Blind and the Order of St. John.

FOOTBALL PROS.' SHAME.

London Cable— (Correspondence of the Associated Press)— Only 122 professional football players out of some 1,800 in the league teams have enlisted in the Football Battalion, which was organized for the express purpose of bringing this class of professional athletes to the colors and of breaking up a sport which is supposed to have had a bad effect on the recruiting campaign.

"The laxity of football professionals and their following has amounted to almost a public scandal," states Col. C. F. Grantham, commanding the battalion. "I am aware and have proof that in many cases directors and managers of clubs have not only given no assistance in getting these men to join, but have done their best by their actions to prevent it. I will no longer be a party to shielding the want of patriotism in these men by allowing the public to think they have joined the Football Battalion."

POSTAL VETERAN'S DEATH.

London Cable——(Correspondence of the Associated Press) Sir John Cameron Lamb, who as second secretary of the British postoffice, had a large part in the development of the post and telegraph system of England, is dead at his home here, aged 70 years. His death was hastened by the shock of news that his son had been killed in action.

Sir John's work in the Postoffice covered a period of over forty years, and was chiefly concerned with the administration and development of the telegraph. He was an ardent advocate of a cheap telegraphic service, and carried through most of the arrangements which made possible the present flat rate of six pence (12 cents) for any twelve word message anywhere in Great Britain. He took part in all the great international telegraphic congresses, and was in charge of the negotiations whereby the British Postoffice acquired ownership of all telephone lines.

LONELY NO LONGER.

London Cable——(Correspondence of The Associated Press)— Rifleman A. C. White, who was described by a sentimental fellow soldier in a letter to a London paper as the loneliest man in the British army, has become the bane of the British army postal service. White was lying in a hospital near the front, with no one to write to him or to send him presents. But after the pathetic description appeared, an extra force of men had to be employed to handle and carry his mail. His letters have now passed the 3,000 mark, and his parcels are numbered by the hundreds. Every mail White draws a bigger bag than many companies.

LATEST CALL FROM THE FRONT.

London Cable—Sandbags by the million is the latest call from the front. They are used not only for parapets to trenches, but to make houses for officers and men of the artillery, as well as for the guns and telephone stations. The infantry trenches require about 100,000 bags for each mile.

"When we advance," writes one officer, "we have no time to empty out old sandbags. We need fresh ones, made either of coarse linen or canvas."

WOMEN CAR CONDUCTORS.

Glasgow, Scotland, Cable—(Correspondence of The Associated Press). —Women street car conductors are being tried in Glasgow. The uniform includes a neat blue skirt and coat, edged with gold braid. If the trial squad of women conductors proves efficient, a considerable number will be employed at once. For the present, the women fare-collectors will work only four hours a day, running between the University and Dumbreck. They will be paid the same wages as men—$6.25 to $5 a week.

Rev. Canon Osborne is to be presented with his portrait in oils in recognition of the completion of 21 years' faithful service as vicar of St. Michael and All Angels Church, [illegible].

An old gentleman who was confirmed on Saturday evening a week ago by the Lord Bishop of Sheffield was in his 91st year. He was amongst the candidates presented by Rev. A. C. Jones, from St. Silas' Church.

At Malton (Yorks.) a dog given to Mr. Clappinson, of Settrington, sold on behalf of the Red Cross Society's fund 13 times, and realized a total of £4 5s.

All the employees of the [illegible] corporation and the members of the local police force are applying for an increase in wages. Consideration of the request has been deferred.

Mr. and Mrs. William Read, who resided at the postoffice, Old Malton, have just celebrated their golden wedding. Mr. Read, who is 82 years of age, is the oldest Oddfellow in the district, having joined the British Oak Lodge of Oddfellows (Grand United Order) on its establishment in 1861.

Mr. H. H. Six has been appointed head master of the new schools recently erected by the Derbyshire County Council at Heanor.

At a meeting of the Romford Belgian Relief Committee, Mr. J. Gregory presiding, it was decided that a suitable house be acquired, when an opportunity arose, so that a family of Belgians might be housed.

At Grays, Essex, a German, named Friedrich Worlz, was fined £100 or ordered to undergo six months' imprisonment for being an alien enemy entering a prohibited area without a permit. He admitted having deserted from the German army.

As the result of the Salvation Army self denial week this year £77,[illegible] was raised. Last year the amount raised was £71,359, and the previous highest amount was £72,684.

Rev. W. P. Wright, Vicar of Hemingbrough, near Selby, who has been appointed to St. Silas, Broomhall street, Sheffield, was instituted by the Bishop of Sheffield on Thursday, April 15th.

Female labor is in demand in the Doncaster district, and already girl clerks are being engaged by the railway companies.

The Cleveland miners have accepted the mine owners' offer of a war bonus of 3d. a day for boys under 16, 4d. for youths under 18, and 6d. for workers over 18.

A number of tramway cars in Glasgow on Monday week had women conductors, and it is explained that this is an experiment by the Corporation Tramways Department, which is to last for one week.

The surfacemen and boys employed at the North Wales collieries have demanded an increase in wages. A joint conference between the masters and the men will meet in Wrexham to consider the question.

Several hundred women registered at Newcastle for war work during the past week, and doubtless many more would have done so but for the fact that nearly 4,000 women have already been absorbed into the [illegible] industry at Elswick, and that the staple trades of the district are hardly suitable for women.

The operative plumbers of Newcastle and Gateshead were on strike on Tuesday owing to the employers having refused to accede an advance of 1d. per hour. The men refused an advance of 2s. a week war bonus and of arbitration by an arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade, and the matter is now in the hands of the Chief Industrial Commissioner.

A woman was burned to death in a fire at South Parade, Chelsea.

The Liverpool licensing justices have decided that the restricted hours of drinking to be applied to public houses should also apply to clubs.

During March the Clyde shipbuilders launched ten merchant vessels aggregating 40,600 tons. The total since the beginning of the year exceeds [illegible] tons.

Captain Douglas [illegible], Welsh Fusiliers, whose son, an army lieutenant, was recently killed at the front, has been found dead at his residence, Wickham, Hants.

At a fire at Messrs. [illegible] Taylor & Sons, maltsters, Twerton-on-Avon, Bath, damage at between £15,000 and £20,000 was done. Soldiers stationed in Bath helped at the fire.

The last world's crop of wheat, rye and maize shows a surplus over the quantities necessary for consumption, and a deficit for barley and oats, according to official statistics published in Rome.

Owing to the shortage of labor the Kent education authority has suspended the school attendance by-laws, so that children of 12 years may be employed in agricultural work until Michaelmas next.

The Home Secretary has confirmed the order made [illegible] for the Colwyn Bay [illegible] requiring all licensed premises in the division to be closed at 9.30 p.m. The order came into force on Saturday evening week.

The sale of all intoxicating liquors in the hotels and registered clubs at Southport was forbidden by the Southport Licensing Committee on Monday week, before 10.30 in the morning, and after 9 o'clock at night.

"If I am hit I shall regard it as promotion," was a phrase quoted by Bishop Taylor-Smith, Chaplain-General to the forces, at St. Michael's, Cornhill, from a young officer's letter to his sister. "That night he was promoted," added the Bishop.

Mr. Richard Pearson, J. P., a well-known public man of Thirsk, Yorkshire, died on Saturday week.

Ald. William Kendall, J. P., ex-Mayor of Brighton, died there on Monday week in his 79th year.

The death has taken place at Bexleyheath, Kent, of Mr. [illegible] Woodman, at the age of 66. He was an alderman of the City of London, having been elected in 1909.

Professor Tarrida de Marmol, a Spanish revolutionary, and possibly the most noted of political exiles resident in England, has died at [illegible] Park, Essex.

The death has occurred at his Enfield residence of Mr. Bernard Roth, J. P., F.S.A., for many years a well-known surgeon and specialist in Harley street. Mr. Roth was the son-in-law of [illegible] Bright.

The death is announced of Lady St. Davids, which occurred in a London nursing home after a short illness. She married Lord St. Davids, then Mr. John Wynford Philipps, in 1888, and leaves two sons who are in the army.

Sergeant James Hartford Blackmore, a Crimean and Indian Mutiny veteran, has died at Axminster, Devon, aged ninety. He enlisted in the 28th Foot in 1841. In the Mutiny he fought round Lucknow and Cawnpore. After leaving the army in 1871 Sergeant Blackmore was twenty-three years in New Zealand as instructor to the volunteer and militia forces of the colony, with the rank of lieutenant.

A disastrous fire broke out on Tuesday week at the works of Messrs. [illegible] & [illegible], Ltd., Birmingham, pneumatic engineers and Government contractors. The fire was most serious. Several workshops were destroyed, and it is said that 600 machinemen will be thrown out of work. The firm was fully occupied with Government contracts, and it is said that [illegible] will be seriously interfered with.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain has granted the use of Highbury, Birmingham, the residence of his late father, to the military authorities as a hospital. Room will be found for 125 beds. Moor Green Hall, where the late Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's father and mother died and which was the residence of the late Mr. Arthur Chamberlain, is only separated by a narrow lane from Highbury, and is now being used as a convalescent home for wounded. Since Mrs. Chamberlain removed to London, Highbury has been unoccupied.

Mr. William Loudon Mollison, M.A., a Senior Fellow of Clare College, Cambridge, has been elected Master of the college in succession to the late Dr. Edward Atkinson. Mr. Mollison has been a Fellow since 1876, in which year he was 2nd Wrangler and Smith's prizeman.

News has been received by his parents at Dover of the death in action of Second Lieutenant R. J. Croft, 2nd Gloucester Regiment. Mr. Croft was a quartermaster-sergeant in his regiment when he went to the front early in the war. He was awarded a commission for gallantry last December. His younger brother, Sergeant W. J. Croft, Gloucester Regiment, has also been killed in the war.

The Cyfarthfa (Glamorgan) collieries' strike has concluded on an appeal from the Admiralty. The men have returned to work.

In the parish of St. Michael's, Sittingbourne, of which parish the Rev. A. B. Parry Evans, the Bargemen's Bishop, is vicar, the only curate, the organist, sixteen choirmen, and eight bellringers have gone on active service.

Gifts to the number of 1,200 and representing several tons of foodstuffs and luxuries were received by the Duchess of Portland at Queen Mary's Hospital, Southend, on Monday week for wounded British soldiers in the hospital. The gifts included a number of dresses, [illegible] and woollen articles sent by the Queen. Upwards of £500 was received in money. The occasion was a gift day arranged by a hundred people interested in the institution.

Second Lieutenant Walter George Fletcher, assistant classical master of Eton College, has been killed in action. He was born in 1888, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. L. Fletcher. A scholar of Eton, he rowed 7 in the Eton eight and was captain of the school. At Balliol, Oxford, he rowed in the eight. In September he went to the front with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers and was mentioned in despatches in February. His younger brother, Second Lieutenant R. W. Fletcher, R.F.A., fell at Givenchy in October.

BETTY BROWN GETS A NEW RUFFLE GOWN

She Describes Her Gown and Its Ruffles.

I call this my "fluffy" gown, and the blouse ruffles and the shirred girdle give it plenty of fluffiness don't you think?

It's pale pink pussy willow taffeta. The skirt has a decided flare, you see, and the little hand embroidered and much ruffled bolero gives just that smart effect that's so popular this season.—Betty Brown.

Her Alimony Explained.

Miss Curley kept a private school and one morning was interviewing a new pupil.

"What does your father do to earn his living?" the teacher asked the little girl.

"Please, ma'am," was the prompt reply, "he doesn't live with us. My mother supports me."

"Well, then," asked the teacher, "how does your mother earn her living?"

"Why," replied the little girl in an artless manner, "she gets paid for staying away from father."—London Standard.

Literary Note.

"I must confess that I don't understand Henry James. His style is so involved."

"I'll tell you how to go about reading him. First run over a life insurance policy. After that Henry James will seem lucid and clear."—Pittsburg Post.

BETTY BROWN'S NEW SPRING HAT

SHE TELLS ALL ABOUT THE "PERFECT LOVE."

I finally decided on a "flower hat" for spring. Isn't it a dream in black and white?

There's not much to it—it's the trimming that makes it so different. Notice the way the wide white messaline ribbon is drawn through the hearts of the big field daisies and don't overlook the cunning little white roses on the brim—there are four of them, one for each corner.

White chiffon faces the upper side of the brim. It's such a featherweight of a hat and so summery looking I think I'll wear it right up to the Fourth of July.—Betty Brown.

Paderewski Pleads For Stricken Poland

WORLD-FAMED PIANIST TELLS OF AWFUL WOES OF HIS COUNTRYMEN IN WORLD WAR

(By Ignace Paderewski.)

Is it the death agony or only the birth pains? is the question which every Pole throughout the world is asking himself as tragedy follows tragedy in the long martyrdom of our beloved nation. You have only heard the details of Belgium, but I tell you they are as nothing with what has happened in Poland.

The scene of operations in Poland is seven times larger than that of Belgium, and she has had to endure seven times the torture. Remember, the battle of Europe is being fought in the east and in the west, and while the tide of battle has reached a sort of ebb along the frontiers about the frontiers of Alsace and Flanders, the great wave rolls backward and forward from Germany to Russia and break always on Poland.

Our country, in fact, is just as Belgium was called, the cockpit of Europe, and it may now be called the battlefield of the world, if not of civilization.

HUMANITY AT STAKE

I have not come over to London, however, to speak of politics. Besides, there is even above the gigantic issues involved the [illegible] element of a common humanity in the name of which our committee is appealing to every neutral and all the allies alike. The whole world stands aghast and impotent before Poland, all amazed that it is at once the victim and the culprit.

It is only perhaps we Poles who have known to its utmost depths what this war has really meant. It is not only that there are [illegible] human beings on the verge of starvation, nay, actually perishing there. It is more than that.

Remember that both Galicia and Poland are still under the yoke. The Russians, it is true, occupy some 17,000 miles of our country, but this is really nothing, for the Germans occupy two-thirds of it, and the desolation passes all comprehension.

As to actual battles, I can hardly speak of them. It is torture even to think of them. Only consider! Our one nation is divided, as it were, into three sections, which were thrust each against the others to work out their destruction. It is fratricide! It is fratricide, nay, suicide! Compulsory suicide! That is what it is.

Listen to what it means to us all. I was told by a man from Austria that an army doctor, a Pole by birth, who was deputed to go over the battlefields and verify identification marks on the bodies found among the 11,000 dead hardly anybody but Polish names. He looked in vain for any others and at the end went mad with horror at the thought of it.

POLES CHARGE EACH OTHER.

Another story that came to me the other day told of another case of the tragedy of Poland which is almost too terrible for the human mind to contain. The incident took place during a charge, both armies had been ordered to attack, and the Poles, as usual, were in the front line.

One man, when as he was piercing through with a bayonet, cried out in his death agony: "Jesu Maria! I have five children! Jesu Maria!" The words went straight to the brain of the conqueror as a dagger to the heart and killed his reason.

Somewhere among the madhouses of Europe there is a lunatic. He is not violent, but he never laughs. He only wanders about with the words of his dying victim, "Ah, Jesu Maria! I have five children, Jesu Maria!"

Again, in the fierce battle [illegible] during an interval which had been agreed upon by both sides for a momentary armistice to bury their dead and attend to their wounded, the doctors from either side first of all advanced and exchanged cards. Every slip of [illegible] bore a Polish name, while the feeling that rose silently through each breast was the same: Can Poland survive, Gratitude to Russia? Is it the death agony or is it but the birth pains? To-day, [illegible]? I only know the present, and unless that present is saved the future is lost.

PLEA FOR COUNTRYMEN.

[illegible] I have come, no longer to [illegible] the other but to beg for my countrymen. I speak not of art but of human life, and it is this that I plead for.

The promise of Grand Duke Nicholas that Poland ought to be a nation once again went straight to the very heart of every one of our [illegible] fellow countrymen. That one promise has been sufficient to change the whole mentality of the nation and fill their souls with new hope.

It has [illegible] that [illegible] in the minds of the [illegible] and Prussia [illegible] that the allies are fighting for [illegible], the principles of nationality [illegible]

The [illegible] stands out prominently above everything else to-day. [illegible] and [illegible] the Russians in Poland. [illegible] of pity for all that [illegible] every Polish heart [illegible]

SAVE POLES FROM STARVATION

I do not wish to touch on politics. [illegible] all I want is that the thousands who are dying of hunger should be saved, and that is the main object of our committee, which, I must mention incidentally, is the first representative body in the full sense of the word which has [illegible] the partition of Poland, and with headquarters at Geneva.

It comprises Austrian Poles, Russian Poles, Prussian Poles, as well as Catholics, Protestants and Jews, all working for the same great humanitarian cause.

[illegible] by the authorities that all sums of money and foodstuffs sent to us for that purpose will be scrupulously applied to the relief of the Poles.

It is at once a work of pity and [illegible] the whole world [illegible]. The only question will be [illegible] will the help come too late?

It is in the great name of a common humanity that I would make an appeal to the country which has been so generous to me in the past—the United States. It will not, I feel sure, be unheeded. I plead on behalf of the future of my race.

BALDNESS.

A Treatise is a Humorous Vein On a Bare Subject.

Baldness is a lack of perseverance on the part of the hair.

Man is born to adversity, grows up in trouble, survives colic, teething, [illegible] and safety pins in his infancy, endures education and football, keeps up under matrimony, is afflicted by politics, his business, [illegible], golf, balloons, debts, tooth ache, [illegible], November, [illegible], rheumatism, [illegible] and bills. Yet at 50 he is bald and [illegible] his hair, which had stood by him [illegible] years, [illegible] withdrawn years before.

Misfortune is a great critic in all cases, but never more so than in the case of hair. When a man has hung on in this severe and exhausting life for 50 years, accompanied by his faithful and unterrified hair, he is justified in speaking of the latter in terms of warmest admiration, even if it is tomato-colored.

When a man's hair quits the job his smooth and well-polished dome of an intelligence rises more or less grandly above the ears, thus enabling the public to discuss his cranial architecture. Nothing is more impressive than a broad and massive [illegible] receding grandly backward from the eyes to the rear collar button. John Quincy Adams was twice as charming with his flushed and defiant two-acre forehead as he would have been with a crop of sorrel hair, with pompadour. William J. Bryan's forehead, rising magnificently into the zenith like the white summit of Chimborazo, is eloquent even when his tongue is temporarily closed for repairs. But sometimes the hair retreats from a head which is knobby in the wrong places and no more impressive and draped than an ostrich egg, little end up. In this case a man may be pardoned for speaking bitterly of his late hair and cursing its chicken-hearted desertion in retreating in mid-battle.

Baldness is treated lightly by those who have copper-fastened hair, clinched on the inside, and the baldheaded man has to endure a great many jokes from the public. He also has to accept unheated sympathy from his barber. It is hard to tell which is the more painful. Elijah was the only baldheaded man who ever got even with his scoffers. If a baldheaded man [illegible] we will find it difficult to [illegible] backing up bears. [illegible] here in the same case.

Several thousand cures for baldness have been invented, but only one so far is effective. This is resignation. Baldness is not painful and is even ornamental when the hair retreats in an orderly manner from the front, instead of sneaking out from behind a derby hat. However, the hair should be unanimous when it leaves. It is hard to admire 20 faithful hairs carefully parted in the middle of an acre of forehead.

Women very seldom become bald. This is presumably because they wear long hair and brush it from one hour and three-quarters each day. Any man may save his hair by treating it in this way. But outside of Buffalo Bill, who wears his long for revenue only, man has fatalistically chosen the lesser evil.

Fresh vs. Stale Fish.

Fresh fish is an exceedingly perishable food product. Even when considerable care has been taken by the packers and dealers, such fish will frequently deteriorate rapidly.

It has been scientifically demonstrated that the toxic or poisonous ferments formed in decomposing fish greatly exceed those produced in the flesh of warm-blooded animals. Further, these are usually most dangerous in the early stages of decomposition. Consequently the need for extra precautions in the selection of fresh fish is plain. The following points are worth remembering when purchasing fish.

Dead fish are unfit for food.

1. When the eyes have lost their clear and have become cloudy.
2. When the red gills have become pale.
3. When the flesh has become soft so as to pit if pressed with the finger.
4. When the scales are easily loosened.

Obviously all these tests cannot be applied to all fish that are offered for sale in the market stalls, but some of them can, and the householder would do well to apply them before purchasing fish.—A. D.

DON'T GIVE

CONSUMPTION A CHANCE

To Get a Foothold on Your System.

Check the First Sign of a Cold By Using

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

A cold, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise you that on the first sign of a cold or cough you get rid of it immediately. For this purpose we know of nothing better than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and those who have used it have nothing but words of praise for its efficacy.

Mrs. H. N. Gill, Truro, N.S., writes: "Last January, 1914, I developed an awful cold, and it hung on to me for so long I was afraid it would turn into consumption. I would go to bed nights, and could not sleep or rest at all for the choking [illegible] in my throat and lungs, and sometimes I would cough till I would turn black in the face. A friend came to see me, and told me of your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got a bottle of it, and after I had taken it I could see a great change for the better, so I got another, and when I had taken the two bottles my cough was all gone, and I have never had an attack of it since, and that is now a year ago."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; and price, 25c and 50c.

It is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NERVES WERE BAD

Hands Would Tremble So She Could Not Hold Paper to Read.

When the nerves become shaky the whole system seems to become unstrung and a general feeling of collapse occurs, as the heart works in sympathy with the nerves.

Mrs. Wm. Weaver, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I doctored for a year for my heart and nerves, with three different doctors, but they did not seem to know what was the matter with me. My nerves got so bad at last that I could not hold a paper in my hand to read, the way they trembled. I gave up doctoring thinking I could not get better. A lady living a few doors from me advised me to try a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so to please her I did, and I am thankful to-day for doing so, for I am strong, and doing my own work without help."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CROP OUTLOOK FOR ONTARIO

No Cause for Anxiety as to Main Wheat Crop.

Live Stock Came Through Winter Well.

The following information regarding agricultural conditions in this Province is contained in a bulletin prepared by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, based upon information furnished by a large staff of correspondents under date of April 1st.

WINTERING CROPS.

Fall Wheat.—Reports of correspondents in November described the new fall wheat as being most promising. There being a good growth and a much [illegible] area. The fields were well protected by snow until the middle of March, when in many sections they became comparatively bare, and suffered more or less from alternate thawing and freezing, cold winds, etc., causing some heaving and considerable browning at the top. The hope was entertained, however, that warm rains and good growing weather later on would revive these more backward fields, as the tops only seemed affected. Late sown fields are the least promising. At present there is no cause for anxiety as to the condition of the main crop.

Clover.—Clover did not make a good catch last year, especially in the eastern portion of the Province, owing to the unusually dry summer, and as a consequence new fields were not so well prepared for the trying open spring weather. More or less heaving has occurred in every district, and while a number of correspondents report fields as giving good promise, the prospects of the crop, taken as a whole, are not so encouraging as might be desired. However, favorable spring weather may yet put a brighter face on the situation.

Rye.—Rye appears to have to come better through the winter than either wheat or clover, and gives promise of being a good crop.

ORCHARDS AND SMALL FRUITS.

Fruit trees so far have not suffered much from the winter, especially where care has been given the orchards. A few complaints have been made of injury to peach buds in some localities in south-western Ontario, but so far the peach orchards of the Niagara Peninsula have been practically unscathed from this cause. Several reports were made of girdling of young fruit trees by rabbits and mice, more especially in the County of York. Fruit bushes have come through the winter in good shape, but some correspondents speak of injury to strawberries from severe open weather in March, where not mulched.

LIVE STOCK.

The wintering of live stock, owing to the light hay crop and the poor autumn pastures of last year, depended largely upon ensilage, straw, roots and other roughage, of which, happily, there was more than the high prices prevailing during the winter.

Horses.—As a class horses have come through in generally good shape, although a number of minor cases of distemper have been reported. Working horses particularly are said to be in excellent fettle, although perhaps not so heavy as usual, as owners have in most cases been sparing with feed.

Cattle.—Cattle also have come through the winter in fair condition generally, but somewhat thinner than might be desired, owing to the high prices of grains and mill feeds. All ailments have been of local nature, no serious outbreak of disease being reported. It is stated that farmers are holding on to their cows in the dairy counties owing to the good prospects for cheese, and that more calves are being retained than formerly.

Sheep.—Sheep have been wintered better than any other class of live stock. They are doing well, and lambs are coming strong.

Swine.—Hogs have been kept thinner than usual, but it is said that they have suffered less from crippling than for several years past. A few spring pigs have died, but no serious disease is at present affecting swine.

Fodder Supplies.—The fodder supply at the present time is largely a matter of local or individual experience. Hay and straw, where not too freely sold at tempting prices, will be sufficient in most cases, and there will also be enough coarse grains on hand to meet requirements. Progressive farmers have an ample supply of roots for all needs, while the excellent crop of corn last year ensures an abundance of either ensilage or dry fodder. In this connection a correspondent tersely remarks: "Ensilage solves the feed problem."

INCREASED PRODUCTION.

Correspondents are not unanimous regarding the response to the call for a larger production. A few are outspoken against the movement, fearing over-production with a lowering of prices, but the great majority of those reporting heartily endorse the patriotism and production idea, and it is certain that there will be a substantial gain in the quantity of most of the commodities raised this year on Ontario farms.

Fall wheat already shows a decidedly increased area. More fall plowing than usual was done, much of it with old sod, and while this may mean an increase of grain (especially of oats), and of corn or roots, it will also mean to some extent less pasture. In the cheese districts a smaller acreage will be devoted to supplying the factories and more attention will be given to raising general farm crops. The cheese season will be earlier than usual, and this will require an increased production of milk and consequently a greater consumption of fodder.

One drawback to farm crop development is the lack of competent labor; for while help is offering fairly freely it often lacks quality.

Dancing as an Art.

"As a pastime dancing is capable of becoming the most potent influence in favor of national health and beauty that America ever had," declares Troy Kinney in the Century. "As an art it is a vehicle not one shade less eloquent than painting, music, drama or literature. Ballet pantomime, in fact, employs [illegible] of these, [illegible] to fine harmony [illegible] its message of [illegible]. It becomes an obligation to consider means by which the present magnificent beginnings of a national choreography may be conserved."

The Housekeeper

Fine ginghams and percales will emerge from the tub with gloss and dressing of new material if dipped in sweet milk instead of starch.

Roast turkey left from dinner makes delicious salad, mixed with celery seasoned with capers and dressed with mayonnaise. The usual directions call for equal parts of meat and celery, but there is no hard and fast rule. The amount of the meat on hand and the taste of the family are strong considerations.

The meat from roast fowl of any kind makes a delicious souffle. An old rule calls for two cupfuls of meat chopped fine, a cupful of bread crumbs, a cupful of white sauce beaten creamy and added to the mixture and the whites beaten stiff, folded in at the last minute. Bake about 15 or 20 minutes and send directly from the oven to the table.

To [illegible] kitchen knives nicely, mix a little bicarbonate of soda with the brick dust, and rub them thoroughly.

When a roast is small it is best to start it on top of the stove. Heat the pan very hot, put the roast in and turn it frequently. The quick searing holds the juices.

Heat your plates before putting hot pies on them when first taken from the oven, says an exchange. The hot pies on cold plates cause a sweat that makes soggy under crust.

If when preparing carrots they are boiled briskly five minutes then put under the faucet and cold water run on them a minute, the skins will slip off as do those of boiled beets. Then they can be cooked in the usual way. This does away with the task of scraping them.

A GOOD MEDICING FOR THE SPRING

Do Not Use Harsh Purgatives—A Tonic is All You Need.

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That is the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fickle, sometimes headaches, and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Do not dose yourself with purgatives, as so many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. What you need in spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every dose of this medicine makes new blood, which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite and makes tired, depressed men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. S. E. Stephens, Ponoka, Alta., says: "I suffered severely from headaches, and was badly run down in health. I had tried several remedies, with no benefit, until I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these have fully restored my health, and I can recommend them with confidence to all weak women."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

APPEALS TO THE FARMERS

Our country, with its allies, is waging a great war for justice, for the protection of small nations in the employment of their rights, for continued and growing freedom, and for the maintenance of its pledged word of honor. Much destruction and desolation are being caused. Lives are being lost by the thousand. Canada's first contingent is now in the thick of it. Some will fall sick; many will be wounded, some will pay the last full measure of devotion to their country and its cause.

The Red Cross Society exists to succor the sick and wounded in war. It needs more money to provide more beds and hospitals in Great Britain and France; it needs more money to pay more Red Cross nurses, it needs more money, and more things made by women to supply to Clearing Hospitals, Base Hospitals and Recovering Hospitals.

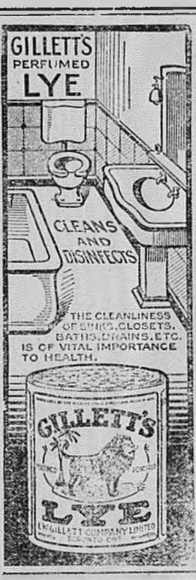
I appeal to farmers to send me sums from $1 to $50, during the first week in May. Every $50 provides one additional hospital bed with the giver's name over it. By sending me about $10,000, you would serve your country well, bring credit to yourselves, and make us all very proud of you. For the sake of the wounded boys, make the gift substantial. It will be an investment towards the recovery of some Canadian soldier who stood in our stead that our cause might be upheld.

Faithfully your friend, James W. Robertson, Chairman, Red Cross Society of Ottawa.

War and Aeroplanes.

The art of war has been robbed by the aeroplane of the element of surprise which afforded Napoleon ong[illegible] opportunity for the display of his genius. His object was to discover the weak spot in the enemy's lines and, having discovered it, to hurl upon it all the forces of his command. The success depended upon the speed and [illegible] with which the great blow could be struck. A premature revelation would have spoiled all. But a coup of the sort is no longer possible, for a movement on the one side is met instantly by a manoeuvre on the other. War now consists of a series of parallel movements; its art has vanished [illegible] would be scarcely an exaggeration to say that it does not exist. The two armies form minor [illegible] the powers in the preliminary [illegible] of a fight. They [illegible] each other at a disadvantage, and [illegible] is practically all the art of it.—London Times.

Ofttimes many things fall out between the cup and lip.—Greene.



GILLETT'S PERFUMED LYE
CLEANS AND DISINFECTS
THE CLEANLINESS OF SINKS, CLOSETS, BATHS, DRAINS, ETC. IS OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO HEALTH.
GILLETT'S LYE
E.W.GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED TORONTO ONT.

THE POULTRY WORLD

EGG SELECTION FOR INCUBATION

(By M. A. Jull, in Frank Farm and Home.)

Eggs to be incubated should be selected with care. Not all eggs will produce chicks. On the other hand, there are many fertile eggs which [illegible] chicks but the chicks [illegible] for rearing. [illegible]

If the germs are naturally weak, the most careful attention during the incubation of the eggs and the brooding of the chicks will not make up for the lack [illegible] poor hatches and weak chicks.

[illegible]

A careful selection should be made of the eggs laid by the breeding stock. Small eggs produce small chicks, so these should not be incubated. An egg uneven in shape is not suitable for the [illegible] should be discarded. All of these undesirable eggs can be detected by their external appearance.

However, an examination of the external appearance only of the egg is not sufficient. An egg may appear to be all right but, when the contents of the egg are examined, it may be found to be worthless for incubation.

[illegible] in a slight ringing sound [illegible]

[illegible]

An egg with a "blood spot" is not satisfactory. [illegible]

[illegible]

For all practical purposes the eggs that [illegible] hatch well.

Eggs kept for hatching should not be [illegible] temperature in which to keep eggs for incubation is from 50 deg. to 60 deg. Fahrenheit. It is well to turn the eggs occasionally.

Poultrymen would save a great deal if they would test their eggs before setting them under a hen or in an incubator, and take out all eggs which would not at once cool chicks. Every egg which does not produce a chick is a loss.

It is not inferred, however, that infertile eggs may be selected out of those to be incubated. [illegible]

KEEP YOUNG AND OLD BIRDS SEPARATE.

A good many people who might otherwise be very successful with poultry have their profit decreased because they allow the young and the old stock to remain unchecked in the same house, or yard, or both. During the growing season the young stock needs a great deal of food and needs to be protected from the old ones, which if allowed to do so, will abuse them more or less. [illegible] yards and always keep the young in a separate building, if possible, or in a separate room at least. Pullets getting ready to lay need more feed as a rule than hens which have finished our work, because the pullets need to finish their growth and maturity as well as make eggs. This is another reason why the young and the old should be kept separate.

The ten leading pens to date are as follows:—

Ed Cam, Hoghton [illegible] Preston, England, White Wyandottes	415
Hillview Poultry Farm, St. Albans, Vt., Rhode Island Reds	673
Tom Barron, Catforth, near Preston, England, White Wyandottes	605
Merritt M. Clark, Brookfield Centre, Conn., Barred Rocks	533
A. P. Robinson, Calverton, N. Y., White Leghorns	571
Pinecrest Orchards, Groton, Mass., Rhode Island Reds	545
Frank L. Tuttle, Southboro, Mass., Barred Rocks	541
Colonial Farm, Temple, N. H., Rhode Island Reds	531
Springdale Poultry Farm, Durham, Conn., Rhode Island Reds	528
Storrs Station (Experimental Pen) Rhode Island Reds	518

THE FARMERS AND THE RED CROSS SOCIETY

We publish to-day an appeal on behalf of the Red Cross Society, by Dr. James W. Robertson.

Dr. Robertson is still best known to the farmers of Canada as Professor Robertson. He began his official public service at the Ontario Agricultural College nearly thirty years ago. Twenty-five years ago he went to Ottawa as Dairy Commissioner for the Dominion. The Dairying Service of the Department of Agriculture soon became known and trusted throughout Canada. From Prince Edward Island to Alberta, farmers profited by the Illustration Dairy Stations and the Travelling Instructors. The output of cheese and butter in Canada added to the reputation of its rural workers.

Other public services of continuing and growing value were inaugurated, while Professor Robertson was Commissioner of Agriculture. Among them were the Live Stock Branch, the Cold Storage Service, the Seed Grain Competitions, Trial Shipments of Fruit to the United Kingdom and Extension of Markets.

Besides these [illegible] the Manual Training Movement, the School Gardens, Household Science, and the Consolidated Rural Schools.

In more recent years, Dr. Robertson was chairman of the Royal Commission on Industrial Training and Technical Education. Farmers in all provinces are familiar with the Survey of Farms by the Commission of Conservation and the Illustration Farms of the Committee on Lands, of which he is chairman.

In these and many other ways, Dr. Robertson has given the farmers of Canada the best that was in him. He says he is their debtor, for many opportunities, for much kindness and for warm [illegible] But they are his debtors too. And he now reminds them of it for the first time in order to establish his right and privilege to appeal to them for this worthy cause.

A Declining Art.

"Don't you want your boy, Joel, to be a good speller?" asked the school teacher.

"I dunno," replied Farmer Corntossel. "About all the letters a good speller gets nowadays is bein' called on occasionally to [illegible] a bet."—Washington Star.

Suffered For More Than Two Years

Then Joseph Gagne Found a Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Quebec Man Took His Wife's Advice And is Now Enjoying a New Lease of Health.

Ste Marguerite Dau Mills, Temiscouata Co., Que., April 23 (Special).—"Yes, you can tell the public of the great relief I got from Dodd's Kidney Pills." The speaker was Mr. Joseph Gagne, a well-known resident of this place, and he has every reason to be enthusiastic over the great Canadian remedy.

"For more than two years I suffered from Kidney Disease," Mr. Gagne continued. "It finally developed into pleurisy and I was a very sick man when my wife persuaded me to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial.

"I took just three boxes and they made me well."

Dodd's Kidney Pills make their users enthusiastic because they not only cure the particular ailment aimed at but they spread good health all over the body. They do this by curing the Kidneys. Cured Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. That means pure blood and new health all over the body.

A Pretty Experiment.

How quickly the body eliminates waste matter may be seen by the following simple and pretty experiment.

Eat a tablet of lithium citrate. Then take a clean platinum wire, hold it in a colorless flame of a Bunsen burner and note that it gives no coloration to the flame. Now cool the wire and pass it along the skin of the forehead, or after rinsing the hand in distilled water draw the wire across the palm and again hold it to the colorless Bunsen flame. Note the beautiful yellow color, due to the presence of the sodium. Next take blue glass and observe the yellow flame through this. The cobalt glass absorbs the yellow sodium rays, and the lilac flame of potassium now shows. About a half hour after taking the lithia tablet make the same test as above with a clean platinum wire. The vivid red flame of lithium is now obtained. In one short half hour the lithium entering at the mouth has been absorbed into the blood and carried to all parts of the body and is being excreted through the skin.—New York World.

The sailing traffic of the world was at its height in 1868, when it reached 14,660,000 tons. In 1912 it was a little more than 983 tons.

RUB YOUR STIFF NECK AWAY TO-DAY—GOOD OLD "NERVILINE" WILL CURE

Fifteen Minutes After Using Nerviline You Are Well.

Cold, excessive strain and exertion are common causes of stiff neck, soreness or inflammation.

Generally the trouble is so deeply seated that only a liniment as powerful and penetrating as Nerviline will effect an immediate removal of pain.

Nerviline is powerful, yet penetrating, is the very finest pain-expelling [illegible]

Millions have proved its reliability, and millions will share the relief its curative properties confer upon suffering people.

Nerviline is sold upon a positive guarantee that is more prompt, more powerful, penetrating and pain-expelling than any other remedy.

If you have failed to obtain relief for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica or lumbago, try Nerviline, ideal for small pains, the surest to drive out the big ones.

Nerviline is guaranteed to quickly cure any pain or soreness in the joints, and is sold by druggists everywhere. Large size, 50 cents; trial size, 25 cents, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Redpath SUGAR

The inherited preference

for Redpath Sugar that exists in so many thousands of Canadian homes to-day, is based on genuine satisfaction for three generations. Satisfaction first with "Ye Olde Sugar Loafe", made in Canada by John Redpath 60 years ago—then with Canada's first Granulated Sugar, made by the Redpath Refinery in 1880—now with the modern 2 lb. and 5 lb. Sealed Cartons of Redpath Extra Granulated—

"Canada's favorite sugar, at its best" 121

Get Redpath Sugar in original packages—then you are sure of the genuine!

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO. LIMITED, MONTREAL.

FARM AND GARDEN

BRAINS AND EARLY CROPS.

[illegible]

[illegible] cultural nature [illegible]

[illegible] with peach canker are also prevented.

ONTARIO VEGETABLE GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

The tenth annual report of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association is now being sent out by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. War conditions, [illegible] closing of many European [illegible] the question of [illegible] of unusual importance [illegible] from [illegible] Canadian [illegible] given [illegible] The [illegible] selection of improved [illegible] dealt with, [illegible] and selling are [illegible]

NOTE.

[illegible]

[illegible] taken from such milk is sure to be more or less affected.

Excessive fat in a young pig invites demoralization of its physical condition, destroys the natural tendency toward constitutional vigor, checks growth and induces a condition that no after treatment can correct.

Do not set strawberries too deep. The roots should be well spread out and the plants set no deeper than they originally grew in the field.

Breeding and feeding are not all. Watch the market and plan to finish the hogs at a time when they will not find a glutted market.

In formulating a ration due regard should be had to the palatability. A cow will give better returns if she relishes her food. It stimulates the appetite and aids digestion.

A good many farm folks look upon dairying as drudgery, but where this is the case it is so because people have made it so, not because of necessity.

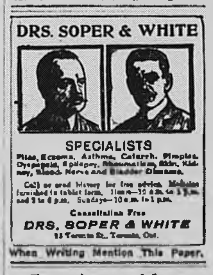
Sheep that are being fattened ought to have a ration of oil meal every other day. It prevents indigestion and is beneficial in other ways.

All garden makers should plant at least some beets for winter use. The soil should be fine and well prepared and handled in such a way as to have sufficient moisture for the germination of the seeds.

Frequent stirring of ripening cream will make better flavored butter, as it causes the cream to ripen more evenly.

In a ton, oat straw contains 7.2 lbs. of nitrogen, 2.1 pounds of phosphorus and 22 pounds of potassium; barley straw contains 12.8 pounds of nitrogen, 1.6 pounds of phosphorus and 17.6 pounds of potassium, and clover straw contains 21 pounds of nitrogen, 2.8 pounds of phosphorus and 16.6 pounds of potassium. So far as the effect on the fertilizer value of the manure is concerned, we would regard clover as nearly twice as valuable as either oat or barley straw. Ton for ton, all of the straws contain more plant food than manure. But since they do not decay as quickly, they do not produce such good results the first year or two after application.

Either beans or potatoes make an excellent crop to grow in the young orchard, and the thorough cultivation they receive furnishes the best possible condition for the growing trees.



DRS. SOPER & WHITE

SPECIALISTS

Piles, Eczema, Asthma, Catarrh, Pimples, Dyspepsia, Epilepsy, Rheumatism, Skin, Kidney, Blood, Nerve and Bladder Diseases.

Call or send history for free advice. Medicine furnished in tablet form. Hours—10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 6 p.m. Sundays—10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Consultation Free

DRS. SOPER & WHITE
25 Toronto St., Toronto, Ont.

When Writing Mention This Paper.

Chrysanthemums of Japan.

Although the chrysanthemum has reached its highest form of development in Japan, and is still reverenced as the imperial emblem, it was taken to Japan from China, where it has been brought to its highest state of cultivation. At the imperial chrysanthemum party given by His Majesty the Emperor of Japan in November every year one sees the most marvelous blossoms known to the floriculturist. The number of blossoms from one root is amazing. In one case no less than 700 flowers were seen growing from one plant. The festival of the chrysanthemum dates back to the Heian era, when the great ones of the empire used to call at the imperial palace and drink to the health of the imperial house from sake cups in which floated petals of the beautiful flowers.

Barns at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Painted with MARTIN-SENOUR PAINT

FARMERS

You'll Find Just What You Want For Spring Painting, In

MARTIN-SENOUR PAINTS AND VARNISHES

"MADE IN CANADA"

Your needs have been foreseen. Dealers in your neighborhood have been supplied with the Martin-Senour line. And you have only to name your Painting Wants, to have them promptly filled.

HOUSE PAINT—Why should you waste money on impure paint, or bother with mixing lead and oil, when you can get Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint for all outside and inside painting? Always the same in quality, color, fineness and purity.

FLOOR PAINT—There's only one to be considered—the old reliable SENOUR'S Floor Paint—the kind that wears, and wears, and wears.

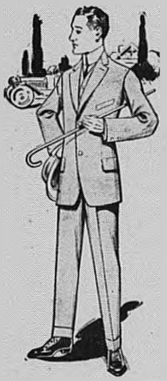
BARN PAINT — Martin-Senour "RED SCHOOL HOUSE" is the paint for the barn. It spreads easily—covers more surface—and holds its fresh, bright color against wear and weather.

WAGON PAINT — Keep the machines, wagons and tools fresh and bright — and protect them against rust and weather—by giving them a coat or two of Martin-Senour "Wagon and Implement" Paint.

Write us today for "Farmer's Color Set" and name of our nearest dealer-agent.

ADDRESS ALL ENQUIRIES TO
The MARTIN-SENOUR Co. LIMITED
655 Drolet Street, Montreal. 74

Men's Smartly Tailored Suits.



Tailored in Smartest 3 button Sacque style. The materials are smooth finished Tweeds and dressy Worsteds in small neat checks and some fancy mixtures. Colors grey, blues, fawn and brown shades.

The cut of the coat, vest and trousers are strictly new and they're finished and tailored to perfection.

Prices $10.00, $12.00, $13.50, & $14.50.

MEN'S SPRING & SUMMER COLLARS

We are showing the newest Arrow Collar which promises to become a big favorite during the coming summer, the Randor, also the Devon, another favorite.

Wash Ties and Silk Ties,

in the newest novelties of color and shape at 50c.

YOUNG MEN'S SOFT HATS.

High tapering crown in Telescope and new fedora style. Wide silk band with rear bow. Colors Navy, brown and grey. Very dressy hats and especially suitable for young men.

Worth $2.00 & $2.25. Market to sell at $1.50 & $1.75

Women's Suits and Coats

At $5.00, $6.00, $8.50 & $10.00.

We offer some very extra values and pretty styles in Women's and Misses Spring Coats in Wool Ratines Covert Cloths and Fancy Checked Tweeds. Empire and Military styles in Blue, Sand, Putty and fancy tweed mixtures.

The styles are very attractive the coats are servicable and the very latest word in fashion.

WOMEN'S SERGE SUITS

Were $13.50 to $16.50. Navy Serge Suits for Women, strictly tailored. Coats silk-lined. Sizes 34 to 42. A special bargain at $9.95.

Fancy Crash Suitings—In Black and White Tartan effects with blue and brown over-checks. Price per yd. 40c.

Fancy Crepes—With beautiful rose bud patterns on ground of Tuscan, Sky, Rose, Helio, Grey and Pink. Price per yd. 15c.

DAINTY WASH FABRICS.

With loveliest floral patterns. Particularly attractive lines now on display in our wash goods section.

Japanese Crepes—Resembles raw silk and very much in demand this season. Colors Pink, Helio, Sky, Cream and White. Price per yard 25c.

Marquisettes and Voiles—In Tuscan, Belgian Blue, Rose and White shades. Price per yard 40c.

STEPHAN BROS.

WALL papers that have an individual style—that are new and pleasing—the kind that are different and supply a range of color from the soft delicate pastel colors in dainty florals to the richly colored bold conventional designs—cut-out and panel decorations that are removed from the ordinary are at your service.

There's an interesting booklet showing beautiful interiors decorated with new 1915 wall papers that is yours for the asking.

G. T. STEAD

TWO DOORS EAST OF POST OFFICE

PINKERTON

The exceptional warm weather has allowed the farmers in this vicinity to rush the seeding. The acreage has been considerably increased.

In sending in the correspondence some time ago, your correspondent neglected to state that the Belgian Relief Committee of this village had received a receipt from Mr. Hector Prud'homme, the Belgian Consul, for $90.00, this being the proceeds of a box social held in the village.

An effort is being made by some of the ladies in this vicinity to increase the supply of socks and other necessaries to the soldiers at the front. These things will be needed as long as the war lasts and while it is a busy season for farmer folk it should be possible to give a few of the boys in trenches the luxury of a new pair of socks.

Rev. George Mason of Harriston, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church here, was in the village on Thursday of last week.

Mr. James Gale of Queen's University is visiting his parents at the manse.

Miss Jessie Murray of Paisley is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Murray.

We are informed that the hotel here has been licensed by the centre Bruce Commissioners and it looks as though we are to have what Premier Asquith calls the Empire's greatest enemy placed within easy reach. Following out the British statesmans reasoning we would arrive at the conclusion that those endeavouring to increase the consumption of liquor are on par with the Germans and Turks.

FORMOSA

The gardens were a lively place the past two weeks.

If the weather keeps nice, seeding will be finished in two weeks.

J. D. Schumacher is still in Waterloo on business.

Married, on Tuesday, Miss Johanna daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamel to Mr. Leo Steffler, in Culross.

Mr. R. Truax, M. P. came to town on Sunday with his auto.

Last Sunday was a record day for automobiles in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kreitzwiser of Culross spent last Sunday with relatives here.

Died last week, on Thursday, Mrs. Anthony Steffler in Carrick, aged 57 years 5 months. The remains were interred here on Saturday.

Died, last Thursday night after 8 hours of illness, Mrs. Jul. Noll aged 20 years 11 months. The remains were interred here last Sunday morning.

Geo. Lambert of Teeswater was here last Saturday.

Fred Schmuck who has been laid up for 3 months is able to do some work again.

Mr. and Mrs. John Oehring of Hanover visited their relatives here, the week-end.

Mr. Matthew Goetz and Andrew Oberle of Walkerton were here on business last Saturday.

The youngsters are now out barefooted and say it is fine.

WESTFORD

Mr. and Mrs. J Linehan and family of Windsor were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Murray last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGlynn attended the Cassidy and Lippert wedding on Wednesday last.

Miss Merat Armstrong visited at Miss Edna Haldenby's last week for a few days.

Miss Margaret Murray has gone to spend a few months in Toronto with friends there.

Mr. William whytock of tenth concession called on friends here last week.

Mr. William Wall and Mr Walter Stanley visited at the former's father Mr Edward Wall on Sunday.

Mr. Edward Percy and family of near Kinlough have moved to Kincardine.

Mr. James H. Murray left for Collingwood last week where he will enter as purser on the S. S. City of Midland for the coming term.

An old pioneer of this section of the township of Culross passed away on Saturday April 17th., in the person of Mr. Peter Ruth. The funeral was largely attended and a great number from a distance was present. Some of them being Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ruth and Leo Ruth of Hepworth, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ruth of Formosa and also his nephew Jacob, Jos. and Lambert Ruth of Elmira and also Miss Emma Schaffnuch of Berlin. We all extend our greatest sympathy to those bereaved.

Paisley Man Hit.

Word was received at Paisley on Friday last, that Private John McLeod a former Paisley resident was wounded while fighting in the trenches in France. McLeod was a member of the Princess Patricias Regiment.

Fall Wheat Doing Well.

From all points reports on fall wheat indicate the best showing in the past five years. Practically no patchy spots or winter-killed exist. The weather is dry but the ground is not suffering for moisture. Seeding is advancing rapidly with great increased acreage.

King Proud of Canucks.

The message from His Majesty the King to the Duke of Connaught, congratulating Canada on the behavior of her troops reads: "His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Ottawa. 'Congratulate you most warmly on the splendid and gallant way in which the Canadian division has fought during the last two days north of Ypres. Sir John French says that their conduct was magnificent throughout. "The Dominion will be justly proud. (Signed) "George."

Murder at Goderich.

While driving home from a neighbors Robert Bean, a respected farmer of Colborne township, was murdered last night about 11 o'clock. Passing a farm belonging to Col. Varcoe, he was stopped by some one with whom he had some words. Afterwards two gunshots were heard, but no attention was paid to them. Very shortly after the dead body of Bean was found lying on the road, his horse having run away and thrown him out of the rig. The gunshot wound was in his breast. No trace has been found of the murderer and there is no clue.

34th. to Go Under Canvas.

It was for some time thought that the 34th battalion which has been training at Guelph would soon be sent to Valcartier, but the following despatch from Guelph would indicate that the men of the 34th, are to go under canvas at Guelph and remain there for some time at least.

"Lieut. Col. L. W. Shannon, officer commanding the first divisional area, accompanied by Lieut. Col. H. H. Smith, chief staff officer, paid a visit to this city today for the purpose of looking over camping ground for the 34th. battalion. Col. Shannon was met by the civic officials and Col. Oliver, O. C. the quartermaster, and the party motored out to inspect 100 acres located on the outskirts of the city, owned by the Guelph Realty Co. which has been chosen. The ground is well drained, and with city water and electric light very convenient. Col. Shannon reviewed the 34th. battalion while here.

More Canucks for the Front.

The important announcement was made Monday by Major General Hughes that the third and fourth Canadian contingents will be mobilized at the earliest possible moment. The troops now training at different divisional points in the various provinces will now proceed to camps for additional training as follows: Nova Scotia Aldershot, New Brunswick—Sussex, Quebec—Valcartier' Ontario—Kingston, Niagara Falls and London. Manitoba and Saskatchewan at Sewell; Alberta and British Columbia—cavalry at Calgary; British Columbia troops other than cavalry at Schiedam camp north of Kamloops.

Headed for Canada.

Headed for the Atlantic coast of Canada is a German squadron bent on bombarding important cities and fortification there, according to a letter received to-day by Captain Carl Brauch, master of the German bark Dalbek, interned at Portland Oregon since July 28, from a friend who is a deck officer of the German navy.

"Eight days before the German fleet bombarded Scarborough Hartlepool and other ports, I received a letter from the same friend, telling me that the German fleet would strike for the British coast and I trought that statement was laughable," said Captain Brauch. "Since it came to pass, I am convinced that the move of the squadron to the Canadian coast may not be a myth." The letter has been on the way since March 24.

Walkerton Markets

Hay	per	ton	$16.00	to.......	$17.00
Oats	"	bsh.	60	".......	60
Wheat	"	"	1.10	to......	1 45
Barley	"	"	60	to.......	65
Potatoes	"	bag	40	".......	40
Butter	"	lb.	20	".......	25
Eggs	"	doz.	20	".......	20
Chicken	"	lb.	12	".......	11
Ducks	"	"	12	".......	11
Turkeys	"	"	15	".......	16

THE
Merchants Bank
OF CANADA

PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,134

E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER

220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

"Looking back I see I never saw before."

This is the exclamation of satisfied customers.

We have fitted successfully stubborn cases that others have failed in.

Satisfaction guaranteed.

Consultation

C. H. Fox, Walkerton

Jeweller and Optician

"EDISON" PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson

Jeweller - - Walkerton

Boys Spring Suits Hats and Caps

Do you know that we make a specialty of boys clothing and the suits for the boys receive the same care and attention as mens regarding style, cut and workmanship.

Boys Buster Brown Norfolk sack suits, sizes 22 to 28, prices $3.00, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $6.00, $8.00.

Boys' and youths Bloomer suits in D. B., Sack and Norfolk styles up to size 36 at $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $10.00, $12.00, and $14.00.

Special Selling Mens and Young Mens Hats

We have just passed into stock the most complete and best selected lot of young mens spring hats in black, brown, navy, Russian green, chocolate, reseda, grey and all the new combinations in hat bands, the styles are all correct, and the prices, any you choose from the following:—$1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50.

In mens suits and odd trousers we can please you with newest styles and the low prices we secured by early buying.

New Spring Jerseys, Shirts, Ties, Collars and Gloves. Come in and look over our mens furnishings, It will open your eyes to the value we show.

McBurney & Co.

THE SAVOY CAFE

NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP

QUICK LUNCH

SPECIAL DINNER

Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.

BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS
WITH FRIED POTATOES
BREAD AND BUTTER
PIE
WITH TEA OR COFFEE.

25 cts.

Butterick Whispers

The Afternoon Tea
See The Delineator for May.

■

Bolero and Yoke-Skirt
of Wine Colored Silk.
The dearest little blouse of finest lace
with Frill-Finished Waistline held by soft
Pea-Green Velvet Ribbon.

■

For the Nicest Things for Dress and Semi-Dress Occasions, come first to our Dress Goods and Butterick Pattern Departments.

J. H. APPEL

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

VOL XXXIV-No 18

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MAY 6th 1915—8 PAGES

"NYAL'S"

Hypophosphites With Creosote.

A combination of all the medicinal and nutritive elements of fine Norway Cod Liver Oil—without the nauseating grease—with malt, hypophosphites and creosote.

For a lingering cough, chronic bronchitis and asthmatic condition and as a general tonic—you will find this preparation good.

—Get a Bottle today at—

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

Spring Millinery

We are showing all the latest and popular styles in Spring Millinery creations. Charming effects in small, medium and large hats. Copies of imported originals and American creations.

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton and vicinity to call and inspect this showing of latest models in Spring Millinery.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY

The Rife Block — Walkerton

Harmony Rose

and

Harmony Violet

Glycerine

Soap

15cts a cake

or

2 for 25c.

A Most Delightful Soap

SIEVERIGHT'S

The Rexall Store

Newest Styles

With two button fronts, narrow natural shoulders and all the distinctive touches of Cut, Fit and Finish that characterize CLOTHES OF OUR TAILORING.

Come and decide now. Let us show you the most popular fabrics, the very latest designs and leave your order with us for a new suit.

Two piece summer suits made to your order. Best of trimmings and workmanship. $15.00 up.

G. T. ROURKE

Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store

Walkerton, - Ont.

JAS. TOLTON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

Spiralla Corsets

Miss Evans of Toronto was here for a week instructing Mrs. M. Peltz in the Spiralla Corset work. She is now competent for fitting and corseting at a reasonable price, any lady who wishes a perfect figure and comfort.

Call on her at her home on Scott Street, or drop her a card.

MRS. M. PELTZ,

Scott St., Walkerton

Girl's $4.50 rain capes for $2.75 at McBurney's.

T. E Attwood, issuer of marriage licenses.

Girl's $4.50 raincoats for $3 50 at McBurney's.

Read McBurney's bargain list on last page.

Mr. Geo Clark of Toronto spent Sunday at his home here.

Buy linoleums at Stephan Bros.—Special import quality.

Capt. Martyn of Guelph spent Sunday with Mrs. Martyn.

Two specials in Ladies Suits at $7.95 and $9.95.—Stephan Bros.

Mr. J. A. Cousins of Stratford, spent Sunday with his family here.

Mr. P. A. Malcomson of Kincardine, was a visitor here on Friday last.

Parchment butter paper (Choice Dairy Butter) for sale at the Telescope.

Mr. J. Wahlquist of Galt was a visitor at the home of Mr. N. Eidt on Sunday.

Mr. Wallace Cunningham of Toronto University is visiting at his home in Greenock.

Smart covert cloth and fancy tweed ladies' spring coats at $9, $8 and $10—Stephan Bros.

Corp. J. A. Farrell of the Third Contingent, Guelph, spent Sunday with friends here.

Splendidly tailored men's suits in navy serge and fancy worsteds at $10, $12 and $15—Stephan Bros.

Mr. James Lambertus, druggist of North Bay, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lambertus.

Mr. J. W. Mallon of the Attorney General's office at Toronto was a business visitor in town on Friday last.

Misses Clara and Kate Kuntz of St. Clements were visiting their cousin John Kuntz the latter part of last week.

Pte. Leslie Green of Chesley, who left Walkerton with the first contingent has been wounded in the fighting in France.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos Hastings and son Robert motored here from Toronto on Saturday and spent Sunday at Mr. Robt Bryce's.

Mr. Birmingham the Conservative organizer attended the Tory Convention last week and has been working in South Bruce.

Mr. Armond Whitehead who has been attending Queens University, arrived home last week and will spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Whitehead.

Mr. Murray Wilson of Queens University spent Thursday and Friday of last week with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Thos Wilson. Murray left on Saturday for Saskatoon where he will join a government survey party with which he will be employed during the summer.

Mr. Chester Bryce, son of Mr. Robert Bryce who has been serving in the United States army in Mexico is at present in a patient hospital in Arizona suffering from lockjaw caused by a rusty nail running into his foot. A letter received by his father yesterday states that he is now recovering and out of danger.

Wanted to Rent.

Room wanted to rent by a young business man, apply at box 115 or this office.

Plough Points.

Farmers! Secure your plow points at The Walkerton Foundry 4 for $1.00 Points guaranteed.—S. Ellinghausen.

For Sale.

A lot of household furniture, dishes cooking utensils and etc. for sale privately.—Apply at the Telescope or to C. Patrick.

Sold Farm

Mr. Ferdinand Frank has sold his 75-acre farm in Brant to Mrs. Carnegie of Mildmay. Mrs. Carnegie took possession this week.

Purchased New Studebaker.

Mr. Hank Irwin, horse buyer, has disposed of the automobile which he purchased last year and has bought a 1915 model Studebaker car.

Brant Hospital Aid.

The annual meeting of the Brant ladies Hospital Aid will meet in the Council Chamber on Sat. May. 15 h. at 3 p. m. J. A. Rowand, Sec. Treas.

Dog Lost.

A collie dog answering to the name of Jack, 1 year old, white strip on face and breast, all feet marked with white tips, bob tail. Any information will be thankfully received. Alex Waechter, Walkerton, R.R. No. 1.

Conservative Convention.

Jno. Purvis, the auctioneer of Holyrood was chosen the Conservative candidate to contest this riding in the coming Federal election. A report of the Convention will be found on page 8 of this issue.

Help the Lacrosse Club.

Buy a ticket for the special show at the Red Star on Friday of this week, which is being given in aid of the lacrosse club. The ticket is good for any night. Four special reels have been secured for that evening. Admission 25c.

Foot Crushed by Crow-bar.

While working at the construction of the new bridge at the grist mill on Monday, Mr. John Smith, street inspector, had the misfortune to have a heavy crow-bar fall on his left foot. Mr. Smith's toes were badly crushed and it was necessary for him to be driven home. He will be off work for some days

Baird's Corners S. S.

A number of families met at Baird's school house for the purpose of organizing a Union Sunday School for the summer months. Mr Thompson was elected superintendent and Mr. H. Brecklebank assistant superintendent and Miss Mitchell as Sec'y Treasurer. Meetings will be held every Sunday at 3 p.m.

Formosa Power Line.

The Walkerton Electric Light & Power Company are rushing work on their power line which is being run to the village of Formosa. The holes for the poles have been dug over the greater part of the route and it is expected that the poles will be erected and wires strung in the near future.

Drilling Artesian Well.

The Walkerton Egg & Dairy Company are having an eight-inch artesian well drilled on their premises on Main St. Drilling was commenced by the contractor on Monday and on Wednesday the well had been sunk to a depth of 65 feet. Mr. Player the manager of the Egg & Dairy states that drilling will continue until an adequate supply of water is secured.

Finished Seeding.

Mr. Wm. Lang, west of town was the first farmer in this locality to finish seeding, he having completed sowing the seed on Friday. Mr. Lang's farm like all others has been a scene of great activity and during thirteen days, on his property there was 30 acres ploughed, manure placed on 10 acres and 73 acres seeded. We believe this to be a record. Can anyone beat it.

At Training Camp.

Among the students of Toronto University who are attending the officers training camp which commenced on Monday at Niagara-on-the-Lake are Leslie Huether and Elliott Dixon. The camp will last for ten days

Fate--Olson.

Mr. Harry Fate, adopted son of Mr and Mrs. John Kuntz of Walkerton, was married to Miss Olga Olson in Gull Lake, Sask., on May 5th. The groom has been homesteading the last few years.

Passed Law Exams.

The list of successful law students who passed their third year examinations held at Easter, appeared in the Toronto dailies on Tuesday and among them were those of Roy B. Whitehead son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Whitehead of Walkerton and Stanley M. Scott, of Perth. These two young men are now full fledged lawyers.

Second Contingent in England.

The second Canadian Contingent which had been training at London and Toronto, embarked at Halifax for England some days ago and have arrived safely in England. Pte. Norm. Huck sent a wireless message to a friend here saying that they had disembarked on English soil. Several cables from other local boys have also been received.

Blames the Liberal Press.

In his address at the Conservative Convention, Senator J. J. Donnelly, said that if an early election came, the Toronto Globe and Star would be responsible for forcing the issue. Pretty lame excuse, we think, and anyway since when have the Globe and Star come into control of the Borden administration? Contrary to this assertion of the Senator, both these papers have been agitating against an election at this time, when all Canadians are engrossed in the great conflict across the ocean.

Indian Gets First Lashes.

Joe Elliot, the Cape Croker Indian who was sentenced to be lashed by Judge Klein, received his first treatment from the cat-o-nine-tails at the gaol on Friday. The Indian true to the traditions of his race bore up well under the flogging, never flinching, nor making any outcry, though the lashing caused the blood to trickle down his back. Elliot received six lashes and will receive six more just previous to the expiration of his five month's term.

Celebrated 92nd Birthday.

Congratulations are due to Mrs. H. Bacon who on Sunday of last week celebrated her 92nd birthday. Mrs. Bacon, who is without doubt Walkerton's oldest citizen and settler, having come here with her husband in the spring of 1860, received many kind remembrances from friends and members of the family on the day. The aged lady, although confined to her bed, is still in possession of all her faculties and her many acquaintances hope to see her spared to pass still a few more milestones.

A Good Stock Company.

The Boyer-Vincent Stock Company which filled a two nights' engagement at the opera house here last week was an excellent company, and was deserving of better patronage than it received on its two nights stand. It is rather late in the season for a troupe of this kind to be on the route, but they are playing now, merely for advertising purposes and from the opinion of those who saw "The Whirlpool" or "The Hidden Crime" as presented by them they are assured of a packed house when they play their return engagement here next season.

Threatened to shoot.

Chief Ferguson went to Ambleside on Monday night and arrested Peter Waechter a farmer of Greenock, on a charge of threatening to shoot his two brothers-in-law. Waechter, it appears became incensed at his brothers for some reason and went to the barn, where with a loaded double-barrel shotgun he threatened to shoot anyone coming near. He held his fort for several hours until the arrival of Chief Ferguson and his assistants. He was taken before Magistrate Tolton and was remanded one week for trial. If the evidence on Monday next warrants it, Waechter will be examined as to sanity.

Left for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Bethel and family who have been residents of Walkerton for the past few years, left on Monday for England where they will reside in future. Previous to their departure Mr. and Mrs. Bethel were presented with a purse of gold by the members of the church of England, while their daughter Miss Hilda was presented with a beautiful silver mesh purse by the members of the Bell Telephone staff of operators of which she was a member. Word was received here on Tuesday stating that the boat on which the family who were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Langham were to have sailed on from Montreal had been seized by the government to convey troops, which compelled them to sail from New York.

Pruning Demonstration.

A Pruning Demonstration will be conducted by Mr. P. J. Carey of the Dominion Fruit Branch on Tuesday the 11th of May at 3 p.m. in Mr. J. E. McGregor's Orchard, near the G. T. R. station. This will be an opportunity to get advice regarding Pruning from one of Canada's leading fruit authorities.

Drunks Fined.

Two local men whose names appear on the prohibitory list of Walkerton appeared before Magistrate Tolton on Monday and were assessed $10 and costs on a charge of being drunk. Another fellow pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest and paid $1 and costs. Another gent, who celebrated the event of his name being taken from the Indian list by getting a hilarious jag on, appeared in court yesterday also charged with being drunk and disorderly and paid $5 and costs into court and a fifth also paid a fine of $5 and costs on a similar charge

Accepted the Bribe.

With regard to the criticisms of the Telescope which appeared in the Herald and Times last week, we are prepared to admit that we are lax in our dealings in some respects, but yet we have not sunk to such a low level in newspaper life as our contemporary: He is down to the very lowest, if what we are told is true, that last week he committed a grievous offence against the rules of newspaperdom that of accepting a bribe in return for which he excluded a certain item from his columns. This in the eyes of the newspaper world and the general public also, is common bribery. We merely quote this to show that the Herald and Times is a greater sinner in any respect than the Telescope.

6000 Canadian Casualties.

An official statement from the office of Major-General Hughes on Monday gives the total amount of Canadian casualties, in the battle of Langemark between April 22 and 30th as nearly 6000, tabulated as follows:—Officers killed, wounded or missing 220, men killed 705, wounded 2,102, missing 2,530. Up to the present the names of the officers who have been killed, wounded or missing only, have been published, and it will probably be some time before the casualties in the ranks are made public. Although the battalion of which the Bruce boys form a part was in the conflict, we have to date not been able to learn of any Bruce volunteers having been killed, we noticed the names of a few Bruce boys in the casualty list. Hilton Johnston and Melville Davidson of Chesley were wounded but not badly while James Barty, whose parents live near Dunkeld was dangerously wounded. It is also stated that Howard Gransden, who left here with the first contingent as a blacksmith has been wounded.

Who's the Greater Sinner.

Our contemporary, the Herald and Times was apparently very short of copy last week and as is his usual course under such a condition he devoted no small amount of his space to throwing mud at the Telescope. We are not anxious to become participants in a mud slinging controversy, but we wish to say to the editor of the Times that people who live in glass houses should never throw stones and will endeavor to show that he lives in a glass house and that his mud-slinging will prove a boomerang. In one article the Times editor stated that he could not ask this journal to join with him in a campaign against the circulation of harmful literature in the shape of medical books bearing upon women's diseases, because we printed in our colums recently, an advertisement for a certain instrument for women. We would ask the Times man, or anyone who is interested to look into almost any copy of his paper and therein he will find an ad. for French female pills. Regardless of this fact, can the Herald and Times enter upon any crusade for the improvement of the moral condition of the community, when he publishes in his paper, the vulgar details of every rape, or indecent assault case which comes into the Walkerton courts, or, as was recently done, keep the disgrace of a young girl in the public eye for several weeks and in referring to her child's death, state that this was the daughter of Miss———. Talk about awakening childish curiosity which is apt to be followed by the subsequent shame of the child and its parents, can anything, not excepting the medical books bearing on women's diseases, eclipse the Time's vulgar reference to these cases which arise from the immoral condition of the community. If the Times man has a vestige of true manhood remaining in him, he surely did not pen the article about the Telescope without feeling the prick of a guilty conscience. Arte, it's you're turn to blush!

BORN.

WAHLQUIST—At the Bruce County Hospital on Saturday May. 1st, 1915, to Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wahlquist, a daughter, (still born.)

The Walkerton High School baseball team went to Hanover on Saturday afternoon and defeated the Y.M. C.A. team of that town by 16-9. This is the High School's first taste of victory this season.

Bad Fire at Formosa.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week the village of Formosa was visited by a disastrous fire which was not extinguished until considerable damage was done. The fire started about 3 o'clock in the stable on the property of Mr. Geo. Seitz being caused it is thought, by a spark from the smoke stake of the saw-mill. The building was soon in flames which spread to Mr. Seitz's house and both buildings were consumed. The house and stable of Mr. Walter Tedy then took fire and were destroyed and the flames then spread to Mr. Weiler's cooper shop which together with his residence and a large stock of staves and flour barrels were destroyed. Mr. A. Opperman's large stable about two hundred feet away from the cooper shop also fell a prey to the flames. The Mildmay fire brigade was sent for, and with their assistance, and that of a large crowd from the surrounding district, including Teeswater, the townspeople were able to check the conflagration. It was about six o'clock before the flames were under control. With the exception of that of Mr. Seitz, all the property destroyed was insured.

The Liberal Convention

R. E. Truax M. P. Chosen as Standard-bearer of the Liberal Party in South Bruce in the Coming Federal Election.

A record attendance, unbounded enthusiasm, good speeches and unity of the delegates assembled as to the election of a candidate, were the outstanding features of the Liberal convention for South Bruce which was held in Formosa on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Notwithstanding the heavy rain of the afternoon, the building in which the convention was held was packed to the doors, all seats were taken and standing room was at a premium. This fact in itself answers with a most emphatic NO! the question "Are the Liberals of South Bruce downhearted?" And as it was determined months ago as to who would carry the standard at this election, it also shows that the Liberals are taking an interest in the welfare of Canada and gathered yesterday to hear the questions of the day discussed and to protest against the grafting which has been proven to be so prevalent in almost all departments under the Borden Government and particularly in connection with the purchasing of supplies for Canada's sons who have gone to fight the battles of the empire. With such a degree of enthusiasm which prevailed throughout the meeting there was no one present doubtful of the outcome of an election should it be brought on at this time, for, it was asked if Mr. Truax can defeat a man with the prestige and influence of Mr. Cargill, against great odds, can he not defeat his present opponent, when he has the clean record of the prosperous Laurier administration behind him as against the corrupt Borden government which Conservatives of this country will be asked to vote for.

The speakers of the afternoon were to have been W. M. German, M. P., of Welland and F. Pardee, M. P. of Sarnia, but owing to sickness in his family the latter could not attend, and the former had a business engagement in Toronto which also prevented his being present. Their places on the platform, however, was very ably taken by Mr. McCaig, M.P. of Kent county and Wm McDonald, M P. P, of Chesley.

The meeting was called to order early in the afternoon and the following officers were selected:—

President Geo. Durst, Chesley
Vice Pres. D. A. McDonald, Kinloss
Secretary J. A. Johnston, Mildmay
Treasurer M. A. Halliday, Chesley.

Nomination was then proceeded with and the unity of the meeting with regard to the candidature of Mr. Truax was demonstrated when the motion to this effect by Mr. J. G. Anderson M. P. P, and seconded by Mr. Jas. Coulter, was received with cheers. Someone in the audience shouted above the din, "Let it go at that." When the President asked if this was satisfactory, the audience to a man rose to their feet, and it was so.

Mr. Truax was accorded a rousing reception when he appeared on the platform. He began his address by stating that this was the largest convention held in South Bruce since 1881 when Hon. Edward Blake ran in this riding, and was sufficient evidence that the electors of South Bruce were interested in the welfare of the Dominion. In speaking of an election he said, "It would be a disgrace to Canada to bring on an election now, when the British Empire is at war with the strongest nation in the world. There is absolutely no reason why an election should be held and the Dominion government should follow the example of the British gov't and allow the M. P.s [illegible] their seats one more year beyond the constitutional limit if need be and thus avert an election during the war. Mr. Truax spoke for considerable time on the graft disclosures in connection with the purchases of boots, horses, drugs, clothing and supplies for the army, the increased taxation and the 7½ % increased duty on all goods from the States. Although the present Government claimed to be practising economy, he stated that in the civil service, which was very efficient in all branches under the Laurier regime they had dismissed some 40 employees and to take their places had appointed no less than 2 200 new men, which means the annual additional outlay of thousands of dollars. As an example of the doings of the Borden administration Mr. Truax said that of 425 horses purchased in Nova Scotia, 151 of these were shot at Valcartier as unfit for use. The graft disclosures have been many, yet he said one third of the tale has not been told. Mr. Truax concluded his remarks by thanking the electors for their support in the past and asking for their support in the coming contest, whenever it may be.

After the nomination, the committee on resolutions were called upon and Mr. Cameron of Lucknow presented a resolution of condolence to be forwarded to Mrs. J. G. Murdoch of Lucknow, widow of the late President of the South Bruce Liberal association. This was followed by the following resolution protesting against the proposal of a Dominion election at this time, read by Mr. C. J. Mickle of Chesley.

"THAT the Liberals of the South Riding of Bruce in convention assembled unanimously protest against the proposal to dissolve Parliament and hold an election so long before the expiration of the constitutional limit, for the following reasons:—

1 BECAUSE, the energies of the Canadian people should be concentrated on the same duty of assisting the Empire to carry to a victorious conclusion the great war which is being fought for freedom and for democracy against the tyranny of militarism and the doctrine of the divine rights of Kings.

2 BECAUSE, to hold an election during the days of national peril and stress would be equivalent to an act of disloyalty.

3 BECAUSE, an election would seriously disturb the business interests of Canada which are just beginning to recover from the financial stringency of the past year.

4 BECAUSE, the voice of public opinion as expressed in resolutions of the Montreal Board of Trade, the statements of public men of both sides of politics, the replies given to the press by mayors of cities and towns, the reeves of villages and townships, and the wardens of counties in Ontario, and the editorials of Conservative newspapers who prefer the welfare of Canada to party interests is against holding an election on patriotic and business grounds.

5 BECAUSE, instead of an election we strongly approve of the British plan by which the present representatives of the House of Commons would be continued in their seats at the expiry of the present Parliament with bye-elections by acclamations until the end of the war.

THAT, we enthusiastically confirm unbounded confidence in the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, though contrary to British precedent, was not consulted by Sir Robert Borden as to the measures to be taken by Canada, yet in unswerving devotion exerted himself to the very utmost to assist the government of Canada in its duty, and personally went through his own province of Quebec, successfully summoning with all his eloquence his fellow citizens of that province to fight for king and country.

THAT, if a premature election is held, we believe that the Conservative Government responsible for the ill-timed struggle will be condemned by an indignant electorate and that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will once more become the First Minister of Canada, a high position of trust to which his long experience in statecraft, his personal gifts and his illustrious record of prosperous administration so justly entitle him."

Needless to say this resolution was unanimously adopted with cheering and prolonged applause.

Mr. McCaig, the speaker of the afternoon then took the platform and delivered an eloquent address which was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present. He paid high tribute to Mr. Truax for his work at Ottawa during the sessions since October 1913, enlarged on the graft disclosures and touched upon all the important issues of the day, and concluded with an urgent appeal to the electors to support Mr. Truax in the coming election which he thought would be on June 28th, and give him another term at Ottawa.

Mr. McDonald M. P. P. of Chesley, Mr. Cameron of Lucknow, Mr. Mooney of Ripley, and Mr. Mickle of Chesley, also gave brief addresses.

The meeting was drawn to a close by giving three cheers for the king, the candidate and Mr. McColg.

A GIFT OF A SOUL

At these words uttered carelessly by her brother, Juliette trembled. She felt as if they contained a menace to her peace. This portrait could not be an ordinary one. And this work, to which Pierre devoted himself with such ardor, was destined to have an influence over the destiny of them all. She saw everything grow dark around her, as if the sun had suddenly hidden himself behind a cloud. Sorrowful presentiments oppressed her heart.

"And this portrait is that of some one he knows?" she resumed.

"Oh, of some one he knows very well."

"Of whom, then?"

"An actress."

"What is her name?"

Jacques began to laugh; and looking at his sister in surprise, he said:

"How inquisitive you are to-night! I should like to know how it can possibly interest you to learn whether the original of Pierre's portrait be called Mlle. This or Mlle. That."

"It interests me, however."

"Well, then the lady of the portrait is Mlle. Clemence Villa. She is small, dark, has black eyes, beautiful teeth, an execrable reputation, and very little talent. Notwithstanding, she has been talked about as a great success. Do you wish to know what her age is? Twenty-four or thereabouts. Her country? Beautiful Italy, the land of vermouth and sausages. Her belief? one advocates the community of goods, if not where money is concerned, at least where the heart is. But you are making me say stupid things. This is what comes of talking to children. Let it suffice you to know that the portrait is good, and that Pierre's reputation will not suffer through it."

The conversation turned on other things, but the painful impression received by Juliette remained. Her thoughts dwelt, in spite of herself, on this woman whom she could not avoid thinking ill of, and she had a jealous fear that she was loved by the artist who was painting her picture. "It is she who has taken him away from me," she thought. "It is since he has known her that he has ceased to visit us. He is ashamed to come."

In her naive deductions Juliette was not far from the truth. Pierre experienced now, when at Mme de Vignes' house, a feeling of embarrassment. He felt that he was observed by the sister of his friend. His conscience was not at rest, and he reproached himself with having drawn back too suddenly after advancing with too little consideration. He deemed himself blamable, and divined that he was blamed. This inspired him with a feeling of dissatisfaction which kept him away from the girl he respected too much to dream now of loving. "You have behaved, my boy," he said to himself, "like a veritable scoundrel. You have risked endangering the peace of mind of this child, in order to satisfy a passing caprice, and then you have changed in your feelings and your thoughts at the will of the first worthless woman you chance to meet. Keep now to your jades: you are fit only for them. You are made to understand each other. Aspire no more to the purity, the sweetness, the joy of a chaste and holy affection; look no longer for the innocence, the freshness of a young girl. The snow that has not been trodden on is not for you; you have chosen instead the mud which has been trampled upon by every passing foot."

And in order to conform to the rule of conduct imposed upon him by his bitter cynicism, the painter threw himself into pleasure more ardently than before, seeking the less to curb the excesses of Jacques now that he himself had participated in them.

Laurier seemed made of iron; he carried both pleasure and work to excess. After the wildest nights he was to be found in his studio, palette in hand, as if he had left his bed refreshed after eight hours' sleep. A more metallic vibration than ordinary in his voice, a more pronounced feverishness in his movements, alone betrayed his fatigue. And when evening came, he was ready to begin the same thing over again.

Jacques, on the contrary, his form more bent, his chest more and more hollow, and his glance more and more dull, bore in his whole person the fearful traces of a physical exhaustion every day more complete. His mother tried to draw him back to her, to snatch him from his killing mode of life. He promised to remain with her, to take the rest he needed, to break from his habits, his friendships, his train of pleasures. He could not do so, and Mme. de Vignes saw, with profound despair, the son journey as the father had done, on the road of which each stage, so familiar to her, was marked by anguish, and whose end was swift and certain death.

The opening of the Exposition had meanwhile taken place, and, secretly impelled by a sharp feeling of curiosity, Juliette asked her mother to take her to it. Modern paintings interested her only slightly. What attracted her with irresistible power was the portrait of Clemence Villa, the sitting for which had coincided so fatally with the change in the sentiments of Pierre Laurier. Accompanied by her mother, who had no suspicions of her feelings, Mademoiselle de Vignes passed rapidly and with indifference through the halls where thousands of salon canvases were displayed to view in their cold mediocrity. Suddenly she stopped: before her, at the end of the hall, not twenty steps away, the portrait in a black frame of a woman, small, dark and pale, had caught her eye. Instantly, without ever having seen her, she had recognized whose it was. It was she. There was no possibility of a doubt. No other woman would have possessed this beauty, fatal and almost evil, which strikes a chill to the heart. Juliette, with an effort, broke through the circle of admirers standing before the picture, and approached it.

Her mother, following her, looked at the portrait tranquilly, and said in a tone of satisfaction:

"Stay, it is the picture of Pierre Laurier. Ah, it is indeed a remarkable portrait."

Juliette turned slightly pale. That which her mother had just said, she herself had thought at the same instant with a profound pang. Yes, the picture was a remarkable one, and the genius of the painter had never before reached so high a point. In the fine light of the head covered with a hat adorned with plumes, in the play of light and shade, in the coloring of the shoulders draped in a ravishing costume of the time of Louis XVI., in the coquettish pose of the hand resting on a walking-stick, in the brilliance of the eyes and in the charm of the smile the inspiration of love was betrayed. He who had seen so much beauty in this woman, and who had reproduced it with so much passion, was madly in love with her. And her voluptuous grace made this comprehensible, if not excusable.

Tears came to the eyes of the young girl and her heart beat to suffocation. Surrounded by the admiring crowd, who repeated aloud the names of the painter and of the model, Mademoiselle de Vignes suffered horribly. Two young men who had taken up their stand before the portrait, beside her, and who did not care whether they were heard or not, ended their eulogies by these words:

"Besides, he is her lover."

Juliette blushed as if she had received an insult, and trembling at the thought that she might hear other words which should enlighten her still more cruelly regarding the mystery which she was at once eager and unwilling to know, she drew her mother into the next hall.

From this day forth she became more grave, with a gravity that had in it a shade of melancholy, which did not, however, attract the attention of Madame de Vignes. The two women had only too many reasons for sorrow, and Juliette would have astonished her mother more by a display of gaiety than of sadness. The summer passed in the solitude of the country, Jacques continuing at the watering places, Trouville and Dieppe, his life of pleasure, and presenting himself at longer and longer intervals at his mother's house. Pierre had altogether disappeared, devoting himself completely to work, as they saw by the frequent appearance of canvases which bore his name in the picture stores. Never did time appear longer or more sad to the two women than did the months from June to October. They had leisure to think of all the anxieties the future had in store for them.

The weather was magnificent, the sky was without a cloud, and a delicious warmth pervaded the atmosphere. In the evening the mother and daughter walked in the garden, watching the stars appearing one by one in the clear heavens. And the calmness of nature formed a painful contrast to the agitation of their minds. They walked beside each other without speaking, for each wished to hide her sorrow from the other, fearing the darkest shadows that the expression on their faces might not betray. They felt as if surrounded by a void. The two beings who for them were all the world were far away, and everything else had become indifferent to them. The charms of nature were unnoticed by them. The sweetness of the breeze laden with the aromas arising from the earth, the clearness of the mysterious depths of the heavens, the rustling of the leaves shaken by the breeze overhead, all that would have charmed them if they had had beside them, to share their feelings, the dear ones who were absent, left them cold and unmoved. And every day, every evening, the same sense of weariness weighed heavily upon them.

Juliette was developing rapidly, she had grown in stature and her face had become charming. She was now seventeen, and her gravity gave her a womanly air. Her mother took delight in dressing her. The partiality she had always had for her son did not blind her so completely as to prevent her observing the budding charms of her daughter. She said to the latter one day, after having looked at her for a long time in silence:

"You are really growing pretty."

A smile flitted across Juliette's face, and she shook her head without speaking. Of what use was her beauty? He whom she wished to admire it was not here.

The autumn had just set in, when an alarming piece of news summoned Madame de Vignes unexpectedly to Paris. Her son, after having struggled foolishly with a weakness that gave him no respite, had fallen suddenly ill. He had been seized with a hemorrhage, and, in a dying condition, they had transported him to his mother's house. The anguish of this blow cut short the reveries of the young girl. She adored her brother, and hastening to his side with her mother, she had been terrified by the change. She had scarcely the strength to lift his head when they entered the room. Of the handsome Jacques there remained nothing but a shadow. A consultation of physicians, summoned at once, ordered his immediate departure for the state in which she had found him. He south, and since the last of November the De Vignes had been installed in the villa washed by the waters of the blue sea, and sheltered by pine and juniper trees, among the red rocks.

Here Jacques had grown better. Youth has exhaustless resources. The warmth, the light, the regularity of the life he led, had exercised their salutary influence upon him, and if the invalid was not completely cured, he had at least regained so much strength as to leave room for hope. He went about, pale, stooped, with trembling steps, shaken by fits of violent coughing, but he lived, and with great care he might continue to live for a long time. It was not enough, however, for Jacques to have obtained this result, and the alleviation he had experienced in his sufferings did not satisfy him. With strength his old desires had returned, and the impossibility of gratifying them produced in him an irritation which betrayed itself in bitter words and violent recriminations. He was ceaselessly contrasting, in his embittered mind, what he had been with what he now was. His present state of debility seemed insupportable when he compared it with his past activity, and he made use of his recovered strength only to give utterance to complaints and curses. He accepted his fate, not with resignation or sweetness, but with lamentation and bitterness.

The arrival of Pierre Laurier, however, had made a happy diversion in his sufferings. He felt more courageous and less hopeless in the society of his friend. All that he had lately looked on with indifference or disgust had again begun to have an attraction for him. He no longer remained the entire day stretched in his chaise longue, or buried in his willow invalid chair, on the terrace. He walked and drove during the warm hours of the day, and the diversion had a favorable influence on his health. He was less gloomy, he consented to receive visitors, and he had not repulsed the offer made him by the painter, to bring to the villa a Russian physician, a strange character, regarded as a charlatan by his colleagues, but celebrated for the extraordinary cures he had made.

Dr. Davidoff, installed at Monaco with his friend Count Woreseff, was the only son of a grain merchant of Odessa, who had left a fortune of ten millions at his death. He had therefore been able to follow the dictates of his fancy, and, disdaining a regular practice, devote himself to the study of humanity in its physical ills and moral sufferings. He had very soon succeeded in acquiring an influence over the imagination of Jacques. His system was to inspire those he treated with confidence, assuring them that immediate well-being would be the result of this feeling.

"Have the conviction that you will get well," he said to Jacques, "and you are already half-way on the road to recovery. Nature will take care of the rest. She only asks to be helped in her efforts to bring about a cure. Above all things it is necessary that the sick should not abandon hope. I have seen miracles wrought by the power of the will and by faith. The effects of the waters of Salette and of Lourdes, in your country are due to no other cause. The virtue of the beverage is in the soul of him who drinks. Having the certainty that the holy water will produce its effect upon him, he already feels the expected benefit. This is why it is useless to send the incredulous on those pilgrimages in search of health, just as skeptics should not assist at spiritual seances. They have within them forces which react against the efforts of the adepts and which neutralize the fluids. Never, in such circumstances, will experiments succeed. In the same way the mysterious efforts of nature to effect a cure will never produce a favorable result in an organization weakened by fear and depressed by doubt. Jesus, who was one of the greatest thaumaturgists of antiquity, said to those who asked him to cure them: 'Believe; in faith is everything.'"

These curious theories of the Russian doctor had begun by interesting Jacques; then the seed sown had insensibly taken root in his mind and rapidly borne fruit. There were hours during which the sick man hoped once more, and said to himself, "Why, indeed, should I not recover?" He called to mind examples of wonderful cures from maladies further advanced than his, and from which the patients had so completely recovered that not a trace of their illness had remained. And the subjects of these cures were now leading free and joyous lives, like the healthiest and most vigorous of men. Oh, to live, to go, to come, without restraint, without uneasiness, to be able to follow his inclinations, without fearing the result. To be delivered from physicians and doctors, to afford to despise precautions, and not to have to think continually of his health; to be able to commit imprudences at his pleasure. What a dream! Should he ever be able to realize it? In so ardently desiring health, he had but one aim in view—to begin again the life of dissipation which had brought him to this miserable condition. When he gave vent in the presence of Pierre to his regrets and his aspirations, his friend would shake his head with a melancholy air, and say with profound bitterness:

"And in your case, then, what is there to ask life for? Would there be anything worse or more deceitful? Ah! to long for success and fame—that I can understand, to put forth all one's energies in the struggle to achieve that which is worthy of a man. But to spend one's days and nights in playing cards or courting women—could anything more senseless or more deplorable be conceived? Yet I, who criticise so severely this manner of life, lead it myself. But I am a stupid and contemptible fool, who have no longer the energy to earn the money by work which I expect from chance."

He laughed drearily. Then he resumed more calmly:

"After all, I am wrong to judge others by myself. You are loved, you are happy, and life has pleasures for you still. I am mocked and scorned, and the only joys I experience are so bitter that their remembrance weighs more heavily upon me than do my sorrows. What is there for me to regret leaving? Nothing. By whom should I be mourned? By no one. Your life, on the contrary, is necessary to those who love you, to your mother, to your sister. It is for their sakes that you must get well. It is of them only that you must think. Ah, if I had beside me always a sweet and charming companion, whose affection would console me for all my sufferings, I should have the courage to make the effort to elevate my moral nature and to become another man. In the hours of my most profound dejection I have often thought that if I had some one to whom to devote my life I might show myself to be as good a man as the best. But I am alone! To the devil with wisdom! When I shall have committed follies enough, I shall dash my brains out against one of those beautiful red rocks at the foot of the cliff, and the waves will lull me to rest in my last sleep, like a faithful friend."

Pierre Laurier did not give way to these fits of melancholy when alone with his friend only. Sometimes, in the presence of Madame de Vignes and of Juliette, he had allowed his irritation of mind to break forth in bitter words. If, at such moments, he had chanced to look at the young girl he would have discovered, in the pained and distressed expression of her countenance, one of those incentives for reforming which he had desired of fate. But he did not trouble himself about the effect his words might produce. He thought only of giving sincere expression to his despondent feelings. Fool! The boon he so ardently longed for shone like a luminous star in the darkness of his sky. He wished for a sweet and charming being to whom he might make the sacrifice of his evil passions, and she was close beside him, pitying his sorrows, and suffering with his insults.

[To be Continued.]

Miss Antique—I should hate to have been one of the women of the Middle Ages. Miss Caustique—Yes, it must be rather annoying to be known as a middle-aged woman.

Kidney Disease Cured Sworn Statement

Of Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Who Gratefully Gives All Credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is one thing to make big claims for a medicine and quite another thing to produce irrefutable evidence that it actually cures in serious cases.

We prefer to let the cured ones speak for themselves, and that is why you find in almost every newspaper the report of someone who has been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's medicines. To-day we present the sworn statement of Mr. Wesley Maxwell. When a man goes to this trouble in expressing his gratitude there can be no question of the benefit he has received. Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I must tell you that before I started using them I could only make water with the greatest difficulty, and had very severe pain in the back. I am completely cured now by the use of these pills. Before that I used a lot of doctors' medicine without any benefit that I could see. I am thankful for being cured, and can recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills very highly."

SWORN STATEMENT.

"This is to certify that I, Wesley Maxwell, of the Township of Caledon, was cured of kidney trouble by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

"Wesley Maxwell."

(Sworn before me as correct this 6th day of January, 1915. Wm. Hawkins, Sen. Justice of the Peace.)

This statement is also endorsed by the Rev. Geo. W. Robinson, who is Mr. Maxwell's pastor.

This cure will interest a great many people who are suffering as Mr. Maxwell was with kidney and urinary troubles. It will only cost you a quarter to buy a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and put this medicine to the test. We are sure that you will be thankful to the writer for describing his cure to you. For sale at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A BRITISH JOKE.

(Pittsburg Gazette-Times)

One hates to be suspicious, but the dispatch about the chaplain of the Bishop of London joining the aviation corps may be the British method of paving the way for one of their deadly jokes. About tomorrow they'll cable that he's had experience as a sky pilot.

I cured a horse of the Mange with MINARD'S LINIMENT.

CHRISTOPHER SAUNDERS.

Dalhousie.

I cured a horse, badly torn by a pitch fork, with MINARD'S LINIMENT.

St. Peter's, C. B. EDW. LINLIEF.

I cured a horse of a bad swelling by MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Bathurst, N. B. THOS. W. PAYNE.

Historic Clontarf.

Clontarf is one of the most historic spots in Ireland. It was there that on Good Friday, April 23, 1014, Brian Boru and the men of Munster, Connaught and Meath fought the Danes.

Brian was killed in his tent; Sigurd, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, perished also, and 11,000 Irishmen and 13,000 Danes are said to have fallen. Victory remained with the Irish, but the Danes reoccupied Dublin. In modern times O'Connell's monster meetings for repeal were to have culminated at Clontarf, but the meeting was prohibited by the government, and O'Connell was put upon his trial for conspiracy and convicted, though the verdict was eventually reversed by the House of Lords.—London Chronicle.

No More Corns

Cure Guaranteed

[illegible] PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR. [illegible]

WORSE THAN EUROPE.

[illegible]

[illegible] of the Waterloo "Wigwam" [illegible] and Austria [illegible] view of Lake Chaubunagungamaug, Webster, Massachusetts.

LIQUOR AND MORPHINE HABITS

Are diseases, not vices, and therefore curable. Patients are under my personal care and receive their treatment in ordinary hospitals as ordinary medical cases.

D. H. ARNOTT, M. D.
228 Queen's Ave., London, Ont.

A RAP AT TORONTO.

(Ottawa Citizen)

A Toronto citizen converted a hay wagon into a [illegible] and tried to do business in his native city but the police refused him a license on the ground that the natives would find it so homelike that they'd probably insist upon sleeping in it.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house

A Story of Dickens.

M. Anatole France has an amusing reminiscence of Dickens—of whom he is a great admirer—in his "Vie Littéraire." One wonders whether it is autobiographical. "A Frenchman who made the journey to London," he writes, "went one day to see the great Charles Dickens. He was admitted and expressed his admiration as an excuse for thus trespassing on the precious time of such a being. 'Your fame,' he added, 'and the universal sympathy you inspire doubtless expose you to innumerable intrusions. Your door always is besieged. You must be visited every day by princes, statesmen, scholars, writers, artists and even madmen.' 'Yes, madmen, madmen!' cried Dickens, carried away by the agitation which toward the end of his life often moved him. 'Madmen! They alone amuse me.' And he pushed his astonished visitor out by the shoulders."

PILES CURED at HOME by New Absorption Method

If you suffer from bleeding, itching, blind or protruding Piles, send me your address, and I will tell you how to cure yourself at home by the new absorption treatment; and will also send some of this home treatment free for trial, with references from your own locality if requested. Immediate relief and permanent cure assured. Send no money, but tell others of this offer. Write to-day to Mrs. M. Summers, Box P. 8, Windsor, Ont.

DRINK AND EFFICIENCY.

(Christian Science Monitor.

It was said a generation ago, by a minister of the crown, without apparently any conception of the significance of his own words, that the country had once more drunk itself out of debt. The present chancellor of the exchequer sees, no doubt, through the shallowness of such reasoning, the concrete fact that countries can only drink themselves out of debt they have drunk themselves into. The indirect effect of drink in the Russian empire was the acceptance of Monday as a dies non, with the consequence of reducing the working week to five days, at the expense of both capital and labor. The indirect effect of absinthe in France was the phenomenon known as the Apache.

If it is true, and there is no reason to doubt the statement, that the combination of gin and whiskey has reduced the capacity of the stevedores of Liverpool and the riveters of Newcastle beyond that of ordinary peace time, it is clear that on the Tyne and on the Mersey there is a custom much more to be honored in the breach than in the observance than any that may ever have been prevalent upon the sound. Having made up his mind what the real enemy is, the chancellor of the exchequer is not likely to hesitate in striking at it without much ado. Cowardice has never been charged to Mr. Lloyd-George's account. He will make no more of the loss to the revenue than of any other difficulty which he may be called upon to face in the matter. "We have got," he said, in addressing the ship owners, "to settle with Austria and Germany, but in order to do this we shall have first to settle with drink."

Are You Musical?

SPECIAL OFFER OF UP-TO-DATE MUSIC

Chinatown, My Chinatown
[illegible]
Dreams of Long Ago
[illegible]
Ship of My Dreams
[illegible] Day
[illegible]
[illegible] Chimes
Everybody Two-Step
Garden of Roses Waltz

All the above, and similar popular numbers 20c each

OPERA GEMS ALBUM [illegible]

SONGS OF THE HOME ALBUM [illegible]

Regular price 50 cents, our price 25 cents

SPECIAL OFFER [illegible] $1.00

[illegible]

Money Refunded If Not Satisfied

CANADIAN MUSIC EXCHANGE
242 St. James Street, Montreal

For You—a wonderful Book on Farm Drainage—FREE!

Do you know you can take as much crop off 100 acres properly drained as you can off 200 acres not drained and save half the labor? It's a fact. [illegible]

[illegible]

Write us today. Mention this paper. [illegible]

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., Limited
SWANSEA, ONTARIO

The Wisdom of Sam.

In a certain negro settlement in Louisiana there is a Judge who holds court in a one room wooden shack whose furnishings consist of a pine table, half dozen 'cheers' and a big book.

One day a negro was brought before him for being drunk.

"Well, Sam, I've got to fine you according to what the law book says," and flipping over a few pages of the big book on the table he pointed to some figures and continued: "There it is, $18.50. See it?"

"Yes, sir, an' here's yo' money," replied Sam, handing it out quickly and departing with an acquaintance.

When they had passed out of the hearing of the Judge the acquaintance began talking of the big fine and complained:

"Why didn't yo' argufy with the Judge an' git him to reduce them law book figgers?"

"Law book?" replied Sam. "Why, man, that ain't no law book, that ain't nothin' but a mail order catalogue. An' I wuz glad enough ter pay him what he ast me, 'cause he only turned over as far as the baby buggies. If he'd a turned over to the ottermobiles he'd a sent me up for life!"

CHEAP SKATES.

(Buffalo Courier)

As an extra cent of postage is now required on all matter mailed in Canada, business firms over there are said to be having their circulars printed in the United States and mailed from this country to Canadian addresses.

The Appetite of Youth Quickly Restored

Appetite is useless unless digestion is good. Dr. Hamilton's Pills make tremendous appetite and keep digestion up to the mark as well. The liver, bowels and kidneys are stimulated, the stomach strengthened, and robust health quickly follows. Dr. Hamilton's Pills instill vigor and snap into the system, make folks feel youthful and happy. You'll forget you have a stomach, forget your days of sickness if Dr. Hamilton's Pills are used. Insist on having Dr. Hamilton's Pills 25c. per box, no other medicine so good.

THE GARDEN AND THE CHICKENS

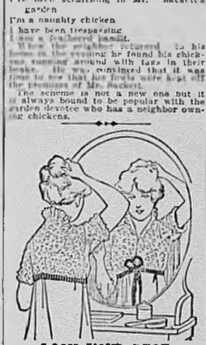
(Buffalo News)

A Stevens Point, Wis. man who was bothered by his neighbor's chickens threaded kernels of corn with tags at the end of the thread. On the tags were printed such notices as these:

I've been scratching in Mr. Sackett's garden
I'm a naughty chicken
I have been trespassing
I am a feathered bandit.

When the neighbor returned to his home in the evening he found his chickens running around with tags in their beaks. He was convinced that it was time to see that his fowls were kept off the premises of Mr. Sackett.

The scheme is not a new one but it is always bound to be popular with the garden devotee who has a neighbor owning chickens.



LOOK YOUR BEST

As to Your Hair and Skin Cuticura Will Help You

The Soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal. These fragrant super-creamy emollients preserve the natural purity and beauty of the skin under all conditions.

Sample Each Free by Mail

With 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card, Cuticura, Dept. 1, Boston, U.S.A. Sold throughout the world.

WHY NOT FOR KEEPS?

(Guelph Mercury)

When all these high and mighty personages swear off drinking, why do they always include the phrase "till after the war"?

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

WHY ARIZONA WENT DRY.

Curious Reasons Caused Hard-Drinking State to Turn.

A writer has told in a recent number of the New Republic why Arizona voted for prohibition at the last election, and it is very interesting to note the reasons, for Arizona had never manifested in the past much susceptibility in the matter of temperance reform. It was a notoriously drunken territory, and a very lawless one. As a state it has been somewhat better, but still far from what reason would have dictated. Yet it voted for prohibition by a majority of nearly 4,500 votes.

One reason why the state voted for prohibition is said to be the result of an outcry against ten-cent beer. A great many laborers were indignant because the saloons of Arizona were charging ten cents for a glass of beer, although a glass of beer costs only five in the neighboring state of California, as it costs only five in most states of the Union. The high price of beer in Arizona was represented as being due to the avarice of the saloonkeepers, as perhaps it was. And so thousands of laborers voted to do away with those avaricious saloonkeepers.

Then there are from fifteen hundred to two thousand negro voters in the state, and these are said to have voted, almost to a man, in favor of prohibition, not because they believed in the principle of prohibition, but because they have never been allowed to enter any saloons in Arizona except those owned by Mexicans. One negro leader is quoted as saying: "I don't see how I am expected to get patriotic over a place I'm not allowed to go into." Then the mine owners and the mine managers supported prohibition in order to get rid of the Mexican saloons, where so many of their workers steeped themselves in cheap alcoholic beverages on Sunday that they were in poor shape for labor on Monday. Principally for these reasons, it is said, Arizona went dry. They were not, on the whole, very bad reasons.

Publicly owned forests of the United States contain more than one-fifth of the country's timber.

ISSUE NO. 18, 1915

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCAtion and character to train for nurses. Apply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.

SMALL WATER POWER AND FARM for sale—grist, shingle and syrup mill, also cotton gin, with forty acres of land, good house, natural dam, ample water power, price reasonable. Blackmar, Columbus, Ga.

FARMS FOR SALE.

DALLFRE McNISH HOMESTEAD; 200 acres, Elgin County; rich clay loam soil underdrained, well fenced; 25 acres beech and maple; original growth; 5 acres orchard; two storey frame house, seven bedrooms, parlor, sitting and dining room, kitchen and summer kitchen, two cellars, hard and soft water at house; bank barn 50 x 75; drive barn; shed; hen-house; five miles west of St. Thomas on Talbot Road; R. R. No. 1; telephone. Price $9,000, about one-third cash. Has been in present family 61 years. Write owners or John A. Moody, P. O. Box 426, London, Ont.

TWO ADJOINING SECTIONS—SASkatchewan—two miles from elevator, beautiful creek, for quick sale at [illegible] value. H. B. Harrison, Owen Sound, Ont.

EXCELLENT STOCK FARM FOR [illegible] farm in Southwest Georgia, 2 1/2 miles from R. R. level, well watered. Will subdivide to suit purchaser—cash or terms—$[illegible] per acre. We can lend your money on property [illegible] 7 per cent. We never lend over 50 per cent of value, farm and city property. Blackmar, Columbus, Ga.

NOT A SQUARE DEAL.

(Toronto Star)

It fills an unemployed man with anger to think that business men will not make work unless they can make money out of it—even though men starve. They take their gains in good years, but will not take losses when a hard year comes. They step aside and let the burden of it all crush down upon the workers, who did not get much out of good years, but only the wages that kept them going. The discontented worker grows embittered by what he sees as well as by what he suffers. What he sees convinces him that a closed factory, as a rule, brings poverty only to those who formerly earned wages in it, but not to those who formerly earned profits there. The owners or shareholders may have their profits stopped for the time being. It is not a square deal. The whole subject is one to which a great deal of thinking will have to be devoted in days to come.

Cross, Sickly Babies

Mrs. Charles E. White, Waterford N. S., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for both my babies and find them excellent. My baby girl was cross and sickly, but after giving her the Tablets, she became strong, healthy and happy." Baby's Own Tablets never fail to make sickly children well and the mother can give them to her children with absolute safety. They are guaranteed by a government analyst to be free from injurious drugs. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Once On a Time.

Once on a time, once on a time,
Before the Dawn began,
There was a nymph of Diana's train
Who was beloved of Pan;
Once on a time a peasant lad
Who loved a lass at home;
Once on a time a Saxon king
Who loved a queen of Rome.

The world has but one song to sing
And it is ever new,
The first and last of all the songs,
For it is ever true—
A little song, a tender song
The only song it hath:
"There was a youth of Ascalon
Who loved a girl of Gath."

A thousand years have gone,
And aeons still shall pass,
Yet shall the world forever sing
Of him who loved a lass—
An olden song, a golden song,
And sing it unafraid;
"There was a youth, once on a time,
Who dearly loved a maid."
—Kendall Banning, in Cornhill Booklet.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

LITTLE THINGS.

(Montreal Mail.)

The obstacles in our success usually are not big things, but little things—so little that we do not notice them, or, noting, despise them. The world contains no dearth of good and [illegible] people because so many of us dream all our days of doing far-off great things, but neglect to do the little things that lie right close at hand.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

A DEEP PROBLEM.

(Guelph Mercury)

The Melancthon Station correspondent of the Shelburne Free Press has been doin' some tall thinking. [illegible] the market. In fact the [illegible] 25 cents per bag. The correspondent has been [illegible] the prices paid for this staple [illegible]

[illegible]

How Zam-Buk Cures Skin Diseases

As soon as applied, Zam-Buk penetrates right to the very root of the disease and kills the cause thereof. The rich herbal essences then so stimulate the cells below the surface that new, healthy tissue is formed, which, as it grows, forces out the diseased tissue. Zam-Buk cures from the bottom up. This is the reason that sores and skin diseases cured by Zam-Buk do not return.

Zam-Buk is entirely different from all other ointments. It does not contain harsh mineral, or poisonous coloring matter. Nor does it contain coarse animal fats, which, in a short time, go rancid. Zam-Buk will keep indefinitely.

Many people have persevered by Zam-Buk after having suffered years and spent hundreds of dollars trying various remedies in vain. If you suffer from any skin disease or injury, benefit by the experiences of others. Try Zam-Buk first. Don't trouble with useless remedies.

Zam-Buk is unequalled for eczema, piles, pimples, cuts, burns, bruises, cold sores, frost bites, chapped hands, and all skin diseases and injuries.

We are so convinced that a trial of Zam-Buk will prove to you its superiority, that we will send you a FREE TRIAL box on receipt of this article, name of paper, and 1c. stamp to pay return postage. Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

All Druggists and Stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box.

EDITORIAL

THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1915.

SOME WAR ECHOES.

The torpedo and aerial warfare that is being waged against Great Britain by Germany can have no effect on the fortunes of the war, nor can it bring any glory to the Kaiser. The submarines have sunk a few ships and drowned a lot of innocent people, but that wins no battles nor does it help to starve the British people. The Zeppelin raids have apparently been begun, and should they continue they may result in considerable damage. We confess that we are somewhat disappointed that these immense aerial ships can cross to England, drop bombs and return home without hindrance. We would imagine that British aerial craft would be able to prevent such raids. Should a large number of these ships of the air manage to get across the North Sea they might be able to do incalculable damage. The torpedoing of a Dutch vessel bound from Baltimore to Rotterdam by a German submarine was an insane action, and will no doubt be fully resented by the Dutch Government and people. This action looks as if Von Tirpitz had proclaimed a blockade of the Dutch as well as the British coast.

A story comes from Rome that Germany would be willing to retire altogether from Belgium if that country would agree to drop hostilities as soon as the Germans were out of that territory. We do not believe that the Belgians would agree to any such step as this, unless they had the consent of the allies to do so. We have not heard of any of the Canadian Conservative grafters committing suicide to escape punishment, but one of the Hungarian grafters at Budapest took his own life recently. The news of his death was received with cheers by the public, who also clamored for the hanging of the other grafters, and six horse dealers have been clapped in jail. While the Tory newspapers are defending the Canadian grafters, it can be seen how they are being dealt with over in Hungary. Are we less jealous of our reputation than are the Hungarians?

EDITORIAL NOTES

The seaserpent should make its appearance among the submarines shortly.

While the Germans chew the rag the British soldiers ask for gum to chew.

Lord Kitchener's "uniformed crowd" seems to be able to make the other fellows move on.

The eight thousand names on the Government's patronage list would make good reading.

Premier Hearst was afraid to trust even one lone Grit on his Ontario License Commission.

On the question of votes for women, this war has shown that they deserve all that they can get.

The Rochester Herald says that the only way to get rid of the grafters is to take them out and hang them.

The Tories want an election so that the Commons can control the Senate. Would that be good for the country?

Sir Wilfrid will lead Mr. Oliver out of the party when he is found guilty. Garland and Foster are in another class.

The "honor roll" of the Canadian Parliament is lengthening. It's the price we pay for our loyalty to the Empire.

Why did the Government not arrange to give the British-born the right to a vote? Why legislate against the British born?

Premier Borden is slow in dealing with those pro-German newspapers of the Northwest. Is the Hon. Robert Rogers protecting them?

Every time you lick a war stamp think of the Kaiser, and give it another lick, says the Toronto World. But the war stamp is not to be used to fight the Kaiser. It's for other purposes.

Dr. H. Foster, the member for Kings, N. S., the man who [illegible] in the Nova Scotia boot deals, is the man who defeated the former Minister of Militia. Now he has [illegible] his defeat by means of the Militia Department.

A pretty fair forecast of the kind of political campaign the people of Canada are in for is supplied by Mr. Rogers' newspaper with its references to the Liberal leader as Sir Wilfrid von Laurier, says the Winnipeg Free Press.

Commenting on the charge that the G. T. R. Railway made stock in Mr. Oliver's newspaper, the Brantford Expositor says that the Manitoba Free Press was for a long time bound to the Canadian Pacific Company, and at the same time giving an unwavering support to the Conservative party.

It is pointed out that the Dominion Government, in four years, has dismissed 10,000 employees and engaged 21,000 in their place. Putting the salaries of the people thus awarded "patronage" at $1,000 per annum, we find that the salary list has been augmented by $11,000,000. No wonder that we have to buy war stamps.

The country will support the Liberals in accumulating facts for further investigation. Already they are in possession of information that will create still greater sensation. The question is, will they have to bring them out, because the men involved are related to or connected with men occupying high and influential positions. The Financial Post of Canada.

Then who are the men higher up who are mixed up with the grafters?

The report of the royal commission investigation in a year put the Hon. J. K. Flemming, Premier New Brunswick, out of politics in that Province. In spite of all this he has been allowed by the federal Conservative party to take the nomination in the county of Carleton, N. B., to run in opposition to Mr. Frank Carvell, the sitting member. Will Sir Robert Borden read him out of the party?

Certainly the so-called war taxes are not to be used for financing the war. But they are apparently being squandered in paying exorbitant prices to middlemen and grafters. Those who whine and protest about the Liberal newspapers showing up the seamy side of Tory morals, should tell us why hundreds of thousands of dollars were paid to a Seattle man over and above the value of the two submarines which were bought for the Government. They might also tell us why Premier Borden has not read Mr. Flemming out of the party?

The Montreal Star is a great Tory organ to oppose, but here is what it says about the grafting:

"The country has good sense of the sordid [illegible] in the past session. [illegible] we were engaged in sending forth the flower of the nation and sending our chivalry and devoted sons to face and defy death on the most murderous battle fields yet known to human history, and, right at home, there had been found faithless, cold-hearted and [illegible] who were seeking a petty personal profit out of the great need of the nation, and greedily filling their pockets with dishonest gains, while their brother-Canadians were pouring out their lives. It was a position to make us all heart sore and ashamed."

The Winnipeg Tribune is justly indignant at the Government allowing foreign journals in Canada to spread the poison of treason throughout the land. The Tribune says, Imagine a German journal in this city saying: "The English, however, have still much to lose, not indeed as far as honor and reputation are concerned, but to a large extent in material wealth." Is Ottawa asleep? Are there no representatives of British justice on the job in this province? "West Canada," the German weekly, may have done service for the Roblin Government in the elections. But there is a limit to license. It surely has been reached. Why does not the Dominion Government suppress all such newspapers? Because they are doing the work of the Tories.

Way of the Pessimist.

No doing anything with a pessimist. When you find a bright side for him he won't look at it for fear the light might blind him.—Atlanta Constitution.

Classifying Man.

Men may be divided into two classes. Those who regard whiskers as an ornament and those who hold shaving a sacred duty.—Atchison Globe.

SUFFERED WITH LAME BACK.

Could Hardly Straighten Up For Pain.

When the back becomes lame and starts to ache it is the sure sign of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure the aching back by curing the aching kidneys beneath—for it is really the kidneys aching and not the back.

This is why "Doan's" cures are lasting—the medicine cures the actual cause of the disease, the kidneys.

Mr. J. W. Aylett, South Oshawa, Ont., writes: "I have much pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Last summer I suffered with a lame back. Sometimes I could hardly straighten up for the pain. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to give them a trial. I can truthfully say that the second box cured me. I can recommend them to all as a speedy cure to all suffering with backache."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Was All Run Down WITH HEART TROUBLE AND NERVOUSNESS.

When the heart does not do its work properly and the nerves become unstrung the whole system becomes weak and run down, and needs building up before you can feel fit again.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you.

Mrs. Hugh Mosher, Chester Basin, N.S., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have suffered greatly with heart trouble and nervousness, and was all run down. I used lots of medicine, but received no benefit until I was advised to try your pills, and did so, and before I had finished the first box I felt so much better I got 5 boxes, and am now well and strong. I can truly say they are the best medicine I have ever used. I cannot praise them too highly. I recommend them to any one suffering from heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE Changeling

The paper was brought, and then seating herself by the window, Maggie looked out abstractedly, seeing nothing, and hearing nothing save the sound of the pen, as it wrote down words of love for the gentle Rose. It was not a long epistle; and, at the close of the Douglas letter he had asked a message from Theo, so now at the close of this he claimed one from Maggie.

"What shall I say for you?" he asked; and coming toward him, Margaret answered, "Tell her I love her, though I don't know who she is."

"Why have you never asked me?" queried Henry, and coloring crimson, Maggie answered hesitatingly, "I thought you would tell me if you wished me to know."

"Read this letter and that will explain who she is," the young man continued, offering the letter to Maggie, who, grasping it eagerly, sat down opposite, so that every motion of her face was visible to him.

The letter was as follows:

"My Darling Little Rose:

"Do you fancy some direful calamity has befallen me, because I have not written to you for more than a week? Away with your fears, then, for nothing worse has come upon me than a badly broken limb, which will probably keep me a prisoner here for two months or more. Now, don't be frightened, Rose, I am not crippled for life, and even if I were, I could love you just the same, while you, I'm sure, would love me the more.

"As you probably know, I left Worcester on Tuesday morning for the purpose of collecting some bills in this neighborhood. Arrived at Hillsdale, I procured a horse, and was sauntering leisurely through the woods, when I came suddenly upon a flying witch in the shape of a beautiful young girl. She was the finest rider I ever saw, and such a chase as she led me, until at last, to my dismay, she leaped across a chasm, down which a nervous little creature like you would be afraid to look. Not wishing to be outdone, I followed her, and, as a matter of course, broke my bones.

"Were it not that the accident will somewhat incommode Douglas, and greatly fidget you, I should not much regret it, for to me there is a peculiar charm about this old stone house and its quaint surroundings. But the greatest charm of all, perhaps, lies in my fair nurse, Maggie Miller, for whom I risked my neck. You two would be fast friends in a moment, and yet you are totally dissimilar, save that your voices are much alike.

"Write to me soon, dear Rose, and believe me ever

"Your affectionate brother,
"Henry."

"Oh," said Maggie, catching her breath, which for a time had been partially suspended, "Oh," and in that single monosyllable there was, to the young man watching her, a world of meaning. "She's your sister, this little Rose?" and the soft dark eyes flashed brightly upon him.

"What did you suppose her to be?" he asked, and Maggie answered, "I thought she might be your wife, although I should rather have her for a sister if I were you."

The young man smiled involuntarily, thinking to himself how his fashionable city friends would be shocked at such perfect frankness, which meant no more than their own studied airs.

"You are a good girl, Maggie," he said, at last, "and I would not for the world deceive you; Rose is my step-sister. We are in no way connected save by a marriage, still I love her all the same. We were brought up together by a lady who is aunt to both, and Rose seems to me like an own dear sister. She has saved me from almost everything. I once loved the wine cup; but her kindly words and gentle influence won me back, so that now I seldom taste it. And once I thought to run away to sea, but Rose found it out, and meeting me at the gate, persuaded me to return. It is wonderful, the influence she has over me, keeping my wild spirits in check, and if I am ever anything, I shall owe it all to her."

"Does she live in Worcester?" asked Maggie; and Henry answered, "No, in Leominster, which is not far distant. I go home once a month, and I fancy I can see Rose now, just as she looks when she comes tripping down the walk to meet me, her blue eyes shining like stars, and her golden curls blowing over her pale forehead. She is very, very frail; and sometimes when I look upon her, the dread fear steals over me that there will come a time, ere long, when I shall have no sister."

There were tears in Maggie's eyes, tears for the fair young girl whom she had never seen, and she felt a yearning desire to look once on the beautiful face of her whom Henry Warner called his sister. "I wish she would come here, I want to see her," she said, at last, and Henry replied, "She does not go often from home. But I have her daguerreotype in Worcester, I'll write to Douglas to bring it," and opening the letter, which was not yet sealed, he added a few lines. "Come, Maggie," he said, when this was finished, "you need exercise. Suppose you ride over to the office with these letters."

Maggie would rather have remained with him, but she expressed her willingness to go, and in a few moments was seated on Gritty's back, with the two letters clasped firmly in her hand. At one of these, the one bearing the name of Rose Warner, she looked often and wistfully. "Rose is such a beautiful name," she thought, "and she who bears it was beautiful, too." And then there arose within her a wish, shadowy and undefined to herself, that it were but still a wish that she, Maggie Miller, might one day call that gentle Rose her sister.

"I shall see her sometimes, anyway," she thought, "and this George Douglas, too. I wish Theo would stay at home," and having by this time reached the post-office, she deposited the letters and galloped rapidly toward home.

CHAPTER VII.

The large establishment of Douglas & Co. was closed for the night. The clerks had gone each to his own place, and Safford, the poor relation, the man of all work who attended faithfully to everything, growling often and growling oftener over the careless habits of "the boys," as he called the two young men, his employers, had sought his comfortless bachelor attic, where he slept always with one ear open, listening for any burglarious sound which might come from the store below, and which, had it come to him listening thus, would have frightened him half to death. George Douglas, too, the senior partner, of the firm, had retired to his own room, which was far more elegantly furnished than that of the old man in the attic, and now in a velvet easy chair he sat reading the letter from Hillsdale, which had arrived that evening, and a portion of which we subjoin for the reader's benefit.

After giving an account of his accident, and the manner in which it occurred, Warner continued:

"They say 'tis an ill wind which blows no one any good, and so I think, for I verily believe I suffer all a man can suffer with a broken bone; yet, when I look at the fair face of Maggie Miller, I feel that I would not exchange this high old bed, to enter which needs a short ladder, even for a seat for you at that three-legged stool, behind the old writing desk. I never saw anything like her in my life. Everything she thinks, she says, and as to flattering her, it can't be done. I've told her a dozen times at least that she was beautiful, and she didn't mind it any more than Rose does when I flatter her. Still, I fancy if I were to talk to her of love, it might make a difference, and perhaps I shall ere I leave the place.

"You know, George, I have always insisted there was but one female in the world fit to be a wife, and as that one was my sister, I should probably never know the pleasure of seeing any fit for Mrs. Henry Warner; but I've half changed my mind, and I'm terribly afraid this Maggie Miller, not content with breaking my bones, has nearly and really [illegible] another portion of the body called by physiologists the heart. I don't know how a man feels when he is in love, but when this Maggie Miller looks me straight in the face with her sparkling eyes, while her little soft white hand is putting back my hair (which, by the way, I slyly disarrange on purpose), I feel thrilled to the ends of my toes, and still I dare not hint such a thing to her. 'Twould frighten her off in a moment, and she'd send in her place either an old hag of a woman, called Hagar, or her proud sister Theo, whom I cannot endure.

"By the way, George, it's Theo that will just suit you, who are fond of aristocracy. She's proud as Lucifer. I think because she was born in England, and sprang from a high family, that there is no one in America worthy of her ladyship's notice, unless, indeed, he chances to have money. You ought to have seen how her eyes lighted up when I told her you were said to be worth two hundred thousand dollars. She told me directly to invite you out here, and this, I assure you, was a great deal for her to do. So don your best attire and [illegible] for a day or two. Old Safford will attend to the store. It's what he was made for, and he likes it. But as I am a Warner, so shall I do my duty, and warn you not to meddle with Maggie. She is my own exclusive property and altogether too good for a worldly fellow like you. Theo will suit you better. She's just aristocratic enough in her nature. I don't see how the two girls came to be so wholly unlike as they are. Why, I'd sooner take Maggie for Rose's sister than for Theo's.

"Bless me, I had almost forgotten to ask if you remember that stiff old English woman, with the snuff-colored satin, who came to our store some three years ago, and found so much fault with Yankee goods, as she called them? If you have forgotten her, you surely remember the two girls in flats, one of whom seemed so much distressed at her grandmother's remarks. She, the distressed one, was Maggie; the other was Theo, and the old lady was Madam Conway, who, luckily for me, chanced at this time to be in England, buying up goods, I presume. Maggie says that this trip to Worcester, together with a camp-meeting held in the Hillsdale woods last year, is the extent of her travels, and one would think so to see her. A perfect child of nature, full of fun, beautiful as a Hebe, and possessing the kindest heart in the world. If you wish to know more of her, come and see for yourself, but again I warn you, hands off; nobody is to flirt with her but myself, and it is very doubtful whether even I can do it peaceably, for that old Hagar, who, by the way, is a curious specimen, gave me to understand when I lay on the rock, with her sitting by a sort of ogress, that so long as she lived no city chap with strapped pants (do, pray, bring me a pair, George, without straps) and sneering mouth was going to fool with Margaret Miller.

"So, you see, my mouth is at fault again. Hang it all, I can't imagine what ails it that everybody should think I'm making fun of them. Even old Safford mutters about my making mouths at him when I haven't [illegible] of him in a month! Present my compliments to the old gentleman, and tell him one of 'the boys' thinks seriously of following his advice, which you know is to 'sow our wild oats and get a wife.' Do pray come, for I am only half alive without you.

"Yours in the brotherhood,
"Henry Warner."

For a time after reading the above, George Douglas sat wrapt in thought, then bursting into a laugh as he thought how much the letter was like the jovial, light-hearted fellow who wrote it, he put it aside, and leaning back in his chair mused long and silently, not of Theo but of Maggie, half wishing he were in Warner's place instead of being there in the dusty city. But as this could not be, he contented himself with thinking that at some time not far distant he would visit the old stone house, would see for himself this wonderful Maggie—also, though he had been warned against it, would possibly win her from his friend, who, unconsciously perhaps, had often crossed his path, watching him jealously lest he should look too often and too long upon the fragile Rose, blooming so sweetly in her bird's nest of a home among the tall old trees of Leominster.

"But he need not fear," he said somewhat bitterly, "he need not fear for her, for it is over now. She has refused me, this Rose Warner, and though it touched my pride to hear her tell me no, I cannot hate her for it. She had given her love to another, she said and Warner is blind or crazy that he does not see the truth. But it is not for me to enlighten him. He may call her sister if he likes, though there is no tie of blood between them. I'd rather it would be thus than something nearer;" and slowly rising up, George Douglas retired to dream of a calm, almost heavenly face, which but the day before had been bathed in tears as he told to Rose Warner the story of his love. Mingled, too, with that dream was another face, a laughing sparkling, merry face, upon which no man ever yet had looked and escaped with a whole heart.

The morning light dispelled the dream, and when in the store old Safford inquired "What news from the boy?" the senior partner answered gravely that he was lying among the Hillsdale hills, with a broken leg, caused by a fall from his horse.

"Always was a careless elder," muttered old Safford, mentally deploring the increased amount of labor which would necessarily fall upon him, but which he performed without a word of complaint.

The fair May blossoms were faded and the last June roses were blooming ere George Douglas found time or inclination to accept the invitation indirectly extended to him by Theo Miller. Rose Warner's refusal had affected him more than he chose to confess, and the wound must be slightly healed ere he could find pleasure in the sight of another. Possessed of many excellent qualities, he had unfortunately fallen into the error of thinking that almost any one whom he should select would take him for his money. And when Rose Warner, sitting by his side in the shadowy twilight, had said, "I cannot be your wife," the shock was sudden and hard to bear. But the first keen bitterness was over now, and remembering "the wild girls of the woods," as he mentally styled both Theo and Maggie, he determined at last to see them for himself.

Accordingly, on the last day of June, he started for Hillsdale, where he intended to remain until after the Fourth. To find the old house was an easy matter, for almost every one in town was familiar with its locality, and toward the close of the afternoon he found himself upon its broad steps, applying vigorous strokes to the ponderous brass knocker, and half hoping the summons would be answered by Maggie herself. But it was not, and in the tall, white-haired woman, who came with measured footsteps, we recognize old Hagar, who spent much of her time at the house and who came to the door in compliance with the request of the young ladies, both of whom, from an upper window, were curiously watching the stranger.

"Just the old witch one would expect to find in this out-of-the-way place," thought Mr. Douglas, while at the same time he asked "if this were Madam Conway's residence, and if a young man by the name of Warner were staying here?"

"Another city beau!" muttered Hagar, as she answered in the affirmative, and ushered him into the parlor. "Another city beau, there'll be high carryings on now, if he's anything like the other one, who's come mighty nigh turning the house upside down."

"What did you say?" asked George Douglas, catching the sound of her muttering, and thinking she was addressing himself.

"I wasn't speaking to you. I was talking to a likelier person," answered old Hagar, in an undertone, as she shuffled away in quest of Henry Warner, who by this time was able to walk with the help of a cane.

The meeting between the young men was a joyful one, for, though George Douglas was a little sore on the subject of Rose, he would not suffer a matter like that to come between him and Henry Warner, whom he had known and liked from boyhood. Henry's first inquiries were naturally of a business character, and then George Douglas spoke of the young ladies, saying he was only anxious to see Theo, for he knew, of course, he should dislike the other.

Such, however, is wayward human nature, that the fair, pale face and quiet, dignified manner of Theo Miller, had greater attractions for a person of George Douglas' peculiar temperament than had the dashing, brilliant Mag. There was a resemblance, he imagined, between Theo and Rose, and this of itself was sufficient to attract him toward her. Theo, too, was equally pleased; and when, that evening, Madam Jeffrey faintly interposed her fast departing authority, telling her quondom pupils it was time they were asleep, Theo did not, as usual, heed the warning, but sat very still beneath the vine-wreathed portico, listening while George Douglas told her of the world which she had never seen. She was not proud toward him, for he possessed the charm of money, and as he looked down upon her, conversing with him so familiarly, he wondered how Henry could have called her cold and haughty—she was merely dignified, high-bred, he thought, and George Douglas liked anything which savored of aristocracy.

Meanwhile, Henry and Mag had wandered to a little summer-house, where, with the bright moonlight falling upon them, they sat together, but not exactly as of old, for Maggie did not now look up into his face as she was wont to do, and if she thought his eyes were resting upon her, she moved uneasily, while the rich blood mounted to her cheek. A change has come over Maggie Miller. It is the old story, too old to hundreds of them, but new to her, the blushing maiden. Theo calls her nervous—Mrs. Jeffrey calls her sick—the servants call her mighty queer, while old Hagar, hovering ever near, and watching her with a jealous eye, knows she is in love.

Faithfully and well had Hagar studied Henry Warner to see if there were aught in him of evil, and though he was not what she would have chosen for the queenly Mag, she was satisfied if Margaret loved him and he loved Margaret. "But did he? He had never told her so," and in Hagar Warren's wild dark eyes there was a savage gleam as she thought: "He'll rue the day that he dares trifle with Maggie Miller."

(To be Continued.)

Common Course.

"What course is Sarah studying at that boarding school?" "I can't remember, but I think it's cosmetics."—Stanford Chaparral.

Seeking Information.

Little Wife—How do you like messaline and brocaded satin with chiffon over velvet? Hubby—What are you talking about—clothes or the platform of the woman's party?—Chicago News.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON VI.

May 9, 1915. Friendship of David and
Print 20: 32-42.
Jonathan.—1 Samuel 20:1-42.

Commentary.—I. The covenant (vs. 1-23). 1-10. David had fled from Saul to Samuel at Ramah and was there in the school of the prophets. Saul had learned where he was, and had pursued him. David fully realized his danger, and returned to Gibeah and sought an interview with his trusted friend, Jonathan. He asked him what he had done that Saul should seek to slay him. Jonathan assured David that his father would take no step without letting him know about it, and he would report to him any designs his father might have against him. David was aware that Saul knew of Jonathan's friendship for him, and saw in that fact a reason why he would not reveal to Jonathan his plans to cause David's death. David gave utterance to the memorable words, "There is but a step between me and death" (v. 3). Jonathan was ready to do for David whatever he desired, and when David planned a test to determine Saul's present attitude toward him, he readily consented to do his part. The new moon, or the beginning of the month, was an occasion for offering sacrifices to God. It had become a season of feasting in the king's court, and all the chief officers of the king were expected to be present. David would not expose himself to death by being present, so he planned to absent himself and have a report brought to him as to how the king felt toward him.

11-23. Jonathan and David went into the field and consulted how information concerning Saul might be given by Jonathan to David secretly. Jonathan pledged to David that, when he had sounded his father, he would inform him whether his attitude was friendly or hostile. Jonathan seems to have known that David would succeed Saul as king, and he therefore asked a pledge from David to show kindness to him and his house forever. It was customary for a king upon ascending the throne to slay all who might have any apparent claim to reign. David gave his word, as Jonathan requested, and his subsequent history shows how he remembered the covenant and kept it. Jonathan's love for David is emphatically expressed in "He loved him as he loved his own soul" (v. 17).

II. Jonathan's fruitless plea (vs. 24-34). 24-31. David hid himself in the field, according to the plan agreed upon between himself and Jonathan, absenting himself from the feast in the royal court. On the first day Saul observed that his seat was vacant, but thought David's absence was because he was not ceremonially clean. His absence on the second day called for an inquiry, and he asked Jonathan for an explanation. Jonathan told him that David had asked permission to attend a family feast at Bethlehem, and he had granted it. This led Saul to make unkind charges against his son. He reproached him with being the son of a "perverse, rebellious woman" (v. 30). "To any oriental nothing is so grievously insulting as a reproach cast upon his mother. The mother herself is not held to be affronted in such cases, but the son who hears such words applied to her is insulted, and meant to be insulted beyond expiation."—Kitto. Saul charged Jonathan with being in league with David. Then he appealed to Jonathan's ambition, declaring that as long as David lived there would be no hope of his occupying the throne of Israel, and commanded him to have David brought to him that he might be put to death.

32. Wherefore shall he be slain—Although Jonathan saw that his father was angry both at him and at David, he undertook the defence of his friend. What hath he done—Jonathan asked Saul a question that he could not answer and be consistent with his determination to kill David. David had been the means of preserving the kingdom of Israel. More than once he had defeated the Philistines. He had constantly acted in the highest interests of his nation. He had not been discourteous to the king, even under the greatest provocation. He had shown himself to be brave, large-hearted and highly intelligent. It was now more than a mere fit of madness with Saul; there had come to be a settled purpose to slay David. 33. Saul cast a javelin at him—The king could not answer his son's question, and his only reply was to hurl at him the javelin that was always within easy reach. Jonathan knew—The fact that Saul would kill his own son for being a friend to David was enough to convince Jonathan that David's life was in serious jeopardy. Saul's unfitness to rule was evident from his course toward David, even overlooking his past misdeeds. He was more concerned to have vengeance upon one of whom he was jealous than to have righteousness prevail in his kingdom. 34. In fierce anger—Jonathan had been deeply insulted by his father, but he was overlooking that and giving attention to Saul's disposition toward his friend David. "We should probably understand this rather of Jonathan's grief than of his anger, the latter explaining the former; for he was grieved for David, he was grieved for his father; he was grieved for his friend."—Clarke. Because his father had done him shame—Saul had wronged David publicly by speaking as if he might be plotting to gain the kingdom for himself. He was greatly injuring David's reputation, or he was, at least, taking a course to weaken David's influence.

III. The loving farewell (vs. 35-42). 35. In the morning after the second day of the feast from which David had absented himself. At the time appointed with David. It was a time to which David had looked forward with intense interest, for he was to learn Saul's mind regarding him. A little lad was with him—To bring back the arrows he was to shoot. 36. He shot ... beyond him—It was understood between David and Jonathan that if Jonathan should shoot the arrows beyond where David was, that Saul's mind was hostile toward him. The lad would know nothing of the purpose of the shooting, but David would understand. 37. Jonathan cried after the lad. If David did not see the course of the arrow, his friend's call to the lad, "Is not the arrow beyond thee?" would give him the signal agreed upon, and if he had seen it, the knowledge sought would be twice given. 38. Make speed, haste, stay not—Jonathan sent this cry after the lad, but it was really directed to David. The lad suspected nothing, but caught the full import of the words. 39. Jonathan and David knew—The signal had been agreed upon previously. 40. Artillery—His bow, arrows and quiver. This word was used of weapons thrown or hurled, even before gunpowder came into use. Carry them to city—Jonathan sent the boy away that he might be alone with David.

41. Fell on his face to the ground—David showed his respect to Jonathan as to a superior in Oriental style by falling upon his knees and touching his forehead to the ground. Three times. David was deeply grateful to Jonathan for his interest in him and thus expressed his gratitude and obligation. David exceeded—David was more deeply moved than Jonathan. His weeping was more abundant than that of his friend. 42. Go in peace—Jonathan had made it possible for David to escape with his life. We have sworn both of us—David and Jonathan had sworn to each other to be friends and to have regard for each other's families. The Lord be between me and thee—We may well believe that when, in after years, David drew to his court the posterity of Jonathan, he often told them himself of these last events before their separation.—Ewald.

QUESTIONS.—To what place did David go from Naioth? To what friend did David tell his grief? In what way did Jonathan show his friendship for David? What plan was made to find out Saul's attitude toward David? How did Saul feel toward Jonathan? How did Jonathan let David know how Saul felt toward him? What covenant did Jonathan and David make? What was the basis of the friendship existing between them?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—True friendship.
I. Began in covenant with God.
II. Constant amid life's perils.

I. Began in covenant with God. David became aware that Saul's attempts on his life were not to be ascribed to fitful outbursts of madness, but to a fixed purpose, and for reasons he could not fathom. Saul was sullen and morose, charged to the full with envy and malice, ready for deeds of blood, yet fearful of a doom of which he dared not speak. A crisis had come in David's life which demanded prompt action. While in conflict with Goliath and amid the regular duties of public service, David had no fear for his life or reputation, but when he suspected secret attempts on his life and character, he felt bound to devise means of securing himself and rightly manifested such anxiety and resolution. Jonathan appears to have been in authority with his father in all matters pertaining to the court and government, and yet it was a very difficult matter to find out Saul's mind. It involved no little risk to Jonathan. Saul's spirit and conduct were evidence that all efforts to bring him to a right attitude were in vain. Saul assumed that policy and prudence would regulate the succession of the throne. Jonathan's love for David and spiritual insight enabled him to see through the fallacy and to make his choice. He was proof against unholy parental influence, against material consideration delusively presented and even threatened death. The manner in which he performed his part is a beautiful instance of wise and faithful friendship under most perilous circumstances. He dared to let the court know his preference for the spiritual over the material. That was heroism which required more courage than to go amid their cheers to the cannon's mouth. To Saul's selfish heart this nobleness of love and self forgetfulness seemed nothing but self-will and sheer madness. Hatred had become the pervading spirit of Saul's life and it gave a coloring to everything. At the very beginning of the dark valley of trial through which David had to pass in consequence of Saul's jealousy, he was blessed with Jonathan's friendship. They entered into covenant in the name of Jehovah.

II. Constant amid life's perils. Jonathan's love for David began in the midst of his new-born popularity, but it lasted all through his reverses. While Jonathan was always faithful to David, he was never false to his father. His conduct was most exemplary, eminently practical, and wholly unselfish. He had espoused the cause of right against might. The spontaneity and heartiness with which he laid aside all prospects of power and distinction and his rights to the throne, finding joy and satisfaction in the coming supremacy of David, proved his friendship to be of an eminently holy character. He carried in his heart a tender secret, that of being bound by holy bonds to the interests of a coming king. To befriend David was to displease Saul, yet there was no faltering in Jonathan's fidelity. He was indignant against injury and wickedness. He pleaded for right and innocence. He was indignant at the base insinuations against the noblest and purest of men. Being able to surrender his own prospects, he could strengthen the faith of his friend, when pressed almost beyond endurance, and weary with continued flight. He considered the loneliness and oppressed state of David. He had come into great peril in the service of God. David's description of his own condition was that there was but a step between him and death. Through the office of friendship God mercifully provided for his safety against an enraged and envious king. It was Jonathan who brought a delightful oasis in this wilderness history. The separation between David and Jonathan was one of the painful trials of life, yet they had an inalienable possession in their mutual affection, a strong and an habitual inclination to promote the good and happiness of each other. While the arrows of Jonathan indicated danger and that separation would be for the welfare of both and the further interests of the kingdom, they reminded David that a strong and noble friend was standing in the breach.

T. R. A.

Between Citizens.

He was abusing things in general.

"Have you registered?" asked the other man.

"N-n-no."

"A citizen should always register. Your vote will do more to correct matters than your criticism."—Pittsburgh Post.

THE OLD STORY.

(Buffalo News)

Another tragedy of yesterday was the death of [illegible] J. [illegible] who stole more than $10,000 of depositors' money some years ago. Yesterday just before he succumbed to tuberculosis he sent a final message: "Tell my old friends I paid for my folly with my life. Gambling did it all."

CANADIAN BANK
OF COMMERCE

HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies
or other valuables in one of these boxes

B. 29

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY, MANAGER, Walkerton Ont

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published
every Thursday morning at
Walkerton, Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in vance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY,
Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

NO TIME FOR ELECTION

Talk of a Dominion election in June or midsummer has quieted down a good deal, and it need surprise nobody if we hear no more about it.

Strong opposition to the holding of an election was developing, and now the long list of Canadian dead and wounded again riveting all attention upon the European war, about settles the matter. It ought to at any rate. A fine spectacle we should be in the eyes of the world, engulfed in petty strife of a needless election while thousands of our men and boys are falling in the battle lines. With war at its height, as it shall be in June, an election is unthinkable. It would be a disgrace.

SCHOOL GRANTS REDUCED 20 PER. CENT

A reduction of 20 per cent in urban public school grants is announced in instructions to inspectors from the Education Dept. Urban school grants have always been small and while public school teachers' salaries have increased considerably during the past ten years, Government urban grants have been almost stationary, and now they are to take a drop of 20 per cent. The town ratepayer will now get a partial dose of what the rural ratepayer got last year when grants were reduced 28 per cent. This year the reduction in country schools will be 36.3 per cent and sections with a large assessment will under the sliding scale system have to depend almost entirely of meeting the expenses of the school by direct taxation. The same is true of town and village public schools but they will not be hit so hard if they have a high school. The cost of maintaining public schools will soon have to be borne entirely by the respective school sections. This is the time of larger salaries and smaller grants.

INFERIOR LIGHTNING RODS

Again I wish to warn the farmers of Ontario against inferior lightning rods. One of the same companies that buncoed the farmers with iron-centred rods last year is reported to be selling the same rod again this year. Watch out for them.

There is no difficulty in spotting these rods. The outside covering is a thin sheet of copper. Inside of the copper is a strip of galvanized steel or iron one half inch wide and two galvanized steel or iron wires about No. 10. The copper sheath is twisted around the strip and wires giving the rod a corrugated appearance. The steel or iron will rust out in from five to ten years. For photograph of what happened to a rod of this kind see figure 34, bulletin 220, which may be had by writing the Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

An Illinois firm is circularizing trade and others advocating the "Mast" Lightning Rod system. They declare that twisted cables are positively dangerous, claiming they act like "choke coils", that tubes only should be used, that insulators must be used, etc. For concentrated essence of error these circulars surpass anything else I have seen.

Beware of the man with the iron-centred rod and the man who claims that twisted cables are dangerous. This department will be glad to be informed regarding the operations of either.

Department of Physics,
O. A. C. Guelph.
Wm. H. Day.

THE PATHOS OF IT !

Here is a letter which shows how many even of the Russian, German and Austrian soldiers feel, and suggests what must be the condition of millions of homes in those countries. The letter was found on the body of a young Bavarian soldier who, wounded, was taken prisoner, and later died in a French hospital. It came into the hands of a member of the Canadian Army Medical Corps, who had it translated, and later forwarded to the dead German's mother for whom it was intended. It tells its own sad tale: The translation runs as follows:

"Dear Mother,—For three months we have been in the battle. Heavens what it has all been. The greatness of the Fatherland and the glory of our Kaiser seem after all small things, and neither United Germany nor our Emperor can need all this bloodshed. I cannot tell you what a picture of hell passes ceaselessly before my eyes. I seem to be diving into a red dream and among flames. Of what use to me will have been my studies and my hopes to make you happy in your old age, dying miserably here for some mysterious cause. Thousands of us will die for this cause good and faithful comrades of mine who, like myself asked only to die in peace and at work. I have seen hell in the hail of lead and iron. It is not possible to win this war, and every day lessens our strength. I cannot send this letter in the ordinary way, for it tells the truth, and I should be severely punished if it were read by our chiefs. It will be sent to you I hope by the man who picks me up if I die on the soil of France, which I wish I had never set foot on. My last thoughts will be for you. Goodbye till eternity, my sweet, darling mother."—Otto Kiagister.

Robbers Apprehended.

Between 6 and 7 o'clock on Sunday evening last Mr. R. S. McGee had occasion to visit his grocery store and found two boys about fifteen years of age in his store, having gained an entrance through the back cellar window. The boys were handed over to the authorities and we understand they have confessed to having been responsible for the robberies at the Wm. Davies Co's. office, the G. T. R. station, Mason's and Isard's stores. The boys were given a hearing on Monday afternoon and were remanded for a week. It is fortunate that the boys were caught and will thus be checked in their bad career.—Wingham Times.

Medals Awarded at Chesley.

The receiving of prizes by boys and girls for proficiency in school work always marks a red-letter day in their educational careers. On Wednesday April 14th, there was a small gathering of those interested in education in Principal Sanderson's form of the Public School when M. A. Halliday presented Brian S., son of Inspector McCool with a beautiful gold medal for highest marks obtained at the Entrance examination in Bruce County in 1914. The donor made a neat speech congratulating Brian on his educational achievement. Inspector McCool replied for his son who had come over from Walkerton to receive the handsome gift of our townsman. Mr. Halliday's prize of a silver medal for the highest marks won at this centre went to Florence daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Krug, as also did McNeel's award of $5 for highest proficiency in Mr. Sanderson's room. Chairman McNeel of the Public School Board made a neat speech in awarding his prize. Ex-Mayor Conrad Krug's prize of $5 to the best writer in the Entrance form had been given some time ago as were also Dr. Downing's prize of $3 to Eugene Stevens for highest marks in Hygiene and $2 to Bert Krug for being second highest in Hygiene.—Chesley Enterprise.

The streets of Mildmay will be treated to a coat of oil this summer.

May 24th, Empire Day, will be celebrated in Southampton this year.

Mr. C. W. Keeling has returned to his home in Cargill after spending the winter in town.—Listowel Banner.

Messrs. Peter Culliton and Otto Schauss spent last Sunday visiting with Walkerton and Hanover friends.—Ayton Advance.

Why doesn't the Dominion Govt. print a three cent stamp for use on letters instead of compelling the use of a two and one cent stamp?

Seeding operations will be pretty well completed in this vicinity this week. The seed was put in good shape this year and all that is needed is a few good showers of rain to bring the crops right along.

A bear is at large in Glenelg, near Durham. While plowing on his newly leased farm near Zion last week, Mr. Dan McAuliffe perceived a large bruin enter the field, gaze a few moments and disappear. Others it seems have also noticed him.

The temperance people of Teeswater have taken steps to enforce the provision of the Local Option by-law, and have appointed Robter Trench a constable for that purpose. Mr. Trench is a strong believer in sobriety and will do his best to bring illegal booze vendors to justice.

Boys were Fined.

Two Hanover boys were up before Magistrate Telford this week for riding bicycles on the sidewalks contrary to the town by laws. They were fined. Two more Hanover boys were assessed for idlying around the street corners. Constable Besnoth intends to prosecute every loafer he catches hanging around doorways or street corners.—Post.

Advance in Teacher's Salary.

According to a report of Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education the increase in teacher's salaries during the past five years was particularly noticeable in the rural schools, where it was needed most. In that time the average female teacher in the rural school was raised from $382 to $521, while the male teacher was advanced from $462 to $601. Female teachers in urban schools were advanced from $516 to $617 and male teacher from $955 to $1225.00.

Germans Set Fire to Bridges.

German sympathizers are alleged to have fired Granville and Connaught bridges, the main arteries of railroad traffic southward, Vancouver on Thursday last. The great Connaught bridge will be a total loss. The wind is unfavorable for the destruction of the Granville structure and it probably will be saved. Together the bridges cost over a million dollars. These fires followed immediately after the Government this week started a rounding up of all Germans and Austrians in detention camps. Following the announcement of heavy casualties among Canadians at Langemarck, the Germans here made a demonstration at Point Gray.

Are you a Quitter.

Of course you have read the story of Gideon's band, but it would not do any harm to read it over again. It is a story with several good morals in it. There were twenty thousand quitters in Gideon's little army, nearly two-thirds of the whole muster. And though the great soldier needed men very badly as it seemed, he sent every one of the twenty thousand home. He was afraid that when it came to a pinch, and he was depending on them, they would fail him, and thus throw the whole engagement into confusion. As he saw it, and we might add that the Lord agreed with him, he was better equipped without those than he would have been with them. And, Mr. Quitter, that is one of the strong truths that this old story hands out to you—if you are not going to keep at the job and help to finish it up, the chances are that you will prove more of a nuisance than a help. If you are going to quit when the pinch comes you will spoil the job, and spoil it badly.—Christian Guardian.

Postal Laws of Canada.

Under the Post Office Act, Sections 65 and 66, the Postmaster General has the exclusive privilege of receiving, collecting, conveying and delivering letters within Canada. Bills and accounts whether open or sealed envelopes, as well as circulars or other printed matter enclosed in envelopes sealed or ready to be sealed, are "Letters" within the meaning of the Post Office Act. There is a penalty under Section 136 of the Post Office Act which may amount to $20.00 for each letter unlawfully carried. It has been brought to the attention of the Post Office Dep't that some business firms desiring to avoid paying the War Tax which became effective on the 15th April, propose making arrangements for the delivery of accounts, bills, circulars etc., through means other than the Post Office, contrary to the Postal Act, and a warning is hereby given that the Post Office Department intends to insist that the law shall be rigidly lived up to, and will in no circumstances allow these parties to avoid paying the one cent tax which has been imposed for war purposes. All letters conveyed, received, collected, sent or delivered in contravention of the Post Office Act will be seized and necessary steps immediately taken for the prosecution of the offenders in all cases where the law has been contravened.

John, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Steffler of Ambleside, who underwent three operations at the Bruce County hospital for stomach trouble last winter, is now recovering very nicely.

Peter Todd, for over 40 years a resident of Walkerton, died in that town on Saturday. The late Mr. Todd was well known in Chesley as he was for several years a judge on dairy products and roots at our Fall Fair.—Chesley Enterprise.

Hydro Getting Busy.

A gang of surveyors have been staking a line from Eugenia to Durham and stakes are visible along road and street sides where poles are to go. We hope progress will be rapid and that the new system will commend itself to all as a distinct advance in community life.—Durham Review

The sentence that His Honor Judge Klein gave the Indian Elliott will commend itself to everyone in this district. Wife beating, whether by black or white is brutal and the lash is the proper punishment. A good severe sentence is always healthful and light sentences have little or no effect whatever upon Preventing crime. Wiarton Echo.

Power Line to Formosa.

Two carloads of poles arrived here last week for the Formosa Electric Light Company, Limited. This company will erect poles from South's mill along the Walkerton road, south to the 12th Concession and westward along the said Concession to the Elora road, and thence into the village of Formosa. Farmers en route will be supplied with electrical energy if required.—Gazette.

Six Contributed Succession Duties.

In the County of Bruce last year six person contributed $9,577.78 to the Ontario Govt in Succession Duties. With the exemption cut in two this year there will be more revenue from this source providing, of course, that the usual number of wealthy men die. The receipts from Succession Duties in Grey County were $1,174.21. The estates in Bruce that gave a percentage of their wealthy to the revenue of this province last year were as follows: Mrs. Henry Cargill $1,834.21 Robt. Findle of Bruce $48.10 ... Howe, $1,238.76; John Mc Ivor $88; Donald McLeod, $50; R.E. Moore of Lion's Head, $589.00; John O'Hagen of Elderslie $699.03—Chesley Enterprise.

He Knows.

Art. Wesley, editor of The Bruce Herald and Times, of Walkerton, himself married less than a year ago, and therefore an authority, writes as follows:—"Five happy, laughing, wedding couples on whom the nuptial knot had just been tied, drove into Walkerton on Tuesday and had their pictures taken. It is always well to get them taken before the smile comes off, for pictures of married couples when taken later always seem to be minus the smiles. It is, therefore, nice for the grooms to look back and see how happy they once were before wrestling with coal bills and the raise in flour. Know nothing, fear nothing, probably accounts for the smiles on most wedding photos, but the man who is caught laughing later should be viewed with suspicion.

Spring Cleaning.

Last week we made mention of the the need of a day to be set apart by the council as a day for spring cleaning of vacant lots, backyards, lanes etc. We notice from the Owen Sound Times that the Mayor of Owen Sound has proclaimed a half holiday on Arbor Day for such a purpose as we have mentioned above. In the western provinces this custom is very general. Captains are appointed for each block in town and a prize is offered for the captain who has the cleanest block at the end of the day. On taking a walk around our town we think that it would be a good thing if our town could have some sort of cleaning. Let us have the opinions of some of our citizens on this point so that something may be done to make our fair town look like what it should instead of a general dump for rubbish.

Carried out Comrade's Wishes.

A despatch from Harriston says:—Last August when the Harriston men left for Valcartier to join the first contingent they were escorted to the station by a large number of citizens carrying flags. One of the flags was presented to Private Jas Corcoran as he stepped on the train. He prized that flag very much, and kept it safely at Valcartier and Salisbury Camps. Before leaving Salisbury for France he wrote that he had instructed his comrades in the event of anything happening to him that they should send the flag back to the Daughters of the Empire. Private Corcoran was killed in the trenches on March 5, and his comrades, true to their promise, sent the flag, which was received here yesterday, by Mrs. Meiklejohn, Regent of General Wolfe, Chapter. The flag has considerable mud of the trenches upon it, and several stains of blood, no doubt that of the gallant Canadian who gave his life for his country.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, ss.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

(Seal) A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The official announcement has been made that the expeditionary troops training in London and Guelph are to concentrated in Guelph for the summer. Dissatisfaction at the decision is expressed at London.

Of the Queen's Own Rifles, a Toronto regiment, which went to the front with the first contingent, only five officers of twenty-eight remain in the ranks. The Queen's Own was in the battle of Langemark.

Henry Schuitteis went to Walkerton on Saturday evening and returned on Monday morning with his son Wilfrid, who underwent a serious operation in the Bruce Co. hospital a month ago. The boy is doing nicely.—Mildmay Gazette.

Walter Scheuer of Walkerton is here this week connecting up Herrgott Bros' new electric motor which was installed this week in the foundry. It is expected that after the 1st of May this industry will be operated by electrical energy.—Mildmay Gazette

Locating in Mildmay.

We learn that Dr. H. Zinn, of Hanover a recent graduate of Toronto Dental College, has decided to locate in Mildmay, and has leased the rooms over John Hunstein's store, formerly occupied by Dr. Doering. Dr Zinn purposes installing an up-to-date plant.—Mildmay Gazette.

The Ontario Government's scheme of taxing the bar receipts, brought them in $300,000 extra revenue. And stors make the rounds of the hotels of the province for the purpose of checking, and an interesting feature is that they are proceeding on the assumption that the hotel makes 100 p. c. profit, and on this basis the government takes five per cent from the sales.

Division Court Statistics.

The government blue book indicates that Wiarton holds the record of leading in the number of cases, and the fees paid our officials.

Place	Cases	Pd Clerk	Pd Bailiff
Wiarton	162	$380	$322
Walkerton	92	387	270
Teeswater	118	300	150
Kincardine	43	157	77
Paisley	47	128	61
Port Elgin	44	117	112
Tara	51	98	50
Ripley	53	97
Lions Head	27	62
Lucknow	98	100	91
Chesley	87	173	85

Pretty "Cheap"—

The Banner entered suit this week against one subscriber in town who has taken the paper for the past four years and when asked to settle up said he had never ordered it and refused to pay. We don't know whether he did or not. It was before our time. But we do know that he has been receiving the paper regularly and that therefore according to the postal laws, he is responsible for the pay. Imagine the nerve of a fellow who would take a paper for four years, never refuse it, and then when asked to settle, say he had never ordered it. We hope other papers haven't any subscribers as "cheap as this one on their list.—Listowel Banner.

Rod and Gun.

Rod and Gun for May published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., is out with an interesting list of contents. Edward T. Martin contributes an article "Have the Pigeons Returned" dealing with the possible recurrence of the passenger pigeon, which has been pronounced extinct by as great an authority as Prof. Hornaday of New York. "A Ram of the Stormycut" is a Western story of a ram whom its pursuers regarded as a creature of the evil one. How its propensity for vanishing into thin air was finally explained and the ram secured is most entertainingly related by Ray Giddings. Other stories and the regular departments combine to make an exceptionally interesting number of this well known sportsman's magazine.

Home Boy Attempted Suicide.

Last Saturday morning a severe shock greeted Mrs. Dan McArthur, north of town, when on entering the shed, she viewed their home boy, Jos. Sewell, suspended by a rope. The young man had been with them a few months, was a Barnado boy, and never had had a quarrel or cross word with any of the family. He had stepped out into the shed before breakfast for a pail of water and in not more than five minutes, not having returned, Mrs. McArthur opened the door, to see him hanging by a rope used to hold up the pump handle, with legs bent to keep from touching the floor. The boy was then growing black in the face, and calling her son Stewart, they quickly released him. Medical aid was secured but it was four p. m. before he regained consciousness or spoke. A representative from the home arrived on Monday and took the unfortunate boy back to Toronto where he will be medically examined as to sanity. The boy ascribed no reason, nor can any motive for his rash act be arrived at by the McArthur's, in fact, to the Inspector he denied having ever used the rope for the purpose. He had with them a splendid home, and no irritation whatever was known of. The most fortunate circumstance of the affair was the timely arrival of Mrs. McArthur before a tragedy had occurred as a few minutes more would doubtless have been too late. Mr. Jos. Firth is kindly assisting in the farm work, since the boy's absence, during Mr. McArthur's prolonged illness.—Durham Review.

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Paralyzed Bowels and Digestion

ST. BONIFACE DE SHAWINIGAN, QUE.
Feb. 3rd. 1914.

"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for 2½ years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralyzed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cure.

MAGL PAQUIN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Fines to the extent of $109 were collected from Owen Sound Chinamen on Monday for gambling. When one of the convicted Chinese was asked why he kept gambling devices on his premises he said: "Sometimes me get lonesome."

Our correspondents and others who send in copy for publication will note that there is no war tax on such matter if the envelope is left unsealed. Mr. A. W. Throop, secretary of the Postmaster General writes to a brother publisher that "the war tax does not apply to such printer's copy as is admitted to the mails in open envelopes at the printed matter rate of one cent for two ounces. In fact, so far as the Post Office is concerned, this tax is restricted to letters (including all papers which require to be prepaid at letter rate), post cards, postal notes and money orders." This does not seem to quite harmonize with the circulars in open envelopes.

BULGARIA

To the south of Rumania, and divided from it by the Danube, lies the kingdom of Bulgaria, with its eastern front on the Black Sea and the Serbian border on the west.

Population in 1910, 4,317,000.

The Balkan Mountains run east and west through the heart of the country.

At the outbreak of the recent war with Turkey, its area was 37,240 sq. miles. In 1901 its population was 3,744,283, at which time it was estimated that 1,500,000 Bulgars lived outside its limits. The Bulgars are patient, enduring, industrious and thrifty, but reserved and superstitious and almost entirely illiterate.

PRODUCTS

Agriculture, the main source of wealth, and the occupation of 75 per cent of the people, is in an extremely primitive condition. Wheat, corn, rye, barley, oats, rice and millet and rice are grown; also grapes, tobacco, silk and cotton.

The mineral wealth with the exception of coal remains unexploited.

Manufactures are unimportant, but a homespun of excellent quality is made.

The principal exports are cereals, (80 per cent.) homespuns, hides, cheese, eggs, attar of roses. The imports are textiles, metal goods, implements, furniture, leather, and petroleum.

Special this Month

Business Courses

The Walkerton Business College is offering special rates for a three months' commercial course in the following subjects:—Penmanship, Spelling, Arithmetic, Commercial law, Introductory forms to single and double entry, Book-keeping and Typewriting. Now is the time for the young people of this vicinity to improve their education. for further information regarding this course, apply to

P. J. MOLONEY
Principal Walkerton

Walkerton
Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba
Blended Flour.
Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "
Cracked Wheat, Farina
Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.
Chopping and Gristing
a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton — Ont

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D.L. D.S. Dentist. Successor to Dr Coram. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work. Three doors east of postoffice. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month.

J.S.REED, Surgeon dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne St., south of new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR BROWN, Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat. Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month from 2 to 6 p.m.

W. A. HALL, B.A., M.D., C.M., Hon Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets.

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J G CARTER, Greenock P. O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope Office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Powers' Hotel. Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and old: money to loan; also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire Insurance Company. — Phone no 140, ring 2 & 1.

BRITISH AMERICAN
BUSINESS COLLEGE

Leads in age, influence, and successful graduates. Specializes in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31sth. Write for our catalogue Address, T. Wauchope, Principal Younge and McGill Sts., Toronto.

You can Begin Any Day at the

NORTHERN
Business College

Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three-story building and 31 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors produce the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principa
D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photograhhs

Our photographs are more than good photographs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser
Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES

If you want a stove buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." None better. Also a full line of Heating Stove at

H A HAVILL
Walkerton - - Ont.

GIGANTIC
SLAUGHTER SALE

Beginning FRIDAY, MAY 7th at 9 a. m. for 15 DAYS ONLY
$18,000.00 worth of High Grade
Clothing, Boots and Shoes, General Dry Goods and Groceries, involved in this Great Sale. Necessity knows no law. Cash is king, and Cash we must have.

CONDITIONS OF SALE- All goods sold for cash or Trade. Our name stands back of every purchase and we will refund your money on any purchase with which you are dissatisfied. Come to this Sale expecting the greatest bargains you ever saw or heard of. We assure you that your expectations will be more than realized. Come early. Buy now while the market is down.

READ, READ, READ.

Prices are wrecked in every line. Bear in mind there are thousands of other articles which space will not allow to list. which will be sold at same low prices. Come and see for yourself.

WAIT FOR THIS BIG SALE.

The stock is now being marked. No attention will be paid to what the goods actually cost as we will cut and slash prices to sell stock and sell it quick. By no means miss this grand opportunity. Its an event that seldom comes. We are marking the goods at prices that will be the talk of Walkerton for years. We will claim supremacy in value given for fifty miles around and will leave the verdict with the people.

BUY EARLY

Many of the articles advertised are limited in quantity which means early buying to avoid dissapointment. Don't overlook this warning, but get the full benefit of the extraordinary economies open to you.

Dry Goods

Best Canadian Prints, reg 12½ and 10c yd sale price, 7½c.

Fine quality Ginghams, reg 15c yd sale price 10c yd.

Wrapperettes light and dark patterns reg 12c sale price 8c yd.

Flannelettes, reg 12½ and 10c yd sale price 8½ yd.

White and black Lawn reg 15 to 35c yd sale price, 10c.

Bleached Cotton 36 in wide reg 10c yd sale price, 14yds for 1.00.

Unbleached Cotton 40 in wide sale price 14 yds f[illegible] 1.00.

Table linen 56 in wide reg 40c yd sale price, 25c yd.

Fancy dress and suit linings reg 15, 25, and 50c yd sale price, 10c yd.

Black pailette Silk reg $1.50 yd sale price 89c yd.

Ladie's Furnishings

Ladies black cotton Hose, seamless, sale price 12c pr.

Ladies fancy white cotton vests reg 25c garment, sale price, 17c.

Ladies silk Gloves reg 50 and 75c pr sale price, 25c pr.

Ladies Corsets, reg 75c pr, sale price, 43c pr.

Children,s ribbed Cotton and fancy Lace, Hose reg 25c pr. sale price, 12c pr.

Ladies Parasols, fancy long handles, reg $2.00, sale price 85c.

Ladies white and black Frilling Lace and Nett, reg 25c yd sale price 5c. yd.

Ladie's Raincoats, new styles reg $6.00 sale price, $2.98. reg $9.00 sale price, $4.98.

Ladie's Oxfords in Gunmetal, patent leather and dongola, reg $2.50 to $3.50 sale price $1.50 pr.

VALUES EXTRAORDINARY

A FIFTEEN-DAY SALE

YOU WILL NOT BE ASKED TO BUY---If your own good conscience doesn't compel you to say buy. Thats all there is to it.

Don't forget the date.

FRIDAY, MAY 7th, 15 Days Only

FREE! FREE!

To the first 25 costumers on opening day with every purchase of $5.00 or over in DRY GOODS we will give absolutely free your choice of a 5 yard dress length, worth from 75c. to $1.25 a yard.

Don't miss this one.

EXTRA SALESPEOPLE WANTED

PRICES THAT SPELL BARGAINS

Finest Potatoes, bright clean stock. 90 lbs to bag. Sale price, 40c.bag.

Pure Clover Honey in 5 lb. pails only 65c.

5 lbs freshly roasted coffee for 95c. Reg 25c lb.

4 lbs black, mixed or Japan Tea for 1.00. Reg 35c quality.

3 lbs of Selected Valencia Raisens for 25c.

4 pkgs best Cornstarch for 25c.

Every article in Grocery Department Reduced

Men's Furnishings.

Mens Balbriggan underwear, all sizes Reg 50c, sale price 44c., regular 35c sale price 31c., regular 25c, sale price 21c.

Mens Police and Duplex Suspenders, Reg 35c and 25c Sale Price 22c.

Mens Blk Cotton Hose double heel and toe, reg 20c pair, sale paice 12½ pr.

Mens Silk Lustre Half Hose, reg 25c pair sale price 23c per pair.

Mens Heavy Work Shirts in blue, black and stripes, reg 90c sale price 69c.

Mens Negligee Shirts, newest patterns, reg 75c and $1.00, sale price 69c.

Mens Raincoats (imported) reg $7.00 sale price $4.75.

Mens Black overalls, heavy quality, reg $1.00 sale price 69c.

Miscllaneous

Heavy Blk Denim and striped cottonade Reg 30c yd sale price 21c.

Upholstering Material up to $1,50 yard sale price 50c.

Curtain Muslin with flowered border, Reg 20c yd, sale price 9c yd.

Huckaback Towelling, Reg 15c sale price 11c yd.

Pure Linen Towelling, Reg 10c yd sale price 7c yd.

Unbleached Turkish Towels, Reg 25c pr, Sale Price 15c pr.

Embroidery Insertions all widths, up to 50c yd sale price 5c yd.

Unbleached Linen 36 inches wide, Reg 30c yd, sale price 21c.

Carpets and Rugs less than half price.

Mens Oxfords—up to date style in blk and tan, laced and buttoned Reg $4.50 and $5.00, Sale Price $2.50 per pair.

All shoes at reduced prices.

FREE TRIP to Walkerton.

Railroad fare paid to out of town buyers, who purchase goods to the amount of $15.00 or more, within a radius of twenty-five miles.

THE MOST SENSATIONAL SALE THAT HAS EVER BEEN ATTEMPTED IN WALKERTON.
WE ADVISE PROMPT ACTION SO BE ON HAND WHEN THE DOOR OPENS.

C. Reaney, Walkerton

PLESKEY'S OLD STAND PHONE NO 8

Don't miss this Sale if you value money. Sale begins Friday, May 7th.

Old Country News

BRAVE ENGLISHWOMEN.

The King of the Belgians has presented the Order of Leopold II. to three nurses of the First Aid Nursing Yeomanry Corps for bravery under shell fire in rescuing some wounded men from the trenches. The names of the recipients are:

Miss Muriel Thompson,
Sister Mary White,
Miss Margaret Waite.

The heroic deed which earned such high recognition took place about a month ago. The three nurses had gone up as far as the rear line of trenches, not far from Oostkerke, when an officer asked if they would like to go to the first line. They readily assented.

As heavy firing was going on at the time, great care had to be taken in advancing from one trench to another. They had to go one at a time at two-minute intervals, with instructions to lie flat on the ground if any shots came their way. In a little while they reached an outpost, which consisted of a few cottages huddled close together. As soon as they reached it, however, the Germans started shelling the place vigorously, and several men were killed and wounded.

The officer who had asked them to come out held up his hand, saying it was too dangerous to come any farther, and that they must go back to safety. They refused to listen to his advice, however, until they had attended to some of the wounded who were near them. Then they found a stretcher, and with the aid of a man they carried two back to safety under heavy fire, and while under shelter dressed their wounds and took them back to a temporary hospital.

NEW RECRUITING POSTER.

A new recruiting poster has just made its appearance all over London, calling for recruits of "any age, any measurements, and medical qualifications or disqualifications," so long as they are good mechanics or capable of doing any of the work necessary for turning out war munitions.

Men who volunteer for this service will register their names with the recruiting officers, but they will be employed directly by the armament firms, not by the Government. The recruiting officers thus become a sort of labor exchange for the firms which are producing shells, rifles and other necessaries of war.

The new poster appeal is headed "The Man the Army Wants Now," and bears a sketch of an artisan at work.

MENTIONED IN DESPATCHES.

The following officers have been added to the list recommended for gallant and distinguished service in the field in the despatches from the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief.

Staff—Major A. T. Paley, Captain F. G. Maughan and Captain O. H. North.

Royal Artillery—Major (now Lieut.-Col.) C. E. D. Budworth, M. V. O., and Major E. L. Hardcastle.

Second Grenadier Guards—Major G. J. Jeffreys, Major Lord B. C. Gordon-Lennox (killed in action), Captain E. J. L. Pike and Lieut. F. G. Beaumont, Nesbitt.

Third Grenadier Guards—Major G. C. Hamilton.

First East Kent Regiment—Colonel J. Hasler and Major R. McDonall, D. S. O.

First East Yorkshire Regiment—Captain B. Lawrence.

Second Royal Welsh Fusiliers—Captain A. L. Samson.

Second York and Lancaster Regiment—Lieut. C. R. Ripley.

Army Service Corps—Captain (temp. Major) J. A. Harvey.

Royal Army Medical Corps—Major S. L. Cummins, M. D., Captain C. G. Browne, and Lieut. (temp.) G. W. Milne, M. D.

Army Veterinary Corps—Major H. M. Lenox-Conyngham and Captain S. Black.

A SUSPECTED TELEGRAM.

The story is told in St. Martin's-le-Grand Magazine of a telegram from Inverness, which puzzled the Censor of inland telegrams. It ran:

Wen are ta weetin his yeu con wa kim

This was suspicious coming from a town near the coast, so the Censor sent the following to the transmitting office:

Censor requests that the text be put in plain language. He also asks if sender is known.

The reply came at once:

The language used is Lancashire dialect. Telegram means, in plain language, "When are you wetting its head? Can we come?" The sender is known.

The suspected telegram was merely a self-made invitation to a christening.

FLOWERSELLERS' HARD TIMES.

The street flowersellers have been hard hit by the war. "My trade," said a flower girl in the city, "has been practically nothing since the war began. Most of us have our regular customers and so many of mine have gone away and joined the army. The young men can't wear flowers on a khaki coat.

"People who always paid what you asked them in the days before the war try to beat you down now. It was never much of a living. It is nothing at all to-day."

400-YEAR-OLD EASTER CUSTOM.

The old custom of distributing colored eggs to the congregation as they left the church was observed at St. Mary Woolnoth with St. Mary Woolchurch, Lombard street, E. C., on Easter Sunday morning.

The custom was instituted 400 years ago by a goldsmith named Spencer. The eggs were inscribed with the word "Melchisedec," upon which the rector, the Rev. J. M. S. Brooke, based his sermon, and were distributed to the members of the congregation as they left the church.

NEW LORD OF APPEAL.

The King has been pleased to approve the appointment of Mr. Justice Warrington to be a Lord Justice of Appeal, in succession to Right Hon. Sir Henry Buckley, who has resigned.

The King has been pleased to confer a barony of the United Kingdom upon Sir Henry Buckley, who has resigned the position of Lord Chief Justice of Appeal.

NOTES.

The death occurred on Monday week at his residence, Cantersmount, near Doncaster of Mr. G. B. C. Yarborough, one of the best known and most able magistrates in the county. He was over 70 years of age, and for the past few years has not enjoyed the best of health.

A drayman named Harry Frank Yeardley, 18, of 3 court, 3 house, Isekham street, was crushed by the overturning of his dray at Hendworth, and died from his injuries at the Royal Hospital.

A remarkable result was achieved in the collection at Sheffield Cathedral on Sunday week. The sum of £41 2s. 2d. was needed to balance the churchwardens' accounts for the year, and though this fact was not mentioned, the collection amounted exactly to the sum required.

The Rev. J. S. Fowle, Vicar of St. Luke's Church, Solly street, Sheffield, recently offered his services to the Red Cross Society as a hospital chaplain with the forces in the field. His offer has been accepted, and he hopes shortly to leave for France or Belgium.

Another death from spotted fever has occurred at the Kettering Infectious Hospital, the second death in Kettering from the same cause within a few days. There are now three cases in hospital, all of which are going on favorably.

The remains of Mr. William Laycock, builder, Rock Leigh, Thurgoland, were interred at Thurgoland Cemetery on Tuesday week. Deceased was well known, having carried out many important building contracts in the district.

Captain Holland, Chief Constable of Derbyshire, when getting into his motor-car, at Bayfield, on Good Friday, after visiting the Police Station there, accidentally dislocated his shoulder.

Robert Spearly, who at the last Birmingham Assizes was sentenced to death for the murder of his eight-year-old daughter, has been reprieved.

"I suppose he was obliged to do it," said the magistrate at West London when told that a policeman had to use his truncheon in order to secure a woman prisoner.

At Ballina Thomas Ivers, rate collector, was committed to the assizes on a charge of embezzling money belonging to the Mayo County Council. He was admitted to bail in the sum of £400.

"The last two hours of the day were the most fatal in connection with crime in London," said Mr. R. Wallace, K. C., at the London Sessions, "and the closing of public houses at ten o'clock had undoubtedly produced a wonderful result."

The Rev. Frank Meridith Brooks, curate-in-charge of Amington, Tamworth, has been appointed to the Vicarage of Bolsterstone.

The Rev. John Talbot, minister of the Priory place Wesleyan Church, Doncaster, has consented to remain a fourth year in the special work at Priory place.

The Rev. J. W. Kewley, the Rector of Matlock, has accepted from the Bishop of Southwell a hon. canonry of Southwell Cathedral, to fill the one vacated by the death of Canon Atkinson.

The Burnley Police Force has sent in an application for increased pay. For the eleven extra days' work put in since the war the Watch Committee has decided to pay a week's wage.

The King, at Buckingham Palace, decorated Acting Boatman Charles Powell, of the Laertes, with the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in the North Sea.

The King has been pleased to approve of the appointment of Mr. Robert Younger, K. C., to be one of the Justices of His Majesty's High Court of Justice, in place of Mr. Justice Warrington, appointed as Lord Justice of Appeal.

Councillor C. W. Starmer, managing director of the "Sheffield Independent," has been elected an alderman of the Corporation of Darlington. Mr. Starmer has been Mayor of Darlington, is Deputy Mayor this year, and has served on the Town Council for some years.

The King, on the recommendation of the Secretary for Scotland, has approved the appointment of the Rev. John Herkless, D. D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the University of St. Andrews, to be principal of the University of St. Andrews, in succession to the late Sir James Donaldson, LL.D.

The death is reported of Monmouthshire's oldest inhabitant, Thomas Williams, who died at Rogerstone, near Newport, aged 103.

The Lord Mayor of Cardiff has chosen Miss Lydia James, 21 years of age, of 4 Bertholn street, Canton, Cardiff, a domestic servant, to receive the Pule dowry of £20. Miss James is engaged to be married to Mr. Herbert Clark, a member of the Glamorgan police force, who has enlisted in the Royal Engineers. According to custom, the young couple will be married before the end of the month.

The death has occurred at Ellesmere Port, Cheshire, of Rev. Thomas Ethel McLean, 78, who started life as a soldier and fought as a lieutenant in the Crimean war. Ordained in 1872, he became vicar of St. Helen's and then of St. Rossendale, Lancashire, and was rector of Gresham, Norfolk, when he retired. His eldest son is Major McLean, A. S. C.

The band of the Irish Guards arrived in Dublin on Saturday week and was greeted with great enthusiasm. As the band marched through the streets the name of Sergeant O'Leary, V.C., was repeatedly cheered. The band is to go on a recruiting march and Sergeant O'Leary is to join them on their tour.

At Durham Ald. William House, president of the Durham Miners' Association, was adopted as Labor candidate for the Mid-Durham division in the forthcoming contest. At another meeting Ald. S. Galbraith, an agent of the same association, was adopted as Liberal candidate for the division.

Old farm smocks were worn at the funeral of Mr. J. E. A. Gwynne, Folkington Manor, Eastbourne. The coffin was borne in a farm wagon to a field on the estate, where the burial took place. Mr. Gwynne was the father of the member of Parliament for East Bourne, and was a famous agriculturist, being one of the largest landowners in the district.

Attention was drawn to an upper window of a shop in High street, Gravesend, by a dog barking and scratching at a window pane. There was no one in the building at the time, and when the police entered they found a fire had broken out in the kitchen. They managed to extinguish it before any damage was done.

The serious financial condition of the Isle of Man as the result of the war was debated by a joint meeting of the two branches of the Manx Legislature. The use by the Imperial authorities of almost the entire fleet of passenger steamers upon which the island depends for its tourist season threatens the island with disaster. A resolution was passed appointing a deputation consisting of the Lieutenant-Governor, the Speaker and other members to approach the Imperial authorities and urge upon them the importance of releasing as many vessels as possible.

Canon Boyd, rector of Cliffe, Kent, preaching on Sunday, said that his first experience, eighteen years ago, of a Cliffe congregation was not encouraging, for on that occasion there were three choristers present and only one person in the congregation.

At the vestry meeting at Crowland on Monday week the action of the rector in discharging Miss Sarah Jane Hall, the woman sexton, was challenged. The present verger and Miss Hall were both nominated, and on a vote she was again chosen. A poll was demanded of the parish. Members of the Hall family have been sextons at Crowland Abbey for 150 years.

Mr. William Perkins, Whaplode Drove, Lincolnshire, celebrated his 101st birthday on Tuesday week. He sent the following message to the public: "If you are not in the place God intended you to be in, get there as quickly as possible and do your duty. We are fighting to win, for Britannia must rule." Mrs. Perkins is 92, and has been married 72 years.

As the band of a territorial regiment was playing a final selection outside a drill hall at Newport (Mon.) after a recruiting tour of the district a heavy motor char-a-banc on its way to take home a party of merrymakers ran into musicians. Harold Griffiths was run over and severely injured; Bandmaster Saunders was knocked down and suffered severe shock, while Albert Kelly received a head injury and bruises on the limbs.

A road in Hilgay parish, Southwest Norfolk, has been rendered impassable by the fen floods. At least 30 dwelling houses have been destroyed by the flood of water, some being entirely washed away. The Little Ouse banks collapsed on Jan. 3, and at present the floods have only subsided eight inches, although the pumping stations are working night and day. The water is five feet to eleven feet deep in places. Farmers have abandoned the hope of getting a harvest this year.

The Countess of Kinnoull, of Balhousie Castle, Perth, did a thriving trade in scents and soaps from behind the counter of a chemist's shop in Scott street, Perth, last Thursday. The countess became a shopgirl for the afternoon in order to provide comfort for wounded soldiers in the Perth military hospitals.

Mr. Peter Watson, proprietor of the Finkle street garage, Selby, was found in a motor-car in a ditch about a mile from Selby, on the Camblesforth road, on Tuesday afternoon by the police. Mr. Watson was wedged between the steering column and wind screen. His face was somewhat lacerated. As he was being driven to Selby he breathed several times, but died before reaching the town.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Brown shoes that are shabby looking can be entirely renewed in appearance by being blackened. They should be rubbed well with a cloth and gone over with a little soap and water to remove as much of the old polish as possible. Then, while still somewhat wet, they should be painted with shoemaker's ink. Three coats of this should be applied, after which the boots should be blacked and polished.

Old hair brushes which have become soft may be made stiff and firm if dipped in a strong solution of alum.

A well padded ironing board is a labor saver and Turkish toweling is one of the best materials to pad it with.

Two big eyelets or button holes worked in opposite corners of the kitchen towels, are better than loops to hang up by.

Instead of hemming a silence cloth buttonhole it. A hem makes a ridge.

When cream is too thin to whip, the unbeaten white of an egg can be used, and will overcome the trouble.

Stains on blankets and other woolen goods may be removed by a mixture of equal parts of glycerine and yolk of egg. Spread the mixture over the stain, leave it half an hour, and then wash the articles as usual.

When the lamp wick is too large for the burner and does not turn up readily, drawing a few threads from the middle of the wick, instead of cutting down the sides, is more satisfactory as it keeps the wick from ravelling.

To remove stains from knife handles and also to keep the ivory from turning yellow, rub the handles well with a cut lemon, afterward wash well in soap and water and dry immediately. This removes the stains and keeps the ivory a good color.

After washing oilcloth and linoleum, be sure to dry it properly. If left damp it will speedily rot, and finally become totally spoiled. It is a great mistake to use too much water for washing it. The cloth should merely be wrung out and passed over the surface.

After drying salt for the table, do not fill the salt cellars until the salt is quite cold, otherwise it will harden in a lump.

To clean collars on men's coats, sponge with ammonia water first, then with alcohol.

A FINANCIAL GENIUS.

(Kansas City Journal.)

"Why are you crying, Willie?"

"I lost a nickel."

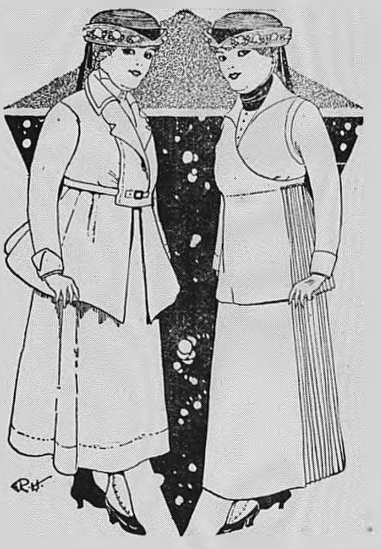
"Never mind. Here is another one," said the kindhearted visitor.

"Willie, you've got to cut that out," admonished his somewhat exasperated mother.

Then she explained:

"He lost that nickel two years ago."

IF YOU ARE FAT---



Don't wear a suit like this—But wear a suit like this.

Chats With the Doctor

BY A PHYSICIAN

REGULAR HABITS.

There was once a noted Frenchman named Fontenelle, who managed to live to very nearly 100 years—if I remember aright he only just missed the century by a month or two. This he did by living according to the strictest rules possible—rules he had laid down for himself; and by most carefully avoiding every emotion and excitement of any kind whatever, even pleasurable. He lived in fact a life of the purest and most unalloyed selfishness that one can conceive. And a celebrated wit and bon vivant made this remark about him: "I live as much in half an hour as Fontenelle does in 20 years."

Without seeking to emulate the inordinate selfishness and fondness of life for life's sake of this celebrated individual, I think we may yet sound take heed to the lesson his careful efforts. Most of us have the idea when we are young and inexperienced at any rate that it is good to live to a "good old age." That is natural! Distaste for life and wish for its end is unhealthy and morbid. And it is only right that people, not knowing what is to follow, should wish to be here long to play the game, the earthly game as long as possible. It is only so, as long only as to do what we propose that they also seek and resolve to play the game straitly and righteously; dealing justly with each and all themselves included.

Hence, I consider that this material creature's methods alone may serve to teach us the great value of regular, temperate and well-ordered habit in every direction. He set himself to attain length of days, and by that means he succeeded in so doing. There would be no harm if many young people bore his example in mind.

BURNING THE CANDLE AT BOTH ENDS.

For the child is father to the man; and in early years are sewn the seeds of so many crops which only come to maturity in later life and which are bound to bear their fruit one day with assured certainty. We hardly ever see a young man or woman who thinks much of the years to come so far as regards bodily health; and who does not burn the midnight oil on pleasure-seeking with full hand, and with little heed to the morrow.

Easy it is to burn the candle at both ends, with a large number at any rate. For you cannot deprive the body of needed hours of sleep without a material loss of vitality sensible at the time; it after years much more appreciable.

The first maxim for all the young who desire to lead healthy after lives, to do good and useful work in their generation, to reach old age with physical powers reasonably unimpaired—is early to bed. It is quite a mistake to imagine, as many of the fair sex are apt to do, that they can make up for late hours, say at a ball, by lying in bed late the next day. To a certain extent they procure the necessary sleep, but at an unnatural period. And for a fresh, clean and healthy complexion, on which most lay such store, nothing can replace the vital necessity of going to bed at the hour Nature enjoins.

THE HARM OF OVER-STUDY.

Young men who are ambitious, and who adopt the learned professions or more technical trades, very commonly "burn the midnight oil" in study for their examinations. In this unhealthy civilization of ours, I fear that is sometimes hardly avoidable, bearing in mind the intense competition which everywhere exists. Yet it should be avoided wherever and whenever possible. The cost of it will have to be encountered in after years by impaired physique, by weakened sight, by irritable and unbalanced nerves, by lowered vitality and equally lessened enjoyment of life.

Hence even when stringent examinations have to be faced and the competition is great, young people would do well to restrict their studies as far as may be possible to the morning and daylight hours and not to force Nature by wakefulness, when sleep is necessary and imperative. I don't know whether the students at Oxford and Cambridge studying for degrees very easy indeed to acquire, if only they were not seeking to cram into a few weeks the studies which should have occupied as many years—yet grind Latin and Greek with wet towels around their heads, as was the common practice once upon a time.

OTHER HABITS OF REGULARITY.

In every respect the sooner in life a man or woman acquires clock-work regularity of habits the better their every day health; the greater their chances of attaining respectable longevity. Meals at fixed hours come to most, not as a matter of choice, but as part of the system of modern civilization, which in that respect is healthy and wholesome.

But some busy men do not conform to this sound rule, and accustom themselves to seek food at irregular hours often to work very long periods without food. That is very injurious to health; and the same is to be said for—often it is very harmful—recourse to stimulants.

It need hardly be said that a machine never acts properly without due fire and oiling. Hence that body or the who wants to work, must also feed in proportion: and not endeavor to practice habits of austerity. The young ladies in a flat in Kipling's "The Light That Failed," lived chiefly upon tea, pickles and biscuits. They did not arrive at success in their art, in spite of their simple methods of housekeeping.

DRINKS.

I think it was an American who remarked that "it is not the drinking that kills. It is the drinking between drinks." That is a very wise and sound proposition. Were people to confine their consumption of beer, stout and whiskey strictly to a meal time, very little harm would result from the consumption of alcohol. It is the "drinking between drinks"—the glass of beer at odd moments—that really does the mischief, and that generates the fatal alcohol habit which is tending so much to produce national degeneracy.

REGULARITY IN OTHER WAYS.

It has previously been pointed out that women and men to a smaller extent very commonly bring on the many diseases to which their sex is liable by one special form of irregular habit, in every way peculiarly noxious. Their bounden (physical) duty is to pay the usual visit to the shrine of that goddess whom the prosaic Romans styled "Juno Cloacina"—but whom we more poetically designate by two official letters, leaving something to the imagination—at the same hour each day; preferably after breakfast; you can easily acquire the habit if you try. And then failure becomes impossible.

So with most things else. Acquire a good habit, and you cannot well do wrong except by mere accident. And vice versa, get into bad ways and you find it impossible to abandon them—to get back into the right. This is true in bodily matters; probably in religious, social, political as well—where so many of our methods and customs so obviously need reformation and drastic change.

THE MILK TEETH.

The first set of teeth, known by the above title, are only 20 in number. Mostly they are all cut by the end of the first two years. And then I have seen babies with every single tooth rotten. Each had decayed as soon as it came through the gum. That, of course, was due to bad feeding—feeding with over-sweetened condensed milk: a terrible snare to ignorant mothers and nurses. For the cane sugar in tinned milk is in every way unwholesome for young children, who are mostly unable to digest it. Lactose, the sugar of milk itself, is the only sugar they can properly take. And you cannot begin too early to ensure sound teeth. Cane sugar quickly undergoes fermentation changes, being converted into acid. In babies this fermentation is apt to take place while in the mouth, as well as in the stomach. Then you have acids directly corroding the teeth, which decay instantly.

FEEDING BABIES.

Young infants should never if possible be fed with any milk beyond that of their own species, and failing that, the pure milk of the cow, diluted according to age. It cannot be given perfectly and natural until the infant is six months old. Human milk is best; asses comes next; that of the cow third.

Tinned milk in every form is most objectionable, provided that it is possible to procure the pure article. This for several reasons. The chief that condensed milk, even of the best brands, is a sophisticated article, widely differing from the real thing. The water has been expelled, a great deal of the caseine is not there; as above stated, sugar cane is commonly present in large quantity, or, for the cheaper kind, they are skim milk and sugar; are frauds, pure and simple. The child fed with them starves, or becomes consumptive. Practically it is fed on sugar and water only. The same applies to delicate children of later years in, of course, a minor degree.

THE TEETH IN LATER YEARS.

It is important to cleanse the teeth before getting into bed, with an additional brush in the morning. Powdered chalk whitens the front teeth. You want an antiseptic dentifrice for the back. The saliva is normally alkaline. If the contents of the mouth become acid the teeth decay. Sugar is the principal cause of acidity. It is a good thing to rinse out the mouth well with milk two or three times a day. That whitens the teeth, as well as aiding to preserve them.

TOOTHACHE.

If there is a hole in an aching tooth a little plug of cotton wool steeped in glycerine or carbolic acid is the simple cure. Push it in with a bodkin.

If there be not, a camel's hair brush steeped in tincture of iodine, and pressed against the gum, will often similarly banish pain as by a fairy's wand. But in either case see the dentist as soon as possible.

BETTY BROWN GETS HER NEW SAILOR HAT

She Describes the Hat, and the Veil That "Makes It."

It's really the veil that makes the new sailor hats—that's why I got a veil with my new Knox.

The hat is just as plain as Dad's hat, but the veil falling in pretty folds down about the shoulders takes away that mannish effect which is so trying to most of us. The newest veils are very fine and in square mesh with heavy borders.—Betty Brown.

The Slow, Sluggish, Torpid Action of the Liver is Responsible for Many Ills.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills stimulate the sluggish liver, clean the coated tongue, sweeten the obnoxious breath, clean away all waste and poisonous matter from the system, and prevent as well as cure all complaints arising from a liver which has become inactive.

Constipation, sick headache, bilious headache, jaundice, heartburn, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc., all come from a disordered liver.

Mr. Victor H. McNeills, Sand-tear, Alta., writes: "I thought I would write and tell you of my experience with Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, as I was greatly pleased with the results. I received I for many years. I was troubled with sick headache for a long time, and would get sick every night after I ate my dinner but I could not find the cause. A friend of mine from Toronto, visited me last summer and he asked me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. He told me they had done him so much good for his stomach. I used several vials, and I found they did me so much good that I can recommend them to any one suffering from liver trouble."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

YOU SHOULD BE AFRAID OF A COUGH OR COLD.

Coughs and colds do not call for a minute recital of symptoms, as they are well known to everyone, but their dangers are not so well known. All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes are, in the beginning, but coughs and colds.

Many people when they contract a slight cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps that it will pass away in a day or two. The upshot is that before they know it, it has settled on their lungs.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cough or cold it must be gotten rid of immediately, as failure to do this may cause years of suffering from serious lung trouble.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

will cure the cough or cold and prove a preventative from all throat and lung troubles such as bronchitis, pneumonia and consumption.

Mrs. B. E. Bruce, Brighton, Ont., writes: "I am sending you my story of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, telling you what it did for my little girl. The doctor had given her up as she was, as we thought, going into a decline with the cough she had. I was told by a lady friend to try "Dr. Wood's," and when she had taken two bottles she was on her feet again, and four bottles cured her."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the best cure for coughs and colds. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If Death Were to Stop Work

Suppose for a moment that the equilibrium between life and death were to cease. Imagine death arrested in its work! What would happen? The number of living beings upon the surface of the earth would be so great there would be no room for them. The atmosphere would be transformed into a compact mass of birds and insects, which would be impenetrable even by the rays of the sun. In its superabundance life would suffocate and crush out life itself, and then death would rule supreme all at once. In a few days all organic life would have disappeared from the earth. It would be nothing but a waste and a desert.

That microscopic animal, the rotifer or rotator, lays thirty eggs at a time and starts seventy generations every year. If all these individuals remained alive at the end of a year their total would be so enormous as to make a sphere larger than the known universe.

The cynips, which produce the galls on the oak trees, the rose flea, the phylloxera and other aphidians or insects, which extract the sugar from plants, multiply in enormous numbers. One aphidian produces twenty-five descendants in a single day. On the second day we should have 25 by 25, or 625 individuals; the third day 15,625, and so on in geometrical proportion. Ten thousand of these insects, lighter than ether, weigh one-twentieth of a grain. Ten consecutive generations would make a cube equal to 1,000,000 men weighing 200 pounds each, and this in ten days.

One fly gives birth to about 200,000,000 individuals in a single summer. At the end of five summers of free propagation we should reach a fantastic figure—10 followed by 25 zeros.

Consider the vegetables for a moment. One plant of henbane can produce no less than 10,000 seeds in a single year. In five years it would have covered the entire surface of the earth with an impenetrable layer. And what about all the mushrooms that multiply so rapidly in a few days as to make all other vegetable life almost impossible?

The destruction of life is as cruel in the depths of the ocean as it is on earth, and the same terrible things would happen if there were no death in the sea. If there were no death one cod would in six years fill the ocean solid full and running over. Of course the original codfish wouldn't do it alone, but she would be responsible for it. One cod lays about 3,000,000 eggs in the year after she is three years old.

Three years later, if there were no death, all the progeny of this first fish would each deposit 3,000,000 eggs during that year, making a total of $1,000,000,000,000. Of course these figures are so great that they mean nothing to us except perhaps a gasp of astonishment. Now, take another three years—making six in all from the time the first cod deposited her eggs—each of these cod deposits 3,000,000 eggs, making the total of six years 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000! And this from one codfish only!

If there were no death, imagine what all the codfish would do at this rate? As a matter of fact, taking codfish alone, if there were no death during ——— they would smother everything to death with their numbers in the first three years and leave the old earth dripping codfish into stellar space.

Medusae are destroyed in enormous numbers by aquatic animals, but the stomach of each medusa contains more than 100,000 of those microscopic marine algae called diatoms. One whale at a single mouthful swallows billions of these marine animalculae.

From the top to the bottom of the scale the story is the same. The greater the propagating power of species the greater and more rapid is the work of death, so as to preserve the equilibrium, without which life would cease. Nature seems cruel to be kind to it!

Of course such a thing as no death is a great deal like an irresistible force striking an immovable body, for in an unbelievable short time the earth would be covered with animal and vegetable matter, the air packed solid with birds and all flying things and the seas made solid by fish. The result would naturally be a paradox, to the effect that if there were no death everything would promptly be smothered to death. One need but give a few minutes' thought to this before he understands why there is death, why, after all, it is only by death that we live.—New York American.

CANADA AND FLAX INDUSTRY

Millions of Money Will be Saved Before Long.

Great Quantities of Straw Burned in the Past.

In Western Canada they burn one million tons of flax straw a year. Why is this? You might ask why they burn many millions of tons of wheat straw a year. The answer is that nature is so prodigal, they can afford to do so, as long as they continue to raise the greatest wheat crop in the world. The reason they burn the flax straw, however, is because there has been no market for it as it is grown at present, but the flax plant with its valuable fibre can and will be raised in a marketable form in the near future. The climatic conditions and the soil of the western provinces are ideal for the growing of this plant, from the fibre of which the world's linen is made.

In 1913, the area in flax in the west amounted to one million and a half acres, properly grown this would have yielded at least two million tons of fine flax straw, worth on the basis of the lowest prices for the European product five hundred million dollars.

In Europe there is not much science employed in the methods of flax cultivation, and harvesting methods are simple, yet Irish flax fibre during the last five years has brought $325 a ton, and Belgian flax has averaged over $400 a ton.

The war in Europe has practically cut off the supply of this commodity, and it is stated that the existence of the Irish and Scotch industries are threatened by the scarcity of the crude product. This presents an opportunity for the Western Provinces to grow flax at great profit because there will be a great demand in all linen centres for high-grade fibre. Proper methods, of course, will have to be adopted, but these do not necessitate disorganization of present farming operations.

A larger quantity of seed will have to be sown for fibre than for seed production, from two and one-half to three bushels to the acre, according to the quality of the straw to be produced, and this will yield from one and one-half to two tons of fine flax straw. Owing to this close method of sowing, aeration in a great measure is prevented, and the plant in its efforts to reach the air and sun grows up in long, straight stalks, thus a long, thin fibre is secured. This method has the advantage of preventing branching on the single root. The straw is harvested by pulling the plants straight up by the root, the object of this being to secure every bit of the fibre. The ripeness of the plant is judged by its color; when it reaches a yellow tinge two-thirds of its length from the root up it is ready for harvest.

While it can be seen that there is a good deal of variation between the Irish price and the high price paid for the Belgian product, special grades of flax command still higher prices. Fine coastal fibre, for example, is harvested when the plant is in flower, the fibre is used for point lace, etc., and is worth from 85 cents to $1.10 per pound. The straw is stacked and remains exposed to the weather ten or fifteen days before it is put under cover. The threshing is done in such a manner that the straw remains whole and unbroken.

Experts appointed by the Dominion Government and others who have investigated the conditions in Western Ontario agree that there is much land open for homesteading along the line of the Canadian Northern Railway that is ideal for flax growing, and that there is no reason why the finest flax straw in the world should not be raised in these districts. From the first breaking flax can be grown, although it could not be expected that fine flax straw could be raised the first year, but the flax seed will yield sufficient to put the homesteader on his feet. One advantage in planting flax the first year is that it is one of the best crops to break up the sod, and to free certain natural fertilizers that remained latent in virgin soil, which is too rich at the first to grow wheat. It is necessary, of course, that those who are going in for flax growing should be careful about the rotation of crops and the same seed must never be sown on one same ground for more than two consecutive years if a really high grade fibre is desired.

C. P. G.

No Drinks for Princes.

A story is told of an experience the late King Edward VII. had at the Savage Club in London, of which he was a member.

One evening the then Prince of Wales took the Grand Duke Alexis to the club, after the theatre. Shortly before this there had been some trouble between the Savage Club and the licensing authorities. It seems that a representative of the latter called at the Savage Club one evening and, in the rush of business, was served with a drink after hours, although he was not a member.

A summons was issued, and there appears to have been a good deal of trouble in the matter, and the waiters were warned to be very careful whom they served.

The Prince of Wales and the Grand Duke Alexis went into the smoking room, which was empty, and the Prince, after consultation with the Grand Duke, ordered two whiskeys and sodas.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

"I have to ask your name, sir," said the waiter in attendance. "I do not think I have seen you before."

"My name is Albert Edward," said the Prince.

The waiter immediately referred to the list of members.

"I see an Edwards here," he said, "but his name is [illegible], and not Albert. I do not see your name here, sir."

So the Prince was refused the drinks and went thirsty—until a fellow member entered and all was set right.

WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE

(Hamilton Advertiser)

It may be admitted that [illegible] and the [illegible] the dream of the century [illegible] the accomplished fact of the next.

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood.

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order, that the indoor life of winter has lowered your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease, and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Edith [illegible], Savona, B. C., says: "I was always [illegible] a girl, suffered from headaches, severe palpitation of the heart, at the slightest exertion. I had little or no appetite and seemed to be drifting into a decline. I was attending High School in Vancouver at the time, and the doctor advised me to stop. I did so, and took his treatment for some time, but it did not help me in the least. Upon the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in a very short time they gave me back complete health, and enabled me to resume my studies. I have enjoyed the best of health since, and owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Five Spot Game.

With the last drop of gasoline gone, Unson found the machine stalled by the roadside, fully six miles from Struthers, at 3 o'clock in the morning. He was perplexed when he saw approaching through the darkness the glimmer of a lighted lantern. A few minutes gave evidence that the light was attached to a vehicle of some kind, and soon a wagon drawn by two stout horses came into sight.

"There's a five spot in it for you if you tow me into town," hailed Unson.

The driver readily consented.

For an hour or more they rode in the approaching dawn.

Just before they reached the village Unson called to the man on the wagon seat:

"Pretty early to be on the road, isn't it?"

"Yes," the driver returned, "but I have to be out early to get all over my route."

While he was hauling out the $5 Unson inquired:

"What is your business?"

And he nearly dropped in his tracks when the man replied:

"I peddle gasoline in the village."—Judge.

The Ubiquitous Purist.

Vicar—I'm sorry to hear you've been so poorly. You must pray for a good heart, Thomas.

Thomas—Ya-as, zur. But it's my liver wot be wrong, yo know, zur.—London Telegraph.

The Congestion from a Bad Cold Loosened Up In One Hour

Nerviline Rubbed On At Night You're Well Next Morning.

Nerviline Never Fails

When that cold comes, how is it to be cured?

The method is simplicity itself, rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nerviline," rub it in good and deep; lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nerviline in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly. There is no telling how quickly Nerviline breaks up a hard racking cough, eases a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why, there isn't any liniment with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nerviline the most popular American household liniment.

A large 50 cent bottle of Nerviline cures ills of the whole family, and makes the doctor's bills small. Get it to-day. The large size is more economical than the small 25 cent size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

The HouseKeeper

To secure at once a pleasing perfume, which is at the same time a good deodorant, and in some instances a disinfectant, pour spirits of lavender over lumps of bicarbonate of soda.

To clean wire screens, dampen cotton cloth with kerosene and rub both sides. This also preserves the wire and keeps the flies away, as they do not like the odor.

To make apples tender and give them a better flavor, add a pinch of salt when cooking them.

Salt will remove black beetles. Put plenty of salt where the beetles frequent and keep it there for a week. Do not leave the water where the insects go. When they eat the salt it will dry up their bodies.

A few pieces of gum camphor kept in the boxes in which silver is packed in wrappings will prevent its turning dark.

Place a few pieces of camphor gum in the drawer where you keep silver, and it will keep it from tarnishing.

To prevent woven carpet from unravelling it is a good plan to unravel about two inches and tie together the ends of the warp. Strips of stiff buckram sewed on the underside of a rug will hold it in place as nothing else will.

To give a delicious flavor to corn mush drop in a few chopped dates just before removing from the fire. Children love it.

To make an ordinary candle serve as an all-night lamp pack finely-powdered salt around the wick as far up as the blackened part. In this way a solid, steady light may be obtained all night from even a small piece of candle.

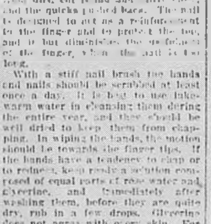
To clean velvet and coat collars dip an old toothbrush or nailbrush into gasoline and rub the velvet lightly and briskly and the soil will disappear.

Well Kept Hands.

A well-kept hand is a great asset to a girl or woman, for many people consider the hand more indicative of character than the face. A reasonable amount of self-respect and pride in one's personal appearance should prompt one to give the hands scrupulous care, that they may always look well kept. But, in giving this care, do not imagine that it is necessary to have the nails long and pointed, almost clawlike in shape, nor is it good taste to have them fairly glistening with polish. A soft, white hand, with nails long and tapering, is usually indicative of the [illegible] of its possessor, in fact, it usually shows a tendency toward idleness and a squandering of much good time to keep it so.

The attractive hand is usually clean, smooth and firm, the nails are free from dirt, cut round and fairly close, and the quicks pushed back. The nail is designed to act as a reinforcement to the finger and to protect the tip, and it but diminishes the usefulness of the finger, when the nail is too long.

With a stiff nail brush the hands and nails should be scrubbed at least once a day. It is best to use lukewarm water in cleansing them during the entire year, and they should be well dried to keep them from chapping. In wiping the hands, the motion should be towards the finger tips. If the hands have a tendency to chap or to redness, keep ready a solution composed of equal parts of rose water and glycerine, and immediately after washing them, before they are quite dry, rub in a few drops. Glycerine does not agree with every skin. For those with which it does not, a honey solution, mutton tallow or a good skin food cream may be used, rubbing it over the hands while they are still damp. Any excess fat remaining on the skin surface may be wiped off with a towel. Sometimes skin irritation and chapped hands are caused by the soap used, for the same soap does not agree with all skins.—Woman's World for March.



Buy St. Lawrence Sugar in original packages. Untouched from refinery to your cupboard, you are sure of sugar absolutely free from contamination or impurities of any kind.

St. Lawrence granulated white pure cane sugar is packed in three sizes of grains—fine, medium and coarse, in 100 lb., 25 lb. and 20 lb. sealed bags and 5 lb. and 2 lb. cartons.

All first class dealers can supply it—so insist upon having St. Lawrence Sugar.

ST. LAWRENCE SUGAR REFINERIES LIMITED, MONTREAL.

25-10-13

Origin of Humbug.

It is not generally known that the word "humbug," long so much in vogue, is of Scottish origin. There was in olden time a race called Bogue or Boog of that Ilk in Berwickshire. A daughter of the family married a son of Hume, of Hume. In process of time, by default of male issue, the Bogue estate devolved on one Geordie Hume, who was called popularly "Hume of the Bogue," or, rather, "Hum o' the Bug."

He was inclined to the marvelous and had a vast inclination to exalt himself, his wife, family, brother and all his ancestors on both sides. His tales, however, did not pass current, and at last, when any one made an extraordinary statement in the Mearns, the hearer would shrug up his shoulders and style it just "a hum o' the bug." This was shortened into humbug, and the word soon spread over the whole kingdom.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Canada's Favorite Sugar for Three Generations

The Redpath "Sugar Loafe" of 1854 was the first cane sugar refined in Canada. "Redpath Granulated" of 1880 was the first Canadian granulated sugar. "Redpath Cartons" of 1912 marked the introduction to Canadian Stores of this new and better way of marketing sugar.

Redpath
EXTRA GRANULATED
SUGAR

For Sixty Years Redpath Sugar has consistently led in purity, in quality, and in the appreciation of the thousands who use it. It is the product of a thoroughly modern refinery, operated by men of skill and experience, whose one aim is sugar perfection.

Get Redpath Sugar in Original Packages—it's well worth while!

2-lb. and 5-lb. Sealed Cartons. 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb. Cloth Bags.

CANADA SUGAR REFINING CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL. 124

Strictly Logical.

Prof. Squibley, who was extremely nearsighted, went to the barber's, sat down and allowed himself to be shaved. When the artist was done with him he did not move, and for awhile nobody disturbed him. But other customers began to arrive, and the chair was needed. The head barber, suspecting that the learned patron had fallen asleep, shook his leg to wake him. The professor heard him.

"No, my good man," he said, "I am not asleep. The fact is I am frightfully near-sighted. When I took my glasses off just now I was no longer able to see you in the mirror opposite. Naturally I supposed I had already gone home."

They Helped Him and His Friend

That is Why H. A. Clark Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Western Man Tells Why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so Popular on the Prairies.

Homeglen, Alberta, May 3.—(Special).—Just why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular on the prairies is shown by the statement of Mr. H. A. Clark, a well known resident of this place.

"Since I came west," Mr. Clark states, "I was often troubled with my stomach and back. Finally I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and before I had taken more than half a box I was so much benefitted that I recommended them to a friend. He also found them a benefit. I am still taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. I would not be without them."

In new countries bad water is one of the difficulties settlers have to fight and bad water makes its first attack on the kidneys. To resist this attack the Kidneys must be stimulated and strengthened. In other words the Kidneys needs Dodd's Kidney Pills. By giving the Kidneys the help they need people get new health, and Dodd's Kidney Pills add to their popularity.

FARM AND GARDEN

NITROGEN HELPS

Celery is a crop that responds most profitably to an application of an abundance of available nitrogen. This fertilizer not only increases the yield, but very materially improves the quality of the crop. In experiments conducted, it was shown that where ordinary treatment was given, and a small and profitable crop was obtained, the addition of a few dollars' worth of nitrate changed the crop into a very profitable one; and in the case of a soil that was regarded as good enough to produce a fair crop, the addition caused a large increase in the total crop, and a very marked improvement in the quality. The selling price of roots grown with nitrate was 150 per cent. greater than where none was applied, and 100 per cent. greater than where an insufficient amount was used. The increased value per acre of the crop from the best use of the nitrate was over $250.

The celery crop is expensive both in plants and in labor, and since the cost of these items is the same, whether the crop is large or small, intensive systems of feeding the crop usually give excellent returns. The crop is also very much improved in quality if the conditions are made favorable for continuous and rapid growth, hence an abundance of moisture and of immediately available food are prime essentials. The former can be controlled to a large extent by good methods of culture, but the best culture of the best soils is not capable of providing the necessary food, and, of the essential elements of food, nitrogen seems to be the one that contributes especially to rapidity of growth and to the formation of stalk which possesses that peculiar crispness which in so marked a degree measures marketable quality. Soils that are deep, moist and rich in organic matter are best suited for the crop; these should be heavily manured, say, at the rate of 10 to 15 tons per acre, and should receive liberal amounts of high-grade commercial fertilizer, at the rate of 600 to 800 pounds per acre, all applied broadcast previous to setting the plants. After the plants are well started, apply 200 pounds per acre of dry nitrate of soda along the row, and, if the weather is dry, cultivate it in, though ordinarily the moisture in the soil is sufficient to cause an immediate distribution of the salt, and in three or four weeks make a second application of nitrate of the same amount and in the same manner. The two applications of nitrate, of 200 pounds each, give better returns than smaller amounts of a great number of applications, though the conditions of season may warrant such changes from this method as the judgment of the grower may dictate.

SWEET CORN.

Very great progress has been made in the growth of sweet corn for the early market due to the development of earlier varieties and to greater care in the selection and use of fertilizing materials. These early varieties of sweet corn are now frequently planted as early as May 1 as far north as New Jersey, and when planted so early the soil supplies of nitrogen are not so favorable for the changes of organic and other forms of nitrogen into the nitrate form. Hence nitrate should constitute a large part of the nitrogenous food of the plant if early maturity is to be accomplished.

A good practice is to manure the soil either during the fall or winter with from 10 to 12 tons per acre and apply [illegible] before planting or setting the plants. [illegible] the plants are started in the plant house a fertilizer rich in phosphoric acid and potash, also [illegible] of nitrogen. At time of planting use a compost in the hill, and use nitrate as a [illegible] well [illegible]. The advantage of the compost [illegible] is that it supplies the soil with an abundance of readily fermented material, which, to some extent, warms the soil, besides containing substances useful in later stages of growth. Nitrate may be applied in three dressings at the rate of 100 pounds per acre at each dressing, and the applications should be so distributed as to cover the season of growth [illegible] the last application of nitrogen may be made, which encourages a quick growth of the ears and [illegible]. The increased [illegible] where the nitrate has been used in this way have ranged from $15 to $30 per acre—a very profitable use of nitrate, as the yield is greatly in excess of that which would be obtained by average methods of manuring.

WATCH ROBBER BEES

Beekeepers who within recent years have had foul brood in their apiaries should be particularly careful to prevent robbing during the warm days of spring. All hives where bees have died must be taken indoors away from all possible robbing. It is not enough to close them, because robbers will often gain an entrance when least expected. All entrances of live colonies should be made quite small, especially where the bees are weak in numbers.

Use every precaution and watchfulness to prevent robbing. Do not under any circumstances leave combs of honey out for the bees to clean up. Any honey you have is likely to contain germs which would scatter disease in your healthy colonies. On account of the prevalence of disease in unexpected places throughout the province it is never wise to feed honey to bees, and where disease is known to exist it is the worst of folly.

Every beekeeper should understand fully the symptoms and cure of Foul Brood, then he can be his own doctor. Those who do not should drop a card to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto, and a bulletin with description and full instructions will be sent.

NOTES.

Make increases gradually, until at the time the animals take the field they are on full feed.

It is time to begin increasing the grain ration for the work horses in preparation for spring work.

Save plenty of straw for bedding for the work horses during summer. The hard-worked animal surely deserves a good bed after his day's work.

Continue the feeding of roots up until the time the horses go to work. They will help keep the digestive system in good order when increasing the grain ration.

Give the in-foal mare the advantage during spring work. Many practice allowing her a double-tree advantage of about two or three inches. Avoid putting her on the tongue, if possible.

Look at the harness and see that all parts are in order, and that they fit the horse which is to wear them. Where possible avoid changing harness from one horse to another and always provide a special collar for each horse. A collar which fits one animal well is not likely to fit another to so good advantage.

It is folly to feed on straw and roots only, and then start the horses on a gallon of oats each three times daily the day seeding opens. This is responsible for digestive troubles, which prove costly.

It makes extra work, but it is good practice to remove the harness while the horse is feeding at the noon hour. It gives the sweating collar and all other parts which are in contact with the heated animal when working an opportunity to cool off, and also gives the horse a chance to rest from carrying the weight of the harness, and allows him to cool down more quickly.

DRS. SOPER & WHITE

SPECIALISTS

Piles, Eczema, Asthma, Catarrh, Pimples, Dyspepsia, Epilepsy, Rheumatism, Skin, Kidney, Blood, Nerve and Bladder Diseases.

Call or send history for free advice. Medicine furnished in tablet form. Hours—10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 6 p.m. Sundays—10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Consultation Free

DRS. SOPER & WHITE

25 Toronto St., Toronto, Ont.

When Writing Mention This Paper.

Wouldn't Hear the Game.

An exceptionally voluble golfer was vainly endeavoring to move a ball with his driver. Pausing in his efforts, he espied, watching him, a small girl holding by the hand a still smaller boy. Immediately visions of flying golf balls flashed across his mind. "You ought not to bring your little brother here," he cautioned the girl. "Oh, it's all right, sir," came the reply. "He's stone deaf."—Exchange.

Musical Note.

"Say, Hiram, what do they mean by a Stradevar'us?"

"Oh, a Stradevar'us is the Latin name for a fiddle."—Musical Courier.

NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK STOVES

"NOW SERVING 3,000,000 HOMES"

THE NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove, for years manufactured in the United States, is now made in Canada.

The Perfection Stove Company, Ltd., at Sarnia, Ont., is manufacturing these stoves for distribution by The Imperial Oil Company, Ltd., throughout the Dominion.

The NEW PERFECTION is the best-known and most-liked oil stove in the world. Over 2,000,000 are now in use—saving money and labor for their users and keeping kitchens clean and comfortable.

The NEW PERFECTION brings gas stove conveniences to the kitchen. It lights like gas, cooks like gas. 1, 2, 3, and 4 burner sizes.

Ask your dealer to show you a NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove—made at Sarnia, Ont., by Canadian workmen. If he can't supply you, write us direct.

ROYALITE OIL GIVES BEST RESULTS

THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY Limited

BRANCHES IN ALL CITIES

THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY LIMITED

Made in Canada

Rugs and Linoleums

Have you bought your floor rugs and linoleums? Right here is where we can offer you exceptional values. We import direct from England and Scotland our carpet squares and linoleums. There is no middleman's profit.

RUGS—Are in the newest conventional designs. The colorings are rich and durable. We have all the regular sizes in stock in Brussels, Tapestry, Wiltons and Velvets, commencing in price as low as $6.75.

LINOLEUMS—4 yards wide in splendid block and floral patterns. Three splendid wearing grades at $2.00, $2.25 & $2.50.

IF YOU BUY HOLEPROOF HOSE

You will have no darning for at least six months. With every box of six pairs of fine cotton or cashmere Holeproof Hosiery we give you a signed guarantee that if any of the six pairs show holes within six months, you may exchange them for new hose absolutely free of charge.

But this does not mean that you will have to make exchanges, for more than 90 per cent of all Holeproofs out-wear the guarantee. It does mean that you will get twice the service that ordinary hosiery gives.

That is why we ask you to buy Holeproof for the whole family.

LITTLE GIRLS TUB DRESSES

Dresses that will wash well and do up easily, keep color and wear. That's the kind these are. They're made up in pretty sailor and Peter Thompson styles, come in pretty shades of blue, fawn, brown and khaki. Prices 50c, 75c, $1.00 $1.25, $1.50 & $1.75.

Hats For Little Kiddies

Swagger little Mushroom Hats in cream, white, blue, brown and tweed effects. Some are washable and all are serviceable and becoming.
Prices 50c, 75c & $1.00.

Boys Wash Suits

A special assortment of boy's wash suits for warm weather wear. They're made of serviceable galatea and drill and they will wash and keep color. Nicely made and trimmed.
Prices 75c, $1.00 & $1.25.

BOY'S STRAW HATS

Boy's straw hats of fine soft chip straw which will stand a lot of abuse Fancy colored bands, brims will either turn up or down. 50c to 75c.

For the Young Folks—Boy's Jerseys

At 25c.—Boy's jerseys in fine cotton in either long or short sleeves. Colors, navy, cardinal and brown with assorted trimmings. Sizes 22 to 32.

At 75c. & $1.00—Boy's fine cashmere jerseys. Fine all-wool quality, pull over style and some with button up collar and shoulder. They have stand-up or roll collar and close fitting cuffs. Sizes 21 to 31.

STEPHAN BROS.

PUBLIC SCHOOL REPORT

GRADE VII

Sr. IV—Pass—N. Lay, M. Wilson, H. Everett, S. Taggart, R. Herrington, W. Small, D. Kenny, M. Bonnyman, F. Myles, B. Everett, G. Hibbett, B. Moore, C. Wilton, H. Johnston, E. Ramsey.

Jr IV—Hon—S Bremner, J. Norrish G. McCarter, N. Shaw. Pass—C. McKay, J. Kenny, W. Inglis, M. Hylker, T. Crawford, B. Rogers, S. Reichenbach, I. Moore.

H. L. Willoughby,
Principal.

GRADE VI

Hon—(C. Attwood, L. Wallace.) G. Van Horne. V. Kimble. Pass—I. Inglis, G. Swanston, H. Paull, I. Ernest, J. Rennie. V. Sieling.

Juniors—Hon—G. Millar, A. Lindley. Pass—F Wilton, M McGregor, (A Bolden R. Cryderman,) M. Royce, V. Bush.

J. Stead.

GRADE V

Sen Hon—Bruce Hunter, Edna Searle, John Ernel, Vera Anderson, Clara Kerney.

Sen Pass—Minnie Petteplace, Mabel Godwin, John Dietsche, (Claude Johnston, Frank Fruin,), Keyworth Sutton Elgar Thick. Jun Pass—Muriel Lindley, Allan Schaus, Elmer Kulpin, Frances Crawford.

M. Ross.

GRADE IV

Hon-Doris Van Horne, Clifford Yates Earl Forsythe, Pearl Riehl, Norman Pleskey, Emma Schaus.

Pass—Harvey Inglis, Norman Webb Alma Searle, Jack Kaeppler, Madaleen Hyslop, Gladys Sutton, Mary Perdue, Harriston Hodgson, Marie Schwindt, Vinnie Dennie.

M Sinclair.

GRADE III.

Junior Second—Hon—W Forsythe, V Anderson, J Lowe, D Crawford, C Buehlow, D Anderson, A McNeill. Pass—V Trussler, J McConnell, W, Goode, F Bush, N Truax, E Yoeck, C Gordon, E Pletsch, H Myles.

Senior First—Hon—H Paull, W Hunt, I Moore, H Buehlow, E Yates, W Ballantyne. Pass—M Dietz, J Van Horne, D Polley, N Fortune, G Cousins, W Jerome, K Perdue, A Royce, G George, O Sieling, D McNeill.

Agnes Warren,
teacher.

GRADE II.

First Class — Hon — E Singer, W Hehn, K Hawthorne C Fields. Pass F Johnston, G Giffin, K Pletch, R Fruin, O Hood.

Primer—Hon—G Gordon, O Fisk, I Schmidt, C Paull, A Buehlow, K Perdue, G Wallace. Pass—J Webber, E Lindley, J Nutting, P McConnell, E Truax, S Hehn.

GRADE I.

Sr Primer — N Everett, N Whitehead, B Orcor, S Lymbery, M Lindley, A Reichenback, N Forsythe, H Bush, H Moore, H George, J Hacon, N Schaus, I Abel, K Fortune, P Webb.

Mid Primer—J Godwin, L Player, F Lindley, C McEwen, M Hunt, G McGregor, M Appel, C Baulk.

Jr Primer—R Hunter, H Hawthorne, M Shaw, M Pletsch, S Anderson, L Searle, E Leake, M Lindley, W Fennell.

A. D. Thompson,
teacher.

SEPARATE SCHOOL REPORT.

Sen. IV.—Agnes Obrecht, Peter Zettler, Bernard Zettler, Florence O'Neil, Joseph Gill, Norval O'Malley, Albert Waechter, Lorne Hergott, Minnie McGregor, Florence Oberle, Robert Wilhelm.

Jun. IV.—Charles McNab, Olive Weiler, Jerome Bruder, Edna Giesler, Lizzie Sweeney, Arthur Giesler, Jean Richenbach, Lenoard Monahan, Bella Lippert, Harold Walker, Cecilia Batte, Clement Obrecht, Margaret McCurdy, William Irwin.

Sen. III.—Melvin Schmidt, Cecila Cunio, Kathleen Oberle, Margaret Yaeck, Madeline Weiler, Mary Hauck, Tom Monahan, Melinda Schumacher, Lorette Schumacher, Hilda Kuntz, Leo Weiler, Frances Ernst, Gladys Fehrenbach, Arthur Schefter, Frank Mosack, Louisa Lippert, Leo Weiler, Clement Wilhelm, Rita Weiss, George Lettner, Beatrice Klein, Tommy Richenbach, Leander Meyer

Jun. III.—Elizabeth O'Connor, Florence Obrecht, Fred Irwin, Daria Waechter, Gladys Jarvis, Mary Zettler, Christella Schnurr, Albert Weiler Henry Flach, William Batte.

Sen. II.—Edwin Schmidt, Clarence Hesch, Edna Sutter, Syril Oberle, Clarence Weiler, Herbert Schnurr, Eleanore Weber; Edwin Weiler, Loretta Schnett, Rita Scanlon, Cecilia Obrecht, Lyal Cousins, Aloysius Zettler, Violet Freiburger, Wilber Freiburger, Arthur Waechter, Alex McNab.

Jun. II.—Loretta Kuennemann, Clara Giesler, Arthur Sutter, Laverne Yaeck, Gladys Eckenswiller, Margaret Hauck, Mary Weber, Lucy Gillen, Harry Oberle, Beatrice Lundey, Cyril Lundey, Willard Walker, Harold Zimmer.

Sen. I.—Agnes Weber, Kathleen Sielle, Harold Schiestel, Rita Wachter, Leona Waechter, Cleopha Weiler, Gerard Ernewein, Leona Scanlon Norman Freiburger.

Jun. I.—Albert Giesler, Anthony Cunia, Joseph Batte, Teresa Meyer, Joseph Lippert, Olive Hesch, Leona Schnurr, Lillian Freiburger, Roy Walker, Charles Schnurr, Clarence Berberich, Harold Schnurr, Clarence Dentinger, Arthur Klein.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.

Grade 1—Elizabeth O'Connor.

Grade 3—Gladys Fehrenbach, Bernadetta Scanlon, Kathleen Oberle.

Grade 2—Christella Schnurr, Rita Weiss, Hilda Kuntz, Loretta Schumacher, Melinda Schumacher, Rita Scanlon, Veronica Scanlon, Daria Waechter.

Grade 1—Beatrice Klein, Loretta Schnett, Louisa Lippert, Edna Giesler.

The Conservative Convention

The Conservatives of South Bruce held their convention in Formosa on Thursday last and selected as their standard-bearer in the coming Federal election Mr. John Purvis the auctioneer of Holyrood.

The meeting which was fairly well attended was called to order by the President of the Association, Mr. Jas. Tolton at 3.30 o'clock and the election of new officers, resulted as follows:

Hon Pres, J Tolton, Walkerton
President C. Brown, Chesley
Vice Pres E Seigner, Carrick
Sect'y A Collins, Walkerton

Presidents of Polling Divisions;

Elderslie	Jno Johnston
Chesley	Jno Krug
Paisley	Geo Craig
Brant	Jas Crawford
Carrick	Jacob Schmidt
Walkerton	A P Johnston
Culross	Thos McPherson
Teeswater	Robt Mann
Kinloss	Mr Moffatt
Lucknow	Jno Button
Huron	Hy Logan
Greenock	Mr Loughleen

In the election of the officers it was a difficult problem to find men willing to accept the offices and it was not a case of man seeking office, but rather that of office seeking man. and as an example in the case of the presidency, six motions were made before a man was found willing to accept the responsibility. It was this way in almost every instance.

After the election of officers. the nomination was then proceeded with, the following names being suggested:—John Purvis, Holyrood, Wm Becking, Culross, Dr Fowler, Teeswater, John Rowland, Walkerton, Fred Lippert, Walkerton Dr Beihn Chesley and John Joynt of Lucknow.

All withdrew with the exception of Jno Purvis and Dr Biehn and on a ballot being taken the latter didn't have a look in and was snowed under, the auctioneer being selected by a considerable majority.

Judging from the tone of almost every speaker, it is apparent that the Conservatives are not very confident of their ability to carry South Bruce and win it back to their fold. As Mr Joynt in his address expressed it:—"This will be a hard riding to win and will require a good deal of hard work, effort and money, for you know we have the strongest man in South Bruce to fight against." This is evidently the reason why the nominees did not fall over each other to be standard-bearer for they were afraid to face the ordeal and sure defeat.

Each of the nominees addressed the meeting, not on the issues of today, however, nor yesterday, but when discussing anything political, they went back to 1911 and reciprocity. Apparently there was nothing on the record of the Borden administration since being put into power at that date worthy of their attention or discussion.

Senator J J Donnely and W D Cargill, M P P were present and addressed the gathering, or at least part of it. Mr. Cargill dwelt upon the doings of the local house and failed to touch upon questions relative to Dominion politics. Senator Donnelly, poohpoohed the graft charges, although he was forced to admit that there had been grafting. He also admitted that the finances of the government were not in as good a condition as formerly under the Laurier administration.

With regard to the possibility or probability of an early election, the Tories here are as much in the dark as their opponents. Mr Tolton, the Hon President of the Association said "I do not know and I dare say no one in this room knows when the election will be. It may be soon or it may not be until the fall, but we must be prepared." Senator Donnelly said "I have no knowledge as to when the election will be. It may be in June, it may be next fall or it may be next year." Mr Donnelly blamed the Liberal press for all the election talk and said that if an election was brought on at an early date the Liberal press and particularly the Toronto Globe and Star would be responsible for forcing the issue.

W. F. M. S. Officers.

The delegates from the Bruce Presbyterial in the W. F. M. S. met in Geneva church, Chesley, on Thursday last, and elected the following officers: Honorary President, Mrs. Norman Robertson of Walkerton; president Mrs. Hogg, Southampton, vice president Mrs. Robertson Southampton second vice president Mrs. Sawyers, Queens Hill; third vice president, Mrs. R. E. Reith, Glamis corresponding secretary, Mrs. Scott, Paisley; recording secretary, Miss Miller, treasurer, Miss Doherty: Mission Band and supply secretary, Mrs. Warren Walkerton, strangers' secretary, Miss McLean, Hanover; secretary of "the Messenger": Miss McCallum, Paisley, home helper secretary, Miss Tolmie, Southampton. The next annual meeting will be held at Port Elgin next April. Funds received amounted to $100.

PINKERTON

Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Gale and Mrs. A. Gregg attended the Bruce Presbyterial in Chesley on Thursday.

Miss Myrtle Garland returned home from Toronto on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Gale of Toronto are visiting the former's parents at the manse.

Mr. Henry Pardy township clerk was at Knox,s hotel on Tuesday evening deciding on the number of legal signatures to the proprietor's petition for a license, at the moment of writing it is not known whether Mr. Knox has a majority of the legal voters or not.

The baseball match played between our schoolboys and those of Eden Grove on Wednesday evening of last week resulted in a decided victory for the visitors. However this was not surprising as the Pinkerton boys had not played the game this year and had to put on several players who had not put many years between them and the cradle.

FORMOSA

The Gardens are a lively place the last 2 weeks.

Henry Mosack who rented the Riversdale Hotel for five years moved in last Saturday.

Last week of April went out very cold.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Schefter were in Walkerton on business last Wednesday.

At the Fire here last Wednesday and at the Conservative meeting last Thursday the Town was filled with Automobiles.

Judge Klein who held court at Teeswater Thursday came through here on his way home and had a look at the fire.

Mr. Tony Schnurr is sick and under the Dr's care since last Sunday.

House and Stable Broken Into.

Mr. John Frame who has a house in the West Ward where he has a lot of household goods stored, found, upon visiting the premises that the staple on the door of the barn had been pulled out and the back door of the house forced open and everything gone over but he has not had time to find out if anything is missing. Mr. Frame has a very good idea who the guilty party is and a close watch will be kept upon their actions in the future.

W.C.T.U. Organizer Here.

Mrs. Hyslop Dominion organizer W.C.T.U. paid our town a visit and occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church in the morning and Methodist in the eve on Sunday last and on both occasions gave fine addresses. After the evening service a meeting was held in Knox Church. Rev. Thos. Wilson occupied the chair. Mr. G. Hagerman gave a beautiful solo entitled [illegible] Af- ter which Mrs. Hyslop gave an excellent address on Patriotism and its relation to the temperance cause. She is a forceful speaker but without any bitterness or antagonism to those who differ with her. On Monday afternoon [illegible] the Baptist church [illegible] on the work of the W.C.T.U. and was listened to [illegible] here [illegible] great deal of good to those who availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing her.

Notice to Creditors

IN THE SURROGATE COURT OF THE COUNTY OF BRUCE IN THE ESTATE OF FRANK LEO OBERLE, LATE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CARRICK, IN THE COUNTY OF BRUCE MERCHANT, DECEASED.

NOTICE is hereby given pursuant to R. S. O. [illegible] that all creditors and others having claims against the estate of the said Frank Leo Oberle who died [illegible] are required on or before the [illegible] day of May [illegible] to send by post prepaid or deliver to Andrew Oberle the Administrator of the said deceased, their christian and surnames, addresses with descriptions, the full particulars of their claims and a statement of their accounts and the nature of their security if any, held by them.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that after such last mentioned date the said administrator will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which he shall then have notice and that the said Administrator will not be liable for said assets or any part thereof, to any person or persons of whose claims notice shall not have been received by him at the date of such distribution.

Dated at Walkerton this [illegible] day of May, [illegible]

ANDREW OBERLE,
Administrator.

THE Merchants Bank
OF CANADA
PAID UP CAPITAL $7,000,000
RESERVE FUNDS $7,248,134
E. F. HEBDEN
GENERAL MANAGER
220 Branches

The SAVINGS ACCOUNTS of those desiring a strong SAVINGS BANK, are cordially invited. Interest added last day of April and October instead of May and November, as formerly.

WALKERTON BRANCH
K. M. TAYLOR
Manager

"Looking back-I see I never saw before."
This is the exclamation of satisfied customers.
We have fitted successfully stubborn cases that others have failed in.
Satisfaction g[illegible]
Consultation [illegible]
C. H. Fox, Walkerton
Jeweller and Optician

"EDISON"
PHONOGRAPH

When you buy an EDISON you get the best. . .

R. L. Gibson
Jeweller - - Walkerton

Specials This Week

Read This List Over Carefully.

20c and 25c silk ribbons all colors 4 to 5 inches wide on sale 15c yd. 2 yds for 25c.

27 inch embroidery flouncing worth 40c and 50c. Sepecial this week only 25c yd.

Blk cotton hose all sizes worth 20c for 15c pr. 2 prs for 25c.

Children's 75c umbrellas, steel rods, only 49c each.

Children $3.50 rain capes for $2.75 each.

Girls $4.50 rain coates, sizes 10 to 18 yrs, only $3.50 each.

Ladies white waists, broken sizes, $1.00 to 2.00 for 50c.

Ladies short spring coates covert cloth $5.00 for $2.95.

Hou. [illegible]resses all sizes, special at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $[illegible].

Children's summer dresses 25c to $2.00 each.

Union and wool squares all sizes. $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00, $10.00.

Remnants of oil cloths and linoleums at cut prices.

Men's 50c ties, broken assortment to clear 25c each

Boys summer jerseys all sizes, long sleeves 25c each

Big table of short ends of all kinds at a saving of ⅓ to ½ on regular prices

Come in and investigate these snaps

McBurney & Co.

THE SAVOY
CAFE
NEXT DOOR TO BENNINGERS BARBER SHOP
QUICK LUNCH
SPECIAL DINNER
Every Day SOUP 11 a.m to 3 p.m.
BEEF-STEAK OR PORK CHOPS
WITH FRIED POTATOES
BREAD AND BUTTER
PIE
WITH TEA OR COFFEE.
25 cts.

"Comfort becomes second nature to wearers of C/C a la Grace Corsets."
This store is noted for its High-Class Ladies' Outer Apparel and for its display of C/C à la Grâce
Corsets
(Made in Canada)

J. H. APPEL Telephone No. 8.

WALKERTON TELESCOPE.

Vol. xxxiv - No 19

WALKERTON, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MAY 13th 1915—8 PAGES

Everything For The Baby

You will find at this store a very complete assortment of baby requirements. We will be pleased to procure any special foods or other items.

Popular Selling Foods

Allenbrey's No. 1, 2 & 3—Nestles Milk Food—Glaxo 40c & 80c sizes—Robinson's Barley & Groats—Horlick's Malted Milk 50c & $1 00—Sugar of Milk—Condensed Milk.

— No War Tax Stamp required on foods.—

Feeders, Nipples, clear gum, 5c, 8c, 10c & 15c each. Comforts Brushes, Teething Rings, Combes, Gehrig's Teething Necklaces 50c, Talcums, Fine Toilet Soaps.

Hunter's Drug Store

Drugs and Kodaks Phone 35 C. P. R. Ticket Agency

Spring Millinery

We are showing all the latest and popular styles in Spring Millinery creations. Charming effects in small, medium and large hats. Copies of imported originals and American creations.

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Walkerton and vicinity to call and inspect this showing of latest models in Spring Millinery.

THE GARDINER MILLINERY

The Rife Block — Walkerton

Put That Camera to Work

If you haven't one, remember we sell PICTURE TAKERS.

We also sell the Eastman Films and Photo Supplies.

SIEVERIGHT'S

Drugs & Kodaks.

Newest Styles

With two button fronts, narrow natural shoulders and all the distinctive touches of Cut, Fit and Finish that characterize CLOTHES OF OUR TAILORING.

Come and decide now. Let us show you the most popular fabrics, the very latest designs and leave your order with us for a new suit.

Two piece summer suits made to your order. Best of trimmings and workmanship, $15.00 up.

G.T.ROURKE

Quality Tailor and Men's Wear Store

Walkerton, - Ont.

JAS. TOLTON

Issuer of Marriage Licenses - Walkerton

Spiralla Corsets

Miss Evans of Toronto was here for a week instructing Mrs. M. Piltz in the Spiralla Corset work. She is now competent for fitting and corseting at a reasonable price, any lady who wishes a perfect figure and comfort.

Call on her at her home on Scott Street, or drop her a card.

MRS. M. PILTZ,

Scott St., Walkerton.

Read McBurney's ad.

Today (Thursday) is Ascension Day.

T. E. Attwood, issuer of marriage licenses.

Mr. William Spitzig of Meaford spent Sunday here.

Automobile, fire or life Insurance, see M. G. Dippel.

Stylish oxfords and pumps at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

A week from Monday is Victoria Day, a public holiday.

For rugs and house furnishings see McBurney's display.

Capt. Martyn of Guelph spent Sunday with Mrs. Martyn.

Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Schwindt spent the past week in Berlin.

Lance Corp. Geo. Hemmelspach of Guelph spent Sunday here.

Mr. Mel Welch has taken a position as clerk in a Paisley shoe store.

Miss V. Carter of Clifford is a guest at the home of Mr. N. Walford.

Cushionette shoes need no breaking in, sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Pte Geo. Dean of Guelph spent Sunday with his wife and child here.

Royal on your shoes means quality in them, sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Parchment butter paper (Choice Dairy Butter) for sale at the Telescope.

The celebration which was to be held in Chesley on May 24th has been cancelled.

We carry in stock a full line of Dr. Scholls foot specialties.—Ramsey the Shoeman.

Mrs. R. L. Orr of Belleville, is visiting at the home of her sister Mrs. K. M. Taylor.

Mr. Roy Todd, who spent the past few months here returned to Saskatoon on Wednesday.

Mr. Frank Yeigh of Toronto, was in Walkerton in the interests of the Y. M. C. A. this week.

Have you foot trouble, try a pair of Dr. Reeds Cushion Shoes sold at Ramsey's Shoe Store.

Mr. Fred Schwalm of Walkerville, formerly of Walkerton, renewed acquaintances here this week.

Mr. Urban Zettel left this week for Durham, where he has accepted a position with the Hydro Electric.

J. R. Rogers, editor of "Jack Canuck" was among those who lost their lives when the Lusitania sank.

Clearing the balance of our women tan shoes $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 shoes for $1.85.—Ramsey the Shoeman.

Miss M. Havill returned on Monday from Toronto. She was accompanied by Mrs. Jas Havill and children who will visit here.

Messrs. Harry Holden, Harvey Miller and Clark Wallace leave this week to do guard duty at Tobermory Wireless Station.

Mr. Ernie Bonnell, accompanied by Miss E. Holmes, motored from Owen Sound on Sunday and spent the day with friends here

Miss Emma McNeill of Brant left yesterday for Fergus, where she will train for a nurse in the General Hospital of that town.

This section experienced a heavy frost on Sunday night, but farmers state that there was little or no damage done to vegetation.

The first car of oil to be used in oiling the streets has arrived at the C. P. R. station and will be put on as soon as the weather permits.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Robertson left on Tuesday on a vacation trip, the former going to Charleston, West Va., and the latter to Montreal

Miss Mae Cryderman of Toronto University, arrived here on Tuesday and will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Cryderman.

Mr. Albert Hergott who has spent the past few weeks at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Geo Lobsinger, left on Saturday for his home in Bruno, Sask.

Mr. E. M. Rowand of Toronto, who is well known here, was among the law students at Toronto who were successful in passing their third year examinations.

Mrs. W. Palmateer and children and Mrs. H. Downey of Mount Forest motored here on Sunday and spent the day with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Oberle.

Mr. Ed. Obrecht, who has been doing guard duty at Tobermory during the winter returned here this week, Ed. has secured a position with the Hydro Electric at Toronto.

Mr. Ab. Smith has been appointed relieving agent on the G. T. R. and left this week for Paisley where he will be stationed for two weeks His place here has been taken by Mr. Blythe.

Mrs. E. J. Skelton, treasurer of the I.O.D.E. wishes to acknowledge the receipt of $10.00 from the Womens Institute, to be expended for Soldier's Hospital supplies.

Mr. Roy Oberle left on Thursday last for Tobermory where he joined the guard at the wireless, taking the place of Milton McCarter, who is returning to his home here to assist his father, Mr. Alex McCarter at the harness shop.

Mrs. O Holderness left on Friday last for Detroit where she will visit at the home's of her sons; While in Detroit Mrs. Holderness will undergo an operation for the removal of cataracts from her eyes, from which she has been suffering for some time

Private R. M. Turner of Guelph was here over Sunday saying farewell to his family and friends. Bob expects to leave this week for England and will shortly afterwards cross the channel to France to fill a vacancy in the ranks of the first contingent.

Mrs. R. Long and Miss Edith have returned from a visit to Toronto. While there they attended the commencement exercises at McMaster University where John A. Long, well known here, was among the number who received their B. A. degree.

The many friends of Mr. Thos Pellow will regret to learn of his very serious illness. The aged gentleman underwent an operation some time ago and the shock to his system was apparently too great, for he never fully recovered and his condition during the past few days has been precarious. Two of his sons arrived home from the States on Friday last.

Plough Points.

Farmers! Secure your plow points at The Walkerton Foundry 4 for $1.00 Points guaranteed.—S. Ellinghausen.

For Sale.

A lot of household furniture, dishes cooking utensils and etc. for sale privately.—Apply at the Telescope or to C. Patrick.

New Caretaker.

Mr. Joe Netzky of Mildmay, has secured the position of caretaker of the Bruce County Hospital and commenced his duties last week.

Wanted at Once.

A young girl to do light house work Apply to Mrs. (Dr.) J. S Reed.

Boy for Adoption.

A boy 2 years old for adoption. Apply to Rev. D. McLennan, Walkerton.

Brant Hospital Aid.

The annual meeting of the Brant ladies Hospital Aid will meet in the Council Chamber on Sat. May. 15th at 3 p. m. J. A. Rowand, Sec. Treas.

Shipped Car of Horses.

Irwin Bros. shipped a carload of twenty-eight horses by express via G. T. R. to Windsor on Monday morning. These animals will be used for army purposes.

Pinkerton Women's Institute

The Pinkerton Women's Institute will hold their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs W. H. Moffat, Narva, on Wednesday, May 19th. 1915 at 2.30 p. m.

Bought Ford Car.

Mr. Wm George has purchased a new Ford car from Mr. Kaldy of Hanover. Mr. George will use the car for private purposes, and also in his livery business.

Art Exhibit.

Remember the art exhibit of over 200 copies of famous masterpieces to be held in the Public School May 20 and 21st, afternoon and evenings. Programme and refreshments. Admission 15c.

Died of Wounds.

According to a report in the daily papers of Friday last, Private James Barry who was wounded seriously in the battle of Langemark has since died. The deceased soldier's parents live near Dunkeld,

Drilling Well.

Messrs. Denny Bros, who have recently purchased a drilling machine, have commenced drilling an artesian well on the farm of Mr. Thos Chisholm Brant. They have also secured several other contracts.

Lacrosse Note.

The final grouping of the O. A. L. A. lacrosse teams was announced last week. Walkerton being placed in a two-team group with Hanover and ordered to play a double schedule. The schedule will be drawn up next week.

Tennis Meeting.

A meeting for the purpose of organizing a tennis club for this season, will be held in the council chamber on Friday evening, May 14th. at 7.30. All those who are interested are invited to attend.

Auction Sale.

There will be sold by public auction at the G. T. R. station, Walkerton, on Wednesday May 19th. at 1 p. m., 10 choice heifer calves also some good yearlings. For terms see bills. Jos. Doyle, prop. Jno. Purvis, auctioneer.

Spent Sunday Here.

Pte. Bob Rowland who has been training with the Queens University Corps at Niagara-on-the-lake, spent Sunday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Jn. Rowland. This was Bob's last visit home as he expects to sail for England in the course of a few days.

Case Adjourned.

The case against Peter Waechter of Ambleside, who was charged with threatening to shoot his brother in-law which was billed to come up on Monday afternoon was adjourned until Friday afternoon. The adjournment was made to give the doctors an opportunity to examine Waechter as to his sanity.

Death of Miss Denny.

After a lenghtly illness, Miss Marie Denny, an aged and well-known resident of Walkerton passed away at her home on Durham St., on Saturday. The deceased was 82 years of age. The funeral took place to the Walkerton cemetery on Monday morning. She is survived by one sister, Miss Angeline.

The Dominion Feather Co.

Have opened for business and will make your Feather Beds into Down Comforters, also the Soft Roll Feather Mattress. Why use out of date bedding when you can get up-to-date bedding made out of your old goods. We buy new and old feathers. Office and Factory next to Royal Hotel.

We Would Ask.

Can the Herald and Times launch out in any campaign against the circulation of obscene literature when he is such an ardent reader of the vulgar, degrading, obscene literature published in Jack Canuck? Let him first rid the community and his own office of this journal which is poisoning the minds of the rising generation with its licentious reading.

First Meter Reading.

The first reading of the new water meters which have been placed in the hotels, the brewery and the Egg & Dairy was made last week and for the month's service, these places will pay as follows, hotels from $7.50 to $9.00, brewery $9.00 and the Egg & Dairy $10 These places formerly paid $40 annually.

Daughters of the Empire

The regular business meeting of the Walkerton Chapter will be held in the Armouries on Saturday, May 15th at 3.30 p. m.

Report not True.

It was rumored about town yesterday that Austin Gransden a local boy who enlisted in the first contingent had died of wounds received in battle. A despatch from Walkerton to this effect also appeared in the London papers. We are gald to say, however, that this is untrue as no offical word has been received from the military authorities at Ottawa.

McAulley–Kiefer.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the R. C. church on Monday morning of this week, when Mr. Jno. McAulley of the local Bell Telephone staff was united in marriage to Miss M. Kiefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiefer of Formosa. Mr. and Mrs. McAulley have taken up their residence in Walkerton.

Contracts Let.

The town council on Monday let the contracts in connection with the extension and improvements of the waterworks system. Mr. Henry Spitzig secured the contract of connecting the new wells with the pumping station and reservoir, while Mr. W. J. Hermeston was awarded the contract of supplying the piping and all other supplies needed at the station and also in the extension of the system of the west ward.

Petitions for Sidewalks Received.

A number of petitions for sidewalks were presented to the council on Monday evening evening, but they have not yet decided how many of these wil be built this summer. The civic employees will be busy for some time erecting the bridge at the grist mill and making the extension to the waterworks system in the west ward. When these works are completed, the men will be set to work at the sidewalks and as much of this work as is possible will be done before the fall of the year.

Tax Rate at 31½ Mills.

The town tax rate for this year will probably be set by the council at 31½ mills. The ordinary expenditure will require at least 31 mills and to this must be added the one-half mill for the county patriotic grant and one mill for the Ontario Government grant for patriotic purposes and Red Cross work. The present year however, will be the last year of high taxation in Walkerton for with the consolidation of the debenture debt it will be possible to lower the rate to 28 mills next year and possibly 25 mills in the following years.

An Excellent System

Now that an adequate and almost unlimited supply of pure water has been secured, Walkerton has the finest and most efficient waterworks system of any town in Ontario, and is one of the most valuable assets of the municipality. The two new wells alone which cost $900, are in reality worth many thousands of dollars, and this fact was emphasized last week when some prominent men from Hanover on seeing the new flowing wells offered the contractor $8000 if he would come to Hanover and guaranteed to secure two such wells in that town. The contractor, however, declined to accept the contract under this condition.

The Pranks of the Devil.

The pranks of the new apprentice, more familiarly known as the "devil," at any printing office invariably have both ludicrous and serious results and the devil which we recently engaged is no exception. He has seen type-lice, been sent for the paper-stretcher, strap-oil, left-hand monkey wrench, etc., and initiated, which performance is anything but a pleasant one for the victim. He is also possessed of the usual trait, that of curiosity as to the manipulation of the machinery, and as this is usually the case got him in wrong. A customer brought a volume of Shakespeare works into the office to be rebound and while drying in the paper-cutter, after receiving the first coat of gum, the devil, whether he had a dislike for Shakespeare works or whether he was merely testing the cutting abilities of the knife, we have failed to ascertain, but, when no one was looking he cut the volume completely in two, and then asked "was it any good?" The volume had to be replaced for the customer and needless to say the devil got his due for this prank and it was a costly one for him.

BORN.

In Stratford on May 8 1915, to Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fowler, (nee Miss Lola Ferguson, a son, (Bobbie).

Croft—In Stratford on Sunday, May 9th, to Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Croft, formerly of Walkerton a son, Donald Alexander.

Adams — In Walkerton on Wednesday, May 12th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. H Adams, (nee Miss Ruby Truax, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Truax), a daughter.

Gone to France.

Captain Arthur McNally who has been training recruits for Kitchener's army at London, England, is now at the front in France, as an officer of the 7th Battalion, of the First Canadian Expeditionary Force. He left London on April 24th.

Moving to Town.

Mr. Wm Meihlhausen, one of Brant's most properous farmers has decided to move to Walkerton and live retired in the future. Mr. Meihlhausen has commenced the erection of a large red-brick resident on his property in the east ward at the top of Shaw's hill, where he will reside.

More Bruce Casualties.

The Canadian casualty list still continues to grow and among the list are the names of several more volunteers from this locality. They are: Alex McAulley, Southampton, wounded; James Barry, Dunkeld, died of wounds; Chester Plante, Wiarton, wounded; George Knight, Kincardine, wounded; H. A. Carter Harriston, wounded; Thos. Johnston, Harriston, killed; Hugh McKinnon and Geo. Elmiston both of Kincardine, wounded; Jack Wilson, Hanover, wounded. Fred Cole, Chesley, wounded.

No Election this Summer.

According to the Mail and Empire the chief Conservative organ in Canada, there will be no election this summer, the reason for the change of heart on the part of the Government no doubt, being the innumerable protests against an election voiced by public officials and citizens throughout the Dominion. The news that there will be no election at this time will be welcomed on every hand. The Government has given no intimation as to when the election will probably take place.

Learn while You Earn.

The Walkerton Business College is offering special advantages to the young people of this vicinity who intend to enter College in the fall, to prepare themselves for a commercial life. This is done by taking our correspondence course in bookkeeping, shorthand, Arithmetic, commercial law and penmanship. (special.) Our correspondence course is second to none and giving entire satisfaction to all our students taking same. Write for our special offer, to Walkerton Business College. P. J. Moloney, Principal.

No More German Sympathizing.

This section of Ontario has a great many German sympathizers who have too late been making pro German statements and lauding the deeds and boasting the greatness of Der Fatherland, but surely after that act of barbarism, the sinking of the Lusitania and murder of 1000 women and children, native born Canadians even if his father or his grandfather came direct from Germany, can in future look the world in the eyes and acclaim that the land of his forefathers is fighting a righteous war. The man in Canada who would now dare to sympathize with Germany is in danger of being maltreated or tarred and feathered, such is the feeling of revulsion for the Kaiser and his nation.

We Were Invited.

As we expected, the Herald and Times last week, twitted us for attending the Conservative Convention in Formosa and insinuated that we stole into the meeting. We may have been an unwelcome attendant, as the Time's intimates we were, but if we remember aright, everyone interested was invited to attend the convention, and as we were interested, not, perhaps with the best interests of the conservative party in view, we sought admission under that head, with several other fellow Liberals. A personal invitation was also extended to us some days previous by a prominent Conservative and therefore we felt no tremor in passing the threshold into the midst of the meeting. Rather we felt more like Daniel in the lion's den, for though the majority of those present, glared at us and would gladly have ejected us, their mouths were sealed and their hands were tied for they were aware that our presence could not be disputed. No, we have not changed our politics and the meeting would not have converted a Liberal who had been sitting on the fence a score of years, and what we have been wondering is, how the Times man mustered up courage sufficient to compel his pen to commit such a crime as describing the meeting as to write the words, "a rousing convention." The Herald and Times is now "waxing fat" on the proceeds of Government printing and advertising including that required by the Department of Agriculture for the local office. The Telescope receives little or none of its printing, while the Herald and Times annual account runs into hundreds of dollars. But it's a long road that has no turning and we can see a good time coming. When the Government changes, we will have the lion's share and as the Times man has likened the Liberals unto swine, it will in that day be said of him as of the prodigal son," he would fain have filled his belly with the husks the "swine" did eat.

Died in Winnipeg.

Word was received here on Tuesday of the death of Mrs. Catherine Herringer, widow of the late George Herringer of Mildmay which ocurred in Winnipeg on Sunday last. The late Mrs. Herringer who was sixty-two years of age was well known in Walkerton. The remains are being brought to Mildmay for burial, the funeral to take place on Friday.

Moving to Walkerton.

Mr. Robert Irwin has rented a house in Walkerton and will move to the county town in a few weeks. Mr. Irwin has been a resident of Ripley for the past 15 years, and has been a good citizen, and at all times took an active interest in everything that pertained to the welfare of the people. Our readers will regret to learn of his removal.—Ripley Express. Mr. Irwin, who is a horse buyer, has rented Mr. Frank Rennie's residence on Victoria street.

New W. F. A. Grouping.

In the W. F. A. intermediate series the Mildmay football team is grouped with Wroxeter and Wingham. This is an entirely new grouping and Walkertonians hope to see Mildmay put it over their new opponents. Several local men will be signed up with the Mildmay team. This will be the poorest year experienced by the W. F. A. for some time, there being only sixteen intermediate teams, five junior and six senior entered in the competition.

Going to the Front.

Col. Oliver and his staff at Guelph have completed the selection of the 22 privates who will represent the 14th. Battalion in the new draft being made to fill up the ranks of the first contingent which was so badly shattered in the recent fighting at Langemarck, in The men who have been picked from the various companies have not had experience, but they have shown in their work that they are good soldiers and worthy to go to the front. The local boys who are included in this draft are:—Privates, R. M. Turner, W. E. Weidner, and A. R. McCarter. These boys leave in the immediate future to take their places in the firing line in France.

Death of Andrew Lettner.

A death under very sad circumstances ocurred in Walkerton on Saturday last when Mr. Andrew Lettner passed away after a long illness, at the comparatively early age of 41 years. The deceased was born and raised in Walkerton and left some years ago for Winnipeg where he was married and resided until a few weeks ago when he was brought to his old home here suffering from anaemia. The change of climate was beneficial for a time, but he soon began to fail again and gradualy sank until death came on Saturday last. Besides his wife to whom is extended the sympathy of the many friends of the family, in her great bereavement, he is survived by four small children; also his mother at whose home he died, and four sisters, Mrs. Ralph Krueger, Walkerton, Mrs. H. Bauman, Cornwall, Ont., Mrs. Violet, East Jordan, Mich., and Mrs. Monahan, Dunkeld; and six brothers, viz, Messrs. Chris, William, Ed. and John of Eye Brow, Sask., Frank of Kingnard, Sask., and George of Walkerton. The funeral which was largely attended took place on Monday morning to the R. C. church, thence to the Walkerton cemetery.

Committing wholesale Murder.

That the intense hatred of everything British; by the German people, of which so much has been written, has by no means been magnified or that there is any possibility of it having been the mere fancy of some writer as was thought to be the case by some people, has been removed by the sinking of the giant liner Lusitania, off the Irish coast on Friday afternoon by the German Submarine U-39. The Lusitania sailed from New York on Saturday, May 1st with 2067 people passengers and crew aboard and when 25 miles from the Irish coast, the submarine which had been lying in wait for the vessel launched two torpedoes both of which struck their mark. The great boat sank in twenty minutes and of those aboard less than five-hundred escaped. The list of those lost includes over two hundred Canadians, of whom about one hundred were from Toronto, twenty from Hamilton, and the remainder from all parts of the Dominion. Many prominent men were included in the several hundred citizens of the United States who were drowned. This act of piracy or barbarism which resulted in the drowning of over 1500 people, all non-combatants, and mostly women and children, has caused civilization the world over to lift its hands in horror. It was not thought possible that any nation, no matter how depraved, no matter how sorely pressed by enemies, could break the common law and commit wholesale murder in this way, and take as their victims unprotected women and children, citizens of other countries. As a consequence Germany is now a friendless nation. The sinking of the Lusitania may result in both the United States and Italy taking up arms against her.

A GIFT OF A SOUL

Notwithstanding the grief caused her by these dark moods of her brother's friend, Juliette did not complain of her fate. She saw Pierre tortured with anxieties, sombre and capricious indeed—but she saw him. In Paris she never saw him, consequently she had gained something by the change. She knew that the woman who exercised so evil an influence over him was at Monte Carlo, but she knew also that the painter no longer spent all his time with her. If the chain was still riveted the links were loosening, and some day would doubtless end by breaking. This was her only hope. She had not much pride. But has one ever any pride who loves? On the day following the dinner which had been so strangely terminated by Dr. Davidoff's story, at about 10 o'clock in the morning, Juliette, her blonde head protected by an umbrella, and a little basket on her arm, was walking along the terrace gathering flowers. The weather was delightful. The blue of the sea blended into the blue of the sky. A delicious breeze laden with soft odors came from the ocean. The waves, fringed with silver, died away at the foot of the rocks that bordered the solitary little bay. Accompanied by his mother, Jacques left the house and began to walk slowly up and down in the sun.

Mme. de Vignes was a small and slender woman, with a delicate face, expressive black eyes, and an intellectual forehead, crowned with hair which had turned prematurely white. Her countenance wore the calm expression of a resignation that had become habitual with her. She walked softly and in silence, casting a glance from time to time at her son as if to measure the progress caused in his convalescence by the climate of the South. Jacques, stopping in the middle of the terrace, and seating himself on the stone parapet which was warmed by the rays of the sun, watched through the crystal clearness of the water the strange colors of the submarine vegetation. Sitting in the warm atmosphere, his head bared to the breeze, he forgot his illness, and felt stealing over him a vivifying sense of well-being. His sister approached him, having gathered her flowers, and softly kissing him said:

"How do you feel this morning? Did you sleep well last night? It seemed to me late when you came home."

The sick man smiled at the recollection of the follies in which he had once consumed his nights, and taking a spray of mimosa from the young girl's basket answered:

"Oh, very late, indeed! It was past ten!"

"You are laughing at me. That does not alter the fact, however, that you went out last night for the first time since we have been here."

"My doctor gave me permission to do so. He was one of the guests—and a doctor never finds the pleasures in which he himself participates hurtful."

Juliette remained silent for a moment, then asked with a serious air:

"Do you like this Doctor Davidoff?"

"Yes, he is an agreeable companion, and his scientific knowledge is genuine and profound, notwithstanding the satanic character it sometimes assumes. Besides, I do not believe he is so demoniac as he tries to appear. But it is an incontestible fact that since he has been attending me I am better."

"Ah, my dear boy," cried Mme. de Vignes, "that alone would make him seem divine to me. Let him be what he will, if he will only cure you. In any case he is perfectly well-bred and of good social standing. But he might be a rustic and I would still adore him. All I ask from him is to give you back your health."

"He is to come this morning to see if my last night's dissipation was injurious to me. This will be unfortunately, one of the last visits he will make us. He starts very soon for the east with his friend and patient Count Woreseff."

"The Russian to whom the beautiful white yacht anchored in the roadstead of Villefranche belongs?"

"The same."

"Was he one of the guests last night?"

"No; he scarcely ever leaves his vessel. It is said that he guards there, with jealous care, a Circassian whom he has carried off, and who is reputed to be the most perfect beauty it is possible to imagine. Her apartment is furnished with Oriental splendor. She is served by women sumptuously attired. In the evening the most exquisite music may be heard from the vessel. It is produced by musicians on board hired to divert the Count and his lady love. This is the person with whom Davidoff is said to sail for the Land of the Thousand and One Nights."

"I do not think he is very much to be pitied," said Mme. de Vignes gayly.

"Last night he did his best to persuade Pierre to accompany them. Woreseff, who adores artists, had thought of taking with him a painter who might make some sketches of the principal episodes of the journey."

"And your friend did not consent?" asked Juliette with a forced smile.

"No, he is contemplating another journey, but he wishes to make it alone."

These words, which had so ominous a sound, were followed by a moment's silence.

Jacques, suddenly struck by the sinister meaning which might be given to words uttered by him without any arriere pensee, remained thoughtful, recalling the bitter expressions to which Pierre had so often given utterance. Juliette looked at her brother with a pang at her heart, divining his painful emotion, and herself unable to recover from the shock she had received. It seemed as if both of them were about to meet with some misfortune of which these words were the threatening presage. And they were silent, assailed by lugubrious presentiments. The rolling of carriage-wheels on the route to Beaulieu recalled them from their painful thoughts. They looked at one another in silence, and each was frightened at the other's pallor. Then they turned their eyes to the gate of the villa, before which a carriage had stopped.

The Russian doctor, dressed in black and looking very serious, descended from the vehicle and advanced toward them. Jacques rose, and assuming a more cheerful look went forward to meet his early visitor.

"Faithful to your promise, my dear Davidoff," he said, pressing his friend's hand. "How many thanks I owe you for all your attentions to me!"

The doctor saluted Mme. de Vignes and her daughter. His countenance was cold and impassive. Jacques looked at him with astonishment and Juliette with terror. Why this constrained attitude, this silent greeting? What was it he feared to tell? What had happened that caused him to wear this mournful countenance and gloomy air? The Russian raised his eyes toward Jacques, and slowly, as if seeking to prolong a situation which deferred some painful communication, said:

"Do you feel well this morning? Did you sleep soundly last night? Have you any fever to-day?"

He felt Jacques' pulse, holding his wrist for a few moments between his fingers.

"No: it is stronger. You can be treated like a man now," he added.

Jacques looked at the doctor and in a hollow voice said:

"Has anything happened serious enough to require such precautions?"

Davidoff nodded in the affirmative, without speaking.

"And you hesitated to tell me of it?" resumed Jacques.

"Yes."

"And now?"

"And now I am ready to tell you."

He lowered his voice a little so as not to be heard by the mother and sister of the young man and said:

"It would be better, however, to wait until we are alone."

They all walked slowly toward the house. When they were in front of the parlor, the blinds of which were partly closed to shut out the sun, Mme. de Vignes and Juliette paused. The young girl looked at the doctor anxiously. She felt that the mysterious words he had just spoken had some secret connection with the thoughts that had troubled her at the moment of his arrival. The image of Pierre Laurier appeared before her, pale and indistinct and seeming as if vanishing into nothingness. The serious communication which Davidoff had to make related, she was sure, to the painter. Of what nature was it? A shudder passed through her frame. On this beautiful sunny morning she felt cold. She saw the blue heavens veil themselves in mourning, the sea grow dark, the verdure of the pine trees lose its color. A knell sounded in her ears. Overcome by her funereal hallucination, her brain whirled and the earth seemed slipping from under her feet.

The voice of her mother pronouncing her name recalled her to herself. Her eyes unclosed, her vision grew clear, and the sky was once more bright, the sea blue, the trees green. Nature was still the same, her heart alone was oppressed with anguish, and her mind filled with gloomy forebodings.

"Come, Juliette," repeated Mme. de Vignes, "I think your brother wishes to be alone with the doctor."

The young girl cast an appealing glance at the Russian, as if it depended upon him whether the calamity she feared had taken place or not, then with a deep sigh she went into the house.

The two men had seated themselves near one of the iron columns supporting the glass roof of the veranda, around which twined clusters of fragrant heliotrope. They remained silent for a moment, each thinking of the revelation which was to ensue.

Then Jacques, with the egotism of the invalid, said tranquilly.

"What have you to tell me, my dear friend?"

"A very sad piece of news, very sad indeed. It was brought to me this morning, and I confess that I am still completely overwhelmed by it. If it were not necessary that you should be told of it, I would have deferred my painful task, but it so nearly concerns you—"

Jacques, grown suddenly nervous, interrupted him.

"What a preamble! How am I concerned in what you have to tell me?"

"That is what you are now about to learn," replied Davidoff, looking at his patient so intently that his glance seemed almost stern. "At about one o'clock this morning a suicide was committed, close by Monte Carlo. A man threw himself from the cliff into the sea. Some custom-house officers, making their rounds, found his overcoat, his hat, and a few words—addressed to you."

"To me!" exclaimed Jacques, turning pale.

"To you. The articles were taken to the Governor, who, knowing how intimate we are, caused me to be notified in order that I might break the news to you."

Jacques' eyes seemed suddenly to recede in his head, and his mouth twitched convulsively, as he said

"It concerns some one, then, with whom I am closely connected?"

"Very closely."

Davidoff slowly drew from his pocket the card on the back of which the painter had written his last farewell, held it toward his patient. The latter, with something like terror, took the thin piece of pasteboard in his hand and read the name engraved upon it. A sudden flush mounted to his cheeks as he cried

"Pierre! Pierre! Can this be possible?"

He remained speechless for a moment, his gaze fixed on the Russian doctor, who observed him in silence, motionless and sombre. Both were very silent as if fearing to hear even the sound of their own voices. They exchanged a glance of horror and incredulity, so difficult was it for them to believe that this being, a short time since so full of life and vigor, should have vanished in a moment. Yet such was the fact. Pierre would never again appear amongst them. His place beside them was to be forever vacant.

Jacques without a word looked once more at the card, the name on which he had just read, and brushing away with the back of his hand the tears which filled his eyes, proceeded to read the last farewell addressed to him by his friend. He read aloud the lines traced in pencil with a trembling hand on the preceding night. His voice was choked by an overpowering emotion. He understood from what he read, that his friend was weary of his suffering and his degradation, and that he desired to die in order to escape from them. But he saw also that in ending his life the thought had come to him to make this strange compact with fate, which should allow him to live again in Jacques. He read slowly aloud:

"I am going to try the experiment of which Davidoff told us: I bequeath to you my soul. Live happy through me and for me."

A horrible hope lighted up the eyes of the sick man, at the same time that a sigh broke from his lips. He was overwhelmed with grief, but a vivifying faith had already taken root in his heart.

"It was I who saw him last," said the Russian doctor. "He left me to visit Clemence Villa. A violent scene, such as took place daily between them, must have occurred. He left the house, and after that no one knows what happened. Some coastguards who chanced to be on the road to Vintimille during the night on the lookout for smugglers, with whom they exchanged shots, found the coat, the hat and the card near the spot where the affray took place."

"And his body?" Jacques asked.

"The tide will doubtless wash it ashore later. It can then be buried in holy ground, and his friends can go shed their tears over his grave."

A deep groan, and the noise of a falling body in the parlor, were heard at the same moment. Jacques and the doctor started to their feet in terror. Davidoff went hastily forward, drew the blinds, and uttered an exclamation of surprise. At two steps from the window Juliette had fallen unconscious on the floor. She had caught a chair to support herself with, which had fallen to the ground with her. Pale and with closed eyes, she looked as if she were dead.

The two men hurried into the house. At the noise Mme. de Vignes had appeared. She had no need to ask any questions. Through the open door she had seen her daughter. For this woman, apparently so frail, to take Juliette in her arms was the work of an instant. She laid her on the sofa, examined her countenance, placed her hand upon her heart; felt it beating, and, somewhat reassured, asked her son:

"What has happened?"

Davidoff approached the young girl and moistened her temples with water. Jacques did not give his mother the card on which was written the last will of his friend bequeathing to him his soul. He only uttered the words: "Pierre is dead."

It seemed as if these words had power to make themselves heard by Juliette, even in her unconscious state. She sighed, opened her eyes, recognized those round her, and returning to life and to suffering at the same time, burst into tears.

Mme. de Vignes and her son exchanged glances. Jacques cast down his eyes. Then the mother, divining the secret of the virginal love of Juliette, uttered a deep sigh, and began to weep with her.

Davidoff took Jacques by the arm and led him out of the house. On the terrace the air was mild; the sun drew their fragrance from the odorous plants; the light breeze gladdened the heart; the sea was of a sapphire blue, the swallows skimmed along the surface of the water with joyful cries. It seemed to the doctor that his patient was no longer the same: he walked with a firm step, he held himself erect; his eyes, a moment before hollow and dull, shone brightly. He did not speak, but from the animated expression of his face one could divine that a sudden exaltation had take the place of his former dejection. Davidoff, with an expression of bitter irony, looked at him thus transformed by hope.

Then, as he thought of Pierre Laurier dead, and of Juliette weeping, the Russian smiled sardonically in silence. He thought that in order to restore this selfish young man to life the sacrifice of two human beings was a heavy price to pay, and he could fancy he saw a pair of lovers, young and happy, walking arm in arm in the intoxicating perfume of the flowering orange trees, on this beautiful terrace, under this cloudless sky. But the vision swiftly passed, and Davidoff saw only Jacques, revivifying already by the blood of Pierre and the tears of Juliette, walking by his side triumphantly.

CHAPTER III.

While he was swimming with all his strength toward the drowning man, Pierre, his figure brought into sharp relief by the light of the moon, at that moment unclouded, had been perceived by the custom-house officers, who were in ambush on the cliff. Two shots passing close to him, a sharp whizzing sound in his ears, a dash of spray thrown up by the ball, told him that he had been mistaken for a smuggler. He raised himself on the crest of a wave and cast a rapid glance around. Ten yards away a black form was struggling in an eddy; two hundred yards farther off the boat, impelled by the efforts of the rowers, was making for the cutter, which tacked about in the open sea. A few vigorous strokes brought Pierre beside the wretch who was struggling desperately though almost unconsciously with the waves. Pierre grasped him vigorously, raised his head above the water, and with all the force of his lungs gave a cry, which, borne from wave to wave, reached the boat. The man at the tiller raised himself up at this appeal, looked around attentively, and perceiving the two men struggling in the water in the moonlight, responded with a sharp whistle. Immediately the oars ceased to strike the surface of the water. The boat stopped, and the cutter, as if obeying orders previously received, headed towards the land. Weighed down by his human freight, and collecting all his strength Pierre made slow progress. His clothes clinging to his body prevented the free movement of his limbs, and he could scarcely breathe. The waves now passed over his head. He no longer made an effort to swim. It seemed to him that an irresistible power drew him downward, and that invisible bonds weighed heavily upon his limbs. A buzzing sound filled his ears, and his darkened vision could no longer behold the sky. He thought to himself "I shall never have the strength to reach the boat, and I am going to die along with this unfortunate wretch." He was seized with despair at not being able to save this man, whom he had never seen before, and whom he held as closely clasped as if he had been a tenderly cared-for brother.

(To be Continued.)

SEIZED WITH PARALYSIS COULD NOT WALK

Most Extraordinary Cure Effected by the Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

To have the nervous system paralyzed, to be unable to walk and scarcely able to talk, and then to be completely cured, is not a usual experience, but Mr. Hyatt tells in this letter what he passed through. Doctors told him his case was hopeless, and when they gave up he turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and obtained complete cure.

Mr. Avery Hyatt, blacksmith, St. Anns, Lincoln Co., Ont., writes: "I am a blacksmith by trade, and ten years ago became afflicted with paralysis. I could not walk or read or write, and could talk with difficulty, so that it was a hard matter to understand anything I would say. Being only a young man, I was nearly discouraged. Two doctors told me it was brought on by overwork, and that my case was hopeless.

"One day my father read about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and advised me to try it. I bought 12 boxes, and when the fifth was used I saw that I was getting better. By the time the 12 boxes were used I was cured. I am well and strong and working every day, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

This statement is certified to by Mr. Elmon J. Hodgkins, J. P.

No ailment is more dreaded than paralysis. And yet how few people realize that paralysis of the nerves is only the natural result of neglected nervous trouble.

At first you do not sleep well, have nervous headaches or indigestion, find yourself easily irritated and annoyed, can hear noises which in good health you would never notice. You do not consider yourself sick, and yet you lack the usual energy and vigor and feel out of sorts.

Restore the nerves by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Midwinter Hog Feed.

The most economical food for pigs farrowed in late autumn to be marketed in midwinter, is milk-fed and wheat-bran slop, in connection with grass and clover pasture. When the pasture fails, pour the slop over fine-cut clover hay, mixing in a few handfuls of flaxseed meal; this makes a rich and nourishing food. In cold weather scald the hay. The last feeding month give ear corn after the slop is eaten.

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

A RED CROSS APPEAL TO THE FARMERS.

Our country, with its allies, is waging a great war for justice, for the protection of small nations in the enjoyment of their rights, for continued and growing freedom, and for the maintenance of the pledged word of honor. Much destruction and desolation are being caused. Lives are being lost by the thousand. Canada's first contingent is now in the thick of it. Some will fall sick; many may be wounded, some will pay the last full measure of devotion to their country and its cause.

The Red Cross Society exists to succor the sick and wounded in war. The need of Red Cross service is great and growing greater as the war goes on. The price of progress towards lasting peace is very, very dear. It cost lives, homes, health and much besides. Canada's part in the process of payment, through giving for Red Cross work, is mercifully light and easy, even when all have given to the extent of really feeling it.

The soldiers and sailors pay the price exacted by the desolating struggle from week to week. What they paid in blood and did in sacrifice a month ago was not enough for them. Shall we say it was enough for us? What they are doing and suffering and achieving have put aside, for the time all their thoughts and plans for individual welfare, comfort and safety. They don't hesitate to establish precedents. But they are precedents of heroic sacrifice for our country and its cause, for our principles and ideals that they may be upheld.

Farmers, individually as well as through their institutes, clubs and cheese and butter factories, are in a position to help very greatly. Their business does not suffer from the war. Prices of nearly all farm products have gone up. While labor is scarce there is time to think of the boys at the front and to send the Red Cross Society a gift to be spent for the sick and wounded.

Farmers are generous in sentiment and generous in giving when their hearts and heads point the way. This is a case when they do so point clearly, persuasively and urgently. In this crisis, in the lives of nations and in the lives of stricken soldiers, none can pray too much, do too much or give too much.

I appeal to farmers to send me sums from $1 to $50, during the first week in May. Every $50 provides one additional hospital bed with the giver's name over it. By sending me about $10,000, you would serve your country well, bring credit to yourselves, and make all of us very proud of you. For the sake of the wounded boys, make the gift substantial. It will be an investment towards the recovery of some Canadian soldier who stood in our stead that our cause might be upheld.

Faithfully your friend
JAS. W. ROBERTSON,
Chairman,
Red Cross Society at Ottawa.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house

LET US DO OUR DUTY.

(New York Sun)

Dr. William C. Farabee, the director of the exploring expedition which under the patronage of the University of Pennsylvania is studying the country along the border of Brazil and British Guiana, reports the existence of a benighted tribe of savages who "have never seen a white man" and betray "no sign of civilization." How degraded these creatures are is shown by one sentence from the Farabee statement:

"No metals of any kind were used by them, and they were happy, though entirely cut off from the rest of the world."

They never saw a white man, they work no metals into shrapnel cases or containers for the conveyance of chlorine gas to the lungs of their fellow men; they possess the authentic stamp of the Tree of Life, fortunately petrified and thus rendered immune to the ravages of time, and yet the barbarians have the audacity to be happy!

Clearly, the advanced peoples of the world owe a duty to these our lowly brethren. It might be fulfilled by entrusting their education to a select party of Belgians, who are today peculiarly fitted to speak convincingly of the advantages derived from direct contact with Kultur.

PRAYER SOLDIERS WANTED

The following card issued by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew of St. Matthew's Church, Winnipeg, speaks for itself. Will you not enlist, carry out the request, and induce others to do likewise? "Will you enlist—we want 3,000,000 praying soldiers. You can enlist and fight right at home. Objects for prayer—For removal of all which keeps us apart from God, that we may fight on God's side and win His victory in this terrible war. Or for removal of all vices which may offend a merciful God. Or for complete removal of the liquor traffic as beverages—a menace to our soldiers and citizens, whether in war or peace.

She—What did you call bachelors? He—Men who have contemplated matrimony.—California Pelican.

Protecting the Horses.

An officer on the retired list tells of a raw recruit just enrolled in a cavalry troop of our army. He was paying his first visit to the riding ground.

"Here's your horse," said the instructor. The recruit advanced, took the bridle gingerly and examined his mount with great care.

"What's this here strap around it for?" he asked, pointing to the girth.

"Well," explained the instructor, solemnly, "you see, all our horses have a keen sense of humor, an' as they sometimes has sudden fits of laughter when they see the recruits tryin' to ride, we put them bands around 'em to keep 'em from busting their sides."—New York American.

BABY'S FACE MASS OF ERUPTION

Spread Over Head and Neck, Caused Disfigurement, Burning and Itching. Cuticura Healed.

1 Hibernia Ave., West Toronto, Ont.—"First we noticed a rash on our child's face which soon began to spread all over his head and then around his neck. It was in red patches on his face, then pimples began to form which broke and matter was running from them. His face and head was a mass of eruption and it caused a very bad disfigurement, also burning and itching.

"We were recommended to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In about six weeks they completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. Tucker, Feb. 19, 1914.

Sample Each Free by Mail

With 32-p. Skin Book on request. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A." Sold throughout the world.

"I."

What is this thing that I call "I",
  Which rules my work and play;
Which tells me when to laugh or cry,
When I should frown or smile or sigh;
Which conjures spirits low or high,
  Commands me, aye or nay?
I would that some day I might see
What sort of creature "I" may be.

The things I know that are not "I";
  The soul I've made my own
Is still apart. There seems to lie
Some deeper thing that's strong, yet shy
And still eludes me, though I try
  And will to live unknown.
It never yet has shown to me
What sort of creature "I" may be.

The things I do—they are not "I",
  Nor are the words I say
"I" seems all searching to defy;
I sometimes think the answer nigh,
But though I move and probe and pry
  "I" still will have its way.
And seems to laugh with impish glee
The knowledge of what "I" may be.

The mirrored face that is not "I";
  There something deeper, much
Though sometimes just in passing by
The glass I think a glimpse I spy,
Ah, well—it may be, ere I die
  I'll hear or see or touch
The "I" and come at last to see
What sort of creature "I" may be.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 8, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Can't Sit On Barbed Wire.

"I reckon," said Farmer Corntossel, "as how nobody barbed wire ought to be counted as one of the most useful inventions of the age."

"For what reason?"

"When there's a lot of work to be done barbed wire makes it impossible to sit on the fence and look on."

Buy St. Lawrence Sugar in original packages. Untouched from refinery to your cupboard, you are sure of sugar absolutely free from contamination or impurities of any kind.

St. Lawrence granulated white pure cane sugar is put up in three sizes of grain—fine, medium and coarse, in 100 lb., 25 lb. and 20 lb. sealed bags and 5 lb. and 2 lb. cartons.

All first class dealers can supply it as input when buying St. Lawrence Sugar.

ST. LAWRENCE SUGAR REFINERIES LIMITED, MONTREAL.

LIFE AND WAR.

Just a little patch of garden,
  Just a baby fair and sweet,
Just a little curly head,
  And a pair of sun-browned feet.

Just a little patch of sunshine,
  Flowers beside a garden gate,
Where a small brown boy is standing,
  'Cause for Daddy he must wait.

Just a little pillow, white and clean,
  Waiting for a baby head,
Just a little mother, kind and true,
  Then just a small boy to his bed.

Just some sunshine and a garden,
  Just a happy girl and boy,
All their world is full of sunshine,
  Sweethearts meant for life and joy.

Just a youth and grey-haired mother,
  Is in pain that comes and goes,
Cross her sweet and aged features,
  Sorrow does she seem to know?

Through the sunshine and the flowers,
  Through the birdlings' songs so sweet,
Measured, measured in the distance,
  Comes the tramp of soldiers' feet.

Brave the youth and true his heart,
  Broken though it fain must be,
"Good-bye mother! good-bye sweetheart,
  'Tis my country calling me."

Just a youth in bloody battle,
  Bleeding, dying, all alone,
Just a dear old lady waiting
  With a sweetheart far at home.

Just a plain old village pavement,
  Just the tramp of soldiers' feet
They are bringing home a hero,
  Hear the measured heavy beat.

Just a Christ who died and suffered,
  Bending from a mighty throne,
Just a soldier, weary, broken,
  Just a child who wandered home.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Dear Sirs, Your MINARD'S LINIMENT is our remedy for sore throat, colds and all ordinary ailments.

It never fails to relieve and cure promptly.

CHARLES WHOOTEN.

Port Mulgrave.

Beating the Game of War.

(Buffalo News.)

It is in the order of things that every new invention for warfare—each more terrible than the last one—is presently offset by an invention to neutralize its effect. The two activities run parallel.

For this reason the world is pardonably curious concerning Fessenden's perfection of a submarine wireless. The present war has developed nothing more destructive than the submarine and anything that gives the surface ship something of a chance against its hidden foe is certain to be a factor in the preservation of life and property.

Unlike most of the "improvements for killing"—though the term sounds paradoxical—the Fessenden oscillatory signal device serves both contenders in turn. It gives both hearing and speech to the submarine, making it independent of the surface, and it enables the surface ship to spy below and seek out the hitherto hidden dangers. It is, in addition, an iceberg alarm, underwater wireless telegraph and, under favorable conditions, a wireless sea telephone.

The warning vibrations have been received a distance of thirty-two miles and the importance of the apparatus is emphasized by the declaration that hardly any submarine could be operated successfully against a battleship equipped with the Fessenden signal.

Gradually the inventive genius of man, which has ever been war's strongest ally, is proving treasonable to its trust.

Get More Vim! Renew Your Strength

If you are tired, nerveless, sleepless, have headache and langour, you need Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they tone the stomach, assist digestion, brace you up at once. Taken at night—you're well by morning. Sickness and tired feeling disappear instantly. Vim, spirits, hearty health, all the joys of life come to everyone that uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills. No medicine so satisfactory. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day, 25c. per box at all dealers.

THE POWER OF KINGS.

(Minneapolis Tribune)

If the power of kings is not reduced to a plane of subordination to the will of the people as a result of this appalling exhibition of its reckless and wicked abuse, there will have to be another war to destroy it altogether. And if it must be, it will come soon.

PLENTY OF FOOLS.

(Rochester Herald)

It matters little what doctrine a man teaches, provided a man has a doctrine which he dares to proclaim boldly. If he can proclaim this doctrine not only bodly, but eloquently, he will have followers no matter what the doctrine is.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

A MYSTERY CLEARED.

(London Advertiser)

A scientist has discovered that the hobble skirt was the vogue in the time of Moses. This may explain why it took the Israelites so long to cross the desert.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Some Guides to Poise.

Be polite, but not obsequious, not ridiculously affected.

Be economical, but not stingy, not penurious.

Be brave, but not foolhardy.

Be loving, but not soft.

Be clean, but not fastidious.

Be self-respecting, but not vain.

Be gentle, but not effeminate.

Be thoughtful of others, but not officious.

Be enthusiastic, but not gushing.

The motto of Solon, the wise, was "Medan agan"—Nothing in excess."

Some witty Frenchman said, "Our vices are our virtues carried to excess."

In the Apostle Paul's list of virtues, beginning with faith, the last is temperance, which did not mean in his language abstention from alcohol, but self control.

So the crown of a good man is his power to limit his every force. He is above his pleasures, before his failures behind his ideals, apart from his sins and unconscious of his goodness.

Perfection is not for mortals. But we can have poise, its human equivalent.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World for April.

A FORGOTTEN FACT.

(Guelph Mercury)

A newspaper, although filling a position of great importance and responsibility, is a private concern, and is run primarily to make a living for the men it employs and those who own it. This fact seems to be too often lost sight of.

Washing mirrors with warm suds, dusting with whiting in a muslin bag, and polishing with chamois.

HELP WANTED—FEMALE

WANTED—GIRLS OF GOOD EDUCAtion and character to train for nurses. Reply to Wellandra Hospital, St. Catharines, Ont.

FOR SALE.

SMALL WATER POWER AND FARM for sale—grist, shingle and cyder mill, saw cotton gin, with forty acres of land, good house, natural dam, ample water power, price reasonable. Jos. Seer, Columbus, Ga.

PEERLESS 7-PASSENGER CAR—would make dandy one ton truck, in perfect mechanical condition; [illegible] R. Loveridge, [illegible] Apartments, Windsor, Ont.

FARMS FOR SALE.

BALLURE, McNISH HOMESTEAD; 200 acres, Elgin County; rich clay loam soil underdrained, well fenced; 25 acres beech and maple; original growth; 5 acres orchard; two storey frame house, seven bedrooms, parlor, sitting and dining room, kitchen and summer kitchen, two cellars; hard and soft water at house; bank barn 50 x 75; drive barn; shed; hen-house; five miles west of St. Thomas on Talbot Road; R. R. No. 1; telephone. Price $18,500; about one-third cash. Has been in present family 63 years. Write owners or John A. Moody, P. O. Box 436, London, Ont.

300 ACRES, STOCK AND GRAIN farm; good buildings; 40 acres timber. Sixteen miles from Hamilton, main road; twelve thousand; easy terms. Also 125 acres; sandy loam; bank barn; frame house; other buildings; 18 acres good wheat; spring crop in ground; two miles from station; nine thousand for quick sale; possession at once. Farms all sizes for sale. W. R. VanSickle, 806 Bank of Hamilton, Hamilton, Ont.

TWO ADJOINING SECTIONS—SASkatchewan—five miles from elevator, beautiful tracts; for quick sale at assessed value. H. H. Harrison, Owen Sound, Ont.

EXCELLENT STOCK FARM FOR sale—[illegible] farm in Southwest Georgia, [illegible] level, [illegible] Will subdivide to suit purchasers [illegible] per acre. We can lend your money on property in any amount [illegible] and pay 7 per cent. We never lend over [illegible] per cent of value farm and city property. Blackmar, Columbus, Ga.

Tax On Hats.

Not only have hats at various times been subject to taxation, but have even been made the subject of special laws. Thus in Henry VII's reign none was allowed to sell hats at a larger price than 20 pence or caps for more than 2s 8d.

Some compensation, however, for this interference with free trade could be found in the fact that in 1571 on Sundays and holidays every one above seven years of age was required to wear a cap of wool of English make under penalty of 3 farthings' fine for every day's neglect.—London Chronicle.

SAVED BABY'S LIFE

Mrs. Jos. Descoslers, St. Alphonse, Que., writes: "I cannot say too much in favor of Baby's Own Tablets, as they saved my little one's life. Before giving him the Tablets he was greatly troubled with worms and was like a skeleton and cried day and night. The Tablets soon expelled the worms and now baby is the picture of health." Baby's Own Tablets also break up colds and simple fevers, cure constipation and indigestion and make the teething period painless. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"A Poor Poet."

One afternoon Browning went to call on Lady Kinloch and missed his way. A lady was standing on her doorstep, and he asked her to direct him to the house. She could not tell him, but offered to look it up in the directory and took him into the house, produced a directory, and together they found out what he wanted to know, and then she came out to the doorstep again so that she could point out to him the direction he had to take. He thanked her, went down the steps, hesitated and then turned and came back to her, saying "Perhaps you would like to know to whom you have been so kind. I am a poor poet, and my name is Robert Browning."—Westminster Gazette.

LIQUOR AND MORPHINE HABITS

Are diseases, not vices, and therefore curable. Patients are under my personal care and receive their treatment in ordinary hospitals as ordinary medical cases.

D. H. ARNOTT, M. D.
226 Queen's Ave., London, Ont.

Remarkable Water.

My little niece, five years old, went to visit an aunt who lived on a large farm. Among other improvements on the place was a deep water well, the water of which tasted of sulphur. Upon being asked about her visit on her return home she said, after telling of the many individual things she had seen: "It was all fine, mamma, but the water tasted eggy or piggy or sumthing."—Chicago Tribune.

SIX PER CENT.
Interest Return
SHORT TERM MUNICIPAL
Debentures of Canadian City
WITH POPULATION OF 80,000

Assessed Value	$134,886,425
Net Debt	$ 7,708,966

City of Calgary
Alberta.
6% 3 Year Treasury Bills.
Price 100 and Interest

Denominations $1000.

Principal and interest payable Toronto, Montreal, and New York.

The Public Utilities of this city show a surplus for 1913 of $178,000 over all expenses and after providing for interest and sinking funds.

Wire orders at our expense.

JOHN STARK & CO.
24 Adelaide Street East
TORONTO

ORIAL

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1915.

THE GOVERNMENT BUYERS.

The announcement that the Dominion Government has appointed the Hon. A. E. Kemp, Mr. H. Laporte and Mr. Geo. F. Galt as a commission to purchase war supplies for the Government has been favorably received by the general public. The three gentlemen are recognized as well qualified to fill the position. They are all well-known business men, accustomed to deal in large commercial transactions, and they stand high in the business community. Given a free hand they should be able to see that the Government gets full value for its money in everything that it purchases. But they must not be hampered in any way. The eight thousand name patronage list must disappear, and the commissioners must be allowed to buy to the best advantage, no matter where or from whom, otherwise the commission might as well not have been formed.

The country has to thank the Liberal party for the creation of this purchasing commission. Had the Liberals not insisted on putting an end to the graft that was being carried on at Ottawa, had they not persisted on unearthing the infamous scandals arising out of the purchases of supplies, the whole unsavory business would still have been going on, and the country would still be undergoing the bleeding white process by these leeches. As time wore on these men would have become emboldened and the robberies would have increased in number and in amount. More skates of horses would have been purchased, more dressings and drugs bought at unheard of prices, and the heelers would have waxed fat off the country. Let us hope that all this has been put a stop to by the investigations carried on by the Liberals, and that the Government will now be forced to do business on business principles.

QUEERED THE C. T. P.

It is announced from Ottawa that the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company has definitely refused to take over the eastern portion of the G. T. P. and that the Government will operate it itself. The reason given for this is that the company considers that the road has been too expensively built. While the Liberal Government was building the road the company made no complaints on that or any other score, although their engineers were engaged on the road all the time. No objections of any kind were raised by the company. Just as the road was being completed the Borden Government came into power, and with a view to discredit the late Laurier Government, it set Fred G. Gutelius, a C. P. R. employee, and Geo. Lynch-Staunton, a bitter Tory partisan, to "investigate" the building of the road. These two gentlemen cost the country nearly $100,000, getting $65 a day and expenses. They found no graft, but they reported that $40,000,000 might have been saved by building wooden bridges and making steeper grades and sharper curves.

Following up this report the Borden Government altered the grades, although it was told by the President of the company that if these grades were changed it would not take over the road. The Government paid no attention to him and went on altering the grades. Important changes in the line and terminals were also made, despite the protests of the company. The western section of the road was the fat and profitable section, and the eastern section the lean, hence the company was not anxious to operate it. The report of Gutelius and Staunton gave the reasons for a refusal, and now the Government finds that it has been playing into the hands of the G. T. P. at the expense of the country.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Peace rumors are made-in-Germany.

Almost nine months of war, and the troubles still spreading.

There were few unemployed problems in Laurier's time.

The Sultan must hurry up. He hasn't used asphyxiating gas yet.

The German submarine blockade is proving more of a farce every day.

The Government that goes to the country at this stage of the game goes to its doom.

"More men and more material" is Lord Kitchener's cry. The Canadian Government proposes to send him over half a dozen ballot commissioners.

If Britain should be defeated in this war, it will be by the men at home, and not by the men at the front. Too much whiskey and too few munitions.

The Liberals do not object to an election because they are afraid of it. They object to it just as they object to Dr. Dernburg's activities in the interests of Germany.

It is Canada's duty to see that her forces are so augmented at the front that they cannot be so easily outnumbered by the Germans. The cry over there is, where are the other contingents?

In proportion to population Canada continues to be the best customer of the United States—far the best, says the Buffalo Courier. How about no trade or truck with the Yankees?

Don't Allow Your Bowels To Become Constipated.

If the truth was only known you would find that over one half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, belching of wind, heartburn, water brash, biliousness, and a general feeling that you do not care to do anything.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They will clear away all the effete matter which collects in the system and make you think that "life is worth living."

Mrs. Hans McKitrick, Wakefield, Que., writes: "For several years I was troubled with sour stomach and biliousness and did not get relief until I used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I had only taken them two weeks when my trouble was quite gone, and I will recommend them to all suffering as I did."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c per vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all drug stores or dealers, or will be mailed on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Premier Asquith may not be a "great statesman" or a "man with a vision," but he has held the Premiership of Great Britain for a longer period than any of his predecessors since the passage of the Reform Act in 1832.

Canada's immediate future depends upon the Northwest harvest, says Sir Edmund Osler, but he does not think it is possible to give an opinion on the financial situation of Canada at the present time that would be of any use.

Minnesota's Legislature has passed a bill which allows public school teachers to retire after 20 years' service on a pension of $250. Some of the Western States, including Minnesota, have very large school funds derived from the sale of public lands. This enables them to be generous.

There are seditious newspapers being published in the northwest glorifying the Germans and running down the British. Why does Sir Robert Borden back the Kaiser this way? Why does he not prohibit their publication?

Said Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "I am as much a party man as any man in this House, but I should despise myself if I were to attempt to make political capital when the country is in such danger as it is at the present time." Sir Robert Borden has the floor.

The commander of the Prinz Wilhelm has notified the Washington Government that he wishes to have the vessel interned at Newport News. As an excuse for this, he says that a number of his crew is suffering from beri-beri. Thus the last of the German raiders is driven off the seven seas. Britain rules the waves.

It was Col. H. H. McLean, the Liberal M.P. for St. John, N.B., who sent to the Minister of Militia the following ringing telegram in connection with the exploit of the Canadians at Ypres: "We mourn with pride our gallant comrades who died fighting for the Empire and right. Are we downhearted? Let us answer with a hundred thousand men in the fighting line and fifty thousand in reserve."

Says the Buffalo Courier: "No doubt the case would be different were Canada attacked. It may be difficult for its people to believe their national life in danger, and possibly many young men who would instantly answer a call to repel an invasion are without enthusiasm for crossing a wide ocean to join with strangers in battling with other strangers." That's not the trouble. There are any number of young men willing to enlist, but the supineness of the Government prevents them. While in the old country the Government is in desperation to get both men and munitions, here the Dominion is more interested in forming an election than in defeating the Germans.

Meeting Bills.

"He complains that he never can meet his bills."

"Lucky dog! Mine always show up on the first of the month."—Judge.

Little Sophie—Father, what is executive ability. Professor Broadhead—The faculty of earning your bread by the work of other people.—Christian Register.

Was Troubled With Nervous Prostration.

Many people although they know of nervous prostration do not know what the symptoms are. The principal ones are, a feeling of fright when in crowded places, a dread of being alone, fear of being in a confined place, a horror of society, a dread of things falling from above, fright at travelling on railroad trains, and disturbed and restless, unrefreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams.

Mrs. George Lee, Victoria Harbor, Ont., writes: "I am writing to tell you of the experience I have had with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was so nervous I could not do my own work, I did not want to see any one, or would I go any place. My nerves were bad for three years, and my heart was so bad it made me tremble all over. I took three boxes of your pills, and I never was better than I am now. I weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE Changeling

But Henry Warner was not trifling with her. He was only waiting a favorable opportunity for telling her the story of his love, and now, as they sit together in the moonlight, with the musical flow of the millstream falling on his ears he essays to speak—to tell how she has grown into his heart; to ask her to go with him where he goes; to make his home her home, and so be with him always; but as the first word was uttered Maggie asked if Mr. Douglas' had brought the picture of his sister.

"Why, yes," he answered. "I had forgotten it entirely. Here it is," and taking it from his pocket he passed it to her.

It was a face of almost ethereal loveliness, which through the moonlight looked up to Maggie Miller, and again she experienced the same indefinable emotion, a mysterious, invisible something, drawing her toward the original of the beautiful likeness.

"It is strange how thoughts of Rose always affect me," said Maggie, gazing earnestly upon the large eyes of blue, shadowed forth upon the picture. "It seems as though she must be nearer to me than an unknown friend."

"Seems she like a sister?" asked Henry Warner, coming so near that Maggie felt his warm breath upon her cheek.

"Yes, yes—that's it," she answered with something of her olden frankness. "And had I somewhere in the world an unknown sister I should say it was Rose Warner!"

There were a few low, whispered words, and when the full moon, which for a time had hidden itself behind the clouds, again shone forth in all its glory, Henry had asked Maggie Miller to be the sister of Rose Warner, and Maggie had answered "Yes!"

That night, in Maggie's dreams, there was a strange commingling of thought—thought of Henry Warner as he told her of his love—thoughts of the gentle girl whose eyes of blue had looked so lovingly up to her, as if between them there was indeed a common bond of sympathy—and stranger far than all, thoughts of the little grave beneath the pine, where slept the so-called child of Hester Hamilton—the child defrauded of its birthright, and who in the misty vagaries of dreamland, seemed alone to stand between her and the beautiful Rose Warner!

CHAPTER VIII.

On the rude bench by her cabin door sat Hagar Warner, her black eyes peering out into the woods, and her quick ear turned to catch the first sound of bounding footsteps, which came at last, and Maggie Miller was sitting by her side.

"What is it, darling?" Hagar asked, and her shriveled hand smoothed caressingly the silken hair, as she looked into the glowing face of the young girl and half guessed what was written there.

To Theo Mag had whispered the words, "I am engaged," and Theo had coldly answered. "Pshaw! Grandma will quickly break that up. Why, Henry Warner is comparatively poor. Mr. Douglas told me so, or rather I quizzed him until I found it out. He says, though, that Henry has rare business talents, and he could not do without him."

To the latter part of Theo's remark Maggie paid little heed, but the mention of her grandmother troubled her. She would oppose it. Mag was sure of that, and it was to talk on this very subject she had come to Hagar's cottage.

"Just the way I 'sposed it would end," said Hagar, when Mag, with blushing, half-averted face, told the story of her engagement; "just the way I 'sposed 'twould end, but I didn't think 'twould be so quick."

"Two months and a half is a great while, and, then, we have been together so much," replied Maggie, at the same time asking if Hagar did not approve her choice.

"Henry Warner's well enough," answered Hagar. "I've watched him close, and see no evil in him, but he isn't the one for you, nor are you the one for him. You are both too wild, too full of fun, and if yolked together will go to destruction I know. You need somebody to hold you back, and so does he."

Involuntarily Maggie thought of Rose, mentally resolving to be, if possible, more like her.

"You are not angry with me?" said Hagar, observing Maggie's silence. "You asked my opinion, and I gave it to you. You are too young to know whom you like. Henry Warner is the first man you ever knew, and, in two years' time, you'll tire of him."

"Tire of him, Hagar? Tire of Henry Warner?" cried Mag, a little indignantly. "You do not know me, if you think I'll ever tire of him; and, then, too, did I tell you grandma keeps writing to me about a Mr. Carrollton, who, she says, is wealthy, fine-looking, highly educated, and very aristocratic, and that at least makes me hate him! I've heard so much about aristocracy that I'm sick of it, and just for that reason I would not have this Mr. Carrollton if I knew he'd make me Queen of England. But grandma's heart is set upon it, I know, and she thinks, of course, that he would marry me—says he is delighted with my daguerreotype—that awful one, too, with the staring eyes. In grandma's last letter he sent me a note. 'Twas beautifully written, and I dare say he is a fine young man, at least he talks common sense, but I shan't answer it—and, if you'll believe me, I used part of it in lighting Henry's cigar and with the rest I shall light firecrackers on the fourth of July. Henry has bought a lot of them, and we're going to have fun. How grandma would scold! But I shall marry Henry Warner, anyway. Do you think she will oppose me when she sees how determined I am?"

"Of course she will," answered Hagar. "I know these Carrolltons. They are a haughty race, and if your grandmother has one of them in view she'll turn you from her door sooner than see you married to another, and an American, too."

There was a moment's silence, and, then, with an unnatural gleam in her eye, old Hagar turned toward Mag, and grasping her shoulder, said: "If she does this thing, Maggie Miller—if she casts you off, will you take me for your grandmother? Will you let me live with you? I'll be your drudge, your slave. Say, Maggie, may I go with you? Will you call me grandmother? I'd willingly die if only one I could hear you speak to me thus, and know it was in love."

For a moment Mag looked at her in astonishment; then, thinking to herself, "She surely is half-crazed," she answered, laughingly: "Yes, Hagar, if grandma casts me of, you may go with me. I shall need your care, but I can't promise to call you grandma, because you know you are not."

The corners of Hagar's mouth worked nervously, but her teeth shut firmly over the thin, white lip, forcing back the wild words trembling there, and the secret was not told.

"Go home, Maggie Miller," she said at last, rising slowly to her feet. "Go home now, and leave me alone. I am willing you should marry Henry Warner—nay, I wish you to do it; but you must remember your promise."

Maggie was about to answer, when her thoughts were directed to another chanel by the sight of George Douglas and Theo coming slowly down the shaded pathway, which led past Hagar's doorway. Old Hagar saw them, to, and whispering to Maggie, said: "There's another marriage brewing, or the signs do not tell true, and madam will sanction this one, too, for there's money there, and gold can purify any blood."

Ere Mag could reply, Theo called out: "You here Mag, as usual?" adding, aside to her companion, "she has the most unaccountable taste, so different from me, who cannot endure anything low and vulgar. Can you? But I need not ask," she continued, "for your associations have been of a refined nature."

George Douglas did not answer, for his thoughts were back in the brown farmhouse at the foot of the hill, where his boyhood was passed, and he wondered what the highbred lady at his side would say if she could see the sun-burnt man and plain, old fashioned woman, who called him their son George Washington. He would not confess that he was ashamed of his parentage, for he tried to be a kind and dutiful son, but he would a little rather that Theo Miller should not know how democratic had been his early training, so he made her no answer, but, addressing himself to Mag, asked "how she could find it in her heart to leave her patient so long?"

"I'm going back directly," she said, and donning her hat she started for home, thinking she had gained but little hesitation from Hagar, who, as Douglas and Theo passed on, resumed her seat by the door, and listening to the sounds of Margaret's retreating footsteps, muttered: "The old lightheartedness is gone. There are shadows gathering round her; for, once in love, she'll never be as free and joyous again. But it can't be helped; it's the destiny of women, and I only hope this Warner is worthy of her, but he ain't. He's too wild—too full of what Hagar Warren calls bedevilments. And Mag does everything he tells her to do. Not content with tearing down his bed-curtains which have hung there full twenty years, she set things cornerwise, because the folks do so in Worcester, and has turned the parlor into a smoking room till all the air at Hillsdale can't take away that tobacco scent. Why, it almost knocks me down." And the old lady groaned aloud, as she recounted to herself the recent innovations upon the time-honored habits of her mistress' house.

Henry Warner was, indeed, rather a fast young man, but it needed the suggestive presence of George Douglas to bring out his true character, and for the four days succeeding the arrival of the latter there were rare doings at the old stone house, where the astonished and rather delighted servants looked on in amazement, while the young men sang their jovial songs and drank of the rare old wine which Mag, utterly fearless of what her grandmother might say, brought from the cellar below. But when, on the morning of the Fourth, Henry Wagner suggested that they have a celebration, or at least, hang out the American flag by way of showing their patriotism, there were signs of rebellion in the kitchen, while Mrs. Jeffrey, who had long since ceased to interfere, felt it her duty to remonstrate. Accordingly, she descended to the parlor, where she found George Douglas and Mag dancing to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," which Theo played upon the piano, while Henry Warner whistled a most stirring accompaniment! To be heard above that din was impossible, and involuntarily patting her own slippered foot to the lively strain the distressed little lady went back to her room, wondering what Madam Conway would say if she knew how her house was being desecrated.

But Madam Conway did not know. She was three thousand miles away, and with this distance between them Maggie dared do anything; so when the flag was again mentioned she answered apologetically, as if it were something of which they ought to be ashamed: "We never had any, but we can soon make one, I know. Twill be fun to see it float from the house-top!" and flying up the stairs to the dusty garret, she drew from a huge oaken chest a scarlet coat which had belonged to the former owner of the place who little thought as he sat in state, that his favorite coat would one day furnish materials for the emblem of American freedom!

No such thought as this, however, obtruded itself upon Mag as she bent over the chest. "This coat is of no use," she said, and gathering it up she ran back to the parlor, where, throwing it across Henry's lap, she told how it had belonged to her great-great-grandfather, who, at the time of the Revolution, went home to England. The young men exchanged a meaning look, and then burst into a laugh, but the cause of their merriment they did not explain, lest the prejudices of the girls should be aroused.

"This is just the thing," said Henry, entering heart and soul into the spirit of the fun. "This is grand. Can't you find some blue for the ground work of the stars?"

Mag thought a moment, and then exclaimed: "Oh yes, I have it—grandma has a blue satin bodice, which she wore when she was a young lady. She once gave me a part of the back for my dolly's dress. She won't care if I cut up the rest for a banner."

"Of course not," answered George Douglas. "She'll be glad to have it used for such a laudable purpose," and walking to the window he laughed heartily as he saw in fancy the wrath of the proud English woman when she learned the use to which her satin bodice had been appropriated.

The waist was brought in a twinkling, and then, when Henry asked for some white, Mag cried "A sheet will be just the thing—one of grandma's small linen ones. It won't hurt a bit," she added, as she saw a shadow on Theo's brow, and, mounting to the top of the high chest of drawers, she brought out a sheet of finest linen, which with rose leaves and fragrant herbs, had been carefully packed away.

It was a long, delightful process, the making of that banner, and Maggie's voice rang out loud and clear as she saw how cleverly Henry Warner managed the shears, cutting the red coat into stripes. The arrangement of the satin fell to Maggie's lot, and while George Douglas made the stars, Theo looked on, a little doubtfully, not that her nationality was in any way affected, for what George Douglas sanctioned was by this time right with her; but she felt some misgiving as to what her grandmother might say, and, thinking if she did nothing but look on and laugh, the blame would fall on Mag; she stood aloof, making occasionally a suggestion, and seeming as pleased as any one when at last the flag was done. A quilting frame served as a flag-staff, and Mag was chosen to plant it upon the top of the house, where was a copola, or miniature tower, overlooking the surrounding country. Leading to this tower was a narrow staircase, and up these stairs Mag bore the flag, assisted by one of the servant girls, whose birthplace was green Erin, and whose broad, good-humored face shone with delight as she fastened the pole securely in its place, and then shook aloft her checked apron in answer to the cheer which came up from below when first the American banner waved over the old stone house.

Attracted by the noise, and wondering what fresh mischief they were doing, Mrs. Jeffrey went out into the yard just in time to see the flag of freedom as it shook itself out in the summer breeze.

"Heaven help me!" she ejaculated. "Stars and Stripes on Madam Conway's house!" and resolutely shutting her eyes, lest they should look again on what to her seemed sacrilege, she groped her way back to the house, and retiring to her room, wrote to Madam Conway an exaggerated account of the proceedings, bidding her hasten home or Mag and Theo would be ruined.

The letter being written, the good lady felt better—so much better, indeed, that after an hour's deliberation she concluded not to send it, inasmuch as it contained many complaints against the young lady Margaret, who she knew was sure in the end to find favor in her grandmother's eyes. This was the first time Mrs. Jeffrey had attempted a letter to her employer, for Maggie had been the chosen correspondent, Theo affecting to dislike anything like letter-writing. On the day previous to Henry Warner's arrival at the stone house, Mag had written to her grandmother, and ere the time came for her to write again she had concluded to keep his presence there a secret; so Madam Conway was, as yet ignorant of his existence; and while in the homes of the English nobility she bore herself like a royal princess, talking to young Arthur Carrollton of her beautiful granddaughter, she little dreamed of the real state of affairs at home.

But it was not for Mrs. Jeffrey to enlighten her, and tearing her letter in pieces the governess sat down in her easy-chair by the window, mentally congratulating herself upon the fact that "the two young savages," as she styled Douglas and Warner, were to leave on the morrow. This last act of theirs, the hoisting of the banner, had been the culminating point, and, too indignant to sit with them at the same table, she resolutely kept her room throughout the entire day, poring intently over "Baxter's Saint's Rest," her favorite volume when at all flurried or excited. Occasionally, too, she would stop her ears with jeweler's cotton to shut out the sound of "Hail, Columbia!" as it came up to her from the parlor below, where the young men were doing their best to show their patriotism.

Toward evening, alarmed by a whizzing sound, which seemed to be often repeated, and wishing to know the cause, she stole half-way down the stairs, when the mischievous Mag greeted her with a "serpent," which, hissing beneath her feet, sent her quickly back to her room, from which she did not venture again. Mrs. Jeffrey was very good-natured, and reflecting that "young folks must have fun," she became at last comparatively calm, and at an early hour sought her pillow. But thoughts of "Stars and Stripes" waving directly over her head, as she knew they were, made her nervous, and the long clock struck the hour of two while she was yet restless and wakeful.

"Maybe the 'Saint's Rest,' will quiet me a trifle," she thought, and, striking a light, she attempted to read, but in vain, for every word was a "star," every line a "stripe," and every leaf a "flag." Shutting the book and hurriedly pacing the floor, she exclaimed "It's of no use trying to sleep, or meditate either. Baxter himself couldn't do it with that thing over his head, and I mean to take it down. It's a duty I owe to King George's memory and to Madam Conway." And stealing from her room she groped her way up the dark, narrow stairway, until, emerging into the bright moonlight, she stood directly beneath the American banner, waving so gracefully in the night wind. "It's a clever enough device," she said, gazing rather admiringly at it. "And I'd let it be if I s'posed I could sleep a wink, but I can't. It's worse for my nerves than strong green tea, and I'll not lie awake for all the Yankee flags in Christendom." So saying, the resolute little woman tugged at the cedar frame until she loosened it from its fastenings and then started to return.

But, alas! the way was narrow and dark, the banner was large and cumbersome, while the lady that bore it was nervous and weak. It is not strange, then, that Maggie, who slept at no great distance, was awakened by a tremendous crash, as of someone falling the entire length of the tower stairs, while a voice, frightened and faint, called out: "Help me, Margaret, do! I am dead! I know I am!"

(To be Continued.)

When you hear a man complain that life isn't worth living you can come to the conclusion that he is already a dead one.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson VII. May 16, 1915.

David Spares Saul.—1 Samuel 26: 1-25. Print 26: 5-16.

Commentary.—I. Saul seeking David's life (vs. 1-4). The Ziphites informed Saul where David was, telling him that he was in the hill Hachilah. Once before this the Ziphites had given Saul similar information and he went out to seek him, but word came to him that the Philistines were invading the land, so he left off pursuing after David. This time, however, Saul went with his army of three thousand picked men to Hachilah to find David with his six hundred supporters. Saul made his camp and expected to take David in a short time. David was active and alert. He was not the kind of man to be taken unawares. He sent out spies and learned from them that Saul was pursuing him and where his camp was.

II. Saul in David's power (vs. 5-12). 5. David arose—He went by night to the camp of Saul to determine exactly the situation of his enemy. In the trenches—"Within the place of the wagons."—R. V. The Hebrew admits of this rendering. The thought is that Saul was in the best fortified or most secure place in the camp. It was a common practice in forming a camp to place the leading officers in the centre and arrange the troops in a circle about them. 6. Ahimelech the Hittite—He is mentioned nowhere else in the scriptures. Abishai—Abishai and Joab were David's nephews, the sons of his sister Zeruiah. I will go down with thee—In response to David's call for volunteers Abishai said this. This reply shows Abishai's personal bravery and his loyalty to David. 7. Spear stuck in the ground at his bolster—It was customary for a soldier in camp to place his spear thus, that he might quickly be ready to meet an enemy coming suddenly upon him. The spear being near his head, he would simply have to reach out his hand to take it.

8. God hath delivered—On a previous occasion David's friends said to him that the Lord had delivered his enemy into his hand, but David would not harm Saul; and on this occasion Abishai was glad that the day had come when his master would be free from the murderous hatred of Saul, and sought the privilege of smiting the king. I will not smite him the second time—For he thought one stroke with the spear would be enough. 9. Destroy him not—David was not seeking to take Saul's life, but was seeking to preserve his own. Against the Lord's anointed—Even though Saul had been wicked and still had murder in his heart, David recognized the fact that he had been anointed king by Samuel at the Lord's command, and he was still king. As long as the Lord should permit Saul to live, David would consider himself guilty if he should in any way cause him harm. 10. As the Lord liveth—A reverent appeal to God in confirmation of his faith in what he was saying. The Lord shall smite him—David knew that he was to become king. He knew also God's displeasure with Saul. Hence his confidence that the Lord would in his own way cause the removal of Saul. Descend into battle, and perish—This took place a few years later (ch. 31: 1-6.) 11. Take thou now the spear—The purpose in taking the spear and the cruse of water appears a little later. 12. A deep sleep from the Lord—A similar form of expression is used with reference to Adam's sleeping when a rib was taken from his side for the formation of Eve. No guards were on duty in Saul's camp. All were asleep. It seems strange that an army in the field, when important interests were at stake, should rest so carelessly as to place no sentinels for the protection of the camp. Abner, Saul's captain, was an able man, but he did not have a proper conception of David's bravery and alertness. It must be borne in mind, however, that the Lord was taking David's part.

III. David rebukes Saul (vs. 13-20). 13. To the other side—Across the valley. Probably David returned to the top of the hill from which he had descended in making his way to Saul's camp. A great space being between them—On the former occasion when David spared Saul, he spoke with him face to face, but this time he withdrew to a considerable distance, not trusting Saul as much as he did before. 14. David cried to ...... Abner—In the stillness of the night in that country the human voice can be distinctly heard for a long distance from one hilltop to another. 15. Who is like to thee in Israel—Abner was acknowledged to be a powerful man. David reminded him of his neglect to guard the king. 16. Now see where the king's spear is—David took this way to tell Abner that he had been in the very centre of Saul's camp and had taken the spear and the cruse of water, and he had not been guarding the king faithfully. 17-20. Saul heard David's voice and recognized it. David was not slow in assuring the king that he had done nothing amiss. He had in no way injured Saul. He gives Saul to understand that he thinks his course is altogether unworthy of a king. He compares his course to that of chasing a flea or hunting a partridge in the mountains.

IV. Saul's confession (vs. 17-25). Saul was moved by David's forbearance to confess his sin and to acknowledge that he had "played the fool." He seemed to appreciate David's large-heartedness and promised to do him no harm. David assured Saul that he would not put forth his hand against the Lord's anointed, and expressed his confidence in the Lord's protection. Saul expressed great interest in David and prophesied that he would do great things. After this David went on his way and Saul returned home. David did not have enough confidence in Saul's fixedness of purpose to trust himself in his hands.

Question. Where did David go to escape Saul? How did David feel toward Saul? Who told Saul where David was? How many men did David have with him and who were they? How large an army had Saul? Describe David's visit to Saul's camp. How did Saul feel when he learned what David had done? What did Saul say to David? Why did David remain with Saul?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—A sinner condemned.
I. By righteous example.
II. By the voice of conscience.

I. By righteous example. Saul, the king of Israel, was bound to David by every tie of gratitude as the man who had saved his life and kingdom; yet his kindness had been shamefully abused, and evil had been returned for good. For three years David had lived the life of a fugitive, and in many ways and places had sought to shelter himself against the unrighteous and pitiless wrath of Saul. David was deeply conscious of being a loyal, loving subject, free from ambition or desire to do other than good to his king. He referred to having spared Saul's life as an evidence of this. His aim was not so much to afford a further vindication of himself, as to stay the persecution of Saul, and to induce him to act in accordance with his former solemn oath, when David's innocence with respect to any evil design against Saul was fully vindicated. David as much desired that Saul should stand in right relations to God as that he himself should be delivered from evil. All the former reasons for avenging himself still existed, and in greater force because of the additional sufferings he had endured. David had a golden opportunity, and made golden use of it, for he refused to avenge himself, but suffered his enemy to depart unharmed. Forbearance was mightier than weapons of war. He gave two reasons why he would not destroy Saul or permit others to do it. First, it would be a sinful affront to God's ordinance. It would also be a sinful anticipation of God's providence. The principle upon which his conduct toward Saul was based was an unbounded reverence for God as the source of all power, justice and excellence, a profound respect for every authority that was ordained of God; due subordination to the claims of God and the entire subordination of personal claims. His faith in God yielded the fruit of forbearance and compassion. David could have destroyed Saul, but he would not. David conquered Saul as surely as he conquered Goliath, but his greatest victory was over his own spirit. Abishai had said, "Thine enemy," but David said, "The Lord's anointed." Here were two different views of the same man. David's view-point governed his conduct. The quality of charity is of priceless value, and its exercise shows the greatness of him who possesses it.

II. By the voice of conscience. David's speech was thoroughly suited to sharpen Saul's conscience and lead him to give up his enmity if he still had an ear for the voice of truth. Looking back upon a long course of disobedience and self-will, and more especially upon his recent persecutions of David, Saul declared he had sinned. His [illegible] justified his expression of "playing the fool," inasmuch as his public life was marred by a continued attempt to defeat God's arrangements. He had yielded to the impulses of passion and obeyed the dictates of a selfish heart with no regard for the consequences. Saul seemed to have everything in his favor at last to declare his folly, and all because of his failure to follow God at all cost and against all selfish inclinations. He admitted his error, but took no steps to turn his confession to practical advantage. His tendencies were not altered by his interview with David, therefore his recognition of right failed to become a power over his conduct in the succeeding days. There were indications in the interview of increased obduracy in his heart. He acknowledged the contrast between David's conduct and his own. He turned back from his pursuit, as he had done before, but he did not reinstate his son-in-law nor relieve him of the harassing sense of insecurity. His confession did not change his character nor delay his fate. It was intellectual, but not moral. It was an admission of truth, but not a response to its power over the life. Through David's appeal he was prompted to let right and reason exercise a legitimate sway over his thoughts and render just conclusions. Though he appeared humble, he was still proud and obstinate. Though he admitted his folly, he would not renounce it. He had become fixed in his unholy course, and conscience seemed dead.—T. R. A.

DRAGON FLIES AT SEA.

The Puzzle That Came With Them and a Squall Later On.

In describing a voyage from Hongkong to Shanghai some years ago Admiral Fitzgerald relates in his book, 'Memories of the Sea,' a peculiar experience:

"One afternoon when we were lying at anchor out of sight of land, the weather being very close and sultry, we saw a great cloud approaching the ship from the direction of the shore, which came slowly nearer and nearer. It did not look like rain, and presently, as it enveloped the ship, we found it was composed of dragon flies, and very big ones. They evidently made for the ship to get a resting place, but many missed and fell exhausted in the calm sea.

"The masts, the yards, the rigging and all the ropes in the ship were incrusted with them. It was a very sultry evening, and about 6 o'clock we all bathed. I remember the strange experience of diving into a sea of dragon flies, which stuck to our arms and shoulders, got into our hair and quite spoiled our swim. A light air then came off from the land, so we weighed anchor and made sail to the southward, and at midnight, just as the watch was changing, we were struck by a terrific squall, which laid the old ship nearly on her beams ends.

"We wondered whether the visitation of dragon flies was connected in any way with the squall. But if they were blown fifty miles off the land, where they certainly did not want to go, why did we not get the wind for six hours afterward?"

Balance.

The beast walks on four legs and stands always firm. The human creature walks on two legs, and hence must constantly keep his balance.

There is no satisfactory list of rules for life, because to every rule there are exceptions.

There is no way to escape using your judgment; no way to avoid personal responsibility. Therefore it is wrong to say that if you do thus and so you will be right, and that if you do otherwise you will be wrong. General principles are aids to direction, but they are not substitutes.

Life is like walking a tight rope. Success consists in learning how to maintain your equilibrium. The only safety lies in a trained and skilled capacity to weigh, measure and decide for yourself.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World for April.

At any rate the people who are always talking about themselves can't very well be talking about us.

CANADIAN BANK
OF COMMERCE

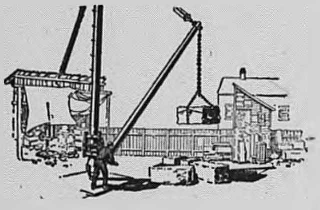
HAS INSTALLED

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

LODGE YOUR

Wills, Title Deeds, Mortgages, Insurance Policies
or other valuables in one of these boxes

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY TO
H. M. LAY MANAGER, Walkerton Ont



It Multiplies Power.

The telephone, like the crane, multiplies power.

The telephone increases personal efficiency and enlarges the volume of business by extending the field of the merchant's activity.

If the modern business man had to travel every time it was necessary to have a personal talk with a customer or business associate, he would be in the position of a builder without a crane.

Are you using the telephone as you should—systematically applying it to the needs of your business?

The telephone, especially the long distance service, makes possible real economy, and with it a greater, not a lower, efficiency. A careful study of the subject will repay you.

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station."

The Bell Telephone Co.
of Canada.

WALKERTON TELESCOPE

Published
every Thursday morning at
Walkerton, Ont.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 per year in advance. Otherwise $1.50. United States $1.50.

THE TELESCOPE PRINTING COMPANY,
Publishers and Proprietors.

EDITORIAL

QUARRELLED WITH LIBERAL NEIGHBORS.

A gentleman of the old "political school" in conversation recently stated that he had all his life been a most uncompromising Conservative and had been guilty of factious conduct with the opposite political creed, having quarrelled with nearly all his Liberal neighbors. This gentleman had occasion to visit Ottawa, and to his surprise he found that the politicians when once elected were remarkably good friends and the utmost cordiality existed between the leaders. All at once I realized what an "old fool" I had been and returned home a convert to the new idea and have tried to be fairly decent ever since, remarked the once factious country politician. It's another case where travel broadens the mind. Narrow surroundings develop bigotry.

IS POVERTY A CRIME

The system of imposing fines for violation of the law is a great convenience for those who want to make an appearance of enforcing the law; but it is a practice that is open to the charge of discriminating against poverty and in favor of riches. Supposing that two men, one a millionaire and the other a poor man, are convicted of the same offence. At first sight it might appear that equal justice was done when the same fine was imposed in both cases, but a little thought will make it clear that the fine which would mean heavy punishment for the poor man, would be simply a joke for the rich man. Nor is that all. In many cases the fine, which is not sufficient to cause the rich man a second thought, means a term of imprisonment for the man without money. We are so accustomed to the practice of sending men to jail because they cannot pay their fines that we seldom stop to think what the practice means. Practically it means that they are sent to jail because of their poverty. Practically it means that the innocent wives and children, who are depending on these men, are punished for their poverty by being deprived of the support of their bread-winners. Practically it means that the state punishes itself by putting itself to the expense of supporting these people while in prison.

One of the remedies proposed would permit of the payment of small fines on the instalment plan. This has been tried in some parts of the United States, and legislation for the same purpose is now awaiting a chance to be dealt with in the British House. This would not equalize the punishment by any means. It would still be true that what would be a laughing matter for the millionaire would be a serious matter for the poor man, but it would give the poor man a better chance than he has at present and it would entail less suffering on the innocent wives and children. But it is clear that no system that fails to take account of individual conditions can satisfy the modern sense of justice. A fine of a hundred dollars might mean less punishment to one man than a fine of one dollar would mean to another. On the other hand a day in jail might cast a shadow over the whole after life of one man while a month in jail would be welcomed by another.

Eventually some provision must be made whereby a man sent to jail will be enabled, not only to pay for his maintenance, but to contribute to the support of his family by his work. There is no good reason why the state should be compelled to support offenders, while honest men are compelled to support themselves, neither is there any good reason why a man who has offended against society should be relieved from the natural responsibility of supporting his family.

Shipped Equipment to London.

The Militia officials visited Harriston Thursday and shipped from the armory all the rifles and bayonets belonging to No. 1 company 30th Wellington Rifles, to be used in helping to equip the new battalion being recruited at London.

On Monday of last week, Robert Irwin, Hank Irwin, Samuel Brown and Mr. Scott, of Wingham, motored to Walkerville, where the Messrs. Irwin each purchased a Studebaker motor car. The party motored 210 miles, visiting Walkerton, London, Chatham, Windsor and Detroit. At Windsor, Mr. Samuel Brown called on his friend, Dr. Frank McLennan, who is now one of the leading doctors of the city.—Ripley Express.

To Change Farmer's Institute.

At the meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Ontario Legislature last week the announcement was made that the department would shortly reorganize the system with respect to the Farmer's Institutes. The present system has not produced the results expected, and the change will be made almost immediately. The scheme is to amalgamate all local organizations and enlist in some way the co-operation of the Municipalities and the Boards of Trade. A larger programme of judging with respect to field crops and the other branches of agriculture will be introduced and a further revival of interest in agricultural education is planned.

Laborers on Strike.

It is not generally conceded that [illegible] possesses a labor union but from the actions of a few on Monday many would be led to think so. The Reeve engaged a number of men to clean the streets and the work was in progress when they decided to enquire what wages they were to receive. The Reeve was called and he informed them that the usual wages, viz $1.50 per day would be paid. However this did not coincide with the views held by the men engaged to do the work as they wanted $1.75 per day. When the Reeve informed them that he could not increase the standard wage without consulting the council, the men decided to go on strike, and consequently hung up their shovels. The strike was broken yesterday when a new gang went on the job.

Soldier, wounded Returns.

John Murphy, who enlisted with the first Canadian Contingent and then crossed over to France, faced the Germans in the trenches, and was wounded on February 27th at the first battle at Ypres, arrived here on Thursday, suffering from his wound and the hardship he endured while in the trenches. After his discharge from the hospital, like a broken-down horse he was cast aside as being unfit to fight for his King and Country. Murphy received his Canadian discharge at Halifax and then went to Ottawa and registered for a first-class pension. He then went to Toronto, and had several offers of free board for a year but these offers he refused. He was advised to get into the country to recuperate. He had a few dollars left and with this cash he purchased a ticket to Ripley, and a few hours after his arrival he was engaged as a farm laborer with Mr. Angus Graham of Kinloss.—Ripley Express.

Electric Motor Installed.

Hergott Bros. switched on their new electric power at the foundry last Thursday afternoon. A ten horse power Westinghouse motor has been installed, and it provides sufficient energy to operate every machine in the foundry. The firm is well pleased with the change, both in the point of efficiency and economy. It is quite probable that other motors will be installed here this year.—Mildmay Gazette.

Unlawful to Spear Fish.

It may be information of a beneficial sort to fishermen that in accordance with the act which states specifically that there can be no fishing done in any of the inland waters in Ontario with spears, that this includes all streams such as creeks, etc. It is therefore a violation of the act to use a spear when fishing for suckers. The fish can be caught with a hook during the season of running or any other time without leaving the party liable. The use of the spear has been banned owing to parties abusing the privilege given, it having come to light that an occasional muskinonge was taken in this way. It remains within the power of the fish inspector to prosecute parties found spearing suckers.

School Reports

S. S. NO. 7, BRANT,

Sr IV.—W Brown, S Scott, G Kerry, H Reed, F Young, M Fordyce, O Seiler.

Jr IV.— G Scott, D McKeeman, T Desmond, G Kerry.

Sr III.—G Gregg, L Scott, W O'Reilly, D Desmond, E Acton.

Jr III.—J McKeeman, K Kauffman.

Sr II.— F Smith, M Young, T Younge, V Blue, A Young, M Brown, A Heath.

Jr II. L Kerry, F Desmond, T Desmond, M Kauffman, S Kauffman, N Kerr, E Blue, M Young, H Scott, L Gregg, J O'Reilly.

Sr I. -P Gregg, M Pearson, C Hoflauth, E Hoole.

Sr Pr — M Napper, B Edmonds, J Alexander, W Zettler, A Kauffman, J Kupperschmidt.

Jr Pr—G Gregg, D O'Reilly, N Gregg, D Gregg, P Kauffman, V Younge, L Zettler, A Zettler, W Napper.

No enrolled—50.

Average attendance—18.

E. S. Lovell,
teacher.

DUNKELD SCHOOL

For the month of April

Sr. IV—Pass—A. Chisholm, J Garland.

Jr. IV—Honors—A Boddy, M Knoll

Sr. III Honors—C Garland, B Garland, M Abell Pass—Wilson Parker, W. Boddy.

Jr. III—Honors, E. Waechter, V. Abell, Willie Parker, Cecil Parker. Pass—R Chesney, S Kastner, W Symonds, L Knoll.

Sr. II—Honors—L Symonds, H Schnitzler, Pass—O Johnston, J Beckberger, I Parker.

Jr II—Hon—A Garland, H Chesney, G Knoll. Pass—S Beckberger.

Jr I—Hon—T Schnitzler, R Parker. Pass—P Beckberger, L Graff, T Kastner.

Sr Pr—Hon—J Waechter, John Monahan, F Johnston. Pass—M Johnston, F Symonds, S Knoll.

Jr Pr—Pass—M Colwell, Irene Abell, H Frook.

(A) — Hon—P Hetchler. Wallace Parker, H Campbell, Gimmie Hetchler,) O Parker, Murray Garland, H Boddy. Pass—Clayton Abell, H Knoll, O Hetchler.

Mary M. Keith,
teacher.

FORMOSA SCHOOL

Form IV.

D Schwartz, M Kieffer, F Montag, J Weiler, C Weiss, O Oberle, B Hauck, C Zettel, H Dentinger, R Waechter, C Weishar, E Zimmer, T Frank, J Obermeyer, M Schnitzler, J Albrecht, R Fedy, C Massel, H Kuntz, C Beninger, L Kraemer, L Oberle, S Baumann, A Weiner, C Kuntz, E Waechter, H Fedy.

Form III.

A Tiede, G Hildstein, H Beninger, L Dentinger, L Tiede, C Beingessner, R Weiler, C Duerrer, J Weiler, C Schetter, W Rich, M Rehn, C Hundt, W Noll, J Kraemer, O Strauss, A Meyer, O Kraemer, M Schuntz, J Fedy, J Waechter, W Doerr, A Wieler, R Kuntz, C Zimmer, H Zettel, C Hauck, H Strauss, W Waechter, B Weishar, E Lehmann, N Weiler, C Weiss.

Form II.

E Massell, I Kuntz, M Dentinger, M Duerrer, I Aultmann, A Doerr, M Weiss, A Noll, C Oberle, A Bruck, F Schnurr, L Oberle, E Schnitzler, L Vogt, A Kuntz, N Olbrecht, L Duerrer.

H Zettel, E Hauck, L Beninger, W Massel, M Hildstein, M Kraemer, M Bruck, F Mosack, C Lehmann, E Montag, G Zimmer, C Beninger, L Kuntz, N Strauss, M Albrecht, A Rettinger, R Rettinger, L Beingessner, V Noll, W Fahrer, C Rich, J Weiler.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, } ss.
Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure. FRANK J. CHENEY.
Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO. Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

MIRACULOUS CURE OF ASTHMA

Suffered Terribly for 15 Years Until He Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

D. A. WHITE, Esq.

21 WALLACE AVE., TORONTO,
Dec. 22nd. 1913.

"Having been a [illegible] sufferer from Asthma for a period of fifteen years (sometimes having to sit up at night for weeks at a time) I began the use of "Fruit-a-tives". These wonderful tablets relieved me of Indigestion, and through the continued use of same, I am no longer distressed with that terrible disease, Asthma, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" which are worth their weight in gold to anyone suffering as I did. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers from Asthma, which I believe is caused or aggravated by Indigestion". D. A. WHITE

For Asthma, for Hay Fever, for any trouble caused by excessive nervousness due to Impure Blood, faulty Digestion or Constipation, take "Fruit-a-tives"

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE COOK MEDICINE CO., TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

FOR ICE CREAM
GO TO Erdman's PHONE No. 100

WINGHAM BUGGIES

When you want a buggy, you want one that will give you long service. That's what the WINGHAM BUGGIES give. They have a neat appearance and they last. Besides they are cheap. We have all lines in stock including rubber tired buggies with automobile seats and tops. If you are interested call, and we will give you prices and all information.

JOS. HUNZIGER
CHEPSTOW : : : ONTARIO

TREES ! TREES !!

All kinds of Fruit and ornamental Trees Evergreens, Roses Shrubs, Climbers, etc. Everything in the nursery line. Send list of your wants for prices Catalogue free.

Agents Wanted Everywhere

Apply for terms.

J. H. WISMER
Nurseryman Port Elgin, Ontario

CENTRAL Business College
STRATFORD. ONT.

Ontario's best Practical Training School We have thorough courses and experienced instructors in each of our three departments

Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy. Our graduates are good and you should get our large, free catalogue. Write for it at once.

D. A. McLACHLAN
PRINCIPAL

Walkerton Flour Mills

Red Cross Manitoba Blended Flour.
Pure Manitoba Flour
Pastry "
Graham "
Cracked Wheat, Farnia
Oatmeal, Bran and Shorts.
Chopping and Gristing a specialty.

PLETSCH BROS
Walkerton Ont

DENTAL

W. J. HALLIDAY, D. L. DS Dentist
Successor to Dr. Corson. Modern methods employed in all dental operations. Special attention to crown, bridge and inlay work. Three doors east of postoffice. Visits Cargill 1st and 3rd Thursday afternoon of each month.

J.S.REED, Surgeon, dentist, crown and bridge work a specialty. Office, Colborne Str., south of new Carnegie Library.

MEDICAL

DR BROWN, Diseases of the Eye Ear, Nose & Throat Neustadt, Ont. Will be at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, 1st Friday in each month 2 to 6 p m.

W. A. HALL, B.A., M.D., C.M., Hon Graduate in Arts and Medicine at Queen's University. Member of the College of physicians and Surgeons. Office and residence on corner of Colborne and Cayley Streets.

AUCTIONEER

J. G. CARTER, Licensed Auctioneer for the County of Bruce. Sales of all kinds promptly attended to. Farmstock and Implements a specialty. Terms reasonable. For orders write J G CARTER, Greenock P O., or arrangements can be made at the Telescope office, Walkerton.

VETERINARY

S. HANMORE, V.S. Honor graduate of Ontario Veterinary College. Dr. Hanmore has opened office in Cargill opposite Powers' Hotel. Treatment of all domestic animals by the most modern appliances. Calls night and day attended.

JAMES COULTER
(REAL ESTATE AGENT)

Real Estate bought and sold: money to loan: also agent for the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire Insurance Company. — Phone 140. [illegible]

BRITISH AMERICAN BUSINESS COLLEGE

Leads in age, influence, and successful graduates. Specializes in Gregg and Pitman Shorthand and all commercial subjects. Fall term begins August 31st. Write for our catalogue Address, T. Wauchope, Principal Younge and McGill Sts., Toronto.

You can Begin Any Day at the
NORTHERN Business College
Owen Sound, Ont.

Individual Instruction

Our own three-story building and 34 successful years of experience.

Expert instructors produce the very best results.

Catalogue Free

C A FLEMING, F. C. A., Principal
D G. FLEMING Secretary.

Photographs

Our photographs are more than good photographs—they are true portraits—bringing out all that's best in character and individuality. Make your appointments NOW.

F. J. Fraser
Studio - - Walkerton.

STOVES

If you want a stove buy a "HAPPY THOUGHT." None better. Also a full line of Heating Stove at

H A HAVILL
Walkerton - - Ont.

THREE THINGS MAKE
COLUMBIA RECORDS

The Most Delightful in all the World

The Artists

All artists of note seek to have Columbia Records perpetuate their fame.

From Grand Opera Stars like Mary Garden and Zenatello to such leading virtuosi as Ysaye and Pablo Casals. From entertainers like Billy Williams, originator of Tipperary, to Whit Cunliffe of "Hello, Hello" fame. All stand ready to reveal themselves on Columbia Records.

Reproductive Qualities

Columbia Records excel for clarity, volume and sweetness of tone, and durability of material.

They are well and truly made, and are practically everlasting, if carefully used.

Listen to a Columbia and compare it with any other Record, and your choice will always be a

COLUMBIA

Their Price

Columbia Records cost no more than others.

But every Columbia Record is a double-disc and will play on any machine. You can get them for as low as 85 cents or as much as $7.50. But no matter what price you pay, the Columbia Record at that price is better value than can be obtained in any other record.

Go, see and hear Columbia Grafonlas and Records at the following dealer:

C. A. FOX.
Walkerton, - - - Ontario.

Agents wanted where not actively represented. Apply Music Supply Co., Toronto.

ERN UNIVERSITY, LONDON

Forward Movement

Greatly enlarged faculties in arts and medicine Vastly improved equipment, — library, laboratories, etc.

Seven new scholarships:
Record enrollment.
Inquiries solicited.

E. E. Braithwaite, M.A., Ph. D.
President.

Easy rests th head thatwe ra

"King Hat"

King Hats are flexible and sel. con forming, just where the hat touches the head.

ASK THE MA N WHO FAIS ON THE POPULAR SHAFES $2.50

T. PYE SOLE AGENT
WALKERTON ONTARIO

Brant Township

Farms

I have, in Brant, 2 fifty acre farms, 1 forty-six acre farm, 1 one hundred and thirty acre farm, 2 two hundred acre farms all WELL IMPROVED, convenient to Hanover or Walkerton, and the owners have placed them in my hands because they ARE BOUND TO SELL. I have also a 100 acre farm in Perth, near Listowel, one of the best farms in the County of Perth, with extra improvements, a very great bargain at $7000. I never before had such a choice of Farms as now. My office is HEADQUARTERS and you should come to see me if you want to buy at right prices

H. H. MILLER
HANOVER ONTARIO

FORMOSA

(Intended for last week.)

At the Conservative Meeting last Thursday, Auctioneer John Purvis of Hollyrood was elected as Candidate for the Dominion Election.

The farmers around here and lots from Walkerton Mildmay, and Teeswater assisted in putting out the fire and to save the Furniture, last Wednesday.

Rev. Father Meuting was here last week Assisting our Rev. J. . field who is in poor health for some time.

Mrs. F Kroetsch who is residing here again with her relatives is on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Huck and daughter Maggie who have been visiting in Berlin the past three weeks returned home last Thursday.

John and George Austett of Hanover visited their relations here last Sunday

Joseph Knoepfler has put a new fence in front of his house this week.

It looks like rain every day but their is none coming it is very dry at the present.

LOVAT

(Intended for last week.)

Well every body is busy at the seeding, too busy to look over the fence to see what his neighbor is doing Some are done around here and some are starting it seems hard for some to keep up to the times in the 20 century. What will they be in the next century.

Miss Fena Johnston is nursing her aunt Mrs. Scott of Paisley who is very ill.

Mr. Thompson the cream driver for Paisley creamery has started on the rounds once more, Butter is to be a good price this summer. See the old folks smile.

Mr. Jno. G. McKay lost a valuable cow last week. There has been a lot lost cows this spring.

Mr. Dan Sinclair of Duluth is visiting at Mr. Doc. Curries.

Messrs. Geo Fullerton, Dick McGregor, Jas McKinnon, H Wrightson have all purchased autos this spring Some more are talking about getting one, the auto on the farm has become a necessity more than a luxury, those gentlemen are all prosperous farmers. Its quite a wrinkle to go to town with your eggs or a dozen chickens in an auto.

Well Mr. rag man came along last week wanting rags, rubber, horse hair and his dinner wherever he hit for noon. Well the house-wives sold to him he being the first along. He takes everything, dirt and all kinds of disease in the old rags, from a hair cut to small-pox.

Miss Capple Spence is home for the summer from Toronto University.—Southampton Beacon.

Mr G. S. Schwindt of Walkerton, and Mr. Henry Grasser of Southampton, attended the funeral, in town on Sunday, of the late Richard Manke.—Hanover Post.

BUTTER WRAPPERS

Farmers or Dairymen requiring Butter Wrappers as provided for by the new agricultural regulations can secure same at this office at the following prices:-

100	35c	500	$1.50
250	75c	1000	2.25

Special quotations to the trade in quantities.

TELESCOPE OFFICE
WALKERTON ONTARIO

Rev. G. L. Gross moved this week to his new field of labor at Rainham. Mr. Gross has been here for the past two years, and was beloved and respected by all the members and adherents of his church. Rev. J. Burr, will commence his pastorate here next Sunday.—Mildmay Gazette.

Lecture Appreciated.

The war lecture, illustrated with views, given by Rev. Wilson last Monday evening in the Presbyterian church was up to advance notices and was enjoyed by a large audience. The ordinary seating capacity of the church had to be augmented with chairs.—Southampton Beacon.

Kill the Caterpillar.

This is caterpillar year. Kill them before the young ones are hatched. Some shade trees are full of tent caterpillars and we believe the town should spray the trees on the streets as is done in some western municipalities. Farmers and others who have orchards should commence spraying at once. Ask your hardware man to give you a solution that will rid your trees of these destructive pests.

Hydro By-law at Chesley.

A public meeting of the citizens of Chesley was held in that town on Tuesday night when Engineer James of the Hydro Electric Commission gave a lucid explanation of the hydro movements and the advantage to any town of the adoption of the proposed plan. A by-law will be submitted to the Chesley citizens in the near future to enable the town to contract with the Hydro Commission for the power. The plan to extend the Eugenia Falls-Owen Sound line as far as Chesley and supply that town and intermediate points which will include Tara, with power developed at Eugenia.

When not to Advertise.

